Having an Interview For Your Podcast

Podcasts are experiencing a rise in popularity all over the world. The unique delivery method (podcast tracks in MP3 format being downloaded into computers on a regular basis after subscription) and the fact that you can bring it and listen to it from any place using portable music players are contributing to the ever-growing number of subscribers. Of course, the fact that it is all free is an attractive feature to anyone. Add to that the comparatively simple method of accessing this amazing new service. All you require the internet and a computer - the portable player itself is an optional accessory and is not required to appreciate listening podcasts.

There are many podcasts on the internet catering to a variety of genres. In reality, the genres that are offered by podcasts are so much diverse than the genres offered by regular radio programs. One of the most popular podcast genres though are so-called comedy podcasts. These kinds of podcasts consistently rate at the top of any podcast countdown on the internet. This is a testament to their massive popularity.

There are many possible reasons why comedy podcasts seem to have captured the attention and interest of a lot of people who use computers and podcast followers across the world. The light hearted nature of the podcasts as well as the silly subjects that are discussed are just perfect for the medium. There are comedy podcasts which take the standard interviews with famous people and gives it's a hilarious spin. Imagine having a stressful day at work or are stuck in rush hour traffic and the long wait is driving you nuts. Nothing can ease those negative emotions more than listening to hilarious chatter or commentary on your mobile music player. more here could help you get away from the pressure or the boredom. Comedy podcasts are also a fantastic genre to play along with your music on any portable music player. After listening to your preferred albums you can kick back and just relax and enjoy those zany comedy podcasts.

There are so many comedy podcasts to choose from that it is hard pressed to just pick one.

Below are a few of the most popular comedy podcasts available on the internet:

It's the Ricky Gervais podcast - The funny character from The Office British sitcom The Office has began making podcasts. Gervais is as hilarious as ever. This is British comedy at its best.

The President's Weekly Radio Address - This is the official mockumentary of the US President's weekly radio address. Pres. Bush's weekly address is lampooned every week by these hilarious writers

Gay Fun Show - called the "Love Boat" of podcasts you can listen to political comedies featuring a unique gay twist by the two hosts. They also speak to famous people with their gay humor.

Comedy 365 - another outstanding British-based comedy podcast. It is among the most popular comedy podcasts on the internet and is worth checking out.

Infected by Martin Sargent - TechTV host Martin Sargent brings his zany and hilarious wit on his exploration of the most cutting edge, most humourous and weird content available on the web.