Jackie curiously looked at Elder Maurice, not sure why Elder Maurice summoned Jackie to the Elder Hall. After all, the Elder Hall was not personal space. Normally, the Elder Hall would be completely shut if nothing was happening. Jackie would not have been summoned there to talk about any private matters.

That was why Jackie had thought that he would be facing more than just Elder Maurice for this conversation.

Chapter 2742
He had thought that many elders would be waiting for him in the Elder Hall. Yet, when he arrived at the Elder Hall, he only saw Elder Maurice there.

Was it really necessary to use the Elder Hall for a personal meeting between the two of them?

Jackie felt stranger and stranger as he thought about it, but he did not reveal his thoughts on his face. He politely greeted Elder Maurice before sitting down as Elder Maurice indicated.

Elder Maurice poured Jackie a cup of tea, “This tea is a high-grade spiritual tea. Even the elders are only allowed to take it out when there are guests.”

Jackie hurriedly said, “You’re an elder, we should follow the rules and not waste…”

However, before Jackie could finish, he was interrupted by Elder Maurice, “There’s no need for such empty pleasantries when it’s just the two of us. I called you here because of a personal matter.”

Jackie nodded, motioning for Elder Maurice to continue.

Elder Maurice took a sip of tea before saying, “Have you heard about the Whirling World? “

Jackie was taken aback, not expecting Elder Maurice to mention it immediately. Jackie nodded, not really planning on hiding it. Elder Maurice glanced at Jackie before saying, “What do you plan on doing after this?”

Jackie furrowed his eyebrows, answering honestly, “I’ll wait for the inner valley’s test. I want to enter the inner valley.”

Elder Maurice raised an eyebrow, having already expected that answer. He did not continue talking immediately but paused for a long time before saying, “You should put entering the inner valley aside for now. In two days, you should enter the Whirling World. Don’t ask me why. This is for your own sake. That place has much more for you to gain than risk. With your skills, you’ll definitely be able to make something of yourself there.”

Elder Maurice’s words stunned Jackie for a moment. Jackie frowned, having already considered what Elder Maurice would want to talk to him about. Yet, he never expected that Elder Maurice had wanted to ask him to enter the Whirling World. Jackie started to be suspicious of Elder Maurice’s intentions then.

Elder Maurice looked right at Jackie after he said that. When he saw Jackie’s expression, he knew what Jackie was thinking.

Elder Maurice let out a wry smile as he explained, “Don’t speculate too much. I’m doing this for your sake. The Whirling World has its dangers, but the potential benefits are much larger.

“We already sent out people inside to scout. It won’t just be the outer valley sending a lot of people inside, even the inner valley will be sending most of theirs.”

Hearing Elder Maurice’s words, Jackie relaxed quite a bit. If he was going to be the only one to enter, Jackie would definitely suspect that Elder Maurice was plotting something. However, if even inner valley alchemists were entering, it meant that the Whirling World was not as dangerous as he thought.

Jackie looked up and asked earnestly, “Elder Maurice, why did you call me over to talk about this? Do you want me to hurry up and go inside? In truth, I was planning on becoming an inner valley student first before going in, if I was ever going to go in.”

Elder Maurice sighed. He knew Jackie’s personality. If Jackie did not clearly know everything, Jackie would definitely not go inside. Elder Maurice poured himself some tea before he started to speak.

Chapter 2743
“I do want you to hurry inside as soon as possible. If you don’t go in quickly, you might very well be dragged into certain things. I don’t know how the following days will go.”

Elder Maurice had a strangely apprehensive look on his face as he said there. It was as if there were a lot of difficult matters in front of him. Jackie frowned, not saying anything as he waited patiently.

Elder Maurice continued after a moment, “Phoenix Valley is basically right next to a massive storm right now. If we’re not careful, we’ll be dragged inside. No one knows what the final results of that will be. Even if you seem to only have Elder Rick as an enemy publicly, that’s just what’s known. Sometimes, talent is a double-edged sword. It will attract the attention of the higher-ups and give you better resources, but you’ll also invite the envy of others if you’re too talented…”

“In my eyes, the inner valley is even more dangerous than the outer valley. I knew you’d want to enter the inner valley after you got back, but that place is like a sinister sea. The moment you enter, it’ll be very difficult for you to get out. It would be better for you to venture into the Whirling World. There is a strength restriction there. As long as you’re smart enough, you’ll be able to accomplish a lot inside.”

Elder Maurice was quite sincere in his words. As he said that, he looked at Jackie earnestly. Jackie frowned, thinking about Elder Maurice’s words in detail for a while.

Elder Maurice did not reveal everything, but he still gave Jackie a lot of information. The inner valley was a battlefield that was not fought with weapons. Even though Jackie knew that he could not rely on the words of one person to make his judgment, Elder Maurice’s expression really looked like he was incredibly serious.

Thinking about Elder Maurice’s temper, he was definitely not someone who enjoyed putting on false pretenses. The thought played around in Jackie’s head for a long time.

Elder Maurice knew Jackie’s inner conflict, and he said helplessly, “I know you still want to enter the inner valley to witness what the inner valley really is like. After all, from the news you’ve gotten, becoming an inner valley alchemist will mean you will get a lot of tutelage and resources. However, I’m telling you that this is all just on the surface.

“After you enter the inner valley, you’ll be forced to join a team. The inner valley is split into various factions. It’s not all lumped into one like the outer valley. If you want to continue in the inner valley, you’ll have to pick a side and fight for…”

As he said that, Jackie suddenly raised a hand to stop Elder Maurice. Just hearing all of that caused Jackie to have a massive headache. He hated being involved in random problems when all he wanted to do was improve himself. If the inner valley really was a place full of such schemes, Jackie suddenly lost a lot of interest in entering it.

Jackie looked at Elder Maurice with a deep look before he said, “Thank you for wanting to help me. As for when I will enter the Whirling World, I need more time to think. However, I have another question before that. If you don’t know, you don’t have to answer.”

Elder Maurice raised an eyebrow, shooting Jackie a look to continue. Jackie sighed before he said seriously, “Back when we first entered Phoenix Valley, we came as a group of three. After that, one of us went missing. Do you know of someone named Grayson?”

Chapter 2744
The moment Grayson’s name was mentioned, Elder Maurice’s expression changed. His eyes narrowed while his head leaned back a little. Jackie looked at him and was sure that Elder Maurice knew about Grayson.

Jackie furrowed his eyebrows as he said seriously, “I’m very curious. Where is Grayson right now? Is he still alive? Even though I didn’t really have a good relationship with him, we still entered Phoenix Valley at the same time. The three of us went through some things. After entering Phoenix Valley, only he disappeared. I really want to know why he disappeared. Does it have anything to do with me?”

Elder Maurice sighed helplessly, “If he doesn’t really have a good relationship with you, then you shouldn’t look into this anymore. He’s already been completely locked up.”

“Why was he locked up?” Jackie could not stop himself from raising his voice a little. The question had been in Jackie’s head for a long time.

Why was Grayson the only one locked up after what they went through?

Elder Maurice looked at Jackie helplessly. There were some things he was not supposed to mention. However, He could very well lose Jackie’s trust if he did not tell the truth. To Elder Maurice, Jackie was worth a lot more.

Thinking about it for a long time, he chose to answer in the end, “I’ve heard about what happened to you. When you were first supposed to enter Phoenix Valley, you were ambushed midway. Two deacons even lost their lives. We captured Grayson because of that,” After saying that, Jackie was noticeably excited.

He wanted to raise his voice to ask why, but Elder Maurice did not give him the chance. Elder Maurice sighed before saying, “Grayson was the one who leaked your journey…”

After Elder Maurice said that, Jackie was stunned.

Grayson had leaked their journey? He was the cause of the ambush by their enemies?

That was too unbelievable.

Grayson’s face reappeared in Jackie’s mind. He kept on feeling like Grayson would not be someone who would do something like that. Grayson was part of a fifth-grade clan and was incredibly valued by the Rosefinch Pavilion. After being tested and entering Phoenix Valley, he should have been treated very well.

After thinking about Grayson's origins more and more, Jackie could not figure out why Grayson would do such a thing.

Why would Grayson leak their movements? Why would he allow that group to ambush them?

What exactly was the reason for that?

Furthermore, Jackie was even more curious as to why the enemies were trying to kill them. If the ambush had happened at West Cercie State, Jackie would have thought they were attacking him.

After all, Jackie had been in West Cercie State for quite long. Yet, the vessel being attacked happened when he had not been in Middle Province for that long. Practically no one knew about him. Even Grayson and Rudy were just somewhat talented alchemists. They were no one notable at all.

Since Grayson was the person to leak it, then Grayson should not have been the reason for the ambush. Then, it must have been because of Rudy. Yet, after interacting with Rudy for so long, Jackie did not feel like Rudy had anything about him that was worth assassinating. Rudy was incredibly ordinary as an alchemist and horrible as a fighter. He did not come from a notable family either. So, Jackie could not figure out why anyone would want to kill Rudy.

After so long thinking about it, he was forced to conclude that the reason they were ambushed was because of the two deacons that died. They must have had a secret they were hiding.

Chapter 2745
However, Jackie clearly remembered the elder only telling them two deacons were going to follow them only when they left the alliance branch. Before that, they did not know who the two deacons protecting them towards Phoenix Valley were at all.

Could it be because of the Scarlet Blood Crystal?

Jackie's lips twitched, suddenly feeling his mind overheat. No matter how he thought about it, he could not understand anything.

Elder Maurice interrupted Jackie's thoughts. "I don't know about the details, but he's definitely the leaker. Even he himself admitted to it."

Jackie sighed as his head swayed slightly, forgetting about the problem.

On The way back from the Elder Hall, Jackie was fixated on it completely. He wondered if he should tell Rudy the story as well. Jackie felt like Rudy would probably collapse mentally if Jackie revealed the truth.

After thinking about it, Jackie decided to conceal the news for the moment. He would tell Rudy at the right moment. When Rudy found out that Jackie would follow them into the Whirling World, he was so happy he started to dance.

Rudy had been dreaming about leaving Phoenix Valley, so that chance was naturally something he had been longing for. After five days, Jackie left for the Whirling World. It was not even a part of Hestia Continent through a transfer array. They were in a limitless, barren land. Rocks of varying sizes littered the whole place. There were still a few trees around, or Jackie would have wondered if he came to the wrong place.

Rudy frowned and said, “So this is the Whirling World. It looks so different from how I thought it would. Why is it so barren? I thought that the Whirling World would be filled with life, there should have been materials everywhere.”

Jackie’s lips twitched helplessly, feeling like Rudy really was someone filled with imagination. He explained helplessly, “The Whirling World is massive. Didn’t we already hear about that before? It’s about the size of the Middle Province. If there are materials everywhere, every single warrior in the world would try to get in. It could even lead to a massive clan war. After all, resources as abundant as that would be able to birth countless experts!”

Rudy nodded meaningfully, feeling like Jackie was right.

Jackie sighed as he looked at the sky.

Clouds filled up the sky. Even though it was very bright around them, they could not see the sun behind the clouds, which caused Jackie to be curious.

Rudy anxiously asked, “Where should we go next? Could there be any remnants of the ancient city here? Should we try to find some clues here to give us a starting point?”

Jackie nodded, looking around his surroundings before finding a direction to lead Rudy away. Before Jackie could take two steps forward, he heard a string of footsteps. Jackie frowned as he stopped.

“Alchemists! You’re two really fat sheep. It was worth waiting here for two days!” A scarred man who had a blade in hand was walking towards Jackie as he said that.

Behind the scarred man was a tall and lanky man. Looking at the way they were dressed, it was obvious they weren’t good news. They had bones that were carved from spirit crystals around them and had quite a few scars on their faces. They really looked like thugs from novels.

Looking at the two of them, Rudy hid behind Jackie in fear.

“Let the two of them live. Since they’re alchemists, we should use them well. We’ll need to stay here for two years anyway. Let’s make them our slaves and have them make us pills till their souls dry up!” The tall and lanky man said with a cold sneer.

The scarred man nodded in agreement, “How lucky are we? Alchemists aren’t just big fat sheep but also the best candidates for slaves. When they make a lot of pills, we can even sell them to make more spirit crystals!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2746 - 2750

Chapter 2746
The two of them fearlessly discussed what to do with Jackie and Rudy right in front of Jackie and Rudy. They even mentioned wanting to turn them into slaves.

Rudy's face was steely, he was so angry his whole body shook. Yet, he did not dare to say anything at that moment. All he could do was place all his hopes on Jackie.

Jackie frowned, not saying anything as he calmly looked at the two bandits.

The tall and lanky man saw that Jackie's expression was incredibly calm as if nothing was happening. The man could not help but let out a cold laugh, "I can't believe you're actually so brave. Could the two of you think that you'll be able to run just because the two of us are currently at the late stage of the innate level?"

Jackie frowned, still not saying anything.

The tall man let out a cold laugh as he continued, "This is the Whirling World. I guess you still haven't fully memorized the rules since you just arrived here! Let me tell you right now, our strength is just restricted to the late stage of the innate level thanks to the Whirling World's rules! The both of us were already at the spring solidifying realm a long time ago in the Hestia Continent!"

The mention of the spring solidifying realm caused Rudy's heart to thump loudly. He was just the early stage of the innate realm, it was a far cry from the spring solidifying realm. In Rudy's eyes, the spring solidifying realm's experts were unbeatable.

With that in mind, he could not help but look up at Jackie. He had seen Jackie fighting before and knew that Jackie was already at the spring solidifying the realm as well.

Could Jackie fight two against one?

They were two spring solidifying realm fighters in front of him. Could Jackie beat them?

Rudy got more and more nervous as he thought about it, and could not help but grab Jackie's sleeve.

Jackie let out a laugh, "So you're just two pieces of trash not worth looking at. You're just hiding here to ambush weaker fighters and steal spirit crystals."

They were at the entrance of the transfer array. Anyone who wanted to enter the Whirling World would need to go through that large transfer array. The Whirling World only had about two dozen or so entrances. The entrances were all basically destinations of the transfer array.

Normally, there would be two separate transfer arrays. One for entering, and one for exiting, but there was only one to the Whirling World. Only entering was possible.

Each entrance had a few designated spots, and the two bandits deliberately hid in the dark knowing that. They observed those who entered the Whirling World. If the newcomers were strong or had the numbers advantage, they would keep hiding. If they met anyone who was weak or who looked particularly tempting, they would jump out to rob them.

The two of them happily ran out of their hiding spot the moment they saw Jackie and Rudy's attire. Alchemists were normally never poor. Furthermore, alchemists fully focused on refining pills and were normally not that strong.

The scarred man snorted, "These two are just pretending to be calm! I refuse to believe they didn't know the rules of the Whirling World before they entered!"

The tall man nodded meaningfully. The two of them exchanged a look, seeing the ferocity in each other's eyes. The two of them did not want to delay anything. After all, the place would see newcomers every now and then. If anyone else came, it could easily cause a disruption in their plans. It was possible that those two fat sheep would run away. In order to prevent any surprises, the two of them decided to take action immediately.

Rudy could immediately tell that the two of them were about to take action. He was so scared he started to pale as he whispered into Jackie's ears.

Chapter 2747
"The two of them are about to attack! What should we do?"

Jackie sighed helplessly, "Go and hide for now. Find somewhere further away. Don't get hurt from the shockwaves!"

Those words successfully calmed Rudy down. Jackie was basically his stabilizing factor. Jackie had always been a logical person. As long as Jackie was calm, there was nothing to be afraid of.

Rudy hurriedly ran to the side, not forgetting to shout as he did, "Be careful! These two are still in the spring solidifying realm in the end. Don't underestimate them, going one against two!"

Rudy actually knew that everything he said was useless, but he could still not stop himself. After all, he had not done anything to help at all.

The scarred man could not help but laugh coldly at Rudy, "You should worry about yourself!"

After he said that, the scarred man and the tall man rushed right at Jackie. The two of them held a long blade in hand, rushing at Jackie with similar weapons.

The scarred man and the tall man ended up splitting up, one heading to Jackie while one rushed towards Rudy. The two of them planned on finishing the fight quickly. Jackie raised an eyebrow.

They were actually not bad. They did not delay things and decided to just hurry and end the battle. If they had been facing the usual weak alchemist, things would have gone the way they wanted.

The one rushing towards Jackie was the scarred man. At that moment, he had a pleased smile on his face. He held his sword in both hands as he slashed right at Jackie. His sword was filled with a bloody aura, and the bloody aura formed the shape of many skulls in the air. The skulls were like angry spirits in hell. They seemed to only be willing to rest after ripping Jackie to shred.

Jackie snorted as his gray sword appeared in his hands. Seventy-five Soul Swords were condensed in a flash. With a clap, the seventy-five Soul Swords condensed into the gray sword in Jackie's hand. After the swords merged with the sword, they let out a black glow. Jackie narrowed his eyes slightly as he exploded forward!

The scarred man never expected Jackie to dare to face him head-on. He had thought the alchemist would know his place, and frantically run away. However, the thought only lingered in his mind for a short moment, since Jackie was already right in front of him.

The scarred man let out an angered roar as the bloody aura's skulls slashed down at Jackie with his sword!

The scarred man was incredibly confident in his move. Even though he had never joined any clans, he was still lucky enough to find a few lower Earth Grade skills. He had already gotten that skill up to the first stage.

The scarred man felt like even inner disciples within those clans were no match for him, let alone an alchemist that was not even at the spring solidifying realm!

That technique was all he needed to kill that alchemist who did not know his place! With that thought in mind, a slashing sound could be heard at the next moment.

Chapter 2748
Right after that, a soul-tearing energy went through the sword in his hand into his body. The scarred man widened his eyes, full of disbelief. The skill he had thought would kill Jackie instantly had disappeared immediately after clashing with Jackie's sword. It could not even hold on for a second.

The soul-tearing pain immediately spread throughout his body. It was the first time the scarred man felt such pain. After that, the man fell from the air with a bang. He violently fell to the stone ground.

Jackie let out a cold smile.

Did the guy not pause to consider that Jackie entered the Whirling World because he had the skills?

If someone really did so, it proved that his opponent was dumb. However, the world was filled with idiots. Even though his whole body was reeling in horrifying pain, the scarred man obstinately looked at Jackie.

At that moment, the scarred man no longer regarded Jackie as lightly as he did before. Instead, he looked at Jackie as if he was looking at a monster.

Was Jackie really an alchemist? Why was an alchemist so strong?

His lower Earth grade technique was not able to hold on for a single second before it was completely shattered by that alchemist's skill. He even wondered if the alchemist was using a Heaven Grade technique.

He shouted with the last of his energy, "Who the hell are you? You're definitely not an alchemist!"

What were the scarred man's last living words?

In the next second, his soul was completely destroyed by Destroying the Void.

At that moment, Rudy shouted miserably, "Jackie, save me!"

Jackie frowned, exploding forward toward the direction. He did not take long to deal with the scarred man, and thankfully, Rudy had run far enough that the tall man had not caught up with Rudy yet. Everything had happened too quickly, and the tall man had yet to notice that the scarred man was killed instantly. At that moment, Rudy was the only person in the tall man's eyes.

Jackie took a deep breath as he activated the laws of space. With a speed indiscernible to the eyes, he rapidly approached the tall man.

The man sneered, "There's no point shouting! No one can save you!"

However, the moment he said that a cold voice was heard behind him, "Is that so?"

The man's whole body stiffened as he abruptly turned around. He noticed Jackie, who should have already died to the scarred man, already right behind him. The tall man was full of shock, but his shock did not last that long. The two of them had wanted to deal with Jackie and Rudy as quickly as possible.

Jackie naturally wanted to deal with them quickly as well. They were in no man's land. It was better to leave as soon as they could!

"How are you here?!" The tall man shouted.

As he shouted, he noticed the scarred man lying down on the ground, unmoving, behind Jackie. At that moment, the tall man realized that they had targeted the wrong people. Those two alchemists were no simple characters.

The tall man felt a chill around his body. He abruptly looked up and shouted, "Stop! I have something to say!"

Chapter 2749
Jackie narrowed his eyes, naturally not answering his question. With a wave of his sword, a pitch-black slash headed right toward the tall man's forehead.

The tall man raised his sword to stop it, but his skill was nothing compared to Jackie's Destroying the Void. With a clash, the slash shattered the tall man's sword. The black glow entered the tall man's forehead in a flash.

Jackie did not hold back at the slash. Before the man could even cry out in pain, his soul was completely shattered. He fell from the air and slammed onto the ground just like the scarred man.

Looking down, his chest was no longer moving. He was already dead. Rudy was so scared his breathing had even stopped. He was shuddering and sobbing, not reacting to anything at all.

Jackie grabbed Rudy's arm, "Quit dreaming. Let's leave this place right now!"

Rudy was pulled by Jackie just like that, as they ran toward the northern direction. The two of them advanced for three hours before they stopped. Only then did Rudy snap back to reality.

Jackie glanced at Rudy, "It's not like you've never had your life on the line before. It's just two people, do you need to react like this?"

Rudy shuddered, slowly composing himself. His body was still trembling slightly, but he slowly started to speak, "I was just frightened. I never expected to encounter something like this the moment we entered the Whirling World. If you were any later, I'd definitely have been killed by that guy. This is the closest I've ever been to dying!"

Those words actually reminded Jackie that, even though Rudy knew how to fight, he was still an alchemist in the end. Rudy merely learned combat to extend his life. He had never gone through a true battle. The only time he had truly seen a big conflict was the experience before they entered Phoenix Valley. It might have been an incredibly trying time, but Rudy's life had not been directly threatened.

It was different this time. The tall man's sword had been aimed right at his head.

Jackie remembered that Rudy's whole body had been stiff earlier, probably going numb from fear. Jackie's lips twitched helplessly as he reached out to pat Rudy on the arm.

"I thought you were already mentally prepared before coming in. I can't believe you don't seem prepared for what we'll encounter at all. Battles like this are just appetizers!"

"They're just appetizers?" Rudy's mouth was gaping wide, tears were threatening to fall from his eyes.

Looking at him, Jackie felt even more helpless. It seemed like Rudy was really inexperienced. After all, Jackie had encountered all sorts of battles before. Before he entered the Whirling World, he had naturally expected even more battles over resources. Rudy did not know that. Rudy had thought that he just needed to play his part and he would be able to peacefully go through two years. Then, he would be able to safely return to Hestia Continent and live his peaceful days.

Realizing that he had been wrong in his thoughts, Rudy almost cried. He swallowed as he said, "I can't believe this place is even more dangerous than Phoenix Valley. I wouldn't have come here if I knew. If it weren't for you, I'd have been split into two just now!"

He was even more scared as he thought about it. His whole body shuddered. Jackie did not know what to say at that point. Rudy had entered the Whirling World without understanding anything, he really was special.

Chapter 2750
Ruddy stammered out, "Can we no longer go back?"

Jackie nodded, speechless. He did not really want to say anything else. Rudy looked up hopelessly at the sunless sky.

Jackie could not stop himself from rolling his eyes, not bothering with Rudy anymore. He started to continue moving forward. He needed to find somewhere to make camp at that moment, or at least find others who had entered the Whirling World as well.

He wanted to talk to them, to ask them if there were any dangers around. No matter how bad Rudy felt, Rudy still knew that he could not leave Jackie at that moment. Otherwise, he would probably end up being killed by someone before the next day.

He ran after Jackie, “Actually, we could have followed a larger team here. After all, the more people we have, the stronger we would be!”

For safety’s sake, Elder Maurice had arranged for a large team from Phoenix Valley to enter the Whirling World. Basically, every major force had that arrangement. After all, there was strength in numbers. Even those who had ill intentions would not offend them. However, Jackie rejected it.

Rudy had planned on following the larger group into the Whirling World, but Rudy had rejected it after Jackie did as well. Compared to anyone else, Rudy felt like Jackie was more reliable.

Jackie glanced at Rudy, not hiding his thoughts, “Even though following a large group will give us more assurances, there will be a lot of trouble as well. You would need to accept any arrangements, and fight against everyone else. There is strength in numbers, but who knows what kind of trouble will pop up in the face of any valuable resources. Moving alone is much better. “

Jackie hated fighting against others the most. The Phoenix Valley’s group were all scheming sorts. He did not want to bother those people. Moving alone was Jackie’s favorite thing anyway. So, when Elder Maurice suggested that he move with the large group, Jackie rejected it without a second thought. Rudy sighed helplessly, Jackie was right in the end.

He did not want to mix around with people he did not know. Someone like him, who was not really that strong in martial combat and alchemy, would basically be cannon fodder for those people.

The two of them no longer dwell on the specifics. After determining a direction, they continued to move forward. Before coming over, Jackie had found out what he could about the Whirling World.

The Whirling World was incredibly large. Even if it was not as big as Middle Province, it was almost that size. After walking for a long time, they still saw only desolate wastelands. They did not know when they could get out, nor did they know when they would find traces of the ancient city.

It took them till noon the second day to get out of the wasteland. Morning of the third day, they saw remnants of a small city. The moment they saw the city walls, they could not control their excitement. After making sure that it was a city wall, the two of them moved forward impatiently.

Rudy’s face was all smiles, “I thought that we would have to walk a few more days to see anything! It would be better if he had a map, but we’re just moving around blindly. We really did manage to find it. How lucky we are!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2751 - 2755

Jackie smiled but said nothing as the two of them continued walking for another hour before reaching the city. From a distance, many people were seen gathering at the city gates. Those people were dressed in various sorts of clothes, but all of them were merely standing around the gate and not entering. Jackie frowned and hastened his pace.

“This is too much! The city is a remnant left behind from ancient times. What does it have to do with you? What gives you the right to ask for an entry fee that’s so expensive! You’re asking for ten thousand spirit crystals! It’s daylight robbery!”

“Exactly! You’re being too heavy-handed! All of us just got into the Whirling World as well. You were just a step faster than us. What gives you the right to claim the whole city?!”

“That’s right! This is too much! The Unbreaking Pavilion might be an eighth-grade clan, but still, you can’t do this!”

Both of them could hear sounds of quarreling from afar. Upon hearing the words ‘Unbreaking Pavilion’, Jackie was immediately on alert. He looked toward the front.

He saw five men in similar-looking black clothes standing in front of the city gates. The five of them had their heads held high, their expressions were incredibly arrogant!

The disciple from the Unbreaking Pavilion who stood at the front let out a cold laugh, “Don’t you know the early bird gets the worm? I already told you before, the Unbreaking Pavilion has claimed Black Sun City. This whole city is our territory now! If you were here earlier, you could have taken over Black Sun City as well. However, we got here first, so let’s not waste time on nonsense!”

“I’ve already told you the rules. As long as you pay ten thousand spirit crystals, I’ll let you in. If you don’t want to pay the tax, then get lost!”

The disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion did not care for the warriors in front of them. After all, they were one of the top clans in Middle Province. As a disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion, they had a sense of arrogance to them, regardless of what their ranking within the clan was. They did not regard anyone else highly at all.

After the person spoke, the warriors outside were all incredibly indignant. Their faces reddened in anger.

“This is too much! What do you mean by arriving first?! This city should be shared between all of us. You can’t just claim the whole city for yourselves just because you got here first! Don’t you think you ‘re crossing the line?!”

The disciple that stood in front sneered as he said with disdain, “Crossing the line? What line? Why don’t you look at yourselves in the mirror first? Do you even have the right to say any of that in front of me? I’m already being very nice to you by standing here and talking to you so calmly! If I had my way, I wouldn’t let you in even if you gave us ten thousand Spirit Crystals! It’s only thanks to the mercy of our senior, Philip Devine, that you even have the chance to enter!”

Jackie’s lips twitch helplessly. He never expected to encounter something so troubling the moment he found a city he could settle down in. He looked at those Unbreaking Pavilion disciples earnestly.

With just a look, he could tell that they could back up their words. They were all incredibly arrogant and probably had some skill. They would naturally not be bothered with those warriors who looked like mere wanderers.

Rudy might not have any skills, but he was still incredibly furious after he heard what the disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion said. He whispered to Jackie, “This is too much! Just because they were a little earlier, they took over the whole city and are refusing to let us in! Aren’t they afraid that all the warriors here will work together and fight them?”

When Rudy said that, his entire body was trembling. He looked very eager to rush over and start cursing at them.

Chapter 2752
Jackie let out a laugh and replied, “Of course, they’re not scared. There might be a lot of warriors gathered outside the city, but they’re just cannon fodder in the Unbreaking Pavilion’s eyes. They’re not worth noticing at all. It would be incredibly difficult for them to group together in the first place. If all of them really attacked, the Unbreaking Pavilion would not be worried anyway. Even though everyone’s strength has been suppressed to the late stage of the innate realm, everyone’s skills and cultivation levels are different…”

“To be able to become a disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion means that all of them are definitely talented and skilled. Facing wandering warriors like these, they can win even if the numbers were stacked three to one. Naturally, they aren’t scared!”

Even though he did not want to, Rudy had to admit that Jackie was speaking the truth.

Rudy sighed helplessly, “Even with the suppression of the laws, the techniques and skills that we’ve learned can’t be restricted. Those with Earth level techniques are naturally much stronger than those with only Red level techniques!”

“I was only at the early stage of the innate realm before this, and only have a middle-level yellow stage skill. If you weren’t by my side, I would have been an ant that could be stepped on at any moment!”

In truth, Rudy knew that it was best to shut his mouth during times like this, but he could not help but feel a bit indignant. He felt like the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion were absolutely shameless to be preying on the weak like that!

“You can’t do this! You’re really crossing the line!”

“So what if we enter?! We’re not asking for anything amazing. At least give us some scraps!”

“You’re trying to claim everything for yourself! This behavior of yours can’t be justified!”

Everyone tried to fight for themselves emotionally. They felt like they had been deeply insulted, and wanted to fight for their own benefits.

In Jackie’s eyes, it was absolutely pointless to say anything even if he yelled until his voice turned hoarse.

In the eyes of the Unbreaking Pavilion’s disciples, all of them were just grains of sand that could be stepped over at any moment.

Rudy felt that what everyone said was right, and could not help but voiced out, “That’s right! They really are crossing the line. Even if they want to take all the best things for themselves, they should at least save some scraps for the rest!”

Jackie did not say anything at Rudy’s words. He merely looked at those disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion. The ones who stood in front were clearly starting to get frustrated. He felt like that group of people were really not showing any respect.

He raised his voice and shouted angrily, “Stop talking so much, I’m about to go deaf! If you’re not happy with it, then fight with us! However, you’d better know what kind of consequences are waiting for you if you do!”

The moment he said that the emotional crowd suddenly went quiet. At that moment, everyone was dead silent as they all exchanged looks with each other, not knowing what to say.

Jackie sighed in exasperation. They really were useless. They had been so emotional when they spoke, but all of them decided to cower in silence when it was time to stand up. No one wanted to take the lead.

In truth, they knew very well that even if they fought, they would not be able to do anything to the Unbreaking Pavilion with their skills.

Anyone who decided to take charge at that moment would just be pure cannon fodder. Hence, no one else dared to say anything.

Chapter 2753
Rudy felt especially frustrated and said, “They’re being way too cowardly about this. Won’t they win if they all charged together? Even if the Unbreaking Pavilion is strong, they should at least be able to do something with their numbers. They shouldn’t just take these insults!”

Jackie’s lips twitched helplessly. Rudy was really just there for the show. Nothing was happening to him, so he naturally felt like everything was fine.

He had not been whispering earlier, and someone next to Jackie heard it. The person had a gray robe on and looked at Rudy angrily after he heard that

He said rudely, “Brat, you‘d better watch your mouth. If you think we’re scared, why don’t you stand up and take the lead? Lead us into a fight with the Unbreaking Pavilion. If you have the guts to do that, you’ll have my respect!”

Of course, Rudy did not dare to do that. He did not have the skills or the guts. Rudy let out a laugh as he walked toward the gray-robed man. Even though he had heard about what happened from the quarrel, the two of them were still new to the Whirling World. They still did not know much about the Whirling World, so he wanted to take the chance to learn more about it.

“Could you tell me your name? The two of us are alchemists from the Middle Province Alchemist Alliance. We just arrived here, so I want to clarify a few things,” Jackie was incredibly polite, and the gray man immediately calmed down to talk to Jackie when he saw that.

The man was called Robert Mason. He was a wandering warrior that did not belong to any clans. After hearing about the Whirling World, he had entered the place with a few friends. Yet, they were attacked by bandits the moment they entered, and he was the only one who survived among the three of them. Jackie did not tell him that they were from Phoenix Valley. After all, Phoenix Valley was in a precarious position at that moment.

Rudy had been silent the whole time, not saying anything. After all, Robert had just mocked him earlier. However, Jackie ignored Rudy’s feelings as he earnestly asked a few questions that Robert answered.

He had already arrived at Black Sun City a day ago but was stopped outside the gates. Ten thousand spirit crystals was a large sum to a wanderer like him. Even if he could afford it, it would end up costing him his whole fortune. Naturally, he was not willing to spend that money on the entry tax.

“Actually there were even more people here yesterday. After fighting over it for a long time, they were not able to enter at all. Most of them have already dispersed. I’m already injured, so leaving this place will be incredibly dangerous. That's why I decided to stay."

Jackie nodded as he looked at the crowd that was still just as emotional, but unwilling to speak up. Jackie then asked, "Did everyone gather and make a scene here yesterday as well?"

Robert shook his head and replied, "That didn't happen yesterday. Everyone's just getting impatient today. After all, it's starting to get dangerous outside. Hence, entering the ancient city would guarantee us temporary safety."

Even though Robert did not voice it out, Jackie could still imagine what was happening. Outside the city was the vast Whirling World. The fewer people that were around, the easier it was for conflict to happen. Everyone knew that those who did not walk the righteous path liked to hide in the wilderness, killing anyone who passed by.

Jackie suddenly remembered what Elder Maurice had said to him back then.

He had said that the Whirling World might not have any beasts, but that did not mean that the place was safe. In this world, the most terrifying thing was the human heart. The Whirling World truly revealed how despicable the human heart could be. It was actually quite a joke. Even without any beasts around, more warriors actually ended up dying.

Chapter 2754
Robert sighed as he let out a cold smile, "Just look There's a reason for all this noise. A few days ago, a group of people entered Black Sun City before the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion did. There was news from within Black Sun City that there are a few amazing things left behind from the ancient civilization. I heard that the most valuable thing was the true energy fields. Each of those fields has its own traits."

"I'm a wood element specialist. I wanted to use the wood element's true energy field to practice but was blocked by these guys. The outside of the city has been getting increasingly dangerous day by day, and with what's inside Black Sun City, no one really wants to give up on entering. Even though no one has stood up yet, they've still not dispersed. This time, they don't want to give up so easily!"

Jackie could feel everyone's determination as well. Everyone knew that the person who took the lead would be targeted, but even if no one took the lead, they did not want to give up just like that. They were not willing to fork out ten thousand spirit crystals either. After all, it was not a small sum!

Rudy reached out to pull at Jackie's sleeve and said worryingly, "What do we do? Should we go inside? If we want to, we'd have to pay a ten thousand spirit crystal fee. I might be able to afford it, but it's no small sum…"

Jackie could not help but roll his eyes at Rudy's words.

Rudy was just trying to get Jackie to think of a way to get everyone in. Robert just mentioned that there were true energy fields inside. They were something incredibly beneficial. It caused Rudy so much excitement that Rudy started to breathe faster.

Jackie snorted, ignoring Rudy. Rudy suddenly got anxious when he saw Jackie's reaction, unable to stop himself from saying, "This group is just going too far. Even though I don't know how good the true energy fields will be for us, it's still definitely an amazing place. Otherwise, they wouldn't have taken over the whole city. Honestly, this isn't worth that much to us."

"After all, I'm an alchemist. Increasing my strength just gives me a bit more support. It's different for you. You're not only talented as an alchemist but as a martial artist as well! The true energy field is something you definitely need. It would be an incredible loss for you!"

Rudy got more and more excited as he spoke. Jackie could not help but raise an eyebrow. Rudy's overexcitement was beginning to cause Jackie some doubt.

In truth, Rudy had been right. The true energy fields were amazing for martial artists, while they were not that useful for alchemists. Rudy was someone completely focused on alchemy, so Rudy was very different from Jackie.

Jackie did not know if Rudy was excited on Jackie's behalf or because Rudy had some other thoughts in mind.

Rudy started to get even more nervous when he saw that Jackie was still so calm after he described things to that degree. He was about to say a few more words when Jackie raised a hand and interrupted him, "You want to enter Black Sun City that much, but don't you know that we can't enter at all? Unless we defeat those people, we won't be able to enter at all…"

"It would be easy for me to deal with them if they didn't have the numbers, but there are so many of them. If we fight, and the people here don't help, there's no way for us to win at all. Why don't you just give up on those thoughts!"

After Jackie said that, Rudy anxiously said, "How could they not help us? Even though some of them are incredibly insignificant, they'll definitely join you in the fight if you take the lead! The disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion were so harsh with their words. Everyone here is furious. They just don't have the guts to stand up to the Unbreaking Pavilion by themselves. As long as someone leads them, they'll definitely follow the leader!"

Rudy was incredibly firm with his words. He narrowed his eyes as he looked at the disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion in hatred.

Jackie was speechless when he saw how Rudy was. He did not know why Rudy was so angry that he needed to go against the Unbreaking Pavilion that badly.

Jackie helplessly pursed his lips as he patted Rudy on the shoulder.

“It’s not easy to take the lead in this. You can’t read their minds. You can’t be sure they’ll follow if I start fighting. Nothing right now is certain!”

Rudy had wanted to counter Jackie’s words, but Jackie shot him a look. Rudy was crossing the line. Rudy was insisting that Jackie take the lead and fight against the Unbreaking Pavilion.

He did not know if Rudy was too confident in him or Rudy just purely hated the Unbreaking Pavilion.

Just as the two of them were still on the problem, the city gates suddenly opened from within. Everyone immediately shut their months as they looked toward the city gates. They saw two Unbreaking Pavilion disciples in luxurious clothes slowly walk out of the city.

The two disciples were in black clothes as well, the patterns on their clothes were similar to the ones on the disciples standing outside. It was obvious they were from the same clan. However, the two of them were dressed much more luxuriously than the disciples outside. They were even adorned with jewelry. When the two of them walked out, the five disciples on the outside had a sudden change of expression.

Back when they were facing the wandering disciples on the outside, the five of them were incredibly arrogant.

Yet, when facing those two, they suddenly became obedient dogs that had their tails wagging. It was a far cry from their earlier demeanors. Yet, no one dared to say anything at that moment. That was because the two of them were clearly no ordinary disciples.

One of the disciples that stood in the front earlier saluted the two of them as he said respectfully, “Philip, Derrick, hello! Did something happen inside? Why did you come out here?”

Philip frowned, his expression was quite dark. He let out a sigh as he walked forward, “Something really did happen.”

After that, he deliberately lowered his voice. All of the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion gathered together as they started to discuss the matter. They did not want the wandering warriors to hear their discussions, but those warriors could tell from their faces that something had definitely happened that caused some difficulty for the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion.

Jackie frowned as he stared at the few of them, feeling like something bad had definitely happened for those two to walk out.

After a while, Philip finally determined their next actions.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2756 - 2760

Chapter 2756
He nodded at his other disciples and said, “Let’s do it this way. After all, these people will die elsewhere if not here anyway. Let’s just have them help us!”

Derrick laughed and said, “Philip is right. After all, these pieces of trash are going to die anyway. We might as well make the most out of them.”

The other disciples all laughed at Derrick’s words. It was an incredibly meaningful sort of laughter. Derrick turned around to look at all the wandering warriors outside.

Those wandering warriors were not part of any clans and had entered the Whirling World just to look for some resources. They wanted to strengthen themselves, but they were still just insignificant ants in his eyes. They could be killed effortlessly by a wave of his hand.

Philip exchanged a look with Derrick who was next to him before the two of them walked forward. Philip let out a small cough before he announced, “I’ve heard all your pleas earlier. My fellow disciples have conveyed your thoughts to me. Even though some of you were a bit harsh with your words, I have to admit that what you said was right. It really isn’t right for us to do this. I’ve talked about it with my fellow disciples, and we plan on loosening the restrictions for you to enter Black Sun City!”

After hearing that, the wandering warriors all started to get excited. No one expected that the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion would be so reasonable. Although they had been crying out crazily earlier, they never expected to get an actual response.

After all, those people were usually so high up on their perches that they were oblivious to those wandering warriors. They looked down on wandering warriors, even lower than dirt. After seeing the responses of the wandering warriors, Philip’s smile deepened.

After a moment, he continued, “There’s still something I have to say. It’s impossible for us to read the human heart. Even though I trust that you won‘t cause any trouble for us, we still have to take precautions. Before loosening the restrictions, I‘ll need some proof!”

After saying that, Philip paused. He observed their reactions and they were well within his expectations.

There were traces of doubt within their confusion. Philip saw through all those reactions. He forced a somewhat pleasant smile on his face as he continued, “I’ll need to pick out a few people to test if you’ll cause trouble to us at all. If there’s no trouble, only then will I loosen the restrictions to entering Black Sun City. All of you will have the right to enter. You won’t need to pay that many spirit crystals either.”

After he said that, the wandering warriors were even more excited. All of them started to talk amongst one another.

“It looks like our number really accounts for strength! Even though those disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion are all usually so arrogant, they can’t just ignore so many of us gathered here. They’re worried that we’ll do something, so they’re loosening their restrictions! We’ll be able to enter Black Sun City to train without any trouble soon!”

“I can finally use the legendary true energy fields. I wonder how much I can improve with that!”

The discussions were not spoken about in hushed tones at all. It was easily heard by all the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion. Based on the past behaviors of those disciples, they would have definitely reacted to those words. Yet, they did not seem to react that much. It was as if they did not care about what was being talked about at all.

Jackie’s eyebrows were furrowed tightly. He was the most clear-minded person present. No matter how nicely the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion put everything, Jackie felt like there was some sinister plot hidden behind it.

Those disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion would absolutely never be bothered by those wandering warriors, nor would they be bothered with their opinions as well.

Chapter 2757
Even though those people were a pretty substantial force if gathered together, they were still just a speck of dust in the eyes of the disciples of Unbreaking Pavilion. For the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion to suddenly change their mind definitely meant that there was a plot underfoot!

Rudy raised an eyebrow and said, “Even the disciples of a large clan would be scared at times. They know that it won’t end well if they end up fighting!”

Robert agreed with him after hearing that, “We can finally go in. I’ve already waited here for so many days. I thought that they would never give in and I would never be able to actually experience a true energy field in my life. I can’t believe they’re actually somewhat considerate!”

Rudy and the other wandering warriors thought the same. They thought that the Unbreaking Pavilion took a step back because they were worried that the gathered wandering warriors would try to fight against them.

He excitedly discussed things with Robert. The unhappiness between the two of them earlier was suddenly wiped clean.

However, the more Rudy talked about it, the more he felt like something was wrong. That was because Jackie, who was standing next to him, had a frown on his face the whole time. It was as if he was thinking about something serious.

Rudy had been so excited, but Jackie did not say a single word.

Jackie was acting far too strange. After interacting with Jackie for so long, he more or less understood Jackie's temper. The moment Jackie had an expression like that, it meant that something terrifying was about to happen.

He took a deep breath as he turned to whisper, "Did something happen? Why do you look like this? They've already given in. We will be able to enter soon. Aren't you happy about that?"

Jackie's lips twitched in exasperation as he turned to look at Rudy and replied, "Why are you still unable to think for yourself after so long? Do you really think the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion are so nice? Why would he be afraid of all these riff-raff? If their thoughts are really as they said, then they would never have been so stubborn to start with. They must have their reasons for doing this. Keep your excitement in check!"

Rudy frowned, feeling like Jackie's reaction was unreasonable. It clearly looked like those disciples were giving in, yet Jackie somehow felt like they were just putting up an act.

As Rudy was thinking about it, Philip started to pick out the people. Earlier, his words seemed reasonable and noble. He would first pick out some people to experiment with to see if they would cause the Unbreaking Pavilion any trouble.

As long as those people behaved, Philip would loosen the restrictions to enter the city. They would all be able to enter. With that reasoning, the wandering warriors naturally allowed Philip to pick them out.

Philip walked around the wandering warriors. His sharp gaze fell on everyone. He appraised everything seriously as if he was shopping. He would pick out a person every few steps he took. After a moment, he pulled out five warriors from all of them. Those five would be the test subjects to first enter Black Sun City.

The five of them were worried that they would still need to pay the entry fee if they entered then, but Philip generously said they could enter for free.

Chapter 2758
"You're just: entering as an experiment. As long as you're obedient and don't cause us any trouble, you'll be able to peacefully train in the true energy fields. You'll be sent out safely as well. You're the leaders of the pack, so we won't ask you for any spirit crystals. You can enter the city for free!"

After the few of them heard Philip's words, they were incredibly excited. One of the men in purple clothes actually walked forward and shook Philip's hand in gratitude.

Philip and the others gave out a happy look in response to everyone's excited expressions.

Jackie could even feel a pleasing aura from them. At that moment, Jackie felt incredibly strange witnessing the atmosphere between the wandering warriors and the disciples of Unbreaking Pavilion. Ever since he arrived at Hestia Continent, he learned the meaning of what survival of the fittest meant. No one would ever change, nor were they capable of changing.

As disciples of an eighth-grade clan, they would always have an arrogant air to them when they faced the wandering warriors. Jackie felt like the attitude the Unbreaking Pavilion's disciples had toward the wandering warriors earlier was not surprising.

Instead, their current reactions had Jackie feeling incredibly uneasy. Those wandering warriors had actually thought that the Unbreaking Pavilion was afraid of them and bothered with their opinions.

Jackie felt incredibly amused at that. However, it was pointless for him to say anything at that point. He merely looked on silently as he waited to see what the Unbreaking Pavilion would do next.

After choosing the people, Philip and Derrick led the five of them into Black Sun City. As they entered the city, the other wandering warriors were even loudly shouting at them.

"You absolutely must not break any rules! Otherwise, we won't let the five of you off."

"Even if you see any treasures, don't be greedy. They're still an eighth-grade clan. With your talents, you're not a match for them at all! Know your place. We'll only be able to enter if you're obedient!"

"You won't like the consequences if you break the rules and cause us to not be able to get in!"

The five of them nodded fervently, slapping their chests in the guarantee. They would absolutely be obedient and not cause any trouble for the Unbreaking Pavilion. They would give a chance for everyone else to enter Black Sun City.

After the five of them disappeared behind the city gates, everyone started to have a relaxed expression on their faces. Everyone had just happened to gather there by chance, so they were not very familiar with the five of them. However, they knew very well that the five of them would try to not cause any trouble no matter how daring they were.

Compared to the excitement the rest of the warriors felt, Jackie was much calmer. He stood on the spot like a pillar as he continued looking toward the entrance of the city gate. No one could tell what he was thinking.

Rudy was happily discussing how they would increase their strength when they entered later on. Even though he was purely an alchemist, he still wanted to see how much the true energy field could help them. Even though Jackie was next to him in the Whirling World, he could still end up in danger if he was not sufficiently skilled.

If he improved himself however much he could, it might actually be useful at a crucial moment!

He was incredibly happy, and Robert was as well. However, Jackie was the complete opposite of them, he was so silent that it actually attracted suspicion.

After Rudy talked about it for so long, he tried to pull Jackie into the conversation, but Jackie ignored him.

Chapter 2759
He seemed to be pondering an incredibly hard question. He frowned as his eyes darted all over the place.

Rudy said somewhat helplessly, “What exactly are you thinking about? Don’t you feel happy? Even though what you said earlier was reasonable, didn’t the disciple from the Unbreaking Pavilion do exactly as he said and pulled a few people in as a test? As long as the five of them are on their best behavior, we’ll be able to enter. The number equals strength. Even if they want to do anything weird, they would still need to consider the fact that there are so many people waiting out here!”

As he was saying that, Rudy was filled with confidence. It was as if he was a ferocious beast that no one would dare to touch.

After Jackie heard that, he was completely speechless.

If Rudy already had that thought, let alone everyone else. Jackie could not help but turn around to look. Everyone present looked incredibly excited as well. It was obvious that they were not worried that anything bad would happen.

Jackie could not resist shaking their head at how they were. He whispered, “Can you use your head and think about it? Didn’t you notice something weird about the five that Philip picked out?”

Those words ruined all of Rudy’s excitement and he started to feel goosebumps around his body.

His mouth stiffened as he said, “What’s the problem? Did you notice something? I thought five of them looked pretty ordinary. They were all regular fighters! Just tell me, I can’t wrap my head around it!”

At that moment, Rudy looked incredibly honest. He really could not see anything amiss at all.

Jackie sighed in exasperation as he frowned and said, “The cultivation levels of all five of them were not particularly good. They were probably only in the innate realm. When Philip picked the five of them out, I purposely paid attention to them. Their energies were all not very stable. It was obvious that they had been forcibly raised to the late stage of the innate realm. It means their true levels aren’t at the late stage of the innate realm.”

“They are considered merely ants if compared to the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion. If they wanted to do anything to those five, the five of them would be obliterated with just a wave!”

Jackie’s words caused Rudy to shudder as he had not realized that at all. He had been too happy earlier, thinking that the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion would definitely keep their promise and allow everyone there into Black Sun City. However, Jackie’s words gave Rudy a moment of realization.

He took a deep breath as he said anxiously, “Were all five of them not at the late stage of the innate realm? All five of them? Are you sure?!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he looked at Rudy with some praise. That question meant that Rudy was at least not a complete idiot. Rudy immediately saw through the key point of the problem.

Jackie nodded and said, “All of them!”

Those words were like large boulders on Rudy’s heart.

If all five of them were not at the late stage of the innate realm, then everything that had happened earlier was definitely problematic. The disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion clearly had ill intentions. If they really planned on doing an experiment, they would have grouped in some warriors of stronger levels as well. Yet, they did not do so. Even those wandering warriors that were stronger were still nothing in front of the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion.

They would not have caused that much trouble!

Chapter 2760
Rudy felt a chill down his spine as he reached out to grab Jackie’s arm and said, “What are they trying to do?”

Jackie took a deep breath as he said with a sliver of uncertainty, “They were probably speaking half-truths earlier. The five of them should have actually been pulled inside for an experiment. As for what kind of experiment it is, that’s hard to say.

“We won’t even know if they’ll end up dead or alive. If I’m not mistaken, Philip will still be coming out later, but not the five of them.”

Rudy’s body stiffened as his breathing sped up. His eyes darted all over as his heart started to race. After a long time, he whispered into Jackie’s ears, “Why don’t we leave this place? I feel very unsafe. Even if Black Sun City has true energy fields, we’d actually need to be able to get in there. The disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion are all bad people. Who knows what sort of plots they have up their sleeves!”

In truth, Rudy had been so excited earlier purely because he had been too angered by the Unbreaking Pavilion’s disciples. He merely wanted to push Jackie toward leading the warriors around here to cause some trouble in order to teach those people a lesson.

Rudy had wanted them to know that even weak warriors were not to be trampled over. However, he was beginning to get worried. The Unbreaking Pavilion’s disciples were too deep in with their scheming. Rudy might be dragged into it at any moment.

No matter how angry he was, the anger had all been swept away by his worry. After all, the true energy fields were only able to increase a person’s strength. It was actually not that useful for Rudy. He did not know what those people were planning, so it was far better to leave as soon as he could!

Rudy really was beginning to feel afraid. He was afraid that the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion would suddenly attack them.

After considering his own strength, he knew that he would merely be cannon fodder among them!

He could die at any moment of carelessness. He had been so excited in urging Jackie to go against the Unbreaking Pavilion purely because of his anger. He had not fully considered the circumstances. After thinking about it in detail, he finally started to feel afraid.

He took a deep breath and said, “Let’s hurry up and leave this place. It’s not easy for us to deal with them. What if they suddenly attack when they come out? What would we do then? Everyone’s already let down their guard against the Unbreaking Pavilion! If the Unbreaking Pavilion suddenly attacks, they would definitely panic. They were already the weaker side to start with. It probably wouldn’t take very long for most of them to die!”

As he said that, he looked around his surroundings. The wandering warriors were just like him earlier. They were all gathered together to discuss how they would be training earlier. Some of them were already incredibly relaxed.

They had completely thrown away all sense of alarm. If anything happened, it would not take too long for most of them to meet their end.

Jackie smiled bitterly, starting to feel like there was something wrong with Rudy's head. Rudy had just been urging him so excitedly earlier, and now Rudy was trying to leave the place like an incredibly scared bird.

Jackie let out a small sigh as he said, "I'm not planning on leaving this place. I want to see what these people are plotting."

Hearing that, Rudy's heart almost jumped out of his throat. He reached out and pulled at Jackie's arm, "Don't do that! Later, if…"

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2761 - 2765

Chapter 2761
Jackie turned and looked at Rudy with a sharp gaze, “If you think that leaving is the right choice. You can leave yourself. Don’t try to change my mind.”

Before entering the Whirling World, Jackie had actually not wanted Rudy to come along with him. After all, that guy was just a burden to Jackie as he was completely useless. Rudy was also incredibly annoying, constantly chatting all the time. Yet, Rudy was like a fly that could not be chased away. No matter what Jackie said, Rudy did not want to follow the larger group.

Jackie was practically forced to bring him along. Even so, it did not mean that Jackie would be affected by Rudy. Every decision Jackie made had his own considerations. If he would be affected by someone else so easily, then he would have just followed the larger group.

Jackie’s words caused Rudy to completely shut up. Rudy finally sobered up. He understood Jackie somewhat and knew that Jackie was not someone who was easily swayed.

This time, he no longer dared to say anything else. He was forced to take a deep breath to control his apprehensive mood. Time ticked away, and after a long while, the closed city gates were opened again. Philip’s figure appeared in front of everyone once again.

This time, Derrick was not with Philip as Philip walked out of the city gates alone.

All of the wandering warriors looked toward Philip. They had greedy looks in their eyes as they wanted to enter Black Sun City.

Philip had a smile on his face as he faced everyone to announce, “They did not do that well. Even though they did not do anything major, they were all so shifty-eyed all the time. My fellow disciples and I couldn‘t really relax,”

Philip let out a long sigh. Those words unsettled everyone there.

What was that supposed to mean? Will they not be allowed inside?

Someone started to say, “What do you mean by that? Of course, they’d be shifty-eyed! Who wouldn’t feel greedy looking at so many valuable things? They aren’t saints. They didn’t do anything excessive, right? It means they don’t have the guts to do anything! They didn’t cross the line!”

“That’s right! We’re not saints here. They just took a few additional looks, what kind of trouble would that cause? We won’t let you use an excuse like that against us! Don’t try to stop us from going in with that kind of excuse! You're just going against your promises!"

At that moment, no one really cared about what happened to the other five or why the other five did not come out. Instead, their full focus was on whether or not they could go in!

They thought that Philip was just saying that because he did not want to let them in. They thought that it was all just excuses!

He just wanted to go against the earlier deal. The disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion never wanted to let them in.

Philip took a deep breath before he motioned for them to stop. He temporarily halted their emotional roars. He smiled lightly as he said, "I didn't say you were all not allowed in. Can you please let me finish speaking before you get so excited!"

Philip purposely let out a helpless expression after he said that. He only continued speaking after everyone was thoroughly quiet. "I have thought about this matter for a long time. After all, we already made a deal with you. They might look sketchy, but they did not really do anything, so it wasn't too bad…"

"However, my senior was still worried, so we decided to let a few more people in first. If the few who go in this time aren't as sketchy as the last time, then we'll be sure that all of you won't cause us any trouble."

Chapter 2762
They were going to give the wandering warriors another chance! Everyone was thoroughly consoled by those words!

When they heard what Philip had said initially, they had thought that the Unbreaking Pavilion wanted to go against their words. However, when they heard that there was still another chance, they relaxed.

Everyone had thought that having their eyes on any of the valuables inside would be something incredibly normal. With Philip's warning, the next few who entered would definitely need to avoid doing so. As long as the Unbreaking Pavilion could not find any faults, everyone would still be able to enter Black Sun City.

There was only one thing everyone was focused on at that moment, which was whether or not they could enter Black Sun City and train using the true energy fields. They did not really care about anything else. As Philip said all of that, Jackie's frown never disappeared.

Rudy had completely lost all hope at that point. When he saw Philip walking out alone, he felt a chill in his heart. Jackie had been right when Philip appeared again, the five who previously were with him no longer were.

Rudy thought that if he asked where the five of them were at that moment, Philip would definitely tell everyone that the five of them were already training in the true energy fields. That was why they were not with him.

Rudy could tell that the answer would be just a bunch of nonsense. After being sure that there was something wrong with Philip, Rudy's earlier excitement was all thrown aside.

He reached out and pulled at Jackie's arm. He whispered and said, "What's the point of him doing this again? Were those five not enough? He's trying to pick out even more people. What kind of experiment are they doing?"

As he said that, Rudy was shuddering. If Jackie had not spoken, he would never have known about the hidden plot.

If Philip had chosen him, he would have happily entered Black Sun City behind Philip. He could not imagine what sort of disaster would await him. Jackie sighed before shaking his head.

"How could I know what kind of experiment they're doing? You just need to know that the consequences of going inside definitely won't be good. The fact that he's looking for more people definitely means that those five were not enough, and they needed more people."

Rudy's face darkened at that. Ever since entering Phoenix Valley, Rudy had been tortured in every way. He was firmly on the side of the weak. In Rudy's eyes, all of the wandering warriors gathered there were all weak and were in the same situation as him.

Seeing the weak being bullied by the strong caused Rudy's mood to sour incredibly.

At that moment, he really wanted to reveal the truth. He really wanted to tell all the wandering warriors that the Unbreaking Pavilion did not have good intentions and that they should not enter the city. However, Rudy knew that no one would believe him no matter what he said.

Rudy sighed helplessly as he whispered, "Are we going to just look on like this? Are we going to let more people go in and die?"

Jackie smiled coldly, "We won't just be looking on. Don't worry, we'll be able to join soon enough."

Jackie's words were quite meaningful, but Rudy felt his head spin as he looked at Jackie in confusion. However, before Rudy could even ask what he meant by that, he saw someone walking toward them.

Rudy looked over and felt his heart thump. The person walking towards them was Philip. At that moment, Philip still had a casual smile on his face. He looked like a friendly big brother.

Philip walked toward Jackie as if he already had a target. After arriving in front of them, he raised his hand and pointed at Rudy, and said, "You!"

After saying that, Philip turned to look at Jackie.

Philip could not help but frown when he saw that he could not figure out Jackie's strength. A sliver of doubt flashed on his face, but it quickly disappeared after he saw the badge on Jackie's chest.

Chapter 2763
He nodded slightly and said, "You as well. The two of you come together."

Jackie let out a cold snort. This guy did exactly what Jackie thought he would.

Philip was choosing the ones with the weakest strength. Since Jackie had deliberately left behind internal injuries, others were not able to see through his strength, which was why Philip was suspicious.

After seeing that Jackie was an alchemist, Philip's doubts disappeared. After all, alchemists were never strong, that was something everyone knew.

After choosing the two of them, Philip did not doubt that the two of them would follow him at all. He turned around and continued choosing the others.

Rudy started to panic as he looked over at Jackie. He reached out and pulled at Jackie's sleeves, "He wants both of us to go with him! What should we do? Are we just going to walk to our deaths?! Why don't we leave this place? I know you always have your own thoughts in mind, but it's not the time to be stubborn. We can't possibly fight against so many disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion!"

Rudy really was beginning to panic, and even his breathing started to get erratic.

Jackie helplessly pursed his lips as he turned around, patting Rudy on the shoulder.

"You don't have to say or do anything. Just leave the rest to me!"

After that, Jackie followed behind Philip and walked into the center of the group. Rudy's eyebrows were furrowed tightly as he followed reluctantly. However, he was already used to following Jackie. Even if he was reluctant, he knew that he would definitely die if he left Jackie's side. After a moment of conflict, he followed along.

At that moment, Philip had already finished choosing the candidates. This time, he had picked out seven of them.

"Alright! Seven of you, follow me. Remember what I said earlier. Don't be as sketchy as the ones before, or my senior won't like it! If he feels like you guys will be trouble again, all of you will be chased away immediately!"

After saying that, Philip turned around and walked toward the city gates. At that moment, Jackie suddenly spoke, "I have a question. Could you please answer me?"

Philip froze in place at Jackie's words. He frowned and turned around somewhat impatiently. At that moment, he really wanted to enter and quickly solve those pending problems. He was not in the mood to answer any questions at all. However, he knew very well that he could not afford to act suspiciously in any way in front of all of them. Otherwise, the wandering warriors could very well find something out. He could not afford any accidents.

So, Philip controlled himself as he looked at Jackie, "You can ask me anything. I'll tell you anything that I can answer."

All of the wandering warriors were very happy with that answer.

Jackie's lips curled up as he answered meaningfully, "What kind of experiment will we have to go through after we enter? I'm guessing the earlier five are all already dead? Could you tell us how they died?"

Jackie's words stunned everyone present. Everyone looked at Jackie with a strange expression, wondering if something was wrong with Jackie's head.

After Jackie said that, Philip's expression suddenly changed. He frowned as he said, "What do you mean by that?! How are those five dead? What kind of nonsense are you saying? Are you trying to look for trouble?"

Jackie let out a light laugh. He was not bothered by Philip's attitude at all!

Chapter 2764
At that moment, Philip looked like a rattlesnake that had been startled. He immediately adopted a battle stance as he rushed in front of Jackie with widened eyes.

He said in an accusing tone, "It looks like you're just trying to cause trouble! I can't believe someone's trying to go against our deal even after the Unbreaking Pavilion decided to treat you all so sincerely. Didn't you hear our earlier offers? You just suddenly ran out and said all that. Are you just trying to stop everyone from entering Black Sun City? I don't know what your intentions are. Why are you trying to disrupt our relationship with the wandering warriors?!"

It could be said that Philip's mind worked very quickly. After a few words, he twisted the problem into Jackie stopping everyone from entering the city. Since it concerned their own benefits, the wandering warriors were naturally swayed.

After Philip said that, some people lost their patience immediately. "What are you talking about, brat? Don't think that you can cause trouble just with a few words. We have brains too. You were just standing by the side and did not see anything at all. How are you so certain that the five who entered are all already dead. Even if you want to accuse people, you should find a more logical reason!"

"That's right! There's probably something wrong with his head. Does he really think that we'll rally behind him after making such an accusation? Why is he even trying to do this? Isn't it better for everyone if we get to enter Black Sun City together?"

"Who knows what's wrong with this guy…"

Various insults started to be flung at Jackie.

Jackie did not really have much of a change in expression at that. After saying all that, he already anticipated that the wandering warriors would have a negative reaction. However, Rudy could not really take it. It was clear that the rest of them were dumb.

Jackie stood up for the sake of justice, but the rest of them were slandering Jackie in disbelief instead. It was at that moment: that Rudy realized why Jackie acted that way. Even if Jackie really stood up and led the way like Rudy wanted, against the Unbreaking Pavilion, the wandering warriors would all have their own intentions in mind.

As long as the Unbreaking Pavilion made them an offer, they would turn around and bite Jackie instead.

The more Rudy thought about it, the more Rudy felt like he had been stupid. He coldly snorted and said loudly, "You're really a bunch of idiots that are helping the people who're trying to harm you. Do you really think the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion are good people?!"

"Do you think they would care about your opinions? Why don't you use your brains and think? How do these high-level clans usually look at us?! Why would they suddenly be concerned with us like that?"

Even though Rudy's words sounded harsh, it was the truth. As he shouted that, the ones who were shouting out suddenly went quiet. The atmosphere suddenly turned a little strange.

Philip frowned as he looked at Rudy coldly and said, “What are the two of you trying to do? You’re just trying to cause trouble. You don’t have any proof and are just spreading lies when you say the five of them are dead. Don’t you think whatever that you have said sounds like a joke? Even though the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion are usually not willing to mingle around with all of you, it doesn’t mean we’ll just kill other warriors randomly. Do you think we’re serial killers?”

The other disciples behind Philip rushed over as well.

They supported Philip by saying, “You wandering warriors are crossing the line. You started out demanding an explanation from us and to let you into Black Sun City. After we followed what you wanted, you suddenly jumped out and said we killed your compatriots!”

Chapter 2765
“You’re really crossing the line here. Learn some basic respect! I’m very curious. You, who asked the questions just now, why do you think those five are already dead? Did you see it? Or did you hear it? You don’t know anything, and you’re trying to slander us for some reason! I don’t know what you ‘re hoping to get out of this!”

The Unbreaking Pavilion’s disciples all worked together as they accused Jackie over and over. The wandering warriors that stood at the front had very puzzled looks on their faces. They could not really understand what was being said and did not know who to listen to.

They felt like the Unbreaking Pavilion’s disciples were reasonable, but Jackie and Rudy were not unreasonable either. The wandering warriors that had been causing such a ruckus earlier were instead the quietest at that moment. They did not know which side to support.

Philip narrowed his eyes as he coldly looked at Jackie.

Jackie could see an unrestrained killing intent in Philip’s eyes. If the situation had allowed it, Philip would definitely have attacked Jackie.

Jackie let out a laugh as he raised his head and said, “Sure enough, no one in a high position is ever a saint. You’re not just talented, you have a way with your words as well. You’re so good at twisting the truth.”

Jackie was very calm as he spoke as if he was having a normal conversation.

Philip frowned as he lightly snorted, crossing his arms. He wanted to see what Jackie was planning.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he continued, “You‘re right. I definitely didn’t see you do anything to those five, nor did I hear their cries. That’s not why I determined that the five of them were in danger.”

Philip let out a cold laugh and replied, “Then tell me how you determined that we did something to the five of them. I’ve seen many liars, but it’s the first time I‘ve seen one as calm as you.”

Jackie did not care that Philip had called him a liar at all, he remained as calm as usual and answered him, “Those five were chosen carefully by you. All of them were not that strong, and their internal energies were a mess. It’s obvious that they were all warriors who were forced to rise to the late stage of the innate level.”

“Those warriors were all just cannon fodder in your eyes. There are so many wandering warriors around, and many of them have already broken through to the spring-solidifying realm. Yet, you deliberately chose the weakest five.

“And now, the seven you’ve picked are in the same situation as the other five earlier! I was only chosen by you because of my sixth-grade alchemist badge. You determined that I’m weak due to my status as an alchemist. That’s why you chose me!”

Jackie’s words were all true.

Philip and the other disciples’ expressions slowly darkened as Jackie spoke. They had thought that Jackie was just looking for trouble without any evidence, but now it seemed like Jackie was definitely not an ordinary person!

After the wandering warriors heard Jackie’s reasoning, they started to feel like something was wrong as well.

Someone started to discuss loudly, “This guy’s right. I know two of the ones that were chosen earlier. Before entering the Whirling World, they were only at the early stage of the innate realm!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2766 - 2770

Chapter 2766
“The tallest one among the five was named Mitchell O’Connor, and he’s from my hometown. He‘s not that strong and was only at the early stage of the innate realm. I had told him not to come into the Whirling World, seeing as no one knows what awaits us.”

Jackie began to seem more trustworthy as everyone chimed in. Gazed pointed toward the Unbreaking Pavilion’s disciples shifted to a much more serious look compared to the excitement earlier. Everyone was elated to hear that the Unbreaking Pavilion was going to loosen the requirements to enter the city, happy that they seemed to have been acknowledged somehow. Alas, it seemed as though there was more to it behind the scenes.

This group from the Unbreaking Pavilion who thought they were better than everyone else never truly considered the others as important at all! It finally made sense why their disciples were strangely unresponsive to their harsh words. It was as though the Unbreaking Pavilion accepted all their mockery!

Growing panicked, Philip retorted, “You’re all just blindly accusing now. I’ll have you know that I did choose those who weren’t very skilled, but that’s just so we could quickly eliminate any problems.

“If the five of them had been looking for trouble, we’d be able to get rid of them incredibly quickly if they were weak enough!”

Such words seemed more plausible than the last, but Jackie guffawed mockingly at this. Raising his voice, he debated, “What childish excuses you have. Everyone didn’t suspect anything initially solely because they were too excited to think about it properly. They didn’t properly put your words into consideration. You claimed that the five of them were allowed inside as an experiment, that you wanted to see if they would cause any trouble after they went inside. Don’t you think that’s a very naive reason?”

“You ‘ve already said everything. Anyone with any measure of intelligence wouldn’t cause you any trouble at that moment. The five of them knew they weren’t strong. They’d be no match for the disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion. How could they possibly dare cause you any trouble unless they don’t want to live anymore? Moreover, you’ve even said that you wanted seven more people. You even gave the reasons so clearly. What’s the point of the experiment as well? It’s as if you gave the full answer to a test before the test was even given! What’s the point of the test at all?”

Jackie’s words had stirred all the wandering warriors around him. They had been too excited earlier, so they never realized how much of a joke the reasoning the Unbreaking Pavilion had offered. At this moment, they finally realized that their motive and reasoning were filled with plot holes.

The reasons Philip and the others had said were practically tailor-made to pull more people inside. Everyone had finally realized this, and they were no longer excited. They might have been quite emotional, but no one had reacted too violently. After all, the Unbreaking Pavilion's disciples had just stopped them from entering Black Sun City. They had not been attacked at all.

The Unbreaking Pavilion's behavior had crossed the line; they did not seem to have any respect for the wandering warriors at all. It was as if the warriors were just livestock for slaughter!

How could the wandering warriors accept this?

Philip swiftly turned toward Jackie and scowled at him with intense hatred.

If Jackie had not popped up all of a sudden and revealed the truth, the seven new chosen warriors would have been led into Black Sun City, and their problems would have been solved!

"You filthy brat!" hissed Philip. "Don't know what sort of consequences your actions will bring? Don't think that I won't do anything to you just because there are so many wandering warriors gathered here. No one comes out well after offending the Unbreaking Pavilion."

Chapter 2767
Jackie squinted at Philip's words but did not respond. Instead, he raised his hand and retrieved his weapon from Mustard Seed. The moment he held the black sword, Jackie's aura completely changed. It was as if he was a spear that stood in the middle of heaven and earth; unbending and unyielding.

Philip looked at Jackie and suddenly laughed. "What? Are you planning on fighting me?"

The wandering warriors were shocked to see Jackie pulling out his sword, not expecting Jackie to dare challenge Philip. Even if they were at odds with each other, none of the warriors there would have dared challenge Philip alone.

After all, Philip was a disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion, and the other disciples called him their senior, treating him with wholehearted respect. It meant that he was at least an inner disciple in the Unbreaking Pavilion. No matter how justified they were, it did not change the fact that their skills would not be enough against Philip. They would be forced to use their numbers advantage to even push them into fighting him.

None of them would dare to go against Philip alone. Surprisingly, someone actually did dare to, and it was a sixth-grade alchemist!

"Is he crazy?" a black-robed wandering warrior said. The others next to him broke into a flurry of discussions.

“Who knows what’s on his mind. Looking at him, is he planning on fighting to the death against Philip? Philip is a disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion. He has to be incredibly talented to be a disciple of an eighth-grade clan! This guy is a lunatic, I tell you. Why else would he dare point his weapon at Philip?”

At that moment, Philip had a mocking smile on his face as he looked at Jackie like he was looking at an idiot. It was the first time an alchemist had ever challenged him. He had encountered a myriad of opponents in his life, but it was the first time he had ever seen someone like Jackie.

The disciples behind him burst into cackles, believing Jackie was a complete tool. Who did he think he was to be so bold against the Unbreaking Pavilion?

One of the disciples behind Philip walked forward and said loudly, “Do you think you’re worthy of fighting against Philip? Do you want to fight that badly? Fight me, then. If you can survive three exchanges from me, I’ll admit defeat!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, nodding after some thought. “You seem like you want to die so badly, so I‘ll grant you your wish!”

Everyone there was stunned at Jackie’s words. He even seemed very confident in saying these things too. No one could understand where Jackie harnessed that energy from and how he did it.

The Unbreaking Pavilion disciple squinted, feeling like Jackie’s words were even more humiliating than just being mocked. At this point, the last string of his patience had snapped. He wanted nothing more than to trample on Jackie and show him it was meant to be powerful. The disciple swiftly launched toward Jackie. With a slash, his curved blade headed right toward Jackie’s throat.

The wandering warriors gaped at how nimble and quick the disciple moved. Truly, the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion were special.

Just with his speed alone would completely defeat most of the people there!

Chapter 2768
At that point, some had already grieved silently for Jackie, thinking that Jackie would not be able to avoid the attack.

Jackie merely released a small sigh as he stood perfectly still. When the disciple appeared in front of him, Jackie swung his weapon, not holding back in his attack.

Everyone heard something cracking as crack lines formed on the Unbreaking Pavilion’s disciple’s curved blade. The cracks rapidly and visibly expanded. In the next breath, the curved blade shattered into pieces. Everything happened so quickly that no one could react on time.

Jackie merely scoffed as he thrust his sword forward before he activated the laws of space. The blade looked like it was less than a meter away, but it pierced into the disciple's throat a second later.

Blood spurted from Jackie's opponent, though Jackie swiftly evaded before that could stain his clothes.

The Unbreaking Pavilion's disciple had lost every ounce of his pride at this minute, his eyes widening in shock as he unconsciously grabbed his pierced throat. He could not believe his face.

He pointed at Jackie with his right hand, obviously having something he wanted to say, but how could he?

Jackie had impaled his throat!

Gurgling pitifully, his body stiffened before he fell to the ground. To this, Jackie merely raised an eyebrow as he stood in place, all while keeping his sword away. Jackie had just used one attack to handle his opponent, and he did not even have much of a change in his expression the whole time!

Everyone around him was silent again as everyone gaped, unable to believe the sight before them.

"You murderer!" shouted Philip.

Jackie let out a laugh. "Why are you so good at twisting the truth? He challenged me, and I merely accepted. Since it's a challenge, a fight to the death is only normal!"

Philip's anger surged to the point that his entire body trembled. Looking at the corpse of his junior, he felt himself slowly being swallowed by the emotions that stormed within him. Shock, sadness, anger-these emotions haunted him repeatedly. He huffed roughly.

Meanwhile, everyone reacted as they began to comment on the short-lived battle.

"Isn't he an alchemist? Since when were alchemists so strong?"

"He must've been pretending. I refuse to believe an alchemist can be so strong. Earlier, he killed a disciple from the Unbreaking Pavilion so effortlessly. Anyone who can enter the Unbreaking Pavilion, even from a runner disciple to an inner disciple, would all be very talented!"

"The Whirling World restricted everyone's levels to the late stage of the innate realm. Everyone's fighting with their own skills and techniques. Him killing his opponent in one strike means that his skills are way better than his opponents!"

“It made sense why he’s so calm from the start. If I was that skilled, I wouldn’t be afraid of this group, either!”

Jackie ignored the hatred he felt from the Unbreaking Pavilion as he turned to face the wandering warriors. “The Unbreaking Pavilion never planned on letting us into Black Sun City from the start. Even if we enter, we’ll only be dispensable for whatever plan they have.”

Chapter 2769
“Black Sun City doesn’t belong to the Unbreaking Pavilion, it belongs to all of the warriors in the Whirling World! Hear me, everyone! Let’s kill our way into Black Sun City!”

His words ignited the wandering warriors’ wrath as they believed in Jackie’s words. Even if the warriors were not that skilled, they refused to be overpowered like some animal. They refused to be the Unbreaking Pavilion’s stepping stone!

“You’re right. Black Sun City doesn’t belong to the Unbreaking Pavilion, it belongs to everyone in the Whirling World! The Unbreaking Pavilion is despicable and shameless. They’re trying to wear us all down, and we can’t just ignore that! The five who have gone in before us may have fallen, so let us seek justice for them!”

“That’s right! He’s right! We have to reclaim Black Sun City. The city doesn’t belong to the Unbreaking Pavilion!”

Jackie’s war cry had stirred the wandering warriors’ battle spirit. For so many years, they had been put down by high-grade clans, but all that had changed. Jackie was giving them a chance to turn the tides. None of them wanted to be cattle for slaughter No more!

Meanwhile, rage seized Philip like never before. Jackie had used the awe after revealing his true skills to thoroughly gain the respect of the wandering warriors. The matter had already advanced to a stage he never wanted it to, and this fed the flames of hatred he harbored toward Jackie.

He clenched his teeth and snarled “I’ll make sure you regret this, you insolent boy!”

Jackie let out a light laugh, not caring about his threat at all. Instead, he turned to tell everyone, “All of you, deal with those four! Leave Philip to me!”

They had strength in numbers, and that was an indisputable, useful fact. True, the wandering warriors alone would not be enough, but with all of them joined, they could no doubt deal with the Unbreaking Pavilion’s four disciples.

The disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion started to panic. They never expected the wandering warriors to band together to stand up against them!

Jackie activated the laws of space and appeared in front of Philip in a flash.

At that moment, Philip was forced to push his anger back as he fought Jackie with all his might. Despite underestimating Jackie initially, he had to admit that Jackie was capable of going toe-to-toe against him. After all, Jackie had killed his junior without even struggling. Even if his junior had underestimated Jackie before his fatal defeat, it was impossible to have done that without skill.

At this point, Philip was desperate to end Jackie for good. His hands constantly moved as he used spell after spell, distorting the space between his hands.

“Spatial Distortion!” shouted Philip.

What ensued was the sound of something rustling as the quiet space started to twist. It was as if a massive hammer had smashed into space and launched an attack.

Jackie frowned slightly.

Eighth-grade clans were impressive, undeniably. The skills and techniques they had hidden were not something ordinary clans could compare to. Spatial Distortion was definitely at the middle stage of the earth level. Looking at how familiar Philip was with the skill, he was at least at the second stage of mastery.

The shattered space turned into small shards. With a wave of Philip’s hand, the shards moved next to him. Jackie chuckled darkly as he condensed 75 Soul Swords in an instant.

Chapter 2770
With a wave of Jackie’s hand, the 75 Soul Swords shot into Jackie’s gray sword. Jackie used an upper ultimate god level technique and was already at the third stage!

Jackie was barely fazed, even if it was a chosen disciple standing in front of him. So what if Philip could be a chosen disciple?

Everyone in this world had been restricted to the late stage of the innate level. They were fighting with the strength of their techniques, and in terms of technique, Jackie had never lost before!

Philip was, of course, already at full strength after witnessing Jackie’s skills. The spatial shards violently spun around him as he controlled them. The shards disturbed the air around them, turning into a tornado with Philip at the center.

“Die!” roared Philip as he leaped and rushed toward Jackie.

The dancing spatial shards looked so dangerous, it was like they could destroy anything in the world. The violent wind stirred the sand on the ground, but the moment the sand touched the spatial shards, it disappeared.

“Die!” repeated Philip, screaming as though he was a deranged beast.

Jackie squinted at the raging winds before sighing and rid of the thoughts he had before. Raising his sword in his right hand, he swung the sharp end toward Philip. Destroying the Void turned into about a meter-long ray as it slashed right at Philip’s Spatial Distortion. The black-colored aura clashed with the spatial shards, and terrifyingly loud crackling echoed in the air.

The clash of the two skills caused incredibly strong shockwaves, and everyone else stopped mid-fight just to witness what was happening. The spatial shards that reflected the sunlight clashed against the pitch-black sword slash. While the slash looked inactive, it was obvious how it persistently pushed back against the shards.

The spatial shards that seemed to be able to destroy everything in the world suddenly disappeared after meeting the slash.

Jackie’s tearing slash was so sharp that the spatial shards failed to stop it!

“What?!” snapped Philip.

His powerful attack, the very technique he had been so proud of, was basically minced by Jackie!

Who was he? Why was he so strong?

Alas, Philip did not have the chance to ponder on the questions for too long as the pitch-black sword aura had been so quick that it appeared in front of him in a blink.

He was too late to react. The slash audibly cut through Philip’s clothes and pierced his chest, and at that very moment, a searing pain overtook him as he felt his soul being ripped apart. He had never felt such pain in his entire life. It was as if thousands of ants were biting at his soul!

“Argh!” a cry of agony pierced the atmosphere.

Nonetheless, Philip, being the proud man he was after being fed with many praises, tried to bite back the rest of his scream. It would be too humiliating for him if he did not. He could not stop himself from shouting at that moment. The pain caused him to lose all sense of rationality.

Jackie laughed coldly. If the battle had not been in the Whirling World, he might have needed to use some more effort to deal with that guy. Regardless, everyone was restricted to the late stage of the innate realm in the Whirling World, and they were fighting with their martial skills!

Jackie's skills were undeniably much stronger than Philip's. Jackie would not even have been afraid of dealing with five or six disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion!

Meanwhile, the Unbreaking Pavilion's disciples were flabbergasted when they saw Philip struggling and screaming in pain on the ground. The scene felt so surreal. Philip had always been an existence that outer disciples practically revered, and he had never looked so pathetic before!

"Who is he? Is he from an eighth-grade clan as well? Is he from a ninth- grade clan?"

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2771 - 2775

hapter 2771
“How would I know the answer? I’ve seen most of the disciples from high-grade clans before, so why have I never seen this guy? Where is he even from?!”

The Unbreaking Pavilion’s disciples felt their hearts quivering ominously as they talked about it.

Jackie was far too strong. It was one thing that Jackie had killed a fellow disciple in one attack, but Philip losing to him was an entirely different story. Philip had flat-out lost in a contest of strength, and his other four companions lost all hope at the sight.

The Unbreaking Pavilion’s disciples were not the only ones terrified at this. In fact, a few of the wandering warriors were, too. At that moment, the warriors were certain that Jackie was not an alchemist despite the sixth-grade alchemist badge, but a truly strong warrior instead.

Frowning, Jackie sternly spoke, “Why haven’t you dealt with the remaining four swiftly? Do you want them to run away and report what’s happening here?”

With that, the warriors snapped out of their shock as they put the thoughts aside, continuing to fight.

The next part of the battle passed by very quickly. To cover all his bases, Jackie had attacked all four of them. They did not even have the chance to beg for mercy before Jackie killed them all.

Five corpses were kicked aside, and Jackie did not spare them another glance. Once everything was dealt with, he quietly looked at the city gates of Black Sun City. Even if those five have been dealt with, it did not mean they were in the clear.

He took a deep breath before he asked the warriors behind him, “Do you know how many of them came?”

This was Jackie’s main concern. The guards of the gates were not the ones to be worried about, but instead, the disciples inside were. The one called Derrick did not follow Jackie out again, so that meant Derrick was still inside.

When Derrick came out earlier, Jackie had taken note that Derrick’s strength was nearly on par with Philip’s. The regular warriors would be no match for him. Jackie was the only one who could deal with Derrick there. However, Jackie was not sure if there was anyone stronger than Philip within the city.

At that moment, Jackie had turned into the leader of the wandering warriors.

Those who knew of the information answered, “There should be around fifteen of them.”

“Yes, that should be about right. When they first came, they tossed out all the wandering warriors in the city. They were so fierce, too! Anyone who didn’t listen would be attacked. We were weak then and didn’t have a leader like you, so we didn’t dare stand up against them.”

Jackie could not help but raise an eyebrow at their answer. Only 15 men, yet these warriors were intimidated?

Jackie had thought that there would be at least four or five dozen warriors in the city!

Rudy had hidden far away earlier. After all, he was not well-prepared with skills and would only slow them down. Since everything had settled, he returned to Jackie’s side.

He immediately knew what Jackie was thinking and thus whispered, “There are so many valuable things in the Whirling World. The Unbreaking Pavilion wouldn’t let a large group of disciples just gather at one place unless it was a large city. Black Sun City obviously isn’t one.”

Jackie nodded, Rudy had a point. It was a small place, after all. No matter how strong the Unbreaking Pavilion was, they would not focus all their power on a small city. That would be too disadvantageous for them. Jackie agreed. If there were only a dozen or so people left in the city, he was confident enough to not be afraid if anyone stronger than Philip was inside.

With that, Jackie turned to face the wandering warriors behind him and spoke, “I know all of you just want to use the true energy fields within Black Sun City to raise your skills, but they’re still inside. We have to be very careful. There’s no telling what’s going on inside. We’ll have to send in some scouts to take a look.”

Everyone took a step back upon hearing Jackie’s suggestion.

Chapter 2772
The fact that about a dozen disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion were in the city terrified the wandering warriors. After all, they only managed to kill the five outside because they had outnumbered them. With double the numbers inside, they might not be able to succeed. Furthermore, everyone could tell that the disciples in the city would be the stronger ones. Their strength could not be measured, and perhaps even all of them might be as skilled as Philip!

There might be a lot of wandering warriors, but they were not strong enough to fight all of the Unbreaking Pavilion’s disciples. Only Jackie, in fact, was truly powerful. The moment they thought of how strong the people in the city could be, the warriors backed away. No one wanted to be the scouts that would be dispatched into Black Sun City.

Feeling helpless, Jackie's lips twitched at the warriors. He never planned on asking them to infiltrate the city, anyway. After all, they were no idiots. Everyone knew that the first to go in would be cannon fodder.

While Jackie could keep his calm, Rudy, who stood next to him, could not. Many of the warriors would have been tricked by the Unbreaking Pavilion had it not been for Jackie.

Who knew what would befall them then?

All that, yet the wandering warriors dared to retreat at such an important time!

Enraged, Rudy turned around, his eyes wide open as he snapped at the warriors, practically shouting, "Do you know what would've happened to you had Jackie not intervened? Don't you think retreating now is a little shameless?"

The warriors fell silent at this, not daring to say anything. After all, their lives were on the line.

After a while, one of the warriors finally spoke, "There are about ten of them inside, and they'll know something happened if they see all of us enter. They'd attack us on sight. Whoever is the first to go in will die, and to add into the mix, we're not that strong. Them attacking us will spell the end of us all. Is it wrong that we don't want to die?"

The others agreed with this.

"That's right, we just don't want to die! Is there anything wrong with that? The person leading into the city will die the worst kind of death. We're retreating to protect ourselves!"

Rudy's face reddened in anger upon hearing these words. He realized how much of a joke his earlier thoughts were. These warriors were useless, chickening out when the moment needed them the most.

Rudy clenched his fists tightly, wanting nothing more than to pull that person up by the collar and shake him. Meanwhile, Jackie sighed helplessly, already expecting this reaction.

The wandering warriors were all not affiliated to any force, and their lives were their invaluable treasure. It was natural that they would not want to rush in first. However, Rudy did not know this, which only led him to feel anger and disappointment.

Jackie reached out and pulled Rudy, who was facing the wandering warriors, causing him to head toward the city gates.

“I’m doing this right now not because of what you’ve said,” said Jackie loudly. “I have my goals, and no one can disrupt my plans. You don’t have to feel guilty. Just leave the rest to me.”

Rudy pursed his lips helplessly. He knew that Jackie had always been a stubborn person, and Jackie could not possibly go against what he believed in. However, Rudy still felt like he was at fault.

He wanted to get the wandering warriors to stand up for themselves, but he never expected them to be so heartless.

Chapter 2773
Jackie turned and faced the wandering warriors. Raising his head, he loudly spoke, “Everyone, settle down. I know your concerns, so I‘ll be the one to lead the way into Black Sun City while you‘ll all follow. However, there’s one condition you need to obey. If you turn and flee the moment anything happens, you’ll make an enemy out of me, too. I’ve always kept true to my word, so you’d do well to heed them!”

Jackie thus walked toward the city gates alone.

Everyone felt their hearts skipping a beat upon hearing Jackie’s words, and they believed his words were true. After all, someone as talented as Jackie would be able to do anything he said he would. Everyone exchanged a complicated look with each other, but they no longer dared to discuss anything else at that moment.

They looked on as Jackie entered Black Sun City and, without much of a choice, followed after him. They were then met with a small plaza about 30 meters wide, and on the plaza were lights of various colors.

Jackie stood in the middle of the plaza as he curiously looked at everything before him. It was incredibly different from what he had expected. The moment he entered the city, he had been met with a small plaza that had various lights around it.

The beams of light were of various colors and never intersected. They formed their own groups and never touched each other.

Jackie looked to the left and noticed that it was illuminated with parallel shades of black and green. Before him was a red light, an orange light, and a purple light.

The lights were not that bright and had a soothing effect as they fell on everything. It seemed to calm their souls even, which shocked everyone who entered Black Sun City. It was far different from what they expected. The plaza seemed relatively large, so there was enough space for everyone to enter. Oddly enough, it seemed somewhat cramped, too.

Jackie stood in the center and observed everything. “Why is it like this?” he mumbled to himself.

Meanwhile, Rudy was so shocked at the sight that he was speechless for a good few minutes. Before entering Black Sun City, he had wondered what it would look like inside. What he did not expect was the city to have lights of different colors. There were not even any buildings in sight, either.

After the initial shock, the wandering warriors started to talk.

“Is this Black Sun City? Why don’t I see anything other than these colored lights? I thought it would be an endless city!”

“Who knows? Aren’t there supposed to be energy fields inside? Where are the true energy fields?”

Everyone speculated endlessly yet could not come to a certain answer.

Rudy tugged at Jackie’s sleeve and whispered, “Thankfully, there are no disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion on guard here. I thought we’d be in a big battle the moment we entered.”

Jackie nodded, having the same thoughts as Rudy. He was not as positive as those wandering warriors. He had made full preparation before they even entered.

Chapter 2774
Jackie would have attacked the moment he spotted any disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion on guard. Only that way would he be able to seize the initiative. However, he never expected the plaza to be so empty, and all he could see were the lights that he could not figure out the purpose.

Where were the ten disciples? Could they have entered the lights?

Rudy frowned and said, “Why do you think Philip was roping in people? What were they for?”

Jackie shook his head. He had thought that he would get an answer after entering, but his questions merely grew at this point.

All of a sudden…

“What are you doing?!” came a shout.

Jackie immediately turned to look and saw a green-robed wandering warrior stretching a finger to touch the lights outside the plaza. He was touching a white-colored light out of curiosity, not really wanting to really touch the light. The shout scared him, however, and his hand shook.

His finger touched the white light before him in the process, and everyone immediately held their breath. The white light suddenly turned green.

The next second, the green light enveloped the person, and everyone watched the green-robed man shouting out for help with all his might, but no one stepped forward to save the man. In just seconds, the green-robed man was sucked into the green light and vanished.

Everyone shuddered at that sight. No one expected the lights around the plaza to be capable of that. They then thought of those disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion.

Could they have gone somewhere with that method?

The expressions of the remaining wandering warriors darkened. Everything had happened far too quickly, and they did not even have the time to fully process it. Jackie furrowed his eyebrows as he stared where the green-robed man disappeared. After a short moment, the green light shifted to its original white color. It was as if nothing happened.

Rudy‘s face paled in fear as he grabbed Jackie’s arm. “The lights can eat people! I’m lucky that I was far away…”

Jackie frowned, not answering Rudy. He merely thought deeply about another problem. After a long time, he raised an eyebrow. If he wanted to clear his doubts, he would need someone else to touch the light.

He turned to look at where the green-robed man disappeared. “Does anyone know him? Is he a wood element specialist?”

Everyone had their own attributes that they were good at. When choosing skills and techniques to master, they would be more inclined toward their specialization. That was why warriors were separated into their respective elements. There were fire element warriors, spirit element ones, and even wood element ones.

Jackie’s question was quickly answered. “He’s my friend, and his name is Bobby! You’re right, though, he was a wood element warrior. How did you know that?”

The person looked at Jackie curiously. It was not just the person who answered who was looking at Jackie curiously, but Rudy was as well. How did Jackie know what that warrior was specialized in?

Was it because of the green robes?

Chapter 2775
Jackie let out a light laugh as he explained, “You don’t have to worry about how I determined what his specialization is just yet. All you need to know is that Bobby is safe. He’s been transferred into the true energy field. If he’s smart, he’ll probably start training immediately.”

Jackie then fell silent as he once more turned to look at the lights around him. Meanwhile, everyone began to ramble about the events.

A few of them had asked Jackie questions, but Jackie ignored all of them as he merely observed the lights. Even though Jackie was just speculating, he was their leader for the time being, so his words obviously carried some weight. If Jackie was right, that Bobby was already in a true energy field training, would they not be at a disadvantage if they entered late?

The wandering warriors were all eager to get started, knowing that they could be losing out. No one wanted to give up on any potential rewards!

A short while after that, someone else finally took a step forward. He had gray clothes on and a beard. He walked to the nearest light before him, and this caught Jackie’s attention.

The person reached out at the red light, and the moment he did, the red light immediately turned yellow.

What happened next was just like what happened to Bobby. The yellow light enveloped the person’s body, and the person was sucked in immediately. The light turned back to red after the person vanished from sight.

Jackie let out a sigh of relief. It was just as he thought!

With the first, there would naturally be the second. The other wandering warriors started reaching out toward the lights, and it was not long until their numbers dwindled. From the initial fear came the calm, after all.

Rudy, meanwhile, felt restless. He whispered into Jackie’s ear, “Since everyone’s already entered, we should go.”

Rudy had thought that Jackie would have done something after three people were sent in, yet Jackie made no moves whatsoever, still composed and standing still. Instead, it was Rudy who started to get anxious.

Jackie turned to look at Rudy. “There’s no need to panic. They’re all not using their heads because they’re worried about losing out. They entered so impatiently, but they forgot that the ten disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion are still inside.”

Rudy felt like his head was doused with a bucket of cold water, snapping him out of his restlessness upon realizing Jackie was right. Disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion were still inside, and it would not end well if they were to meet.

Rudy was incredibly conflicted as he grabbed Jackie's arm. "Then, what do we do?"

Jackie turned and looked at Rudy, helplessly pursing his lips. He had not planned on bringing Rudy along. Rudy, truthfully, was slowing him down. Nonetheless, there were times when Jackie had to be worried for Rudy. After all, they were companions.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2776 - 2780

Chapter 2776

Jackie weighed the situation carefully before he earnestly responded to Rudy, “You can’t enter with me. If my judgment is correct, we’ll end up in different spaces. You’re an alchemist without much of a need to improve your strength. Once I enter, head out of the city and find a safe place to wait for me. If I’m not out within ten days, continue on your own.”

Jackie then took out a sound transferring array from Mustard Seed and placed it into Rudy’s palm. “I‘ll contact you with this when I’m out.”

Rudy touched the sound transfer array in his hand as nervousness bubbled at the pit of his stomach. “I want to…”

“There’s a limit to how nosy you can be,” interjected Jackie before Rudy could continue. “With your skills, you won’t be able to survive the moment you enter anywhere remotely dangerous. I’ve already said that the two of us will end up in different spaces. You won’t be able to survive on your own!”

Rudy’s lips twitched at this, but he had to admit that Jackie had a solid point. The only thing he could do was ride on Jackie’s coattails, and that anytime Jackie reaped a reward or two, he could get a little.

Rudy was no fool, he knew that things would go sour for him very quickly. He knew that Jackie was doing this for his sake.

Pondering on this for a while, Rudy asked, “How do you know we’ll end up in different places?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he asked earnestly, “What attribute do you specialize in as a warrior?”

Rudy’s brow raised at this question. “I’m a metal-attribute warrior.”

Jackie nodded and let out a slight laugh before he said, “I’m confident we’ll be teleported to different places. I’m a soul attribute warrior while you specialize in metal. Trust me, only those with the same attribute will end up together, while those with different attributes will be separated.”

“Why are you so sure?” Rudy asked curiously.

Jackie let out a sigh before he answered, “Anyone with half a brain can figure it out. I won’t waste any more time with you. Just do what I told you to do.”

In the end, Jackie pushed Rudy out of Black Sun City. This city was unsafe for Rudy. Even though Rudy was not willing to at all, he knew that it was the right thing for him to do.

With Rudy out of the city, Jackie was the only person left in the plaza. He faced the light beams of different colors at the plaza and quietly looked on for a while. After that, he walked right toward the black-colored light, not hesitating at all to reach his right hand out.

The moment he inserted his hand into the dark-colored light, a pitch-black ray enveloped Jackie. He then felt his body go light as he was sent into a different space. Jackie knew that he was being teleported, but he had no idea where he was headed to.

A short while passed, and the pitch-black light finally dispersed. He could finally feel solid ground under his feet. By the time he got a clear look at his surroundings, Jackie was stunned.

At that moment, there was a massive hall in front of him. On the uppermost part of the hall were carvings of dragons and phoenixes, with the words “Purple Soul Hall” engraved on them. The entire hall was surrounded by dense gray energy. The energy even had a faint purplish glow to it.

Jackie frowned as he looked at the gates in front of the hall. At that moment, the gates were closed, and he was unsure if anyone else was inside.

Jackie turned to his back and saw that the direction he had come from was just pitch-black. He stood before the hall for a long time before he headed toward the gates.

Chapter 2777
Jackie was on his guard as he approached the gates. Despite his wariness, he pushed open the door to the Purple Soul Hall.

With a creek, the insides of the hall were fully displayed to Jackie. In front of a massive stone plate were two men dressed in black clothes. Looking at the patterns on the men’s clothes, it was obvious that the two of them were from the Unbreaking Pavilion. Jackie’s brows furrowed as he stopped in his tracks immediately.

The moment Jordan Fisher saw Jackie, he burst into laughter and walked up to Manfred Plume, patting his shoulder. “I won!”

Jordan then opened his hand and wiggled his fingers. “You bet five thousand spirit crystals. Hand them over.”

Manfred let out a snort, bitter about his loss but complied with their bet nonetheless. “I can’t believe that brat Philip managed to find a soul attribute warrior. I thought there won’t be any soul attribute warriors in that group of trash.”

“We’re lucky, then!” said Jordan with a pleased expression. “I thought there won’t be any soul attribute warriors among that trash as well. I was planning on leaving if no one came in within two hours.”

Both Jordan and Manfred talked so openly, not even bothering to lower their voices. Jackie had heard all of it, and his thoughts were thoroughly cleared up after hearing all that.

It seemed like they still did not realize that something had happened outside. They thought that Jackie was ushered inside by Philip. Of course, it was rather easy to understand why they would think that way. He would probably have thought that way in their position as well. If he had not suddenly appeared outside of Black Sun City, those people would all have probably followed Philip inside and been sent here.

Jackie furrowed his eyebrows, not bothering with both Manfred and Jordan as he instead stared at the massive stone plate behind them. The stone plate was exuding a purplish-black glow.

The words “Purple Soul Plate” were written on it, which was obviously the name of that plate, and a lot of words were carved into the plate as well. Jackie took a good look at it, and his expression immediately changed.

Many of his earlier questions were answered at that moment. What was on the stone plate was none other than the rules to obtain rewards. The Purple Soul Stone connected to another space, and as long as two people placed their hands on the stone plate, they would be transported!

Countless purple soul beasts were waiting for them in the other space, however. Whoever killed even more purple soul beasts would be rewarded by entering the next space.

It was a competition that rewarded the person who did better. However, the difference between this and other competitions was the fact that the one who lost would immediately be punished. It was a fatal punishment as well.

On the bottom of the Purple Soul Plate was written in large golden words, “The winner will earn endless rewards. When the defeated return to Purple Soul Hall, they will be attacked by lightning, and their soul will disintegrate”

Jackie finally understood why they wanted to send the wandering warriors into Black Sun City. The ones they chose were all weaklings, too. They wanted to cheat.

If it was a normal competition, they would not have been so afraid, but the price the defeated had to pay for this one was far too great. It was thus natural that they did not want their fellow disciples to die. It just so happened that many wandering warriors were outside of Black Sun City, and the Unbreaking Pavilion were elated to send these people to die in their stead. It would even allow them to win countless rewards.

Manfred smiled and said, “I’ll give this chance to you and wait a little longer. Philip might still be able to find some more soul attribute warriors.”

Jordan looked at Manfred with a look of gratitude. “Well, thank you, then! You know as well that I’ll be sent somewhere else after handling things here. I‘m a bit short of time, so thank you for understanding.”

Chapter 2778
Manfred and Jordan carried on with their conversation, seemingly not caring that Jackie could hear them. After all, Jackie would die in their hands in mere moments, and dead men would tell no tales.

Jordan turned to look at Jackie. “You don’t seem afraid. Could my junior have told you everything before you entered?”

Jackie’s calmness piqued Jordan‘s curiosity. After all, anyone would be able to understand what they were talking about, so long as they could think straight, that was. Furthermore, the Purple Soul Plate was right behind them, and the rules were explained. Anyone literate would be able to understand the rules. As long as they understood the rules, they would be able to figure out what awaited them.

Oddly, Jackie seemed all too calm even when hearing and reading everything. It was as if he did not know anything as he stood on the spot, which made Jordan both curious and suspicious.

Jackie raised an eyebrow. “Why would I be afraid?”

Those words stunned Jordan and Manfred. This man could actually say something that serious! It was as if the two of them were not disciples of an eighth-grade clan, but runner disciples of some insignificant small clan. Jackie did not seem to regard them highly at all!

His attitude rendered Jordan and Manfred speechless, and they wondered if he was sane at all.

Manfred laughed in frustration. “Is there something wrong with your head? Don’t you know where we’re from? You even asked us why you’ d be afraid. Do you truly think you’d survive a battle against Jordan?”

Jackie let out a snort, not wanting to bother answering Manfred. Naturally, he did not care about either Manfred or Jordan. Even though the two of them were from an eighth-grade clan, they were probably inner disciples. Jackie might be a little worried had they been chosen disciples instead.

It was understandable why Manfred felt insulted by Jackie‘s lack of response.

No low-class warrior had ever underestimated him ever since he became a disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion. Any warrior of that class would always try to butter him up in hopes of gaining some sort of favor.

This fool before them had the robes of an alchemist and even had a sixth-grade alchemist badge. Anyone would be able to figure out that the guy was at the middle stage of the innate level at best, yet an alchemist at that level was actually facing him with such an arrogant attitude.

Manfred was enraged at the thought. So what if the guy was an alchemist?

It was not like Manfred had never seen other alchemists. Even seventh-grade alchemists would never dare ignore him!

Manfred walked toward Jackie and stopped only when he was a meter from Jackie. His sharp eyes measured Jackie.

Jackie’s lips twitched somewhat helplessly. Everyone seemed to love looking at him with that expression.

Manfred narrowed his eyes. “It’s the first time I’ve ever seen someone as bold as you. Don’t you know what’s about to happen to you?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not wanting to bother dwelling on Manfred’s question. After all, no matter what he said, Manfred would never think that Jackie had a chance to win.

Jackie merely let out a smile as he changed the topic, saying, “Do you have the map of the Whirling World?”

He asked a question, but his tone was very firm. The thought already passed Jackie’s mind when they were talking to each other so carelessly.

Chapter 2779
In truth, the Whirling World had not been opened for too long. From how large the Whirling World was, no one could have explored the entire realm. Many things were only in the preliminary stages. However, based on Manfred and Jordan’s conversation, it seemed like they had figured out everything about the Whirling World, which piqued Jackie’s interest as questions surfaced in his mind.

Jackie had stunned Manfred yet again. He felt like Jackie’s thoughts jumped far too quickly, and that something must be wrong with his mind.

Jordan, who had just been enjoying the show by the side, raised an eyebrow. His lips twitched as he said, “Why are you asking that?”

Jackie composed himself and answered, “I’m just curious. In the end, this match is a fatal one where someone will surely die, and the defeated will forever keep this secret. Since that’s the case, what do you have to hide?”

Jackie maintained his casual self as he spoke, it was as if he was not the one who was going to die. Jordan exchanged a look with Manfred. Both of them were speechless.

This man was mind-boggling, be it in the way he spoke or in his expression, different from regular people. It was as if Jackie was filled with confidence no matter what he did, but where did his confidence stem from?

He was just an alchemist. Did he think he could beat experts of the spring solidifying realm?

Even though the thought constantly played in both their minds, Jackie’s words had effectively convinced them.

Jackie was right. He would die by their hands, anyway, and he could not possibly tell secrets afterward. There was no reason they could not tell him some things. He was going to die, after all, there was no problem for them to brag a little.

Jordan walked over slowly, heading toward Jackie as he said, “We do have a map of the Whirling World in our hands, and it’s a complete map, too. How did you know that, though?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he said seriously, “I guessed it from how you were speaking just now, but didn’t the Whirling World just open up? How did you get the map? Does Phoenix Valley have a map, too?”

The questions made Manfred and Jordan second-guess themselves, but it was only for a brief moment as they were, at this point, already confident in themselves. Instead, they answered Jackie truthfully.

Jordan said, “The Whirling World might’ve just opened not too long ago, but haven’t you heard that the Whirling World is actually in the Valley of Enlightenment? Since it’s in the Valley of Enlightenment, then we have a way to get a map of the Whirling World. Phoenix Valley has it too, of course. This was always a plan from Phoenix Valley and us, the Unbreaking Pavilion.”

Jordan’s answer completely stunned Jackie. He could not believe that he had been right, but there was a chill in his heart because of it.

This journey to the Whirling World had been plotted by the Unbreaking Pavilion and Phoenix Valley all along. These two forces that were publicly mortal enemies were, in fact, working together in secret. Everything they did might have just been a smokescreen to hide from everyone else in Middle Province.

The more Jackie thought about it, the more anxious he got. Everything he did not understand before suddenly became somewhat clearer.

This explained why both the Phoenix Valley and Unbreaking Pavilion were at war, despite possible scrutiny from others. It was no wonder they seemed locked in an incredible battle on the surface, but it still did not affect their foundations. It was all just a ruse. They could have been working together from the start!

Chapter 2780
Everything had been done just to prevent other forces from messing things up after knowing the truth. Everything felt like a joke the more Jackie delved into the matter. Both Phoenix Valley and Unbreaking Pavilion were utterly despicable!

Jackie sighed as he raised his head and asked again, “The grudge between the Unbreaking Pavilion and Phoenix Valley had just been a ruse after all? Do all of you disciples know that?”

Jordan raised an eyebrow, a bit alarmed by Jackie’s question. Wandering warriors typically would not have asked something like that, but at the thought that Jackie was to meet his demise soon, he did not bother thinking too deeply about it.

He thus nodded without any hesitation. “It’s not like every single disciple in the Unbreaking Pavilion knows about it, though, there aren’t many who know. It’ s basically some chosen disciples as well as the more valued inner disciples.”

Jordan raised his head proudly at his own explanation. It was obvious that the two of them were among the valued inner disciples.

Jackie did not feel more relaxed at the answer. Instead, he felt anger for being toyed around with.

The elders knew everything, but they did not even let him look at the map even if he knew. Even if they could not give the whole map to Jackie, they could have at least let him look at the important places.

He had entered the Whirling World without knowing a single thing. Even though Jackie was not afraid, he had his concerns. The elders of Phoenix Valley knew that, but they still hid the truth from Jackie.

Jackie felt like he had been completely fooled. He could understand the fact that he had not been in Phoenix Valley for that long and that they could not possibly tell him everything, but they could have at least given Jackie some help.

They did not tell him anything at all!

In truth, Jackie had not gained that much from Phoenix Valley. He did obtain a promising amount of spirit crystals from refining pills, but that was down to his hard work. He even had to pay certain fees for them. He single-handedly obtained victory for Phoenix Valley against Sky Peak Pavilion, too. Without him, Phoenix Valley would have lost that tournament. Not only would Phoenix Valley lose a lot of resources, but it would also decimate their reputation.

Jackie had contributed a lot to Phoenix Valley, but they did not seem to appreciate that at all. They knew the truth, but they did not give Jackie any help nor a hint.

To this, Jackie could not help but feel bitter. He sighed as he looked up at the Purple Spirit Plate in exasperation.

“You’ve asked so many questions, and we’ve answered all of them. You have to answer the questions I ask you now,” said Jordan with a raised eyebrow.

Jackie nodded and turned to look at Jordan.

With a smile, Jordan narrowed his eyes and sized Jackie up as he asked, “What‘s all this confidence about? Do you not understand the meaning of fear?”

Jackie raised his head and answered Jordan, “Courage is something that comes naturally. I might end up afraid if I’m facing a formidable warrior, but I don’t feel much facing the two of you.”

Even though Jackie’s tone was as calm as usual, Jordan and Manfred could still feel the disdain in his voice. This guy was underestimating them!

What gave him the right to do so?

Jordan and Manfred got angrier the more they thought about it. This fool was just too bold. Jordan had not wanted to be too petty with someone who was about to die, but he found himself struggling to hold back from pulverizing Jackie. He wanted Jackie to know how close to death he was.

Looking at Jordan about to make a move, Jackie suddenly let out a sneer as he pointed at the Purple Soul Plate.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2781 - 2785

Chapter 2781
“Read the rules before you attack. Anyone who makes a move in this hall will be attacked by the Purple Soul Hall’s aura without prejudice. Torment will befall upon their soul.’’

Jordan felt as though he was dunked in cold water upon hearing those words, and it snapped him out of his angry trance.

Manfred hurriedly grabbed onto Jordan’s arm from behind him. “Don’t get so worked up, Jordan. Black Sun City is a treasure left behind from ancient times. Our levels of strength are so weak right now, and we can’t possibly go against the laws of Purple Soul Hall.”

Jordan’s face stiffened as he forced himself to withhold his anger. He looked at Jackie coldly, gritting his teeth as he snarled, “I won’t bother with a dead man like you!”

Jackie laughed, unfazed by his words.

Manfred frowned as he said, “You’re looking rather confident, brat! Are you possibly planning on not putting your hand on the Purple Soul Plate and not fighting against us?”

Jordan’s eyes widened at Manfred’s guess. He felt like that could very well have guessed Jackie’s intentions, which made him internally panic.

He shouted, “Keep dreaming! Even if we don’t actually attack, he’ll still be able to force you into the Purple Soul Plate without using any skills. Don’t think of trying any petty tricks!”

Manfred nodded seriously.

At that moment, he suddenly had a thought in his mind. He retrieved a pill from his storage ring as he said with a cold smile, “This pill is called the Soul Melting Fill, and upon taking this, you’ll feel your soul burning as though grilled in the flames of hell if you don’t take the antidote within an hour. That pain isn’t something you can compare to physical pain, of course. Even sturdy, trained men will suffer immensely after taking this pill and follow our instructions in the end! You can’t escape it!”

Jackie laughed at their threats, not taking their words to heart. From the start, he had not planned on avoiding the life-and-death battle at all.

The Purple Soul Plate wrote that only the victor would be able to obtain the treasures within the Purple Soul Hall, and Jackie did not enter Black Sun City just for sightseeing. He was looking for treasures to help improve his strength.

He raised an eyebrow and said, “You don’t have to waste your time to think of all that; I’ve never planned on not participating in this match. Everything that needs to be said has been said. There’s no need to delay things anymore.”

Jackie thus walked toward the Purple Soul Plate. While the other two were still stunned, he placed his hand on the plate. The Purple Soul Plate suddenly shot out rays of purplish-gold light the moment Jackie put his hand on it, and it illuminated Jackie’s right hand.

Jackie turned around with a frown. “I’m ready. Are you two still going to waste time?”

Manfred and Jordan finally reacted.

Jackie’s behavior exceeded their expectations. They were both so sure that Jackie would try something against them, but the fool was actually even more eager than they were!

Jordan frowned. Since Jackie had already done that, they would seem petty if they wasted any more time.

Chapter 2782
Jordan turned to nod at Manfred as he then walked to the other side of the Purple Soul Plate, placing his hand on the plate as well. Just like what happened before, the purple rays of light enveloped his hand the moment he did.

A thunderous rumble was heard, and the three of them were taken aback at the same time. Before they could even react, two rays of dark purple light covered Jordan and Jackie. The next second, both of them disappeared from the hall.

It was an incredibly barren world. Other than the yellow soil on the ground, Jackie and Jordan could not see anything else. Raising their heads, all they could see was the purple sky that encompassed everything. They had already read the rules on the Purple Soul Plate, and Jackie knew that they would be sent to a different world for a battle to the death. Nonetheless, he was surprised that the battle was done individually.

At that moment, a deep voice was heard in the skies, saying, “The duration of the match will be the length of a candle. In the time it takes for a candle to burn out, whoever kills even more Purple Soul beasts will win!”

Jackie sighed, feeling the heat of the moment slowly getting to him. He might have been nervous during competitions that he had faced before, but he never felt the pressure he was feeling at this very moment. It was probably because of the time limit, as well as the fact that he could not see Jordan.

Suddenly, a dark purple-colored mist started to appear around him. The mist suddenly moved, covering everything with Jackie at the center.

Jackie frowned, pulling out a dark gray sword from Mustard Seed as he readied himself. He started to hear something crackling, sounding like something had shattered. The deep purple mist around him grew denser soon after, and Jackie's eyebrows furrowed even more tightly.

After a few moments, the mist suddenly dispersed. It was then did Jackie notice that a myriad of beasts, all formed with purple-hued gems, had formed around him. The gems were transparent, too. If Jackie did not see the facial features of the beasts on the heads, Jackie would have thought they were all just an ore.

Those must have been the Purple Soul beasts that the Purple Soul Plate talked about. The Purple Soul beasts were about the height of half a person, with rows of teeth lining up in their mouths. These beasts stared at Jackie pointedly, as though they were staring at their prey. They looked like they wanted to tear him apart.

"Middle stage of the innate level… Late stage of the innate level! There are even spring solidifying realm beasts!" said Jackie to himself.

At a glance, there were over 100 Purple Soul beasts around him, and most of the Purple Soul beasts were at the middle or the late stage of the innate realm. There were fewer spring solidifying realm beasts, but their number was nothing to scoff at.

Jackie felt like he was in trouble. He could very well struggle if these beasts rushed at him altogether.

It was hard to fight outnumbered. No matter how strong he was, there were too many beasts he had to face!

Jackie took a deep breath and removed the troubling thoughts from his mind. His hands constantly moved as seals formed quickly, and in a flash, 75 Soul Swords appeared in front of Jackie.

Jackie waved, and the 75 Soul Swords merged into one, turning into a grayish-black light that condensed around his gray sword. The gray glow started to hum.

Jackie made sure he was in his best condition, and ten of the Purple Soul beasts started to rush at Jackie.

Chapter 2783
Of the ten beasts, nine were at the middle stage of the innate level and one at the late stage. All of them bared their fangs as they viciously stared at Jackie.

Jackie sighed in relief upon recognizing the situation, and his worry that all these beasts would jump him altogether was false after all. With all of them split into batches, the battle would be much easier for him. He rushed forward with both his hands on the sword's hilt. He shouted out as he swung toward the ten Purple Soul beasts. Destroying the Void turned into a slash that sped toward the ten Purple Soul beasts at a visible pace.

The black slash turned into a crescent shape in mid-air, looking to be about 9 meters wide. Even though no intense energy fluctuated from the slash, it moved forward constantly.

The ten Purple Soul Beasts, however, acted as though they were not concerned about dying, that Jackie was all that they needed to deal with.

The rumbling slash clashed against the ten Purple Soul beasts, but the sharp slash broke through the Purple Soul beasts' defenses in a flash.

What surprised Jackie was that the bodies of the Purple Soul beasts looked solid, but they crumbled like paper after they were hit with Destroying the Void.

Destroying the Void was a soul attribute attack that could slash through a person's body and straight toward the soul, but it did not truly deal that much physical damage.

This technique should have hit the Purple Soul beasts like before, hitting their souls by passing through their bodies… But it did not happen like Jackie thought it would.

Destroying the Void started to display an immense destructive power when it slashed against the beasts. The creatures did not even last for a few seconds before they shattered under the might of Destroying the Void. The ten beasts disappeared into thin air. The speed was so quick that it surprised Jackie.

"Is their body compositions different from what I expected?" said Jackie with a frown.

Meanwhile, in another isolated space, ten Purple Soul beasts were attacking Jordan, who bravely faced them with a determined expression. He was incredibly close to Philip, and they even used the same skills.

Spatial shards surrounded Jordan. The Purple Soul beasts lunged toward him, but try as they might, they could not come close to him. The sharpness of the spatial shards was not something regular middle or late stage innate realm beasts could withstand.

Those spatial shards were also able to strike at the soul. Jordan's specialty was not spatial attacks but was, instead, soul attribute attacks. Otherwise, he would not have been sent to the Purple Soul Hall. However, soul attributes were far too rare and were incredibly hard to learn as well. That was why he took great pains to choose a combination technique to reduce the difficulty.

"Die!" Jordan shouted angrily.

The spatial shards suddenly exploded, and the Purple Soul Beasts disappeared after that.

Jordan could not help but laugh as he looked at the corpses on the floor. The ten Purple Soul beasts might have been a little difficult to deal with, but he swiftly ended them in mere seconds.

He estimated that he should be able to kill 80 or 90 of them in the time it took for a candle to finish burning. Jackie's image flashed in his mind, and he cursed at him, the fool who just loved to brag.

With Jackie's bit of strength, it would be impressive enough if he could even kill ten of the beasts. After all, Jackie had only been at the middle stage of the innate level in the real world at most.

Chapter 2784
If the Whirling World had not forcibly raised his strength, he might not have been able to face even ten Purple Soul beasts. Jackie might have been injured or died fighting the beasts!

Jordan snorted in disdain.

While Jordan relished being self-gratified, Manfred was frozen outside. His eyes were about to pop out of their sockets because the Purple Soul Plate before him had changed drastically. The results were shown in detail.

The words that were on the Purple Soul Plate were all gone and were replaced with two sets of numbers instead. The left side displayed the number 10 while the right side displayed 20.

Manfred remembered that Jordan had placed his hand on the left side of the Purple Soul Plate, and Jackie placed his hand on the right. This meant that Jordan's results were on the left, while Jackie's results were on the right.

Jackie had twice Jordan's score, and there was no mistaking it for Manfred. He remembered what he felt like when the two of them entered. He had been so certain that Jackie would lose, but not only would it not be Jackie struck by the Purple Soul Lightning, but Jordan, instead, would be!

Manfred was frozen in place, refusing to believe what he was seeing. He even started to wonder if he had remembered things wrongly, that Jackie's score was on the left while Jordan's score was on the right. His lips quivered, and his eyes reddened.

"How is this happening? Is something wrong with the Purple Soul Plate?" Manfred tried feeding himself with excuses.

As time ticked away, the numbers on the Purple Soul Plate constantly changed as both Jackie and Jordan did everything they could to kill the Purple Soul beasts.

The two of them were confident in themselves. Even though they could not see the results of their opponent, they believed that their opponent was not as good as they were. Jordan, in particular, was killing the Purple Soul beasts while assuming Jackie would collapse with injuries.

He believed that Jackie would not even be able to hold on until the candle's flame went out, believing the beasts would end him before then. The more he thought about it, the happier Jordan was and executed skill after skill quickly. Even though he was constantly expending his true energy, Jordan did not care at all.

After all, Jackie's results would be inferior to his, anyway. There was no real reason for him to kill as many Purple Soul beasts as he could.

Jordan's lips curled up as he suddenly shouted, "You're done for here, you fool! I have an earth rank technique, while you're a mere alchemist. You probably have a yellow level technique at most! You're a whole different level from me. How could you think you wouldn't need to be afraid? What made you even think you're stronger than me?!"

Jackie was just a clown. He had the gall to be so cocky just because he did not know his place. Unfortunately for Jackie, he did not know how strong the Unbreaking Pavilion's disciples were.

He probably realized how useless he was. Jordan would no doubt walk out of this space with a dead Jackie once the whole duration for this challenge ended!

In the other space, Jackie unleashed more of his slashes as he found himself already in tune with the battle. Even though there were a lot of Purple Soul beasts, it was always a fixed number of beasts that came at him. All of it was within the realm of Jackie's capabilities.

He killed the Purple Soul beasts batch by batch. After all, he used an ultimate god level technique, and the technique was already at the second stage.

Even if the Purple Soul beasts he faced doubled, he would be able to handle it.

Destroying the Void was far too strong, and the bodily composition of the Purple Soul beasts was very weak to spirit-based attacks as well. The power Destroying the Void had was evident against these beasts. The moment they were hit by the slashes, they would crumble like paper.

Chapter 2785
Jackie's attacks sped up by the minute, not at all fazed by the spring solidifying realm beasts. After all, he was capable of killing early-stage spring solidifying realm beasts and warriors when he was at the late stage of the innate level. His strength might have been tamed at that moment, but he was much stronger than before!

Back in Purple Soul Hall, Manfred covered his mouth, finding himself unable to muster a sentence for a long while.

The difference in both men's results was only widening. The candle was about to finish burning, and the left side was at 71 beasts while the right side showed 200.

Jackie and Jordan must have swapped positions for the results to make sense, but Manfred was still racked with worry. If nothing was wrong with the Purple Stone Plate, with the left side representing Jordan while the right side representing Jackie, then everything would be done for. The loser of this competition had to pay with his life!

Manfred mumbled to himself, "There's something wrong with the Purple Stone Plate, there must be! Their positions must've been switched. Yes, that must be it! Otherwise, how could that brat's results double Jordan's?"

"It's impossible! That man is nothing but an alchemist, while Jordan is an inner disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion and a top-ranking one, at that. How could he compare to Jordan?!"

Manfred rambled on as he tried to hype Jordan. Time was almost up, and the results of the right and left sides were more or less certain.

The left side stopped at 80, while the right side stopped at 240. It was evident how both men were worlds apart. At that moment, Manfred's breathing grew erratic as he silently prayed.

At that moment, the Purple Soul Plate emitted a purple glow, and a beam of light appeared where Jordan had disappeared earlier. Manfred's heart jumped as he stared at his direction with widened eyes.

He silently mumbled, "The left side must be Jackie's score. It had to be!"

Once the purple light dispersed, Manfred spotted a very familiar figure. On Jordan's face was a wide smile as he looked every bit the part of a victor. Once the light dispersed, he saw his junior staring at him with wide eyes.

He had thought that Manfred would be looking at him with happiness and respect, but Manfred was instead looking at him with a look that was far different from what he expected. Manfred's eyes were incredibly wide, and there was a trace of disappointment and even hopelessness on his face. This stunned Jordan.

Why was Manfred looking at him like that? Could something have happened?

At that moment, Jordan could not help but be a bit worried. Before he could figure out what happened, the purple glow on the right side dispersed as Jackie‘s figure appeared before Jordan. At that moment, Jordan’s face soured as if his father had just died.

The clown had survived after all?

He should consider himself lucky that he managed to survive against an attack by ten Purple Soul beasts!

He must have been frantically running for his life in that space. Otherwise, Jackie could not have stayed alive!

With that thought in mind, Jordan sneered and stared at Jackie disdainfully.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2786 - 2790

Chapter 2786

“Brat! You must have had a difficult time being chased after by the Purple Soul beasts. Don’t think I don’t know how pathetic you looked while you were being chased just because you’re acting like you don’t care.”

Jackie looked at Jordan speechlessly after he heard that. After that, he looked at Manfred, who was in front of Jordan. Their expressions were incredibly different at that moment. Manfred’s lips were constantly twitching and looked like he had a lot to say.

Jordan was not in the mood to care about Manfred at all. Instead, Jordan had his eyes on Jackie. He wanted to see how Jackie would be killed by the lightning. He wanted to see if Jackie could still remain calm if that happened. From the moment he saw Jackie, Jackie had a look of incredible confidence from the moment he walked in. Even though Jordan thought it was funny, he still really wanted to see Jackie stumble.

Jackie did not die in the isolated space, which Jordan felt was a huge pity. However, Jordan was incredibly confident at that moment. Even if Jackie did not die in the isolated space, Jackie was about to die right there!

Jackie would die anyway, there was no room for Jackie to struggle.

What shocked him was the fact that Jackie did not show any signs of fear after hearing that. Instead, Jackie looked like he was incredibly amused. Jackie’s lips curled up slightly as Jackie looked at him with a mocking expression.

After a moment, Jackie suddenly said, “Don’t you know your own results? Do you not know how many Purple Soul beasts you killed?”

Jackie’s words caused Jordan to feel incredibly strange.

What did Jackie mean by that? Jackie was acting like He was the victor, while Jordan had lost.

Jordan was incredibly frustrated with Jackie. He turned to look at Manfred, wanting Manfred to start mocking Jackie as well. Yet, Jordan was stunned again when he saw Manfred’s expression. It was because Manfred was looking at him with a look of hopelessness. Anyone could tell that Manfred had a lot he wanted to say, but could not.

Jordan started to get confused. Why was Manfred looking at him like that? Was there something he did not know?

Jordan frowned, unable to stop himself from raising his voice as he said, “Manfred, why are you looking at me like that? Could something have happened? Just tell me! Are you really hiding things from me?”

Manfred's body shook as he turned around to glare at Jackie viciously. In his eyes, Manfred looked like he wanted to tear Jackie apart.

There were some things he definitely should say, but he could not bring himself to. After a few moments, Manfred pointed behind Jordan, "The Purple Soul Plate has your results. You should be the one on the left, while Jackie's the one on the right. Just take a look yourself!"

Jordan was taken aback again by Manfred's words.

What was Manfred saying? Why did he need to look at the results? Were they not obvious? Could Jackie be better than him?

However, Jordan did not say anything else to that. He turned to look at the Purple Soul Plate behind him. At that moment, there were two numbers on the plate. On his side was clearly an eighty, meanwhile, two hundred and forty was on Jackie's side. When he saw that, Jordan felt like he had been struck by lightning, he could not even blink.

Jackie's words flashed in his mind. Did he not know how many beasts he killed?

Of course, he did.

He had killed exactly eighty. It was exactly like the numbers on the Purple Soul Plate. Yet, Jackie's side was clearly two hundred! There was no need for any explanation, and Jordan finally reacted.

No wonder Manfred was reacting like that. Jackie had actually killed two hundred Purple Soul beasts!

Jackie had won!

The truth was right in front of Jordan, and Jordan could not bring himself to accept it.

Chapter 2787
How did Jackie manage to kill two hundred?

In the isolated space, Jordan might have been certain that he would win, but he did not slack off. He still did what he could to kill the Purple Soul beasts.

After a candle's worth of time, his true energy had been completely depleted! Eighty beasts were already his limit, but he never expected Jackie to double his count!

Jordan shook his head crazily, "Impossible! How could you have doubled my number?! You're just an alchemist. I'm a disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion. I'd already reached the middle stage of the spring solidifying realm in Hestia Continent! Among the inner disciples, I'm one of the top! How are you stronger than me? There has to be a problem. The Purple Soul Plate must have a problem!"

He refused to accept the truth and was even sure that the Purple Soul Plate definitely miscounted. Otherwise, their results could not possibly be so different. How was this alchemist stronger than him at all? How did Jackie kill more than twice his number?!"

Even Manfred refused to accept that fact, but Manfred did not know what to say. Manfred had personally witnessed the results growing further and further apart. He had personally seen Jackie leaving Jordan in the dust. At that moment, he wanted to console Jordan, but he did not know what to say.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not caring about how crazily Jordan was acting. He merely looked at the ceiling of the hall. That tournament concerned their life and death. The person who lost would have to pay with their lives.

Did the plate not say that the loser would be struck by the Purple Soul Lightning? Why was nothing happening?

Just as he was thinking about that, a purple cloud suddenly formed in the skies. Everything had happened far too suddenly. Before Jackie could react, a flash of purple lightning shot down from mid-air. It precisely struck at Jordan.

Jordan was still trying to deny Jackie's results and did not notice the changes in the sky. With a crack, Jordan's body turned black immediately. His eyes widened, and his whole body froze in place!

Jackie turned to look over, and found that Jordan's chest was no longer moving. Another string of thunder strikes as countless flashes fell from the skies followed. All of them struck Jordan on his body.

Jackie did not even hear any cries of agony from Jordan.

With a thud, Jordan's body fell right to the floor of the hall. At that moment, Jordan's body was burnt to a crisp by the lightning. There was no way to even tell what he had looked like before. A burnt smell came from the corpse.

Jackie could not help but raise an eyebrow as he took a step back. At that moment, Manfred was already about to go crazy. He had just witnessed the senior he had respected so much get struck to death alive. There was no way to even stop it!

After a few more moments, the lightning stopped, and Jordan was utterly dead. With a thud, Manfred knelt next to Jordan. Tears had started to fall from his eyes.

Jackie turned away, not wanting to bother seeing their emotional state. He lamented in his heart that the laws of the Purple Soul Hall were really tyrannical. The loser had to die!

At that moment, the Purple Soul Plate suddenly released another purplish gold glow. A bundle of light shot out from the Purple Soul Plate. Jackie looked over and saw that the glow was slowly floating towards him. Jackie raised an eyebrow as he reached his hands out, and the light fell into his palm. After the light dispersed, Jackie saw its original look. It was actually ten purplish-gold gems.

The voice was heard again, “To the winner goes Purple Soul Gems. The Purple Soul Gems are valuable gems from first grade worlds. Absorbing them will increase your aura!”

Jackie’s eyes had a look of surprise in them. The moment he heard the words the Purple Soul Gems, Jackie immediately recalled what the benefits of absorbing Purple Soul Gems were.

Even if they were not as amazing as the Shattered Soul Crystals Jackie had absorbed before, they were still incredibly valuable treasures. There were ten Purple Soul Gems, and each one of them was the size of half a palm. Jackie could not even hold on to the ten of them properly!

Chapter 2788
Those Purple Soul Gems would definitely help Jackie complete Destroying the Void after Jackie completely absorbed them. When the time came, he would definitely have a strong foothold in the Whirling World. After all, the Whirling World focused on the skills and techniques of the warriors there. All of their power levels had been restricted to the late stage of the innate realm. They could not use their realms to trample over their opponents and had to use the skills and techniques they knew.

With that in mind, Jackie could not hold back the smile on his face. He had always been an incredibly calm person, but he was beginning to lose his composure as he placed the Purple Soul Gems into Mustard Seed. He was constantly thinking about where he needed to go next and what challenges he would face.

At that moment, a low shout was heard next to him, “You despicable, petty man. You killed Jordan, but you benefitted so much from it. I won’t let you get away with this. I absolutely won’t!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow. Only he was left alive in the Purple Soul Hall along with Manfred. Even if he did not look over, he still knew what kind of expression Manfred had at the moment.

Manfred continued to shout as loud as he could, “Don’t think you’ve gotten what you want after getting the reward. After leaving the Purple Soul Hall, you still need to face my fellow disciples. They definitely won’t let you go. They’ll completely destroy you!”

Jackie turned and saw that Manfred‘s eyes were thoroughly reddened. At that moment, Manfred had his teeth clenched, looking like an angered lion. Manfred looked like he wanted to rush over and rip Jackie apart.

Jackie shook his head speechlessly.

Jackie said with a cold smile, “Even if you’re angry at your lack of ability, can you think about things before you go crazy? Did I cause his downfall? He’s clearly the one who’s skills were lacking. He lost so completely. Who can you blame for that? How dare you call me despicable?”

Ever since he arrived at Hestia Continent, Jackie had gone through many things. He had heard a lot of people shouting at him angrily. He was already used to it, but even after getting used to it, he still hated people blaming him for no reason. Even shouting at people needed some brains. It was the two of them who wanted him to compete against them. Yet, after losing, Manfred was blaming Jackie for being despicable.

Jackie really wondered where Manfred got the courage to shout at Jackie like that.

Manfred’s lips stiffened, not knowing What to say back at Jackie. Yet, he was not willing to admit defeat, so he stood up from the ground and glared at Jackie, not averting his gaze for a single second.

“The Unbreaking Pavilion is one of the top clans of Middle Province. Don’t think that you can be pleased with yourself just because you won the match and you got the rewards! The Unbreaking Pavilion won’t just sit down idly and suffer this. After we leave this place, I’ll definitely make sure you suffer. You’ll know how strong the Unbreaking Pavilion is!”

There were fifteen disciples who went to Black Sun City. Even though their skills were uneven, none of them were runner disciples. They were all outer and inner disciples. Even an outer disciple was more than enough to face a regular person. Even though Jackie was strong enough to get twice the results of Jordan, that did not mean anything!

Numbers were still absolutely. After leaving the Purple Soul Hall, he would definitely gather all his fellow disciples to surround Jackie. No matter how strong Jackie was, there was no way Jackie could escape from so many attackers. Furthermore, Manfred had resolved silently that he would not let Jackie die so easily. He would make sure Jackie’s life was absolute torture to pay his respects to Jordan!

Manfred’s eyes were so venomous that Jackie pursed his lips helplessly. Jackie let out a cold smile as he continued speaking.

Chapter 2789
“Five of those fellow disciples of yours are already dead. Otherwise, how could I have appeared here?”

The moment he said that Manfred felt like a bucket of cold water had been poured over him. Philip’s image suddenly flashed in Manfred’s mind. If the guy really was just an unskilled alchemist like they had thought, then everything would have been fine. Yet, Jackie was so strong, and suddenly appeared in Purple Soul Hall!

Something must have happened outside.

Manfred suddenly looked up, “What did you say? What did you do outside? Did you kill my fellow disciples? Did Philip die by your hands?!”

Manfred seemed to have been immensely shocked. He took a step back as he looked at Jackie with clenched teeth. He was already regarding Jackie as his mortal enemy. He wanted to rip Jackie to shreds.

“Jackie, right?! I won‘t let you off! I absolutely won’t!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, feeling like Manfred was already about to go crazy at that moment. He really did not want to bother dealing with Manfred anymore. At that moment, the sounds of some mechanisms moving around could be heard around the Purple Soul Hall, stunning the two of them.

The two of them looked around excitedly. There were still no changes in their surroundings, but the clicking and clacking never stopped. The sounds were a clear sign that something was about to change.

As the two of them were filled with confusion, the purple mist was suddenly shot out around them. The two of them immediately moved to the center, trying to avoid the purple mist.

No one knew what the purple mist was. At that moment, they put aside their combative hearts as they stared at the surroundings. Manfred might have been full of anger and hatred at that moment, but he still tossed those emotions aside. After all, his own life was more important. He had not even been in time to retrieve Jordan’s corpse or move it away from the purple mist.

When Jackie saw how selfish Manfred was, he suddenly felt incredibly amused.

Manfred looked like he was ready to fight against Jackie to the death earlier. It was as if he had deep ties with Jordan. Yet, all those ties seemed to have been forgotten at a crucial juncture. Jackie was already used to people like that. He merely felt that it was amusing.

In a short time, the purple mist had already surrounded everywhere except for the two of them.

Slowly, Jackie noticed that the purple mist seemed to have a mind of its own. It deliberately avoided their bodies, only covering everywhere else.

Jackie frowned. At that moment, the gray mist had obscured his sight of everything except for himself. Yet, he could still hear his surroundings.

Manfred was noticeably more anxious than Pane was. After Manfred's vision was obscured, Manfred started to gulp audibly…

Chapter 2790
"What the hell is this?! Why is there so much purple mist? What is it trying to do?! Could this mist be poisoned? Will I die of poisoning here?!"

He had already let fear and shock fill up his heart. He did not even care for his own dignity anymore. He was terrified that he would die there. Jackie did not say a single thing as thoughts flashed in his mind. He still remembered what he read on the Purple Soul Plate. After winning, he would get a reward and be sent to the second location.

Whoosh!

Suddenly, a howling wind could be heard next to him. The gust of wind came incredibly suddenly. Both Jackie and Manfred lost their footing in the wind. Thankfully, Jackie was always on alert and was not blown to the ground.

Manfred was not that lucky. After the purple mist had surrounded Manfred, Manfred was only left with fear and shock in his mind. He did not fall on the ivory floor of the Purple Soul Hall, but on mud instead. Looking around, the ceiling of the Purple Soul Hall had turned into a blue sky. They were in a large valley, situated in the middle of it. Around them were large mountains.

Manfred mumbled to himself, "Where is this place? Was I transferred?"

That thought also flashed in Jackie's mind, but he discarded that notion after thinking about it for a moment. Jackie was certain that he had not been transported. The whole time, space did not distort at all. It was his surroundings that changed, and not himself.

Manfred climbed up from the ground as he looked around himself in a panic. Jordan's corpse had already disappeared as if it was never there.

At that moment, Manfred regretted things a little. Earlier, he had been in a panic to protect himself. He had not even retrieved Jordan's body. Jackie frowned as he looked around his surroundings. When he looked right in front of him, his entire body stiffened.

The growls of two wild beasts were suddenly heard. Manfred naturally heard it as well. When they looked towards the source of the sound, they saw two Purple Soul beasts that were taller than humans in front of them.

The Purple Soul beasts had clearly noticed the two of them. Yet, for some reason, they were merely blaring their teeth at Jackie and Manfred in a warning. They did not move at all.

Jackie immediately pulled out his gray sword from Mustard Seed, preparing for battle.

Manfred did not know what the Purple Soul beasts were, but could still feel how strong the beasts were, “They’re actually… At the middle stage of the spring solidifying realm!”

Regular Purple Soul beasts were only about as tall as half a person. The purple on their bodies were not as dense as the two beasts either. Those two Purple Soul beasts had obviously already completely matured and were already at the peak of their skills. Even Jackie had to take a step back facing those two Purple Soul beasts. Being restricted by the laws of the world, Jackie was only at the late stage of the innate realm.

He might not be afraid of early-stage spring solidifying realm Purple Soul beasts, but it did not mean he could face those two middle stage ones calmly. Manfred gulped, his legs already feeling like jelly.

They were two middle stage spring solidifying realm beasts. They were much stronger than he was at that moment. If they faced each other in battle, he might not even be able to run!

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2791 - 2800

Chapter 2791
Manfred thought about it for a moment. He felt like there was a high chance that he would die to those beasts.

At that moment, the cold voice resonated again, “There are two battles in the Purple Soul Hall. Each battle needs two participants. After the victor is determined in the first battle, you will get time to rest. After the time is up, the second stage commences! It‘s already time for the second stage. For this round, you only need to touch the Purple Soul fruit to win.”

After the voice spoke, a purplish-gold glow could be seen behind the two Purple Soul beasts. After the glow dispersed, a tree that was about the size of half a man appeared in front of the two of them.

There was a Purple Soul fruit that was about the size of a fist. Even though the two of them were not close to the fruit yet, they could still feel the energy flowing. Within the fruit even from a distance. The massive fruit would be able to attract attention where it was, considering the massive amount of energy that was inside.

Even the strongest of clans would fight over it. When Manfred looked at the fruit, even his breathing quickened. He curled his fists up as he resolved himself to get the fruit.

If he ate the fruit, he would definitely be able to completely reforge himself and improve. After exiting the Whirling World in two years, he might even be able to become a chosen disciple.

Only a chosen disciple could truly be considered someone who was at the core of the Unbreaking Pavilion. At the worst, they would be an elder in the future. Thinking about his bright future, Manfred could not even hold back the smile on his face. He even forgot how hard it would be to obtain the Purple Soul Pruit. The cold voice continued to speak after the two of them showed their interest.

“The second match will be the final match you will go through in Black Sun City. Whoever touches the Purple Soul fruit will be the victor. The victor will be sent out of the Purple Soul Hall immediately. You‘ll be sent to the plaza that you arrived in, and the Purple Soul fruit will be your reward!”

Manfred got even more excited after hearing that. Jackie raised an eyebrow, feeling like there was something hidden behind that. He sighed before he asked loudly, “What will happen to the person who remains?”

In truth, Jackie was just asking casually. He did not expect the cold voice to respond to him. After all, Black Sun City was a city left behind from ancient times. All of the mechanisms here had gone through tens of thousands of years.

There was no way anything was alive. Yet, he was in disbelief that he got a response. The cold voice calmly said, “The person who remains will stay here forever! If the two of you touch the fruit at the same time, the two of you will be determined to have won together. You will both be sent out to the plaza, and the Purple Soul fruit will be split in two.”

The earlier part was exactly what Jackie had guessed, but the latter part had a lot more. Even though it did not sound like much, Black Sun City was definitely not a paradise.

The one who lost the first match would have his life immediately taken. The rules had been so cruel, so how could the second stage be merciful?

If the two of them touched the fruit at the same time, they would be determined to have won together and be sent out at the same time. That was definitely not something that sounded like what the Purple Soul Hall would do.

Jackie felt that things were more and more strange as he thought about it. After the voice finished saying all that. It completely disappeared. The voice did not say what would happen to the two Purple Soul beasts, but anyone with half a brain knew that the beasts would immediately attack the moment they got close to the Purple Soul fruit.

Just as Jackie was deliberating the problem, Manfred’s voice was suddenly heard.

“Bastard! Even though we have deep grudges, I can temporarily forgive you for the sake of our lives. The two of us have to work together to solve this problem. We’ll only be able to leave this place if we work together! Didn’t that voice say earlier that the two of us would be sent out together if we touched the Purple Soul fruit at the same time? The fruit will be split into two as well. It would be fair for both of us!”

Hearing that, Jackie glanced at Manfred. He saw that Manfred was looking at him quite sincerely, as if he really meant it.

Jackie could not help but snort, not answering Manfred immediately.

Manfriend was infuriated when he saw that Jackie was acting up even just giving a response. Jackie was so disrespectful!

Even though he sounded nice, he had another plan in mind. As long as Jackie agreed to deal with the Purple Soul beasts together, he would definitely do something to Jackie after they successfully injured the Purple Soul beasts and got closer to the Purple Soul fruit.

He had to be the first one to touch the fruit. He would be the only one to escape and take the fruit for himself. Even though the rules had been clear and sounded fair, he did not want Jackie to gain anything from it!

The Purple Soul Fruit could only belong to him. He was also going to be the only person to escape this place!

After making a decision, he said again, “There‘s no other way around it! You’ll only be able to leave this place if you work with me. You can‘t deal with two Purple Soul beasts alone!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he turned to look at Manfred. He suddenly let out a light laugh as he said in a cold tone, “I don’t trust you. Who knows if you’ll do something to me after we work together?”

Manfred froze at those words. He could not believe that Jackie actually saw through his plans. However, Manfred would not admit to it even if Jackie was right.

He patted his chest in guarantee, “Don‘t worry! I never go back on my words!”

The guarantee was worthless to Jackie.

Jackie sighed as he looked at the two Purple Soul beasts. After thinking about it for a moment, he turned to look at Manfred.

“We can attack together. It will be down to your own skill to get the Purple Soul fruit.”

Manfred was unhappy to hear that. Even though he had never seen Jackie‘s true skills before, it was easy to tell that Jackie was stronger than him from the results of the first round.

He was no match for Jackie at all. If the two of them attacked together and ignored one another after that, he would be no match for Jackie.

Manfred rejected it immediately, “No way! You’re stronger than me. If we both attack, but you ignore me, the person who loses out will be me!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he let out a cold sneer. Just as Manfred was about to try convincing him, He suddenly shot forward at Manfred.

Chapter 2793
The laws of space activated. He was already quite close to Manfred to begin with. With Jackie‘s sudden actions, he was in front of Manfred in a second.

Manfred never expected that Jackie would suddenly attack him. Before he could do anything, he felt a sharp pain on his back. A massive force was felt behind him, and he shot forward right at the two Purple Soul beasts like a sack that was being thrown.

Manfred immediately understood what Jackie was doing. He could not help but curse out loudly, “You despicable and shameless person! I won’t let you off lightly. I’ll rip you to shreds!”

Jackie had already heard words like that so many times. He just let the words brush past him, not caring at all. Manfred was still an inner disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion. Even though he could not react to Jackie’s initial attack, he was still able to quickly adjust himself and stop the forward flying momentum. However, everything was already too late.

The moment Manfred shot towards the two Purple Soul beasts, had already judged that Manfred was planning to steal the Purple Soul fruit, and immediately attacked. However, Jackie was disappointed to see that the Purple Beasts were actually attacking too different targets. Jackie frowned helplessly, not expecting his plan to fail like that.

He had thought that he would be able to get the Purple Soul fruit easily with Manfred as a shield. The beast on the left rushed right at Manfred, while the one on the right charged at Jackie incredibly quickly.

It was the first time Jackie was facing a beast that was in the middle stage of the spring solidifying realm. His strength was even being restricted. He did not dare to hold back at all.

Seventy five Soul Swords condensed into one in the air. With a wave of Jackie’s right hand, the giant soul sword completely fused with his gray sword. Destroying the Void was Jackie’s greatest trump card.

The beast opened its mouth as it roared angrily at Jackie. It bared its claws at Jackie, causing his eyebrows to furrow. Jackie clutched his gray sword tightly, slashing right at the beast’s claws. Destroying the Void turned into a slash, clashing with the beast’s claws in the air. With a massive clash, the beast retreated a few steps backwards.

The technique’s shockwaves hit him, causing Jackie to take a step back. His eyes had been on the beast‘s claws the whole time. He wanted to see if he could injure the beast with a full force attack.

The beast’s right claw was trembling slightly. On closer look, there were numerous scars on the right claw. The wound had grayish black remains on it, looking like it was poisoned.

The wound on the white claw was constantly recovering, but it was incredibly slow. The Purple Soul beast let out a cry of agony. Its eyes were full of rage, as if it had been angered by Jackie.

Jackie frowned. The results were a far cry from what he expected. He had thought that the strike would at least be able to stop the beast from being able to use its right claw. Yet, the right claw was just injured. The bones did not break at all.

Jackie sighed as his expression soured. It looked like he needed to change his plans. He had to end things quickly!

The thought had just flashed in his mind when the beast started to attack again. Even though Jackie's strike had injured the beast, it did not affect the strength of the beast's next attack at all.

Chapter 2794
The Purple Soul Beast could think for itself as well. It could tell that Jackie was still not used to his current strength. It wanted to use that change to attack him again. At the very least, it wanted to injure Jackie.

The Purple Soul beast was incredibly quick. It caused Jackie's heart to race as he narrowed his eyes and activated the laws of space immediately. He quickly changed directions in mid-air, and kept a distance from the beast. He could not let the beast get too close. Otherwise, he might lose his life that day!

The beast had incredibly strong defenses, and the beast had yet to use its natural born technique. The beast merely used its claws to slash at Jackie. Clashing against Destroying the Void, it might have been injured, but the results were much worse than what Jackie expected.

It was obvious that Jackie would not be able to kill the Purple Soul beast quickly, so Jackie was forced to get closer to the Purple Soul fruit with all his might!

"Ah..!" A cry of agony was heard behind Jackie.

Even if Jackie did not turn around to look, he knew that Manfred was definitely in a bad state.

Just as Jackie guessed, Manfred was in a horrible state. His arm had five slash wounds from a Purple Soul beast's claw. Fresh blood stained his clothes red as Manfred cursed in pain. However, he was forced to frantically run away as he cursed.

Thankfully, Manfred specialized in speed, or he would not have lasted that long. Manfred clenched his teeth as he retreated, trying to plot in his mind as he ran. If he wanted to live, he had to retrieve the Purple Soul fruit. He hated Jackie immensely at that moment, so he did not forget to try and figure out how he would harm Jackie as he retreated. He wanted to trap Jackie here forever.

If Jackie had not suddenly attacked him earlier, he would not have faced the Purple Soul beast's attacks without any preparation, causing his arm to get injured.

He roared angrily, “Just you wait, Jackie! I won’t let you off easily!”

He was incredibly quick, but the Purple Soul beast was not slow either. The two of them were about twenty feet apart. As Manfred fled, he constantly changed directions, trying to get closer to the Purple Soul Fruit.

The valley was oval shaped. In order to get enough distance between them, Manfred was running around the edges of the valley. The Purple Soul fruit was being guarded towards the eastern side of the center.

Manfred was already trying to get closer to the east side. As long as he could maintain a safe distance from the beast, he would be able to successfully get the Purple Soul fruit.

As long as he could get the Purple Soul fruit, it would not be long until he got out of there successfully!

After making up his mind, he coldly glanced at Jackie. He noticed that Jackie was still fighting against the other beast, and was instantly elated!

So what if Jackie was stronger than him?

He was faster than Jackie! As long as he touched the Purple Soul Fruit, Jackie would remain here forever!

He excitedly changed his directions in an instant. Yet, at that moment, the Purple Soul beast suddenly seemed to speed up!

Thirty feet of distance was suddenly shortened to twenty feet. Manfred was immensely terrified at that. He immediately tried to hide somewhere else, barely avoiding being attacked. Yet, at that moment, he was already further apart from the Purple Soul fruit, and was forced to look for another opportunity.

Something strange happened at that. After Manfred changed his directions, the Purple Soul beast lowered its speed. It was then did Manfred realize that the Purple Soul beast would suddenly attack as long as he got close to the fruit, and he would have to change his directions!

Chapter 2795
That caused Manfred to lose some hope. He could not just keep running like that. His true energy would be exhausted eventually. The Purple Soul beast was stronger than him and definitely had more true energy.

The moment his true energy ran out, he would be faced with death. However, the purple soul beast would definitely suddenly attack him if he wanted to get close. He would have to change directions for the sake of his life. The more he fled, the further he would be. Manfred hopelessly found that it was a vicious cycle.

At that moment, he looked toward Jackie. He noticed that Jackie was constantly adjusting his distance from the beast, and constantly attacking the beast. What shocked Manfred was the fact that the beast attacking Jackie already had two slowly blackening front claws. It was as if some sinister energy had tainted them.

At that moment, Jackie did not even think about anything around him. His full focus was on the beast in front of him. The laws of space constantly activated beneath his feet. He had already used Destroying the Void three times! Each time, a new wound was added to the beast.

Slowly, the beast was getting fatigued. It was not because of the loss of true energy, but because of its injuries slowing it down!

Jackie activated the laws of space, pulling himself a hundred feet apart again to give himself some breathing room. He frowned as he formed seals in his hands again. He was already almost depleted of true energy at that moment. After all, he had to use the laws of space while he constantly attacked. It used up too much true energy!

However, Jackie did not really care about that at that point. He shifted to a very good place this time as he constantly got closer to the Purple Soul fruit.

“Take this!” Jackie roared as he sent another slash at the Purple Soul beast.

The gray slash contained the laws of space as well. It clashed against the Purple Soul beast’s claws in a flash. With more cracks, the Purple Soul beast’s front claws suddenly seemed to weaken. It looked like it was about to shatter.

The black scars littered its two front claws. The beast roared in pain as the pain thoroughly angered it. The beast even started to ignore its injuries as it frantically rushed at Jackie. However, its claws were already heavily injured at that moment. Even if it frantically rushed at him, it was still a lot slower thanks to its injuries.

After realizing that the Purple Soul beast had started to slow down, Jackie suddenly let out a victorious smile.

He had worked so long for that precise moment. With a cold grunt, Jackie turned and charged right at the Purple Soul Fruit. No matter how loud the roars behind him were, Jackie was not affected at all. After all, the Purple Soul beast could not keep up with Jackie at its current speed.

After a short moment, Jackie was finally next to the Purple Soul Fruit.

Everything had been seen by Manfred, causing Manfred to go crazy!

He never expected Jackie to suddenly change directions after fighting the Purple Soul Beast for so long, suddenly getting close to the Purple Soul tree. He just needed to reach out to touch the Purple Soul Fruit!

“No!” Manfred let out a loud shout.

The moment Jackie touched the fruit, Jackie would be determined the winner, and he would forever remain in this space!

If he was alone, he would just be waiting for death. After Jackie left, the two beasts would rip him apart after his true energy was depleted.

Chapter 2796
However, there was nothing he could do no matter how loud he shouted. Jackie had already reached his hand out towards the Purple Soul fruit. As he reached out, Jackie turned to look at Manfred as well.

Manfred could see a deep look of mockery in Jackie’s eyes.

Jackie was looking at Manfred like Manfred was the village idiot. It was then that Manfred realized that Jackie had always regarded him as an idiot.

During the start of the round, Manfred had even tried to bring up an alliance, trying to say that the only way to win was by working together. In truth, he had other plans, and Jackie had already seen through them. In the end, he became a tool to attract attention! Manfred felt like he had been played like a clown!

However, it was already too late to say anything. Jackie‘s hand had already touched the Purple Soul fruit. The moment Jackie touched the fruit, a bundle of purple mist enveloped him, and he disappeared the next second.

Manfred shut his eyes in hopelessness. There was no way Manfred could escape anymore. When space started distorting, Jackie finally breathed a sigh of relief. The last battle had been incredibly difficult. It was far more difficult than the first round. Thankfully, he still won in the end. In truth, the rules of the second match were both testing a person‘s character and a person’s ability.

Even though there was a rule that allowed them to share the Purple Soul fruit, many would choose to take the Purple Soul fruit for their own when faced with its allure.

Jackie never planned on working with Manfred from the start. Manfred already hated Jackie so much that there was no way he could work with Manfred. At a crucial moment, Manfred would definitely have done something to Jackie.

That was something anyone could have figured out. So, after Jackie heard that suggestion from Manfred, he immediately thought of another plan. He would have Manfred draw fire while he tried to get close to the fruit. Yet, he never expected the two Purple Soul beasts to have been explicitly prepared to target both of them. Facing even one Purple Soul beast had not been as easy as he thought it would be.

After the thought flashed in Jackie's mind, the purple mist surrounding Jackie slowly dispersed as he dropped to the ground on his feet

When he could see clearly again, he noticed that he had already arrived at the small plaza from earlier. He was the only person in the plaza at that moment. It was so quiet that he could hear himself breathing.

Around the plaza were still the multicolored lights. Jackie sighed, relaxing. He wondered how many people would escape Black Sun City. Other than the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion, there were a few dozen wandering warriors that entered Black Sun City. In the end, he did not know how many people would make it out.

Warriors of different attributes would end up in different places. He did not know if those places would have different rules from the Purple Soul hall. Various thoughts played in Jackie's head for a long time. He finally shook his head and discarded them.

No matter what, life or death depended on themselves. Jackie reached out his right hand. The Purple Soul fruit that had a faint purple glow to it was in his palm. The dense fragrance of the fruit assaulted his nose, enhancing his appetite.

If Jackie had not been composed enough, he might have eaten it in one gulp. He hurriedly put the fruit into Mustard Seed. The Purple Soul fruit was definitely amazing, but if he swallowed it whole now, he might end up exploding thanks to an overload of energy. He did not want to commit a low-grade mistake like that.

After entering the Purple Soul Hall, he lost track of time. He did not know how much time had passed, nor did he know where Rudy was.

Chapter 2797
Jackie gave the plaza one last glance before he headed to the city gates. He did not just gain a lot from Black Sun City, he had gotten a few pieces of important news as well. He was forced to replan his future moves.

After exiting the city, Jackie immediately used the voice transfer array to contact Rudy. In just a moment, Rudy was seen running towards him.

Rudy widened his eyes as Rudy measured Jackie a few times, "You're actually fine! I've really been letting my thoughts wander these few days. I've been constantly worrying about you!"

Jackie raised an eyebrow, "These few days? How long was I in there for?"

Rudy raised four fingers, “It‘s been four whole days. I‘ve been waiting outside the city the whole time. I was worried that someone would notice me. I even set up a simple obscuring array. I was so scared the past four days! I noticed that no one has come out of Black Sun City at all in those four days. You’re the only one who’s come out!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow as his thoughts wandered. He did not expect four days to have passed. Even though he did not really keep track of time after entering the Purple Soul Hall, he thought it would only be a day at most. Yet, four days had passed in the actual world.

Could time have been distorted in the Purple Soul Hall?

However, there was no point in dwelling on that problem. What Jackie noticed was another one.

He frowned as he asked earnestly, “No one’s exited in the past four days? Other than me, no one has come out, even the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion?”

Rudy nodded seriously, “If I had seen anyone else come out, I wouldn’t be so worried about you. Your skills are plain to see after all. Even the strongest among those disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion is no match for you. Yet, days passed, and no one came out at all. It was only natural that I started to worry. There’ve been quite a few people arriving in Black Sun City the past few days as well. All of them entered so happily, but none of them came out!”

Jackie furrowed his eyebrows, “Didn’t the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion come out initially? They had definitely communicated about the rules before. Otherwise, Philip would never have sent in any replacements based on the rules inside!”

Jackie’s words caused Rudy’s eyes to widen as Rudy anxiously asked what was inside. Jackie sighed, not hiding anything from Rudy as he told Rudy everything that happened.

After Rudy heard that, he gaped as he looked at Black Sun City with an expression full of fear. He never expected the rules in the city to be so tyrannical that the loser would lose their lives. Even though the rules did not say that the loser would die in the second round, the results would still be the same as in the first round. Someone would lose their life, and someone would get a reward and escape!

Rudy shuddered slightly, “No wonder no one’s come out. It seems like most of them are probably already dead. Soul attribute warriors are fewer in number compared to any other attribute. Only three of you were in the Purple Soul Hall.”

Chapter 2798
There are many more warriors for the other attributes. It’s possible that a large portion of them end up dying every round. Those wandering warriors went in so excitedly, but there were actually no true energy fields inside for them to improve themselves with. Instead, they entered a palace that wanted their lives!

Rudy got more and more afraid as he thought about it. He got so apprehensive that he paled.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, patting Rudy on the shoulder, but Rudy did not relax at all…

Rudy turned and pulled at Jackie's arm, "It's thanks to you stopping me earlier. Otherwise, I would definitely have died already!"

At that moment, Rudy's thoughts were all over the place. After saying that, he changed the topic, "There's still something I don't understand. Didn't someone say that there were true energy fields inside Black Sun City? No one said that it would be dangerous. Based on what those people said before, the true energy field seemed like a paradise for increasing one's strength. However, there were no true energy fields after you went in, and just match after match! Were those people lying? Or were you all sent somewhere different because of your different attributes?"

Jackie shook his head, answering sincerely, "After I entered, I haven't heard anything about true energy fields. Where did the news come from? Could the true energy fields have just been a broad term?"

Rudy shook his head, "Do you mean the true energy field is the whole Black Sun City?"

Jackie pursed his lips helplessly, "I actually don't know. After entering the Purple Soul Hall, I didn't really think about that anymore. Who knows what true energy fields mean? Who knows where the rumor came from?"

Rudy frowned, they could not figure out what the true energy fields were in the end. However, they were not really in the mood to figure things out at that point.

Thinking about it, Rudy said helplessly, "It's not like I have to figure out where the true energy fields are exactly. I just feel like there's something off about the whole thing. There are so many secrets in front of us, but we can't figure things out at all."

The moment secrets were brought up, Jackie's expression changed. He raised an eyebrow as he told everything he found out from those two to Rudy.

Rudy was stunned after he heard that. After a moment, he finally said, "So the higher-ups of Phoenix Valley already had a map of the Whirling World, and probably know a lot of the secrets of the world. Why did they not tell us anything at all? We ended up having to struggle in this world like headless flies. Black Sun City's secrets might even already have been known by the higher-ups. We were just kept in the dark."

Jackie nodded, “I agree with what you said. There are some things that were completely hidden from us, but we’re already obvious to all those people. For some reason, they were not willing to tell us anything.”

Rudy was furious when he heard about it, “Aren’t they just despicable? Even if they don’t want to give us the complete map, they should have at least given us some important information. They could have told us where the more dangerous places were or where there were more valuables. We would be able to save some effort. Yet, they did not tell us anything. Could it be because we’re not in the inner valley and not a core member of Phoenix Valley?”

Jackie shook his head, having already thought about the matter many times. There was a lot of speculation each time. He let out a sigh as he frowned.

Chapter 2799
“I think the most basic reason is that we’re not with the larger group. That’s why they kept those secrets from us. Listening to what Jordan and Manfred said, it‘s actually something a lot of people already know. Jordan is an inner disciple, but he knows about it. So it means the secret is not so tightly guarded.”

“The inner disciples of Phoenix Valley probably know about it as well. The alchemists that are with the larger group should already know about most of it.”

Rudy pursed his lips unhappily, “So we were excluded because we decided against following them. Doesn’t Elder Maurice favor you alot? Even if he couldn’t tell you everything, he should have at least told you some of it. Yet, he did not mention anything from the start. It’s as if he doesn’t know much about the Whirling World at all.”

Jackie shook his head, reaching out to pat Rudy on the shoulder, “Don’t let your thoughts wander so much. We’ll find out some things eventually. Honestly, my ties with Phoenix valley are over. Phoenix valley did not really give me any resources, and I’ve already paid back any debts I could have had. Since they don’t trust me so much, I won’t bother with certain things.”

Jackie naturally meant something behind his words, and Rudy realized it as well.

Rudy turned to look at Jackie and whispered, “Are you going to leave Phoenix Valley after the Whirling World just like me?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow and said, “I probably won’t go back… However, I’m not talking about going back to Phoenix Valley or not. I’m talking about what we should do if we meet anyone from Phoenix Valley after this.”

Rudy looked up at that, saying, “Will we still meet people from Phoenix Valley?”

Jackie's lips twitched in exasperation. He kept on feeling like Rudy's head was only half working. Sometimes, Rudy seemed alert, but other times Rudy seemed like a complete idiot.

Jackie helplessly explained, "If we continue going forward, we'll definitely meet Phoenix Valley's people. Phoenix Valley already knew the secrets beforehand, they should know where the key places in the Whirling World are as well. They might already be waiting in all those places. As long as we keep on going forward in the Whirling World, we'll meet them eventually."

Rudy sighed, pursing his lips unwillingly, "I really don't want to interact with them at all. I keep on feeling like they're even more threatening than other clans."

After saying everything he had to say, Jackie did not really have any reason to stay.

He turned to look at Black Sun City again. Black Sun City still looked the same as before. Its grayish black walls covered the whole city. Initially, Black Sun City represented a sliver of hope. Yet, it now seemed like a wild beast waiting for prey to enter its mouth. Four days was not too long, and not that short either. He did not know how many people had entered the city, but only Jackie had exited.

Jackie refused to believe that he would be the only person to make it out of the city.

Chapter 2800
What could not be denied was that many people will definitely die inside. Jackie could not help but shake his head at that thought, discarding those notions.

He raised his head at Rudy, and Rudy nodded. The two of them started walking away from Black Sun City.

Right as they took a few steps away, the rumbling was suddenly heard from Black Sun City. It was as if a mechanism was moving. Jackie immediately grabbed Rudy's arm, preparing for any danger. Yet, the expected danger did not happen. After the rumbling, a faint purple glow was seen from Black Sun City. The light gathered into an orb and formed in mid-air.

The orb was incredibly radiant. Jackie could not even keep his eyes open when he tried to look over. After the light was formed, it suddenly sped at him!

Jackie took a step back, but he remained in place after feeling no trace of an attack from the orb. He frowned in alarm as the orb stopped in front of him. He could hear a splashing sound next to his ears, as if a creek was flowing under his legs. Before he could see what had happened, the purple light dissipated, and a token floated in front of him.

Jackie grabbed that token in his palms. When he touched the token, a surge of the information entered his head.

Rudy anxiously stood behind Jackie, only looking with one eye as he processed everything that had happened in fear. When the token fell in Jackie's palm, Rudy saw the words "Thousand Leaves City".

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he stared at the token curiously. After a while, he sighed with a look of realization on his face.

Rudy hurriedly asked, "What happened? What's this token? Where is Thousand Leaves City? Are we going there next?"

Jackie nodded, placing the token into Mustard Seed before he looked at Rudy excitedly, "I finally know the real rules of the Whirling World!"

Rudy was stunned at that. Rudy widened his eyes as he looked at Jackie curiously. Jackie ignored him as he told Rudy all the information that had just gone into his mind.

There were countless cities in the Whirling World. They were spread out all over the world. There were a total of nine levels to the cities. Black Sun City that they had just left was a level nine city.

The Thousand Leaves City is a level eight-city. People can only enter a level eight-city after passing a level nine city.

Jackie could not suppress his excitement as he said, "With this token, we can enter Thousand Leaves City. Without it, we'd never be able to enter the area Thousand Leaves City is in. Without the tokens, you would only be able to constantly walk around level nine cities, even if you constantly advanced in the Whirling World. There would be no way to reach level eight cities. It also means that those without tokens for level seven cities will never find one!"

Hearing that explanation, Rudy gaped, feeling like the Whirling World was incredibly mysterious.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2801 - 2810

Chapter 2801

He could not help but take a deep breath and said, “That means that we’ll have to constantly go through the tests of the different leveled cities in the Whirling World if we want to get closer to the important areas. Only those who pass the tests can get to the core of the Whirling World!”

Jackie nodded. Based on the information he had gotten, it really seemed to be that way. It appeared that they would constantly be facing challenges after this. Only by passing the challenges would they be able to continue advancing.

Two years was not a short time, but it was not that long either. Jackie could not help but wonder if he could really enter a level one city in the Whirling World within two years. He did not know if there would be other ways to get into the Valley of Enlightenment in a level one city. He did not know what plans the Unbreaking Pavilion and Phoenix Valley had.

Rudy looked up at Jackie, his lips twitching helplessly.

After a long time, Rudy said, “Don‘t just be excited for yourself. I know you ‘re very strong, but I still feel like it’s better if you don’t enter any level one cities. It’s obvious that there will be a lot of amazing treasures inside. You might be able to get treasures left behind from ancient times, but I feel like the Unbreaking Pavilion and Phoenix Valley are definitely plotting something.”

“They definitely won’t leave anything good behind for others. At the end of the day, we are still not alchemists from the inner valley. Phoenix Valley doesn’t really see us as one of their own. We‘d never be able to get our hands on those good things. If we fight against them for it, we might get dragged into trouble. It‘s probably better if we get what we need from level two or level three cities…” Rudy said all of that with a worried expression on his face.

Compared to Jackie’s excitement at the future challenges, Rudy only felt fear. He could not help but turn around and look at the distant Black Sun City. Black Sun City alone was already a place that he could never hope to overcome, let alone the Thousand Leaves City that was a whole level higher.

He did not have the guts nor the skill. His ability to go forward was entirely reliant on Jackie. Without Jackie, he would die a horrible death.

Jackie turned to look at Rudy before he pursed his lips helplessly and said, “I understand your worries. There are still two years anyway. Even though the Whirling World is full of challenges, there should be safe spots. The moment we find somewhere safe, I’ll have you stay there.”

Rudy was not very comforted by those words. After entering the Whirling World, they encountered bandits. Without Jackie, he would have died at the transfer gate.

The moment Rudy realized that fact, he started to regret entering the Whirling World. Even though Jackie's suggestion was very intriguing, all he wanted to do at that moment was to stay safe until he could leave the Whirling World.

He knew very well that the moment he was left behind, Jackie would continue forward alone, facing all future challenges by himself which was not a good thing for Rudy.

Rudy did not answer Jackie and instead changed the topic, "Take out that token of yours. Don't we need to follow the instructions of that token to enter Thousand Leaves City?"

Jackie shook his head and replied while pointing at his own temple, "As long as the token is with me, the path will be shown to me without me needing to look at the token."

Chapter 2802
The journey that followed was comparatively a lot more mundane than before. Along the whole way, they did not encounter a single person even though they did not advance that quickly. After all, even if the Whirling World was devoid of beasts, there were still people with ill intentions around. They needed to be on alert at all times.

Two days passed by in an instant. The two of them had passed an unknown distance. Jackie knew the way, but Rudy did not. It was only when Rudy saw a tall tower in the distance that he knew that they had arrived at their destination. Even though there was still a very long way to go, Rudy still got excited when he saw the tip of the tower. He pulled at Jackie's sleeve and pointed at it.

"That should be Thousand Leaves City!"

Jackie nodded with a sigh as he confirmed the path they would be taking to make sure that it really was Thousand Leaves City.

Rudy sighed as he lamented, "We're finally here. I've been bored to death just walking for the past few days."

Rudy had nothing else to say as he looked at the walls around Thousand Leaves City. Jackie quietly looked at the city, and could not stop himself from wondering what challenges they would face next. At that moment, footsteps could be heard coming from a distance.

The two of them looked over and saw a white-clothed man with a warm smile on his face. The man walking toward them was the first person they had seen in two days. The person did not look like he was planning anything bad, but Jackie could not help but feel like the person had ill intentions.

The man arrived in front of Jackie and Rudy and greeted, “I‘m an inner disciple from the Deer Pavilion. My name is Anthony Brown…”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, trying to remember that name. He had only been in Middle Province for a short time and had yet to memorize all of the clans there. Thankfully, Rudy has heard of the clan before.

Rudy knew that Jackie definitely did not know about the Deer Pavilion after seeing Jackie’s look of confusion. He lowered his voice and explained, “The Deer Pavilion is from the inner region of Middle Province. They’re among the best of the Seventh-grade clans.”

Jackie nodded slightly, understanding what was happening. Probably because he had mostly interacted with eighth-grade clans recently, the moment he heard that the Deer Pavilion was a seventh-grade clan, the only thing that flashed in his mind was ‘weak’.

After Anthony told them where he was from, he earnestly looked at the two alchemists. When he saw that the two of them did not seem surprised at the mention of the Deer Pavilion at all, he started to feel a little frustrated.

Anthony let out a slight cough as he said, “Have the two of you never heard about the Deer Pavilion? Haven’t you heard about a clan that‘s about to be promoted to an eighth-grade clan in the inner region? That’s the Deer Pavilion.”

Jackie and Rudy nodded slightly, not revealing much on their faces. Rudy felt like there was something wrong with the guy.

Does being promoted to an eighth-grade clan soon not mean they were still a seventh-grade clan?

Why was he saying all of that with such an arrogant look on his face?

It was no surprise that Rudy and Jackie did not react to the Deer Pavilion being a seventh-grade clan. After all, so many things had happened recently, and they had been interacting mostly with forces at the peak of Middle Province. Even though a seventh-grade clan was not bad, it was nothing in their eyes.

Anthony had looked so proud when he introduced his clan because the Deer Pavilion was somewhat famous in Middle Province. Even though eighth-grade clans were powerful, they were incredibly rare in the inner region. The inner region was mostly home to seventh and sixth-grade clans.

The Deer Pavilion stood at the peak among the seventh-grade clans, which meant that they were in the upper echelons of Middle Province’s inner region. Normally, revealing that he was from the Deer Pavilion earned him looks of respect. Yet, these two alchemists did not seem to care that he was from the Deer Pavilion at all. He could even see a look of disdain on the shorter alchemist.

Anthony suddenly felt frustrated at that.

Jackie was a little speechless at Anthony. After the guy said where he was from, he suddenly paused. He did not say why he was there, it seemed like that had been all Anthony wanted to say.

Jackie did not waste any time as he coughed out, “Do you have anything you need from us, the disciple of the Deer Pavilion? Do you need directions…”

Chapter 2803
Anthony only reacted after Jackie’s question. He had lost his composure a little earlier. He coughed somewhat awkwardly as he said immediately, “Only one thousand spirit crystals are needed. My senior is almost here. He only needs one thousand!”

Those words stunned Jackie and Rudy.

One thousand spirit crystals? What senior?

Jackie furrowed his eyebrows, “What do you mean?”

Rudy said as well, “That’s right! What do you mean? We never said we were buying anything from you?”

Hearing that, Anthony immediately realized that those two alchemists did not know anything at all. He was even happier at that point. It was better if they did not know the prices. If he had met some sharper alchemists, he might have had to negotiate for a long time.

Anthony hurriedly explained, “The two of you probably want to enter Thousand Leaves City, right?”

Jackie nodded. Anthony’s question was a waste of time.

Why would they even be there if not for Thousand Leaves City?

Anthony had a kind smile on his face as he explained everything. Everyone who entered Thousand Leaves City actually needed to go through a test.

There was a huge rock that was taller than a man in the center of Thousand Leaves City‘s gates. The rock was made of a special meteorite. Even with the token to enter the city, one still needs to go through the rock’s test. On the top of the rock was a colorless crystal. In order to enter the city, one would need to light up the rock before they were allowed to enter Thousand Leaves City!

Jackie nodded and said, “So only the strong can enter the city!”

Anthony nodded seriously, “Yes! You have to hit the rock with all your might and the colorless rock will light up in red if you have the right to enter. Otherwise, you’ll only be able to stay around the level nine cities.”

Rudy’s expression changed at that. He turned around to look at Jackie worriedly. It was probably incredibly easy for Jackie to enter the city, but it was practically impossible for Rudy.

Even if he had not tried it, he already had no hope. Even his strength at the late stage of the innate level was only there because the Whirling World had forcibly raised it. He was a helpless mortal compared to the other warriors in that world.

He had thought that he would be able to follow Jackie till the end, but he did not expect there would be a qualification test to enter a level eight city.

After Jackie heard that introduction, he frowned as well. If that was the case, it really was possible that Rudy would not be able to continue the journey with Jackie. Rudy would need to stay among the level nine cities, and never be able to step into a level eight city.

Just as the two of them were mulling over it, Anthony spoke again, “The two of you don‘t have to worry! Even if you can’t meet the requirements, you can still go in with our help…”

When Jackie heard that, he immediately turned to look at Anthony. At that moment, Anthony still had a warm smile on his face, but Jackie could feel something hidden behind that smile.

Jackie nodded without showing any emotion, “How would we be able to get in? Please teach us.”

When Anthony saw that Jackie was being more polite, the smile on his face deepened. “Helping you two to get in… Is actually not that easy. Normal folks would never be able to help you, but the disciples of the Deer Pavilion are quite special.”

As he said that, there was an arrogant look on Anthony’s face.

Jackie refrained from showing any emotion as he nodded, motioning for Anthony to continue.

The colorless crystal on the rock did not just glow red, but purple as well. Glowing red meant a bare pass while glowing purple meant that someone was exceptionally talented. They would be able to bring another person inside.

Chapter 2804
After explaining for so long, Anthony saw that the two of them finally understood. He immediately gave them an invitation, “Bringing the two of you inside is absolutely possible. Normal wandering warriors wouldn’t be able to do it. Only the disciples of the Deer Pavilion will be able to do so. My senior disciple will be here soon. As long as each of you gives me a thousand spirit crystals and guarantees that you’ll help us refine pills after we get the materials, we’ll bring the two of you with us!”

After saying that, Anthony raised his head slightly, waiting for their answer. He was incredibly confident in himself and his clan. As a clan that stood at the top of seventh-grade clans, they were still at the top of Middle Province, even if they could not compare to eighth-grade clans. Other than the strongest of disciples, no one dared to look down on them.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he looked at Anthony meaningfully and asked, “So you’re so intent on bringing us in because you want us to help you refine pills for free after you get the materials?”

Jackie had been incredibly sharp with his words. If all Anthony wanted was one thousand spirit crystals, then Anthony would not have needed to talk to them in such a friendly way, nor would Anthony explain things to them so patiently.

It was impossible for him to not have any ulterior motives. Just like Jackie had thought, Anthony had demands other than the one thousand spirit crystals.

Alchemists have an incredibly special existence in the Hestia Continent. No matter how many amazing materials warriors obtain, they could not consume them directly. They needed the power of alchemists to refine those materials into pills to increase their strength. They were like doctors of the mortal world. They were even more important than doctors.

There was an age restriction in the Whirling World. Becoming an exceptional alchemist required a lot of time, which conflicted with that. It was very hard to find a good alchemist in the Whirling World.

Jackie let out a light laugh after that before he turned around and whispered to Rudy, “This guy wanted us to work for him from the start. No wonder he’s acting so friendly. Even though we weren‘t being that friendly to him, he still patiently explained everything to us.”

Rudy nodded. Even if he was not the smartest, he understood the key takeaways from that. Ever since he entered the Whirling World, Rudy could understand how normal warriors felt.

If they wanted even better resources from the Whirling World, they needed to be even stronger. They definitely needed stronger and stronger pills. The Whirling World had already been empty for tens of thousands of years, it was not known how rich the resources here were. However, without an alchemist helping them, they would only be able to stare at those materials!

Rudy thought about it and pursed his lips, “He wants us to give him a thousand spirit crystals, and still wants to take advantage of us…”

Rudy got angrier as he thought about it. No matter what pills alchemists refined, they would be able to obtain certain rewards after refining them. One pill was worth at least a few hundred spirit crystals. Anthony was smart. He did not just want them to give him spirit crystals, he even wanted them to work for him. That was only because Anthony could bring them both into Thousand Leaves City! It was as if the two of them would never be able to get into Thousand Leaves City without him.

Anthony merely looked on quietly by the side as the two of them mumbled to each other, not knowing what they were saying. They did not give him an answer which made Anthony a little more nervous.

Chapter 2805
He furrowed his eyebrows as he said anxiously, “The two of you have been talking for quite a while. Shouldn‘t you give us an answer? Even if you’re sixth-grade alchemists, you can’t really do much in the Whirling World. If you don’t work with us, we’ll just work with higher-level alchemists when we meet them!” Anthony said those words with conviction as though it was a warning.

He was trying to make himself look as good as possible. It was as if the chance would be gone if the two of them did not hurry up and agree.

Jackie’s lips twitched helplessly. He was not some inexperienced child.

How could he just believe Anthony’s words so easily?

Anthony had definitely not been lying when he was talking about the rules, but the subsequent part was uncertain.

Jackie nodded at Anthony, “I’ll give you an answer right now. The two of us have already made a decision. We won’t rely on anyone else, and won’t work for anyone either. Thank you for telling us the rules of Thousand Leaves City. If I have the chance, I’ll definitely repay you in the future.”

After saying that, Jackie shot a look at Rudy. The two of them turned and continued walking toward Thousand Leaves City.

Anthony’s eyes widened, not expecting Jackie to reject him so thoroughly. There was not even any room for negotiation. Anthony frowned as his expression darkened immediately. He rushed over and stood in front of Jackie, blocking Jackie's way, "Are you suspecting that what I said earlier was all a lie?"

Jackie shook his head, answering honestly, "I'm not doubting those rules you explained earlier at all."

Anthony got even angrier at Jackie's reply and said, "Since you know it's real, why are you rejecting us? I can guarantee you that the prices I'm giving you are already the cheapest. When you arrive at Thousand Leaves City, you'll meet others. Not a single one of them is reliable! Once they meet an even better Alchemist, they'll toss the two of you aside or even use you as cannon fodder. Don't think about looking for others just because you're not happy with my price!"

Jackie pursed his lips helplessly, not expecting that Anthony would think that way. He looked up and said earnestly, "I'm not planning on getting anyone else to help us get into Thousand Leaves City. Thank you for your concern. I'll remember the favor. As for everything else, there's no need for you to worry."

After Jackie said that, he did not push Anthony aside. Instead, he walked around Anthony and headed toward Thousand Leaves City.

Rudy closely followed behind Jackie. He followed everything Jackie wanted, not voicing any opinions.

Anthony looked at the two of them rejecting him so thoroughly again. Anthony was stunned on the spot as he looked at Jackie, wondering if something was wrong with Jackie's head.

Chapter 2806
He had said things so clearly. He did not even have any intention of negotiating things.

Did he really think he could enter Thousand Leaves City by himself as an alchemist?

He could not be as certain about other things, but there was a piece of common knowledge in the Hestia Continent. No matter how exceptional the alchemist was, they would throw most of their time into alchemy, neglecting their training. It meant that alchemists were all not very strong. Even though Jackie looked like he was at the late stage of the innate level at that moment, Anthony was sure that Jackie's actual skill was not at that level. At most, Jackie would only be at the middle stage of the innate level.

Someone at the middle stage of the innate level was actually talking to him so arrogantly. He did not plan on getting anyone's help to enter Thousand Leaves City!

Anthony wanted to laugh at that thought. The brat was too arrogant. Who did he think he was?

Anthony coldly snorted and said, “Just you wait! You will regret this when you see what’s waiting for you. Once you see how difficult being acknowledged by the rock is, you won’t be able to keep up with your arrogant ways!”

Jackie and Rudy then continued their journey to Thousand Leaves City.

When they were about a thousand feet away from Thousand Leaves City, Jackie could see a large crowd gathered in front of the city. They were all warriors who wanted to enter Thousand Leaves City. Other than endless wastes, they had only seen Anthony for the last two days. Rudy could not help but get excited when he suddenly saw so many people in front of him.

He pointed at the crowd and said, “Initially, I didn’t think that there would be that many people wanting to enter the Whirling World. After all, there are many uncertainties about the world. Now it seems like all the warriors who meet the criteria have entered!”

Rudy got more and more excited as he spoke. He felt like he had participated in the biggest spectacle among younger warriors in the Hestia Continent. It was as if they were all the most talented young people in the Hestia Continent.

Compared to Rudy, who was so excited, Jackie seemed much calmer. He raised an eyebrow and looked over to see a flood of heads in front of the city. He also saw the rock that Anthony had talked about earlier.

The rock to enter the city was at the center of the plaza in front of the city. There were many people queueing up in front of the rock. Everyone was incredibly eager to get the qualification to enter the city.

After Jackie let out a sigh, he pulled at the excited Rudy and headed toward the city gates.

There were two groups of people within the plaza. There was a group of idle people standing at various spots in the plaza, while the other group was queuing up in front of the rock. Those that were in various places were either chatting or resting. They seemed to be waiting for something as they stood at the plaza and looked in the distance.

After Jackie arrived at the plaza, he did not head to the queue immediately. He wanted to observe things first, so he pulled Rudy to a corner and settled down. Even though the rock was no challenge to Jackie, he still wanted to observe the surroundings before entering Thousand Leaves City.

Rudy blinked as he looked at Jackie curiously. He quietly asked Jackie, “Aren‘t we going in immediately? Do you feel like there’ll be danger in Thousand Leaves City?!”

Jackie was a little speechless. His lips twitched as he replied without turning his head around, “Isn’t what you said just stupid? It’s not like I didn’t tell you about what happened in Black Sun City. Black Sun City was just a level nine city while this one in front of you is a level eight city. If there’s no danger inside, I’ll eat a cockroach!”

Chapter 2807
Rudy immediately froze at those words. He frowned as he looked at the city gates in fear.

At the moment, the gates were partially shut, leaving only enough room for one person to pass. Many people were trying to get in, but there were also a lot of them who were looking at the city gates with concern. Ever since he arrived at the plaza in front of the gates, Jackie had only seen people enter. He had not seen a single person coming out.

That basically meant that Thousand Leaves City was several times more dangerous than Black Sun City. With Rudy’s meager skills, he would not be able to do anything.

The more Rudy thought about it, the more worried he got. There were countless treasures in the Whirling World. It was an amazing place for most warriors, but with the resources came unavoidable danger.

For those that were strong, the danger would turn into an opportunity. However, the weak would just be putting their life at risk. It was like a beast with an open mouth that could swallow them whole at any moment.

Rudy frowned and turned to look at Jackie in concern, “Should I not enter this time as well?”

Jackie shook his head and answered, “Since I can bring you in, I’ll definitely bring you inside. If there’s any danger that I can’t deal with inside, I’ll figure out a way to get you out or find somewhere safe to hide you.”

Jackie’s words alleviated a lot of Rudy’s worries. However, he still could not help but feel waves of fear facing Thousand Leaves City.

“Lost again! This guy has tried three times, and he failed to get the crystal to glow red each time. He refuses to leave after he fails, and he’ll just try again. Do you think I should applaud his courage or do you think I should say that he’s an idiot?!”

There were two muscular, shirtless men standing in front of Jackie. The two of them were looking at the Rock and discussing things with great interest.

Jackie could not help but look toward the position of the rock. There was a large-mouthed man at the rock. The man’s face was reddened at that moment, and he looked a little crushed mentally. His whole body was shocking as he let out an angry roar, “Why can’t I do it?! I‘m just a little off. Why won’t it let me enter? I’m clearly not weak!”

There was a trace of arrogance in those words. Others felt incredibly amused watching him. The two men standing in front of Jackie could not stop laughing after hearing that.

One of them shook his head and said, “This guy really is confident in himself. He thinks that he’s just a little off, but he’s actually lacking a great deal. On average, only half can get into the city. The other half would be disqualified. Who does he think he is… It’s as if it’s down to his luck that he can’t get into the city. What a joke!”

The other person nodded and said with a cold smile, “People like him are pretty common. They all think they’re better than others, but so many masters entered the Whirling World this time. Their meager talents might seem incredible when they’re at insignificant places, but they’re just ants among masters. Some of them aren’t even worthy of being called dust!”

Those words were very straightforward, but they were honest words after all. From the numbers gathered at the plaza, a lot of people came to the Whirling World. Furthermore, Jackie had found out how many people Phoenix Valley was sending into the Whirling World before they entered.

Chapter 2808
After he found out about the numbers, Jackie was quite surprised. Phoenix Valley had practically sent two-thirds of their number into the Whirling World. Furthermore, most of them that were being sent in were the ones that were incredibly talented. The ones that remained were those that were not very gifted.

If Phoenix Valley were willing to send in so many of their own as a major force in Middle Province, then the other forces would definitely do everything they could to enter the Whirling World.

Thousand Leaves City was just one among the many level eight cities. There were still over a hundred level eight cities that were just like it. Those cities were all similar to Thousand Leaves City whether it be in terms of size or the various rules. A further thought was the fact that those of them in front of Thousand Leaves City were just a tiny portion of the people who had yet to enter the city. From that, it was obvious how many had entered the Whirling World.

Thinking about that, Jackie sighed as he looked at the discussions in front of him. They were either saddened or excited. Jackie was also one of them at that moment. He started to feel uneasy about his future.

How far could he go in the Whirling World? What sort of difficulties would he face?

“That big mouth is quite pitiful…” Rudy mumbled softly.

He looked at the man with sympathy. At that moment, the man had already been tossed aside by the person behind him. Other than Rudy, there was practically no one who was sympathetic toward that man.

They merely felt that the large-mouthed man's words and actions were funny. It was clearly the man's fault for not having the skills, but he seemed intent on blaming everything else except for himself. He was at the lowest of the low in the Whirling World and would be relegated eventually.

The man stood there with a despondent look on his face after being tossed aside. He looked like he had been given up on by the world.

He trembled as he continued mumbling to himself, "Will I not be able to get in? So many people have clearly gotten the right to enter. I'm not weak within my clan! Why can't I even get through the city gates!"

He felt deeply impacted. He looked like he had aged ten years on the spot. Rudy felt incredible pity for him as he could not resist comparing himself to the man. Rudy felt like he was not much better.

Without Jackie, he might not even have survived Black Sun City. The more Rudy thought about it, the sadder he got. He even started to wonder if he could even survive the next two years. He wondered what he would be like when it was time to leave the Whirling World.

Jackie patted Rudy on the shoulder, stirring Rudy from his thoughts.

Jackie said helplessly, "It's not the time for you to let your thoughts wander. If you have time to feel sorry for others, why don't you think about your next course of action? Since you can't really grow in the path of a warrior, then throw everything you have into alchemy. Remember, you are an alchemist first and foremost."

Jackie's words caused Rudy to have a moment of realization. Rudy had been worried about all the wrong things. Ever since he entered the Whirling World, he had forgotten about his identity as an alchemist. What was abundant around them were warriors who were looking to increase their strength.

Rudy nodded earnestly.

"I am Joe Candor, an inner disciple of the Compass Pavilion. Might I ask the two of you where you're from?" A cool voice suddenly spoke next to Jackie and Rudy.

The two of them looked over at the same time. They saw a handsome black-robed man looking at the two of them with a soft smile.

Chapter 2809
Jackie frowned, not really liking people who start off their introductions with their origins. However, he refrained from being too rude before the person made his intentions clear.

Rudy‘s lips twitched as he whispered to Jackie, “The Compass Pavilion is an eighth-grade Clan. He should be quite strong if he’s an inner disciple there.”

Jackie furrowed his eyebrows, not expecting that the Compass Pavilion would be an eighth-grade clan. He had bumped into the disciples of quite a few high-grade clans recently. He was starting to grow numb to disciples of eighth-grade clans.

Jackie nodded at him and introduced himself. However, he did not reveal where he was from. After all, being an alchemist was already enough of an introduction. He did not want anyone to know that he was from Phoenix Valley.

Phoenix Valley was not in the best of positions at that moment. If he revealed that he was from Phoenix Valley, it was very possible that he would invite unnecessary trouble. Joe did not force Jackie to reveal his background when he saw that Jackie had no intentions of doing so, and merely nodded at Jackie warmly.

His eyes glanced across Jackie and Rudy, seemingly thinking about something.

Jackie frowned, not enjoying being looked at like that. However, he did not want to say anything at that moment. He merely quietly waited for Joe to reveal his intentions.

After a moment, Joe nodded at the two of them, “I saw that the two of you were hiding here after you arrived. Are you hoping that someone will bring the two of you inside? You shouldn’t rely on that riff-raff around here… They don’t have the skills nor the confidence. My junior disciple and I are from the Compass Pavilion, an eighth-grade clan. We definitely have the skills to bring the two of you into Thousand Leaves City.”

After saying that, Joe extended five fingers to Jackie, “Since the two of you are already sixth- grade alchemists at such a young age, you must be very talented in the field.

“I’ll give the two of you a discount. You only have to give me five hundred spirit crystals each, and I’ll bring both of you inside. However, there’s another condition. If I need any pills refined, you will have to help me out.”

Jackie pursed his lips helplessly. It was the same request again.

Rudy furrowed his eyebrows, feeling like these guys were just trying to get free labor from the two of them, no matter how nicely they spoke.

After all, alchemists were incredibly rare in the Whirling World. They would be incredibly useful at the right moments. That was despite the fact that seventh-grade alchemists were what everyone really needed at that moment. However, thanks to the restrictions in place, most seventh- grade alchemists were already over the age limit. There were very few people who were able to become seventh- grade alchemists in sixty years.

The seventh- grade alchemists that entered the Whirling World were all already part of their respective forces. They would only be used at important moments. Even Joe was not able to have easy access to a seventh-grade alchemist despite being from an eighth-grade clan.

Within Hestia Continent, Joe looked down on sixth-grade alchemists. After all, sixth-grade alchemists were not incredibly useful for him. Yet, the whirling World greatly lacked alchemists, so he could not afford to be picky.

The conditions he mentioned were already quite lenient. There were already other alchemists that went into Thousand Leaves City with the warriors. Quite a few of them had to pay two thousand spirit crystals and even needed to refine a lot of pills. It was something that could not be helped. After all, alchemists did not have the skill to get past the city gates.

Joe noticed that Jackie remained quiet. Jackie still felt like the price was too high.

Chapter 2810
He furrowed his eyebrows before he said, “There have been a few alchemists that have been brought in before you guys. All of them had to give at least a thousand spirit crystals. I’m already being very nice by offering you five hundred spirit crystals.”

Jackie and Joe’s conversation attracted a lot of attention from the bystanders. Quite a few of them looked over. Some busybodies even started to surround them. They wanted to see how much two alchemists would have to pay to be brought into Thousand Leaves City.

Jackie’s lips twitched helplessly. He coldly looked at everyone that was gathered around and said, “Refining pills for free for you is already an incredibly big payment. You’re actually still asking for fees. You’re really trying to bully people with your positions.”

Those people were trying to take advantage of the fact that alchemists had no other choice, especially those who were alone and did not have large groups to protect them. They were basically tasty sheep in the eyes of those people. They set a price that the alchemists would be forced to pay. They would even need to commit to long-term labor.

Jackie let out a laugh.

From Anthony earlier to Joe who was in front of him, all of them tried to make it seem like they were doing the alchemists a favor. It really rendered him speechless.

Rudy lightly snorted, feeling the injustice of it all as well. However, Hestia Continent had always been an unreasonable place. The ones who made the rules were the strong. The weak did not even get the chance to talk back.

Joe raised an eyebrow as he studied Jackie. The surrounding crowd could not help but laugh, feeling like Jackie's words made no sense at all!

Did Jackie think that he was the only alchemist in the world?

Jackie was still voicing his opinions despite such a great offer!

Joe had a sneer on his face as he said, "So you're not planning on entering? It's the first time I've seen someone like you, who doesn't even know how to appreciate what's given. Remember! Alchemists are weaklings in the Whirling World! You don't have the ability to enter, so don't try and argue so much!"

Jackie laughed as he turned away from Joe, "I refuse!"

Jackie's words were incredibly firm. After that, he shut his mouth, not saying another word. Everyone was stunned as they looked at Jackie like they were looking at an idiot.

Did this guy know what he was doing?

Joe's earlier terms had actually been incredibly good, but Jackie actually refused to accept it and said such harsh words in response.

Did Jackie think that he could enter Thousand Leaves City with his own skills?

Everyone merely looked at each other, feeling like his actions were even more absurd than the large-mouthed man earlier.

Everyone was gossiping in their hearts, "Hey, brat! Do you think you'll actually be able to enter Thousand Leaves City with your skills?"

Jackie glanced at that person, not even bothering with an explanation. He felt like those people were all just wasting their time.

"Just look at how he's not saying anything. Is that silent acknowledgement?! The world really is full of miracles. I have never seen an alchemist as confident as him," The person emphasized the word alchemist.

After all, everyone knew that there were no alchemists who made it to the late stage of the innate level before they were thirty…

Joe suddenly laughed as he looked at Jackie with an incredibly disdainful look. Jackie really was an idiot. He wanted to see what sort of tricks Jackie could pull.

“You’re actually here!” A familiar voice was heard by Jackie.

Jackie turned around and saw Anthony looking at him with a meaningful expression. Anthony probably has just arrived, but he probably knew what was happening from the discussions around them.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2811 - 2820

Chapter 2811
Anthony's lips twitched helplessly, feeling like Jackie really did do things his own way.

Jackie was incredibly overconfident.

Anthony clearly knew Joe as he walked over and greeted Joe. After the two of them exchanged pleasantries, Anthony said meaningfully, "Joe, don't be angry. This guy has a bit of a temper. Earlier, I met the two of them while I was waiting for my senior. I gave them an incredibly good invitation as well, but they tossed me aside without even looking at him."

After that was said, there was a roar of laughter around them. Jackie really was something else.

Who did he think he was? Did he really think he would be able to enter the city with just his skills as an alchemist? He clearly did not know his place.

Rudy's face was starting to redden at how he was being treated. He was practically shaking in anger. He was about to argue when Jackie pulled him back. There was no need to waste their time with people like that.

There were more and more people gathering at the front of the city, and more and more gazed toward them. Very quickly, the two of them became the focal point of the whole place.

Jackie hated being the center of attention, but trouble always came looking for him. It was something he could not avoid.

His lips twitched helplessly as he turned to look at Rudy and whispered, "I will look for somewhere with fewer people to discuss our plans after entering Thousand Leaves City. That's already been messed up by these people, so… There's no reason to wait anymore."

After he said that, he immediately walked toward the group in front of the rock from before. The queue was already incredibly long at that point. Jackie casually brought Rudy over, causing everyone to widen their eyes.

"He's really queuing up?"

"My gosh, I was just joking. I can't believe he's actually so overconfident that he thinks he can enter the city!"

“He’s clearly gone crazy. Only half the people who tried can enter the city. Who does he think he is? Does he think he’s a disciple of a seventh-grade clan? He actually thinks his skills would be able to let him in!”

Jackie ignored all the mockery thrown at him. He felt like they were just the words of ignorant people. His gaze was fully focused on the rock in front of him.

There were some people who used everything they had and still could not get the rock to glow red. Some others got in with merely a light punch. In the end, there was only one requirement to get into Thousand Leaves City and that was skill.

Absolute skill!

“I refuse to believe it!” A man with a goatee sent out punch after punch.

He seemed incredibly confident but failed to light up the crystal in the end. He looked at the rock hopelessly. The reality was that cruel! He did not have the right to enter Thousand Leaves City! It was just a level eight city, yet he could not even enter. He had thought that he would be able to show off his skills in the Whirling World, but all it did was showcase how useless he was!

The man shouted, “I refuse to believe it! How could I not be able to do it?!”

Yet, he could not do it no matter how much he shouted.

The ones behind him started to get unhappy as he shouted. Someone frowned and said, “Hurry up and leave! This isn‘t a place for you to vent. Don’t you see that there are still so many people behind you?”

The man’s lips stiffened as he composed himself. He sullenly left the place under looks of disdain. No one had much sympathy for the weak After all, it was survival of the fittest.

Rudy took a deep breath as even his muscles stiffened, “How cruel…”

Jackie nodded, not saying anything.

Rudy looked at the people around them and curiously asked, “Why are there more people gathered around than those that are queueing up? Why aren’t they entering? Or were all of them rejected?”

Chapter 2812
Jackie looked around and said after some thought, “They should be waiting for people. It seems like the situation in Thousand Leaves City is probably complicated as well. They wouldn‘t be waiting here otherwise. Some of the people here are the rejects, but most of them should be waiting. Joe hasn't gone in yet as well? He's a disciple of an eighth-grade clan."

Rudy nodded slightly. After a while, he asked curiously, "They're waiting for their fellow disciples to gather before they enter. Could it be that the challenge in the Thousand Leaves City requires more people to gather together to get better rewards?"

Jackie shook his head, "Nothing is certain. Let's not think about it before we enter the city. However, there's something that everyone agrees with. There's strength in numbers. When it comes to fighting over resources, having more fellow disciples will give you more advantage and confidence. They might be gathering because of that."

Rudy sighed with a sullen look on his face. The rejected warriors only made up a part of those gathered there. After all, most of them had probably accepted their fate and left the plaza, returning to level nine cities. However, there were still some warriors who did not accept their fates. They stayed behind and kept on trying. The more Rudy thought about it, the sadder he got. He had already grouped himself with the failures.

He looked at Jackie and could not resist saying again, "The world of a warrior is so cruel. Being an alchemist suits me better."

Jackie could not help but laugh at that thought. Before, he did not feel like Rudy was that naive, but he finally understood Rudy' s attitude after those words.

Rudy might like to put up false pretenses, but there was actually nothing much in his head. If Rudy had not met Jackie, he would have just been cannon fodder no matter where he went.

Jackie did not shoot back at Rudy and merely nodded, not saying anything else. However, that did not stop others from doing so.

Anthony was queueing up behind Jackie, and actually walked right over when he heard Rudy's earlier words.

Anthony smiled coldly, "Being an alchemist is obviously suited to you. Those who can't amount to much in the path of a warrior all end up trying to be an alchemist."

Jackie frowned.

Anthony was not much different from all those people he had met before. They were all flies that Jackie could not get rid of. It was exactly because of that reason that he rejected Anthony's suggestion.

Anthony felt like Jackie had insulted him, and was just trying to cause Jackie trouble. He deliberately raised his voice as he said that, intending for everyone around him to hear it. Mocking laughter immediately followed.

“It’s incredibly laughable for an alchemist to try and get the right to enter the city. Does he think that queuing up proves something? If he can’t do it, then he can’t. So many people have been rejected. How is he so confident?”

“I still don’t know about Jackie, but that one called Rudy is clearly incredibly weak. If Rudy manages to get into the city, I‘ll call him my father!”

“They’re all just incredibly pampered alchemists. They don’t know about the outside world at all. They think that they are better than us warriors just because they‘re a little skilled!”

“That’s right! A disciple of an eighth-grade clan is actually offering such tempting conditions and these two actually ignored it. Who gave them that courage?!”

Chapter 2813
“He gave himself that courage! It’s obvious that he’s just an alchemist from an insignificant place. Otherwise, he wouldn’t be acting so arrogantly, thinking that he’ll be able to enter the city himself!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow at all the discussion, pretending that he did not hear anything. He did not want to bother arguing with those people. But, Rudy’s determination was not as strong. Facing all those words, Rudy’s anger spiked.

“You’re the ones who are ignorant! You don’t know how strong Jackie is. Riff-raffs like you all aren’t even qualified to fight against Jackie!” Rudy was incensed.

He had completely forgotten everything Jackie had told him. He was practically arguing for the sake of arguing at that point. Jackie could not help but frown as he pursed his lips.

Rudy always acted however he wanted without consideration for the time and place. When the people around them heard those words, all of them laughed uproariously as they looked at Jackie and Rudy in disdain.

Practically no one agreed with those words at all. It only attracted more disdain and mockery. Joe walked over and stared at Rudy with narrowed eyes.

Joe had not planned on doing anything initially. Joe had just wanted to quietly wait until the results were out to prove how ignorant those two alchemists were. Yet, no one expected that Rudy would utter something as absurd as that. Rudy was practically framing Jackie as some amazing disciple from a ninth-grade clan.

Joe sneered as he said, “You really are inexperienced. Just listen to what you’re saying. Even a chosen disciple of the Compass Pavilion would not have dared to claim that he was unbeatable, that no one here was capable of facing him. After all, there’s always someone better out there. For an alchemist like you to dare make such wild claims. You really don't know your place!"

Everyone nodded at those words. Those two alchemists really did not know basic common sense. They had probably never even gone through actual battle before. They merely thought that they had a bit of skill that would allow them to do what everyone else could not.

Jackie sighed helplessly, turning around and glaring at Rudy.

He frowned and said, "I tried so hard to stop you, but I still failed to stop your mouth. You insist on saying everything I did not want you to say. What's the point of saying all that? Will everyone else believe you? Is there any point in venting your frustrations? You'll just invite even more negative opinions! From now on, you'd better shut your mouth. Swallow every single word you want to say!"

Rudy pursed his lips with some difficulty. He had to admit that Jackie was right. That group of people looked down on them, to begin with. No matter what he said, everyone would merely treat his words as jokes.

Rudy decided to just shut his mouth, not even raising his head. He looked like a child that had done something wrong.

Jackie turned to look at those people who were still mocking them. He smiled coldly and said, "People often say whatever they want to. Before the results are out, I think it's better if you don't be so obstinate!"

Jackie's words incited even more laughter.

Someone pointed at Jackie and said, "What?"

Chapter 2814
"Whatever, what's the point of arguing with someone so ignorant? We'll know how much of a joke his words were in just a moment. That large-mouthed guy from earlier failed to get in even after three tries. I'm willing to bet that they wouldn't be able to get in even if they stayed here and constantly tried for two years!"

Jackie let out a laugh as he turned to look at Joe. The disciple of the Compass Pavilion had a noble air to him, it was obvious that Joe came from a notable family.

Jackie let out a laugh, "Are you so sure that I'll definitely fail to get in?"

Joe raised an eyebrow, not expecting Jackie's sudden question. Joe nodded without any hesitation. It was something that Joe did not even need to think of.

If two alchemists could get the right to go into the city, then those rejected warriors were far too pathetic.

Jackie laughed, “Why don’t we make a bet? If the both of us manage to enter Thousand Leaves Pavilion together, you’ll give us ten thousand spirit crystals!”

Just thinking about the nine ninth-grade spirit crystals he needed to gather gave Jackie an immense amount of pressure. Jackie was not willing to give up any chance he had to make more spirit crystals. That guy had mocked him quite a bit earlier, and was now right up in his nose, looking at him with a mocking expression. Jackie had to teach him a lesson.

Joe widened his eyes as he laughed uncontrollably. He felt like the alchemist in front of him was such a joke.

Did Jackie not know what he was saying?

Did Jackie know how ridiculous he sounded to everyone there?

Jackie asked again after noticing Joe’s lack of a response, “Are you willing to take the bet?”

Jackie repeating his words caused even more clamor in the crowd. They felt like Jackie as an alchemist was far too amusing. Ignorant was no longer enough to describe him. His self-confidence was through the roof.

Joe laughed for a long time before he nodded, “Sure! Since you insist on this bet, I’ll give you what you want. If you win, the two of you get to enter Thousand Leaves City and I’ll give you ten thousand spirit crystals on the spot, but if you lose…”

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he answered, “If I lose, I’ll give you ten thousand spirit crystals too!”

Those words successfully silenced the crowd. Everyone looked toward Jackie, and quite a few of them had their lips pursed. They felt like Jackie was crossing the line at that point.

Was Jackie really that much of an idiot?

Jackie did not bother with what everyone around him was saying and merely waited for Joe to nod. Joe furrowed his eyebrows, no longer knowing what to say. Ten thousand spirit crystals were no small number to Joe. Since Jackie wanted to offer him that sum for free, he would naturally accept the offer.

Joe smiled and said, “Alright! Let’s make it so! Everyone here can be a witness.”

Jackie raised an eyebrow and replied, “I don’t trust human witnesses who could suddenly defend the person who lost. Why don’t the two of us sign a contract? We should write down everything in the contract. After the results are out, anyone who goes against the contract after it ends will be punished by the heavens!”

Jackie spoke all of those words as if he was dispensing justice. There was once again a lot of clamor within the crowd. They could not stop themselves from starting to curse again.

Chapter 2815
“This guy is just too confident in himself. He even wants to sign a contract because he feels like everyone bearing witness is not reliable enough! If he loses, he needs to pay ten thousand spirit crystals. There’s no chance for him to even get out of it!”

“Before, I thought that the guy might have some other goals for acting that way, but now it seems like he’s just being way too overconfident. He feels like he can actually get into the city. There really are all sorts of people. It’s a miracle someone like him exists!”

“There’s no way around it. People who come from backwater places like him always feel like where they came from can represent the whole Hestia Continent. Even disciples of eighth-grade clans aren’t a match for him!”

Joe looked at Jackie speechlessly, suddenly feeling like everything he had done was incredibly petty. However, since everything had already progressed to this degree, he would not look good if he did not agree.

Joe nodded, taking out a contract from his spatial ring. Since the guy wanted to offer up his spirit crystals on a silver platter, there was no reason for Joe to refuse!

It was not that difficult getting the contract signed. All they needed to do was clearly write down the conditions on the paper before signing with their blood. It did not take that long for their contract to take effect.

With everyone else as witnesses, the two of them completed the contract without any delay. When the blood stained the paper, everyone’s moods were a little complicated. They watched Jackie with conflicted expressions. They felt like Jackie was being too overconfident. However, even if they could make out Jackie’s worth, everyone clearly saw Rudy next to Jackie.

Rudy’s strength back in the outside world was definitely no stronger than being in the early stage of the innate level. In the eyes of everyone there, it was considered trash. Even if Jackie had the ability to enter the city, Rudy definitely did not.

If it was just Jackie, people might have doubts, but the contract clearly states that the two of them will manage to enter the city. The results were clear, there was no other possibility!

“There’s something wrong with this guy’s head, or he wouldn’t do something so crazy. He’s just giving Joe his spirit crystals for free!”

“Who knows where this guy got all his confidence from…”

After signing the contract, Jackie averted his gaze, not wanting to waste any more effort on everyone there. He had wanted to bet twenty thousand spirit crystals, but he was worried that Joe would not be able to pay up such a huge sum. He hated getting tied down by the details, so he decided to just cut it in half. It was possible Joe did not have twenty thousand spirit crystals, but Joe definitely had at least ten thousand.

Probably because Jackie was being too calm, the discussions around them started to quiet down. Everyone quietly waited for Jackie’s turn, eagerly looking forward to Jackie’s results.

Time slowly passed away, and it was finally Jackie’s turn. The rock was more or less the same height as Jackie. The black rock was filled with blood-red patterns. On top of it was a colorless crystal. The person before Jackie had managed to get the crystal to light up red, earning the right to enter the city.

After the rock let out an intense light, a token shot out. On the token was the words ‘Tower Entry Token’. The person excitedly danced on the spot after getting the token.

Chapter 2816
He did not enter Thousand Leaves City immediately with the token like everyone else. Instead, he stood by the side and looked at Jackie with intrigue. It was obvious that he wanted to stay and watch the show. Jackie ignored everyone else, focusing solely on the rock. In truth, he was not entirely sure how much he needed to show for the colorless crystal to light up purple. After all, he did not just want to enter alone, Rudy had to come with him.

Thinking about it, he decided against holding back. His hands started to form seal after seal, and the power of Destroying the Void condensed into his fist.

At that moment, grayish-black energy emerged from Jackie’s right fist. There were no energy fluctuations from this energy, and it did not look to be anything extraordinary about that energy. Everyone peeled their eyes open as they looked at Jackie in anticipation, waiting for him to unleash a full-powered strike, only to find that the crystal did not react at all.

They wanted to see Jackie crying in despair after his failure. They wanted him to regret his ignorance.

Jackie frowned as he slammed his fist on the rock violently.

Everyone heard a boom, and the rock slightly quaked. Everyone's eyes widened as the crystal on the rock suddenly glowed a vibrant purple color so bright that it hurt the eyes of everyone staring at it. All of them either covered their eyes or averted their gazes.

There had been quite a few people who made the rock glow purple before, but the light had never been so intense. It was as if the rock had its fill of power!

"Goodness! Is something wrong with the rock? Why is it glowing so intensely?!"

"Who knows? I can't look anymore; I'm going blind!"

The vibrant light laser for a moment before it dissipated. The moment it vanished, two rays of light shot out and landed on Jackie's hands. He noticed a purple tower entry token, as well as a purple band, had appeared.

When Jackie touched the entry token, a wave of information flowed into his mind. Jackie sighed lightly, lamenting the fact that the Whirling World truly was a mystical place with its complete set of rules.

The information had been incredibly rich, describing Thousand Leaves City's various rules in detail.

If he had only managed to get the rock to glow red, he would only be able to get a tower entry token. If he had made it purple, he would get a band alongside that. There was only one use for that band, which was to choose out a helper. It would allow the person to enter Thousand Leaves City with the owner of the token, even allowing the entrance of this assistant.

Jackie raised an eyebrow before he pushed the band into Rudy's hand, motioning for Rudy to hurry up and put it on. Rudy excitedly slipped the band on his wrist, wiping away his dejected expression. Regardless of what had happened, he managed to gain entry into Thousand Leaves City, which was a better fate than those rejected entirely. He might even get some benefits from it.

The mere thought gladdened Rudy, and he could barely fight off the grin on his face.

Being happy was not enough, however. After reveling in delight for a few seconds, he turned to look at all those who doubted them so vehemently. At that moment, everyone had their mouths shut, and the whole place was silent. Even their breathing had slowed.

Remembering everyone's faces, Rudy slowly turned to look at Joe.

Chapter 2817
The confident look on Joe's face was wiped off at that moment, replaced by a look of utter disbelief as he stared at the crystal.

Though the crystal returned to its original state, no one could forget how intense the purple light was when Jackie activated it. Joe's breaths grew labored at this point.

Rudy sneered, "Now that the victor has been decided, shouldn't you hand over ten thousand spirit crystals?"

Those words were like a hammer on Joe's head that snapped him out of his trance.

What had he done?

Jackie had set a huge trap for him, and he jumped into it so willingly and confidently!

Joe was so angry that his entire body stiffened. Even though 10000 spirit crystals were something Joe could afford, it was no small amount. Even if it was to pay off a bet.

He pointed at Rudy and said, "You 're both in cahoots to trick me. You're scamming me off of my spirit crystals!"

At the moment, Joe only had one thought in mind, both Jackie and Rudy had laid out a trap that he, without knowingly any better, jumped in. He felt humiliated and enraged altogether. He felt worse than being slapped on the face a few times, and he wanted to kill Jackie for it.

Jackie's lips twitched speechlessly. Joe actually said he was scamming Joe, but where did that come from?

Jackie frowned and said coldly, "Just admit that you're a sore loser. Why are you talking about anything else? You said that we're scamming you, but did I force you to take the bet? Didn't you think I was weak and couldn't get to enter the city? You were the shortsighted one here. You said I was ignorant earlier, so why are you calling me a scammer now?"

Joe's face reddened at those words. He was right, but it did not change the fact that Joe felt like he had been lied to.

Joe took a deep breath and spitefully snapped, "You're both scammers. You can't be alchemists! Your clothes are for the sake of lying to people! You wear them to entice people into taking up your bets!"

Rudy got incredibly furious after hearing that.

Why was this man so unreasonable?

"Stop with all your lies!" lambasted Rudy. "We're both alchemists. We even managed to get sixth-grade alchemist badges from the Middle Province Alchemist Alliance! Don't you see the badges on our chest? Jackie's just that strong. He's much better than anyone else both in alchemy and in combat. I've told you so, but you refused to believe me, even saying that I'm crazy!"

Rudy then pointed at everyone around him. "I heard everything earlier. Did you all not say that?!"

Various remarks and comments were thrown around earlier, but the contents were more or less the same. Rudy was right, they had thought that Rudy was crazy earlier. They claimed that there was something wrong with Rudy's head.

They just never expected Jackie to be so skilled!

Everyone felt awkward upon hearing Rudy's words… And to think, they had been so happily discounting Jackie!

Chapter 2818
Rudy smiled in glee, feeling like he had regained his lost honor. He then pointed at a muscular man who had criticized Jackie the most earlier.

This man was the same man who had criticized others in front of Jackie, and Rudy remembered the nasty things the man had said.

Rudy pointed at the guy and said, "You said that something's wrong with Jackie's brain, didn't you? That he's not skilled and that he's ignorant. Well, do you still think that now? Who's the ignorant one now, huh?"

The man's face reddened as his lips twitched. Everything he had said and done came back at him and made him a fool.

Everyone was dead silent at that moment. Those who had so happily criticized Jackie earlier turned mute, not even daring to utter a single word.

Rudy snorted coldly, not bothering with them as he turned to look at Jackie.

Naturally, Jackie did not bother with these people. Jackie looked at Joe and reached out. "The two of us signed a contract. If you want to go against it, you'll get a backlash from the laws of the world. I don't have time to waste on you. Just hurry up and pay me."

Jackie's words deeply humiliated Joe. He was so angry that he was trembling, but there was nothing he could do. He struck a wager with Jackie and lost terribly. He even signed a contract, so it was too late for regrets.

Joe angrily took out 10000 spirit crystals from his storage and handed them to Jackie.

Jackie raised an eyebrow at this and actually started to count the spirit crystals in front of everyone there. Only after he made sure the number was correct did he put the crystals in Mustard Seed.

Joe felt like he had just been slapped a few times. His chest heaved in anger as he glared at Jackie with gritted teeth. It was as if Jackie was his mortal enemy. Nonetheless, he did not say anything even as he quaked in anger. Skill trumped debate, after all, and Jackie had silenced everyone with his results. At that moment, there was no point for Joe to say anything. He would just be laughed at.

Jackie raised an eyebrow before he turned and began to walk toward the city gates.

Anthony hid at the back, not daring to say a single word. He was worried that Jackie would humiliate him by bringing up what he had said earlier.

After all, he had treated Jackie as a pure alchemist back then and felt like Jackie's actions were a complete joke.

Anthony had a bitter feeling in his heart as he watched Jackie walking away. He had thought that there was something wrong with Jackie's head, but Jackie, surprisingly, had the skills.

Compared to Jackie, he was useless. It made sense why Jackie did not even bother with him. With absolute skill, he even brought Rudy with him into the city, and he did not truly need the help, either.

Both Jackie and Rudy were at a massive round plaza. After entering Thousand Leaves City, 99 ivory steps greeted them. The two of them slowly walked up. After they got up to the plaza, they finally saw how large it was. Everywhere they looked, there were people. They could not tell how many people were there.

The plaza was even bigger than the whole of Black Sun City!

Rudy gaped at the sight. "This is the biggest plaza I've seen in my life!"

Chapter 2819
The plaza was crammed with people. A few were resting while others were gathered in groups, chatting away.

"There are so many people here. There are at least ten thousand people!" exclaimed Rudy with widened eyes. "Just Thousand Leaves City alone has so many people. If you add up the people from all the level-eight cities, there would be at least a few hundred thousand!"

Saying that, Rudy started to get excited.

Jackie turned to look at Rudy. “There should be at least twenty thousand people here. After all, these are just the people who remained at the plaza. Don’t forget those who’ve gone inside.”

Jackie looked toward the most important part of the plaza. The round plaza was definitely enormous, but compared to the Thousand Leaves Tower that was in the middle, it paled in comparison. The Thousand Leaves Tower was at the heart of the plaza. The tower was so tall that it touched the clouds, and it was probably able to fit tens of thousands of people!

Compared to those who were resting outside, there were probably even more people in the Thousand Leaves Tower.

With that in mind, Jackie started to get excited as well.

Everyone that was gathered there had gone through selections. No one here was subpar except for those brought in by someone else. They would need to go through even more selections before they could enter a level seven city.

The selection process did not seem that strict to Jackie, but it had reduced quite a few people.

Jackie could not imagine how many would remain when it came to the level two or even level one cities. It did not matter which cities they started from, but anyone who could arrive at a level two or level-one city would be the elite among elites. They would at least be chosen disciples in various big clans. He wondered when he would face challenges like that, but those challenges were all chances in Jackie’s eyes.

Rudy sighed as he straightened his back. “Are we going inside right now? I’m starting to get impatient. I am curious, though; why are these people lounging around? Shouldn’t everyone enter?”

Rudy was riddled with questions.

Rules of Thousand Leaves City had all been transmitted into Jackie’s mind the moment he got the entry token. Thus, he turned and looked around before saying to Rudy, “It’s not that they don’t want to enter, but that they want to make sure they’re at their best before they enter. After all, you can’t leave after entering the tower. There are only three results after you go in.”

Saying that, Jackie paused as his eyes gleamed with intent for battle. Rudy shuddered as he looked at Jackie.

Letting out a slight cough, Rudy carefully asked, “What are the three results?”

Jackie took a deep breath as he said slowly, “Either you die inside, or you reach the third level and leave Thousand Leaves City for the next city. The last possibility is to get to the seventh level and obtain various treasures before leaving for the next city.”

Rudy felt as though a bucket of cold water was poured onto his head. He instantly stiffened at the implication and could not help but shudder. Even though Jackie was relaxed as he spoke, Rudy could tell that the first result was what the majority would go through. Rudy had felt how cruel the Whirling World was in Black Sun City. However, he did not expect that Thousand Leaves City would be much crueler. He believed that each level in Thousand Leaves City would just see more and more people die.

Most of them would probably die here!

Chapter 2820
Rudy grew fearful as he thought about it.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, immediately understanding what Rudy was thinking. He smiled as he patted Rudy on the shoulder. “Even though people will die, it’s not as many as you think.”

After saying that, Jackie did not bother explaining as he pulled Rudy to a more secluded area and rested.

Rudy sat next to Jackie and looked at Jackie in surprise. He did not want to bother Jackie with his question, but in the end, he succumbed to his curiosity. “I thought you’d go in immediately. Aren’t you well-prepared?”

Jackie shook his head. “I’m not in a bad condition at the moment, but I want to find somewhere safe to increase my strength.”

Jackie thus took out the Purple Soul Gem from Mustard Seed and placed it in his palm.

Rudy nodded before asking, “You said that not that many will die, but I feel like a lot of warriors won’t make it to the third floor. Since they can’t get there, they‘ll die…”

Jackie did not go into detail in his response, and Rudy could not figure things out, feeling as though their situation was a strange one.

Jackie looked at Rudy and could immediately tell that he would ask until everything clicked for him.

Jackie was forced to patiently explain everything. The rules of the Thousand Leaves Tower were rather simple, in fact. One just needed a victory to climb up a level, and a person needed to fight on every level. Only after winning would one be able to advance.

Hearing Jackie's explanation, Rudy was even more confused. He widened his eyes as he asked, "Do you mean you won't be kicked out if you lose? You can still wait in the Thousand Leaves tower for the next battle, and you can leave after winning two?"

Jackie nodded. After entering Thousand Leaves Tower, an opponent would be automatically chosen. Win or lose, they would be assigned another opponent after the battle ended. Some people might have lost because they were facing opponents far stronger than they were, so constant battles like that meant they still had a chance to win. That was why Jackie said there would be three results and that not many would perish.

However, Rudy shook his head firmly at that moment. "I still think that many will die. The opponents won't know each other anyway, and they won't bother holding back. Killing your opponent seems to only be a natural outcome."

Young warriors were all bloodthirsty, they could easily kill their opponents if they were not careful. Furthermore, they were all in the Whirling World without the protection of the clans, so they could fight without inhibition.

Jackie smiled and said, "You're right, but the Whirling World won't let people get slaughtered even if the rules here are cruel. As long as you voice out your surrender, the Thousand Leaves Tower will determine that the match has ended. The rules want a result, not corpses."

Hearing that, Rudy breathed a sigh of relief. There would not be a river of blood if that were the case. He sighed and said helplessly, "If you weren't here, I'd never have been able to witness all this!"

Even though many forms of danger were in the Whirling World, Rudy gained a lot of experience. He might have lived in Middle Province before, but thanks to his background, he had not gotten much experience. He never knew there were so many prodigies in the world.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2821 - 2830

Chapter 2821
Rudy straightened himself and said, “Thankfully, I’m here with you. Otherwise, I’d never be able to leave the Thousand Leaves Tower.”

He shook the purple band on his wrist as he looked at Jackie happily. The rules had actually been a huge advantage for Jackie. At that moment, he was just Jackie’s subordinate and could advance without needing to fight. As long as Jackie won, he, too, would move forward.

Jackie laughed before composing himself and focusing on the Purple Soul Gem in his hand. Even though the gem was not comparable to the Shattered Soul Crystals, it was an amazing treasure in its own right. He had nine of them in hand, and if he absorbed all of them, he would surely see improvements.

Time ticked away as Jackie formed seals with his hands, absorbing the pure soul energy from the gems while condensing Soul Swords. Jackie had already condensed 75 before, and he set a goal for himself this time. He had to complete Destroying the Void before he entered Thousand Leaves Tower. He would condense 100 Soul Swords. Even though he did not think the tower would be that difficult, it was better to enter the tower in his most capable and strongest form.

Rudy quietly looked on as Jackie formed seals. Even after knowing him for so long, Rudy did not know what kind of technique Jackie had. He merely assumed that Jackie probably had an upper earth level technique, but a guess was just a guess.

Five days passed by in a flash. Rudy tried to train himself during that time as well, but he was never that gifted in combat. After working for a long time without any results, he decided to focus on his alchemy after the fourth day.

Jackie opened his eyes on the fifth morning.

“You’re finally done training!” chirped Rudy excitedly.

“I thought I would have to wait for another five or six days. I was getting bored.”

Jackie let out a small chuckle before he calmly stood up from the ground. He dusted his clothes before he started to head to the tower gates without any delay.

Rudy followed after Jackie, and he could tell that Jackie was in a good mood. “Did you have any improvements? You broke through?”

Jackie nodded, much to Rudy’s glee. The stronger Jackie was, the safer he would feel and be.

Rudy widened his eyes and giddily asked, “Do you think your true skills are at the middle stage of the spring solidifying realm?”

The middle stage of the spring solidifying realm was an unattainable level for Rudy, but it was just part of the journey for Jackie. Even though the Whirling World restricted their power, it did not mean they could not break through. As long as they had the ability, it was possible. It was just that they would be restricted to the late stage of the innate realm. Their strength would return after they left the Whirling World.

Jackie shook his head. “There‘s been no change, but I’m almost there. My martial technique has improved. I’ve already perfected it.”

Jackie did not hide anything from Rudy when it came to these things. After all, Rudy was on the same boat as him, so there was no reason for him not to.

Rudy gulped at Jackie’s words in shock and hurriedly walked to Jackie’s side. “T-The upper earth level technique you’re practicing is already at the third stage?”

Chapter 2822
Jackie raised an eyebrow before saying, “It’s not an upper earth level technique…”

Those words confused Rudy even more. He wanted to ask more questions, but Jackie stopped him. “You just need to know that I’ll be able to bring you to a level-seven city. There’s no need to ask anything else.”

After saying that, Jackie entered the tower.

Rudy followed closely behind, still stupefied. He might be an alchemist without any martial talent, but he had basic knowledge. The skills that Jackie had shown before meant that Jackie did not have an ordinary technique. To him, a middle stage earth level technique was rather ordinary.

Inner disciples of eighth-grade clans all mostly practiced those techniques, but they were still no match for Jackie. This meant that Jackie’s technique was stronger than theirs, or he would not have won in such an overwhelming manner.

Since Jackie had denied that it was an upper earth level technique, there was only one explanation for it, it was a lower ultimate god level technique!

Every warrior in the Hestia Continent knew what an ultimate god level technique meant. Rudy widened his eyes and gaped, not daring to believe what he was thinking.

High level techniques were not something easily learned. So many prodigies have tried to learn high level techniques, only to be met with failure. It was far too difficult. Without being at a certain level of strength, it was impossible to grasp the intricacies of the techniques. Only those who could get to certain levels were able to try higher level techniques.

Rudy had seen many masters in this period. Whether it be inner disciples of seventh-grade clans or eighth-grade clans, not a single one of them would dare to try a lower ultimate god level technique. It was not due to the lack of resources, but due to a lack of courage.

Practicing a technique that was too powerful for them would only invite all sorts of trouble, and they would end up wasting a lot of time. Compared to wasting their time that way, it was better to master a technique they could grasp to strengthen themselves.

To Rudy, only those who were already at the divine solidifying realm or the late stage of the spring solidifying realm would attempt ultimate god level techniques, and success would not even be guaranteed by then.

How could a warrior at the initial stage of the spring solidifying realm successfully learn one?

Jackie never lost his calm when he used the technique. It was obvious that Jackie had reached at least the second or third stage of the technique.

Rudy did not want to think about it anymore; it would only baffle him even more. He began to admire Jackie even more at this point. To him, there were no limits to Jackie's talent.

After the two of them entered the tower, they heard a clamor in front of them. Looking forward was an uncountable mass of people. Jackie had been right, there were more people within the tower than at the plaza. They were all in high spirits, filled with battle intent.

Rudy could not help but take a deep breath as he went on full alert. He might not need to fight, but the atmosphere still affected him. He even began to feel fear too. Jackie, on the other hand, was not affected at all. Instead, he seemed even more spirited as he walked over to the inside of the tower.

Rudy frowned, hurrying behind Jackie. The tower had seven levels, and they were currently at the first.

Chapter 2823
The moment he got the token, all the rules of the tower were transmitted into his mind. It might be Jackie's first time in the tower, but it already felt like a familiar place. He was not anxious at all. He wanted to walk around for a bit before doing anything else.

Rudy, on the other hand, merely followed after him. Several times did he think of stopping Jackie, wanting to ask a question or two, but Jackie never looked his way. He felt like he would just annoy Jackie if he interrupted what he was doing.

After a long time, they were finally back at where they entered the tower. Rudy could not hold on anymore as he hurried to Jackie's side. "Where are we going next? Didn't you say the battles will start after we enter? Why do you seem so idle?"

Jackie smiled and said, "There's no need to panic. I just wanted to look around before I queue up."

Rudy did not know about the rules of the tower and thus blurted, "Queue? What queue? Do you need to register for the battles?"

Jackie laughed as he patiently explained after patting Rudy on the shoulder, "There are seven arenas on the first level of the Thousand Leaves Tower. You saw it just now. Intense battles are going on in each arena."

Rudy nodded. They had walked a full circle around the tower just now and had seen everything. He did count seven arenas earlier, and each arena was surrounded by uncountable numbers of people.

The design of the arena was incredibly unique as well. It looked like a coliseum. There were spectator stands around the arenas filled with people cheering excitedly. Each battle was incredibly exciting, whether it be for the participants or the spectators. Everyone was filled with excitement, and the thirst for battle was thick among them. It was, simply put, a huge coliseum, but instead of battling beasts, extraordinary warriors duke it out in the arena.

Jackie continued to say, "If you want to take part in a battle, you just need to use the entry token to queue up. I've just entered, so I'm not in such a hurry. I just want to have a look around."

Rudy nodded before turning around to look at the arena closest to them. It was the largest arena he had ever seen and the largest audience as well. He estimated the number of people. He felt like each arena could easily house tens of thousands of people, and all of the arenas looked full.

The booming cheers and shouts of people huddled at the same spot made Rudy's head buzz. The total number of people added up in all the arenas would already have exceeded a hundred thousand.

Rudy pursed his lips in surprise at that.

For many years, he had put all his focus on alchemy. Even if he took part in a tournament or went somewhere else, he had never seen so many people in one place before. Even since he entered the Whirling World, However he felt like he had been buried in a mass of people. He had never truly felt for himself how many people were in the Hestia Continent before.

He sighed at those thoughts.

Chapter 2824
“Before, those people called the two of us ignorant, and I didn‘t want to admit it. I feel like I have to admit it now, but it’s only applicable to me. I know that there are countless warriors in the Hestia Continent, but I’ve never really felt it before. I even thought that there won’t be that many people entering the Whirling World thanks to its restrictions. I know now how narrow-minded I was. The Hestia Continent is massive, home to countless warriors. Just the Middle Province alone has at least a hundred million people…”

“Even with the age restrictions, there are still countless warriors who can enter! Even after being filtered out, there are still so many who can enter the Thousand Leaves Pavilion. It’s possible that we’ll encounter countless people in the end. I understand now what it means when they say that there’s always a mountain higher!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, feeling like Rudy’s moment of realization came genuinely from the heart. He had to agree that Rudy was ignorant. Even Jackie had never seen so many people in one place before.

Jackie smiled, about to say something when they were interrupted by sounds of excitement.

There were two people who were similarly dressed, evidently from the same clan. However, Jackie was not familiar enough with Middle Province and could not tell where they were from.

The shorter man frowned and said, “Have you gotten your number called? Why don’t you wait for the time being? Why are you so anxious? A level-eight city is not easy, let alone a level-seven one. It‘s not good for you to do everything alone. Why don’t we wait for the rest of the team and our fellow disciples to gather before we move to the next city?”

The taller man shook his head. “There is strength in numbers, but there won‘t be enough resources to go around. Do you think I’ll be able to get any of the good stuff? I‘m used to moving alone. I’ll just feel restricted if I go with them. My number is already up. Once I win, I’ll go to the second floor.”

The shorter man frowned unhappily, obviously not agreeing with his fellow disciple’s opinion. Nonetheless, he did not dwell on it. “What number did you get? Who are you up against?”

The taller man sighed as he shook the token in his hand. “The fourth arena. I’m the seventy-eighth battle.”

After the shorter man heard that, he frowned anxiously. “The fourth arena is already at the seventy-third round. It won’t take that long for it to get to your turn. You still haven’t told me who you’re facing.”

The tall man pursed his lips helplessly. “Paul Mason from the Deer Pavilion.”

The mention of the Deer Pavilion caused the shorter man to pause. Rudy and Jackie exchanged glances at that, too.

It was the Deer Pavilion, Anthony was from the Deer Pavilion, too. The first time they met Anthony, he had very arrogantly told them that he was from the Deer Pavilion. They stood at the top of seventh-grade clans.

The shorter one sighed and pursed his lips. “I can’t believe you‘re meeting an inner disciple from the Deer Pavilion right away. I’ve heard of Paul before. Among the inner disciples, he’s not that amazing, but he‘s still in the middle. You have to be careful. I heard that this guy doesn’t have a good temper. He kills without a second thought.”

The taller man nodded, he frowned as he said seriously, “I’ve met all sorts of people before. Even though we’re not that strong among seventh-grade clans, we’re still quite a bit stronger than sixth-grade clans.”

Chapter 2825
“We have some amazingly talented disciples with us as well. Even though disciples of the Deer Pavilion have always been strong, I’m not worried at all. If he tries to kill me, I won’t let him off easily. I’ll make sure he pays the price, even if I have to die!”

The shorter man immediately got nervous at that. He reached out and pulled at the taller man’s arm. “Don’t be so hasty. No matter what, your life is the most important. As long as you’re alive, you’ll have the chance to reclaim what you’ve lost!”

The taller man nodded slightly, but Jackie could tell that he probably did not pay the shorter man’s advice any mind.

The moment they were in the arena, the taller man would not hold back if Paul tried to kill him. It might even turn into a battle to the death.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not saying anything, but Rudy started to get anxious.

Rudy whispered to Jackie, “Don’t be reckless if your opponent turns out to be strong, your life is what matters most. We can take revenge later, so don’t be reckless!”

Jackie knew what Rudy was worried about, and turned to look at Rudy, “Don’t you know my personality? If the opponent insists on troubling me, I won’t hold back. However, I’m not a reckless person. You don’t have to tell me any of that. I know it all for myself.”

Rudy helplessly pursed his lips.

With Jackie’s personality, Rudy really had been wasting his time. Jackie had never been someone who looked for trouble. Every time Jackie took action or was angered, it was because the other party had been trying to cause him trouble.

Rudy sighed helplessly at that, not able to say anything. At that moment, he suddenly heard shocked cries as discussions started to be heard.

“Another one died! They just went ham in the area the moment they started fighting. They did not know how to surrender, either. It was a battle to the death!”

“Just look at all the blood on the floor, it stained the arena completely. Fights have always been bloody, and someone dying is normal!”

“I wonder what kind of opponent I’ll face. Whoever it is, I hope they’ll remember to be considerably patient and not take my head!”

As everyone discussed the matter, someone grabbed the corpse and tossed it aside. The person should have been a wandering warrior without any fellow disciples. There was naturally no one who wanted to deal with his corpse. The corpse was tossed out of the arena like it was trash.

Rudy frowned as he looked at the corpse, mumbling to himself, “How cruel!”

At that moment, the corpse’s ribs were exposed, and it looked like a balloon had exploded inside the ribcage. The victor laughed as he walked out, not even giving the corpse another look.

It was a world Where the strong ate the weak, the survival of the fittest. That was the most basic rule of the Hestia Continent. No one cried out for the corpse at all. Most of them were instead encouraging the victor, making a chilling sight.

Chapter 2826
Rudy was a complete weakling when it came to combat. Looking at this scene, Rudy could only feel goosebumps on his skin.

Jackie turned and shot a look at Rudy. The two of them headed toward the spectator stands of the third arena, where cheers and shouts for the battle still echoed. Some of them were so excited that their eyes reddened, but overall, everyone was thrilled.

Jackie brought Rudy to a secluded corner without a good view over the arena, seeing as the good spots were taken up already. He could not be bothered fighting over them with the crowd. After all, he was not as passionate about watching the battles as the others were. He merely wanted to watch a match before he queued up for his battle.

Since there were so many of them and only seven arenas, the turnover speed of the matches were swift. The moment Jackie and Rudy sat down, a new match was about to start.

“Good man! We’ve got a good show to watch this time. The one in black clothes is Cody Stone from the Unbreaking Pavilion, while the one in white is Vale Monet from the Compass Pavilion. Both of them rank around the same in their respective clans and are both among the top inner disciples.”

“It’ll be an intense fight for sure. We were just looking at wandering warriors before. Even though it was entertaining, it was starting to get bland. A battle between two juggernauts will spice things up!”

Cody and Vale both stood at opposite ends.

Everyone quieted down as they whispered their thoughts to each other, and this was how Jackie got around to learn who the two competitors were.

Rudy whispered, “So the Unbreaking Pavilion is against the Compass Pavilion. Both of them are eighth-grade clans, but to be frank, the Unbreaking Pavilion is much stronger than the Compass Pavilion. It’s just that we don’t know who’s stronger between their disciples.”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, looking closely at Cody and Vale. The two of them did not like each other, evident just by analyzing their demeanor.

Normally, both sides would immediately attack after getting to the arena to save time, but for some reason, Cody and Vale merely looked at each other when they got on, not attacking.

The spectators did not urge them to start either. Everyone seemed to be waiting for them to roast one another. To the spectators, as long as the two of them were talented enough, they could give the competitors some time.

They wanted the atmosphere to be even more tense. Only an intense battle would excite them enough; fights that were not borderline fatal were boring.

Jackie could understand the mentality, but he did not like it.

Rudy obviously did not understand why the two of them were not fighting immediately. After all, many awaited their turn, and only once these two were done would they have their turn. He was baffled as he watched Cody and Vale merely staring at one another.

Rudy frowned before he whispered to Jackie, “Why aren’t they fighting yet? What are they just looking at each other for?”

Jackie laughed. “They want to waste their time on words, and they want the battle to be even more intense.”

The moment Jackie said that, Vale from the Compass Pavilion finally spoke.

“Other than within my clan, I’ve never shown any mercy when I’m fighting anyone else. You have to remember to surrender when we fight, or your life may very well be done for!”

Those words excited the crowd even more. The challenge within the words was plain for all to hear. He was clearly telling Cody that he would lose.

Chapter 2827
Cody lightly snorted as he sneered, disagreeing with what was said.

“You should be telling yourself that. The Compass Pavilion might be an eighth-grade clan like the Unbreaking Pavilion, but everyone here knows that the Compass Pavilion’s title is a hollow one. They’re a level below our clan. Don’t think that you can challenge me so carefreely just because our clans sound like they’re equals!” snapped Cody.

He was not just targeting Vale but was also insulting the whole Compass Pavilion.

Vale was so furious that his face reddened and his lips twitched. There were a lot of people in attendance, including the disciples of the Compass Pavilion. When they heard Cody saying such foul words about them, they started to shout indignantly.

Vale pointed right at Cody. “You’re full of crap! The Unbreaking Pavilion is just slightly stronger than the Compass Pavilion. Just give us a bit of time, and we’ll make up for the difference!”

Exasperated, Jackie’s lips twitched. He never expected that these two would start arguing. He hated those who go on ranting without any reason, there was no point at all. It was better to let their fists talk.

Both Vale and Cody eventually stopped, probably because both sides had been critical of each other. It was not out of peace, however, as they sprang into action and attacked one another.

Vale let out a furious roar as he pulled out a golden sword from his spatial ring. A ball of fire shot out from his body which enveloped him.

Everyone heard the cry of a bird after that as a three-legged golden bird appeared behind Vale. The bird opened up its wings, its flames burning brightly.

“My golden bird will take out the sun!” Vale let out a roar as the bird flapped its flaming wings, merging with Vale’s blade in a sea of fire.

Vale was furious as he swung down toward Cody.

Cody pulled out his weapon as well; it was an incredibly long spear. His hands shook as the spear quickly shrank to normal size, buzzing as Cody met Vale’s attack with it.

The next moment, the crowd burst into a flurry of noise once more. Some of them recognized the level of the skills Cody and Vale used and started to discuss things excitedly.

“The golden bird is a middle earth level technique. I heard that Vale has already mastered it to the second stage! I wonder what level Cody’s skill is. Does anyone know Cody? Do you know what kind of technique he uses?”

A few shook their heads at the question. Even if they knew Cody, no one knew what kind of technique he used, knowing only the fact that he would typically use a spear.

Right at that moment, a loud explosion was heard on the stage. The spear clashed against the sword, and both of them retreated a step, neither gaining an advantage. From that alone, it was clear that the two of them were somewhat equal skill-wise, with none triumphing over the other. The audience was much more excited then. There were even some who wanted to set up bets to let everyone bet on the winner.

Vale frowned. Even though the two of them had both retreated, he was far from happy.

Chapter 2828
Cody’s words were downright provocative toward the Compass Pavilion. He had wanted to quickly end the fight for the Compass Pavilion’s reputation, but he never expected the attack to end up with a draw, even when he did not hold back.

This, in turn, made Cody worry. However, he did not care about anything else at that moment as a thought flashed across his mind. No matter what price he had to pay, he had to win this battle. It was not just a personal victory but also for the sake of his clan’s reputation!

Rudy, meanwhile, was entirely focused on alchemy, and the battle between Cody and Vale was merely something for him to watch. He could only see that the two of them seemed evenly matched, and a true victor could not be determined at this point.

He listened as the crowd continued to talk. Some of them said that Vale was stronger, while others said that Cody was no weakling and that he would come out as the winner. Various judgments were cast at that moment, which caused Rudy's ears to buzz listening to all of it.

He could not help but turn to glance at Jackie. All he saw was Jackie looking at the arena calmly, his expression undisturbed. It was as if he would not even bat an eye if someone died in the arena.

Rudy did not truly trust everyone else's judgment, but he would with Jackie's.

He whispered and asked, "Jackie, who do you think will win?"

Jackie pointed at Cody and replied, sounding rather sure of himself, "Cody seems to have the advantage."

This stunned Rudy. After all, both of them had taken a step back after the clash. It did not seem like Cody had gained much of an advantage, so why did Jackie say that Cody had the upper hand?

Jackie did not want to explain himself, but Rudy looked at Jackie with wide eyes. He even looked like he would ask more if he did not get an answer, and this made Jackie frown helplessly.

"Cody obviously seemed much more relaxed after the two of them clashed. It doesn't seem like he used his full power," Jackie explained calmly.

Rudy, not agreeing with Jackie's opinion, asked with furrowed eyebrows, "Are you looking at their expressions? How could you determine who's stronger between them like that? After all, everyone's different, so even their expressions…"

"Just shut up for now," interrupted Jackie curtly. "There's no way to prove anything even if we talk about it more. Just wait and look at the results."

Rudy's mouth stiffened as he reluctantly closed his lips.

The battle stopped for a moment as Cody and Vale stood at their respective sides, staring at each other. They were only pausing for a moment to look for weak points, but Jackie felt like Vale seemed to be in a panic at that moment.

Vale inhaled deeply, hiding his feelings as he raised his head. His anger at that moment was evident in his reddened eyes.

Cody snorted as he raised his eyebrow. "Aren't you going to attack again? Are you scared now?"

Vale's hands trembled as he nearly exploded with curses. Cody was downright infuriating! Everything he said made his temper soar.

Vale snorted loudly and said, "You're talking about me? Do you think I'm the only one in the arena? You haven't attacked me at all, so what right do you have to criticize me?"

Cody laughed, not taking it to heart. "I'm giving you a head-start. After all, you're nothing to me. If you still refuse to attack, the spectators might call you out for wasting time!"

Vale had still been able to compose himself and not let Cody's words get to him earlier, but upon hearing those words, Vale almost lost his sanity.

Vale let out an angered roar and rushed forward again!

Chapter 2829
Vale wanted to go all-out. He would make his opponent eat his words, and then some!

The crowd was abuzz again, but the difference was that the disciples of the Compass Pavilion, who had been enraged initially, slowly fretted at the situation. It was plain from an outside view that Cody had said all that earlier with the sole intention of angering Vale and making him lunge.

It was obvious that Cody had planned something else, but it was too late to do anything. Vale had already made his move, and no amount of warnings or yells could reach him at this moment.

Rudy, too, felt like something was wrong as he mumbled, "Cody is a little too good at getting under people's skin…"

Vale shouted angrily as he formed seals with his hands. Red runes constantly flowed between his fingers as a vibrant golden bird formed again. The bird cried out as its wings flapped. Heat waves were sent out of his body as even the surrounding air started to distort from the heat.

The spectators closer to the stage retreated as sweat dripped down from their heads.

To deal his strongest blow, Vale used up all the true energy in his body. In turn, the golden bird behind him was almost twice the size of the one before!

Compared to how frantically Vale was acting, Cody was noticeably much calmer. He merely grabbed the spear tightly with both his hands with a resolved look on his face.

"Die!" screamed Vale as he shot right at his opponent as fast as a cannonball.

Cody snorted as he lunged forward, rushing right at the three-legged bird. This time, he had a change of plan. He did not face Cody directly and instead rushed upward toward the bird!

Everyone's eyes widened as he struck with his spear repeatedly at the neck, abdomen, and left claw of the bird. His speed was so terrifyingly quick that only afterimages could be seen. Even Vale had failed to react!

An explosion was heard mere moments later.

Vale had only managed to react when his true energy was already too unstable for him to control, and Cody obliterated his golden bird with a strike at its vital point.

Under normal circumstances, Vale would never have given his opponent the chance to strike at his technique's weakest points even if his opponent saw through it. However, Cody had been far too quick.

Cody had been so swift that no one could react before the attack was done. The golden bird had been destroyed in three strikes, dispersing into energy.

Vale's eyes widened as he looked over in disbelief.

Cody merely sneered, believing that showing mercy was just opening himself up to be backstabbed. With that, he struck with his spear again, spearing Vale's stomach.

Everyone heard a crack as Vale's whole body was sent flying in one strike toward the pillar at the stage quickly. With a loud impact, Vale crashed right into the pillar and slowly slid toward the ground as blood seeped from the corner of his lips. His bones were completely snapped as he suffered numerous internal injuries. This was only with Cody holding back.

With Cody's temper, he could have killed Vale off with one blow. After all, Vale had been too prideful before with his arrogant words.

Chapter 2830
Nonetheless, many eyes were on Cody, and he could not afford to worsen the relationship between their two clans. He could not cause a rift between the clans just for a moment of excitement. Of course, he did not let Vale get away unscathed. Vale would be rendered useless for a good few months after that strike.

Cody's speed had stunned everyone, especially the last three strikes that no one had been able to react to. They felt chills down their spines, and some of them were even rendered speechless by the shock. Prodigies looked amazing, wherever they were.

The crowd was mixed, with about half of them being wandering warriors and half of them being disciples of clans. Regardless of who they were, however, most of them were average in skill. They started to get excited after seeing such shocking attacks.

“My god! Cody is so strong! He managed to undo Vale’s strongest attack in three strikes, all while looking composed from the start. It’s just like he said, Vale was nothing to him.”

“That’s right! I underestimated him big-time. I thought that he was at the same level as Vale and that it‘d be an intense battle. I never expected Cody to be so strong. He seemed to know the bird’s weak point incredibly quickly. He attacked so swiftly before Vale could even react, destroying the bird immediately!”

“It’s so frustrating comparing myself to him. Even though Cody’s incredibly strong, Vale was no slouch either. I was up there, I’d be done before I could even launch a second attack!”

Their discussions filled the air, but Jackie remained as calm as usual.

Rudy widened his eyes as he gaped slightly, not knowing what to say. He turned to look at Jackie somewhat reluctantly.

“How are you always able to get it right?”

Jackie let out a light laugh as he calmly answered, “You’ll understand in time. The results of this battle weren’t that hard to guess, though. Calm yourself and observe their slightest reactions. You’ll be able to see who’s more confident then.”

Rudy nodded earnestly, feeling like Jackie was right, but he asked again, “But the warriors gathered around us have all probably been through many battles as well. Why couldn’t they see it? All of them seemed rather confident in their guesses, yet most of them turned out wrong. Even those who were right merely guessed without assurance.”

Jackie calmly answered, “Didn’t I already say it? You need to have a calm mind. Just look around you. Other than a few exceptions, most of them are all riled up from the atmosphere of battle. How could they calm down to see who’s stronger?”

Rudy slapped his thigh. “You got a point. Everyone was too emotional at the moment!”

Rudy then looked around him. Even though the battle had ended, the excitement did not leave the people. The unexpected result merely threw them into silence before they burst into discussions once more.

The result had been out of their expectations, but it was enough to excite them. After all, Cody’s final attack was beautiful. Compared to the emotional Vale, Cody had control over himself the whole time.

Even though Vale had used all his true energy to launch his strongest attack, Cody still saw it coming. Cody had launched the last three strikes all too calmly, correctly hitting all of the golden bird’s weak points.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2831 - 2840

Chapter 2831

“He’s so strong! Cody really is so strong! He is no doubt an inner disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion. I’ve never seen any inner disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion fight before, so this was an eye-opener!”

“I can’t compare to him. Vale was strong, but he was no match for Cody!” Jackie heard it all, and to him, it was too much noise.

At that moment, a few disciples wearing the clothes of the Compass Pavilion rushed through the crowd and ran to the arena, seemingly furious. As they pushed the crowd away, they showed no signs of civility. The surrounding warriors were angered, but everyone held their tongue. After all, the Compass Pavilion was an eighth-grade clan. They might not amount to much against the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion, but they were significant before most of the warriors there.

These disciples rushed to the stage with fervor, but the arena had been shielded by the laws. They were not able to enter before the time was up!

Vale struggled as he spat out a mouthful of blood. Even though Cody did not reap his life, the injury he sustained was nothing to scoff at. Vale struggled to raise his head as his eyes reddened.

He glared at Cody as anger and shame sizzled in the pit of his stomach. He was full of negative thoughts in his head. It was not his image and pride that he minded, it embittered him because this battle involved their respective clans.

He had lost, and his clan had been humiliated. His anger grew the longer he entertained the thought. He spat out another mouthful of blood.

Cody raised an eyebrow as he casually spoke, “Are you not going to surrender? The barrier hasn’t fallen, so the laws see that you can still fight. If you refuse to surrender, then I’ll attack again. Don’t blame me if you die because I was too heavy-handed then. Even if you have any complaints in hell, you need to know that you caused your demise.”

Vale gritted his teeth in fury. “You despicable person! You deliberately said all that to anger me! I won’t let you off. Don’t think you’re fine just because you got to the second level. There’s still a long time, and we’ll be waiting for you after this! I don’t represent the might of the Compass Pavilion. I lost and embarrassed my clan today, but that’s because I was too weak! My fellow disciples will make up for my mistakes in the future!”

“Remember what you’ve said, Cody. Don’t regret it later!” screamed Vale, which, in the process, caused his fatigue to worsen.

At that moment, the barrier around the arena suddenly cracked as the power separating it from the outside world disappeared.

Vale had been judged to no longer have the ability to fight on, and with results determined, the barrier collapsed. The moment the barrier fell, the disciples of the Compass Pavilion who were surrounding it rushed forward. All of them had steely looks on their faces. Unable to change the result of what happened, they were forced to carry their fellow disciple down for treatment.

Vale fell unconscious after using the last of his strength to say his piece.

Cody sneered at this, and he could not help but feel Vale was far too annoying for his good. Even after losing the match in such an embarrassing manner, he still attempted to regain his honor so pathetically.

Chapter 2832
Vale had even threatened Cody by saying there was still a lot of time left, and Cody was not one to let things slide. Cody was, however, the type to get back at his offender several times over when provoked.

The disciples of the Compass Pavilion hurriedly helped up Vale. Just as they were preparing to leave the stage, Cody purposely raised his voice, wanting everyone to hear him, “If you’ve lost, you’ve lost. Do you need to be such a sore loser? All that bragging yet you’re still so weak in the end, yet you dare say you’ll get back at me? How shameless can you be? Do you think the Unbreaking Pavilion has no powerful individual just because you have strong disciples with you? For so many years, the Unbreaking Pavilion has stood over the Compass Pavilion. When have you ever won?”

The audience immediately responded as their cheers got louder, cheering for the Unbreaking Pavilion.

After all, Cody from the Unbreaking Pavilion had won, and warriors only cared about the victor. They did not care for those who tried to salvage their honor after defeat.

Hearing the people’s contemptuous jeers, the expressions on the faces of the disciples of the Compass Pavilion soured.

At that moment, the disciple of the Compass Pavilion who stood at the front suddenly shouted, “I will admit, the Compass Pavilion is slightly weaker than the Unbreaking Pavilion. Regardless, the Compass Pavilion is still an eighth-grade clan! What are you insignificant worms crying out about?!”

At that moment, a few disgruntled shouts were heard in retaliation.

“Why are you trying to be so stubborn? In the end, the Compass Pavilion has been defeated! Even if the Compass Pavilion is an eighth-grade clan, it doesn’t mean that all of you are strong. So many wandering warriors and disciples of clans are gathered here, and no doubt some of us are capable of going toe-to-toe against you. If you don't believe it, just wait and see! "

"That's right! Why are you so arrogant toward us? You just think we're weaklings you can push around! The Compass Pavilion is strong, sure, but you use that strength to bully others without remorse. It doesn't mean the disciples of the Compass Pavilion are all stronger than us!"

After the disciple at the front heard that, he was so angry that his face reddened. His hands trembled slightly as he started to breathe more heavily. He was already at the limits of his anger.

Behind him came an anxious voice, "Don't waste any more time on them, Vincent! There's no point arguing with these insignificant guys. We need to get Vale treated!"

Vincent turned to look at his fellow disciple angrily, before looking at the unconscious Vale. He scowled, "Vale is an utter embarrassment!"

Jackie glanced at the angered Vincent from the stands, not agreeing with his behavior at all. It was useless, even if he tried to fight for Compass Pavilion's reputation.

Warriors never bothered with words. Gaining a massive victory was the best way to silence the non-believers. Vincent and the others did not stop at the arena as they left with Vale in tow, leaving only Cody on stage. Cody waved at the air, and a radiant red light fell from the skies.

The red light fell into Cody's palm. Once the light faded, a red token appeared in front of everyone. It was the token to get through to the second stage.

Chapter 2833
Each time a participant climbed another level, they would be given a token of passage.

Receiving this token, Cody could not fight back the grin on his face. Even though it was just a simple battle, he did not just win that battle, he also obtained honor from his clan. The elders would surely reward him once he returned to the clan. He was incredibly happy as he slowly walked off the stage.

Jackie let out a sigh as he turned to look at the spectators that were slowly cooling down. These people had been so riled up during the match, and the warriors only remembered the most exciting points, forgetting Vincent's unsuppressed rage.

Based on Vincent's temper, he would no doubt get back at those who ridiculed him and his clan. Even if those warriors did and said nothing to provoke him, Vincent would still be ruthless. It was not just Vincent, of course, the other disciples of the Compass

Pavilion would do that as well. After all, the Compass Pavilion's honor had been tainted during that last battle, and it was only natural they would try to regain their dignity.

It was not just Jackie who realized that, but the other more even-minded people within the audience as well.

"Good luck to whoever's meeting the disciples from the Compass after this. You guys were so immersed in all that cheering and shouting while the disciples of the Compass Pavilion were so humiliated! They'd want to win back some of their honor. It's not that easy to meet their disciples, and it's more likely for us wandering warriors of lower-level clans to meet them!"

"That's right! Quit thinking about getting some cheap thrill. Don't forget the group of disciples from the Compass Pavilion that came out earlier. All of them can't be trifled with, especially that guy called Vincent. He'll surely be ruthless against anyone after these fools provoked them!"

Slowly, the people began absorbing the truth. However, even if they agreed, not many of them thought anything of it. After all, there were a lot of people in attendance, and the Compass Pavilion did not have nearly as many disciples. It was an incredibly small chance to encounter them.

Woe would be the person who encountered them, for they would be met with death. It had nothing to do with most of them, though, so all they cared about was their temporary fun.

Some of them even said loudly, "Those words at Vincent weren't wrong earlier! It was clearly them who were lacking in skill. They decided to shout at us just because they couldn't beat the Unbreaking Pavilion! Why do we need to tolerate that?"

"That's right! Even if they're from eighth-grade clans, they're vastly outnumbered. If they keep challenging us, we'll just attack them as a group. Should we be afraid of them?"

The discussions were incredibly intense, and a collective sentiment started to form. When they were in the Hestia Continent, they always felt like they were beneath the disciples of high-grade clans. After all, they had a lot of resources, and their talents and futures were promising as well. Most importantly, they had an incredibly powerful clan to back them up.

The wandering warriors had no power or skill to go up against those disciples, but it was different here.

The Whirling World had its restrictions, and the forces backing them could not enter the Whirling World. Even if their individual skills were incredibly strong, there were more wandering warriors and disciples of lower-grade clans. As long as they worked together, disciples of the high-grade clans stood no chance!

They even started to feel arrogant, wanting the disciples from the more notable clans to submit to them!

Rudy just felt a deep sense of amusement from hearing everything.

Chapter 2834
He might not be skilled and was probably the weakest among the weak, but he at least had some basic knowledge.

No one here was united. There was not a person among them that would truly dare do anything against a disciple of an eighth-grade clan. After all, they could only be in the Whirling World for two years. The moment two years passed, nothing good would await them if news of this battle and its outcome were to spread. An order to kill them might even be issued.

They were merely chatting away, saying anything that came to their minds at that moment. In truth, not a single one of them would dare to do anything. That was the tragedy of the weak.

Rudy said helplessly, “Is this what it’s like being weak?”

Jackie turned and glanced at Rudy. “Isn’t that obvious?”

Rudy immediately shut his mouth. After a period of silence, Rudy finally got serious. He turned and looked at Jackie earnestly. “The match is over. Are you going to queue up now?”

After watching the match, Rudy decided to stop dwelling on his thoughts. He wanted to go up to the second level to look at what was there.

Jackie nodded, taking out his entry token. The purple entry token glowed in a purple glow. He used his true energy, putting the energy into the token. The token let out another glow as information was transmitted into his head.

Rudy widened his eyes. “Have you queued up? Which arena will you be in? Which battle are you? Who‘s your opponent?”

Speechless, Jackie raised an eyebrow as his lips twitched.

Rudy, noticing Jackie’s expression, was overtaken with emotions as he grabbed Jackie’s arm and shook it.

“Tell me! Is your opponent a difficult one? Who could give you a difficult time?”

Jackie sighed, not knowing what to say. Eventually, he shrugged and replied, “It’s at this arena, match number ninety-one.”

“Ninety-one? Cody‘s match was the eighty-third, and that means it’s almost your turn. I thought that we’d have to wait for a long time. I was worried we‘d have to wait till tomorrow!”

Jackie nodded before saying, “Those people really know how to brag. There aren’t that many people who are queueing up. Everyone seems to just want to watch the show, staying for a few days at the first level. After they have their fill playing around, they‘ll queue up.”

At that moment, an angry roar was suddenly heard from afar, “Who‘s Jackie?!”

That demand was screamed with unrestrained fury, as if whoever said it held an immense grudge against Jackie.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he turned to look in the direction of the voice, and Rudy similarly turned, baffled.

Was it one of the people they had a conflict with when they entered the city?

However, those people had clearly been shocked by Jackie, and they would not possibly trouble Jackie after entering the Thousand Leaves Tower.

The two of them looked over, and could not help but be stunned when they recognized that man all too well. It was Vincent, the man who shouted at everyone when he was on stage.

Vincent, meanwhile, looked around at all the spectators, trying to find Jackie.

At that moment, everyone realized that Vincent had queued up, and his opponent was someone called Jackie. They began mourning for Vincent’s opponent.

At that moment, the Compass Pavilion needed an incredible victory. It needed to be an absolute victory that came at the cost of their opponent‘s life. Only then would they be able to wipe away the humiliation they had gone through. At the very least, they would be able to win a bit of their honor back. On top of that, Vincent had shouted at all the spectators. The person who fought against Vincent would surely face his full wrath.

Not everyone was as skilled as Cody.

Chapter 2835
Most of the audience was not too noteworthy.

Compared to Vincent, they were far weaker. Even if they had been so arrogant earlier, they could not deny Vincent’s strength. Being able to become an inner disciple and to be considered Vale’s senior meant that he was someone extraordinary.

“I don’t know who that unlucky guy is, but I’ll mourn for him in advance. It looks like the arena is going to be bathed in blood again.”

“Maybe Jackie’s from a large clan. If that’s the case, he’ll be able to keep his life.”

“Have you ever heard of a disciple from a big clan called Jackie? I sure haven’t…”

Everyone began talking about Jackie. Some felt bad for him, but more of them were happy about his misfortune. After all, they were just spectators.

Rudy pulled at Jackie‘s shirt. “I now know why you didn’t tell me who your opponent was. It’s Vincent. We’re quite lucky to have met him. Are you stronger than he is?”

Rudy was quite confident of Jackie’s skills, but he did not know Jackie’s true strength overall. When it came to things like this, he was always full of questions.

He did not have the confidence in that question. He was afraid that Jackie would tell him that he was unsure of himself, or that Jackie would die if he went into the arena.

Jackie looked at Rudy helplessly. “Before you ask that, can you think of who I’ve faced before this?”

Jackie’s words gave Rudy a reminder. A few images flashed in Rudy‘s mind. When he remembered all the things that had happened before, he let out a sigh of relief as he gained more confidence in Jackie.

Jackie completely ignored Vincent’s shouts. Even if Vincent lost his voice shouting, he would not answer. If he exposed himself at that moment, Vincent would no doubt run his mouth and talk nonsense, like an annoying fly buzzing at his ear. He hated unnecessary arguments like that. He would rather have a proper fight than an argument.

Jackie did not want to bother with him, but Vincent never stopped. When no one answered, Vincent started to suspect that Jackie was not at that arena.

Just as he was about to go to a different arena, a familiar figure stood up from the stands, pointing right at Jackie. “This is Jackie!”

Jackie frowned, not expecting that Joe was not far away from him. After sitting among the spectators, Jackie had not paid much attention to his surroundings other than glancing down a few times.

Joe pointed Jackie out in front of everyone before he pulled his hand back. After that, he huffed as he sat back down, not saying anything else.

Being pointed at among the crowd, Vincent naturally looked toward Jackie. He narrowed his eyes slightly as a dangerous look flashed in them. He looked at Jackie like he was looking at prey, seemingly about to pounce at his throat at any moment.

“So you’re Jackie! Are you deaf? Didn’t you hear me shouting for you? Are you scared? So what if you are? You can’t refuse to get in the arena. If you do that, the laws will have you killed immediately!”

Chapter 2836
Jackie sighed as he looked at Joe in frustration.

Joe had already thoroughly angered Jackie. Although the two of them previously had a conflict outside the city gates, and Joe had said those disgusting things to Jackie, but Jackie did not really care about it at all.

Jackie decided to forget about it, not wanting much to do with Joe, but he never expected that Joe would cause him trouble at such a time. Jackie sighed again, adding someone else to his list of must-kill. He really could not afford to just forget things. When it came to people like that, he had to make them pay with their lives whenever he had the chance. Otherwise, they would just bring him an immense amount of trouble!

Many gazes were directed toward Jackie after Joe pointed him out. Everyone merely looked at Jackie with interest.

Earlier, Jackie had not said anything when Joe was shouting around. They felt like it was because he was afraid, and felt that Vincent was right as well. Jackie had on an alchemist’s robes. He did not look like he was from the big city as well. Someone like that would definitely be terrified if they faced Vincent.

“Who’s that? Does everyone know him? Where is he from? He’s wearing an alchemist’s robe. Could he actually be an alchemist?”

“An alchemist actually passed the entry requirements? It looks like he does have some skills to be able to pass. However, he’s still an alchemist, in the end, there’s no way he can compare to an inner disciple from an eighth-grade clan. This kid is so unlucky!”

“I can just imagine how badly he’s going to be beaten up, but there’s no way around it. No matter where you are, the strong rule over the weak. Only the strong are able to survive. If you have no skill and no background, you’ll just be trampled over! If this kid knows what to do, and tries to curry some favor, his life might be spared.”

Everyone might be discussing things among themselves, but the gist of it was all the same. Not a single one of them felt that Jackie would be able to get out unscathed. There were even those who were starting to advise Jackie to give in and try to curry some favor to calm down Vincent’s anger. He might be able to survive the match if he did that.

There were those who asked Jackie to surrender quickly.

Rudy‘s lips twitched, obviously wanting to say something to defend Jackie at that moment. After going through so much, he already had a different attitude toward things. He knew that there was no point in saying anything.

Jackie sighed helplessly, not wanting to argue with Vincent. It was not that Jackie was afraid of Vincent, but if he answered Vincent, the two of them would not stop arguing.

There was still some time away from their match, and arguing would take up a lot of effort. However, Vincent was obviously not going to let Jackie off easily. Those ignorant fools who shouted at him while he was on the stage before had thoroughly angered Vincent.

Vincent’s anger was at its peak. Even if Jackie did not respond, he was not going to let things go.

He smiled coldly and said, “If you’re so scared, you shouldn’t have come into the Whirling World in the first place! The Whirling World isn’t a place for you alchemists. I hate cowards that don’t speak like you. Do you think I’ll let you off just like that? The less you say, the more I want to kill you. I’ll make sure I beat you until you’re begging for mercy! I won’t spare you no matter how badly you beg!”

Vincent was venting out his anger. After all, that brat in front of him looked to have no skills or background. He could say anything he wanted. The guy would not dare to say a single thing.

Vincent’s words got worse and worse, and Rudy was not able to hold it in anymore. Even though his mind told him not to say anything at that moment, he could no longer stand what Vincent was doing.

He abruptly stood up from his seat, wanting to shout back. However, Jackie reached out and stopped him.

Jackie shook his head at Rudy, motioning for Rudy not to speak. Rudy was forced to sit down awkwardly, feeling like he had been angered a lot that day.

Chapter 2837
However, right as he thought that Jackie would remain silent, Jackie suddenly turned to look at Vincent.

“I’m ignoring you because I think you’re a complete idiot. It’s a waste of time talking to an idiot like you! I just can’t believe that you’re so brainless that it makes me sick. I ignored you, and you still decided to yap away!”

Jackie's words successfully pulled everyone into a strange silence. After the match between Vale and Cody, a new set of warriors quickly went on stage, and everyone started to cheer for them.

Yet, Jackie's words had even stopped those cheers. Everyone turned around as they looked at Jackie strangely, wondering if he had gone crazy.

Jackie was calling Vincent an idiot?

Did Jackie not know that Vincent was from an eighth-grade clan and an inner disciple of the Compass Pavilion?

There was something wrong with his head. Why was he challenging Vincent without any fear?!

Even Vincent was stunned by Jackie's words. He never expected that Jackie would even dare to answer him with harsher words than he had used. Vincent trembled in anger as he pointed right at Jackie's face, "What did you say?!"

Jackie's lips twitched as He rolled his eyes, "Are you deaf or something? Did you not hear what I said earlier? It's fine if you didn't, I don't have the time or energy to repeat myself for an idiot. You can just ask those around you."

Jackie's string of words rendered everyone silent again. He did not seem to care about what he was saying at all as if Vincent really was a complete idiot in his eyes. He merely said what was in his mind, and everyone around him widened their eyes, not knowing what to say.

It took a long time before someone spoke, "Hey, are you crazy? Why are you angering Vincent like this? Once you get on stage later, you might be tortured to death. Aren't you afraid of dying?"

"That's right! Aren't you afraid of dying?"

Everyone started to ask Jackie if he was afraid of dying.

Jackie did not answer them and merely turned his head away to look at the stage again. He just wanted all of them to shut up. He did not want to waste any time talking to them.

Vincent's face was fuming in anger, feeling like his honor had been spat upon. He immediately stomped his feet.

How could he tolerate such behavior?

Vincent had always been someone who really cared about his reputation, and was incredibly arrogant.

Vincent shouted, “You‘re a mere alchemist, and you dare to act so arrogantly. Are you daring enough to tell me where you’re from? I want to see what clan’s alchemist would dare challenge me like that!”

Jackie’s lips twitched helplessly. It seemed like Vincent did not just want to kill him, but also cause trouble for where Jackie was from. Vincent really was easily angered.

Jackie snorted. He had not wanted to care about Vincent, but Vincent was just like an annoying fly that was constantly sticking around him.

Chapter 2838
He turned to look at Vincent again as he said, “What does where I come from have to do with you? Why do you have so much to say?! Can you just shut up? Leave it all to the fight!”

After saying that, Rudy almost gave Jackie a thumbs up. Those words had successfully caused Vincent to pale. If Vincent continued to speak, it would make Vincent seem unreasonable. After all, Jackie already said to leave everything to the fight!

Vincent was forced to swallow his words as he looked at Jackie furiously.

He was already thinking about how he would torture Jackie when they are on the stage later! He would not give Jackie any chance of surrendering. He would not let Jackie die so easily either. He would properly torture Jackie until he was begging for mercy. Then, he would kill Jackie in one blow when he was at his lowest!

Rudy whispered to Jackie, “You’re amazing in every way. You’re even talented with your words. I was almost angered to death by you back then, but now that it’s on others, I feel so happy…”

As he spoke, his shoulders constantly shook in laughter. Jackie let out a small laugh, not saying anything as he waited quietly.

His words earlier were all for the sake of shutting Vincent up. Vincent had definitely gone quiet, but the discussions around them did not stop.

“Is there really something wrong with this guy’s head? Doesn’t he know the consequences that await him? Or did he already think of a way to deal with Vincent? Maybe he’s just really confident in his abilities. He might feel like he’ll be able to win, or at least be Vincent’s equal?”

“He’s just an alchemist, how could he possibly be Vincent’s equal? He‘s probably just crazy. How could he have said all that if he wasn’t?”

“I think he’s just accepted his fate. He would die when he gets on the stage anyway, so he decided to just anger Vincent a bit to make himself feel better.”

After that person spoke, everyone nodded. They felt like that was probably what Jackie was trying to do. Otherwise, there was no reason for him to talk back against Vincent.

“I actually don’t think that he’s making empty threats. Maybe he actually did figure out how to deal with Vincent?”

“You’re really something else. Aren’t skill and strength the most important things in a fight?”

“Don’t be in such a hurry to deny me. Just think about who‘s in the same clan as Vincent. Vale had already shown his most favored skill in the golden bird. I heard someone tell me that Vincent uses the bird as well. Since the two of them use the same technique, then as long as Jackie’s as fast and accurate as Cody, it’s not impossible for him to destroy the bird!”

That person’s words suddenly attracted everyone’s attention. Some people started to whisper among themselves, feeling like Jackie was acting like that because Jackie actually had tricks up his sleeve that allowed him to deal with his opponent.

He wanted to mimic Cody and use the same means to destroy the golden bird, which was why he talked so much! Many of them agreed with the sentiment but did not think Jackie could do it.

Some even laughed wildly as they said, “This guy is obviously stupid. Cody could destroy the golden bird thanks to his skills. If Cody was not that strong, there was no way he could have destroyed the golden bird even if he knew its weakness without Vale even being able to react!”

“You’re right! He’s a disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion, while this guy is just an alchemist that’s slightly stronger than usual. Everyone knows that alchemists don’t really practice martial arts. They put most of their focus on alchemy. There’s no way they could be that strong!”

“Furthermore, he did not want to tell anyone where he came from. He’s obviously a wandering warrior!”

Everyone present seeped into the conversation again. They seemed to be saying anything that was on their mind, and practically everything that could be said was said. However, the core of the conversations was still the same. All of them felt that Jackie thought that he could destroy the golden bird which was why he spoke so arrogantly, not caring for Vincent at all!

Rudy felt the flames of anger in his heart after hearing the constant discussions. None of these people knew anything, but they were just saying whatever they wanted to. It was despicable.

At that moment, he could not say anything and was forced to quietly wait by the side. After a good while, the discussions did not stop and instead became more intense. Everyone started to question where Jackie was from, not seeming like they would stop.

Rudy got more and more frustrated and angry as he listened on. He could not stop himself from whispering, “These idiots don’t know anything! They just know how to speak blindly!”

Jackie let out a slight laugh as he said casually and said, “There’s no need to care about them. Let them say what they want. It won’t change the results in the end.”

Time slowly ticked away. Match ninety ended, and ninety-one was about to start. Vincent stood up from the stands impatiently.

His eyes never left Jackie from the start. His eyes were filled with rage, wanting to rip Jackie apart. He already despised Jackie to the bone, even more so than those who challenged him earlier.

Jackie sighed as he stood up from his seat casually. He did not even bother looking at Vincent as he walked toward the stage.

Everyone was focused on Jackie as he was way too mysterious. No matter if he was putting on a show or not, he still managed to compose himself. He did not seem to care how angry Vincent was. Jackie did not even bother sparing Vincent a glance. It was as if he was a wild dog that had been tied up, only able to bark wildly.

On the stage, Jackie stood on the west while Vincent stood on the east side. The two of them stared at each other, tension incredibly thick. The silent crowd started to cheer again.

Some of them were cheering for Vincent, while there were those cheering for Jackie as well.

Rudy remained seated in his original position as he looked at Jackie with some worry. Even if he trusted that Jackie had the skills to beat Vincent, he was still worried before he saw the actual results.

Vincent let out a cold laugh as he looked at Jackie, “Don’t think I’ll be scared just because you’re acting like you don’t care! You just look like a joke in my eyes and nothing else! I don’t even need to tell anyone how trashy alchemists are. It’s something every warrior in the Hestia Continent knows. Are you worried I’ll cause trouble for your clan if you tell me where you’re from? Don’t worry about that, I’ll definitely make sure they pay the price with your life!”

Vincent even yearned to pull every hair out of Jackie and skin Jackie alive.

After hearing that, Jackie laughed coldly, “You’re just a joke to me. Where did you learn to speak like that?”

Vincent’s face reddened again at Jackie’s insults. His composure from earlier disappeared. He has never been mocked like that before that day. The person mocking him was even an alchemist!

Vincent took a deep breath as he forcibly quelled the flames in his heart!

Chapter 2840
Vincent had never been so angered before. Even if he had heard harsher words or been mocked worse than this, he had never felt as angry as he had that day.

Jackie did not seem to care about him at all, even while Jackie mocked him. It was as if he was not worth Jackie’s notice at all. Being ignored while he was being mocked, he felt incredibly horrible.

Vincent’s lips twitched as he narrowed his eyes, staring at Jackie viciously as he shouted, “Did you hear their discussions earlier? I really do use the same technique as Vale, but don’t think that you can break the technique like how Cody did earlier. Let me tell you, this is impossible!”

Jackie’s lips twitched as he said nothing. He did not want to waste time on Vincent at that moment. It was just a fight. He had to go through many more fights later. This was just the first level of the Thousand Leaves Tower. He had never really thought much about the first battle.

Instead, Vincent seemed unrelenting, insisting on arguing with him. Jackie sighed as he said earnestly, “Why do you have so much to say? Why are you so sure that I’m thinking of doing that? How do you even know what’s on my mind?”

The way Cody broke the golden bird earlier was definitely interesting, but Jackie had never thought about following Cody and using the same method at all. However, Vincent was convinced that Jackie was planning to do so.

After hearing Jackie‘s words, he laughed arrogantly as he pointed at Jackie’s head, “You’re refusing to admit it? Everyone heard it. If you try to use the same method as Cody earlier, they’ll be the witness to it! How do you plan on explaining yourself then?”

Jackie frowned, not even wanting to bother Vincent. He felt like Vincent was already thoroughly obsessed, and would not listen no matter what he said. He did not want to bother dealing with someone like that. He could think however he wanted to.

Vincent laughed wildly as he continued, “Even if you plan on using the same method as Cody, you won’t be able to destroy the bird! I’m not Vale, and you’re not Cody. Even if Cody is the one standing in front of me today, he won't be able to beat me, let alone you!"

As he said that, the disdain in Vincent's eyes was incredibly evident. It was as if Jackie was just a bug that could be stepped on at any time in Vincent's eyes.

Jackie sighed as he said, "Have you gone mad? You're just wasting everyone's time if you continue talking. There are still others waiting for their turn after this!"

Jackie did not want to waste his or anyone else's time, especially on Vincent. Yet, at that moment, Vincent seemed intent on regaining his honor no matter what Jackie said.

Vincent sneered, "I won't let you die so easily. You'll pay for what you said earlier! You'll die an incredibly painful death!"

It was a curse from the bottom of his heart. Jackie could no longer take it as he proceeded to pull out his sword from Mustard Seed. The gray blade caused a chill in everyone's hearts.

The blade had taken countless lives, and the ones who died from the blade were mostly talented warriors!

It gave the blade an impressive aura around it even without any true energy being sent inside.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2841 - 2850

Chapter 2841
However, Vincent was even more unimpressed by everything. At that moment, he was already thoroughly crazed. He took a breath as his hands constantly moved, forming seal after seal. After that, a massive three-legged bird appeared behind him. The bird was covered in flames. It was at least twice the size of the one Vale had condensed!

That alone was proof that Vincent had not been bragging earlier. Vale really was no match for Vincent. If Vincent had been the one against Cody earlier, the victor would not have been certain.

Jackie estimated things in his heart, and felt like the two of them were probably about equal. The thought flashed in his mind as Vincent roared angrily, lunging forward like a diving eagle as he rushed right at Jackie. The heat waves hit Jackie before Vincent was there. It was incredibly hot, enough for the heat to distort the space around them again. Jackie was at the center of the heat waves. He felt a power that could light him up, get closer and closer!

Jackie remained calm as he formed seal after seal. Eighty Soul Swords were condensed by him in an instant, and all of them merged into a large blade that merged with his gray blade.

Jackie had already perfected Destroying the Void. That was why he did not really care that he was facing an inner disciple of an eighth-grade clan. If he used all his power, he might attract the attention of others. So, he had used twenty fewer Soul Swords. He heard a cry next to him.

The three-legged bird had raised its head. Its flaming eyes stared right at Jackie. Everyone around them looked on with widened eyes, afraid to miss anything interesting. They wanted to see Jackie falter and see Jackie completely trampled on by Vincent.

Someone started to shout, “This guy really is trying to mimic Cody! He’s actually standing in place. Is he really trying to attack those weak points? He doesn’t have the speed to do that, nor does he have the skill! Where did he get his courage from?!”

“That’s right! He’s just an ignorant country bumpkin. He thought that he could copy how someone else succeeded, ignoring his own skill!”

“Cody won because of his immense speed and the fact that he could hit all of those weak points so quickly. Those without the strength to do so wouldn’t be able to do anything even if they hit those weak points!

“There‘s only one reason for that. The weak points of the golden bird are only worth anything in the hands of the strong. Weaklings would not be able to deal a powerful enough blow to the bird even if they knew where to hit!”

At the moment, many of them agreed with that sentiment. If Jackie was doing what they expected, then Jackie would definitely lose. He would definitely be tortured by Vincent as well!

Vincent said with a face full of excitement, “You’re dead now, brat. As long as the bird hits you, even God wouldn’t be able to save you!”

Chapter 2842
Jackie let out a slight laugh, not answering Vincent. Instead, he grabbed his sword with both his hands and raised his blade high up, slashing right at the head of the bird!

The black slash might not have any intense energy fluctuations, but it surged right at the bird!

The bird cried out again.

Jackie could even see a look of disdain in the bird’s eyes. The bird might just be an image of the technique Vincent had condensed, but it still carried Vincent’s emotions. After all, the technique was a middle-stage earth technique.

Vincent seemed to have reached the second stage of mastery, and was not far away from the third. He was definitely an inner disciple that was even higher ranked than Vale. The guy would probably end up becoming a chosen disciple in a short span of time. He definitely had a lot of potentials.

The thought flashed in Jackie’s head as Destroying the Void arrived right in front of the bird.

The bird spat out a sea of flames in disdain, but the slash did not seem to do much damage at all.

Vincent let out a sneer and a thought flashed in his mind. However, before the smile could even be wiped from his face, he heard a howl next to him…

He could not help but look up to see the flames that the bird sent out earlier had been sliced into two, dispersing into the surroundings. The slash had gone right through the bird’s head right after the bird launched the attack!

The bird cried out in agony. Even though it was formed of energy, it still contained a sliver of Vincent‘s soul!

The next second, the pain of a soul being destroyed wracked its body. Vincent’s eyes widened as the bird he was so proud of, that won every battle it fought, fell. The black, unassuming slash contained an unrivaled power within. It was enough to slice his bird into two!

His technique had been broken by Jackie so easily. It had only taken one strike for his bird to turn into energy, dispersing everywhere. Only the waves of heat proved that the technique was ever there.

Vincent widened his eyes as he looked at the scene in disbelief. He wondered if he was seeing things.

How could something so absurd happen to him?

That kid was clearly an alchemist, so how was his technique broken so easily?!

He was using a middle-stage earth rank technique, and it was already at the second stage of mastery. He was not far away from completing the third. Vale was nothing in his eyes, but Jackie had broken his technique!

Vincent shook his head crazily, refusing to admit that what he saw was real. However, before he could shout out anything, he felt a chill in his chest. He looked down to see a gray sword pierced through his chest. A wave of sharp energy suddenly started to rot his body. The pain caused him to lose all rationality.

With a chattering sound, Vincent's wound started to turn black and rot at a visible pace. His soul had been torn apart at the same time.

Chapter 2843
The pain caused him to go crazy. He had suffered various injuries before, but they had never been as painful as what he was feeling then. It was as if he had been thrown into a pot of hot oil and cooked alive.

"What power is this?! Why is it injuring my soul?! Take it away! Take it away now! " Vincent was grasping at straws at that moment.

The intense pain had caused him to forget all his earlier arrogance. He had said that he would have Jackie begging for death, but now he was asking for mercy from Jackie instead.

Jackie let out a smirk at his shouts before he said lazily, "Don't you think you're being really funny right now? You're the one who said you would have me begging for death earlier, but now you want me to let you go. Do you think I will?"

Vincent's mind was no longer working properly at that moment. He merely begged Jackie to let him off, even killing him would be better. The pain of his soul rotting away was too much for him to bear. He had never felt such pain before and he thinks that even the strongest man alive would not be able to bear that torture!

Jackie ignored all the pleas as the crowd fell into silence again. From the moment he easily destroyed the bird to him piercing Vincent's chest in one strike, their eyes had all widened in disbelief.

They did not know what to say at that moment. Other than shock, they were not feeling anything else. It took a long time for them to react to what they had just seen.

Someone shouted loudly, "Who exactly is this Jackie? Is he a chosen disciple from some clan? Why is he so strong? Is he wearing alchemist's robes to trick everyone?"

"Who knows? From what he's shown us today, he must be the disciple of a high level clan!"

"No wonder his words had been so harsh earlier. Even I was surprised but he was actually not putting on a show. He really did have the confidence and the skill to back it up!"

Those who were mocking Jackie earlier had their mouths shut at that moment. They were all afraid that what they had said earlier had been too harsh. Jackie had actually easily dealt with Vincent!

Vincent's cries of agony were constantly heard from the stage. The disciples of the Compass Pavilion panicked as they rushed to the stage again. In just a few honors, they had lost twice, and both times were incredibly humiliating.

Vincent's arrogant words had all been hit back at him, it was far too embarrassing. No matter how the disciples of the Compass Pavilion felt, they still carried Vincent away as fast as they could.

After all, they would definitely be punished when they got back if they did nothing! However, the arena could not judge that Vincent could no longer fight at that moment, so it kept the stage sealed.

Vincent continued twisting and turning in agony on the stage, causing everyone around them to shudder.

Everyone had been anticipating that Vincent would completely destroy Jackie with his skill, but Vincent had actually been no match for Jackie at all. They were on completely different levels!

"I can't believe I couldn't see it! I thought the guy was just pretending, but I was just being ignorant! Talent like this would shine no matter what clan they are from!"

Chapter 2844
"You're not the only one who failed to see it. No one here managed to at all!"

Vincent had been in pain for long enough to finally control himself. He struggled as he widened his reddened eyes to glare at Jackie hatefully as if he wanted to rip Jackie to shreds. He panted loudly, saying after a long time, “I won’t let you off! You definitely used some sinister trick. You’re not an alchemist…”

In truth, Vincent did not really know what he wanted to say. It was just that his dignity did not allow him to admit that Jackie was strong. He refused to admit it despite all the evidence in front of him. Blood flowed out of his wounds as he slowly felt his energy draining away. His eyes started to blur as the barrier finally fell with a crack.

The disciples of the Compass Pavilion rushed over, and Jackie put his blade back with a bang,

Vincent fell heavily on the stage, and the disciples of the Compass Pavilion scrambled to help him up. His injuries were even worse than Vale’s, so much so that his life was already in danger. Those who knew medicine tried to check for his pulse, and their expressions changed abruptly.

The man looked up and glared at Jackie while he shouted, “How dare you? You actually tried to kill him! Are you not afraid of our clan’s revenge?”

Jackie snorted at those words, completely unperturbed. He did not want to bother with those idiots at all. He turned around and quietly waited for the token to fall into his palm.

That disciple saw that Jackie was ignoring him, and his face immediately twisted. He suddenly felt like he had been deeply humiliated as he stood up and continued shouting at Jackie, “The Compass Pavilion will not forget this. You were so ruthless this time, the Compass Pavilion will definitely make you pay. Remember this!”

Jackie took a slight breath as he slowly turned to look at that person. That person looked like he was speaking with the moral high ground, and Jackie absolutely hated people like him. “You’re the only ones allowed to do that? Are you deaf? Didn’t you hear what Vincent said to me earlier? He said he wanted to make sure I begged for death before killing me. Is he the only one allowed to do that, while I’m not allowed to retaliate? If he’d already said that he would do so, he should have been prepared for similar consequences!”

The person’s expression darkened after hearing Jackie’s words. However, that person was incredibly arrogant. It was also because Jackie had an alchemist outfit on the whole time, causing the guy to feel like Jackie was just an alchemist.

The guy raised his voice, “Stop trying to talk your way out of it! Surely I don’t have to teach you the value of leaving yourself a way out. You’re the one who decided to act so ruthlessly, so don’t blame anyone else!”

Jackie laughed at those words. He felt like the group was completely beneath him. They only acted like they were better than everyone else because they were from Compass Pavilion.

They were the only ones allowed to look at others in disdain, and the only ones allowed to cross the line when dealing with others. When others fired back in a similar way, they felt like they had been ridiculed and wanted to take revenge several times over.

Jackie hated that sort of attitude the most. He coldly looked at that person and replied, “You’re the biggest joke I’ve ever seen. Do you think I’m scared of the Compass Pavilion?”

Chapter 2845
Those words felt like a bucket of cold water was poured on that person. That person suddenly realized that someone with Jackie‘s talents could not possibly come from a small clan. Jackie had definitely been cultivated carefully by a big clan if he was so skilled.

The guy might actually not be afraid of the Compass Pavilion at all. That person felt like a large stone was on his chest, stifling his breathing as he could not say anything at that moment. Jackie looked on as that person’s face stiffened and let out a cold laugh before he turned around again.

There was a radiant red light as the token to the second level slowly fell into Jackie’s palm. Jackie smiled, not looking at the crowd anymore as he started to walk up the spectator stands. After winning that round, he did not want to bother remaining in the first level anymore.

When Jackie slowly walked up, the crowd’s discussions once again reached its loudest point. Everyone looked at Jackie with curious and shocked expressions, as if they wanted to see something from Jackie’s body.

“Where is Jackie actually from? Could he be from a ninth-grade clan? Or is he a chosen disciple of another eighth-grade clan?”

“I don’t know, but I’ve never seen him before. I’ve never heard of Jackie either. I’ve mostly heard of all the talented disciples before, and I’ve seen pictures of them too. There’s no one that’s even close to Jackie. He might just be the personal disciple of some powerhouse.”

“It’s getting more and more interesting. It looks like many incredibly talented warriors all entered the Whirling World. If even they‘ve entered, then the Whirling World must definitely have very valuable treasures inside. I can’t wait to continue looking!”

“What can you look for? You’d be lucky enough to survive two years in this world safely…”

No one was lowering their voices as they talked. After all, no one dared to say anything bad about Jackie at that point.

Whether it was praise or any other discussions, Jackie did not care at all. He merely cared about moving forward.

As Jackie stood next to Rudy, he was surprised to find that Rudy was frowning with a sour look on his face. His eyes were darting around, looking like he was thinking about something important.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he asked in a low voice, “Did something happen?”

With how Rudy usually was, Rudy would definitely have stood up happily to greet Jackie after he won so convincingly.

Rudy would probably also have shot back at all those insults that were targeted at Jackie earlier. Yet, he was acting far too strange at that moment. It was obvious that something had definitely happened.

Rudy sighed as his expression darkened. However, he did not answer Jackie immediately. Instead, he forcibly composed himself as he stood up and pointed far away. “Let’s leave this place first!”

The way to the second level was on the westernmost side of the first level. As long as they headed in that direction, they would arrive at the border between the two levels. With the entry token, they would naturally be able to enter.

Jackie was not in a hurry to ask what had happened.

When the two of them entered the second level, it was no longer as noisy as before due to the decrease in numbers. Only then did Jackie whisper, “What exactly happened? Even your expression has changed?”

Rudy took a deep breath, as he started to sway a little. He looked up at the layout of the second level. It was almost the same as the first level. There were also seven arenas, and each arena had a lot of space for spectators.

Chapter 2846
Since there was already another round of selections, there were much fewer people on the second floor than on the first. Rudy composed himself for a bit before turning around and saying seriously, “I saw Grayson just now…”

Those words caused Jackie to suddenly stiffen. He repeated in surprise, “You saw Grayson? Are you sure you weren’t seeing things?”

Jackie's first thought was that Rudy was mistaken, mistaking someone else as Grayson. After all, Grayson had been gone for so long. Grayson had disappeared right after they entered Phoenix Valley.

Rudy sniffed as he frowned and thought for a long time, "I'm sure I wasn't wrong. That person's definitely Grayson, whether it was his figure or his face, I'm certain that it was Grayson! I can absolutely guarantee it!"

Rudy rarely said things with such conviction, so Jackie had to believe him. No wonder he looked like that.

Jackie frowned and turned to look at the passage they had just gone through. If Rudy was right, then Grayson should still be on the first level.

What shocked Jackie was the fact that Grayson was definitely a true and blue alchemist. Grayson did not have the skills to get into Thousand Leaves City, so someone must have brought him in.

Who brought him into Thousand Leaves City?

Before, they had gotten the same answer no matter where they asked. Everyone said that Grayson had already been locked up. It was because he had been the culprit behind the ambush that time since he had been the one to leak the information.

After hearing all of that, Jackie had not believed it immediately but did not question it either. After all, that ambush had been incredibly sudden. There were various spots that were incredibly questionable. If Grayson really had been the one to leak the information, many things would have been made clear.

Since he betrayed Phoenix Valley, how was he at the Whirling World?

After all, the Whirling World was closely tied to Phoenix Valley and the Unbreaking Pavilion. Jackie could still not figure out the reason.

Jackie took a deep breath as his expression darkened. If he added everything from before to what was happening now, everything became a mess. He could not figure anything out, but he still had to think about it. After all, the matter could very well involve the two of them.

Rudy frowned before he said with a conflicted expression, "I wanted to go grab him and asked what happened. However, I thought about it and held back. I keep feeling like something was off about Grayson, and did not want to expose myself in front of him. Before, he was the one with the secrets and hiding from us. Now we can be the ones who hide from him. Since I saw him, we can take the chance to catch him off guard!"

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he looked at Rudy with some praise. The guy was getting smarter. He was not as reckless as he was before, acting in accordance with his feelings no matter what he did.

Rudy pulled Jackie further inside. The two of them went through the crowd and found a corner.

He whispered, “If I’m really right, and that person is actually Grayson, then Phoenix Valley must be keeping a massive secret that can’t be known by anyone else. It might end up involving the two of us. I’m so anxious right now. I really want to go and grab him by the collar to ask him what’s happening.”

Chapter 2847
“However, even I know that we’d just be alerting the enemy before we need to if I do that. In the end, the consequences might be severe. It’s better if we properly plan on how we should approach him right now!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not really agreeing with Rudy’s thoughts. If it had been before, Jackie might not have bothered to explain things to Rudy, but Jackie already trusted him and saw him as one of his own, so he felt like he owed Rudy an explanation.

He reached out and patted Rudy on the shoulder, saying seriously, “We should talk about this another time. It’s enough that we know he’s in the Whirling World. There’s no need to question him for now.”

After he said that, Rudy could not take it at all. Grayson’s disappearance had been clawing at Rudy since he found out. He thought about it practically every day.

He looked over and said emotionally, “Why don’t you want to question him? What’s holding you back?”

Jackie turned and looked at the warriors on the second level around him, he said earnestly, “You have to always remember why we’re in the Whirling World. Grayson is definitely not here because of his own abilities, Phoenix Valley’s higher-ups must have allowed it. Even so, we shouldn’t get ourselves involved before we have a certain level of skill. Whether it be Elder Maurice or the other elders, or even Mr. Zayne, all of them will hide the truth to the end.”

“They were not willing to reveal anything to us at all, so there must be a massive plot behind this. Since that’s the case, the two of us will probably not be too involved in it. As long as it doesn‘t endanger us, we shouldn’t try to do anything against them for the moment. We should improve ourselves first.”

Rudy knew that Jackie was being very logical, but Rudy was not willing to remain silent and act as if nothing had happened.

Jackie sighed helplessly.

Just a look at Rudy's expression revealed that Rudy was not willing to do so. However, he had to stop Rudy from doing anything. Since the higher-ups had hidden this massive secret, they could not show their hand before they were able to protect themselves.

Jackie knew that Rudy's thoughts were complicated at that moment, so he pulled Rudy towards him, "Alright, let's not think about all of that for now. I'll bring you to the tower market. There are a lot of good things over there. We can even buy anything that catches our eye."

After saying that, he ignored Rudy's expression as he pulled Rudy towards the market. The market was at the westernmost end of the second level. It was a place that was unique to the second level.

The tower market was a small plaza. They were still a little bit away from the market, but they could see it from afar. It was filled with people as quite a few warriors headed toward that place. Everyone was talking to each other, asking about certain valuable goods and how many spirit crystals they cost.

Initially, Rudy was still filled with thoughts about the conversation earlier, but with the surrounding conversations getting louder, Rudy started to get curious.

He whispered into Jackie's ear, "What's this market? We can buy things there? Could the Whirling World be doing business with us warriors?"

Rudy was a bit confused.

When Jackie heard that, his lips twitched speechlessly, "The Whirling World has existed for countless years. How could there still be any life left to do business with us?!"

After saying that, Jackie patiently explained where the market came from. The Whirling World had existed for tens of thousands of years, and Thousand Leaves City had as well. No one knew what had happened between then and now. No matter what, everything from back then had been preserved. Even the arrays within the cities were not eroded by the passage of time.

Chapter 2848
The market was a location for deals that were left behind since ancient times. After getting the entry token, the information would be sent into the token holder's mind. Everyone knew what the place was used for. Anyone who was looking for a deal would naturally enter.

After everything was explained, Rudy completely forgot about what he was thinking about earlier.

Jackie let out a sigh of relief.

Rudy had been fixated on Grayson's matter, which Jackie was helpless to do anything about. He did not really want to explain too much to Rudy. Jackie felt like there was definitely something hidden behind everything.

Before they had a certain level of skill, he did not want to rush to uncover the mystery. There were some things that they could do nothing about even if they knew the truth. The two of them arrived at the market as they chatted.

At a glance, there were at least a thousand people there. Countless stalls were set up everywhere, and there were all sorts of things being sold. There were high-level technique manuals, various pills, and even some people offering to help in settling personal grudges.

There were all sorts of things on display, greatly surprising Rudy. As looked all around, he suddenly stopped and frowned, "Even though I don't really know what's going on outside, I still have some knowledge of things. I feel like the things on sale here are all quite expensive, some of them are being sold at several times their prices. There's clearly a problem…"

After saying that, he was worried that Jackie would not believe him, so he pulled Jackie towards a stall by the path. He pointed at a pill there, "Look, isn't that the snow pill?! Ten thousand spirit crystals is already an incredibly high price, but it's being sold at twenty thousand here. The price is doubled! Isn't that too absurd?!"

Rudy was incredibly confused as he frowned and asked.

Jackie reached out and pulled at Rudy speechlessly, not wanting him to be pointing everywhere.

The person at the stall had clearly seen Rudy pointing at him, and heard what Rudy said as well. He suddenly said unhappily, "What are you saying?! My prices are already the most reasonable in the tower. If you don't believe me, go look around yourself. If you don't want to buy anything, stop spouting nonsense! Even though we can't fight in the tower, I can still make you pay after we get out!"

Rudy hid behind Jackie in shock, finally knowing some fear.

Jackie frowned and looked at the person, "Since you've already set up a stall, you should naturally be willing to have your prices be talked about. If you can't even bear to listen to that, then you shouldn't set up the stall. Why do you care if I want to buy it or not? If you want to settle any grudges, then take out your entry token. Why don't we find an arena nearby to fight?"

That person‘s face darkened. He saw that Jackie had alchemist robes on, but still had an extraordinary aura about him. It was obvious that Jackie had an amazing background. Any alchemist who managed to enter the second level would either have the skills or the backing. That person just wanted to set up his stall for two more days and did not want any more trouble. So, he merely glared at Jackie angrily, not saying anything else.

Jackie was not someone merciless, and he did not want to waste any more time either. After looking at Rudy, he pulled Rudy toward the other parts of the market.

Rudy‘s head was lowered throughout as his face was full of regret. He felt like he had not been any help to Jackie recently, and was always holding Jackie back. He was not that smart, and would constantly do stupid things.

The market was not some place where he could just casually point around. He had not even lowered his voice earlier, letting the other guy hear everything. Anyone with just a bit of temper would definitely have gotten incited.

After the two of them walked for some distance, Jackie said coldly, “In the future, think things through before you do anything!”

Chapter 2849
Rudy nodded frantically, “I won’t cause you any more trouble in the future. I swear!”

Jackie glanced at him and did not say anything else. Even if Rudy swore, he still did not think that Rudy would not make any more mistakes. After all, the guy never thought things through.

The market was a mess, and there were all sorts of things for sale, both good and bad. Jackie looked at everything to see if there was anything he liked.

As they walked, Rudy suddenly said, “You didn’t answer my question. Why are the prices so different from outside? Why are people still willing to buy them for such a high price?”

Jackie turned around and looked at Rudy helplessly.

The guy always asked things with a curious expression. If Jackie did not answer, Rudy would just keep on barking. Even if Jackie scolded him, he would still keep asking. To save himself any further trouble, Jackie patiently explained, “The Whirling World only allows warriors that are younger than sixty years old to enter. So many people entered in such a short time, and they can’t go out in two years.

Comparatively, the number of resources will be a lot shorter. The prices will naturally be different from the Hestia Continent. The price of pills rose by so much thanks to the lack of alchemists in the Whirling World. Even if they had brought their own supply of pills before they entered, it would already have been consumed. Alchemists are a very special profession. Normally, only those at a certain age can become a seventh-grade alchemists. Eighth-grade alchemists…”

As that was said, Rudy suddenly reacted to Jackie’s words, “I understand now! Pills are consumables, and they’ll eventually be depleted. Even if there are a lot of materials in the Whirling World, it’s impossible to do anything with them unless there are high-level alchemists around. That’s why the price of pills rose by so much!”

Jackie nodded, “It’s just a week in, and there’s still a long time away from the full two years. The further back it gets, the more pills will be used, and the more expensive pills will get. I thought about this before I entered the Whirling World. When the time comes, we can take out some time to refine pills and sell those pills for massive profits!”

Thinking about that, Jackie‘s lips curled up. Even though he had earned a pretty sum from the task hall, the number was still nothing compared to what he really needed.

He needed to take the chance to earn spirit crystals. Only with massive amounts of spirit crystals would he have the right to buy ninth-grade spirit crystals, which was his biggest goal in the Hestia Continent.

Rudy looked at Jackie curiously, “Jackie, you seem to really need spirit crystals? Is there something you need to buy?”

Even if Rudy was sometimes slow and made a lot of mistakes, he was not a complete idiot. After being with Jackie for so long, he knew Jackie quite a bit. Jackie seemed particularly obsessed with spirit crystals, never letting up any chance to earn more.

Chapter 2850
Jackie nodded, not being in the mood to explain things to Rudy.

The two of them walked forward for a while when Rudy suddenly stopped, reaching out to grab Jackie’s arm. He shot a look at Jackie.

He whispered, “Look at that guy in black clothes. There’s only a piece of paper in front of him and nothing else!”

Jackie noticed it after Rudy brought it up, and the two of them walked toward the man.

At that moment, the man had sat cross-legged and was closing his eyes to rest. Even if Jackie approached him, the man did not seem to have any intention of opening his eyes. He did not have anything in front of him other than a massive piece of paper. On the paper, it was written very clearly that he needed a seventh-grade alchemist to help him refine a blood condensing pill.

The blood condensing pill was a middle tier seventh-grade pill. It could help a warrior quickly suppress any internal injuries and replenish their blood. It was considered a necessary pill for any warrior. The man needed a seventh-grade alchemist to refine twenty pills. The materials needed for the pills would all be prepared by the man, and they were not allowed to fail more than five times! It meant that the man would only prepare twenty five portions of the materials.

What moved Jackie the most was the reward. It was clearly written that after the task was completed, the alchemist would be paid sixty-seven thousand spirit crystals!

The price was quite alluring.

After looking at that, Rudy excitedly whispered to Jackie, “That means that each pill is over three thousand spirit crystals. The price is quite decent, and most importantly, he wants twenty in one go. After refining it, we’ll be able to get sixty-seven thousand spirit crystals right away. Jackie, do you want to accept this?”

As Rudy said that, he seemed incredibly emotional.

Jackie sighed as he thought about it for a while before nodding, “It won’t need that much time anyway. There’s a time limit on it, saying we need to give out the goods in a week. It won‘t affect us too much if we stay here for an extra week.”

Rudy looked so excited that it seemed like he was the seventh-grade alchemist when he heard that Jackie was going to accept the assignment. Since they were already sure, then there was no need to hesitate.

Jackie said, “I’ll take up your business. You can close your stall now.”

The man slowly opened his eyes when he heard that. His sharp eyes gave Jackie a once over, stopping at the sixth-grade alchemist badge on Jackie’s chest.

He coughed lightly as he said raspily, “I hate unnecessary trouble the most. You‘re a sixth-grade alchemist, so how can you refine a middle-tier seventh-grade pill? Or do you have someone amazing behind you? If you’re not the one doing the refining, call the other guy over. I have to see the guy for myself, or I won’t be able to relax giving you the materials. Otherwise, I’d lose out on a lot if you end up failing in the end.”

Rudy was not happy to hear that, so he said with a frown, “So what if he‘s a sixth-grade alchemist. He might have a sixth-grade alchemist badge on, but he’s been a seventh-grade alchemist for a long time. He had been training in isolation before this, so he never took the test. If he hadn’t left for the Whirling World in a hurry, he would have a seventh-grade alchemist badge on his chest.”

There was some truth to those words, and they were meant to make the man accept the business quickly.

After the man heard Rudy’s explanation, he sneered in contempt.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2851 - 2860

Chapter 2851

He did not even bother looking up, “No matter what you say, there’s no way I’ll make a deal with a sixth-grade alchemist. I only have twenty-five sets of materials. If you end up ruining them, I won’t have anything left.”

“Who’s going to ruin them?!” Rudy was getting a bit excited at that moment.

His face reddened and he wanted to argue with the man until the end but was stopped by Jackie.

In truth, what the man said was reasonable. If Jackie were in his shoes, he would also be worried that his materials would be ruined. Deals could not be done so easily. After all, the materials needed for the blood condensing pills were incredibly expensive. It was natural that he did not want to take the risk.

After Jackie pulled Rudy back, he straightened his body and said earnestly, “I will sign a contract with you. If I don’t finish refining the pills based on your requirements, not only will I reimburse you for all your losses, I will pay you an extra hundred thousand spirit crystals as well. What do you think?”

Jackie’s words finally caused the man to get serious. If they signed a contract, then there would be no room for any regret. The conditions that Jackie mentioned also moved the black-clothed man.

Even if Jackie did a blunder, the man would still be compensated for his losses. He would also get an additional hundred thousand spirit crystals. Even though that was not a lot of spirit crystals to the man, it was still not a small sum.

He thought about it for a moment before nodding and adding, “If you mess things up, there should be a time limit to pay me back. I’ll give you five days. If you don’t refine twenty blood condensing pills in a week, you have to complete your end and pay me back for my losses within five days. That’s with the hundred thousand spirit crystals!”

Jackie nodded, lamenting that the guy was quite sharp to have added in such an important clause. Without a time limit, Jackie could drag things on forever even if he really messed things up.

After the two of them decided on the contents of the contract, the man happily took out a scroll for the contract. They looked at the contents and sealed the contract with their blood. The contract took effect immediately.

Normally, warriors would not agree to contracts so easily. That was because contracts could not be changed the moment they were written. If they fail to uphold the contract, they would be punished by the world itself. It was something fatal. However, if the warriors were very confident, getting into a contract was not a big deal. The man looked through the contents in great detail and asked Jackie to look it over as well. After the two of them were sure that the contents were right, the man cut his finger with a knife.

Just as he was about to drip the blood onto the scroll, an unfriendly voice was heard, “Hold on! Why are you in such a hurry? I’m telling you this out of kindness, but sometimes even contracts aren‘t useful! This guy is just a sixth-grade alchemist, he will definitely mess things up for you. It’ll waste so much of your time, why don’t you rethink things…”

As the person spoke, he walked next to Jackie. The person was already there earlier, but his gaze had been on other stalls. Jackie did not pay much attention to the person.

After the person walked over, Jackie noticed that the person had on clothing that was similar to his. The person had a seventh-grade alchemist badge on, so he was obviously a seventh-grade alchemist.

Chapter 2852
Jackie frowned. The person did not look like he had good intentions. It was obvious that the person was there to look for trouble. He had clearly just been walking around, but he was acting like he had just gotten there. He deliberately interrupted them at a key moment.

Rudy frowned and said, “Stop trying to cause trouble. Both sides have already agreed to the deal, why are you trying to get in the way?”

The man sneered, not even bothering to look at Rudy as he saluted the black-clothed man, “I am Manse Noble, an alchemist from the Compass Pavilion.”

After saying that, he even pointed at the seventh-grade alchemist badge with his finger, “Even if you’ve already negotiated things, you should look at who you’re dealing with. This person’s only a sixth-grade alchemist… It’s very likely that he’ll make a mess of your things. Why don’t you give the deal to me? I guarantee that I’ll be able to complete twenty blood condensing pills in seven days!”

After Manse said that, the black-clothed man was suddenly hesitant. After all, no matter what Jackie said, he still had a sixth-grade alchemist badge on his chest. He really cared if he could get twenty blood condensing pills in a week.

No matter what Jackie had said, there were too many uncertainties. If Jackie really made a mess of things, then he would be delayed even more. Even if he can be compensated, he still had important things he needed to do.

Manse immediately smiled at the black-clothed man’s hesitation. He pulled out a fan from somewhere and fanned himself as he said, “You haven’t signed the contract anyway, so you still have time to decide. I can even accept less of a reward. You were offering sixty-seven thousand, but I just want sixty thousand."

Rudy got anxious at those words as he shouted, "You're trying to steal this deal!"

Manse turned around calmly as he nodded, saying without any hesitation, "That's right! I am trying to steal your business!"

After saying that, he looked at Jackie with a challenging expression, as if he was telling Jackie to hit him if Jackie was unhappy. However, the tower did not allow fighting in the market, so they had to bear it. The moment Jackie tried anything, he would trigger the laws of the tower, and would immediately be struck by lightning and killed!

Rudy was so furious his face turned purple as he breathed erratically. He wanted nothing more than to choke that person to death.

Jackie furrowed his eyebrows and said calmly, "You came here just to cause me trouble, right?"

Manse shook his head, "Who do you think you are? You're not worth me doing that!"

It was obvious then that it had definitely been Manse's intentions. Jackie immediately understood. Manse had said that he was from the Compass Pavilion, and Jackie had just offended the Compass Pavilion.

Those guys from the first level were probably incredibly unhappy and asked for a fellow disciple from the second floor to help them vent.

Jackie snorted as a flash of unhappiness appeared on his face. At that moment, he was a little angry. He hated those flies that he could never get rid of the most. The Compass Pavilion was just like flies in Jackie's eyes. Yet, Jackie did not want to let go of that deal so easily.

He looked up and stared at the man earnestly while he voiced out, "He might be a seventh-grade alchemist, but you can't be sure that he'll definitely manage to complete this task. After all, there are good and bad seventh-grade alchemists!"

Chapter 2853
"The fact that I'm signing a contract with you proves that I'm incredibly confident. If I can't finish the task as stipulated, I'll compensate you with enough spirit crystals! I was already willing to do that, so why are you still hesitating?"

The man's face stiffened, suddenly finding himself in a difficult situation. In truth, he was actually leaning towards Manse. After all, Manse had a seventh-grade alchemist badge on his chest.

No matter what Jackie said, the man only saw a sixth-grade alchemist badge on his chest, so there was a lot of uncertainty. The allure of a hundred thousand spirit crystals was huge, but he did not want to waste time!

After Manse heard that, he let out a laugh, “I really don’t know where you’re getting all your confidence from. A mere sixth-grade alchemist actually dares to accept an assignment meant for a seventh-grade alchemist. I think you should know your place before you take up this task. A hundred thousand spirit crystals might not be much to you, but you’ll end up wasting someone else‘s time!”

Manse turned Jackie into a rich kid who never lacked spirit crystals in just a few words. The moment he said that the black-clothed man’s eyes glinted as if he suddenly understood everything.

The man looked at Jackie with a meaningful expression as he pulled the contract away.

“Jackie, I’m sorry, but I think Manse is right. You probably don’t really need spirit crystals if you signed such a contract with me. If I had a lot of time, I wouldn’t have minded making this deal with you, but my time is limited. I have to pick Manse, who’s better.”

Manse’s smile deepened after he heard that, but Rudy curled his fists in anger as he stared at Manse viciously.

Rudy suddenly turned to look at the black-clothed man, “There’s an order to doing business. We already agreed to the terms and were about to sign the contract. Why are you suddenly going back on your words!”

The black-clothed man raised an eyebrow as he said nonchalantly, “I just set up a stall here. No matter what you said, I’m still worried you’ll make a mess of the deal.”

Rudy got even angrier after he heard that. He pointed at the man, wanting to continue arguing with the man. However, Jackie pulled Rudy back again. Since the man already made his choice, Jackie would not force it.

Jackie turned and pulled Rudy out of the market.

Rudy was incredibly unhappy, mumbling as he was being pulled by Jackie, “That Manse deliberately came over to cause us trouble! That brat is so despicable. If the laws weren‘t there, I would definitely teach him a lesson. We’re both alchemists, he’s definitely not stronger than me!”

Jackie sighed helplessly as he said without turning around, “He really was there to cause me trouble, but I’m not someone who’ll just take it sitting down. They’ll pay the price.”

After that, Rudy started to be a bit hesitant as he whispered, “Are we going to make the Compass Pavilion our enemies?”

Jackie nodded, saying earnestly, “They were the ones who acted like this first, so I can’t be blamed for retaliating. You have to understand something. Taking a step back doesn’t mean I’m giving up. I just want them to let their guard down!”

Rudy took a deep breath, not continuing. He suddenly felt conflicted. He actually wanted to tell Jackie to just let it go. After all, they were facing an eighth-grade clan.

Chapter 2854
There were countless disciples from the Compass Pavilion. Each one they killed would be replaced by another. However, he could understand Jackie. Even if he said that Jackie would not listen to him. Just as his thoughts were wandering, a familiar figure appeared in front of them.

He suddenly stopped as he grabbed Rudy’s arm, “Look at that person!”

Jackie furrowed his eyebrows as he followed Rudy’s fingers. He saw a familiar figure walking forward.

Jackie did not have the chance to react before Rudy hurriedly said, “That’s Grayson! It’s him!”

After saying that, he let go of Jackie before Jackie could react. He rushed over as Jackie frowned, cursing Rudy for being so impatient.

By the time Jackie reacted and tried to grab Rudy, he was already in front of Grayson. Rudy reached out and grabbed Grayson’s arm. Grayson turned around in surprise to look at Rudy. At that moment, Rudy was so emotional that he ignored everything else.

“Where have you been?! Why are you here? What happened to you?!” Rudy’s words flowed out as he poured out everything that was on his mind.

His eyes widened as he asked everything in an accusing tone. Jackie‘s face reddened in anger, not expecting Rudy to be so reckless.

After seeing Grayson, Rudy lost all of his earlier rationality and rushed right in front of Grayson.

Jackie angrily pulled at Rudy’s arm, pulling Rudy back. Grayson first looked at Rudy with a confused gaze. After Rudy said that, a sharp look flashed in Grayson’s eyes, “You have the wrong guy. I don‘t know you two at all.’’

After saying that, Grayson turned around and left.

Staring at Grayson's departing back, Rudy had a mystified look on his face.

What did Grayson say? Did Grayson not know him?

Why did Grayson say that? What was Grayson hiding?

As those thoughts flashed in his mind, he suddenly heard a scolding.

"Did you forget everything I told you before? I told you not to act recklessly, so why did you rush over?!"

Rudy turned around to see a furious Jackie. It was the first time he saw Jackie so angry.

Rudy shrunk back as he mumbled to himself, not able to say anything.

Looking at Rudy like that, Jackie got even angrier. He pushed Rudy away as he quickly walked forward towards Grayson.

Seeing Jackie push him away, Rudy started to panic. He hurriedly followed behind Jackie, afraid that Jackie would not bring him along anymore.

As he walked, he said, "He suddenly appeared in front of me and I immediately panicked. I lost control of myself. I really want to know why he disappeared. After all, this problem has bugged me for a long time. I was only thinking about asking him then, losing all other considerations."

Jackie sighed as he stopped, turning around to look at Rudy seriously, "Then did you get your answers?"

Chapter 2855
Rudy shook his head. He had gotten nothing. Grayson had even said that Grayson did not know them.

"What is this guy trying to do? He actually said he doesn't know us, and even looked at us like it was the first time he met us!" Rudy said with some difficulty.

There had clearly been no one around Grayson, so why did he not tell the truth?

After all, those gathered here were all unrelated people. There was nothing wrong with voicing out any difficulties.

Jackie no longer knew how to teach Rudy a lesson. Rudy had clearly said that he would not be impulsive anymore, and always think things through before doing anything, but he forgot everything the moment he saw Grayson, rushing over to grab Grayson.

Jackie frowned, “If you make a mistake like this again, I’m leaving by myself. I won’t bring you along anymore. You’re really holding me back at the moment. I clearly told you before that you shouldn’t involve yourself in or talk about this. Even if we saw Grayson, I told you not to ask him anything in case we alert our enemies. There are a lot of things we can’t control. You’re really an idiot! Did you see what uniform he was wearing?”

The last sentence was practically said by Jackie through clenched teeth. Rudy frowned, thinking about it in detail before he suddenly widened his mouth. His eyes threatened to pop out of their sockets, “He was wearing the clothes of a disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion!”

Jackie nodded as various emotions played in his eyes.

Grayson really had been wearing the uniform of an inner disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion. Those clothes were not something just anyone could wear. Furthermore, Jackie had felt a strong aura from Grayson earlier. Even though it might not be that strong in Jackie’s eyes, Jackie was still sure that Grayson was already at the spring solidifying realm.

He had not planned on saying anything to Rudy, but he was worried that Rudy would cause trouble again, so he said, “He should already be in the spring solidifying realm.”

The moment he said that Rudy gaped, “What did you say? He’s already at the spring solidifying realm? You’re talking about Grayson?!”

Jackie nodded, “Even though the laws are restricting him, and we can only see that he’s at the late stage of the innate realm, just from his aura alone, I can tell that he’s already at the spring solidifying realm. It looked like a lot had happened. There must be a reason he said he did not know us. After you said those words, his eyes had a sharp look. It was like he was looking at an enemy! It looks like it’s not just a secret hidden behind this. I told you to be careful, but you refused to listen. Now, we’ve already alerted him. No one knows what will happen after this!”

The more Jackie thought about it, the angrier he got. He had already been angered by Manse earlier, and now Rudy’s actions sent his rage to even higher levels.

Rudy’s lips twitched as he looked at Jackie apologetically. He had just wanted to ask Grayson some questions. He had not thought about anything else. He had not wanted to admit it when Jackie called him an idiot before, but now he had to. He never did anything right and made a mess of everything.

“What does he want exactly? What kind of secret does he have? Why is he looking at us like an enemy? Could he be afraid that we’ll say something?” Rudy widened his eyes and asked curiously.

Chapter 2856

Jackie shook his head, “I’m not sure about that, but what makes me even more curious was the fact that he really was looking at you in confusion earlier. It’s like he doesn’t know who you are at all. After you said all that, he looked at you as an enemy. It’s as if you touched upon his secret… Could he really not know us?”

“How could he not know who we are?! The three of us went through so much. Unless he lost his memories, how could he not know who we are? He even hates you so much…”

Rudy was very hesitant when he said the last words, but it was the truth.

Jackie turned around, full of suspicion in his eyes. At that moment, he really did not know what to think about the situation. He felt like there were traps everywhere, and problems that could not be solved.

After a long time, Jackie shook his head, “Let’s not think about this anymore. We need to hurry up and leave the second floor. We can make our plans after we reach the third.”

“Why are we in such a hurry to leave?” Rudy asked curiously.

Jackie sighed, “I want to distance myself from Grayson. We’ll only be able to get enough time to properly look into things if we’re away from him.”

The second level’s arenas had a lot fewer spectators compared to the first level’s. However, that was just in comparison. Looking around, the stands were still incredibly packed.

Jackie picked out the second arena to find a place to sit at. After that, he pulled at Rudy to sit with him. The two of them looked at the evenly matched fight on the stage, neither of them saying anything.

After a long time, Rudy said, “Why aren’t you queuing up? Didn’t you say you want to leave this place as soon as possible?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, looking around before he said, “I’m waiting for someone. The second level’s rules are a bit different from the first. They don’t arrange the matches for us, but we have to choose our opponents for ourselves.”

The moment he said that he saw a white-robed man walking toward them. The person had a clear look in his eyes and looked very polite. He sat down next to Jackie.

Rudy frowned at the sight. The two of them had chosen a place that was more secluded to save themselves any trouble. However, the person had sat down next to Jackie right after he arrived. However, they were in no position to say anything if he did not.

Rudy was just about to say something when Jackie interrupted him, “Enough with the nonsense. Look at the match first, that person is about to lose.”

Rudy raised an eyebrow, feeling like Jackie was speaking a bit strangely. However, he could not tell where the strange feeling came from. The match continued for a little longer, and a victor was decided. The black-clothed man fell to the ground, spitting out blood. The green-clothed man had won, and he shouted in excitement as he stood at the arena.

Once the black- clothed man was brought away, the person next to Jackie suddenly spoke, “I’m Walter Conch, could I know where you come from?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow and smiled before replying politely, “My name is Jackie, I don’t come from any clan.”

Chapter 2857
Walter’s smile deepened after he heard that, “So you’re a wandering warrior, but you must be very skilled if you’re here.”

Words of praise started to be spoken. Walter had just started talking to Jackie, but he suddenly looked like a long-lost friend as he opened up his arms and spoke happily.

He asked Jackie what he had gone through, and which ninth-level city he came from. He asked Jackie where Jackie was going after as well. Jackie calmly answered all his questions. However, Jackie merely brushed over any sensitive topics, giving vague answers.

Rudy started to frown as he listened on, feeling like Walter’s friendliness was too sudden. Even if Rudy was not the most intelligent, he could still tell that there was something off about Walter.

Since Walter was on the second level, Walter had to be skilled. Normally, strong people would never waste time on anyone they did not know. It was not like they had nothing to do, so why were they wasting time on chit-chat. Walter even expressed his admiration for Jackie despite not knowing anything about Jackie. Those empty pleasantries sounded so fake. Anyone remotely intelligent could tell.

Rudy understood Jackie somewhat well.

Jackie hated dealing with things like this. He would typically already be incredibly polite if he even bothered answering a couple of questions. Yet, for some reason, he seemed to be patiently talking to Walter. He answered any questions Walter had as if he was a very friendly neighbor.

Rudy looked at the two of them chatting away happily, and he was more and more confused.

After they talked for a while, Walter suddenly said, “Both of us want to reach the third level anyway. Jackie, since you indulged me, why don’t I give you a chance. The two of us can go on stage together, and I’ll surrender to you and send you up. What do you think?”

Jackie did not even think about it and agreed, even saying, “Thank you so much, Walter. “

Walter waved it off, “No need to thank me. You get along with me so well. I’ve always been like this. I’ll treat anyone who gets along with me well.”

He talked as if he was a saint. Jackie nodded with a smile after hearing him, agreeing with his words.

Rudy was stunned. That person was definitely a big scammer, so why was Jackie accepting things so easily?

It seemed like Jackie was even looking at Walter like a brother.

Jackie took out his token from Mustard Seed, “Since the two of us are going to go into the arena, then let’s not wait anymore. Let’s start queuing now.”

When Walter saw that Jackie was so easygoing, he could not hold back his smile. His smile even threatened to split his face apart as he hastily took out his own token. After placing the two tokens together, a faint purple glow was seen where the tokens touched. Information was transferred to their minds.

The second arena, fight number seventy-three!

It was already the sixty-eighth fight, so there was not too long until their battle. After everything was done, Walter‘s expression suddenly changed. He started to look at Jackie with a harsher expression as well. However, Jackie acted like he did not know anything, even if he had seen the change in Walter, he acted as if nothing had happened.

Rudy’s heart stopped when he saw Walter’s expression. He felt like something was wrong, and took advantage of Walter being distracted to pull at Jackie’s sleeve. Jackie turned around and shot Rudy a look, motioning for Rudy to calm down.

Chapter 2858
After handling anything, Jackie seemed to have lost his friendliness. He turned away, no longer talking to Walter.

Walter could still hear it initially, but when he saw that Jackie was so calm, he could not keep his calm. He frowned and asked, “Are you really stupid, or is there something wrong with your eyes?”

The moment he said that the atmosphere that had been so warm earlier suddenly cooled down. Jackie raised an eyebrow, not saying anything. Since both of them had accomplished their goal, Jackie did not feel like saying anything else. Walter felt like he had been challenged when he saw that Jackie did not answer, and did not even bother sparing him a glance.

He snorted coldly, “Do you feel like you really made a friend?”

Jackie was speechless as his lips twitched. He turned to look at Walter, “Did you want to see me being incredibly terrified after you revealed your goals? Did you want me to regret everything I did?”

Jackie’s words completely stunned Walter.

So Jackie had seen through everything? Then why did Jackie agree to meet him in the arena?

Walter sneered as he said, “I’m a chosen disciple from the Compass Pavilion!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, having already guessed that. Since their inner disciples were no match for him, then the Compass Pavilion would definitely have sent a chosen disciple at him.

After Jackie heard that, he remained calm as he stared at the battle in the arena, in no mood to care about Walter at all. Walter narrowed his eyes as a harsh look flashed in them. His actions had already thoroughly trampled on Walter’s fragile pride. Sometimes, ignoring them was a better way of angering people.

Walter snorted, “Don’t think that you can’t hide your fear just by doing this. Could you not know how strong a chosen disciple from an eighth-grade clan is?”

Jackie sighed helplessly, not really wanting to bother with Walter. He did not care if he was from an eighth or ninth-grade clan. They were all the same to him.

Rudy could suddenly not stand it after hearing Walter‘s words.

Earlier, he had been guessing who Walter really was. After all, Walter’s actions were vastly different from what he saw in normal warriors. After Walter revealed where he was from, Rudy was even more nervous.

Rudy gulped as he looked at Jackie.

Jackie was still sitting there incredibly calmly, not reacting to anything Walter said. His actions actually got Rudy even more anxious. He had a lot to say, but he did not dare to be too direct in front of Walter. He was forced to whisper to Jackie, “You’ll be going to the stage in a bit…”

Before he could finish, Jackie stopped him with a hand. He knew better than anyone that he needed to go onto the stage. There was no need for any reminders. At that moment, footsteps could be heard from a distance. Jackie looked over and saw a few familiar figures that were getting closer to them. Those figures looked like they obviously had ill intentions. There was hatred and anger in their eyes.

The one in front of Manse, who had been causing him trouble earlier. He even saw Vale in the crowd. Vale was still incredibly pale, obviously not having recovered from his heavy injuries. However, even injured, he still managed to get to the second level. It was obvious that he had taken a lot of high-grade pills.

Chapter 2859
Jackie raised an eyebrow, not reacting to those unwanted guests. They were in the spectator stands, where fighting was restricted. If they dared to do anything there, the ones who would end up being punished were them. Since they could not fight, he did not care. It was obvious why all of them were there.

Manse let out a snort as he said mockingly, “You’re really something else. Since you know everything, why are you still acting like you don‘t care? Do you really not know what a chosen disciple of an eighth-grade clan represents?

“Don’t think that you can’t act so arrogantly in front of the disciple of the Compass Pavilion just because you beat Vincent. Vincent might be a little skilled, but he’s not that great among the inner disciples! Now, you’re challenging one of the strongest disciples of the Compass Pavilion!”

As they said that, they started to surround Jackie. Even though they did not attack, they were still acting very aggressively. Jackie frowned. There was still some time until the seventy-third match. He had planned on quietly watching the fights. He never expected so many flies to appear.

Jackie sighed. It seemed like it was useless even if he shut his eyes and mouth. They would always trouble him if he did not shut them up completely. He looked towards the seventh-grade alchemist, Manse. The guy was in front of everyone and looked like the leader.

Jackie coldly smiled, “It’s the first time I’ve seen an alchemist talk about warriors so confidently!”

Alchemists were often incredibly weak. That was something every warrior in the Hestia Continent knew. Yet, Manse seemed to be criticizing warriors like nothing. It was as if he was actually stronger than even chosen disciples.

Manse’s expression darkened as anger flashed in his eyes. Before he came, he had heard from the other disciples that Jackie was not only somewhat skilled, but good with his words as well. They advised Manse against engaging Jackie in a battle of words.

Manse had not believed it then, but it seemed like Manse had to now. Manse coldly snorted, “Brat! Don’t be so pleased with yourself. Once you get on the stage, you’ll realize you offended someone you shouldn’t have. You’re not someone who can stand the consequences!”

Jackie’s lips twitched speechlessly. It was the same speech again. Every time he met someone who could not deal with him, they would always say the same thing. He coldly smiled, “Vincent said that too, but how did he end up?”

Their expressions soured at that.

Rudy could not stop himself from giggling, which caused their expressions to darken even more.

Walter said, “Don’t be so pleased with yourself! I’ve always been someone who paid back all my debts. I don’t believe in letting people off. I won’t kill you easily. I’ll spare your life and slowly torture you. I‘ll seal off all your movements, making you unable to fight. Then, I’ll use flames to harm your skin. Once you’re completely burnt, I’ll give you pills to treat yourself. After you recover a bit, I’ll grill you alive. I’ll make sure to torture you until you’re begging for death. I‘ll show everyone what the consequences of offending the Compass Pavilion are!”

The venomous words caused Rudy to frown. He shuddered, feeling a chill around his body.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, feeling like it was the first time he had heard of such cruel torture.

Chapter 2860
He turned to look at Walter and saw that Walter was looking at him incredibly earnestly at that moment. Walter seemed like he wanted Jackie to believe that what he said would definitely happen.

Jackie took a deep breath. He had to admit that Walter was stronger than everyone else. However, Jackie was not referring to martial strength, but that Walter‘s ability to piss people off was far greater than anyone else. Jackie was not easily angered, but he was furious after those words.

Jackie let out a cold laugh, “You better remember what you said.”

Walter raised an eyebrow, “Of course, I’ll remember everything I said.”

Jackie nodded before he looked back at the evenly matched pair on the stage. Everyone was silent again. Walter had an unhappy glint in his eyes when he saw that Jackie was looking away again. He had obviously said everything he did earlier with his own goals in mind.

He wanted Jackie to be filled with fear and worry. He wanted to look at Jackie's panicked look. He wanted Jackie to beg him, but he did not get any reaction other than a cold laugh. It caused Walter to wonder if what he said earlier had not been cruel enough.

Manse's expression darkened as well. He wanted to see Jackie's terrified expression, just as Walter did. He wanted Jackie to be begging for mercy but never expected Jackie's reaction to being so small. Manse took a deep breath as he sat down next to Walter.

Walter was the only thing between Jackie and Manse.

Jackie could not be bothered dealing with those people. After looking at the battle in the arena, he did not want to say anything else at all. However, the ones around him were not willing to waste their time like that.

Manse took a deep breath, "You're the most arrogant alchemist I've ever seen."

Jackie frowned. He knew that Manse would not just let things rest. As he mockingly said that, Jackie snorted, not really caring as he said, "Since you're so confident in Walter, why don't we make a bet?"

Rudy was immediately excited when he heard there would be a bet. In a short few days, it was already the second time Jackie was betting against someone. The person before had lost ten thousand spirit crystals, so he wondered how much Jackie would set the bet at this time.

Manse furrowed his eyebrows, not expecting that Jackie would suddenly bring up a bet. However, he never believed that Jackie had any chance at all, so he was naturally happy to bet against Jackie.

Manse nodded without any hesitation, "Let's bet if you want to. How much do you want to bet?"

Jackie raised nine fingers, "What about ninety thousand spirit crystals? If I manage to beat Walter in the seventy-third match, then You will give me ninety thousand spirit crystals. If I lose, then I'll give you the same amount!"

Manse waved it off as he let out a cold laugh, "I'm okay with betting a hundred and ninety spirit crystals, let alone just ninety!"

Jackie suddenly laughed as he hurriedly took out a contract scroll and patiently spoke…

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2861 - 2870

Chapter 2861

“Since we’re betting, then we should do it properly. In order to stop you from going back on your words, let’s sign a contract. If you win I’ll give you a hundred and ninety thousand spirit crystals. If I win, you give me the same amount.”

Manse frowned, “You seem to really like signing contracts…”

Back at the market, he had robbed Jackie’s deal before Jackie could sign a contract with the black-clothed man. He did not expect that Jackie would want to sign a contract just because he wanted to bet with Jackie.

Jackie let out a slight laugh as he raised his head and looked at Manse seriously, “If you don’t want to sign a contract, then say it. There’s no need to try to get out of it. I just think that a contract is the best assurance.”

After saying that, Manse did not waste any more time talking to Jackie. Signing a contract was actually better for Jackie.

That idiot thought he could beat a chosen disciple of an eighth-grade clan. Since he was so willing to offer out a hundred and ninety thousand spirit crystals for free, Manse would be dumb not to accept it.

Manse nodded, “Then let’s hurry up and sign it.”

In order to prevent any surprises, Jackie wrote down the contents of the contract at the fastest speed he had ever used in his life. He dropped his blood on it before handing it over to Manse. After Manse took the scroll, Manse dropped his own blood on it without any hesitation.

The words on the contract suddenly twisted and distorted, floating out of the scroll in mid-air. The power of heaven and earth descended upon it, fusing with those words. After a while, the words fused back into the scroll, representing the fact that the contract was sealed.

After doing all of that, Jackie smiled as he kept the scroll. There was no longer any way to change the deal after it was set, and it could not be delayed either. Manse’s expression soured even more when he saw how happy Jackie was acting.

He snorted and said harshly, “You’re the most arrogant person I’ve seen…”

Jackie turned to look at Manse, “The feeling is mutual.”

After saying that, Jackie went quiet again. They were surrounded by disciples of the Compass Pavilion. Everyone had traces of confusion on their faces after seeing what Jackie was doing.

They felt like Jackie was incredibly surprising. Initially, everyone felt like he was being so calm simply because he was too scared, and was forcing himself to put up a front. He did not want to show any fear in front of anyone. Yet, with what Jackie was doing, everyone suddenly knew that he was not putting up an act at all.

Jackie looked so unfazed simply because he was incredibly confident in himself. Possibly too much so.

Other than Rudy, everyone there thought that Jackie had no chance of winning. Jackie did not mind either. As everyone was in disbelief, a familiar voice was heard from below. Jackie looked down, and saw the black-clothed man walking towards them, “So it’s you guys! No wonder you were so against each other. There were grudges between you.”

The black-clothed man was the person that Jackie had wanted to deal with from before.

The moment they saw the man, Rudy was filled with anger. The man had clearly agreed to deal with Jackie but had pulled back. Rudy coldly snorted, “You have nothing to do with this, why are you interfering?!”

The man never expected Rudy to be so rude, and his expression darkened. The man might not be the strongest of warriors, but he still had his pride. He could not bear being talked to like that by a sixth-grade alchemist.

Chapter 2862
The man furrowed his eyebrows in anger, “Why do you care what I’m saying?! Do you want to die?! I happen to be lacking an opponent. Hand over your entry token. Let’s fight!”

Rudy snorted as he said nonchalantly, “Why are you pretending to be someone so strong in front of me? Don’t you see the sixth-grade alchemist badge on my chest? You’re trying to fight an alchemist? Why don’t we compete in alchemy?”

After he said that, the black-clothed man’s face reddened. If it were not because of the rules in place, the man would have already been choking Rudy.

Rudy saw that the man had nothing to say, and he started to get more pleased with himself. He had wanted to mock the man more, but was stopped by Jackie, “Why are you so hard to control? Shut your mouth from now on. No matter what happens, you’d better make sure your mouth is shut tight, understood?”

Rudy shrank back after being lectured by Jackie like that, not daring to say anything else. After all, he had greatly inconvenienced Jackie before.

The man snorted coldly before turning to look at Jackie.

He had more or less heard what was said earlier, and he looked at Jackie and said, “Do you really think you’re stronger than a chosen disciple of an eighth-grade clan?”

Jackie frowned, not wanting to bother with it.

The man was not annoyed when he saw that Jackie did not answer him. Instead, he got even more interested in Jackie.

Time slowly ticked away. Either because of the bet or because of Jackie’s cold attitude, but it became strangely silent. There was no longer anything else being said. Right up to when the seventy-third match was about to start, Jackie did not hear anything else. Walter stood up and sighed as he shot a look at Jackie.

He said, “No matter who you see or what you hear, you’re not to leave this place.”

After saying that, Jackie headed down towards the stage.

Walter had wanted to say some more things to instigate Jackie, worried that Jackie would not follow him to the stage. Yet, he never expected that Jackie was more excited than he was. He had not even moved yet when Jackie was already walking toward the stage. Walter was naturally not willing to be left behind, and he walked even faster than Jackie.

After basically rushing to the stage, both of them each took one side. They looked at each other from the north and the south, and Walter impatiently pulled out his weapon, the Green Phoenix Whip.

The Green Phoenix Whip was incredibly cold. The whip constantly glowed in a faint blue hue. He glared right at Jackie and let out a cold laugh, “Do you still think you’ll win?!”

At that moment, intense discussions were heard around the crowd. There were those who knew who Walter was, but no one knew Jackie. After all, Jackie had not been in Middle Province for that long and had never been in the inner region. It was no surprise that no one knew him.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, “Can you not waste so much time talking like your fellow disciples? Just fight!”

After he said that, the crowd got excited. Someone shouted, “Who is this guy? He’s so daring. I don’t think he knows Walter! The guy is going to suffer now. Walter will definitely make him suffer for those words!”

“What do you know?! They came from the same place just now. They obviously know each other. The guy probably knows that Walter is a chosen disciple of the Compass Pavilion. He might be so arrogant because he’s confident!”

Chapter 2863
There were discussions everywhere, but Jackie ignored everything they said. He merely looked at Walter calmly. After Walter pulled out his weapon, Jackie slowly pulled out his gray sword as well. The sword had been with Jackie for a very long time, with Jackie never Liked changing his weapon.

The Green Phoenix Whip let out a crack as Walter gave it a wave. A cold chill was released from the whip, causing even space itself to distort.

Walter only had one thought in mind, which was to cruelly torture Jackie after beating Jackie up. He wanted Jackie to know the consequences of Jackie’s actions. Walter roared as he started to form some seals. Hexagonal ice appeared on his palm. After a short moment, a few hundred arrows were floating in front of Walter. He roared angrily as he pushed forward.

The few hundred arrows rushed right as Jackie, enveloping the whole place with cold air. He rushed right at Jackie with those arrows.

Jackie steadied himself as he held his sword with both hands. He calmly faced the countless arrows that were in front of him. The arrows were all suddenly sliced in half, causing the crowd to cheer.

“This kid is not bad! If I’m not mistaken, Walter is using the upper earth rank technique, the Sealing Ice! This guy actually managed to slice it in half. He’s quite strong!”

The moment someone said that someone started to counter him, “What do you know? The Sealing Ice is an upper earth rank technique. How many people in the Whirling World are capable of using that? That attack was just a bit weaker. Walter was not serious at all. If Walter really wanted to kill this guy, he would have no chance!”

After shattering the arrows, Jackie moved and used the laws of space. In a flash, he distanced himself from Walter, causing Walter to sneer.

He mocked, “I wondered how strong you were, but you’re nothing special!”

He had just been testing Jackie earlier, and did not use his full strength. Even though Jackie broke through his attack, Jackie merely broke through a part of it.

Jackie smiled, completely ignoring Walter’s mockery.

Walter flicked the whip in his hand, “This time, I want to make sure you wish you were dead!”

After saying that, Walter shot right at Jackie. The whip in his hand danced wildly, showing after images in the air.

Those after images turned into an incredibly sealing power. Walter shouted at Jackie, “I will seal you into an ice sculpture!”

After shouting that, Walter once again cracked the whip, and all the after images solidified. At an incredible speed, they suddenly surrounded Jackie like a web.

Without any special skills, it was impossible to escape. Jackie only had two ways to get out. Either he broke through the seal with absolute skill, or he used an incredible technique to get out.

Chapter 2864
The second choice needed an incredible mobility skill that normal warriors just did not have. The second needed immense skill. Everyone could not help but be worried for Jackie. There was no way Jackie could escape being sealed.

Everyone felt like Jackie would definitely lose. After being sealed up, Walter looked like he would not let Jackie off easily!

Jackie held his sword in one hand and formed seals with his other. A hundred soul swords fused into one, and the massive sword fused into his gray sword.

It was the first time Jackie unleashed the full power of Destroying the Void. Even though it was an upper earth rank technique, it was not much in Jackie’s eyes. That was because Jackie had already reached the third level of mastery, and the power was not something to be underestimated.

Jackie roared angrily as he slashed. A massive slash shot out of the gray sword. The webs of ice that surrounded him were already right in front of Jackie.

Everyone merely heard a crack, and the solid-looking ice was actually shattered by Jackie‘s slash. Furthermore, the slash did not lose any power at all after breaking through the ice. It continued rushing forward, completely shattering everyone’s expectations. Even Walter that was following the ice could not react in time!

Jackie had already mastered Destroying the Void. Even an upper earth rank technique like Sealing Ice was as fragile as paper in front of Destroying the Void.

Everyone had been anticipating Jackie being sealed up and left to Walter’s mercy like a lamb. Still, that notion had been completely destroyed. After the slash destroyed Sealing Ice, it continued right at Walter.

Walter only reacted by the time the slash was three feet away from him, but it was already far too late to do anything. Normally, Walter would definitely have defended himself while he attacked, and would have been prepared for anything. However, he overestimated himself and underestimated Jackie. He had thought that there was no other possible result other than his victory.

After a slashing sound, the slash went through his chest. He felt an intense pain throughout his whole body. Walter suddenly widened his eyes as his whole body tossed around. The pain of a soul being ripped apart was something no one could stand.

It was as if a hundred thousand ants were eating at his soul. He even wanted to slice open his body and pull his soul out. However, there was nothing he could do at that moment. He could not even use his true energy due to the pain as he fell on the ground violently.

Walter cried out in agony. He constantly wailed as he said, “It hurts! Stop, please stop!”

Other than crying out in agony, he constantly begged Jackie to stop as well. He wanted Jackie to pull that power out of his body. He had never felt such intense pain before. In just a moment, he had already rolled around the floor ten times.

That majestic chosen disciple of an eighth-grade clan looked even more pathetic than a beggar at that moment.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not bothering with those cries for mercy. He let out a smile as he said, “Didn’t you say you’d have me begging for death? Since you’ve already said that, why would I save you?”

Everyone present had heard those words. Everyone who had thought that Jackie would definitely die hurriedly shut their mouths.

Chapter 2865
“Isn’t Walter a chosen disciple of the Compass Pavilion? Why is he so weak?”

“Are you stupid?! Walter is not weak at all. His opponent is just too strong. Didn’t you hear that Sealing Ice was an upper earth rank technique? There are so many people here, and how many of them can learn a technique like that? This guy actually broke through it. It means that his technique is stronger than Walters!”

“Could he be using an ultimate god rank technique?!”

That was immediately shot down by everyone there.

“Are you crazy? How could you say that? Don’t you know what an ultimate god rank technique means? Unless you’re already at the divine solidifying realm or if you’re an incredibly talented late stage spring solidifying realm, you can’t possibly use such a technique.”

“Everyone’s here under the restrictions of the Whirling World. No one here is older than sixty. Do you really think someone who’s not even sixty can use an ultimate god rank technique?!”

“That‘s right! This guy probably has an upper earth rank technique as well. He was able to defeat Walter probably because he’s already mastered it!”

“If that’s really true, then this guy must be incredibly talented. No wonder a chosen disciple of an eighth-grade clan lost to him! “

“It wasn’t a wasted trip to the Whirling World. I saw so many masters.”

Those spectators who had nothing to do with Walter were incredibly interested in the discussions. Those who were insulting Jackie earlier all changed their tones and started to praise Jackie. They all said that Jackie was a generational master. Even the chosen disciple of an eighth-grade clan seemed normal in front of him. However, the disciples of the Compass Pavilion could not remain calm. They had been sitting in the audience incredibly confidently.

When Jackie broke through the ice, they gaped in disbelief.

Walter was in so much pain, that it was obvious that Jackie had dealt a fatal blow. All of them rushed over from the stands. Walter was a much more important person than Vincent was. If something really did happen to Walter, the disciples there would have to take responsibility as well.

Vale had not recovered yet, and he was the most shocked out of all of them. Among those people, he was the one who had met Jackie the earliest. Every time Jackie appeared, he would be shocked.

The few of them rushed over to the stage but were stopped by the barrier. The laws still felt that Walter still had the ability to fight. So, the shields were still up, but Walter was already in so much pain that he could not even think straight.

Jackie’s mastery of Destroying the Void was already on a whole different level. Even though Destroying the Void had already formed into a slash and went through Walter’s body, Jackie could still control it.

He did not let Destroying the Void destroy Walter’s body quickly. Instead, he had it slowly eat away at Walter’s soul. He wanted Walter to still be able to fight while Walter felt the intense pain.

The Compass Pavilion’s disciples started to panic when they saw that the barrier was still there despite Walter being in so much pain.

They shouted, “Hurry up and let him go! Jackie, don’t get too full of yourself. Don’t think you can do whatever you want after you win this. You’ve thoroughly angered the Compass Pavilion. We won’t let you off!”

Chapter 2866
“That’s right! Hurry up and let Walter go. If something happens to him, you’ll suffer greatly! Walter isn’t Vincent, and there may still be room for negotiation after you killed Vincent, but if you kill Walter, even God can’t help you. Once you get out of the Whirling World, the Compass Pavilion will hunt you down forever!”

The curses and warnings flew into Jackie’s ears. Of course, he had expected as much. The fact that he dared to make his move meant that he was not concerned.

To the wandering warriors, Compass Pavilion was a threat, but to Jackie, they were not that important. What could they do to him?

As long as he was strong enough and managed to join a stronger clan, the Compass Pavilion would not be able to do anything.

This thing was Compass Pavilion’s fault from the start, anyway, and Jackie never went against the rules at all. Had they not egged him on, Jackie would never have bothered with them.

Jackie let out a cold smile as he turned to look at the disciples from the Compass Pavilion. He deliberately raised his voice as he declared, “Listen up, Compass Pavilion! Don’t think that you can do whatever you want just because you’re from an eighth-grade clan. You were the ones looking for trouble from the start, targeting me after you lost your match. If you hadn’t bothered me to no end, I wouldn’t have bothered with you at all. You do whatever you want to just because you have a strong clan behind you, and it makes me sick!”

Jackie’s words managed to gain the support of the spectators as they clapped and cheered. He had voiced out their grievances, the disciples of higher grade clans truly enjoyed showing off!

It was also incredibly two-faced, too, that only they were allowed to look for weaker opponents. The weak were never allowed to fight back. Even talented warriors would not be shown mercy as long as those warriors did not have the right background!

Everyone was pleased to hear Jackie’s words, and they made it verbal.

“Get lost, Compass Pavilion. Do you think you’re the only ones who can show up like that? Are others not allowed to retaliate? We’ve all heard how Walter said he wanted Jackie to be begging to die before the battle started. Is Jackie not allowed to do the same to him? Does that warrant the Compass Pavilion hunting him down?”

“That’s right! You’re the only ones ever allowed to do anything! For so many years, you treated the weak just like this! Don‘t think that you can do whatever you want just because no one fought back!”

“Go to hell, Compass Pavilion!”

The curses were everywhere, and there were even those who started to throw dirty things their way.

The disciples of the Compass Pavilion glowered at this. They could not believe that Jackie’s words had riled up everyone else like this!

One of them could not resist shouting out in anger, “You trashy wandering warriors only know how to shout out during times like these. Once you’re out of the Whirling World, you’re nothing in front of us!”

Those words caused a greater reaction from the crowd. Quite a few of them were thoroughly angered, but thankfully, something held them back. They knew that they would be punished by the laws of the Whirling World if they fought, so they restrained themselves.

They cursed the disciples of the Compass Pavilion without stopping. Just like that, the second arena turned clamored like a night market. The constant arguments never stopped. There were too few disciples from the Compass Pavilion, and they were no match for all the spectators.

Chapter 2867
The spectators were a mix of all sorts of warriors. Some of them just loved to argue normally, and it finally served useful as they cursed the disciples of the Compass Pavilion to their hearts‘ content. Some of them even used their true energy on their throats, deliberately enhancing their voices. They were worried that the people next to them could not hear the vulgarities they were spitting out.

This, however, made Jackie’s ears hurt. He never expected the words he exchanged with the disciples of the Compass Pavilion to rouse the crowd so aggressively.

Jackie helplessly sighed, feeling like continuing would bear no fruit. They would not end up fighting anyway and could only fight with their words.

In the end, Jackie could no longer tolerate it. He went to the corner of the stage and stood there silently, not planning on killing Walter just yet. He wanted Walter to beg for death. That was the promise Walter had given him before, so he wanted Walter to get a taste of his medicine.

Time slowly ticked away, but the sound of the arguments did not stop. Walter's twitching slowly grew weaker, and the barrier finally fell. The Compass Pavilion's disciples hurried over and helped Walter up.

Vale frowned as he checked Walter's pulse. Even though he could still feel something, it was incredibly weak.

Manse hurriedly retrieved many pills from his spatial ring and stuffed them into Walter's mouth, but none of those pills could cure Walter's current injuries. After all, Jackie had already used Destroying the Void to destroy Walter's soul.

Some pills that were meant to just cure internal injuries could do nothing for a destroyed soul. Manse had fed Walter so many pills, but Walter showed no signs of improving, which caused Manse to panic.

Fear crept into his heart. If Walter truly died, they would all be implicated.

Manse turned his gaze toward Jackie and shot him a deadly glare. He looked like he wanted to rip Jackie apart, but Jackie was already used to that expression.

"Are you not afraid of death, Jackie?!" shouted Manse. "The Compass Pavilion won't just take things lying down. We'll get our revenge for your actions. I'll make you pay!"

Jackie laughed and nonchalantly replied, walking toward Manse, "Walter's current state is me exacting my revenge against you. If you insist, however, I'll welcome it. Of course, that depends if you have the skills to do so. I never trouble those who haven't troubled me, and I'll return any offenses against me several times over. If you refuse to give up, I'll make you all pay the price!"

Manse cowered in fear as Jackie got closer. Even though Manse loves to shout and curse, he was still already thoroughly afraid of Jackie. He had not been that scared of Jackie after Vincent lost, but even Walter had lost so badly. Manse was forced to look at Jackie in a different light.

Jackie was deathly terrifying. His talents were practically demonic.

"Y-You can't do anything here," stammered Manse. "If you attack, you'll be punished by the laws. You'll be struck by lightning, you know?!"

Chapter 2868
Jackie let out a cold laugh. "I'm not planning on doing anything to you. I'm just here to remind you, didn't you forget something important?"

Jackie's words baffled Manse for a moment. Frowning, he recalled What it was that Jackie meant. He had struck a bet with Jackie, and bitterness crept into his being as he gritted his teeth.

Manse had betted against Jackie before because he was certain that Jackie could not win at all. He was so sure that Jackie would lose terribly and that he would easily get 190000 spirit crystals from Jackie. He never expected that he had actually dug his own hole.

Jackie won their bet!

Jackie extended his hand. “Hurry and pay up, I don’t have all day. I have things I need to do. I just wanted to bet ninety thousand spirit crystals, but you insisted on adding a hundred thousand to the bet. You set the bet to a hundred and ninety spirit crystals yourself, so give it here.”

Manse nearly spat blood upon hearing Jackie’s words. Despite his reluctance, however, it was what had happened. Jackie had only said 90000 spirit crystals were to be in the bet, but Manse was sure that Jackie would lose and added 100000 to it.

He shot himself in the foot!

Manse wanted to slap himself at that moment. 90000 spirit crystals might still be a sum, but it was not too bad. 190000, however, was a different story.

Alas, he and Jackie had signed a contract, and he could not back down even if he wanted to. If he did not pay up, the contract would immediately take effect, and he would not be able to bear the consequences.

What followed was a strangely smooth process. After Walter was brought out of the stage by the disciples of the Compass Pavilion, Jackie obtained the third token, and it was slightly more special. The entry token had turned into an exit token. That meant that he could get out of the city right after he arrived at the third level.

Jackie let out a sigh as he put the token into Mustard Seed before he brought Rudy to the third level. Compared to how noisy the first and second levels were, the third level was more vacant. Other than the exit and the entrance to the fourth level, there was nothing else on the third level. A few people were resting in the perimeter, though, seemingly wondering if they should head to the fourth level.

Jackie pulled out the entry token as he toyed with it in his hand.

If it were anyone else, they might have been worried about how difficult the fourth level could be, and they might be puzzled over whether or not they should ascend. However, he did not have that thought at all. If he did not go to the fourth level, no one there probably could.

Rudy did not even need to ask to know what Jackie was thinking. He looked at Jackie earnestly and was more than certain to follow him wherever he went.

Rudy looked at the other warriors that were on the third level and whispered with a laugh, “These people must be conflicted if they should head to the fourth level. After all, the second level probably wasn’t that difficult for them. Those who enter the fourth level are all quite strong. No one knows what will happen there and whether they’ll lose their lives.”

Jackie turned to look at Rudy and, after thinking, said, “Why don’t you stay here as well? I didn’t get any information from the exit token. I don’t know what sort of challenges are waiting there. You’re too frail, and I think you’ll be in danger if you tag along.”

Chapter 2869
Rudy shook his head vehemently at Jackie’s offer, not wanting to follow through. “I don’t want to stay here. If you go to the fourth level, you‘ll go to the fifth as well. There are seven levels in this tower. Who knows if you’ll just be sent out or transferred to somewhere once you conquer the seventh level? What will I do if I’m left alone here?”

Jackie nodded silently at Rudy’s words. Rudy’s concerns were not unwarranted, no doubt. If he headed to the seventh level in one go, the tower might see him as a perfect challenger. It might reward him immediately and instantly transfer him somewhere else. If he left Rudy there, he might not meet him again.

Jackie’s expression seemed uncertain even after a few seconds, and Rudy, fearing his expression, reached out to grab Jackie’s arm.

“I entered Thousand Leaves Pavilion as your dependent. Since I’m your dependent, I won’t be facing any challenges at all. As long as you continue climbing, I won’t leave no matter what dangers we face,” said Rudy earnestly. “Even if I am unlucky enough to die there, it‘d be my own doing.”

Ever since he knew Jackie, Rudy felt like he had constantly been in danger, but it was not in his hands to change.

While he knew nothing else, he was certain of one thing, Jackie was incredibly reliable, and he would only be able to survive if he followed Jackie. He wanted to get through these two years and leave the Whirling World to the Golden Pills as soon as he could.

Jackie nodded at Rudy’s words. The two of them arrived at the entrance to the fourth level where a few people gathered, yet all of them looked wary. After all, they did not know what the future had in store for them.

Jackie was about to enter the fourth level when Rudy grabbed his arm. He looked at Rudy with a frown.

Rudy took a few deep breaths before saying, “I know you’re very confident in yourself, but you still have to be prepared. Even though we’re still in the Whirling World, those from the Compass Pavilion won't just sit there idly. They probably won't stand a chance against you alone, but if they come in groups, we'll have a hard time for sure."

Jackie nodded. He had already thought about that. If he was truly afraid of the Compass Pavilion, he would not have faced them so strongly from the start.

"I'm the same as always," answered Jackie. "I won't do anything to those who've done nothing to me. If someone wrongs me, I'll pay it back several times. If Vincent didn't cause me trouble, we wouldn't have been caught in a conflict. They were the cause of everything. I know they'll cause me more trouble, and I'll fight back. Don't worry, I won't put myself in danger."

Jackie's words were incredibly calm as if he was just talking about his meal. Hearing these words, Rudy felt more at. ease.

Rudy exhaled before he spoke, "When you were facing Walter just now, I noticed that Grayson kept looking at your battle. I was paying attention to him, and he noticed me later on. I couldn't see his expression because I was too far, though. His stare toward me felt so unnerving, as though I was about to be bitten by a snake. You were right, Grayson probably sees us as enemies."

Jackie nodded. Ever since Grayson appeared, a lot more questions surfaced in his head. Jackie did not believe a single thing those elders said anymore. There had to be an even bigger secret behind everything!

Jackie was about to say something when Rudy interjected, saying, "I know what you want to say, and I understand everything Without you saying it. I know my recklessness caused you trouble. I'll remember this in the future, and I won't cause you any more trouble."

Jackie felt a little more at ease to hear Rudy's promise. After all, Rudy was a naive fool who would let his emotions get the better of hint in many situations. Rudy eventually realized the errors of his ways.

After saying all that, Rudy seemed to have been relieved of a heavy burden as the two of them entered the fourth level.

They were greeted with an incredibly bright grassland, where a few people lingered around. Most of them sat on the grass, holding a crystal ball in their hands. Most of them had their eyes closed, and a few were whispering amongst themselves.

The atmosphere was somber and heavy. Even if there were any discussions, everyone's voices were muted. That was the fourth level of the tower, and it looked like they had entered a different world.

Rudy blinked as he looked at the purple crystal ball in Jackie's hands. After that, he, confused, looked at everyone who was sitting.

Before he could ask anything, Jackie pulled Rudy to a secluded corner to sit. After they settled down, Rudy impatiently said to Jackie, "What's all this? What's that ball in your hands? Why does the ball in their hands have a color to it that's different from yours? What's the fourth level?"

Rudy was filled with questions at that moment, and Jackie explained everything in detail. The moment Jackie entered the fourth level, a wave of information was transferred to his head, including the fourth level's rules, in detail.

The fourth level was not a battle between challengers. If they wanted to enter the fifth level from the fourth, they needed to kill a certain number of wind beasts.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2871 - 2880

Chapter 2871
After killing two wind beasts, the crystal ball would turn from blue to green. Then, warriors would face a wind beast that was a few times stronger. Only after killing that wind beast would they get to enter the fifth level.

Rudy frowned and repeated the information Jackie gave, “So, you’re saying that the fourth level has three stages, and as long as you pass, the crystal ball will change colors. There are three colors in total. Getting to the fifth level requires you to get through three stages!”

Jackie nodded at Rudy’s solid summary. He needed to do precisely that to get into the fifth level. Only after four wind beasts died would he be able to get to the fifth level.

Rudy nodded and smiled. “The fourth floor is probably not that hard for you. No matter how strong the wind beasts are, they’re just at the late stage of the innate level!”

At this moment, the people around Rudy and Jackie finally snapped. Even though they had picked out a more secluded spot, there were still too many people around. It was only comparatively secluded, too, and since they did not entirely lower their voices, a few people around them had heard the conversation.

A squinty-eyed man let out a laugh after he heard Rudy. “You’re just a dependent, no doubt. Where did you get the guts to say something like that? It’s as if the guy next to you can just pass on a whim!”

A white-robed man next to the squinty-eyed man nodded. “That person is so absurd. He doesn’t know how hard a wind beast is to deal with at all. Just look at what they’re wearing; they’re not from a major clan. If they’re not from an inner or chosen disciple from a major clan, they shouldn’t be so arrogant to assume that they can easily defeat a wind beast. Just look at those people who have their eyes shut. All of them have done everything they could, but those who can kill the wind beasts aren’t many at all! Where did you get the courage to say all of that?!”

More cries of anger arose from around them. After all, Rudy’s words did seem arrogant.

Rudy, in truth, was not an arrogant person, but Jackie had just given him too much confidence. He did not feel like he had said anything wrong, however, and the ignorant crowd was just bitter.

Rudy let out a light snort, raised his eyebrows, and said, “What do you know?”

However, he shut his mouth before saying anything. After all, his mouth had caused Jackie so much trouble before. It had left a deep impression on him, even if he was full of discontent.

He did not dare to say anything else, but his words had already evoked reactions from the people. They looked at Rudy with disdain and thought of him as just a fool who had never experienced the world before. Untrained people would always say ignorant things, after all.

Chapter 2872
“There truly are all sorts of people in the world. They don’t even know their place to have said such things!”

“Do you see the person in the white clothes over there? That person is from the Deer Pavilion and is even a chosen disciple. It took him an hour before the crystal turned blue!”

“Since you’ve been so arrogant, entertain me, how long do you think the brat next to you will take to turn his crystal ball blue?”

“That’s right! Enlighten us. You praised that man so much, so how long will it take for him to turn the purple crystal ball blue?!”

Everyone sneered at Rudy and persistently challenged him to tell them how long he thought Jackie would take to pass the first stage.

These people were not from notable backgrounds. Most of them were from sixth-grade clans or wandering warriors, and it would take them at least eight hours to even pass the first stage. They could not compare to talented prodigies at all.

Initially, Rudy did not want to bother with the crowd and remained silent. However, the people were like flies that buzzed at him mockingly.

Rudy looked at Jackie with a pleading expression.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he said in a low voice, “You were the one who caused this. Handle it yourself.”

It was not the first time Rudy’s mouth had gotten him into trouble, and Jackie could not save Rudy every time.

Rudy sighed helplessly as he raised his voice to answer, “Since they took an hour, Jackie will only need half of that!”

At this point, Rudy was irked by these people. Instead of taking him seriously, however, they burst into cackles. They stared at Jackie and Rudy demeaningly as though they were both clowns.

“Do you know how long an hour is?” one of them sneered. “Do you know how long half of that is? Don‘t think that you’ll be able to kill the wind beast just because you’re a little skilled. The wind beasts might be restricted to the late stage of the innate level just like all of us, but their skills aren't just there for show! Have you ever heard of the wind beast's killing technique?"

Rudy took a deep breath as he honestly shook his head. Of course he had never heard of it; he did not even know what a wind beast looked like.

Everyone was even more amused when they saw Rudy shaking his head and wanted nothing more than to bash his head in.

"The wind beast's killing technique is a middle earth rank technique. It's just like human techniques and is split into three stages. The first wind beast the warriors will meet has a skill equivalent to a second stage mastery of an earth rank technique, and it's already quite close to perfecting it! Surely you understand now!"

Middle stage earth rank techniques were more or less impossible for most wandering warriors or disciples of low-grade clans. Many of them could learn them but could not get to the second stage.

Some of them were merely just starting out in the first stage. Hence, many of them could not stand up to the wind beasts at all! Most of them would spend a lot of time dealing with the wind beast.

Chapter 2873
The wind beast's greatest weakness was its lack of intelligence, incapable of planning or scheming. As long as the warriors were smart enough, they would be able to kill the wind beasts eventually.

The squinty-eyed man snorted. "Surely you know the Deer Pavilion. You looked like you couldn't be bothered with the Deer Pavilion at all when I mentioned it. You know they are one of the strongest clans in Middle Province, no? Are you even from the Middle Province?"

With those accusations, the man seemed more and more certain that Rudy was an ignorant country bumpkin. Otherwise, Rudy would not have said such unintelligent words.

Rudy's lips twitched as he finally understood why Jackie always kept to himself; it was a complete waste of time arguing with such people. He had never planned on talking to them, but they seemed insistent on forcing him to talk.

Rudy frowned and said, "Of course I know that the Deer Pavilion is a seventh-grade clan in Middle Province. They even stand at the top of seventh-grade clans."

The squinty-eyed man quickly said, "Since you know that, why did you look so disdainful when I mentioned it?"

Rudy frowned, at this point, he wanted to bite back at the man, wanting to ask why he was so intent on looking at his expression. Already at his wits' end, he wanted to argue with everyone when Jackie stopped him.

"Why are you arguing with them?" said Jackie, not bothering to lower his voice. "It's a waste of your time. They don't understand what you're saying at all."

Silence fell upon them at that instant.

Jackie had not spoken at all from the start, and everyone had thought that Jackie just did not like bragging, yet Jackie had shattered their expectations. Rudy was already arrogant enough, but Jackie seemed even more so.

"How rude! Do you know what you're saying, you brat? I see ignorant folk like you all the time, but I've never seen someone ignorant be as arrogant as you are. You must have some skill, but since you're skilled, you should understand that there are always people stronger than you! There are countless masters out there! Don't you know how ignorant you are?"

Jackie's lips curled into a slight smile as he stared at the squinty-eyed man. "There's still no telling who the ignorant one is. You don't know anything, so why are you in such a hurry to judge me? Don't use your skills to judge others. If you're trash, it only proves that you're the trash. You can't just assume that everyone else is trash, too."

Those words thoroughly angered the man, causing him to shoot up from his seat as he squinted at Jackie.

Jackie snorted as he ignored the guy. So what if the guy stood up?

The fourth level prohibited personal fights. If the man attacked Jackie, he would be struck by lightning immediately. Sure enough, the man did not attack, though he struggled to stamp down his anger. It took a while before he finally sat back down.

The white-robed man behind the squinty-eyed man felt indignant when he saw how angry his friend was. The white-robed man looked at Jackie in disdain. "Didn't you say that this Jackie will be able to finish the first stage in half an hour, changing the crystal ball from purple to blue? Since the two of you are so stubborn, prove it to us with your skills. Let's see if you're truly gifted or just all talk!"

"Why do you care if I'm skilled or not?" quipped Jackie. "Even if I proved my skills, you're not worth me proving them at all!"

Jackie had experienced one too many scenarios like this, and it solidified him to not cave in to people such as these so easily.

Chapter 2874

The squinty-eyed man's expression stiffened, and everyone else reeled back in shock at Jackie's attitude. After all, they did not know how skilled Jackie actually was or where Jackie was from.

Anyone who entered the fourth level was not to be underestimated. They were worried that they had stumbled upon an actual threat and that they would be dealt with after leaving the tower. However, the squinty-eyed man was unwilling to admit defeat.

"Why are you so arrogant?" he snorted. "If you're that skilled, suit yourself. Just don't end up slapping yourself in the face after you've bragged that much! That'd be really funny."

Even though the man had whispered this, Rudy heard it all. He suddenly straightened his body and snapped, "What do you mean by that?"

Rudy was about to argue when Jackie frowned and pulled Rudy back. Rudy was forced to restrain himself.

Jackie let out a sigh, not wanting to waste time on those people. Just like what he had said, even if he got past the stage, he would have done it for himself and not to prove anything to those people. He thus took a deep breath as he transferred his soul energy to the crystal ball.

The next second, he felt like the whole world spun before he found himself in a foreign space, filled with purple true energy. At that moment, he heard powerful roars up ahead.

Jackie looked up to see a beast that was the size of two people baring its teeth at him fiercely. It looked like it would lunge at Jackie at any moment.

This was the wind beast.

The wind beast had a huge lion's head and a tiger's body. It was covered with green scales and had four powerful-looking claws. A majestic aura enveloped the beast that even though it was just at the late stage of the innate level, it was obvious from its aura that it was no ordinary beast at that level.

The wind beast narrowed its eyes as it measured Jackie. It seemed to be trying to determine if this prey was dangerous.

Jackie pulled out his gray sword from Mustard Seed with familiarity. His hands suddenly flew through many seals, and 80 soul swords materialized in the air. With a casual wave, it fused into a massive soul sword that fused into the sword in his hand.

Jackie was already incredibly familiar with Destroying the Void. He looked up at the wind beast in front of him. At that moment, instead of feeling daunted, Jackie felt carefree.

As he looked at the wind beast's movements, he calculated his potential moves. He had already mastered Destroying the Void at that point and would be choosing a different technique next. Naturally, he needed to pick an even stronger technique; he just did not know What skill he wanted to employ.

Destroying the Void was just an ordinary technique in the Divine Void World. It was not even a third-class skill. After all, it was just an upper ultimate god rank technique. It was nothing against someone that was truly strong. Since he needed to choose a new technique, he needed something even better.

As Jackie mulled over everything, the wind beast lost its patience. Its hind legs kicked out as it rushed toward Jackie like a cannonball. Its green eyes stared daggers at Jackie as it let loose a loud roar, causing even the air around them to tremble.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he slashed with the gray sword with both hands. The slashes clashed incredibly quickly.

Chapter 2875
Jackie heard a loud explosion.

At that moment, he was not actually within the crystal ball. Instead, the crystal ball used Jackie's soul to recreate a replica of him to battle against the wind beast. The real Jackie was still on the fourth level with his eyes closed, still seated, his soul within the crystal ball.

Ever since Jackie closed his eyes and entered the crystal ball, Rudy had been staring at Jackie, expectation written all over his face.

The squinty-eyed man no longer wanted to say anything before the results were out, thanks to what Jackie said. However, when he saw Rudy's look of anticipation, he could not stop himself from mocking him.

“The more hope you have, the more disappointed you'll be. Surely you know that? Don't think that he'll be able to get good results here just because he's the strongest in your world. Even a chosen disciple of one of the strongest seventh-grade clans used up an hour before they got past the first stage. It'd be good enough if Jackie manages to do it in twelve hours. Of course, that's if he's smart enough to not let the wind beast get him!”

The white-robed man behind verbally agreed, saying, “That‘s right! But with how the guy was earlier, he's probably not that smart. If he's not intelligent enough, he'll only think of facing the wind beast head-on. The wind beast's skill is an absolute killing technique. To be honest, it's even stronger than ordinary middle earth rank techniques. You should know what a technique of that level represents."

"This kid is obviously inexperienced. He's probably never seen the power of a middle earth rank technique before. If this kid insists on facing the wind beast head-on, he might be ripped apart by the wind beast's claws. If that happens, his soul will be damaged, and he'll wake up in a pathetic state."

Rudy shot these people a cold stare. He had just said a few words, yet it actually wounded their dignity!

This was why they held no reservations in mocking Jackie. It was the first time Rudy experienced how annoying people who overvalued their dignity could be.

"You ignorant fools only know how to insult others," sneered Rudy. "You haven't seen the results yet, so how do you know that the wind beast' s claws will rip Jackie? If you don't have the skills, don't use your perspective on others. Don't you know that…"

"What did you say, you brat?!" The squinty-eyed man almost jumped up.

Rudy's words hurt even more than what Jackie had said. If it were not for the restriction of the laws, the squinty-eyed man would have attacked Rudy.

Rudy smirked when he saw how furious the man was. The white-clothed man and the other spectators started to speak among themselves. Everyone felt like Rudy was far too obnoxious and that he needed a beating.

The white-robed man raised his voice and snarled, "You should be glad that there are laws protecting you on the fourth level. Otherwise, you won't be able to leave this place alive. You'd die a horrible death!"

Rudy had heard so many similar speeches that he felt impervious to them. It was like everyone who was against him would say something like that.

Jackie had heard more than he did, too.

Chapter 2876
Rudy sneered as he ignored the words aimed their way.

"You lot are just clowns to me!"

The squinty-eyed man's face reddened in anger. "You delinquents truly are a piece of work! If you truly think this guy can kill a wind beast in half an hour…"

Before the squinty-eyed man could finish, he heard sharp inhales from those around him. He thus stopped as he looked around at everyone.

He frowned and said, “Why do all of you seem so surprised?”

The white-robed man paled as he pointed at Jackie. “Look at him!”

The squinty-eyed man hurriedly turned to look in the direction the white-robed man was pointing. He saw Jackie staring at him with a cold gaze. In Jackie’s hand, the purple crystal ball had already turned from purple to blue.

He passed, and it did not even take him that long!

Everyone had only exchanged a few words, it had not even been 10 minutes. It was five minutes at most, but the brat had already passed!

The squinty-eyed man was filled with disbelief as his gaze toward Jackie lost all ounce of disdain, replaced with horror instead. Only someone immensely talented would have been able to do that.

He had passed earlier, yet it had taken him a great deal of effort to turn the blue orb to purple, passing the first stage. He remembered that the wind beast would not attack instantly after going into the crystal ball. Only after the two of them stared at each other for a while did the wind beast start attacking.

Warriors would usually not attack immediately after entering the crystal world unless there were special circumstances. They were one to observe their opponents, thus they waited for the wind beast to attack before they did anything. After all, they needed some time to acclimate themselves. If Jackie did what the warriors did upon entering the crystal ball and did not attack immediately, it meant that his battle would have ended earlier.

The squinty-eyed man shuddered at the possibility. He even started to wonder if he was dreaming. Otherwise, something so absurd would not have happened.

The white-robed man trembled as he said, “Could you be the chosen disciple of a ninth-grade clan?!”

That was the only thing he could deduce from this. To him, only chosen disciples of a ninth-grade clan could pass in such a short duration.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not really caring about their surprise, while Rudy was pleased. After all, all of these people had tried so hard to put them down and deny Jackie’s skill, much to his chagrin.

Rudy turned to look at everyone. “Didn’t I already tell you to not judge Jackie with your standards? You’re the ignorant ones here!” he spoke, enunciating his last sentence as he did.

To this, no one dared to retort and refute. Rudy was not too harsh with his words either, they truly were ignorant.

They never expected Jackie to really be so skilled. Normally, regular warriors like them would never be able to interact with talented warriors. They never expected to encounter such a demon.

Chapter 2877
‘Demon’ was the only way they could describe Jackie as his skills completely exceeded all of their expectations. After all, they had all gone through the first stage.

Jackie did not bother with any of their surprise at all as he closed his eyes again as his soul went through the crystal ball.

To Jackie, this was an insignificant place. His final goal was the sixth or the seventh level. Only by constantly moving up could he gain even more resources. Back when he was in Black Sun City, he had obtained the Purple Soul Fruit, Purple Soul Crystal, and other valuable treasures. An eighth-level city was a level higher than a ninth-level city where better treasures could be obtained.

Thankfully, he had picked a more secluded spot, so the commotion did not attract too much attention. Those people who saw Jackie’s skills did not dare spread the word around out of fear.

After five minutes, the blue crystal turned green, signifying that Jackie had passed the second stage and arrived at the third stage. Killing those two wind beasts was a breeze for him. After all, no matter how impressive those wind beasts looked, their techniques were only at the middle stage of the earth rank. There might have been one more beast compared to the first stage, but the level of the wind beast did not increase.

The third stage was different. The wind beast from the third stage had an upper earth rank technique. Regardless, Jackie broke no sweat for it, having mastered Destroying the Void.

At that moment, Jackie did not feel any pressure at all, just like during the first stage. He held his sword tightly, letting out another slash when the wind beast launched its upgraded technique at Jackie.

The gray slash clashed with the blade of wind. With a screech, the wind blade shattered, powerless against the slash. The slash suddenly appeared before the wind beast. With a cry of agony, the wind beast retreated backward while Jackie’s hands moved as he activated the laws of space.

The sword slash disappeared on the spot. When it appeared again, it was already at the wind beast's forehead. With a squelch, the wind beast let out a cry of agony as it collapsed onto the ground. After turning around, it finally stopped breathing.

Jackie let out a smile as the world before him started to spin. When he opened his eyes again, he was already out of the crystal ball. At that moment, the ball in his hand was already vermillion.

The vermillion glow was reflected on Jackie's clothes, looking very lively. Jackie raised an eyebrow, saying, "It was no challenge."

Everyone's expression twisted when they heard Jackie's first words, not even daring to compare themselves to him. Jackie had gone through every stage in the same duration. Each time, it was so easy that everyone wondered if the orb in Jackie's hands was different from theirs.

All Jackie's words did was make them bitter. The stages they could not pass, despite trying their best, were no challenge at all to Jackie. Compared to him, they were not even worth trash!

The squinty-eyed man's expression was sour. His lips twitched as he struggled to even find words to say. He wanted to disappear from the place.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as the ball in his hand glowed brighter and brighter, and it attracted a lot of attention. At that moment, some of them finally noticed Jackie.

"Someone else passed! How long has this person been here?"

"I don't know. He's sitting in such a secluded space. I didn't notice him, but regardless, he still passed. This stage is too hard, though. I feel like this level will eliminate half of us. I'm jealous every time I see someone pass."

Chapter 2878
There were a lot of discussions around them. The ones around Jackie could hear everything. When the question about how long Jackie had been in the crystal ball's dimension was asked, all of them exhibited poor emotions.

They were hesitant to say anything and were embarrassed beyond relief. They wanted to tell everyone that the person sitting here was a demon, but they were afraid that Jackie might just punish them for it. They were certain that Jackie came from a large clan, or he would not have been that strong!

The vermillion glow slowly faded with time, and once the glow vanished, the ball turned into a token. The token had a vermillion glow to it with the words "Entry Token" written on it.

Rudy looked at Jackie happily. “The entry token for the fifth level!”

Jackie nodded, not showing any emotion on his face. To him, he was bound to enter the fifth level. Only those around them would feel like Jackie had expended great effort to obtain the token.

Jackie did not delay as he stood up from the spot and shot Rudy a look. The two of them headed to the entrance of the fifth level.

The entrance of the fifth level was concealed, it was impossible to spot it if one did not know what they were looking for. Thankfully, the information was registered into Jackie’s mind before they entered, clearly showing the position of the entrance.

After they entered the fifth level, Rudy looked around and asked curiously, “This is the fifth level? Why isn’t anything here? I don’t even see anyone else.”

The fifth level was far too different from his expectations. It was not as loud as the first or second levels, and there were no grasslands like the third either. Instead, it was desolate. Whether it be the ground or the skies, it was completely white. It was so white that it was unsettling. Even if it was harder to get into the fifth level, there were a lot of them who passed and entered the fifth level.

Strangely, they had not seen another person other than one another after they entered.

It scared Rudy a little. He felt like he had entered a completely unknown world, and the mystery filled him with fear.

He could not stop himself from retreating behind Jackie as he then whispered, “Why is it so creepy here? It’s all white around us, but there are only two of us here. Where are the others who passed? Could the fifth level be a solo level? Would I drag you down by being here?”

Just as he asked that question, a flat voice was suddenly heard from the space around them. The voice was clear and cold, like an impartial judge.

“Ninety-seven. Once a hundred are gathered, the array will restart.”

The atmosphere fell into silence once more, which scared Rudy even more.

He raised his head to look at Jackie. “What? Ninety-seven? Why do they need a hundred to restart the array?”

Jackie looked at the entry token before saying after some thought, “If I’m not mistaken, the array will activate each time a hundred are gathered here. The array must‘ve been reactivated a few times already. I’m the ninety-seventh person upon entrance.”

Jackie's explanation was not that detailed, but Rudy understood. It meant that the array needed a hundred people to activate.

He frowned. "A hundred people? You'd have to wait a little longer then, no? I was looking around us when you were taking the test in the fourth level, but even until we left, only you passed. Based on that pace, waiting for a hundred people may take a long time. Wouldn't you be wasting a great deal of time? Before entering the Whirling World, I felt like two years was too long. Only after arriving here did I realize that two years is actually quite short. We're only in an eighth-grade city, and there are even more cities after this that we'll need even more time to challenge."

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he looked up to the skies.

They were on the fifth level of the tower, and no matter where he looked, all he saw was white. It was as if they entered a massive white box, and it was disconcerting. He sighed and said, "There are a lot of eighth-grade cities. Gathering a hundred people might not take that long…"

Jackie's words stunned Rudy, who frowningly looked at him in confusion. He had been about to ask a question when he suddenly heard a crackling sound.

The cold voice was heard again, "Array, activate!"

The moment the words were heard, the white disappeared as noises suddenly flooded the atmosphere.

Rudy jumped back in fright, and it took a while for him to look out around in fear.

They were in a barren land. The temperature had gone up a few degrees as well. Looking up, a faint yellow crescent moon hung in the sky. Rudy could only feel a barren sense from the environment.

The noise they heard was actually from other people. The two of them were not the only people there, there were 100 people, too. All of them stood not far away from the two of them, and everyone had looks of alarm on their faces. It was obvious that no one expected that to happen.

Compared to everyone else, Jackie was noticeably calm. Some people there looked foreign. It was obvious that everyone was meeting at the same time.

Rudy did not forget what Jackie had just said earlier. Not fully grasping what he meant, he asked in a whisper, "What did you mean earlier?"

Jackie sighed as he looked at the warriors around them. "It looks like I'm right… The warriors gathered here aren't just from Thousand Leaves City."

Rudy finally understood what Jackie had meant earlier. Jackie felt like the people gathered there were chosen from all the eighth-grade cities.

Rudy frowned, thinking about it for a while before he quickly nodded. Jackie was right, he believed. That was the only way that a hundred people would be gathered there.

Thinking about it, he felt like it was a bit unbelievable. “Before we entered Thousand Leaves City, we looked around us and didn’t notice any other cities. Even if it’s through a large-scale transfer array, it’d take a very long time…”

Before he could finish, Jackie raised a hand to stop him as he turned to look at Rudy. “I know what you want to say, but the Whirling World was left behind from ancient times. We can’t just judge it like that. They definitely used some special array to link up all the eighth-grade cities. All the eighth-grade cities will be transferred here on the fifth level.”

Chapter 2880
After saying that, Rudy gaped slightly in surprise. It really was a stroke of mastery. Even if Rudy had looked into arrays and formations before, he could not help but lament the fact that the ancient civilizations had such an amazing mastery of them.

He knew that any array in the current world could never do that, so Rudy lamented, “The ancient civilizations really were amazing. The things they do aren’t things that warriors like us can even imagine.”

Hearing his words, Jackie merely let out a slight laugh.

After absorbing the memories of the Divine Void World‘s ancient warriors, those amazing feats were nothing to him. In his memories, there were even greater feats.

“I thought that I won‘t be meeting any disciples from Phoenix Valley for a while,” said a man with the uniform of the Unbreaking Pavilion. His gaze was directed at a man in crimson robes.

Hearing Phoenix Valley being mentioned, Jackie and Rudy perked up in alert as they looked toward the man in the crimson robes. Thankfully, they had never seen the man before.

True enough, that man was wearing the clothes of a disciple of Phoenix Valley. With how he carried himself, he was someone at the peak of inner disciples, if not a chosen disciple.

The man let out a slight laugh. “I knew you wouldn’t have anything good to say after meeting me. You lost to me in the last round, Edgar Loupe. Are you that bitter that you can’t accept that?”

It seemed that the disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion was called Edgar.

Edgar narrowed his eyes like an angered tiger as he turned around and shouted at the crimson-robed man, “Cease your snippy remarks, Albert Hunt! Even if I lost to you by a hair strand, it was just because I was unlucky. It doesn’t mean I’m weaker than you. If the two of us face each other again, I’ll definitely win it convincingly. Don’t be so pleased with your past results!”

Albert snorted as he looked at Edgar condescendingly. “Are you such a sore loser? You talk like you’re stronger than me, but you lost to me! You say you lost by just a hair strand, but I think you lost by miles. You lost so completely, but you’re trying to be so arrogant here. Do you think that you can say whatever you want just because no one here saw our battle?”

Those words thoroughly angered Edgar. He rushed right forward and was only a meter away from Albert. He stared right at Albert, looking like he wanted to push Albert down with the pressure alone.

“You think I’m lying? You know yourself who’s the one saying whatever they want! How many times have you bragged in front of me just because of that one result between the two of us? I‘ve told you before: as long as there’s a chance for both of us to compete again, I’ll squash you!”

The tense atmosphere between the two of them attracted a lot of curious gazes. They had not lowered their voices, so everyone around them got the gist of things from their conversation.

One of them was from Phoenix Valley, while the other was from the Unbreaking Pavilion. The two clans were quite even in strength. Even though Phoenix Valley was not ranked among the clans, everyone in Middle Province with a bit of understanding knew that Phoenix Valley was no weaker than any eighth-grade clans. Even among eighth-grade clans, they would be at the peak, about equal to the Unbreaking Pavilion. The two forces had suddenly gone to war, so the warriors within those two forces would understandably have a lot of animosity among them.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2881 - 2890

Chapter 2881
What the other warriors there never expected was the fact that the animosity between these parties would be so direct, they were right on each other's faces!

If not for the restrictions in place, they might have fought each other on the spot.

A few people started to whisper amongst themselves, and the two standing in front of Jackie, in particular, chatted interestedly.

"Even if we don't get anything from the fifth level, just this show alone would be worth it…"

"That's true. Phoenix Valley and the Unbreaking Pavilion are that hostile. I heard that they won't even bother talking and just jump straight into beating each other up unless rules prevent them. I wonder how many people have died recently."

"Did a lot of people die? Are they crazy? Don't they know that they'll just get taken advantage of by a third party? The two forces are fighting so intensely. If a lot of people die, other forces will definitely be paying attention. If the number of their elites waned down, they'll get attacked for sure. They'll disappear from the Hestia Continent completely!"

"I doubt the higher-ups of the two forces wouldn't know something so blatant that even you'd know. There must be something at work if the two forces are going to war. What is happening now, really?"

"Don't they both have the keys to the Valley of Enlightenment?"

"What do you know? If it's just for those keys, they wouldn't fight to such an extreme! Something must be happening behind the scenes."

Everyone else started to throw guesses while Edgar and Albert were bickering. Everyone was wondering what the reason for the war starting was. They would not believe the reason that those two forces had given up, it was too easy for such a guess. Anyone with the slightest common sense knew that those two forces would be taken advantage of.

Oddly, the Unbreaking Pavilion and Phoenix Valley did not care about using up important resources as they headed into war. There had to be a reason that the war was necessary. The reason had not been announced, of course, so it had to be a secret kept under tight scrutiny.

Some speculated further.

“I think that Phoenix Valley and the Unbreaking Pavilion must be fighting for a treasure that can make them a ninth-grade clan. Otherwise, there’s no way they are fighting over it so intensely.”

“Hey, you might be onto something here! Even if it’s not something that can make them a ninth-grade clan like you said, it must be something incredibly valuable.”

“Both parties refuse to spill anything, though. Many forces are trying so hard to find out what’s happening but have all failed to get even a single bit of news. It’s rather vexing.”

The discussions did not stop, and Rudy and Jackie merely listened in quietly from behind. After a while, the two of them discussed the matter as well.

The point Rudy was the most fixated on was that they had not figured out the reason for everything. All they knew was that the Unbreaking Pavilion and Phoenix Valley were just fighting outwardly when all this while, they had some sort of cooperation going on in secret.

As for what they were working on, no one knew that. Fights between two people were usually because of grudges, but clans would not let something like that control their emotions.

Chapter 2882
Rudy frowned and said, “Everyone here is talking with such interest, but none of them grasped the main point. None of them know that Phoenix Valley and the Unbreaking Pavilion are just fighting on the surface, putting on a show for the other forces in Middle Province.”

Jackie nodded. “Meanwhile, the other forces are probably all busy trying to figure out what’s so amazing that the two of them would start fighting. None of them have intervened, probably because they want to see if they can take advantage of the situation. They don’t know at all that they’ve been tricked. They’ve all been played like fools.”

Rudy let out a laugh as he nodded. “It’s nice looking at others’ fights. No wonder everyone loves to join in on everything. The arguments on the fourth level were because I couldn’t keep my mouth shut, so I’ll keep quiet this time. Even if I have anything to say, I’ll lower my voice and make sure no one hears me. That way, no one will trouble us, right?”

Despite his words, there was a sliver of uncertainty in his voice. He was already afraid of causing any trouble. Wherever he went, some lunatic would be hostile toward them, and as such, they never had a moment of peace.

Jackie knew what Rudy was thinking of when he looked at Rudy’s expression, so he let out a small smile as he nodded, patting Rudy on the shoulder.

“Don’t worry this time, no one here knows who I am,” assured Jackie. “As long as we’re careful, they won’t cause us any trouble. There’s only one goal for us, which is to get through the test on the fifth level and get to the sixth.”

Rudy nodded, patting his chest. “You’re right. Everyone here is from different cities. They’ve never met us and definitely don’t know us. They won’t cause us any trouble for no reason…”

Meanwhile, Edgar let out another shout, “Stop spouting nonsense at me! Do you think I don’t know that you put in so much effort just to meet me in the same city? Aren’t you here because you want to embarrass me? Let me tell you, you no longer have any grounds to humiliate me. You’re no match for me at all. I’ll just squash you!”

Hearing that, Albert could not stop himself from laughing as he looked at Edgar as though he was a fool.

“What are you talking about? Why would I bother trying to meet you? Who do you think you are?”

The two of them no longer cared about their station as they started to say whatever came to their minds.

Edgar’s face darkened as he sneered, “I heard that you never planned on entering Cloud City, but why are you here now?”

That was his strongest proof, but Albert seemed to disagree with a bewildered frown.

“Cloud City? I entered Crescent Moon City! It’s eighteen miles away from Cloud City!”

The two of them immediately calmed down after they said that. Everyone around them started to widen their eyes. The more quick-witted people, meanwhile, began questioning each other about their origins. Everyone was shocked upon hearing each other‘s responses.

They were all from different cities and had passed the tests for the fourth level and arrived in the fifth, hence how everyone was gathered here. After figuring things out, everyone had looks of shock on their faces, other than Jackie and Rudy.

Rudy whispered into Jackie’s ear, “These idiots finally figured it out. I thought that talented warriors would at least be close to you in intelligence. I thought that they’d figure out something was wrong when they got to the fifth level and figure out things about this place. I thought too highly of them, it seems.”

Jackie smiled, not saying anything.

Chapter 2883

Rudy seemed to have gained slight interest in the situation and wanted to properly talk about it with Jackie. “It’s so relaxing not being targeted by anyone,” he mused, “And we don’t have to argue with idiots! No wonder you always give me that look like I’m a fool… I finally understand now. These ignorant people don’t know what level you‘ve reached. Things we talk about might sound normal to us, but they’ll just think we’re bragging. They would just try to push us down…”

“You’re Jackie?” interjected a new voice, inquisitive, before Rudy could finish.

Jackie frowned as a flash of disgust crossed his face. At this point, he felt like he could rage if anyone, except for Rudy, called out to him.

Alas, he had to look up in acknowledgment.

The moment he looked up, he saw Edgar smiling right at him, much to Jackie’s surprise. After all, Edgar had just been intensely quarreling with Albert and looked like he wanted nothing more than to beat up Albert.

Jackie had just been exchanging a few words with Rudy when the guy ran right in front of him. At a glance, he looked like bad news already.

Jackie frowned, not. wanting to have much to do with Edgar.

If it had been any other warrior, they might have tried to curry favor with Edgar thanks to his background. However, Jackie could not be bothered with the guy and merely nodded coldly without saying anything.

Edgar did not have too big of a reaction toward Jackie’s attitude. It was a far cry from the explosive temper he showed earlier. He let out a smile as he walked two steps forward, standing next to Jackie.

At this moment, Jackie grew even more irked as he eyed the man coldly, asking, “How do you know me? I don’t think I’ve met you before. Do you need something?”

Edgar let out a laugh as he shook his head. “Why are you being so cautious? I’ve just heard that you’re very talented but don’t have much of a background. I wanted to invite you to join the Unbreaking Pavilion. You should at least be an inner disciple if you join the Unbreaking Pavilion! Of course, if you’re already part of anywhere else, then I won’t be saying this…”

Jackie frowned.

Edgar was trying to pull Jackie into the Unbreaking Pavilion?

No matter how Jackie thought about it, he felt unsettled. The goal was definitely not that.

Jackie took a deep breath. “I don’t come from anywhere, I’m already used to working alone. The Unbreaking Pavilion is large as it is, and I’d just be a small fish there. It‘s better for me to swim around among the normal warriors.”

Jackie was already being very polite, but Edgar decided to brush it aside as he said with amusement, “Oh, no need to joke around! We’re not idiots here. I heard that your skills and talents are all among the best. Even chosen disciples of high-ranked clans might not be able to beat you.”

The moment he said that, everyone turned around to look at Jackie with curiosity. Edgar’s evaluation had been incredibly high earlier.

If anyone else had said this, they might have doubted it was true. However, it was Edgar, a man from the Unbreaking Pavilion, who said this, so everyone believed it. After all, anyone who knew that Edgar was someone incredibly arrogant. He never admitted defeat to anyone, so Jackie must have been skilled enough to earn his praise.

Jackie let out a sneer when he heard Edgar’s flattery.

Edgar would not praise him for no reason. After all, he had interacted with disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion a few times, and not once did he have a good impression. He knew that everyone from that clan was insufferably arrogant. Edgar had a different goal in mind for sure.

Just as Jackie expected, Edgar continued, “You’re very strong and so talented! You have a lot of resources to support you and elders to teach you. I’ve already said all this to you, so are you going to insist on hiding things?”

Chapter 2884
Despite the smile on Edgar’s face, his eyes seemed to be scowling at Jackie. Even Rudy, standing next to Jackie, could see through his intentions.

Rudy frowned as various thoughts flashed in his head. First of all, he did not know who Edgar was. Furthermore, Edgar had not gotten through to the fifth level from Thousand Leaves City, but from another city instead.

Rudy would not be so confused if Edgar had been from Thousand Leaves City. After all, so many things had happened since they entered the Thousand Leaves Tower, and a few people had witnessed Jackie’ s strength. Even though they had some conflicts with the Unbreaking Pavilion in Black Sun City, the disciples that saw Jackie had all died. Even if those wandering warriors had told the Unbreaking Pavilion about Jackie, Rudy noticed just how eerily swift Edgar recognized Jackie.

That could not have happened, even if those wandering warriors had described how Jackie looked. After all, there was no way to perfectly describe how someone looked. Those thoughts constantly flashed in Rudy's mind, and he was filled with doubt

Edgar's words and actions were too confusing.

How did Edgar know who Jackie was? Could Edgar have known Jackie before entering the Whirling World?

Jackie raised an eyebrow and looked at Edgar, barely reacting to Edgar's words.

Edgar started to get angry when he saw that Jackie did not seem willing to play along, even after he had made things so clear. Even if Edgar had other intentions, he was someone of high status. He could not bear to be ignored like that.

Jackie was overstepping his boundaries.

Albert let out a sneer. "Edgar, he doesn't want to talk with you at all. Can't you tell? Do you think the Unbreaking Pavilion is the best clan in all of Hestia? Do you think anyone would join just because you asked them to? He has his own background if he's strong, so why are you rambling here?"

Edgar frowned as he shot Albert an angry look. The two of them were practically mortal enemies at that point, and Albert was, of course, happy to see Edgar suffering.

Albert smiled and walked over, giving Jackie a once-over. Nothing seemed out of the ordinary about Jackie, and he had seen how Edgar behaved. He knew Edgar had other intentions. Naturally, he would not let him get what he wanted.

He let out a laugh as he said, facing Jackie, "Haven't you heard that those with ill intentions never give off good vibes?"

After he said that, everyone knew that there were some intentions behind those words.

Edgar shouted angrily, "What do you mean? I'm just chatting with Jackie, not you! Ill intentions? You're the one with ill intentions. I just wanted to have a chat with him. Everyone respects the strong. I've heard about Jackie before, and I'm just that curious about him. That's why I wanted to talk to him a little."

Albert raised an eyebrow and said in disdain, "Only an idiot would believe that. You said all that earlier to try and figure out where Jackie is from!"

Chapter 2885
Albert's words exposed Edgar's motives, leaving the man completely furious.

At this point, asking Jackie more questions would be too obvious, and anyone would be on alert after that. Thus, Edgar could not proceed as he planned.

The desire to rip Albert to shreds thickened as he panted furiously, pointing at Albert. “Only petty men think everyone’s a thief. I never thought about that at all! I just wanted to have a chat with Jackie. Where did you hear that I’m trying to look into things?”

Albert raised an eyebrow, answering earnestly, “You were constantly asking where Jackie’s from. Didn’t you just say that he should just tell you where he’s from since things were already at that point? Isn’t that just you revealing your intentions? You don’t know him at all, yet you tried to be so nice to him. With your temperament, there’s no way you’d act like that without a goal!”

Those words deflated Edgar. He looked at Albert hatefully as he gritted his teeth angrily. However, there was nothing he could do.

Everyone around them could see for themselves what had happened, it was obvious what Edgar had been doing at that point.

Edgar truly did try to pry into Jackie’s background, but why the need to do so?

Jackie quietly stood by the side as he looked at the two of them arguing. He had already figured out what Albert‘s intentions were from Albert’s second question. Various questions and speculations started to surface in his mind.

How did Edgar recognize him? How was Edgar sure that Jackie was strong?

After all, Edgar was not from Thousand Leaves City, so he could not have gotten that information.

Why did Edgar want to know where he was from? What was the reason?

Various things played around in Jackie’s mind, and an ominous feeling rose in his mind. Edgar‘s actions made Jackie raise his guard. True, he had encountered a lot of things, and his skills had improved greatly. However, there should have been no way for Edgar to know who he was. After all, he had killed off all the disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion in Black Sun City.

The wandering warriors might have seen him, but they did not have any special ways to record what he looked like. Even those wandering cultivators could only convey how he looked by describing him or drawing him, but that was not enough for Edgar to recognize him at a glance.

Thinking about that, Jackie shook his head, denying that possibility. Edgar could not possibly recognize him through the wandering warriors, so who was the one who recognized him?

They could have gotten Jackie‘s name, of course, as his rough appearance through the wandering warriors, but that was not enough to recognize him at a glance. Since it was not the wandering warriors, it had to be someone he met in Thousand Leaves City.

Before entering Thousand Leaves City, he had some conflicts, but none of them involved the Unbreaking Pavilion. After entering Thousand Leaves Tower, he had not had any fights with disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion, but he did have an issue or two with the Compass Pavilion instead.

Chapter 2886
The more Jackie thought about it, the more confused he got.

Edgar and Albert who were next to him were already coming to verbal blows. The two of them could not stand the sight of each other, and Albert had even interfered with this.

How could Edgar take that?

Edgar shouted loudly at Albert, “Just you wait! I definitely won’t let you off. Even if we can’t fight here, I’ll find you when we get out! Don’t think you can continue bragging in front of me!”

Albert laughed, saying nonchalantly, “You talk like you’re strong enough to have me on my knees if we meet again. You’re clearly the weaker one because talking is all you do!”

Jackie frowned as he looked at the both of them arguing. He felt like his ears were buzzing. He turned around and walked in another direction as he did not want to bother with them anymore.

Edgar’s plans had already been exposed. It would only cause suspicion if he continued, and he would have nothing to gain, so Edgar did not stop Jackie from leaving.

Rudy followed behind Jackie, and the two of them found a spacious place.

Jackie had been frowning the whole time as various emotions flashed in Jackie’s eyes.

Rudy whispered the thoughts in his head, “What’s up with that Edgar person? How did he recognize you? How did you know you were strong? He even tried to figure out where you’re from. What’s he doing all this for? Albert was right, Edgar definitely had other intentions trying to approach you. It’s definitely nothing good!”

Jackie sighed as he turned to look at Rudy earnestly. In truth, he should be quietly thinking about things at that moment, but Rudy was right beside him and knew everything as well.

He felt like discussing things with Rudy might yield something as he said, “He should have not recognized me through those wandering warriors… “

After saying that, Jackie told Rudy about his earlier thoughts. After Rudy heard Jackie's explanation, he nodded earnestly, "You're right. We had a good look at all the wandering warriors then, if they had used any recording arrays, we'd have immediately noticed. Yet, everyone had been fixated on going into Black Sun City."

Jackie nodded as he continued, "The wandering warriors did not record my appearance, but someone else must have. Someone had definitely recorded my image and somehow sent the information over. That's how Albert recognized me all the way in Cloud City."

Rudy nodded, "Then the most important question is here. Who used an array to record your appearance?"

There was a special array that could allow a person's appearance to be recorded perfectly in it. It could even send that information out through special methods. However, the arrays were incredibly expensive, so regular people could not possibly own any.

The fact that Edgar recognized Jackie at a glance was definitely thanks to that special array. Someone had recorded Jackie's image and sent it to the other eighth level cities.

Chapter 2887
All of the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion probably already knew what Jackie looked like.

Jackie let out a sigh. He then said, "They know how I look and that I'm called Jackie. They know I'm skilled as well, but they don't know where I'm from. It means that they only knew of me from the Whirling World!"

Rudy nodded, looking at Jackie respectfully. He had been so confused about everything, but Jackie had started to analyze things earnestly. Everything Jackie said seemed logical.

Jackie continued, "If they did not know me from what I did in Black Sun City, then it had to be someone from Thousand Leaves City who recorded me and sent it over. Before we entered Thousand Leaves City, we met quite a few people, but there were no disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion among them. Even if I did well, there could not have been any disciples sending my image over… So I'm sure that the person who recorded my image must be a warrior we met after entering the Thousand Leaves Tower."

Hearing that, Jackie suddenly remembered Cody Stone.

After entering the Thousand Leaves Tower, Cody had been the disciples that had left the biggest impression on him. However, he had not had any conflicts with Cody. Cody probably did not even know who he was. Cody had already gotten into the second level when he defeated Vale.

Thinking about that, Jackie said helplessly, “Could it really be because I’ve been doing too well? That’s why a disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion took down my image and broadcast it. Do they really want me to join the Unbreaking Pavilion?”

Rudy nodded, feeling like that was the most plausible explanation. After all, they had not had any fights with the Unbreaking Pavilion after Black Sun City.

Jackie sighed again, “Even if it’s very possible, I don’t think it’s reliable. When has the Unbreaking Pavilion ever lacked disciples? Even if they did, they would not try to invite me to join like this. Furthermore, Edgar clearly had other intentions when he was talking to me. He definitely did not mean well. How could he be talking to me in that manner if he wants to be my fellow disciple..?”

After saying that, someone’s image flashed in Jackie’s mind. He stiffened suddenly as an answer that was closer to the truth appeared in his heart.

He widened his eyes as he said slowly, “We didn’t just meet Cody! There’s also Grayson, who was wearing the clothes of the Unbreaking Pavilion!”

The moment Jackie said that Rudy stiffened as well. He finally realized that there was Grayson.

On the second level, Rudy had been unable to control himself when he saw Grayson again and started to interrogate him.

Grayson had acted too strangely then. He was even wearing the uniform of the Unbreaking Pavilion. Rudy had not gotten any answers and had been lectured by Jackie as well. He had thought that it would all be in the past, but he never expected what happened today to be tied with that.

Rudy took a deep breath, “So you think that Grayson was the one who did it? He was the one who broadcasted how you looked using a special array?!”

Chapter 2888
Jackie nodded, saying quickly, “Do you remember how Grayson looked at you when you were questioning him? He looked at you as if it was the first time he had ever seen you. He did not seem to know the two of us, and looked at us like enemies when you questioned him!”

Rudy had a dark look on his face and replied, “That’s true! That’s what happened! So he recorded your image with a special array and broadcasted it. He really doesn’t know us, and wanted to figure out where you’re from…”

Jackie nodded. That should have been what happened.

That was the only reason he could think of after considering everything that had happened. However, a bigger question remained, what did Grayson go through?

Could Grayson have done all that just to try and figure Jackie out?

Jackie sighed…

“There are too many questions regarding Grayson. The information we can get is not enough to determine what happened to him. Why doesn’t he know us? Why was he looking into us? What does he want…”

After saying that, Jackie no longer knew what to say. He felt like more and more mysteries were popping up. It was like a dark cloud that would never go away, trapping him inside.

Rudy looked at Jackie, actually having a lot to say. However, he swallowed back his words after some thought, taking a long time before saying, “Should we just stop thinking about this? Edgar was only trying to look into where you’re from, and not anything else. Even if they want to do anything bad to us, it should take some time…”

Rudy saw a conflicted and exasperated look on Jackie’s face. It did not feel great. This time, Rudy clearly understood why dwelling on impossible problems was useless.

He turned to look around him. It still looked the same as when they first came in. It was already almost an hour, but nothing had changed. That wizened voice had not spoken.

After arriving at the fifth level, it was like the hundred of them had been forgotten. The ones who argued were arguing, and others talked among themselves.

Rudy frowned and questioned, “Strange, we’ve been in here for so long, so why hasn’t anything changed at all? Could there be no test on the fifth level?”

Jackie finally realized that they had already been there for a while. Usually, the test should have already begun. They had entered with so many questions, and warriors from other cities were all gathered there. It was like they had been forgotten. There were not even any changes in the environment.

People slowly started to react as well, as they started to discuss loudly, “Why hasn’t it started yet? Wasn’t the test supposed to begin when a hundred have gathered?”

“Why aren’t there any changes? Who knows what the fifth level’s test is? What was the array that was activated?”

“I don’t know. I only heard a voice before we came that a hundred were needed to restart the array. Yet, nothing seemed to have happened after reaching this place, other than everyone else suddenly appearing. I wonder if something happened…”

As everyone started to discuss the matter, they suddenly heard the creaking of mechanisms moving. Everyone suddenly froze as the noise of conversation disappeared.

Chapter 2889
All of them widened their eyes as they looked around. They were all on full alert, ready for anything to suddenly happen. After a few moments, that familiar voice was heard again. It was as deep and monotonous as usual…

“All members gathered, and the fifth level’s test will begin. All of you entered an illusory world, you’re not in the real world…”

Everyone froze at that. Even Jackie looked up in disbelief. They were not in the actual world, but an illusion.

Jackie never felt like he was in one from start to finish, because everything had felt so real. After absorbing so many memories of past heroes, he was very confident in his intuition. After all, he had all that experience to fall back on. Jackie would usually notice any hint of irregularity. Yet, he had felt like everything was normal after entering the place. Everyone he saw and everything he heard seemed perfect. There had been no way for him to know that he had been trapped in an illusion at all. The ones around him were incredibly surprised as well. “So I’m in an illusion? Then you’re all fake people? Only I’m real?”

“Dream on! You’re the fake one. This is probably not a complete illusion, but a partial one. We can talk to each other, but what’s in front of us might not be real…”

“What are you going on about…” Some felt like they had entered a solitary world, while some thought that they had entered the same illusion as everyone else.

The arguments were getting louder, but none of that affected Jackie. He was already sure that the illusion included everyone.

The deep voice was heard again, “You will be facing countless wind beasts later. Your current bodies are not your actual bodies at all. They were replicated with a special method. Your skills and techniques were not weakened at all. If you lose to a wind beast and end up being killed, you won’t experience actual death. You will just be kicked out! There is only one winner in this match… The first person to break past the array will earn the key to the sixth level.”

Jackie frowned, feeling like the words were a bit confusing. Only one person could be the victor. The person who broke the array would win, but no one mentioned any arrays.

After all the discussions, the noise slowly died again. A howl of wind could suddenly be heard, and everyone started to jump in alarm as they slowly formed a circle.

Jackie had been at a corner earlier, so he was the furthest away. He looked at Rudy helplessly. Rudy had really turned into a complete burden then.

The moment they started fighting, it would be hard for Jackie to protect Rudy. Rudy had felt that, and pursed his lips as he said earnestly to Jackie, “You don‘t have to care about me after the test starts. I wouldn’t be able to hold on for that long even with you protecting me anyway. It’s just an illusion, and I won’t actually die. I’ll just be kicked out.”

Chapter 2890
Even if he was not eliminated, it was useless for Jackie to keep guard of him anyway. After all, Rudy could not get the prize. Jackie nodded, if he really decided to ignore Rudy, then Rudy would definitely be eliminated.

A few familiar roars were heard in the distance. Green figures started to rapidly charge at them. A few hundred wind beasts were basically rushing at them with all their might. Those wind beasts were flaring their teeth with eyes full of bloodlust, looking like they wanted to rip everyone apart.

“What do we do?! Break the array? Is this an array? Do they want us to break out of the illusion or the array? I have no idea what’s happening, and the test has already started…”

“I haven’t figured anything out either. There was so much free time at the start, and nothing was said. Why is the test so rushed? We didn’t get any time to think about what array we were supposed to break at all. Could those wind beasts have all been formed by arrays?”

The warriors were all in confusion. The earlier announcement had been far too sudden. They were already in a state of panic before they could even make things clear.

Jackie stared at the wind beasts that were charging over, gripping his gray sword tightly. At that moment, he only had one thought in mind, which was figuring out how to destroy the array.

Were the wind beasts part of an array, or everything around them?

Unfortunately, the time was too short. The wind beasts had already arrived right in front of them.

Jackie frowned as he pushed Rudy behind him. The sword in his hand constantly danced, practically killing a wind beast each time he slashed. Thankfully, all of those wind beasts had been restricted to the late stage of the innate level, and their killing techniques were restricted to the middle earth rank. No one who got to the fifth level was weak.

Those wind beasts were no match for the warriors alone, but they were charging up in waves. Even if the warriors could face the wind beasts, it was still quite a lot of pressure.

The roars of anger from the wind beasts and the crazed shouts of the warriors could both be heard. With the sound of weapons clashing against claws, the originally quiet surroundings became incredibly rowdy.

Practically everyone who arrived at the fifth level was a disciple from a high-grade clan. They were all elite warriors, and many wind beasts died within a short time.

There were still no deaths on the human side, but as time passed, some people started to lose control.

“It’s unending! After one dies, the second and the third charge forward. Just look! There’s still an unending flow of wind beasts charging right at us! What is happening? What array do we need to break?!”

“I’ve already stopped thinking about that. There are too many wind beasts. It’s impossible to kill them all!”

In order to stop themselves from getting injured by a sneak attack from a wind beast, everyone was wound up very tightly. No one had the time to even think about the array. It was a vicious cycle. They constantly fought and did not have the time to think of ways to break the array. Since they could not break the array, they would face an unending wave of wind beasts.

There were way too many wind beasts, and their true energy was limited. Their true energy would be expended eventually. When that happened, they would not be able to fight back even if they wanted to.

Jackie realized that as well, but he did not know what he needed to do at that moment. There should be an array, but he could not figure out what kind of array it was, or how he could break it.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2891 - 2895

Chapter 2891

There was only one thing he knew. It was impossible to break the array just by relying on constantly killing the wind beast.

“Jackie, why are the wind beasts not attacking me?” Rudy said to Jackie.

Jackie had pushed Rudy behind him earlier, but as time passed, Rudy realized in surprise that those wind beasts did not seem to see him at all. All of the attacks fell on the warriors that relied on themselves to enter the fifth level.

He was completely ignored as a dependent. Even without Jackie’s protection, the wind beasts ignored him anyway, not attacking him. That actually gave Jackie more room to relax, not needing to protect Rudy.

“Everyone, quickly figure something out! We can let this go on, or all of us will be eliminated!”

“I can’t hold on any longer…” A man from the Deer Pavilion let out a cry of misery.

Right after he said that a wind beast bit him on the arm. The wind beast’s bite was incredibly strong. With a pull, it ripped that man’s arm off.

The disciple of the Deer Pavilion let out a cry of agony. At that moment, his entire body weakened from the injury. He was pushed down by the charging wind beasts and had his head ripped off in a flash.

Everyone saw that sight and suddenly felt a chill on their backs. After that disciple died, the space in front of him suddenly distorted as he turned into gray specs of light, entering the distorted space in front of him. That meant that the person had already lost, and was kicked out. Other than Jackie, everyone had a dark look on their faces. That was just the beginning.

There were more and more people after that who fell to the wind beasts’ attacks either because they let down their guard or they had used up all their true energy. After they were killed by the wind beasts, they were eliminated in the same way. All of those warriors had managed to get to the fifth level because of their exceptional talents and extraordinary skills. All of them naturally had the arrogance of a strong warrior, so all of them wanted to be the sole victor!

Yet, the more they wanted to be the victor, the more they panicked. After all, they still had not figured out the situation at that moment.

The victor needed to break the array, but none of them knew what the array was! There was no way they could break the array. Just as everyone was feeling lost, a shout was heard in the distance, “I understand now. I remember! So, that’s how it is!”

Jackie was the one who said all of that. At that moment, he was waving his sword around and shouting in excitement.

After that disciple of the Deer Pavilion had died, Jackie had seen everything that had happened. He remembered something when he saw the disciple turn into gray specs of light and get absorbed by the space. It was thanks to the memories of the ancient heroes. Those warriors had seen uncountable arrays. After the array activated again, Jackie immediately figured it out. He had thought that the array was incredibly special, but it had been so simple. He suddenly felt like his judgment had been clouded by the excitement, but his sudden exclamation was met with eye rolls.

They felt like Jackie was just shouting for no reason. After all, no one even had any clues, but Jackie was shouting that he remembered it.

Everyone felt like Jackie was being too sly…

Chapter 2892
Earlier, Edgar had been fully focused on arguing with Albert, but he did not forget how disrespectful Jackie had been. Even with how humble and friendly he had been acting, Jackie still gave him the cold shoulder. It was deeply humiliating to Edgar.

Edgar immediately shouted back at Jackie’ s words, “What are you blindly talking about? Everyone here couldn’t figure anything out even after working together, but you claim to know everything! Even if you want to brag, you should do it at the right time. Don’t think that we’ll look at you just because you said something at this moment!” Edgar’s words infuriated Rudy.

Rudy shouted back, “What do you mean by this?! If Jackie said that, it means he’s sure. You’re just trying to be petty!”

Edgar let out a laugh and brushed it aside, “Don’t judge others by your own standards. Petty? Do you think Jackie is that righteous or noble? I want to see what he’s figured out. Don’t tell me he’s figured out how to break the array, I won’t believe it!”

A lot of people around them agreed with Edgar’s words, “Edgar’s right, we haven’t even found a single thing, but this guy suddenly shouted that he’s figured it out. What could he figure out?”

“I refuse to believe one person can suddenly figure everything out when the rest of us haven‘t made any progress!”

“This guy probably just had some flash of inspiration, and is trying to brag that he figured it out…”

Everyone else seemed to agree with that sentiment. They felt like Jackie had just merely had an epiphany, but he naturally did not care about how everyone else viewed him.

He sighed as he thought about similar arrays in his mind when he fought the wind beasts. After someone finally died, he felt something familiar and easily found the name of the array in his memories.

He suddenly widened his eyes as he muttered, “The Phantom Array!”

The Phantom Array was an array that could only be set up by warriors of first-grade worlds. Warriors of second-grade worlds did not have the ability. Yet, it appeared in the Whirling World, which proves that the whirling World definitely had a close relationship with first-grade worlds.

Those cities that remained or those ancient formations were all created by warriors from first-grade worlds.

With that thought in mind, Jackie’s eyes lit up in excitement.

The sounds of mockery could be heard around him. Everyone was looking at Jackie as they fend off the wind beasts, wanting to see what Jackie would do.

Jackie lightly snorted, ignoring everyone as he gripped the gray sword in his hand. Suddenly, the tip of his sword was pointed at his neck, looking like he was about to commit suicide.

Everyone was stunned at the sight. “What is this brat trying to do? Is he trying to kill himself? Is he giving up because he knows he won’t be able to pass?”

Chapter 2893
“That has to be it. That guy bragged so much earlier, but actually can’t back it up. So he’s trying to kill himself to avoid embarrassment.”

Those harsh words echoed around Jackie. Not a single person thought that he could do anything. Jackie did not care what everyone else thought. He merely took a deep breath as he moved his hand.

Everyone heard a piercing sound, and blood immediately flowed from Jackie’s throat. It was the first time he felt his life slowly slipping away.

That was the feeling of being close to death, but Jackie was not in a panic at all. Even though everyone had talked up a storm, feeling like his crazy actions were him giving up, no one expected Jackie to actually do it.

“This guy actually did kill himself. If he really wanted to give up and leave this place, he could have just stopped fighting and let the wind beasts finish him. Did he need to kill himself? Does he think it would look sad? So what if it did? Would we look at him in a better light?”

Jackie’s actions caused everyone a lot of surprises. They could not understand why Jackie did so. Even Rudy panicked.

When Jackie pointed the sword at his own throat, various thoughts flashed in Rudy‘s mind.

Rudy already knew not to question any of Jackie’s actions, he felt like Jackie was always incredibly logical no matter what he did, but Rudy never expected that Jackie would actually kill himself.

Could Jackie really have given up as they said?

However, Rudy immediately shook his head and threw that thought to the back of his head when the idea surfaced. Jackie was not someone who would do that. If he had a goal in mind, he would not change his mind easily.

With his body weakening, Jackie collapsed to the ground, and Rudy immediately helped Jackie up. Rudy could feel the blood from Jackie’s body constantly flowing out of the wound on his throat. If that continued, Jackie would lose his life in just a moment. Even though Jackie would not actually die, Rudy still started to panic.

Rudy’s voice was trembling, “What happened? Why did you kill yourself? Even if it’s an illusion, there was no need to kill yourself to leave…”

Rudy could not figure anything out at that moment. He did not know what Jackie was doing at all.

Could Jackie really have given up as everyone said?

After all, only by dying would they be eliminated and sent out of the illusion.

Jackie frowned as he rapidly lost his strength. Even his true energy dissipated. At that moment, Jackie did not even have the strength to talk to Rudy. He merely looked at Rudy before shutting his eyes.

Everyone started to laugh as they looked at Jackie like a joke. “That kid is something else. He acted like he had seen through everything, but he actually killed himself the next moment…”

“There must be something wrong with his head. Even if he wanted to be eliminated, there was no need to do something so crazy. What was the point other than letting us laugh at him?”

Edgar was laughing uproariously, but he was still fighting the wind beasts. He still had the time to mock Jackie, “There really is something wrong with his head. I thought he was strong at the start, but it looks like I was wrong…”

Right after Edgar had said that the creaking sounds of mechanisms moving could be heard. Everyone suddenly looked up, and a howling wind blew past them. All of the wind beasts suddenly stopped moving, as if a button to stop had been pushed.

Chapter 2894
The next second, the wind beasts suddenly started to explode one by one, turning into green specs of light, dispersing into the air. Everything had happened too quickly, and the warriors did not even have a chance to react.

“What happened? Why did those wind beasts suddenly explode into a green light?”

“I don’t know, could we have accidentally broken the array?”

“Maybe we’ve all lost?”

At the same time as everyone was celebrating the disappearance of those annoying wind beasts, they started to discuss why the wind beasts disappeared.

As everyone was wondering in confusion, the wizened voice was heard again, “The Phantom Array has been broken. The fifth level’s test has ended. The victor will be given one key!”

That answered the doubt in everyone’s hearts. When they heard that someone had actually broken the array, they all widened their eyes as they looked around at each other in confusion.

At that moment, they only had one thought in mind. They all wondered which master had broken the array when everyone else was at a loss. They still had not figured out what the Phantom Array was.

They did not know what grade the Phantom Array was, but it did not stop them from feeling shocked. Edgar frowned as he reluctantly looked around. He was a chosen disciple of an eighth-grade clan. He should have been the most excellent one among all the warriors. Even if the array had been broken, he should have been the one to break it, not anyone else.

He suddenly turned to look at Albert and relaxed a bit when he saw that Albert was also looking around in confusion. It meant that Albert was not the one to break the array. If Albert had been the one, then Albert would definitely not miss out on the chance to show off in front of him.

Who was it if not Albert?

He more or less knew all the chosen disciples from the high grade clans. However, other than Albert most of the faces here were foreign. Not a single one of them was a chosen disciple of a high level clan.

At the most, they were inner disciples. Just as he was busy puzzling things over, a faint golden light descended from above. The light slowly dissipated as it descended, revealing a golden key in front of everyone.

That was the key to getting to the sixth level. The rules had been incredibly clear. Only the person who broke the array could get the key, and the key would only allow one person to get to the sixth level.

Everyone had looks of envy on their faces. No one knew what would happen on the sixth level or what tests it would be, but everyone knew there would be amazing rewards. They would definitely benefit greatly if they had gotten the rewards for themselves.

With that thought in mind, some of them had the urge to steal the key.

With a boom, someone had lost his patience as a green-robed man shot forward like a cannonball, heading straight for the golden key to steal it. Even though he was afraid of the restrictions, he felt like it would have been too great of a benefit if he managed to get the key.

He was only one key away from getting to the sixth level. The greed got the better of him as he reached out for the key. In a flash, he was only three feet away from the golden key.

Chapter 2895
As he got closer to the key, the man’s smile deepened, “The key is mine!”

He let out an excited roar as he reached out to the key with all his might. Yet, purple lightning suddenly descended from the skies at that moment. Everyone merely heard a crack as the lightning fell right on the man.

The man let out a cry of agony as his whole body started to twitch. His skin started to blacken visibly as he was set on fire. He had already stopped breathing by the time his body hit the ground. He had been killed by the lightning that struck him.

Everyone shuddered when they saw the sight.

When the golden key had descended, everyone had greedy thoughts in their minds. However, the green-robed man had been the only person to try to steal the key. After all, everyone still had a line they would not cross. They knew that they could very well be punished by the laws if they made any moves.

When they saw what happened to the man, all of them were incredibly thankful that they did not attempt to steal the key.

At that moment, Jackie suddenly opened his eyes. The wound on his throat started to heal visibly, and the true energy and life force he had lost all recovered to the state they were in before they entered the Phantom Array.

Rudy widened his eyes abruptly as he looked at Jackie in disbelief, not knowing what to say at that moment.

Jackie was not in the mood to entertain Rudy at that moment. After he had enough energy, he jumped up on the spot and reached out for the golden key.

Everything that had happened attracted the attention of the other warriors. They did not realize that Jackie had recovered. When everyone saw that someone was reaching out for the golden key, everyone merely felt like the person was an idiot.

Did the person not see what had happened to the green-robed man?

However, they were shocked to see that lightning did not appear after the person grabbed the key. Everything was normal!

“Why didn’t the lightning strike him? This guy is trying to steal the key!” Someone shouted with widened eyes.

However, someone else immediately answered him, “Are you dumb? The key is meant for the victor. Since he was not struck by the laws when he grabbed the key, then it should be obvious who he is.”

The moment the person said that exclamations of shock were heard again. That was because Jackie had already turned around, and his familiar face was seen by everyone. They all widened their eyes as they looked at Jackie like they had seen a ghost.

They really were seeing a ghost.

Did Jackie not slash his own throat? Why was Jackie standing there as if nothing had happened, holding the golden key?

Could Jackie have been the one to break the array?!

Everything he had done earlier, really was to break the Phantom Array. Yet, that was a little absurd.

Could slashing one's own throat be the key to breaking the Phantom Array?

Various thoughts were formed and they felt like they were right.

'That brat might really have been breaking the array earlier,' Albert felt a twang of jealousy, but he did not see Jackie as his enemy in the end.

Jackie had the golden key and would ascend to the sixth level. Even if he did not like it, he still had to deal with Edgar first.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior chapter 2896 - 2900

Chapter 2896

He laughed as he said to Edgar, “You really were right. He really was breaking the array earlier. Jackie’s really something else. He’s better than you both in talent and intelligence!”

Edgar looked like he had been slapped by those words. He looked at Albert with a look of intense hatred.

Albert laughed it off, and as the two of them were about to quarrel again, the space around them suddenly distorted, surrounding everyone.

Jackie took a deep breath, not fighting back at the distorted space surrounding him. After a few moments, the space around him returned to normal. He opened his eyes again, and then he noticed that he had left that dark and yellow world, and arrived at a pitch black one. Thankfully, Rudy was by his side.

Rudy widened his eyes as he looked around in shock. The sudden distortion earlier had thoroughly scared him. Rudy reached out to grab Jackie’s arm, afraid that something was happening.

Jackie turned to look at Rudy, “Don’t worry, the space suddenly distorted earlier to separate all of us.”

Rudy nodded, widening his eyes as he still looked around in fear. At that moment, they were surrounded by darkness, but strangely enough, they could see each other clearly without any light.

After a while, Rudy said, “Are we in an illusion or the real world right now?”

The question startled Jackie as he frowned, activating his true energy. Nothing had changed, and even Jackie could not tell where they were.

Jackie shook his head, “I don’t know either”

Rudy asked again, “Is this the sixth level?”

Jackie shook his head again at that. Even though they might have been on the sixth level, he could not make that determination without more information.

Time slowly ticked away, and darkness shrouded both of them. As they started to feel lost, a figure suddenly appeared in front of them. It was a wise old man. The man had white robes on him and looked like a deity. His sudden appearance gave Jackie and Rudy a shock as they took a step backward.

The man slowly turned around, looking at both of them with an incredibly cold gaze. Jackie took a deep breath as he was suddenly on alert.

The man looked at Jackie for a while before saying with a cold tone, “Don’t enter the sixth level. Hold on to the key. Once you have the skills to challenge the sixth level, you may come again.”

Jackie was stunned by those words, and he was no longer on alert. From the voice, he could tell that the man was the one who was reciting the rules. If Jackie was not wrong, that old man should not be human, but a shred of will left behind from ancient times. It might even be a spirit vessel.

No matter what, it was still something left behind from ancient times to help activate the arrays. Jackie took a deep breath and said, “You think that I don’t have what it takes to enter the sixth level right now? I’ll definitely lose the test there?”

Jackie’s voice had a tone of arrogance to it as he asked. This whole time, he had never failed. Even though he did not know what the test for the sixth level was, he should be able to easily get through it with his current skills.

Chapter 2897
He did not think that the old man was definitely right. Even if the old man was something left behind from ancient times, it would not change Jackie’s thoughts.

The old man had a look of disdain on his face when he heard Jackie’s response, “Don’t think I don’t know what you’re thinking. You’re definitely a lot stronger than those ants outside, but you’re nothing in my eyes. I know you have an upper ultimate god rank technique, but so what? Your skills are nothing special if you compare yourself to ancient warriors.”

Jackie was stunned at those words. He had thought that the old man said that because the old man did not know anything about him, but the old man had actually seen through what level Jackie’s technique was in an instant.

Jackie was taken aback by that.

Thinking about it, it did make sense. The old man was something left behind from ancient times. No matter what the old man was, he could control Thousand Leaves Tower. Anything that happened within the tower would naturally not escape his gaze. As long as the old man observed Jackie’s skills, the old man would be able to make a judgment.

Jackie frowned and replied, “My skills are nothing compared to ancient warriors?”

Jackie was not willing to accept that fact at all. He had already perfected an upper ultimate god rank technique. Even in first grade worlds, he would amount to something, let alone third grade worlds. However, the old man's tone made Jackie feel like he was nothing.

The old man seemed to not want to bother dwelling on the problem with Jackie.

The old man slowly turned away from Jackie, "During ancient times, there were countless amazing masters, but a calamity happened, and most of those masters were lost. I said so not because I wanted to insult you, but it's just that you really are quite ordinary compared to ancient warriors…"

Jackie took a deep breath, not countering with anything else. After all, he did not know what ancient times were like, nor did he know about how strong the warriors back then were.

Jackie calmed himself down, but Rudy looked like he had swallowed an egg whole. His mouth was gaping wide, and his eyes looked like they were going to pop out of their sockets. He could not believe what he had heard.

The old man actually said that Jackie was using an upper ultimate god rank technique and Jackie had silently agreed to it. It caused Rudy to doubt everything he knew.

Rudy had known that Jackie was strong, but he did not know that Jackie was strong enough to use an upper ultimate god rank technique. If Rudy told anyone that, they would probably think he was crazy. No one would believe what Rudy was saying.

It was an upper ultimate god rank technique, and Jackie actually managed to use it at the initial stage of the spring solidifying realm. It was too absurd… Even more absurd was the fact that the old man did not think that Jackie amounted to much despite that. He made the judgment that Jackie would not be able to pass the test of the sixth level. Little did Jackie know that Rudy's jaw was about to fall off from the surprise.

Only one thought was in Jackie's mind which was to know what kind of test awaited him. He wanted to know why the old man felt like him would not be able to pass. No matter what, Jackie had a lot of confidence in himself.

He took a step forward and said, "Could I trouble you to tell me what the test on the sixth level is? Even though I'm nothing to you, I still have some confidence in myself. If I can try it out, I would still want to…"

The old man raised a hand to stop Jackie before he could finish, looking at Jackie earnestly, "You definitely won't be able to pass. Once the golden key in your hands changes color, then you'll have the right to enter the sixth level, but that's just the right…"

It was a completely barren land. Jackie and Rudy had already spent a day and a night walking in that barren land. It was the second day since they left Thousand Leaves City.

When Jackie understood that he would not be able to pass the sixth level for the moment, he did not continue dwelling on it. Just like Jackie had thought before, the two of them were sent out of Thousand Leaves City immediately.

Chapter 2898
Jackie looked down at the entry token in his hand. The entry token could not help Jackie get into a seventh level city but was actually only a guide toward the next city. Without the entry token, there was no way he could find the seventh level city even with all the skills in the world.

Jackie slowly started to understand that the Whirling World itself was a massive array. No matter how strong one was, they were insignificant in the whole of the Whirling World. They would never be able to shake the laws of the Whirling World. Even if they had a map, they still needed to move according to the rules of the Whirling World, slowly advancing deeper inside.

The more time passed, the more curious Jackie got about the Whirling World. He wanted to see what lies at the end of the Whirling World.

What secrets were hidden there? What were the Unbreaking Pavilion and Phoenix Valley planning?

Those thoughts kept on circling Jackie's mind. From what he had gathered, the two forces definitely had an immense secret hidden.

Their plan might even involve the whole Hestia Continent. It was possible that every warrior who entered the Whirling World was just a chess piece for those forces. Jackie definitely did not want to be a chess piece. Even if he did not have the skills to be a chess player at that moment, he still did not want to be played around with by someone else. He wanted to slowly reveal the truth and walk his own path.

Rudy looked at the entry token in Jackie's hand and Jackie's resolved expression before asking, "What are you thinking about? Tell me where we're going. I asked you, but you refused to tell me. I'm getting frustrated now. Why aren't you telling me? I'll know eventually anyway."

Jackie looked at Rudy with a smile, "I'm not hiding anything from you. I just don't know anything yet myself. When the entry token fell into my hand, a lot of information fell into my mind like before. I found out the locations of all the seventh level cities in the Whirling World. I'm just trying to figure out what city I want to go to next."

Rudy frowned, saying, "What's there to figure out? Aren't all the cities there seventh level cities? Can't you just pick any random one? The difficulty should more or less be the same, so what's there to be conflicted over?"

Jackie let out a sigh as the token in his hand shook. He looked up into the distance, still seeing a vast expanse of nothingness. It was as if the barren lands had reached the end of the world.

He said in a calm tone, “It’s different, but there’s nothing else to think about now. We’ll be heading to Prosper City next. You’ll be able to show off your skills there. You won‘t be dependent on me.”

Rudy widened his eyes at Jackie’s words as he looked at Jackie with a confused expression, “What do you mean? I can show off my skills but I’d just be beaten up like trash. There’s nothing I can do…”

It was not that Rudy was putting himself down, it was just that Rudy’s mental state had suffered too much recently. Ever since they entered the Whirling World, he met so many masters. Even regular wandering warriors were able to beat him up easily.

Rudy had been living in self-doubt the whole time. Back then, he still had his arrogance and pride even if he lost to others, but that arrogance was slowly disappearing.

Jackie turned and looked at Rudy seriously, “Don’t look down on yourself like that. Everyone you’ve faced has been a warrior, but your true status is an alchemist. Prosper City is a city built for alchemists.”

Chapter 2899
Rudy stiffened at those words, suddenly getting excited and exclaimed, “A city for alchemists? Prosper City is a city for alchemists?!”

Jackie nodded as Jackie slowly raised his head, looking at the gray skies.

“The Whirling World is an incredibly special place. The other seventh level cities are more or less the same, but only Prosper City has an indication next to it. It’s written clearly that Prosper City was a city meant to test alchemists. All alchemists could head there.”

With Jackie’s confirmation, Rudy excitedly bounced around and cheered. He had an excited look on his face.

Jackie felt a little happy seeing how excited Rudy was. He had been wondering if he should head to Prosper City or somewhere else. In truth, Jackie had a lot of choices on hand. After all, he was not weak in any way. After thinking about it for a while, he decided on Prosper City.

Rudy was one of the reasons, but even more so was that he wanted to obtain the rewards from Prosper City. He might have done very well in Thousand Leaves City, but he had not gotten any rewards. Hence he wanted to get even more valuables from a seventh level city.

After thinking about it, he made Prosper City his mark. Prosper City had been built to test alchemists, so the contents would naturally target alchemists. The prizes awarded would definitely benefit alchemists as well. It might be some valuable and high grade materials. If it was useless to himself, he could sell them for spirit crystals. He could also use those materials to refine pills and sell the pills for even more spirit crystals.

For Jackie, the two most important things were to raise his skills and earn spirit crystals.

After Rudy danced around in excitement, he slowly started to calm down. However, he was still incredibly happy as he said, “Let’s hurry up and go! I can’t wait any longer. Do you know how stifled I’ve felt? Even though I’ve seen a lot moving forward with you, I wasn’t relying on myself in the end. It’ll be different in Prosper City. I can rely on myself for once!”

Jackie nodded as he patted Rudy on the shoulder, pointing forward and saying, “Prosper City is a distance away in this direction.”

Rudy nodded emotionally, and the two of them rapidly headed toward Prosper City.

“They really are a bit dumb. They should think about their orders before issuing them. How could Jackie possibly come to Prosper City? He’s so strong, that he would naturally choose other seventh level cities. Even though he has an alchemist’s robes on, no one knows if he deliberately wears them to trick others. He might’ve just bought that badge from somewhere.”

Chapter 2900
“When have you ever seen an alchemist that’s so strong? All alchemists throw themselves into the art, how could they have time to practice combat?!”

Gent Morales was an alchemist that was raised by the Unbreaking Pavilion. He had quite a lot of pride. The Unbreaking Pavilion was somewhere that cultivated warriors, so alchemists only took up a small percentage. When they were in the clan, they were respected because of their status as an alchemist. However, the chosen disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion would never bother showing respect to alchemists of their level. The chosen disciples felt like alchemists were just there to provide a service, and that alchemists were nothing that special.

That was why Gent did not really like warriors that much.

Mark Wright was the leader of all the alchemists from the Unbreaking Pavilion for the trip to the Whirling World, and could naturally not let the emotions get the better of him like this.

Mark stared at Gent and said, “Since it’s an order from above, we have to obey. You don’t have to care if Jackie is coming here or anywhere else. We just have to listen to the orders from the higher ups. As long as we see Jackie, we have to report his whereabouts. We can't let him have an easy time!"

Gent raised an eyebrow, "Who exactly did Jackie offend? Why are we even doing this? They're just issuing orders without explaining anything."

Mark frowned, feeling like Gent was crossing the line a bit. However, Gent really did have some skill, so Mark could not offend Gent too much.

Mark was forced to patiently say, "Only a few people know of the secret behind this."

Gent snorted as he looked at Mark, "I don't know if anyone else knows about it, but I know that you definitely do. I do know why even if you don't tell me. Many of our people died in Black Sun City, everyone's already saying that someone called Jackie did it. It has to be because of that, right? In my opinion, so what if all of them died? They just didn't have the skills, and were killed. We had so many people, but Jackie still escaped. Who's to blame but themselves for being trash?"

Mark angrily berated, "Shut up right now. This is not something you can talk about. No matter what, we just need to follow orders…"

After Mark said that, Gent's lips twitched unhappily, but he did not want to fight against Mark in front of so many people. That would be too mean. Even though Gent had always done whatever he wanted to, Gent still did not want to cross the line too much.

Mark glanced at Gent in disdain. If Gent had not been so skilled, Mark would not have chosen Gent to be a part of the team back then.

He did not want to bother sparing Gent another look as he turned and continued walking forward. There were twenty alchemists from the Unbreaking Pavilion who arrived at Prosper City. Those twenty alchemists were all excellent alchemists that the Unbreaking Pavilion had spent a lot of resources bringing up.

If not for that order, the twenty of them would have probably already entered the city. However, the order instructed them to stay out of the city for six days. It was already the third day, so some of them were a little frustrated.

Mark had already walked elsewhere because of how unhappy he was with Gent.

Some of the alchemists followed Mark as well. The alchemists of the Unbreaking Pavilion suddenly split into two factions. Those who remained were the ones who were unhappy about the order.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2901 - 2910

Chapter 2901
“I think there’s something else behind this,” whispered an alchemist from the Unbreaking Pavilion who seemed to be of no great rank

Gent raised an eyebrow before turning around. “Something else behind what?”

That person hurriedly replied, “The order to capture Jackieie alive. I don’t think it‘s because of what happened in Black Sun City.”

Right after he said that, Gent was taken aback for a moment. The others, too, started to discuss the matter.

“What could it be, then? You’re just speculating at this point. Don’t just say whatever you want to! Everyone knows about what happened in Black Sun City, but other than that, nothing else has been said.”

The average-looking man meaningfully persisted, “Of course, I’m not just saying it blindly. Just think about it, who was the one who issued this order?!”

Everyone fell silent at this. They exchanged looks among themselves, suddenly understanding.

A thought occurred to Gent at that moment. “It was Grayson…”

The man nodded, “It was Grayson. He usually would never bother with things like that, and he’s never issued any orders as well. He was never supposed to be in charge of Black Sun City anyway. With Grayson’s usual temper, he would never have bothered with anything like that. The people who died in Black Sun City would have been nothing of note to Grayson.”

The man’s words were echoed by the other alchemists who nodded vigorously.

Gent frowned, thinking about it for a while before nodding as well.

With how Grayson was, those things would never have prompted Grayson to act. He was never one to bother with things that were not related to him. Yet, this was an order from Grayson. It was clearly problematic just thinking about it.

Gent raised an eyebrow. “Is there something more to this incident? Could Jackieie have done something? I’m beginning to get excited at the thought of meeting Jackieie.”

The other alchemists nodded; they, too, wanted to see Jackieie.

At that moment, the average-looking man suddenly let out a low shout as he pointed in a direction. “Look over there! Isn’t that Jackieie?!”

The moment the man said that, all of the alchemists of the Unbreaking Pavilion looked toward where he was pointing at. True enough, they saw a familiar figure, followed by another one, and they slowly walked toward Prosper City’s plaza.

Gent’s lower jaw hung so low that an egg could fit his mouth. “It’s Jackieie!” he exclaimed.

Jackieie did not know at that moment that he had garnered massive attention. Rudy, meanwhile, had been quite happy the whole journey, and the two of them finally arrived at Prosper City’s Plaza after walking for three days and three nights.

Just like the cities before, they would need to pass the entry test if they wanted to enter Prosper City.

“I won’t drag you down this time,” assured Rudy. “If I can’t pass the entry test, then I’d be worthless for sure.”

Jackieie turned to look at Rudy as he pursed his lips. “You haven’t been a sixth-grade alchemist for that long, so don’t be overconfident. You still need time and experience.”

Chapter 2902
Rudy deflated as he looked at Jackieie. “I just feel like the entry test isn’t hard at all. We just need to complete thirty runes in the condensing plate to obtain the right to enter the city. Plus, we can bring a person along! What an easy test…”

Jackieie felt exasperated when he heard this. “You haven’t even seen what sort of pill runes you’ll need to complete. How do you know it’ll be easy?”

“It’s just an entry test!” refuted Rudy weakly. “How could they give out difficult problems? We just need to complete thirty pill runes, which I’m all up for. Don’t look down on me!”

Jackieie did not know what to say at that moment. He had never underestimated Rudy and was just speaking the truth. If Rudy continued to stand his ground on the matter, Jackieie had nothing else to say.

The two of them were talking to each other when Rudy looked up and saw the stone plate in front of them. They walked toward the stone plate and read the words on the plate.

Stunned to have read this, Rudy turned and, with a frown on his face, said to Jackieie, “What’s this? An entry fee? Didn’t you say that we needed to pass the test to enter the city? Can we even pay to enter with spirit crystals?”

Jackieie walked over and looked at the stone plate before letting out a slight laugh. “Can you please use your head before you say anything next time? If ten thousand spirit crystals are enough to get in, then what’s the point of the test? Didn’t I tell you the rules before? There will be ninety pill runes on the condensing plate. You just need to complete thirty pill runes to be able to enter the city, and you can even bring one person in with you.”

“If you complete another thirty and finish with sixty, you can bring two other people inside. Completing an additional thirty pill runes for a total of sixty will allow you to bring two people inside. If you complete ninety pill runes, you can bring three people in. Prosper City isn’t somewhere only alchemists want to go, a lot of warriors want to get in, too. A place where a lot of alchemists go means there will be a lot of pills to be made. A lot of warriors who want refined pills will enter this place.”

Jackieie then pointed at the plaza where two plain groups were gathered. The first group wore alchemist robes and donned alchemist badges on their chests. The other group was dressed in various attires. They were all from different clans or even wandering warriors. They sat on the left side of the plaza, seemingly waiting to be chosen.

Just like Jackieie had said, it was not just alchemists that wanted to enter Prosper City. A lot of warriors wanted to enter the seventh level city built for alchemists as well. In the end, alchemists were meant to help warriors. Many of the warriors sat in front of the city, looking like merchants who were waiting for a deal. They wanted to enter Prosper City to buy a lot of pills, and they would sell the pills for a lot of profit once they exited. There were even some warriors that had been sent there by their clans.

Those disciples were probably all prepared to purchase a lot of pills, perhaps even ready for sweetened deals. It was the exact opposite of what had happened in Thousand Leaves City. The test in Prosper City was meant for alchemists, so regular warriors would not be able to enter, which meant that they could only rely on high-grade alchemists to bring them in. Thus, the stone plate stating there was an entry fee was placed upfront for these warriors.

Rudy thought for a long time before understanding the fact.

Chapter 2903
Rudy snorted as he turned to tell Jackieie. “These warriors are clever, I’ll give them that. Why did not one put up a plate like that in Thousand Leaves City? The moment it concerns their benefits, they put up the stone plate.”

Jackieie nodded. “In the end, the Hestia Continent is a place where strength matters the most. If the alchemists decide to retaliate, the warriors will probably attack them together. The alchemists aren’t that strong anyway. Since they have no way of fighting back, they were forced to lower their heads.”

Rudy frowned and said unhappily, “We alchemists are at such a disadvantage, but most alchemists come from larger forces. Are those forces not going to do anything about it?”

Jackieie did not even bother looking at Rudy. “Why don’t you put some thought into this? This is the Whirling World. Those who are truly strong can’t enter. The only ones who can help these alchemists are warriors that are currently being trained. However, most of those warriors have gone to other cities and won’t have the time to come to this place at all. That’s why the rules were established. Ten thousand spirit crystals are quite a large sum anyway, so they decided to accept it.”

Rudy refused to accept this. He felt that the alchemists were oppressed during what happened in Thousand Leaves City, and with the situation suddenly reversed, the warriors were still the ones to set the rules, much to his chagrin. However, he knew he had no say in this whatsoever.

Jackieie looked at the condensing plates where 30 condensing plates were present. Every plate had an alchemist going through the test in front of them. The condensing plates were different from the entry stone. The entry stone’s test only took a little while. It was just a punch in the end. However, it took a lot more time to go through the test for Prosper City.

Thankfully, the test was set to be less than 15 minutes, and anyone who took longer than that would be considered a failure. There were quite a few alchemists who entered the Whirling World. Even though a good amount of them had entered Prosper City already, even more of them were still outside.

The plaza was full of people. Coupled with the warriors who wanted to enter with the alchemists, it was bustling. When Rudy saw the situation, he lamented, “There are so many people here. I’d never seen so many people in one place before I entered the Whirling World, but I noticed it when we walked in. How many warriors entered the Whirling World?”

Jackieie let out a laugh, not answering Rudy. He walked toward the plaza in front of the city, not wanting to waste any time. It was just a seventh-level city, after all. After entering Prosper City, he would dedicate a certain amount of time to refining pills to make even more spirit crystals.

Rudy followed closely behind him, and the two of them entered the plaza together. However, just as Jackieie was about to enter, someone stopped him.

Jackieie frowned, able to tell at a glance that Mark did not have good intentions. However, even after thinking about it, he could not recognize him.

Mark let out a smile. “Jackieie, right? I’m an alchemist from the Unbreaking Pavilion, Mark Wright.”

Chapter 2904
A group of about 19 people came up behind Mark after he introduced himself, and they shot Jackieie a seemingly unfriendly gaze.

Jackieie frowned, immediately knowing that there would be trouble the moment he heard they were from the Unbreaking Pavilion.

Jackieie raised an eyebrow as he sneered, “Are you trying to cause me trouble? Feel free to try, but with just your group, you’ll just die on the spot if you try anything.”

Mark’s expression soured at those words. He had wanted to be cordial with Jackieie, yet Jackieie’s straightforwardness ruined that. Mark failed to even maintain his smile.

Mark snorted. “This is the entry plaza, and the laws of Prosper City protect it. If you try anything here, you’ll be struck by lightning before you can even do anything!”

Jackieie raised an eyebrow, knowing that was indeed the case. “We’ll fight outside, then,” said Jackieie. “All twenty of you can fight me at the same time.”

Jackieie was not worried despite their numbers. They might be from the Unbreaking Pavilion, but they were true and blue alchemists, and to him, they were mere ants.

They were just warriors that were at the early stage of the innate level, forcibly raised to the late stage by the laws of the world. Even if 20 of them worked together, Jackieie could easily overwhelm them all.

Mark grew angrier at Jackieie’s tone, so much so that he started to pant as he almost lost his composure.

“Stop trying to act like a hero,” scoffed Mark, his eyes narrowed. “Everyone knows how strong the disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion are. You won’t be able to beat twenty of us no matter how skilled you are!”

All Jackieie wanted was to hurry up and get rid of the problem, his words were not intended to solely humiliate anyone.

Hearing Mark’s words, Jackieie raised an eyebrow. “I’ll do it eventually. Don’t think that no one can stand up to you just because you’re a disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion. Since you can’t stop me, move. If you want to continue spouting nonsense, just hurry back. Your words won’t affect me at all.”

Hearing Jackieie's words caught Mark off-guard. His hands trembled as he slowly turned pale. Jackieie had not bothered to hold back at all!

Mark narrowed his eyes. "Jackieie, this isn't a place where you can do whatever you want to. I know you're not weak, but this is Prosper City. I don't know where you got those robes you're wearing…"

Jackieie raised a hand to stop Mark before he could finish.

"Can you please shut up? These robes are mine. I got the sixth-grade alchemist badge myself. Are you the only one who can be an alchemist? You're not strong enough and chose the path of an alchemist. Does that mean that others aren't allowed to be good at both?"

Silence immediately blanketed the atmosphere as Mark's eyes widened, finding himself unable to reply. Mark's hands were clenched as they trembled. The other 19 alchemists from the Unbreaking Pavilion widened their eyes as well. They looked at Jackieie with gritted teeth but were tumble to say anything.

Rudy, meanwhile, could not stop himself from giggling.

Chapter 2905
Mark had to admit that Jackieie was talented with his words, able to choke anyone with his opinion.

They were already short on time, yet these men from the Unbreaking Pavilion had all the time to impede Jackieie's progress! He could not be bothered to even talk to them, so Jackieie held nothing back.

Gent blinked as his lips twitched. He had always been a prideful person and had always felt like he was very talented both in alchemy and his words. However, he could not help but admire Jackieie.

Jackieie had managed to completely stump that group just with his words. Gent then glanced at Mark, musing to himself how he might die out of anger toward Jackieie.

Right at that moment, someone walked over and said, "You're a bearer of misfortune. It's one thing that you've offended the Compass Pavilion, but you've even offended the Unbreaking Pavilion. You got surrounded the moment you entered. You've got some guts!"

Samuel Mckenzie laughed as he walked toward the gathering.

Mark took a few deep breaths before he composed himself. He barely managed to purse his lips at Samuel as he shook Samuel's hand. Even though the Compass Pavilion could not compare to the Unbreaking Pavilion, they were still an eighth-grade clan. Any clans that were better than sixth grade would start to cultivate their own alchemists. The Compass Pavilion naturally had a lot of alchemists, too.

Samuel was the leader of the alchemists from the Compass Pavilion. When Jackieie had a conflict with the Compass Pavilion before, it was already passed around through sound arrays. Jackieie's appearance had been recorded as well.

Jackieie's conflict with the Compass Pavilion was already at the point where they were mortal enemies. Thus, when Samuel spotted Jackieie, he brought his men with him. They merely stood at the sidelines when Jackieie and Mark first had their exchange when eventually, they found out that Jackieie had a conflict with the Unbreaking Pavilion as well. The moment they saw that Mark was at a disadvantage, they immediately walked over to target Jackieie. Even though the Compass Pavilion's relationship with the Unbreaking Pavilion was not the best, even to the point where they had a few conflicts, they were both major forces and could not make enemies of each other.

The enemy of their enemy was their friend, and neither of them wanted Jackieie to smoothly go about his business.

Mark coldly looked at Jackieie. "You seemed proud of yourself when you were at the Thousand Leaves Tower. You thought that you could lord yourself over the Compass Pavilion just because you're a little skilled. You'll have to pay for that eventually. Your earlier arrogance will just bring you misfortune! If the city plaza didn't prohibit fights, I'll bring a group of people with me to beat you up right now. I'll make you regret living!"

Jackieie sighed, suddenly regretting the fact that he did not disguise himself before coming in. Troublemaking idiots would not have surrounded him at this moment had he did that. He was not afraid of being challenged, but just afraid of wasting time.

He lightly snorted as he turned to look at Samuel. "Stop talking like you're right. You were the ones who couldn't beat me in a fair duel and were trash for blaming others for beating you just because they're more skilled. Quit your nonsense!"

Samuel's lips twitched as his face scrunched in anger. He pointed at Jackieie's face. "You b*stard! I'll rip your mouth one day!"

Jackieie could not help but look at Samuel in disdain. "Can you just get lost? Stop trying to cause trouble for me. All you know how to do is to gang up on others. If you have the skills, come face me head-on. Are petty methods all you're capable of?"

Chapter 2906
Jackieie's words struck a sensitive nerve in Samuel. It was true that he did not have the skills to stand up to Jackieie. He was an alchemist and had naturally spent most of his time in alchemy, thus he could not stand a chance against warriors.

Jackieie was someone who had defeated Walter, who was a chosen disciple of the Compass Pavilion. Even a chosen disciple of the Compass Pavilion had not been able to beat Jackieie, let alone an alchemist like him. Even if all of the present disciples attacked Jackieie, they might still fail to defeat Jackieie.

Jackieie had said that he wanted to use numbers to his advantage, which was not wrong but Samuel refused to just accept defeat. Jackieie had pissed him off to a point of no return.

“B*stard! You’ll be hit by lightning one day! You’ll bow to the Compass Pavilion eventually. Once you exit Prosper City, you’ll die!”

Jackieie took a deep breath as he shot everyone a disdainful glare. He deliberately raised his voice as he replied, “I just said you’re using numbers against me. Do you admit that much? If you have the skills, then come fight me now. Otherwise, shut up and leave immediately. Stop wasting my time!”

Samuel went red in anger as he stared at Jackieie and shouted, “Just open your eyes and look around you! This is Prosper City, not any other seventh-level city. What‘s being tested here is alchemy! Do you really think you’re even better than us at that?”

Samuel’s words resonated with all of the other alchemists, and he was right, they were not in any other seventh-level city but the city specifically meant to test alchemists.

No matter how strong Jackieie was, he was just strong as a warrior. If he wanted to challenge them in alchemy, none of them would back down.

Mark sneered and continued, “Samuel is right. If you dare to, fight us in alchemy. Stop trying to use what you’re good at against us all the time. If it’s just skill, we’re naturally not at your level, but in alchemy? Heh. You have no right to be pompous toward us in this regard. Most of us here can complete sixty pill runes and perfectly pass the test, bringing three people into Prosper City. Can you do that?”

Mark then looked at Jackieie’s chest in disdain.

Jackieie had a sixth-grade alchemist badge on his chest while those gathered from the Compass Pavilion and the Unbreaking Pavilion were all mostly seventh-grade alchemists. Only a few of the lower-ranked ones were sixth-grade alchemists.

To Mark and Samuel, sixth-grade alchemists meant nothing. Even though Jackieie was an incredible warrior, he could not possibly contend against them in alchemy, and they strongly believed in this.

Jackieie let out a faint chuckle as he looked at them calmly. All of them had incredibly confident looks on their faces as though all too sure that they could beat him when it came to alchemy.

That confidence was a joke to Jackieie. With everything being said, Jackieie felt like he just could not escape some things, even if he wanted to. Initially, all he wanted was to scare away these pests with harsh words, but at this point, he knew that they would never relent. He would only be able to silence them with his skills.

Jackieie sighed as he monotonously replied, “Listen here, you guys are no match for me, whether it be alchemy or combat. The entry test is nothing to me.”

Chapter 2907
Mark and Samuel immediately cackled upon hearing Jackieie’s words. It was as though they were talking to a clown, one that had boastful words that meant nothing but overestimations.

Samuel laughed as he said, “Do you know what you’re even saying? Look at the badge on your chest before you speak. You’re just a sixth-grade alchemist, and you‘re already so arrogant! You should at least pick the right place to brag. It’s so easy for you to be exposed now. We’re just going to stand here and watch as you go to the condensing plates to go through the test. I want to see what kind of result you’ll get!”

Mark had a cold look on his face. “Didn’t you say that you would beat all of us? I can perfectly complete the test, can you? I can bring three people in easily! Can you?”

Jackieie merely raised an eyebrow at this and calmly nodded. This alone was enough of a response to Mark’s questions, relaying how the test was nothing worth worrying over.

He had gone through one entry test, and Jackieie had not been troubled at all. If he faced any difficulties doing the entry test, then he felt like he should not even enter the city. After all, there would be nothing to gain from entering.

“What a braggart! You’re so arrogant!”

“That‘s right. Who does he think he is to say that he can bring three others in? Does he think that the entry test would be that easy?!”

“Many sixth-grade alchemists got stuck here and barely managed to get themselves in. Anyone who manages to flawlessly pass the test would at least need to be a seventh-grade alchemist!”

“He’s way too arrogant. He doesn’t know what he’s saying at all! He doesn’t realize how funny his bragging is to us. Does he think we won’t expose him?”

The other alchemists lost their cool upon noticing Jackieie nodding, hurling jeers and insults. None of them believed him at all, instead thinking of him as a clown as they ridiculed him.

Through it all, Jackieie showed no reaction at all. In truth, he was more or less used to hearing things like this ever since he entered the Whirling World. Many did not acknowledge his skills, yet it did not bother him at all.

They were starting to cross the line with their words, but Jackieie merely replied calmly, “Remember the words you’re saying now, don’t regret them later. You’ll know who the clowns are in just a bit.”

After saying that, Jackieie did not bother sparing them another glance as he turned to look at Rudy, who was trembling in rage as he glared at all the alchemists. He firmly remembered Jackieie’s warnings and knew that he could not be reckless. At that moment, most of the things spoken were nonsense, and they had more people on their side. No one would believe anything Rudy said, anyway.

Since that was the case, they would just think he was speaking nonsense if he insisted. Hence, he decided against wasting his efforts.

When Jackieie looked over, he hurriedly turned away.

Chapter 2908
Jackieie reached out and patted Rudy on the shoulder, pointing at the condensing card. “Have a go at it. If you pass, we’ll be able to bring four people inside and get forty thousand spirit crystals. Even if you fail, you don’t have to feel bad. We’d have two less people to bring in.”

Rudy frowned as he looked around with concern. In truth, he had a lot he wanted to say. He was not too confident, but with them being surrounded, it was not the time for him to say anything. He was forced to swallow those words.

He nodded vigorously and sighed, walking right to the nearest condensing plate. That condensing plate had two people queuing up for it, so it would be Rudy’s turn in just half an hour.

Jackieie looked at Rudy and felt rather proud. The older version of Rudy would have fought back after hearing what the alchemists had to say, which, to Jackieie, was irrational behavior. Rudy being able to control his emotions meant that he was maturing.

Rudy and Jackieie’s actions seemed to amuse the group of alchemists a lot.

Jackieie’s resolute words that he would pass the test flawlessly caused the alchemists to wonder if something was wrong with Jackieie’s head as they laughed at him and mocked him.

Samuel let out a laugh as he sneered, “You‘re the most confident warrior I‘ve ever seen. Are you so sure you can pass the test perfectly? We didn’t say all of that just to scare you earlier. Without being at the level of a seventh-grade alchemist, you can‘t possibly wing it! There are ninety pill runes, and you should already be thanking your ancestors if you managed to fill up thirty!”

They were no match against Jackieie in terms of combat, but they were confident in themselves when it came to alchemy-certain that they would put that brat, Jackieie in his place.

They would not have talked to Jackieie so confidently if they were in any other city. However, they were in Prosper City, the turf of alchemists. They would never think that they would lose to someone else!

Mark looked at the badge on Jackieie’s chest and said, “It’s impressive enough if you can get to the level of a sixth-grade alchemist. Don’t think that you’re just as skilled in alchemy just because you have a lot of talent as a warrior! Alchemy and combat are two very different paths. Alchemy tests one’s talents even further. Don’t think that your talents in combat will transfer to alchemy. I‘ll be the first to tell you that you don’t have that talent or ability!”

Mark’s grudge toward Jackieie ran deep due to the words that provoked him. This was his chance to get back at Jackieie. Naturally, he held nothing back.

Jackieie glanced at Mark

Mark looked very well-kept and was obviously the leader of the alchemists from the Unbreaking Pavilion. To him, however, he was nothing special.

If Mark was in Phoenix Valley’s outer valley, he would only rank among the top five at most. However, Phoenix Valley‘s true strength was in the inner valley, and this guy would not even have the right to enter the inner valley. Jackieie would have not bothered with alchemists of the inner valley, let alone Mark.

Mark noticed how Jackieie blatantly ignored him after a mere cold glance, and he felt downright humiliated.

Chapter 2909
“You b*stard!” snarled Mark. “You still think that you can do as you please, but you’ll quickly realize otherwise!”

Jackieie merely sported a small smile, not caring about what Mark was saying at all.

Gent, on the other hand, merely pursed his lips helplessly as he looked at Mark, who was next to him. He wanted to tell Mark at that moment that there was no point saying anything then, it was better to wait for the results before silencing Jackieie with it.

Jackieie could not be bothered continuing to talk to them, so he closed his eyes and let them say what they wanted to.

Time slowly ticked away, and after half an hour, it was finally Rudy's turn to go through the test on the condensing plate. At that moment, Jackieie slowly opened his eyes. Rudy straightened his back as he silently tried to motivate himself.

The more he acted like that, the less confident he seemed. He had encountered too many masters recently, so Rudy's confidence was already shattered. Right before he got to the test, Rudy turned to look at Jackieie.

Jackieie merely nodded at Rudy silently. With that, Rudy took a deep breath before he entered the area of the test.

To preserve the fairness of the test, the candidate and the condensing plate would be shrouded by a gray barrier the moment the test started. Outsiders would not be able to see the contents of the test and would not be able to affect the results of the tested participant as well. They would only be able to see the final results after the barrier vanished.

The two who came before Rudy had both failed. One of them managed to get 28 pill runes, but the last two did not reach a 50-percent refinement rate, so they had lost the right to enter.

Another participant had completed 35 pill runes, but 10 of them were not at a 50-percent refinement rate. In the end, he only scored 25 and failed to enter.

The two participants thus left the condensing plate dejectedly, evidently in despair for their future. Only then did they realize how bad they were, not even able to get the right to enter the city.

Rudy felt the pressure heightening when he saw the two participants before him leaving empty-handed. With so many people focused on Rudy behind him as well, he felt like two boulders were crushing his shoulders. However, he could no longer back down. He could hear the wind in his ears as the gray barrier sealed him and the condensing plate within. Only he and the condensing plate in front of him were left in the world.

With a flash of golden light, 90 incomplete pill runes appeared on the condensing card. As long as he completed 30 of them, he would be able to enter the city without needing to rely on Jackieie. He silently motivated himself as his hands started to move constantly. Waves of dense pill aura were condensed into pill runes.

Jackieie frowned as he stared in the direction where Rudy was isolated by the barrier, feeling rather worried. Even if he could bring Rudy in if he failed, failure would be too heavy of a blow for him, and Jackieie did not want to see him in that depressed state. After all, the two of them had established a firm friendship along the way.

Chapter 2910
When Gent saw the concerned look on Jackieie's eyes, he let out a laugh and sneered,

“Let me guess, your friend is a pure alchemist? His aura is quite erratic, and it’s obvious he was forcibly pulled up to the late stage of the innate level by the laws. He’s not like you at all.’’

Jackieie raised an eyebrow as he glanced at Gent.

Gent was right, Rudy had been forcibly leveled up.

Gent let out a snort as he said, “He’ll fail very badly, and so will you. Even though I haven’t gone through the entry test, I’ve talked to a lot of alchemists that have. Most of the ninety pill runes that needed to be filled up are those that only seventh-grade alchemists can fill up. That’s Why you shouldn’t dream so loftily. Before you brag, you should look at the badge on your chest.”

Gent was astounded at how ignorant Jackieie seemed. That man was confident to the point of arrogance, saying things that all of them felt were a joke with such a calm expression.

Anyone who did not know who Jackieie was might have thought that he could achieve what he had claimed!

Jackieie raised an eyebrow, not even turning around. “Don’t judge others by your standards. I’ve already said that numerous times, and each time I’m proven right.”

Right after he said this, the gray barrier suddenly dispersed. A familiar figure appeared in front of everyone, and the condensing plate revealed the results in large golden words.

Rudy had completed a total of 36 pill runes, but nine of them were not at a 50-percent refinement. It meant that Rudy had only completed 27 pill runes in the end. He was only three pill runes away from passing. He looked like all the energy had been sucked out of him as he looked visibly miserable.

Jackieie frowned, half-expecting this outcome yet half-expecting it was not the case. In truth, he himself did not know if Rudy would be able to enter the city on his own. To him, Rudy was quite decent. However, the results were shown to everyone, and Rudy was just a little away from getting the right to enter the city.

Jackieie helplessly sighed as he felt sympathy in his heart. He could feel how hopeless Rudy felt at that moment. They had encountered too many things lately, and Rudy’s confidence had received heavy blows. It had been Rudy’s chance to prove himself, but he did not expect the result to be like that Jackieie ignored the mockery from the side as he walked over to Rudy.

He reached out and pulled Rudy over from the condensing plate, patting him on the shoulder as he earnestly spoke, “You’ve just become a sixth-grade alchemist not too long ago, you know? You‘ve been constantly improving. As long as you have some time, you’ll be able to enter by yourself, no doubt.”

Rudy could not even look up as he wallowed in misery.

“You don’t have to console me, Jackieie,” rasped Rudy. “I know I’m just trash. I couldn’t see it when I was in Golden Pills, but ever since I left Golden Pills, I realize how large the world is. I‘m not. even at the level of the worst alchemists. Why should I even bother living?”

Jackieie frowned, not expecting Rudy to be so depressed that he was starting to question his reason to live.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2911 - 2915

Chapter 2911
He hurriedly said, “No one you’ve faced so far is trash. The real trash is all still in its own small little places, not here. You’re already different from them. You’re on another level. All you need now is time. Trust me…”

Before he could finish speaking, more mockery could be heard. The person who spoke was Samuel. After Rudy’s results were out, he could not stop himself from laughing out loud.

The results deepened the negative perception of Rudy and Jack.

Rudy‘s results had been far too bad. It was not even comparable to the weakest among them. He had been completely unable to gain entry into the city himself. They had Rudy pinned as an alchemist that was from an insignificant place. They did not know how Jack was so confident. His follower was already so bad, but he actually said that he would pass perfectly.

Samuel maintained his smile and said, “Tell me, Jack. Who gave you all your confidence? How can you possibly think that you’ll pass perfectly? I think it would already be quite decent if you could get the same results as your follower. I’m even beginning to suspect that you’re not an alchemist at all. You might not even be able to complete ten pill runes.”

Gent did not even bother hiding anything, “You should be from an insignificant place. You should be proud if you can complete twenty seven pill runes.”

Initially, all of them thought that Jack came from somewhere amazing thanks to Jack‘s amazing strength. However, they could not find any chosen disciples called Jack after investigating the matter. In the end, the conclusion they arrived at was that Jack was not from anywhere notable. That was why they were not afraid to make a move on Jack and capture Jack alive to look into what secrets he held.

After they saw that Rudy only managed to complete twenty-seven pill runes, it reinforced their guess. The two of them must have been from some corner of the middle kingdom and did not really know much.

Jack was probably so strong just because he had been incredibly lucky, and managed to gain the inheritance of some hero.

There were certain amazing heroes that failed to find anyone to inherit their skills, so they would find a secluded place before they died and leave behind their most valuable treasures and techniques. They would hope that someone would find it and inherit their techniques. Jack must have found some hero’s inheritance. That was why he was so strong. That was also the reason the higher-ups wanted to capture Jack alive. After capturing Jack, they would torture and interrogate Jack to see if they could gain anything from him.

Jack grabbed Rudy‘s shoulders and raised his voice, “Don’t be sad. There’s nothing to be sad about. As long as you have enough time, you’ll trample over all those who laughed at you.”

After that, Jack turned around, ignoring everyone as he walked to the end of the line, queuing up to take the test. There were some things that were pointless to be said.

Seeing Jack said nothing and going to queue up, the alchemists looked at him with an even more amused gaze. Coincidentally, there were also two people in front of Jack.

The two of them had already seen that the large group had a grudge against Jack. Even if the two of them did not know the details, they knew that the ones against Jack were the Compass Pavilion and the Unbreaking Pavilion.

They were two eighth-grade clans. When the two of them saw that Jack was going over to queue up, they started to whisper amongst themselves, discussing where Jack was from and if he could pass the test perfectly.

Chapter 2912
The whole thing had been heard by Jack. He merely thought that it was annoying, and decided to close his eyes and rest, not wanting to bother with what anyone else had to say.

As time passed, half an hour was up. It was finally Jack’s turn to take the test. Of the two in front, one had succeeded and one had failed. From the percentage, it seemed like half of the participants would fail.

The alchemists who are able to enter Prosper City were all at least sixth-grade alchemists and above. Only those who were in the upper echelon of sixth-grade alchemists could enter Prosper City.

When Jack stepped in front of the condensing plate, the gray barrier immediately wrapped Jack within. On the condensing plate, sixty incomplete runes appeared. Jack looked at the runes. There was a small portion that even middle-tier sixth-grade alchemists could complete, but most of them needed someone who was a seventh-grade alchemist or higher to complete. He even saw an ancient pill rune among them.

Pill runes that came from ancient times were both rare and hard to condense. To alchemists, it was quite a big test. Only alchemists with strong foundations would be able to complete ninety of those pill runes. Otherwise, even if they were seventh-grade alchemists, they would not be able to do anything when faced with an ancient pill rune.

Jack took a few deep breaths as he pushed all those unnecessary thoughts out of his head. His hands started to move constantly as he seriously started to complete pill runes. It started to get incredibly hot within the barrier, while it was strangely quiet outside.

Rudy was completely depressed at that moment and did not want to say a single word. Even if there were people mocking him, he did not want to say anything back at all.

They lost interest in continuing when they saw that Rudy had no retorts at all. The place started to fall into a strange silence and everyone looked at the gray barrier, waiting for Jack to come out.

After some time, Gent lowered his voice and whispered to Mark, “What do we do now? The only order we got was that we couldn‘t let Jack go. However, we’re no match for Jack at all. Prosper City prohibits us from fighting in the first place. We had a conflict with Jack earlier, but what do we do now…”

In truth, Gent was already a little lost at that moment. The orders from above were very clear. They were not allowed to let Jack go. They had also caused trouble with Jack, so what could they do after?

They were just a group of alchemists, so they were no match for Jack at all. Other than keeping an eye on Jack and causing Jack more trouble, there was nothing else they could do.

Mark frowned and thought about it for a long time before saying seriously, “We’ll just quietly wait for any changes. Let’s report the matter first and wait for orders. What we need to do now is make sure that we follow Jack tightly. No matter where he goes, we have to follow him. Especially if he enters the city. We definitely can‘t let him slip away. There are so many people in the city, we might really lose track of him if he wants to slip away. If we can’t find him, we’ll definitely be blamed.”

Gent nodded as his lips twitched helplessly, “Jack really is hard to deal with. If he really wants to slip away from us, we might really not be able to do anything about it…”

Mark let out a deep sigh, not saying anything. He did not actually have any better plans as well.

Gent looked at the gray barrier before letting out a cold laugh.

Chapter 2913
“However, I think that he shouldn‘t have such an easy time getting into the city. He might not even pass the test…”

Mark nodded, feeling like Gent could be right. However, right at that moment, the barrier suddenly disappeared. All the alchemists around them looked up at the condensing plate in front of Jack simultaneously.

The condensing plate displayed Jack's results, "Perfectly completed ninety pill runes, obtaining four entry tokens."

The golden words blinked five or six times before disappearing. Right after that, four rays of light shot out of the condensing card, falling into Jack's palm. When the lights dispersed, four entry tokens appeared in front of everyone. Jack raised an eyebrow as he kept his entry token into a mustard seed. He already had some clue about who he wanted to bring inside.

None of the alchemists were able to say anything when they saw that scene. They started to suspect if they were imagining things. Otherwise, how could they see something so absurd?

Gent suddenly slapped his chest. He was suddenly slapped in the face after saying that Jack would not even be able to enter Prosper City.

Not only had Jack managed to enter Prosper City, but he had also even managed to win three extra entry tokens to bring three other people in!

"Mark, pinch me now. I want to see if I'm dreaming! That guy actually managed to pass the test perfectly…" Gent was even starting to tremble as he spoke.

He actually did not want to believe that what was happening in front of him was real. It was too absurd. The guy clearly had the badge of a sixth-grade alchemist and was clearly on the path of a warrior.

How could he have such excellent results as an alchemist if he spent so much time on training?

Samuel took a deep breath and said, "Anyone who can pass the test perfectly is at least a seventh-grade alchemist. Could this guy already be at the level of a seventh-grade alchemist? Why would he have the badge of a sixth-grade alchemist if he was a seventh-grade alchemist? Is it because he wants to trick others?"

"Who knows what that cunning brat thinks? However, why is God so unfair? This guy is clearly a warrior and probably spent a lot of time on that. Yet, he managed to become a seventh-grade alchemist before he hit sixty years of age. Isn't that just absurd?"

Mark felt like he was about to go crazy. When he saw what Jack had done, his breath almost stopped. It was not just absurd, it had dealt him a heavy blow as well. His lips twitched slightly as his eyes widened.

Jack turned around to look at the dumbfounded alchemist again. He smiled and said, “I’ve already told you. Don’t be so quick to say who the clown is…”

No one dared to say anything back at those words anymore. They merely shut their mouths wisely. Results could prove everything, and it was impossible for alchemists to cheat. Even if they wanted to think up any excuses, they could not. They were forced to shut their eyes and say nothing.

Rudy finally found a bit of confidence back from that. Even though the confidence came from Jack, he was at least in a better mood.

Chapter 2914
He turned his head and looked down at the group, “I told you not to look down on others. Jack said to you that he could beat you in every way, and he definitely can. All of you only know how to use your mouth to insult others, saying we’re from somewhere insignificant. If we were, then what do you amount to? You can’t even compare to us…”

Rudy’s words were incredibly sharp. It angered the alchemists so much that they started to pant.

Mark was in a bad mental state at that moment, but he immediately retorted, “What do you mean we can’t compare? The brat might have some skill, but we aren’t weak either. I can complete the test perfectly as well. At least a third of my fellow students behind me can pass the test perfectly as well!”

As he said that, Mark found some confidence back.

This time, it was Jack’s turn to look at the group with a mocking smile, “A third? Aren’t you too overconfident in your fellow students? There are twenty in total including you. You should be counting your lucky stars if even two manage to pass perfectly!”

That was basically Jack shooting back at them for all their earlier insults.

There were a total of twenty alchemists from the Unbreaking Pavilion and a total of fifteen from the Compass Pavilion. Jack’s words had been targeted at the alchemists of the Unbreaking Pavilion, and Mark’s face reddened in anger again.

He looked at Jack furiously, feeling like he and his fellow students were all being underestimated by Jack. The test did not seem hard to him at all. As the leader of the alchemists from the Unbreaking Pavilion, he could not accept being doubted like that.

Mark narrowed his eyes as his tone went cold, “I know you’re a decent alchemist, but don’t think that others are not at your level just because you’re good!”

Jack raised an eyebrow, not wanting to bother responding.

Mark felt like his honor had been challenged. Jack said that only two would be able to pass the test perfectly out of twenty of them. That in itself was an insult. However, it was just a simple entry test. All of them were alchemists that had been carefully raised by their clans. They had used up a lot of resources. He could not guarantee that twenty of them would be able to pass the test perfectly, but there had to be at least ten.

Mark said, “Don’t think that you can brag anyway you want and look down on others just because you have some skill. If you have what it takes, then wait right here and look at all of us taking the test. We’ll use our skills to prove that you are completely wrong!”

Jack’s lips curled up as he let out a smile of disdain. Mark’s words were probably not just to gain back some of his honor, but probably included other intentions as well. However, Jack could not be bothered exploring it. Since Mark wanted to prove himself so much, then Jack would play along till the end.

Jack smiled and said, “Alright, I’ll wait here and look at all of you take the test then. If more than two of you pass the test perfectly, then I will have underestimated you.”

All of the alchemists there were stunned at those words. They could not believe that Jack was actually so serious. The earlier conversation was definitely filled with emotion. Yet, they did not expect that Jack would actually have agreed. If more than two of the Unbreaking Pavilion’s alchemists passed perfectly, then Jack would have to admit that it was his problem.

Chapter 2915
He deliberately brought up a topic, “This group won’t let us escape their sights easily. If we leave their sights, they’ll definitely go crazy…”

After Rudy heard that, he was immediately pulled out of his pain. After all, that problem was even more pressing. He sighed as he said with concern, “What does that group want?! They’ve been trying to cause us trouble from the start. Could they really be planning on attacking us? However, Prosper City’s laws state that we can’ t fight privately. If they really pull any moves, they’d just die!”

Jack nodded. Various thoughts flashed in both of their eyes. In truth, he was still not sure at all, thanks to the lack of information. He had no way of telling what that group wanted as well.

If they really planned on anything, they should not hide before they had full confidence in their plan. The group was quite kind to alert Jack the moment he arrived in the city. The more Jack thought about it, the more he felt like something was off. It felt like they really were just there to cause trouble.

Rudy shook his head in frustration, feeling like his head was being surrounded by disgusting flies, “Why don’t we just go in right now. After all, they’re all queuing up. I can‘t stand the thought of them constantly following us. I’ll definitely be feeling constant goosebumps!”

Jack nodded. It definitely felt bad being constantly observed, especially with Jack’s personality. He definitely did not want to go through something like that, but the circumstances were special.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2916 - 2920 -

After thinking about it for a long time, he frowned and said earnestly, “We have to just tolerate it for now. Since they want to follow us, let’s just let them. I really want to know what their true goal is, and if it has to do with Grayson or not!”

Before, Jackie had said that they knew far too little about Grayson. Even though Jackie had gone through a lot with Grayson and Rudy before, Grayson seemed like a completely different person other than his looks.

On top of that, Grayson had disappeared the moment they entered Phoenix Valley. Those higher ups also seemed incredibly strange every time they brought up Grayson. No matter how they thought about it, they felt like there had to be a massive secret hidden behind everything.

If the matter did not involve him, Jackie might not have been so anxious to figure everything out. However, as time passed, he slowly found that there was no longer any way he could avoid the matter.

Grayson already noticed him and had instigated the warriors and alchemists of the Unbreaking Pavilion to cause him trouble. If things were already at that stage, he would naturally have to figure things out.

Rudy looked at Jackie seriously, not wanting to add to Jackie’s troubles. However, looking at Jackie’s expression, it was obvious that Jackie had no way of solving those frustrations at that moment.

Rudy thought about it before saying, “Even if you seal my lips, I would also write it out. There are far too many questions in my head, such as why Grayson is in the Unbreaking Pavilion, and why he doesn’t recognize us. Why would he suddenly try to do something to us? Could it be because of what I did back then?”

Jackie sighed as he looked towards the others for a while before he whispered, “I’m thinking about these questions as well. However, there’s something we can be sure of even if we can’ t investigate anything at the moment. There’s only one reason Grayson would suddenly attack us. That’s because you suddenly pulled his arm and asked those questions. We basically alerted him from that moment on…”

Chapter 2917
After Jackie finished saying that, Rudy’s lips twitched. He knew that what happened that day was complete because he could not keep his mouth shut back then. He felt incredibly bad about that. Back when Jackie lectured him, Rudy was not exactly pleased about it. Yet, now it looked like he definitely deserved that scolding. If he had not pulled Grayson so impulsively, all of this would not have happened.

Jackie knew that Rudy was guilty about what happened, so Jackie shook his head and said earnestly, “It’s already too late to regret things. You just need to remember to think before you do anything in the future. Don’t act on your emotions alone. All we can do now is respond to things as they come. It’s like you said before, Prosper City prohibits fighting. They won’t be able to attack us there, nor would they have the guts to. I want to wait and see if they slip up and reveal what they’re planning to us…”

Various questions were on Jackie’s mind at that moment. He suddenly felt like he did not know what he needed to do next, and could only follow his intuition. Since they wanted to follow him so closely, he would let them.

Earlier, Mark’s words sounded like he really wanted to prove things to Jackie, but there was actually another reason behind them.

He wanted to provoke Jackie and have Jackie stay behind. After all, they had not gone through their tests yet.

Jackie could enter Prosper City at any time, but they still needed to take their tests and waste a great deal of time. If Jackie disappeared the moment he entered the city, then they might be left in an unfortunate spot. Time slowly ticked away, and Jackie felt like he was about to go to sleep waiting for them.

Rudy was incredibly tired as well, but Jackie had not given up on looking at the results of the alchemists from the Unbreaking Pavilion. He remembered every result. After Mark participated in the test himself, Mark’s mood sank incredibly low.

The results of the test were just like Jackie had said. Only Gent and Mark had managed to get a perfect ninety. The others got eighty-seven at best. Most of them managed to get over eighty pill runes, while the others were just somewhat lacking.

Jackie smiled coldly, “The results were just as I explained. It looks like you know too little of yourself and those other alchemists behind you. I already told you, it’s not that I’m looking down on all of you. It’s just that you’re really not good enough!”

As Jackie said that, the alchemists from the Unbreaking Pavilion were so infuriated that they wanted to rush up and choke Jackie. However, they could only dream of that. They were forced to seethe in anger quietly, not able to say anything back. That was because Jackie was absolutely right. He had even been able to guess the exact number.

Jackie laughed as he said coldly, “In the future, you shouldn’t set your sights too high no matter what you do. That’s because you’ll just end up falling tragically.”

Jackie’s words might not have sounded that harsh, but they felt like violent slaps on the faces of the alchemists from the Unbreaking Pavilion.

Mark’s whole body was already trembling from the anger.

Chapter 2918
He had obviously been infuriated.

Jackie merely let out a light snort and retrieved his entry token from Mustard Seed and turned to look at Rudy, “The show’s already over. There’s no reason for us to stay in the plaza. Go pick out two people and get twenty thousand spirit crystals from them. Let’s hurry up and enter the outer city.”

Rudy nodded and immediately ran over to pick out two warriors who wanted to enter Prosper City. There were many to choose from. The warriors that were resting outside the city numbered at least over ten thousand. From there, it was incredibly easy to pick out two that were suitable.

After fifteen minutes, Jackie held the twenty thousand spirit crystals he had earned and entered the outer city of Prosper City with Rudy and two other warriors. Prosper City was split into the outer city and the inner city. When he got the entry token for the outer city, all of Prosper City’s rules went into his mind. Rather than the inner and outer cities, it was more like a massive marketplace.

The moment they entered the city, they saw many stalls of various sizes set up right in front of them. There were many people walking along those stalls.

Everyone was browsing and looking for something they liked. There were various things on sale. It was not just pills or materials, there were even technique manuals or some broken down ancient weapons.

The moment Rudy entered the city, he could not help but exclaim, “Oh my, this place is massive.”

The place was at least ten times larger than the plaza outside of the city. There were a lot of alchemists and warriors gathered there. Of course, the warriors were naturally all there for business. The inner city was where the alchemists would go through their actual tests. Regular warriors would not enter the place easily. Rudy stood on his tip toes as he looked around.

All he saw was people. Many warriors and stall owners were shouting out their prices intensely. Most of the warriors there were not that strong. They only went there to try out their luck and earn some spirit crystals. After all, the Whirling World lacked a lot of resources compared to the outside world. High-grade alchemists were incredibly rare in the Whirling World, and pills were necessities for warriors. If they bought a lot of pills from this place, they would definitely be able to earn a lot of money by selling them in other seventh-level cities.

Jackie had perfectly passed the entrance test, and obtained entry tokens for three other people. Since Rudy had not passed, they wasted one of the entry tokens.

There were only two warriors who entered with Jackie. After they entered with Jackie and Rudy, they exchanged a few pleasantries before going their own ways, not saying anything else.

After all, it was just a one time deal. Only Rudy and Jackie were left. After entering the outer city, the two of them were in no hurry to look around for things they wanted to buy at the stalls. Instead, they looked for somewhere secluded and stopped for a rest. It was mainly because Rudy had a lot he wanted to say. Enemies had surrounded them at the plaza in front of the city, so he could not have said anything without fear of being overhead.

It was only the two of them at that moment, so Rudy no longer had those reservations. He sighed and said seriously, “They followed so tightly behind when we entered. Those flies won’t let us go just like that.”

Jackie nodded, “Since I agreed to look at all of them take their tests, I naturally have no intentions of giving them the slip. They think that I’m an idiot to argue with them, and probably think that I’m too prideful…”

Chapter 2919
Rudy let out a laugh when he heard that, “They don’t know anything about you at all. There’s no way you would waste your time on something so petty.”

As the two of them talked, they saw Mark, Gent and the others entering the city. The group’s eyes were wide as they entered, hurriedly looking for Jackie among the crowd. They had thought that Jackie would jump into the crowd the moment Jackie entered the city, so they were all looking forward. Yet, Jackie and Rudy had not walked further inside at all, and had instead headed to the more secluded city walls.

Rudy looked on as the group struggled to find them.

All of them started to panic, and he laughed as he pointed at them, “They’re all in such a panic. What do you think they’ll do if they still can’t find us after a while?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, “Who cares what they‘ll do? We won’t deliberately hide ourselves. If we want to find out what’s happening behind all this, we’ll have to make them slip up. The more they do, the more obvious their goals will be, but it’s quite funny seeing them panic like that as well. Let’s just wait here for a moment. We’ll make our appearance after they fumble about for a bit more.”

Rudy was very amused as he looked on next to the city walls with Jackie. They watched as the Unbreaking Pavilion and Compass Pavilion’s alchemists were frantically trying to find them. Taking the opportunity, Jackie gave Rudy an introduction to the rules of the outer city.

Rudy started to get annoyed hearing the numerous rules there were, “Isn’t this just a large marketplace? Why are there so many rules?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow and looked into the distance. The outer city was far too large. Jackie was unable to even estimate how many warriors were gathered there.

“Even though the outer city is a massive marketplace when compared to the inner city, Prosper City is still a city built for alchemists. Anyone who enters Prosper City would need to go through tests that are targeted at alchemists. Just look at the various stalls set up around the place. Those stalls are only obtainable after going through certain tests. Otherwise, you wouldn’t even have the chance to peddle your wares.”

Rudy’s lips twitched when he heard that even setting up a stall needed tests. Rudy sighed, feeling like he did not belong anywhere.

He said helplessly, “Even setting up a stall needs a test. It’s so hard to relax around here.”

After saying that, Rudy could not help but look around at the various stalls. After some observations, he could see the difference between the stalls. The stalls were all of various sizes. Some stalls were only five square feet large, and various things were placed all around, looking incredibly packed. Some stalls were a bit bigger, possibly at around ten square feet. They could even see a few stalls that had tables and chairs around, but not many people could enter those stalls.

Jackie pointed at the stalls and introduced to Rudy, “There are three levels to the stalls, high, middle and low. The low-tier stalls are the smallest, and are only around five square feet in area.”

Chapter 2920
“The highest amount they can deal with has also been set at a hundred thousand spirit crystals. The middle-tier stalls are about ten square feet, and the limit of any transactions is set at two hundred thousand spirit crystals. The highest level stalls are those sects with their own tables and chairs towards the top. Anyone able to open up a stall there are definitely people with incredible backgrounds. There’s also a limit to the deals that can be done in the high-tier stalls, but it’s not an upper limit. Instead, there’s a lower limit. Any transactions done there can’t be lower than four hundred thousand spirit crystals.”

Rudy’s mouth was wide open after hearing the explanations.

The rules were not too complicated, and anyone with half a brain could understand it. However, the meaning behind all that was different.

Rudy took a deep breath as his mouth twitched slightly, “The high-tier stalls are all at least four hundred thousand spirit crystals! Isn’t this sum just far too big? Maybe it’s nothing much to high-grade alchemists, but it’s definitely not the case for people like us.

Any warriors or alchemists who can enter the Whirling World are all younger than sixty. With those conditions, there can’t be any alchemists who are particularly amazing! Since they won’t be that high grade, the deals practically will never reach that number. We’re talking about four hundred thousand spirit crystals!”

As he said that, Rudy excitedly raised four fingers with his hands, waving it in front of Jackie, “Four hundred thousand spirit crystals. I’d have to save up so long for that! If I manage to get that amount in ten years, it would already be an amazing achievement!”

The more Rudy thought about it, the more horrified he was.

Every transaction that was done in the high-tier stalls were all done in amounts that he would not be able to get even after ten years of saving up.

The moment he thought about that number, he felt like there was a huge gulf between him and those people.

Jackie looked up at the sect that stood at the highest point by itself. Most of the sects were empty, but some of them had been taken up as well. Those people all wore incredibly expensive clothes and sat idly on the stone benches.

Compared to the low and middle tier stalls, there were at least less than half the number of people browsing the high-tier stalls. After all, there was a lower limit to the spending there. However, those people were in no hurry at all. After all, as long as they managed to seal just one deal, they would be able to get at least four hundred thousand spirit crystals.

Just one deal would have them set for years.

Rudy frowned, “Why don’t we set up a stall…”

As he was saying that, he suddenly felt like he was being an idiot again. Jackie and himself did not have anything amazing to sell. There was nothing they could do even if they got a high-tier stall.

Jackie immediately knew what Rudy was thinking when he saw Rudy’s expression.

Jackie let out a laugh and said, “We might not have much use for any stalls, but we can help people get stalls and ask for a fee…”

When Jackie said that, Rudy started to get a little confused. He frowned as he looked at Jackie with wide and curious eyes.

Jackie did not bother stalling and continued, “Do you think that everyone with a stall is an alchemist? Look closely at what they’re wearing. Most of them are warriors who’re here to make money or warriors from larger clans who’re here to buy pills. There are very few stalls that are actually manned by alchemists.”

Jackie’s words caused Rudy to have a moment of realization.

He suddenly looked around. The stalls were all very neatly arranged, and there was a stone road in the middle for customers to walk through.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2921 - 2930

Chapter 2921
The outermost section consisted of low-tier stalls.

The middle section consisted of middle-tier stalls. There were nine levels among the middle-tier stalls, and after those nine levels were the higher-tier stalls. All the sects were built at the highest points.

It was a deliberate way to show off how special the high-tier stalls were. Those who had stalls up there were mostly not alchemists, just like Jackie had said. Instead, most of the people shopping around there were alchemists.

The ones sitting down on the high-tier stalls were not alchemists, which confused Rudy even more.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he decided to explain it to Rudy, “Everyone who enters the outer city will have an outer city entry token in their hands. With that entry token, we can head to the testing area to officially take part in the tests. Only by passing the test can one use their results to get a stall. There is not a rule against taking the test for someone else this time, so many warriors used this method to get high-grade alchemists to help them get stalls. That way, the warriors got the stalls, and the alchemists got some spending money.”

Rudy suddenly understood everything after that explanation. He could not help but say excitedly, “If that’s the case, won’t we be able to get a sum of money? The stalls of different levels definitely need different amounts of money. How many spirit crystals would we be able to get from low-tier stalls?”

Jackie shook his head, “That, I do not know. I just happened to see that most of the people manning the stalls were warriors. Then I thought about the rules of the outer city and guessed that they must have gotten those stalls using that method. We’ll need to go looking around to be sure.”

The testing area of the outer city was right at the center of the outer city. The test over there was in the same style as the entrance test. There were also a row of condensing plates there. The condensing plates would give different problems for the test participants to solve.

The outer city’s condensing plates did not just have the participants fill up runes, but also ask the participants to condense pill runes needed for pills of certain levels. It was much harder than the entrance test. A lot of alchemists faltered here, not even managing to get a low-tier stall.

When he heard about the rules of the outer city, Rudy was quite excited. He had already given up on himself at that point, feeling like there was nothing he could do with his meager abilities. However, he was following Jackie.

Someone as talented as Jackie would definitely be able to make some waves in the outer city. He could stay by Jackie's side, gaining some experience as well as riding on Jackie's coattails.

He looked up at Jackie and said, "What do we do next?"

Jackie took a deep breath. He had wanted to go to the outer city's testing area to check out the prices of stalls. However, he shook his head after thinking about it. The testing area might already have been taken over by those annoying flies.

They would be noticed immediately if they went. Even though there were some things that he had to do, Jackie just felt incredibly annoyed when he thought of those people. Those people would find them eventually.

After thinking about it, Jackie said, "Let's go walk around first. Let's see if there's anything we need around those stalls."

Chapter 2922
Rudy hurriedly nodded his head. The outer city was just like a massive gathering place. There would naturally be tests to face, but he would be able to see a lot of things.

Jackie led the way as Rudy followed. The two of them looked around the low-tier and middle-tier stalls. There really were many things around that Rudy had never seen before, and they managed to see what most of the owners were selling.

In truth, most of the goods for sale were still focused on pills. Many stall owners had the pills they needed written clearly there. Those owners would provide the materials, needing alchemists to help them refine the pills. Some of the stall owners had found rare materials in the Whirling World. They wanted to obtain pills from alchemists by bartering.

After looking around, Rudy hurriedly followed Jackie and whispered, "The prices here are not just two times higher than in the outside world. Look at those spirit gathering pills. In the outside world, one pill should just be about three thousand spirit crystals, but they're going for six thousand and five hundred here! The prices are so different…"

Jackie nodded, "Things are more expensive when they're rare. Pills are consumables, and alchemists are rare in the Whirling World. Of course, I mean high-grade alchemists."

Saying that, Jackie paused as he thought about his next words before saying, "Did you notice that there are also some pills that are worth the same as the outside world?"

Rudy nodded. He had observed everything in great detail and noticed that lower quality pills were almost the same price as in the outside world.

Jackie continued, “Lagarior and middle-tier sixth-grade pills are not too useful in the Whirling World, so the prices are similar to the outside world. That’s because no one is lacking pills of that grade. The higher the grade of the pill is, the more drastic the increase in price.”

The two of them walked around the stalls as they chatted, not really finding anything they were interested in after a long time. Rudy had been quite interested, wanting Jackie to accept a few assignments to refine pills, but Jackie had shook his head and refused all of them.

Refining pills took a while. Even though Jackie had planned on dedicating some time to refining pills for money before they entered the city in exchange for spirit crystals, Jackie decided against that idea after knowing about Prosper City’s rules. There were even faster ways to make large amounts of spirit crystals, so why would he waste time on refining pills?

There were probably some alchemists who would take refining pills as a way to train themselves, but it was not that important to Jackie. After absorbing the memories of that ancient hero, he did not need to refine great amounts of pills to train himself.

After walking for a long time, Jackie did not see anything that he was interested in. Even though there were a lot of high grade combat manuals, those were not that valuable to Jackie. After all, there were a lot of techniques and skills in his mind, uncountable amounts of high-grade techniques. He would naturally not need to choose random techniques that were sold here.

After walking around, Jackie sighed, feeling like his standards were too high. Otherwise, he would not have been unable to find anything he was interested in at all.

Chapter 2923
Rudy frowned as he followed behind Jackie. He could still understand why Jackie refused refining pills at the start. Jackie had probably felt that the rewards for refining pills were not enough. However, after walking around and seeing all the prices on display, Jackie did not seem interested in anything.

Rudy felt a little helpless at that. He frowned as he walked in front of Jackie and whispered, “There are quite a few good deals here, why didn’t you accept the jobs? With your skills, you should be able to refine seventh-grade pills without any problems. They will provide you with the materials as well. You just need to spend some time refining it, so why don‘t you accept it?”

Jackie turned to look at Rudy as he said plainly, “It’s too much of a waste of time. I don’t want to waste time in the outer city. The test in the inner city is what’s important. Only by passing the tests in the inner city will I be able to get Prosper City’s rewards.”

Compared to those spirit crystals, the rewards of Prosper City were much more interesting to Jackie. He had constantly been keeping the time in mind as well. After all, they were only able to stay in the Whirling World for two years. He would have to leave after that.

If he spent too much time on seventh-level cities, he would have too little time after that. He might end up losing out on good things because he did not have enough time, which he definitely did not want to happen.

That was why Jackie decided against wasting time on refining pills after thinking about that. After all, refining pills was not the only way to obtain spirit crystals in the outer city.

After Rudy heard that, he was suddenly a little speechless. He found that he was understanding Jackie less and less.

Rudy was just about to retort when he saw Jackie’s eyes light up, seemingly seeing something interesting. Jackie quickly rushed towards the easternmost stall. The stall was a middle-tier one, and was ten squared feet in size, but there was not much displayed there.

There were a few stone pieces around, and a request for pills. Jackie looked at the owner of the stall. The person had white robes on, and looked very handsome. However, he looked a bit unfriendly. This person clearly felt that someone was approaching, but he did not even bother looking up as the person closed his eyes and rested.

Jackie did not mind the person’s attitude as he looked at the goods on display. Jackie did not look at the request for pills at all, and immediately looked at the few rock fragments.

Rudy saw that Jackie’s eyes were on the few stone fragments that were glowing with a faint red glow. He was incredibly curious about those stones, wondering if they were anything amazing. He had never seen them before, and the fact that the stall owner placed them on the floor meant that he did not know what the value of those shattered stones were. They did not know, but Jackie knew the stones very well.

The fragment was something incredibly useful to Jackie on the road to getting stronger. Those fragments would be rare even in first-grade worlds. Jackie took a deep breath as he called out the words Shattered Soul Crystals in his mind. Those fragments were treasures to soul-attribute warriors. The fragments contained pure soul energy.

After absorbing the stones, not only would it help a soul-attribute warriors understanding and use of soul-attribute techniques, it would also improve the strength of a warrior's soul.

In the West Cercie state, Jackie had gotten two shattered Soul Crystals. If not for the two crystals, Jackie would not have managed to avoid the difficult situation back then, and would not have gotten to Middle Province.

Chapter 2924
That white-robed man casually put those incredibly valuable Shattered Soul Crystals on the floor. It was obvious that they did not know the value of the Shattered Soul Crystals at all. Even so, he could still feel the energy flowing within. He knew that they were valuable, which is why he had them on display.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he suppressed the excitement in his heart. No matter what, he had to get those Shattered Soul Crystals. But, he could not be reckless, because that would cause the white-robed man to realize how much Jackie wanted those crystals. Then he would increase the price, which Jackie would have to suffer in silence.

Thinking about it, Jackie picked up the pill request by the side. Almost every stall owner would have the pills he wanted written down on the stall. After that, they would specify the rewards. If the alchemists feel like the rewards were enough, they would take up the business.

The white-robed man opened his eyes, measuring Jackie. His gaze stopped at the sixth-rank alchemist badge on Jackie's chest. The badge was too eye catching.

When the white-robed man saw it, there was a glint of disappointment in his eyes, suddenly losing all interest.

The white-robed man frowned, saying in a cold tone, "If you can't do it, just put it down. I don't need any sixth-grade pills."

Jackie raised an eyebrow before sighing. He had not really cared about the badge on his chest initially. After all, he had actual skill. He knew better about his own skill than anyone else, but after arriving at the Whirling World, Jackie started to regret not getting the seventh-grade alchemist badge back then. He would not have needed to waste so much time in the Whirling World otherwise.

If not for the Shattered Soul Crystal, he might not have bothered explaining. However, he was forced to calm himself for the crystals. He smiled and said, "I can refine the Soul Nurturing Pills!"

Each stall owner would write down all the pills they needed on pieces of paper. Jackie was holding the request for Soul Nurturing Pills.

The white-robed man needed ten Soul Nurturing Pills. He would provide the materials as well as a reward of five thousand spirit crystals per pill. The price was not that high, but not low either. The ten pills would get Jackie fifty thousand spirit crystals.

The white-robed man looked at the sixth-grade alchemist badge on Jackie' s chest in disdain at those words.

"I hate wasting time on others. You should look at the badge on your chest before you say anything. The Soul Nurturing Pill is a middle-tier seventh-grade pill. I need to provide the alchemist with seventh-grade snake grass, pink grass, phoenix claw herbs and seventh-grade follower, the silver silk flower. Just those materials alone are worth a lot. Do you think I'll take the risk and offer this business to a sixth-grade alchemist?"

Jackie's lips twitched helplessly. At that moment, he wanted to rip the badge on his chest off. That badge constantly caused him problems. Ever since he had the badge, he was constantly looked down on. The badge was not indicative of his actual skill, so how could Jackie be happy with getting looked down on like that?

However, he could not just leave at that moment. After all, the Shattered Soul Crystals were there, and he had to have them.

Chapter 2925
Jackie had already mastered Destroying the Void. He had not planned on raising his skills yet, and had planned on focusing on obtaining valuable things. However, his experience in the Seven Leaves Tower had told Jackie that it was a bad idea.

Destroying the Void was an upper ultimate god rank technique. At Jackie's age, being able to use such a technique and even perfecting it already put him far above anyone else. In his eyes, he was practically unbeatable in the whirling World. Yet, after he got the key from the Thousand Leaves Tower, the old man told Jackie that Jackie's skills were not able to pass the test of the sixth-floor at all.

Jackie could not obtain the real treasure. It caused Jackie to be doubtful and filled with introspection at the same time. He could not stop improving himself, so Jackie had already been determined to never stop moving forward while he was on the way to Prosper City.

He needed to choose a new technique to master. This time, he definitely had to choose a technique that was better than an upper ultimate god rank technique, which left storm god rank techniques. Furthermore, Jackie planned on choosing a soul-attribute storm god rank technique. After all, mastering Destroying the Void had helped Jackie have an even deeper mastery and familiarity with the soul attribute. It was greatly beneficial to Jackie to choose another soul attribute technique. No matter how he looked at it, he could not let the Shattered Soul Crystals slip away.

The thought played in Jackie' s minds a few times before he completely composed himself. Even if he could not really stand the sight of that white-robed man, he was forced to patiently and warmly say, "Even though I have the badge of a sixth-grade alchemist, just think about it. If a sixth-grade alchemist doesn't have some skill, how could I have passed the entry test? I even passed with a perfect score. Seventh-grade pills are nothing for me."

After saying that, Jackie looked at the Shattered Soul Crystal, acting like he did not care, "Do you know what these stones are? They look quite nice and shiny."

After saying that, Jackie took up a crystal and looked at it under the sun. In truth, Jackie did not even need to look at it in detail to know that those spirit crystals were quite pure. However, he still had to put on a show. He could not let the white-robed man realize that anything was off. The moment the white-robed man had any doubt, it was possible that he would not be able to get the Shattered Soul Crystals. Jackie pretended to be interested.

"How about this? I'll only take forty thousand spirit crystals from you for ten Soul Nurturing Pills, and you give me these pretty crystals too?"

After saying that, he looked up and waved at Rudy, "Don't you think these crystals look good? Didn't my wife say that she wanted some pretty stones as decorations? I think this would be good."

Rudy immediately caught on. He did not know who Jackie's wife was, but he immediately answered, "I think they're not bad. She'll definitely be very happy with those crystals."

The two of them talked, and the main topic was still the crystals. The white-robed man frowned. Since he had dared to display those crystals, it meant that he had constantly tried to appraise them before.

Chapter 2926
The conclusion was that he did not know what they were at all but could still feel that a lot of energy was flowing within those stones. However, he had studied a few times yet failed to discover what kind of warrior could absorb those stones. He could not determine the price nor did he know if he would ever be able to sell it, which was why he placed it on the stall. He never expected that it would attract the attention of the two guys in front of him.

Jackie turned and looked at the white-robed man again. "Is it a deal?"

The white-robed man raised an eyebrow, acting like he did not care as he picked up a Shattered Soul Crystal and looked at it closely. Even after seconds had passed, he failed to see anything.

He took a deep breath and nodded after thinking about it. In truth, he never thought that he would be able to sell those stones. After all, he was not dealing with idiots. At the same time, he never thought someone would be interested in them the first day he set up his stall.

He feared that he would lose the deal or that he would be making a huge mistake, but he did not hesitate too much. He was still too afraid that Jackie would end up losing interest in the end, which would end up costing him 10000 spirit crystals.

To the white-robed man, it was a good deal.

He sighed and said, “You said that you can refine middle seventh-grade pills, but I honestly can’t believe that. After all, you have a sixth-grade alchemist badge. Can you tell me why you still have a sixth-grade alchemist badge, even though you have the skills of a seventh- grade alchemist? Normally, any alchemist with some skill will hurry and take the test the moment they’re good enough. Why didn’t you do that?”

Jackie looked up and said earnestly, “I just didn’t have the time to. I had a lot going on recently, and I went to an incredibly important place for a competition. I wasted a lot of time, which ended up in me not having the time to be tested. However, I’ve successfully refined a seventh- grade pill during the competition.”

The white-robed man frowned, still not believing him.

“You can say anything you want to, but I’m not so easy to fool. If you have the skills of a seventh-grade alchemist, how can you prove it? I won’t believe it if you’re just relying on your words.”

Rudy’s face soured at the white-robed man’s harsh words. He felt like the man was just looking for trouble, but he no longer acted on impulse after Jackie’s repeated lessons, so he forced himself to reel himself in.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not feeling like those words were too excessive. “We can sign a contract,” he calmly offered.

“Even if we don’t sign a contract, Prosper City itself has its laws. If I don’t complete our deal in the amount of time necessary, we‘ll be judged by the laws and be struck by lightning.”

The white-robed man frowned, not able to answer the question at that moment. After a while, the white-robed man finally made his decision. “You’re right. You’ll be turned to ash if you fail the deal, anyway. No one would be able to save you.”

Jackie sighed in relief upon noticing that the white-robed man was finally convinced. This man had been more stubborn and interrogative than he had expected. He had not seen anything of value after looking at them so many times, but the white-robed man immediately felt like something was wrong the moment he saw that Jackie wanted them. Try as he might, the man just could not figure out why.

Jackie nodded and kept the request for the pills in Mustard Seed. The white-robed man did not continue talking as he retrieved 15 boxes from his storage ring. Each box emitted a faint cold aura.

Chapter 2927
The white-robed man pointed at the boxes and said, “There are fifteen portions. Make sure to use them wisely, and remember that you can only make five mistakes. If you make any, I won‘t provide more. You should just buy them yourself.”

Jackie nodded, 15 sets of materials already proved that the white-robed man was rather generous. A few shrewd merchants would only provide three extra sets, which meant that only three mistakes were allowed. Already figuring out how much time he would take to refine those Soul Nourishing Pills.

Just as he put the boxes into Mustard Seed, he suddenly heard an unfriendly voice, “Hold it! I’ll be taking up this deal. Put down the boxes in your hands! I’ll refine the Soul Nourishing Pills!”

Jackie could tell who it was without even turning around.

Mark was sweating bullets, followed by a group of alchemists from the Unbreaking Pavilion. All of them looked at Jackie like they were looking at prey.

Mark let out a laugh as a look of disdain flashed in his eyes. He walked forward and said to Jackie, “Did you think that you managed to escape? I can assure you that it’s not possible. You can’t do it! Even if you run to the ends of the world, you can’t run from us!”

Jackie frowned, not bothering to respond as he put the 15 boxes into Mustard Seed.

Last time, he had been a step late in signing the contract and had his deal ruined. This time, he would not allow something like that to happen.

Mark noticed how Jackie blatantly ignored him and put the boxes right into Mustard Seed, much to his chagrin. He turned to look at the white-robed man. “What are you doing? Didn’t I tell you to hold them? Why didn’t you stop him? Don’t you see that he has a sixth-grade alchemist badge? Let me tell you, this brat is a scammer! He plans on leaving Prosper City right after he gets your materials, and the laws won’t be able to do anything to him by then!”

The white-robed man started to panic after hearing that. If what Mark said was true, he would suffer a huge loss!

The white-robed man immediately looked at Jackie and demanded, “Is that true, you brat? Are you planning on running off with my materials?!”

Jackie looked at Mark speechlessly, not understanding how that man’s brain managed to fabricate such a lie so quickly. It definitely made Jackie look at Mark differently.

He laughed as he looked at Mark coldly. “I really have to reevaluate you. Your talent at lying is amazing! Do you think the laws are so trivial? Do you really think I can run just because I want to? I never planned on running in the first place. I wanted to find a peaceful place to refine the pills, but if you’re pestering me so badly, I can just do it here!”

Jackie had done nothing wrong, so he was not afraid of being questioned at all.

Did they not say he would run away with the materials?

He would complete everything right here, then. There was no way he could run with so many people looking at him!

Chapter 2928
Hearing Jackie’s words, the white-robed man slowly started to relax. If Jackie wanted to refine pills in front of him, he could keep an eye out for any irregularities.

Mark narrowed his eyes and snorted, “Earlier, the stall owner had been resting and didn’t see your initial expression. My fellow student did. He was observing you for a moment after he found you before he turned to let me know. Before the stall owner opened his eyes, you had zeroed in on the stones!”

Mark immediately knelt and put the stones in his palm, looking at them closely. At the same time, he looked up at Jackie in a challenging manner.

Jackie’s lips twitched as he cursed himself for being too careless. The stall owner had been napping and ignoring everything else that was happening, so Jackie had not bothered to hide his thoughts.

He had been fully focused on the Shattered Soul Stones, but he never thought that someone had been observing him even though the stall owner had not seen him.

Rudy cursed internally. Mark had ordered people to keep a close eye on Jackie.

The secondary orders had been to constantly cause Jackie trouble and not let him have a moment of peace. As long as Jackie suffered, a portion of his task was done. With those orders, he had to disrupt everything Jackie wanted to do.

Jackie took a deep breath as he felt his anger slowly spilling over at that moment. He could not control his anger from surging to his head. He was already tempted to rip Mark apart.

For the sake of the Shattered Soul Crystals, however, he swallowed his anger. Negotiating with the white-robed man had gotten him to lower his guard. He never expected that everything would be ruined by a few words from Mark.

Mark placed the Shattered Soul Stone in his hand onto the white-robed man's palm.

"You better take a good look at it. It's something amazing. Otherwise, this guy wouldn't have been staring at them the whole time. The deal with the Soul Nourishing Pills was done to trick you."

Mark's words were all true, but Jackie could not admit it at that moment. If he did, he would not be able to get the Shattered Soul Stones. Everything he had done before would be ruined.

At that moment, Jackie was already looking at Mark in a completely different way. He had never been like that. He had gotten the urge to kill someone plenty of times before, but Jackie had never taken it too seriously.

This time, he was already dead-set on killing Mark.

It was not exclusive to only Mark but to all the alchemists around him as well, including Grayson. He did not care what reason Grayson had, but the moment Grayson got this group to cause trouble, Grayson was immediately on Jackie's hit list.

Rudy's face reddened as he tried his best to soothe the anger in his heart

Jackie forced out a laugh. "I know I've had some past conflicts with you, but you can't just do this to me just because of that. You said that I was staring at those stones. In that case, can you tell me what they are? What's so special about them?"

Mark snorted as he took out his trump card. "Since it's nothing special to you, why don't I buy it with twenty thousand spirit crystals? The deal you made with this brat earlier was to accept forty thousand spirit crystals instead of fifty. The other ten thousand is the price of those stones. I'm offering twice the price for them!"

Saying that, Mark stared at Jackie and smiled pleasantly.

Jackie had humiliated him at the plaza before, but At this moment, he finally got his revenge.

Chapter 2929
Jackie took a deep breath as his hands started to tremble. He knew that talking no longer counted in this matter.

Rudy could finally not hold back anymore. He looked at the white-robed man. “You’ve already agreed to the deal, and you can’t go back on your promise. If you do, you’ll be punished by the laws of Prosper City! Lightning will strike you!”

The white-robed man frowned, but Mark interrupted it with a laugh. “The laws of Prosper City are very clear. The laws go in line with the requests on the pill request. Things that aren’t on it don’t count. Earlier, you just had a verbal agreement. The pill request slip never stated that you’d exchange ten thousand spirit crystals for those stones. Since that’s the case, you wouldn’t be going against the rules, and you won’t be struck by lightning!”

As he said that, Mark had a pleased smile on his face.

Gritting his teeth, Rudy wanted nothing more than to punch that pleased smile out of Mark’s face and beat him up. He had controlled his temper the best he could.

Suddenly, Jackie took a deep breath and understood something. He turned to look at the white-robed man earnestly. “You’ve already agreed to this. Even though you didn’t write it in the request slip, a promise is still a promise. If you go back on your word, you’ll be offending me!”

The white-robed man raised an eyebrow, not caring about Jackie’s threat. He laughed and said, “You might have a bit of a background, but since I have a stall here, it means that I have mine, too. Don’t think that you can threaten me with just a few words. I might have agreed earlier, but it’s not like I can agree to a higher price. It’s like what this man said earlier; we just had a verbal agreement. It wasn’t on the request, so it won’t be against the rules.”

The white-robed man had wanted to even get rid of the whole agreement. In the end, Jackie had already put the pill request into Mustard Seed.

If Jackie did not refine the Soul Nourishing Pills, he would be judged for violating the contract by Prosper City and Jackie would be punished.

At that moment, Jackie could not let things progress as they were. His earlier experiences were still in his mind. At that moment, he was determined not to let the same thing happen. However, he never expected it would be so quick.

Jackie thus smirked, not willing to take a step back.

“Listen here. If you offend me, you’re offending a future ninth-grade alchemist. If you don’t believe me, you can follow me somewhere. Once you see it, you’ll believe everything I’ve said!”

Everyone was stunned when he said that.

What was Jackie saying? Jackie was marketing himself as a future ninth-grade alchemist!

Was he insane?

Did he not know what it meant in the Hestia Continent?

The number of ninth-grade alchemists in the continent could be counted with just one hand. Out of millions of alchemists, it was already impressive for them to even produce five ninth-grade alchemists.

Chapter 2930
Jackie actually claimed that he would become a ninth-grade alchemist in the future. He had lost his mind!

The white-robed man did not even bother to hide his laughter when he heard Jackie’s bold proclamation. “You should at least think about your words before you try to brag, you brat. A ninth-grade alchemist isn’t something you can become just because you said so!”

Jackie let out a cold laugh, having foreseen this happening. Their cackles did not affect Jackie at all as he pointed at the center of the outer city.

“If you don’t believe me, just follow me there. If you have the finances, you can make another deal with me!”

Jackie’s words confused some of them. Even Mark raised an eyebrow as he looked at Jackie warily.

Jackie took a deep breath and said, his tone as cold as ice, “I’m giving you one last chance. If you take it back, I won’t let you back out without suffering the consequences. No matter what kind of background you have, there’ll only be one ending!”

The white-robed man frowned as he sneered, “I’m not one you can scare so easily. I won’t just believe anything you said!”

However, there was a trace of guilt in the white-robed man’s eyes as he said that. After all, Jackie had been eerily calm the whole time. On top of that, he was not sure where Jackie was from. If Jackie was from somewhere impressive that he could not afford to offend, he would be done for!

With that thought in mind, he raised his voice and said, “Since you want me to see your skills so much and prove yourself, I’ll go with you. I want to see what you can do.”

Jackie suddenly relaxed at those words. He turned to look at Mark, who was frowning as he stared at Jackie. He opened his mouth, wanting to say something, but he visibly decided against it. He wanted to see what Jackie would do as well.

Jackie snorted as he walked to the center of the outer city, and the alchemists from the Unbreaking Pavilion and the white-robed man followed him. No one said anything as they internally began thinking of what Jackie would do.

When Jackie brought them in front of the condensing plate, everyone was stunned.

The white-robed man frowned and said, “You want to take the outer city test and get a stall?”

Jackie nodded. There was a stone plate next to the condensing plate. The stone plate had a lot of words on them.

Jackie frowned and walked over, seeing what he wanted to see. It was just like Jackie had thought. Since there were some holes in the rules, many alchemists would help warriors get stalls. They had even specially set up prices. All the prices were on the condensing plate. That meant that no one could just set the prices as they pleased.

A lower-tier stall was worth 100000 spirit crystals, while a middle-tier stall was worth 150000 spirit crystals. Meanwhile, a high-tier stall was 500000 spirit crystals!

Seeing the drastic difference in price, Rudy whispered, “A middle-tier stall is just a hundred and fifty thousand spirit crystals. A high-tier stall surges all the way to five hundred thousand! Isn’t this difference a little too big? It’s several times more! These prices are a little absurd, if you ask me!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2931 - 2940 -

Chapter 2931

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he turned to look at Rudy, whispering, “You might think it’s absurd, but it’s completely reasonable since the rules have been written here. They have to be there for a reason, so you don’t have to question them.”

Rudy clamped his mouth shut. Even though he was displeased about it, he had nothing else to say.

When Jackie saw that high-tier stalls were worth 500000 spirit crystals, Jackie suddenly felt more spirited.

“What are you trying to do?” Mark frowned when Jackie ignored his question.

Instead, Jackie turned to the white-robed man, pointed at the stone plate, and said, “If I get you a high-tier stall, can you give me five hundred thousand spirit crystals?”

The moment he said that, the white-robed man’s lips twitched, feeling like Jackie was messed up in the head. Jackie had just said that he would become a ninth-grade alchemist, and at this very second, Jackie said that he would get a high-tier stall.

Did he think that anyone could get a high-tier stall? That was putting things too simply!

The white-robed man took a deep breath, stopping himself from cursing as he said, “Do you really think you can get a high-tier stall?”

Jackie nodded earnestly.

The white-robed man raised an eyebrow, stopping his inner thoughts. “Just look at those high-tier stalls, only four people have them at the moment. Do you know what that means?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow and merely replied, “It means that people have gotten the high-tier stalls before.”

He knew that the white-robed man would say what he did not. The white-robed man felt quite speechless at Jackie’s words, feeling like Jackie was a complete clown that did not know what he was saying.

The white-robed man did not want to waste any more time on Jackie since he wanted to continue manning his stall, but he felt like Jackie was too much of a joke. If he did not explain things to Jackie properly, Jackie might refuse to give up.

They could not fight here and could only use their mouths. To save himself the trouble, the white-robed man was forced to quell his anger and continued to explain, “Listen here. Ever since Prosper City was opened, only two people have gotten high-tier stalls before. Each high-tier stall is worth five hundred thousand spirit crystals, and it’s in high demand.

“The two that managed to get the high-tier stalls were all incredibly talented alchemists, and five hundred spirit crystals is no small sum for any alchemist. If the difficulty didn’t change, the two alchemists would no doubt stay here and earn money by getting high-tier stalls for warriors.”

At that moment, the white-robed man deliberately paused for a moment, seemingly wanting Jackie to understand what he had just said. However, Jackie’s expression seemed to be completely still as no strong reaction escaped him.

This exasperated the man as he said, “Don’t you think it’s strange? It’s something so easily done, so why don’t they stay here and continue earning spirit crystals? Why did they choose to continue to the inner city?”

Jackie’s lips twitched helplessly. He hated being led on like that.

“Oh, I’m very curious,” he replied. “Why don’t you just tell me?”

The more Jackie was like that, the more exasperated the white-robed man felt. However, he did not want to continue arguing with Jackie and thus continued on.

Chapter 2932
“That’s because as long as you help someone cheat the system once, the condensing plate will remember it. When you try it again, the condensing plate’s question will become more difficult. So, the two of them only managed to get two high-tier stalls each. After that, they couldn’t continue because it became too hard. In the end, they only managed to earn a million each.”

After that was said, Jackie frowned as various thoughts surfaced in his mind.

He was impressed by Prosper City’s various rules. It ensured that warriors could set up stalls and tested the alchemists as well. It even restricted alchemists from doing so and not stopping.

It was different from what he had thought earlier. Jackie had thought that being able to cheat the system like that was a huge flaw in Prosper City’s design. At this moment, it seemed like he was the flawed one. He was the one who failed to see that it was not a flaw but a design choice instead.

After thinking about it, he looked up at the blue sky. The people of Whirling World were indeed impressive.

Just as he was thinking about it, the white-robed man said impatiently, “Do you understand what I mean now?”

Jackie nodded. He understood that the white-robed man meant well in telling him this, not to brag.

Jackie did not intend to go back on his word, however. He took a deep breath and queued up at the condensing plate nearest to him.

When everyone saw the sight, they gaped, not knowing what to say.

As he watched Jackie lining up nonchalantly, Gent furrowed his eyebrows and said in exasperation, “Did he even hear what everyone has said?”

After saying that, the alchemist behind him spat, “That guy has said everything to him so clearly. In so long, only two people managed to get high-tier stalls. This brat is actually going to participate in the outer city test so confidently. Does he really think he can be the third alchemist in Prosper City to get a high-tier stall? How could he even think of attempting?”

It was the same sort of discussion.

Rudy was already frustrated at this point, listening to them.

Jackie had already used his skills to shock so many people before, but they seemed to have forgotten that as they ran their mouths at Jackie.

Jackie had already warned Rudy against quarreling without purpose, but Rudy could not hold himself back after hearing these insults.

He chuckled sardonically as he turned to look at the alchemists. “Are you people struggling with memory loss? You’ve said all of that before, but when you saw Jackie’s results, why did you stop? Didn’t you laugh at Jackie for not knowing his place before, and that he won’t be able to get a perfect score on his entry test? You even evaluated yourselves so highly, saying that half of your twenty will be able to pass perfectly. All that, and Jackie was right in the end, and only two of you managed that!”

Rudy was not lying at all, and the alchemists knew this, reddening at his words.

They shut their mouths immediately, unable to say anything about that.

Everything had happened exactly as Rudy had said. They had cackled at Jackie and were more than certain that he would not pass the test perfectly, yet Jackie demonstrated his skills so flawlessly that they felt like they had been smacked!

Chapter 2933
Right after these alchemists bragged about themselves, Jackie's prowess humiliated them entirely.

Even worse was that Jackie had been right. Out of 20 among them who took the test, only two passed. The others might have been just a little bit off or a lot, but not one of them had a perfect score.

Mark's prideful expression was wiped away in an instant.

Rudy's words blatantly put them in an awkward spot, just as he planned on harassing Jackie with his fellow disciples to expose Jackie to the white-robed man.

Not wanting Rudy to be satisfied with himself, Samuel snorted as he raised his voice, saying, "Jackie merely made a blind guess, that is all. The others don't know, but you do. The twenty alchemists who took part in the test were all stellar alchemists from the Unbreaking Pavilion, and they wouldn't lose to anyone. I saw that a few of them were just a sliver away from passing the test perfectly. Heh! Jackie was just lucky to be right."

Samuel raised his chin, sounding sure of himself when he spoke. Initially, the white-robed man felt rather wary after hearing what Rudy said and started to doubt the alchemists from the Unbreaking Pavilion. However, his suspicions were cast aside after hearing what Samuel said.

Alchemists that were raised by the Unbreaking Pavilion could not be underestimated, that was for certain. Even if Jackie had been right, he probably got lucky at the time.

Samuel had seen that quite a few of the Unbreaking Pavilion's disciples were short by one or two pill tunes to perfectly pass the test.

Mark turned to look at Samuel with a look of gratitude. The two of them seemed to share a laugh at that moment. He never expected that Samuel would step up and speak on their behalf. Samuel took the words right out of his mouth!

Of course, Samuel jumped into the verbal exchange for the sake of humiliating Jackie, but since he, in a way, did him a favor, he acted as though he intended to side with Mark as though he was generous. When he saw Mark's thankful look, Samuel nodded benevolently.

Anyone who did not understand the relationship between the Compass Pavilion and the Unbreaking Pavilion would have thought that the two of them were sworn brothers.

Looking at their faces, Rudy's cold smile deepened. He snorted as he said, "It's just as I thought. The two of you just have one thought in mind at the moment. You think that the enemy of your enemy is your friend, but you both are just animals to me-two dogs that can only bite people."

Those words were incredibly harsh. Gent immediately rushed forward furiously, but the student behind him pulled him back, stopping him from starting a fight. If he was the one who started the fight, he would be punished by Prosper City‘s laws, and by then, they could only watch as lightning struck him, leaving nothing but ashes behind!

Chapter 2934
Gent felt like he was losing himself due to the anger raging within him.

That jerk, Rudy called them dogs! No one could bear an insult like that.

Mark and Samuel both stepped forward at that moment, but as compared to Gent, the two of them seemed much calmer.

Mark said coldly, “Do you know what you’re doing? You’re declaring war against the Unbreaking Pavilion and the Compass Pavilion. Who do you think you are? Do you think that the combined might of two eighth-grade clans won’t be able to do anything to you?!”

The white-robed man was completely stunned as his eyes widened. The man speechlessly looked at Rudy, lamenting that he must have been insane. Otherwise, Rudy would not have dared to say something so disrespectful.

It was already at the point where things could never be mended.

Did Rudy plan on declaring war on two eighth-grade clans? Was he from such an incredible background that he did not care about two eighth-grade clans?

Unless Rudy was from a ninth-grade clan, even gods would not be able to save him!

Rudy merely maintained a calm face in front of their emotions. He let out a laugh as he said nonchalantly, “We’re already enemies anyway. Both of you have been working together to cause us trouble. Would you even back away and let us breathe? Since you’ll be constantly causing us trouble, why wouldn‘t I dare? Your two clans are like headless flies, constantly flying around and buzzing at our ears at this point. It’s so disgusting and annoying! If you really have the skills, defeat Jackie. Samuel, everything you said earlier was just utter crap!”

After saying that, Rudy deliberately paused for a moment before he said seriously, “Since you passed the test perfectly, you should know why the disciples behind you didn’t pass like you did. Forget about anything else, the Condensing Plate at the entry test will materialize one or two ancient pill runes. Those pill runes are what eliminated most of them! That was how Jackie determined that only two of you would be able to pass.”

Samuel’s expression darkened. Of course he knew about the ancient pill runes. After the test, he had even had a hushed discussion with Mark about it. Even though they did not know why ancient pill runes would appear in a mere entry test, it did not stop them from knowing that it was why Jackie made that judgment.

What he said earlier had just been to break Jackie's momentum, yet Rudy had seen through it immediately. The two of them never expected that Jackie would tell Rudy all of that.

In truth, Jackie did not willingly divulge that information. Instead, Rudy persisted in wanting to know everything after they entered the outer city. After all, he had been too curious, so he explained everything.

Samuel felt even more embarrassed at that point. After all, he was the one who said everything so confidently at that moment. It was then did it reach Jackie's turn for the test. The first person had gotten a gray token, and the second one had as well. When the two of them saw the token in their hands, they looked visibly depressed as they walked away dejectedly.

After understanding the rules of the outer city, Jackie knew why they looked like that.

There were three prizes if an individual got good results in the outer city test. The rewards were stalls of various sizes.

Chapter 2935
The worst alchemists would be awarded a gray token meant for low-tier stalls. Even though low-tier stalls were still worth a sum of money, they were not worth as much as higher-tier ones. Those who did slightly better would be able to get bronze tokens meant for middle-tier stalls. Even higher up were golden tokens for high-tier stalls.

From the start, only two people had gotten golden tokens.

When Jackie stepped into the test area, the same thing from the entry test happened. A barrier separated him from the outside world, and no one could interfere or affect him at all.

Jackie looked up at the glowing condensing plate in front of him. All of the pill runes that were either complete or incomplete from before disappeared as new questions appeared.

All of the pill runes totaled up to 90, the same amount during the entry test. Jackie took a deep breath, earnestly looking at the pill runes he needed to complete.

What shocked Jackie was the fact that those pill runes had not just been seen by him before, but even left a deep impression in his mind. Of course, those impressions were not his, but the memories he inherited. It was because he knew everything that he was so surprised. That was because the pills runes were incredibly difficult. Even an eighth-grade alchemist might not be able to complete all of them.

With that in mind, Jackie took a deep breath, already committed at that moment. 500,000 spirit crystals were at stake. If he could not even get that, it would be much harder for him in the future. He was facing the challenge with all his might inside. Outside the barrier, things were much calmer.

Rudy raised his eyebrows as he distanced himself from the crowd. He did not want to bother wasting his time on them.

It was just like what Jackie had told him, wasting his time on people like Mark and his 'companions' were pointless. They would not listen to the truth and would insist on following their feelings. Still, Rudy could not stomach how pleased they were with themselves.

So many things had happened that wore out Rudy's patience. Even if he knew that there might be a major plot behind everything, he did not want to see people like these men so haughty.

Gent took a deep breath. Rudy's words had, admittingly, aggravated him. Even though he knew that whatever he said would not stand up to Jackie actually convincing everyone with his results, he did not want to see Rudy happy, even if for a moment.

He snorted and said, "I'll admit that Jackie might be a little skilled. He might even have the skills of a seventh-grade alchemist, but so what? There are many seventh-grade alchemists in Prosper City. Even if it was me, I wouldn't be able to get a golden token and get a high-tier stall. Only alchemists from the inner valley of Phoenix Valley or alchemists with extraordinary talents could do that!"

Chapter 2936
"Even if he's a little talented, there's no way he can get a golden token. You're only so confident because you don't know what a golden token actually represents!"

He said those words in an incredibly firm and convincing manner. Even the white-robed man who had been silent the whole time nodded along. After being in the outer city for some amount of time, he knew very well what a golden token represented.

Only those whose talents and skills stood at the peak could get a golden token. He had seen countless alchemists take the outer city test. All of them had been incredibly confident as they took the test. Most of them had only obtained gray or bronze tokens.

There had only been two people who ever managed to get the golden tokens. The white-robed man had heard about the two of them. It was just like Gent had said, they were no ordinary people. One of them came from Phoenix Valley's inner valley, while the other came from a ninth-grade clan. Those were incredibly talented people.

Who did Jackie think he was?

Pondering about that, the white-robed man shook his head, feeling like Rudy was being overconfident.

Samuel snorted as he shrugged and said to Gent, “There’s no point saying all of that, this guy won’t listen to a single thing. He has complete blind faith in Jackie. He feels that Jackie would definitely be able to get a golden token, becoming only the third person to do so.”

After saying that, Samuel let out a mocking laugh. The alchemists from the Compass Pavilion behind him all let out similar laughs as well.

They were all mocking Rudy for his ignorance. After they started laughing, the alchemists of the Unbreaking Pavilion started to laugh as well. Some of them did so in incredibly exaggerated manners.

Mark raised his eyebrows and did not hold back as he guffawed right at Rudy.

Rudy merely frowned, not really affected by their laughter. At that moment, he was incredibly calm. It was as if nothing around him could affect him at all. He suddenly understood why Jackie always had a cold look on.

No matter what happened outside, Jackie would not let it affect him. It was not that Jackie was cold, but because he was determined and had enough confidence. No matter how much others laughed at him, he still kept calm.

Suddenly, some rustlings could be heard from afar.

Everyone was familiar with the sound of those mechanisms. It was a sign that the barrier was giving out. Everyone turned to look, and Jackie‘s figure appeared in front of the alchemists again. At that moment, his back was incredibly straight, as if it was not that hard at all.

Rudy took a deep breath as he walked toward Jackie. A light slowly formed from the condensing plate. Everyone looked on as a golden token shot out of the condensing plate, landing in Jackie’s palm.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he opened his hand to look at the token. The golden token had the words ‘high-tier stall’ written on it. It was actually incredibly simple, but there was a sense of majesty toward it that was hard to beat.

The test earlier had been nothing to Jackie. As long as he had skills that were above a seventh-grade alchemist, he would have been able to finish the test perfectly.

Jackie let out a sigh of relief, having been affected by Gent’s earlier words.

Chapter 2937
However, Jackie had once again shown Rudy that all those worries were pointless with the skills he possessed. He smiled as he grabbed the golden token in Jackie's hand, turned around, and displayed it in front of everyone, "What do you think?! Do you have anything else to say now?!"

As he said that, he walked toward Gent who had been the one with the most to say earlier. He placed the golden token in his palm, looked right at Gent and said, "Didn't you say that Jackie could never manage to get a golden token? Then what's this in my hand? Is everyone hallucinating?"

Gent was about to spit out blood at those words. It had completely ripped apart his earlier arrogance. He had thought that, even if Jackie was talented, Jackie would only be around his level. Yet, he realized that he was greatly mistaken.

No wonder Jackie had always looked at them with that attitude previously. Jackie had never regarded them seriously.

Gent's lips twitched, not saying anything. In truth, compared to the others, Gent was already in quite a good state. Mark's eyes were so wide that they threatened to pop out of their sockets. His eyeballs were full of veins. He had a look of disbelief on his face as he stared at the golden token in Rudy's hand. He refused to believe that it was real.

How was Jackie so strong in both combat and alchemy? It was a tough pill to swallow.

Mark realized miserably that he had been completely trampled over by Jackie. He was not a match for Jackie at all. He reached out and tried to snatch that golden token away from Rudy, but Rudy frowned and took a step back.

Rudy raised his voice and said, "You're planning on breaking the rules? Mark, think it through. You know the consequences of breaking the rules!"

Mark only reacted after he was shouted at, realizing what he had done. After that, he pushed himself back with some fear. At that moment, he was about to go crazy as his breathing got erratic, "Are you an eighth-grade alchemist?"

After a moment, Samuel said, "Who are you? I refuse to believe you have no background. I refuse to believe that you got to where you are by yourself. I'm starting to suspect that you're not even from the Hestia Continent!"

Those words sounded incredibly sure.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not saying anything. At that moment, all of the alchemists there were going a little crazy. What had happened had exceeded anything they could have imagined.

How did Jackie reach that point? It was far too unbelievable.

If they had not witnessed it for themselves, they would definitely have thought that Samuel was exaggerating. Yet, after witnessing everything for themselves, they had to agree with what Samuel said.

Jackie was far too strong, so strong that they did not know what to say.

Chapter 2938
Looking at everyone's crazed expressions, Jackie knew that it would be taken as a silent acknowledgment if he remained silent. He did not think much about it, it was up to them what they wanted to think. However, he felt that he would end up becoming a lab rat to major forces if he remained quiet. If they wanted to dig out his secrets and did something to him, then it would be disastrous.

Jackie took a deep breath and looked at everyone there, "Please stop those idiotic thoughts in your heads. Don't just place random judgments on anyone you want. Don't use your limited brains to judge the whole Hestia Continent. There are many like me in the Hestia Continent, you just haven't met them before!"

Samuel frowned, pausing for a moment before shaking his head vigorously, "There's no way! There's no way someone like you can appear in Hestia Continent, who's so extraordinarily strong in both alchemy and combat. You're not like someone from the Hestia Continent at all!"

Jackie frowned, suddenly feeling like he would not be able to talk his way out of it. He furrowed his eyebrows as many thoughts flashed in his head. He could not let them continue on that train of thought. If he allowed it to continue, it would cause a lot of unnecessary problems.

This time, Rudy was even quicker than Jackie. He felt if Samuel continued speaking like that, the larger forces might all end up going against Jackie. He took a deep breath and raised his voice, "You're just saying all that to save your dignity!"

Samuel frowned as he tried to explain, but was stopped by Rudy, "Stop with your stupid thoughts. Don't you think what you're trying to say is hilarious? All of you were laughing so much earlier, saying that Jackie could not have done it at all. I just mocked you a little, and you immediately tried to find some incredible excuse to gain back your dignity."

After saying all of that, Rudy glared at Samuel as he pulled Jackie's arm, "We should stop wasting time on them."

Jackie nodded in agreement. He turned to look at the white-robed man.

At that moment, the white-robed man was completely different. He was already looking at Jackie with a look of complete respect. Ever since Prosper City was opened only three people had gotten a golden token. The outer city test was a test of skill and talent. The fact that Jackie managed this meant that his talents and skills were absolutely at a heroic level.

The white-robed man no longer bothered with those alchemists around him. His only thought in mind was to curry favor with Jackie.

He walked up to Jackie and said, “I’ll buy the golden token from you for six hundred thousand spirit crystals. Even though the regulated price is five hundred thousand, I can pay six hundred thousand. As for those stones, I don’t need your money. I’ll just give it to you. We‘ll perform our business as usual. I’ve said some harsh words earlier, I hope you can forgive me…”

At that moment, the white-robed man completely threw his dignity aside. His only thought was to get closer to Jackie. The white-robed man had quite a lot of spirit crystals since he came here for business thanks to his clan. He was not that skilled himself, so all he could do was seize opportunities as they came.

Chapter 2939
Otherwise, he would not have abandoned the other seventh-level cities to come here. Faced with an alchemist who would definitely achieve a lot in the future, he would naturally try his best to curry some favor. After all, those alchemists would definitely be of great help in the future.

Jackie raised an eyebrow. Since that person was so understanding, it saved him a lot of time. He could not be bothered to dwell on what happened before. He nodded at the white-robed man and handed the golden token in his hand.

Everything after that went smoothly. Those alchemists that were trying to cause trouble earlier had all completely shrank back. They no longer dared to do anything to Jackie. However, Jackie knew that it was just a temporary silence. After all, their grudges were still there.

The inner city’s entrance was at the most internal spot of the outer city. At noon on the sixth day, Jackie brought Rudy to the inner city’s entrance. It was a massive circular passage.

The passage was obscured by a very colorful barrier. There were a lot of serious-looking alchemists standing outside of the passage. Most of them were frowning as if they had encountered an incredibly difficult problem.

Those people gathered around the entrance of the passage, seemingly talking about something.

When Jackie saw the scene, he could not help but frown as well.

Rudy whispered, “Could something be going on in the inner city? Why do they look so put off?”

Jackie sighed, not denying it. The two of them slowed down as they slowly walked toward the group. When they were closer, they could hear the conversations that were going on.

A black-robed alchemist frowned as he talked to a handsome man in front of him, “I think you shouldn’t be too rash. This situation is quite special. I can‘t believe other continents are involved. You know as well that the Hestia Continent was separated from the other continents after the major incident thirty thousand years ago. We’ve been sealed off all the while, but the other continents are different…”

Before he could finish, the man interrupted him, “Do you think I don‘t know what you’ve said?! We still need to take part in the end. If there’s no one from the Hestia Continent at all, we’d become a laughing stock!”

The black-robed man shook his head helplessly, saying sadly, “In the end, Hestia Continent still loses to them…”

The handsome man was incredibly unhappy, and it was clearly written on his face. He said vehemently, “I don’t think we lost at all! It’s just that Phoenix Valley and the Unbreaking Pavilion are just completely shameless and despicable. They actually hid something so important from us. Otherwise, we wouldn’t be caught off guard. There are still a lot of excellent alchemists who are not at Prosper City!”

The black-robed man did not agree with what the handsome guy said. He took a deep breath and said, “I know you don’t want to lose to anyone, but there are some things that we can’t do by ourselves. The news has already spread, and all the alchemists that can get here are already here. Anyone who has the slightest bit of skill has all come over for more potential rewards. There should be some who are still not here, but it‘s just a small portion.”

Chapter 2940
The handsome man wanted to say something in response, but could not find anything to say after a long time.

The news really had been broadcasted a while ago. All the alchemists that came from major clans had all already rushed over. Anyone who could help had already done the best they could. After all, it was an incredibly important event. Those who were in the top three would get incredible amounts of resources.

The black-robed man frowned as he patted the handsome guy on the arm somewhat dejectedly, “I know it’s hard, and I know you don’t want to just let it go, but you might end up becoming a joke if you make a mess of things. I'm not trying to insult you. There are so many people and so many excellent alchemists. Your skills are only average among them. What can you do even if you take part? You'd just be making up the numbers…"

"If any accidents happen, you might very well end up being targeted. Just look at how everyone is acting inside…"

The handsome guy said resolutely, "I, Aaron Fox, have never retreated ever since I started alchemy. This time would be no different!"

It turned out that person was called Aaron.

After hearing the two of them talk, Jackie could somewhat grasp their personalities. Aaron seemed like a person of upstanding character who holds to his values. He seemed to be very righteous. It seemed to be worth getting to know him.

Jackie planned on entering the inner city but did not know the situation at all. Everything would be much easier if he had someone to guide him. He thought about it for a moment before bringing Rudy over.

Jackie saluted Aaron before saluting the black-robed man next to him. After giving a brief introduction, he spoke, "I just arrived at Prosper City. I want to take the test for the inner city, but it seems like the situation in the inner city is incredibly different from what I expected after hearing your conversation. It might even involve other continents…"

It was the first time Jackie had ever heard about other continents while he was in Hestia Continent. Before that, Jackie had never heard of other worlds being mentioned. Hestia Continent was considered the lower end of middle-tier worlds and was a third-grade world. Above were second-grade worlds and first-grade worlds.

Jackie never expected that the inner city would be related to other worlds. After being in Hestia Continent for so long, Jackie already planned on taking a look at other worlds if he had a chance.

Limiting himself to one place could very well limit his development. Jackie was still considered quite weak. Furthermore, he was only staying at Hestia Continent because he wanted to enter Wild Gorge Pass.

Aaron was an easygoing person and knew that Jackie was one too from the conversation. Jackie did not seem like someone petty at all, and would probably not stab any friends in the back.

Aaron smiled and said, "Did you come to Prosper City yourself?"

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not expecting that to be Aaron’s question. He patted Rudy on the shoulder, “I came with my fellow student.”

Aaron looked at Rudy and saw the sixth-grade alchemist badge on their chests. He had a curious look on his face, but the black-robed man was not as nice as Aaron.

The moment Jackie walked over to chat, the black-robed man was already looking at them alertly. After hearing what Jackie said, coupled with Jackie’s expression, the black-robed man’s alert was coupled with suspicion.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2941 - 2950 -

Chapter 2941
The black-robed man asked, “The two of you arrived at Prosper City by yourselves?”

Jackie immediately understood what the black-robed man was thinking. After all, they would have had to pass the test of an eighth-level city to arrive at Prosper City. Before that, they would have to get past a ninth-level city. It was impossible for alchemists to reach this place alone.

They had to have strong warriors protecting them. The two of them had also only reached this place thanks to the protection of others.

Jackie coughed before finding a reason, “We separated from the others after coming out of the eighth level city…”

The black-robed man frowned, “So that’s what happened. No wonder you don’t know anything. The news is already out. As long as you’re not a wandering warrior, you should have already received the news.”

After saying that, the black-robed man measured them with even more suspicion.

Jackie was starting to get a bit confused at that point since Aaron was nowhere near as suspicious as the black-robed man.

He felt like the black-robed man was just talking a lot, but failed to get to the actual point. Aaron decided to just clear Jackie’s questions, “Every clan’s warriors or alchemists would have gotten a sound transfer array notification from their fellow disciples, asking all the alchemists to head to Prosper City!”

Jackie frowned, feeling a little exasperated.

As an alchemist from Phoenix Valley, all of them had an identification token with them. Not only could that token keep track of merit points, but it could also even be used to transfer information at important moments. Yet, that token had lost its effect since they entered the Whirling World. There was no information sent over at all.

After hearing that, a thought flashed in Jackie’s mind. It looked like Phoenix Valley had already given up on Jackie. Regardless of what the reason was, they did not regard Jackie as a part of them.

With that in mind, Jackie felt a chill in his heart. Even though he had not planned on staying in Phoenix Valley for that long, he had not expected that Phoenix Valley would betray him either. He had even been a great help to Phoenix Valley, but Phoenix Valley had never spent anything on nurturing Jackie. The spirit crystals Jackie had gotten in Phoenix Valley had all been earned by Jackie himself.

After entering the whirling World, Jackie found out about a lot of secrets. Most of those secrets involved Phoenix Valley. Even though Jackie was disappointed that Phoenix Valley had hidden so much for him, he would have still helped them if they were in trouble.

Jackie completely discarded the thought at that point, he would sever all ties with Phoenix Valley!

Rudy had clearly seen the dark look on Jackie's face and was trying to guess what he was thinking. After all, Rudy's identity token had not worked at all as well.

Aaron was quite carefree and did not notice Jackie's mood at all as he continued, "It's been five to six days. All the alchemists that should be here have already arrived. After all, this event concerns the distribution of resources. Everyone did their best, but the results were not amazing. They only got one bronze treasure and black treasure."

Chapter 2942
"Compared to the two other worlds, Hestia Continent is way too bad! It's the seventh group today. If you want to take part, there are only five spots left! The mood is not the greatest at the moment. The six earlier groups had performed poorly. Not only did they lose badly, but they were also mocked terribly by the alchemists from the other worlds as well. The alchemists on our side aren't really treating the contestants that well either. Everyone feels like they're not good enough, and won't get good results if they join, so all of them became cowards. No one is willing to participate…"

Jackie was confused as he listened. He asked doubtfully, "Which continents are we competing against? What are bronze and black treasures?"

Aaron slapped his forehead, "I forgot that you just got here and don't know anything. Whatever, you should be planning on entering as well, right? If that's the case, let's talk as we walk."

After that, Aaron motioned to the black-robed man saying that he would definitely participate. The black-robed man was a bit panicked but understood that he had already said everything he could. Aaron was someone who would not go back on his decisions. Unless he did not want to participate himself, nothing could stop him from joining. He sighed helplessly, nodding and not saying anything.

Aaron walked in front while Jackie and Rudy followed him. They talked as they walked, and Jackie was also paying attention to the other alchemists around the passage.

Some of those alchemists came from the inner city, while some of them had just arrived. None of them looked like they were in a good mood, and all of them were talking to each other. Those discussions fell into Jackie's ears.

"Rudeus Grint's horse face looks at other alchemists like he's looking at crap. I refuse to go in and suffer. With my meager skills, I only barely managed to pass the entry test anyway. I only managed to complete thirty-one pill runes."

"I don't want to go either. The atmosphere inside is too heavy. The alchemists from White Marsh Continent are all so crazy. They're a lot weaker than the alchemists from the Chaos Continent, but they act so pleasantly with themselves just because they're better than us. They keep causing us trouble!"

"We can't touch that Heaven Array, and can only see the images that they're deliberately sending over. We can't even mock them back and have to suffer from it."

"Which of those at the center aren't the top from their respective forces? They're all incredible masters, but their faces are already pale with anger thanks to being mocked by the White Marsh Continent's alchemists. They're about to erupt at any moment."

"The only way for them to vent is on us insignificant characters. We wouldn't dare to fight them head-on either, and we're forced to just lower our heads and accept it! I don't want to get shouted at for no reason, so I'm forced to hide here…"

Jackie had heard of the name Rudeus before because he was far too famous. Jackie's name was probably about to be spread around as well since only three people have gotten the golden tokens before. One of them had been Rudeus from the Scarlet Pavilion. The Scarlet Pavilion was the only ninth-grade clan in Middle Province. It was the strongest clan in all of the Middle Province and even Hestia Continent. It was an immovable existence.

It was no surprise that he managed to get the golden token. After all, he was an alchemist from a ninth-grade clan. If he was not good, then other alchemists would all be trash.

The circular passage was very long.

Aaron never stopped talking. It was not just about the rules, he talked about a lot more as well. Rudy hit it off quite well with Aaron, and the two of them chatted as they walked.

Chapter 2943

Jackie had been far too quiet, but Aaron did not seem to mind. Just by listening to their conversations, Jackie slowly understood. The various rules after entering the inner city were making the Whirling World more and more interesting.

The inner city was actually an immense palace. There were already over ten thousand alchemists gathered there. The center of the inner city had a massive array that was about a hundred feet in length. The array was called the Heaven Array. It was an ancient array that had already been lost to the Hestia Continent. The alchemists gathered in the inner city all sat around the array.

Aaron raised an eyebrow and said, “The ones who are sitting in the innermost circle are the alchemists with incredible backgrounds and amazing skills. The one at the center is Rudeus from the Scarlet Pavilion. The one right in front of him is Mitchell Turner from Phoenix Valley. The two are said to possess the same level of skills. Before entering this tournament, their names have always appeared next to each other. They’re the model examples for all young alchemists…”

“Even the alchemists that were a generation older treat them with respect as well. However, after this tournament, Rudeus’ name is going to be listed behind Mitchell’s.”

Jackie nodded before asking, “Did Rudeus get a bronze treasure while Mitchell got a black treasure?”

Aaron’s eyes lit up as he nodded vigorously, “You’re so smart.”

Jackie sighed helplessly, feeling a lot better about Aaron.

Mainly, Aaron seemed to be a little dumb when it came to talking and doing things in general. Even if interacting with someone like him would take a bit more effort, he would still not need to be worried about being betrayed.

It let Jackie relax quite a bit. The three of them talked as they walked forward. In fifteen minutes, they finally entered the inner city. It was just like Aaron had said, the whole inner city was basically a massive palace.

Jackie looked up and saw that the ceiling had been carved with various beasts. There were uncountable pillars in the inner palace. Looking inside, a large group of alchemists was gathered in front. There were at least ten thousand of them.

Jackie frowned. He did not like going to crowded places at all. Every time he did, he did not feel like himself. However, he had to go in even if he did not like it. There was at least ten thousand people inside.

After he entered, it realized it was not that crowded at all. Everyone took out mats from their storage spaces and placed them on the floor, sitting down. Those who were friendlier with each other would sit closer, while those who were not that friendly would sit further apart.

Jackie looked at everyone, and noticed that all their expressions were all incredibly serious. He looked up at the centermost position.

After Aaron's introductions, Jackie saw the leaders, which were Rudeus from the Scarlet Pavilion and Mitchell from Phoenix Valley. The two of them sat facing each other in the middle of the array. They had incredibly dark looks on their faces, it was as if their fathers had just died.

As usual, Jackie did not want any unnecessary clamor, and sat down at a comer.

Aaron had been planning on sitting further inside, but Jackie didn't want to. Aaron did not know anyone else, so he sat at a secluded spot with Jackie. Even though everyone there was not that strong, it was still possible to hear what was spoken from afar if one did not deliberately lower their voice.

Chapter 2944
Rudy whispered into Jackie's ears, "Why does this place feel like a funeral?"

Jackie could not stop himself from letting out a laugh. He looked up at everyone, and it really did feel like it was a funeral.

Everyone was incredibly sullen and miserable. They were in incredible pain.

Aaron smiled as he whispered, "I don't think that this is a funeral at all."

Rudy raised an eyebrow and said, "Then what is it?"

Aaron coughed and said seriously, "It's like all of them ate a bucket of crap."

The three of them let out slight laughs. After a moment, Aaron continued, "I think that the reason they're suffering so much isn't that the other worlds are too strong or that they are too weak, and that they dragged Hestia Continent down. It's just because all of them have been shouted at by Rudeus."

Jackie raised an eyebrow, "They were shouted at by Rudeus? Is he allowed to do that? Even with his status, surely the alchemists here are all no regular alchemists? Middle Province isn't owned by Scarlet Pavilion!"

Jackie's face was puzzled. Ever since he came to Middle Province, he had started to learn about the various forces. Even though Scarlet Pavilion was the strongest in Middle Province, the other clans would not just take it lying down either. Lately, the Unbreaking Pavilion had been trying to become the second ninth-grade clan, splitting up the resources of Middle Province.

The Unbreaking Pavilion was very strong. Normally, they only treated Scarlet Pavilion with surface level respect. If Scarlet Pavilion really crossed the line, they would not just take it lying down. They would even fight back.

The other eighth-grade clans might not be as good as the Unbreaking Pavilion, but they would still not just take things lying down. Dignity was incredibly important to those of them from high-grade clans. Some of them saw it as more important than their own lives.

Because he understood that, Jackie was curious.

When he saw how serious everyone was, how could they have just taken being scolded like that lightly?

Aaron could tell what Jackie was puzzled about, and explained to Jackie, “I said this earlier on, but this happened slowly. Initially, Rudeus would not have shouted no matter how angry he was, but with the continuous losses, our results were so bad that White Marsh Continent’s alchemists kept on mocking them. That was why Rudeus erupted.”

Jackie still felt like it was quite unbelievable. After all, he had seen how much they valued their dignity, especially those who were more skilled. They had all already gotten used to being praised. As long as they got rejected or things happened in ways they did not want, they would immediately explode. They would feel like they suffered the greatest humiliation.

Rudy thought about it and said, “I feel like he‘d probably just said a word or two and vented his frustrations. Surely it’s not that bad…”

The moment he said that Rudeus started to speak. His voice was very somber. Rather, his whole person was in an incredibly heavy mood. He suppressed his anger, but his arms were still shaking.

“The seventh group! There are still two hours left. Only five people have taken the challenge tokens right now. Is there anyone else?”

No one answered.

The alchemists that were sitting in front started to retreat with guilty looks on their faces.

After a moment of silence, Rudeus could not hold back anymore and shouted, “Are all of you just trash? If you just wait around, you won‘t be able to get anything anyway!”

The moment he said that the silence broke. After all, this involved their personal benefits. The alchemists toward the back started to mutter amongst one another.

Chapter 2945
“But the rules are very clear. You‘ll get your pick of the treasures first, but you only get to pick one. We get to pick from the rest. The rules can’t be ignored. We want to help, but our skills are limited…”

“That’s right. If we were good enough, we’d naturally be willing to go, but we really can’t do it. Didn’t us weaker alchemists join the six groups earlier as well? Our results were too bad, and we were even mocked by those people and completely humiliated Hestia Continent.”

“Yeah, right. We’re just worried about the humiliation. If not for that, any of us would be willing to contribute.”

Rudeus merely laughed coldly at those words. He looked at those people who only knew how to take the resources. When they were asked to help, they would come up with various excuses. Rudeus felt his rage boiling.

He stood right up, and his sharp eyes stared at everyone as he shouted, “You’re all just trash. All you want is a part of the resources, but you’re not willing to do anything for it at all! You’re just shameless! Absolutely disgusting! I feel disgusted that I’m from the same continent as all of you!”

Those words were incredibly harsh, but even so, no one shouted back at him. They just muttered in silence.

Rudy was dumbfounded at the sight. He never expected that Rudeus’ words would be so harsh. He had even called the other alchemists trash that contributed nothing, calling them disgusting.

Rudy said as he licked his lips, “God… I’m still too inexperienced. I can’t believe Rudeus actually said all of that. I couldn’t even bear to listen.”

Aaron was very calm. After all, he had already heard all of that before. He had gone over to talk to his fellow students, and Aaron slowly understood what was in Rudeus’ mind. Aaron explained, “The others don’t fight back… Because it’s all the truth. Didn’t I tell you the rules of the competition before?”

Jackie and Rudy nodded at the same time, thinking about the rules that they had already been told. They immediately understood why Rudeus was like that.

The competition was actually very simple. Eleven groups had the chance to take part. Each group would consist of ten alchemists. It meant that each round would have thirty participants.

The thirty alchemists would all be tested at the same time, and they would be given placements. In the first place, one would get a golden treasure, which had the best resources. The second place would get a bronze treasure, which was one level lower than the golden one. The third place would get black treasures.

When Jackie entered, six groups had already taken part. The Chaos Continent was the strongest and had obtained four gold, four bronze, and four black treasures.

It was no wonder that White Marsh Continent regarded the Hestia Continent as worthless. That was because White Marsh Continent was a third-grade world just like Hestia Continent, but the results between the two continents were drastically different. The Hestia Continent had not even obtained a single golden treasure.

Rudeus shouted at everyone so viciously because he had gotten a bronze treasure after seizing second place in the second group. Meanwhile, Phoenix Valley's Mitchell had gotten third place in the third group. After that, they had gotten nothing.

The two treasures had been obtained by Rudeus and Mitchell, but the rules were in place. Even though they had gotten the treasures through their own hard work, they still had to share them with everyone.

Chapter 2946
No one responded to Rudeus's raging, probably because no one dared to. After all, with the situation as it was, no one had any right to talk back to Rudeus if they wanted resources. After all, the biggest amount of reward had been earned by Rudeus.

Anyone who wanted to retaliate refrained in the end. They were not willing to offend Rudeus, and did not know what to say anyway.

Rudeus had an incredibly dark look on his face as he shot his sharp gaze across everyone there, "The seventh group is about to start. If no one participates, we would only be sending in five out of the possible ten. Wouldn't we become a joke?! White Marsh Continent already regards us as a joke, and insults us without holding back. If we can't even get the proper number of people, how would they look at us?!"

After Rudeus shouted at all of them, the response was still merely silence. At that moment, no one dared to step up.

Jackie could not blame Rudeus for getting so furious.

Rudeus did not want to be looked down on. If there were not even enough people to participate, it would be far too humiliating. Rudeus had been insulted by White Marsh Continent's alchemists quite a bit. This time, they had even more reason to mock the alchemists of Hestia Continent.

Rudeus was about to collapse from anger. His hands trembled and fire could be seen in his eyes.

Jackie frowned, feeling like all the alchemists there were crossing the line. It was like Rudeus had said. Everyone was fighting for their own benefits, but when it was time for them to actually do something, no one actually dared to step up.

Rudy frowned as he said in exasperation, "This group really is something else. Are they really that afraid? Isn't it just a tournament? There are so many alchemists here, why did they all refuse? They would rather be berated by Rudeus than step up and participate?”

Aaron sighed at that. He was planning on stepping up. He had been planning on participating. He did not know what the results would be, but at the very least, he dared to step up. Even if he would be humiliated by White Marsh Continent, it was still better than not doing anything at all.

After Rudy voiced the question, Jackie merely frowned and did not reply.

Rudy saw that Jackie was not answering, so Rudy turned to look at Aaron. The moment he looked over, he saw Aaron suddenly stand up.

Aaron let out a slight cough as he tidied himself up, walking right toward the center. The inner city was large enough that they did not need to squeeze. There was a lot of space to move around.

Aaron took big strides all the way toward the front of the Heaven Array. At that moment, there were five miniature arrays on the Heaven array. Anyone who wanted to participate merely needed to pick one up, and it would be counted as a registration to compete. He calmly picked one up in front of all those alchemists. The small array was green in color and had a green glow to it. It looked like an ancient green gem and had several runes on it. It looked very nice.

Aaron grabbed the array and faced the angry Rudeus, saying, “I’ll take part!”

Jackie had thought that Rudeus would have a much better expression since Aaron had stepped up and volunteered by himself, but he never expected that Rudeus’ face would still be furrowed up tightly. He looked at Aaron with no trace of warmth. It was like he was looking at trash.

Chapter 2947
That disdainful gaze was obvious to Jackie even despite the distance. Logically speaking, Rudeus should have been happy that someone wanted to participate. After all, he had been shouting at everyone for so long, but no one had been willing to volunteer. Aaron’s actions could be counted as breaking through the silence. At the very least, they would not be laughed at by White Marsh Continent’s alchemists for not having enough people.

Aaron had clearly felt Rudeus’ disgust and mockery as well. It caused Aaron to feel both frustrated and confused. It was as if he had been wrong to do what he did.

Rudeus snorted, “With someone like you?”

Those words definitely stunned Aaron. What did Rudeus mean by that?

At that moment, the alchemists all looked at Aaron as well. They had looks of mockery on their faces as well.

Aaron's lips twitched as he said, "Didn't you say that everyone could take part? Since no one's taking part, can't I?"

Jackie felt like Aaron was being very reasonable. Both Jackie and Aaron knew that Aaron did not have the skill to get a treasure. He could not even get a black treasure.

He merely did this so the alchemists of Hestia Continent would not be completely humiliated. Yet, Rudeus still had the same attitude, and everyone else looked at Aaron with deep mockery.

Rudeus coldly snorted as his sharp eyes measured Aaron, "Even if you're just making up the numbers, you should at least have the skill to do so. Trash like you will just drag Hestia Continent down. It's better if you don't even go. Put down the array in your hand, you have no right to participate!"

Those words completely stunned Aaron. He was very straightforward, and he usually never let a word or two of mockery get to him. However, Aaron really was starting to panic at that point. He paled, feeling like he was being made out to be a clown.

He started to get laughed at, "Who does this guy think he is? Does he really think he's qualified to make up the numbers? Does he think that he'll look very nice if he stepped up at that moment?"

"Why doesn't he look at himself in the mirror first? Even if we did not have enough people to participate, it's still better than throwing actual trash in!"

"He's probably feeling very pleased with himself right now. He probably thinks that he's helping Rudeus at the moment and that he might become a part of us. Why doesn't he just think for a moment? If trash like him dare to step up, why aren't we participating?"

"That person clearly doesn't know his place. Something must be wrong with him. He's not even a seventh-grade alchemist, but he wants to take part. He's just going to embarrass us all…"

Aaron's lips started to turn purple as he felt a chill in his heart. It was as if he had been thrown into ice water. He sniffed, feeling like he was being an absolute joke.

As he was being stunned, Rudeus immediately shouted, "Why haven't you put it down?! Get lost!"

Aaron shuddered as he immediately placed the array down. He then turned and ran back with his tail between his legs.

Chapter 2948
Jackie's expression darkened.

It was no wonder that no alchemists were stepping up even though so many alchemists were present. It was actually because of Rudeus' high requirements. Average alchemists would have no right to participate.

Aaron seemed to have lost all hope at that moment. He had been humiliated by Rudeus like that in front of so many alchemists. He did not even have any will to fight back Even if he was incredibly carefree, he still had the urge to slam his head into a wall.

He felt like he had never been so humiliated in his life. He felt like everything he had done before was just a complete joke. He had a completely hopeless look in his eyes as he quickened his footsteps. He was afraid that he would hear the mockery around him if he slowed down. However, just as he was hastily walking forward, he suddenly felt his arm being grabbed. He turned to look and saw Jackie grabbing him with a frown on Jackie's face.

Jackie let out a sigh and pulled Aaron toward where he had been. After that, Jackie pressed at Aaron's arm, having Aaron sit back down. They were already sitting in a very secluded area in the first place, so it was easy to avoid everyone else's gaze.

Rudy looked at Aaron with some worry. Jackie sighed as he patted Aaron on the arm.

He whispered, "You did nothing wrong. You didn't know they would do that. You just wanted to step up at the right time and fight for Hestia Continent."

Rudy hurriedly said, "They really are too much! They're just a bunch of dogs who look down on others. If you knew that was how they would act, you would never have wanted to help them!"

Rudy's anger toward Rudeus was already at its peak. He felt like Rudeus had crossed the line too much. Even if Aaron was not good enough to participate, there was no need to make things so ugly. Even though Rudy only knew Aaron for a short time, Rudy already regarded Aaron as a friend. He really liked Aaron's personality.

Aaron's eyes were completely red, and his body was still shuddering. He was like a rabbit that had been frightened and looked incredibly pitiful.

Rudy got even angrier at the sight, "That Rudeus, I was still somewhat sympathetic of him earlier, but I can't believe he's actually like this!"

Aaron sighed with a bitter look on his face and said, "I thought of things too simply. I actually expected that he would mock me like that. An alchemist at Rudeus's level wouldn't regard us as anything worthwhile at all. As long as we do anything wrong, or do anything that he doesn't like, he will start to mock us…"

Jackie frowned as he looked at Rudeus.

Rudeus still had a sour look on his face as he looked at all the alchemists around him in disdain. He was still feeling frustrated at the lack of stronger alchemists participating.

Jackie sighed as he whispered, “You did nothing wrong. Every alchemist has the right to take part in the tournament. If there had been any restrictions, they would have been written in the rules. However, Prosper City has no such rules. Rudeus is just doing things as he please, not considering anyone else.”

Aaron shook his head, somewhat accepting his fate, “I just didn’t think things through. All alchemist like me that was raised by wandering warriors has no right to represent Hestia Continent in something like this.”

Jackie frowned, wanting to console Aaron, but Aaron interrupted him, “Thank you both. I know the two of you are trying to fight for me, but I’ve already thought things through. I just didn’t know my place earlier.”

Chapter 2949
Rudy sighed. He had a lot more he wanted to say, but he swallowed his words.

In truth, Aaron’s thoughts were not completely unreasonable, but Aaron had not done any of that to show off. He had wanted to help Rudeus and had not thought about anything else.

At that moment, Rudeus could be heard again, “Let me warn all of you! If you try to retreat again, I won’t be so kind to you when the resources are being distributed. You’re not getting anything for free!”

Rudy rolled his eyes, whispering, “What does this guy want? He doesn’t want anyone to step up and insists on having those cowards compete. With his temper, anyone who steps up probably won’t meet his standards anyway! Rudeus would just berate them without holding anything back. If this continues, even alchemists with enough skill won’t want to step up anyway. They would just be cursed at and insulted!”

Jackie could understand what everyone was feeling. It was not like everyone enjoyed being shouted at, but Rudeus’ temper was just too strange. He was probably already too used to being pampered. He felt like he was above everyone else, and that everything he did was right. If anyone did not meet his standards, they would be berated. It was as if it was completely deserved.

Jackie let out a snort as a look of disgust was on his face, he turned to look at Aaron, “Help me with this question. Are the treasures distributed evenly no matter what you get?”

Aaron shook his head before nodding, “I don’t know how I should describe it, but it’s not an even distribution. Those who get the treasure can choose the best thing first. The rest will be given to everyone else.”

Jackie nodded and immediately asked again, “Then how many times can one person take part?”

Aaron was a bit taken aback, “One person can only take part once, that’s why Rudeus is in such a panic to find people. After all, six groups have already been sent in. Sixty of the alchemists gathered here have already taken part.”

Jackie nodded as his eyes darted around. Rudy frowned as he looked at it. After knowing Jackie for so long, Rudy could guess what Jackie was thinking from his expression.

Rudy had a moment of realization when he looked at Jackie. He took a deep breath and grabbed Jackie’s arm, “You are…”

Before he could finish, Jackie nodded earnestly, “Stop right there. Why did I come here? Is it to lower my head for others?”

Rudy panicked a little hearing that, “But…”

Jackie shook his head, “There are no buts. There are some things you can‘t just hide away from. The chance is right in front of me, if I don’t seize it, it would be my fault for losing out on it.”

Aaron was confused listening to the two of them talk.

Jackie turned to look at Aaron and asked, “How much do you know about White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent?”

Chapter 2950
Aaron blinked, answering seriously, “I don’t really know that much… I’ve only read about them in ancient books.”

At that moment, Jackie went straight to the key point, “Hearing what you said, are none of the other worlds cut off from the outside world like Hestia Continent is?”

Aaron nodded as he looked at Jackie in confusion. He felt like everyone should have known this since it was basic knowledge. Yet, it seemed like Jackie did not know about it at all. He was not someone who dwelled on problems like these.

After thinking about it, he answered sincerely, “Hestia Continent used to be open to the outside world as well. It had regular contact with other worlds and even had large transfer arrays that could send us out to other worlds. However, something huge happened thirty thousand years ago which cut off Hestia Continent’s ties with the outside world. Even though news can still travel around, most of the channels were shut off.”

In truth, Aaron did not know much about what happened back then either. After all, he was not even older than sixty years old, and merely got the news from ancient books. The difference between third-grade worlds was not too large. They would have Lies with each other, and they could even travel between the worlds. As long as you had the resources, you could take large transfer arrays to other worlds.

Thirty thousand years ago, Hestia Continent always maintained a relationship with the outside world. They exchanged resources as well. Hestia Continent was considered to be at the lower end of third-grade worlds.

Aaron said seriously, “I’ve seen records about White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent. It’s clearly written that those two continents should have been at the same level as us. We should all have been at the lower middle end of third-grade worlds.”

After Aaron said that, Jackie suddenly said thoughtfully, “So that’s what happened. The Whirling World linked us with those two continents probably because the Whirling World thinks that the three worlds are at almost the same level and that it would be a fair fight.”

Aaron had a look of realization on his face when he heard that. He straightened his body and said, “You’re very right. I think we’re competing against White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent because of that too. However, the two continents have already improved by quite a bit. Chaos Continent can already be ranked as a mid-tier third grade world. Even White Marsh Continent is a bit stronger than Hestia Continent. We’re forced to stay at the bottom.”

Jackie nodded. No wonder there was such a huge difference. Thirty thousand years was enough to change a lot of things.

Rudy sighed and said, “If we had not cut off our connection to the outside world, we might be very different right now.”

Aaron nodded, “Probably. At the very least, we wouldn’t be so bad.”

Jackie looked up at the carvings on the ceiling. The carvings filled up the whole ceiling and were rich with content. There were massive beasts and warriors in strange clothes. A lot of stories were illustrated there, enough to make one dizzy.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2951 -

Chapter 2951
After staring at the ceiling for a long time, Jackie took a deep breath and said, “What happened thirty thousand years ago? Have you ever heard about the Divine Void World?”

“The Divine Void World?” spoke Aaron and Rudy simultaneously.

It was obvious that both of them had never heard that name before.

Aaron shook his head. “I’ve never heard about it… Where is that place?”

Jackie frowned, falling silent for a moment. Even though Aaron had never heard of it, it did not mean that what happened 30,000 years ago had nothing to do with the Divine Void World. Jackie even started to think that the Whirling World was closely related to the Divine Void World.

There were far too many secrets in the Hestia Continent, and those secrets usually involved the Divine Void World. For instance, what he experienced in West Cercie State was closely related to the Divine Void World.

He remembered those questions he had that had been impossible to answer. He was finally slowly getting some clues.

If the Hestia Continent had nothing to do with the Divine Void World, he would probably not have arrived at the Hestia Continent back then. After all, Mustard Seed had been on autopilot back then. He had chosen a third- grade world but never specified which one. In other words, Mustard Seed had chosen Hestia for Jackie.

After Jackie thought about it for a moment, he turned to look at Aaron. “Continue… What happened back then? Why did you suddenly stop?”

Aaron let out a cough before saying awkwardly, “I just say that you were deep in thought, and I was worried that I’d interrupt you…”

Rudy was very curious as well. He might be from Middle Province, but he rarely looked at ancient books. He did not even know some of the clans that were in Middle Province. Back then, he had always been in his own little circle, so he excitedly asked, “Hurry up and tell us! I want to hear it.”

30,000 years ago, a powerful sound echoed in the skies of the Hestia Continent as though proud, valiant warriors were battling in the heavens. The skies rumbled with thunder, and the whole continent was submerged in the pressure that those supreme beings exuded.

At that moment, every warrior was stricken with fear. No one knew what happened, and no one knew what could happen next. It seemed like the end of the world as thunder and lightning reigned supreme. Numerous areas were rendered to ashes in the aftermath.

It continued for a whole three days when all of a sudden, the lightning stopped on the fourth day. Some of the stronger warriors flew into the skies at that moment, wanting to see what happened, but they suddenly found themselves unable to fly any higher. They were shocked to find that the entire Hestia seemed to have been surrounded by a massive barrier. Even the strongest warriors of the continent were stopped by an invisible barrier after flying to a certain height, unable to continue flying.

All of the warriors were shocked as they hurriedly contacted other worlds. They wanted to invite the best of other worlds to see what happened.

They were plunged into hopelessness when they realized that even the transfer arrays were useless. They would be stopped by an invisible force midway, unable to continue their journey. Even using high-level sound arrays, they could not transfer any information.

Aaron helplessly explained, “The warriors back then, be it the strong or the weak, were mystified, not knowing what had taken place. The only thing they were sure about was the fact that contact with the outside world had been cut off by a barrier they couldn’t see. No one could get out…”

After hearing that, Jackie and Rudy were dazed. They felt like what happened back then was really strange.

Jackie frowned and said, “Didn’t you say we could still transfer information?”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2952 -

Chapter 2952
Aaron nodded. “We’re already able to transmit information now, but it was impossible back then. Back then, all communication with the outside world was cut off. The fact that we can even transmit a little bit of information now is due to thirty thousand years of constant hard work, allowing some array masters to communicate with the outside world through some special sound arrays. Only then did we find out that White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent, who were at the bottom like us back then, are already completely different…”

Aaron‘s expression turned sullen at this. He felt like the Hestia Continent would probably be different if not for that special barrier cutting off the outside world.

After all, it was not just communication that happened with the outside world back then; people could move around and resources could be traded. They could even get things from other worlds. However, Hestia became an isolated place after all forms of communication were cut off. The people knew nothing of the outside world and were forced to remain behind closed doors.”

Rudy raised an eyebrow and said, “I want to know what happened back then. Who could be so powerful as to seal the whole Hestia Continent? Why did they erect that barrier? There’s the Whirling World as well. Hestia is supposed to be sealed in, so why are we able to communicate with the other worlds after coming here? Also… Why were those two other worlds able to improve so much in thirty thousand years? What happened to them? What happened to the other worlds?”

Rudy felt like he had a lot of questions at that moment. After knowing what happened back then, he started to lose a bit of his calm. He felt like there were definitely a lot of secrets hidden behind everything.

Those secrets might even involve some things that were taking place at this moment. He could not help but suspect that the Unbreaking Pavilion and Phoenix Valley might know the truth behind everything. They had probably arranged this trip into the Whirling World because of what they knew.

Something was off about the Whirling World. With all those questions on his mind, Rudy voiced his thoughts.

Jackie turned to look at Rudy and said, amused, “Are you trying to look for answers from the two of us? Do you think we’d be able to answer them?”

Rudy’s lips twitched, laughng it off after realizing that he had been foolish for asking in the first place. After all, none among them would have been able to answer his questions.

Jackie sighed as he looked at Rudeus again. He already understood what he could, and he could not possibly answer the questions he had that could not be answered.

With that, Jackie stood up and walked forward, baffling Rudy and Aaron as they looked at him with widened eyes.

Jackie turned around and nodded at Rudy.

“Don’t you want to think it over first?” fretted Rudy.

Jackie, however, merely smiled and shook his head. After that, he turned and walked to the center of the Heaven Array again. He was firm in his footsteps as be ignored the looks sent his way.

Jackie blocked out his surroundings as he looked at the Heaven Array. Whatever was said from the people around him or the looks they gave him could not get to him whatsoever.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2953 -

Chapter 2953
Jackie had carefully thought things through before he stood up.

Everyone else doubtfully watched as he stood in front of the Heaven Array. He reached out to grab one of the small arrays in front of him. After grabbing that plate, he wasted no time putting it into his storage space before he turned and started to walk back. The way he behaved and walked was so languid that everyone was baffled.

Just as Jackie made his third step, Rudeus said, “Stop right there! Who are you? You’re trying to just walk away after taking an array?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, turning around after he stopped.

He calmly looked at Rudeus. He already expected that Rudeus would react like that before he came, and he already knew what he wanted to say.

Jackie raised an eyebrow before he calmly replied, “Why can’t I go? Are these arrays yours? Everyone here is qualified to take part in the competition. As long as there are arrays and spots left, any alchemist here has the right to take part. It’s unreasonable for you to be the one to decide if someone can take part or not.”

Despite how his words actually held reason, everyone was stunned to hear Jackie uttering them. No one expected that someone with the badge of a sixth-grade alchemist would talk back to Rudeus like that in front of everyone.

Rudeus narrowed his eyes, suddenly laughing. Only, his laugh did not reach his eyes, and there was a sharpness to his laugh.

“There really is a first time for everything. I’ve seen a lot of stupid things, you know. Who do you think you are to question me?! Yes, I am going to judge if you’re worthy or not just by myself! If I say you’re not qualified, then you’ re not. If I want you to put down the array, you’d do well to listen!”

At that moment, every alchemist looked at Jackie. Expressions on their faces varied as they started to talk.

“Is this kid crazy? He’s talking to Rudeus so bluntly!”

“Does he not know who Rudeus is? Insulting Rudeus is equal to insulting the Scarlet Pavilion. Does he not know that the Scarlet Pavilion is a ninth-grade clan, the strongest force in Hestia?!”

“He can’t possibly not know. Anyone with half a brain knows that Scarlet Pavilion shouldn’t be offended. Rudeus will definitely remember this guy for speaking without reserve toward him. I think this guy must be crazy!”

“I think so, too. Just listen to what he said earlier! Even if it sounded reasonable, it just sounds like him being petulant, if you think about it. He’s just a sixth-grade alchemist, so what gives him the right to say all of that just because he wants to compete?”

Many questions began to surface, and everyone felt like Jackie had crossed the line with his behavior and words.

Jackie merely snorted at these remarks, however, as he was unfazed. It was a waste of his time to argue with those people, so he decided to ignore them.

At that moment, Rudeus walked toward Jackie, narrowing his eyes as he looked at Jackie coldly.

“Didn’t you hear what I said earlier? I told you to put down your array. You have no right to represent Hestia in competing against the alchemists from other worlds!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2954 -

Chapter 2954
Jackie watched as Rudeus walked toward him with a passive expression.

He looked up slightly as he spoke as though proud and faultless, “You don’t have the right to determine who takes part in the competition. Don’t think that you can do whatever you please just because you’re from a ninth-grade clan!”

At this point, Jackie's behavior enraged Rudeus to the point of no recourse, feeling like everything Jackie said was unbearable. He even felt like stabbing Jackie with a thousand blades.

Mark was sitting in the fourth row, watching as everything happened with a stunned expression. As an alchemist from the Unbreaking Pavilion, he needed to sit there. Moreover, he represented Hestia as well. He had been part of the third group, which meant that he represented Hestia in the tournament. His results had been one of the worst, being completely trounced by alchemists from the other two continents.

Regardless, he could not leave immediately. After all, the competition included the whole continent, and he had to stay for the entire time. At that moment, he did not just represent alchemists but even the Unbreaking Pavilion behind him. He had to stay, he was the leader of the Unbreaking Pavilion's alchemists and represented his clan.

When he saw Jackie, he was completely stunned.

Jackie had floored him before this. Everyone else did not know of Jackie's abilities, but Mark knew them all too well.

Jackie was more than qualified to take part in the competition, and his results would not be bad. They would be better than Mark's, at least. As for whether Jackie could get a treasure, that much was uncertain.

Mark stared at Jackie, gaping the whole time. He gulped as he looked at his fellow students around him, noticing that they were gaping at him too as various feelings flashed in their eyes.

Those who knew Jackie knew how strong he was. It was the right decision to let him take part. After all, he had gotten a golden token. The only thing they did not know was how Jackie compared to Rudeus and Mitchell. However, there was one thing that they were certain of. Jackie taking part in the competition would not shame Hestia whatsoever. Instead, it would bring honor to the continent.

On the other hand, Rudeus' behavior was wrong in their eyes. However, even if they knew the truth, they would not help Jackie say anything. After all, they were enemies. It would be best for them if Jackie's journey was made difficult.

At that moment, whether it was Mark's or even Samuel's group, all of them remained completely silent, not saying a thing.

Rudeus and Jackie were both at a standstill. Rudeus did not want Jackie to join the competition, already thinking that Jackie was incapable of anything. He believed that Jackie would only humiliate Hestia if Jackie joined. Alchemists from other continents would belittle Hestia if Jackie joined, and he would drag everyone else down with him!

That was why Rudeus was adamant against allowing Jackie to participate.

To Jackie, however, Rudeus was just making a fool out of himself. He had no reason nor the right to reject any alchemist. Rudeus might have gotten impressive results and a bronze treasure, but did it matter any more than that?

Even though he obtained a bronze treasure, it did not mean he was the leader of all of the alchemists in Hestia. Upon noticing that Jackie was firm in his actions, Rudeus felt his anger spilling from his chest.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2955 -

Chapter 2955
Rudeus squinted angrily at Jackie and cleared his throat, sneering, "If you insist on being stubborn, don't think that I can't do anything to you just because you refuse to give up, you brat. I decide if you get to participate!"

Jackie smirked upon hearing this, sneering to himself at how stodgy Rudeus was. Just because Rudeus had gotten a bronze treasure and was from a ninth-grade clan, he felt entitled enough to think that everyone had to obey whatever he said.

Anyone who went against Rudeus' word was basically slapping him on the face, and Rudeus would use other means to handle them. Jackie, however, was not someone who would bend to another person's will.

Jackie let out a laugh as he raised his voice and retorted, "Please stop thinking that you get to boss around everyone just because you're a little skilled. I said that I'd take part in this competition, so I will. You have no right to determine who can participate or who can't. Stop trying to act like your threats will affect me. If you have the skills, go ahead and come at me!"

Even if Rudeus attacked, Jackie would barely blink.

Jackie might be an alchemist, but he was far from a traditional one, his skills were far stronger than anyone present. Even warriors from a ninth-grade clan barely amounted to Jackie, let alone an alchemist.

Rudeus' face reddened in anger as his eyes reddened. He never expected that an alchemist he had never seen before would boldly challenge him. Jackie did not seem willing to budge at all. Even with his status on full display, he refused to cooperate!

The atmosphere became even tenser at this point, and the discussions around them grew louder.

"This guy is insane! Is he not afraid that Rudeus will come for him someday? Even if Prosper City has laws in place that stops Rudeus from attacking him, nothing good will be waiting for this guy once he steps out of Prosper City."

"Doesn't he know what a ninth-grade clan represents? Rudeus has a good standing in Scarlet Pavilion as well, and quite a few of their chosen disciples are close to Rudeus."

"Those people will come for anyone who offends Rudeus if they find out that someone had crossed him!"

"Something's wrong with this boy's head. It's like he's so sure he'll be safe and that no one will get back at him. If he leaves Prosper City, he'll suffer greatly!"

Some of the people shouted at Jackie.

“Just put it down if he wants you to. Do you know what you’ re doing? Even if we can’t fight inside the city, the laws don’t exist outside of Prosper City. Are you that sure you’ll be safe afterward? Aren’t you afraid that they’ll seek revenge?”

Jackie merely raised an eyebrow at those words, not bothering with them at all. Even if they want to take revenge on him, they would have to look at themselves in the mirror and deliberate their choices. Ever since Jackie entered the Whirling World, he lost track of how many people he had offended there. He knew that there would be those looking for revenge, but he could not care less.

His principle had always been to never harm those who never harmed him, while those who hurt him will receive damage tenfold. As long as anyone dared to cause him trouble, he would get even.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2956 -

Chapter 2956
After all, no one knew who would suffer the heaviest losses.

At this point, Rudeus was already trembling with anger. Jackie had humiliated him in front of so many people and spoke so crassly toward him. With that, Rudeus wanted nothing more than to end Jackie. He even started thinking about how he would capture and torture Jackie after they left Prosper City.

Meanwhile, Jackie no longer wanted to entertain Rudeus' antics, so he lowered his head and looked at the alchemists who sat on the mats. Even though the center was more of a tight fit compared to the outskirts, there was some space left.

Rudeus would no doubt continue pestering him, so rather than letting Rudeus follow him, Jackie decided to just sit at the vacant spot.

The seventh group was about to start anyway. He would have needed to come over again. It would save them from noticing Rudy as well.

Looking at how nonchalant Jackie was acting, Rudeus' anger soared to new heights. His entire body burned with the urge to rush up to Jackie and smack his face. Alas, he could not.

Rudeus took a deep breath as he slowly composed himself. He knew that he would only embarrass himself if he went after Jackie at this moment, knowing that he would not cooperate. Jackie would definitely take part in the competition.

Rudeus took a deep breath and was forced to turn and head to his original position.

At that moment, Mitchell, who had been silent the whole time, suddenly spoke, "Why do you insist on participating? Are you trying to make a name for yourself, or do you really think you'll be able to get the treasure?"

Mitchell came from Phoenix Valley, but his alchemy skills were, in truth, not as good as Rudeus'. He was from the inner valley and was an alchemist that Phoenix Valley took great pains to guide and improve. He had been silent the whole time in large part because his skills were no match for Rudeus. Even though he did not want to admit it, the results have been clear for all to see.

Rudeus had gotten a bronze treasure, while he only got a black treasure. Even though he was not on the best of terms with Rudeus, he did not want to see Jackie acting like he owned the place.

Who did Jackie think he was, carrying himself so pridefully?

Jackie raised an eyebrow, looking at Mitchell meaningfully. At that moment, there were a lot of alchemists that had similar-looking robes behind him. All of them had reddish-orange patterns on their robes. He had seen those patterns in Phoenix Valley before, so Jackie knew who they were, more or less.

If it had been before, Jackie would not have been too harsh on them since they were from Phoenix Valley. No matter what kind of conflict they had, Jackie would have tried his best to forgive any transgression against him. At this point, however, he had abandoned those sentiments. After all, Phoenix Valley had betrayed him first. Phoenix Valley had hidden a massive secret and never provided anything for him.

They never treated Jackie like one of their own. Seeing their unfair treatment, Jackie decided to respond in kind.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2957 -

Chapter 2957
Jackie snorted and replied, "I'm aiming for the treasure, of course. Just spare your breath, there's no point in you saying anything to me. No matter what you say, I'll still participate."

Mitchell's lips twitched as he hissed, "Don't you know that you'll embarrass Hestia by doing this? You have a sixth-grade alchemist badge! They'll not only mock you for participating with a sixth-grade alchemist badge, but also the whole Hestia Continent! I don't want you dragging us down with you!"

Exasperated, Jackie inhaled deeply as his lips twitched. He touched the sixth-grade alchemist badge that was on his chest and realized that the badge had never once benefited him. Nonetheless, he had no intention of ripping it away.

He looked at Mitchell and curtly replied, "I won't embarrass Hestia. As for the rest, you're the one who thinks you'll be embarrassed. Stop wasting your time, I won't listen anyway. "

After saying that, Jackie closed his eyes and pursed his lips, looking as though he was shutting out the entire world from his senses.

Looking at this, Mitchell was rendered speechless.

The alchemists from Phoenix Valley behind him whispered to Mitchell, "Mitchell, just ignore him. This guy looks like he's lost his marbles. Rudeus said so much earlier, but this guy didn't listen at all, and he's barely unfazed by the threats as well. Since that's the case, there's no point wasting your breath."

Mitchell's lips twitched, but he had to admit that those words were true. There was no getting through to this guy.

Just as Mitchell was about to shut his eyes and rest as well, the Heaven Array's mechanisms suddenly moved. A green light glowed on the Heaven Array, attracting everyone's attention.

Jackie looked over as well and saw that there was a figure on the Heaven Array. He could immediately tell that it was not an actual person standing on the array, but an image that someone had sent over.

That person had white robes on and looked quite different. However, his face seemed visibly taut, and it was obvious that he came with no good intent.

Mitchell and Rudeus' gazes soured when they saw the image.

"Ethan Loewe, do you have nothing better to do?" hissed Rudeus through gritted teeth.

Ethan let out a laugh and shrugged. “Aren’t I doing official business right now? I just want to see if you’ll be able to gather enough to participate in the seventh round. If you can’t, well, that’s a shame. After all, I still want to get to know more alchemists from Hestia. We should exchange pointers and elevate our skills.”

Although Ethan’s words seemed innocent enough, the way he spoke sounded incredibly sinister, coupled with the obvious smirk on his face.

Jackie frowned, immediately understanding why Rudeus and Mitchell’s expressions soured so much. This probably was not the first time Ethan downplayed alchemists from Hestia with his words.

Rudeus took a deep breath, doing his best to suppress the rage in his heart. “The people who will be representing us, and whether we’ll get enough people, have nothing to do with you. If you have the time to care about us, care about the White Marsh Continent first. Even though our results aren’t much, you alchemists from White Marsh Continent are just a little stronger than us. You can’t compare to Chaos Continent at all!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2958 -

Chapter 2958
Ethan’s expression stiffened upon hearing Rudeus’ words, and a sharp glint flashed in his eyes. Not only was the Heaven Array a large transfer array, but it could also transmit a person’s image. Without the person being sent over, they could talk to those around the Heaven Array.

This was the power of an ancient array.

Ethan seemed to have been angered by Rudeus’ words.

Snorting, he retorted, “You speak as if we’re that bad. Even though we’re not as good as Chaos Continent, we still managed to get golden treasures, and not just one at that. Meanwhile, you’re far different. You claimed that you’re only a bit worse than us. Is that true, though? None of you obtained a single golden treasure yet! Do you really have the right to say such words?”

Those words were definitely a slam on the pride of every alchemist in the inner city. It completely humiliated them, causing Rudeus to shudder in anger. He had been insulted by Ethan before as well, but Ethan had not been so venomous with his words before.

Rudeus came from a ninth-grade clan and received showers of praise from a young age.

Naturally, he was never humiliated before. Worse still, he had no other words to throw at Ethan, who seemed visibly prideful the moment he brought up golden treasures.

He looked at all of the alchemists from Hestia in disdain. “I’ll be part of the seventh group. I don’t know who’ll be competing against me, but let me warn you, none of you will be getting the top-three spots. I think you should just wake up and give up on this competition. After all, this has always been a competition between White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent. Hestia is just here to make up the numbers with you trash bags.”

Ethan cackled maniacally before his image flashed and he disappeared. At that moment, no one could hold back.

Everyone cursed Ethan for being despicable and shameless. They jeered at how arrogant he was, saying that all he knew was to brag. Even the most composed of the alchemists present could not hold back their anger after all that humiliation.

“This guy has crossed the line! It’s like he thinks no one can beat him. He’s clearly never taken part in the competition at all, but he constantly taunts people. He thinks he’s unrivaled!”

“How could someone actually skilled be like him? All he knows is bragging. I think he won’t even be able to get the first three places. He doesn’t have the skills, so he’s just trying to bolster his pride by gloating in front of us!”

“He’s just an arrogant and despicable lowlife. If I can meet him face-to-face, I’d rush over and give him a good few sobering slaps!”

Even though all of them knew that Hestia could not compare to White Marsh Continent, they were not willing to swallow Ethan’s words. They felt like Ethan’s constant taunts were fueled by his vanity. They believed that Ethan was not talented enough to make it into the top three spots and merely wanted to mock them to bolster his self-confidence.

Rudeus was seething at this point, his eyes completely red as he felt like he had never been so humiliated before.

On the other hand, Jackie lightly sighed. He knew very well that Ethan was not completely wrong. If the situation continued, Hestia might not even be able to muster enough people. After all, Rudeus was standing in front of them, insisting that only skilled and willing alchemists be allowed to participate.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2959 -

Chapter 2959
For others, taking part in the competition meant that Rudeus might very well humiliate them, and no one wanted to bear that humiliation. Of those present, only two of them had gotten treasures while the rest returned empty-handed.

Every one of them knew how difficult the competition was, so everyone became cowards. No one was willing to stand up at such a time.

Jackie looked at Rudeus before turning to look at Aaron.

At that moment, Aaron was conversing with Rudy. The two of them were hidden in the darkness, trying not to interact with anyone else. There must have been a few alchemists present that were like Aaron, but thanks to Rudeus’ poorly chosen words, no one was willing to step up.

Rudeus trembled with anger and looked like he was about to collapse at any moment.

Jackie did not want to care about anything, but thinking about it, he would need to meet the alchemists from White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent when the competition started. If they truly could not get enough people, they would be the laughingstock for everyone else.

To avoid that, and also because Jackie did not want Rudeus to just do as he pleased, Jackie said to the people around him, “Rudeus might be exceptional, but he’s not the boss of everyone here. We can’t just let him pick and choose who can take part just because he wants to. Even if the competition is hard, it’s a good opportunity to challenge yourself. As alchemists, we shouldn’t let go of any chance to improve ourselves!”

What greeted him was silence and gazes of various emotions. Some were exasperated, while some were disgusted, but they were all directed at Jackie.

Jackie was not fazed, having anticipated these reactions before he even spoke.

Rudeus, enraged and unable to tolerate Jackie’s sudden burst of words, stood up. He was like an angered lion, clenching his fists tightly as his true energy circulated his body, ready to attack at any moment.

Nash Skye, who was also from the Scarlet Pavilion, reached out and grabbed Rudeus by his arm. He was afraid that Rudeus would not be able to control his temper and attack Jackie.

After all, Prosper City had its laws, and the moment Rudeus broke those laws, he would be punished. It was a punishment no alchemists could withstand, and he would be turned to ashes.

“Don’t fall for it, Rudeus!” warned Nash anxiously. “This guy is trying to anger you and make you attack. You’ll be punished by Prosper City if you do!”

Those words were like a bucket of cold water on Rudeus’ face. He suddenly calmed down from his anger, realizing that he had been acting too recklessly. If Nash had not been there to hold him back, he might have attacked Jackie. After all, Jackie’s words had been even worse than adding oil to the fire for Rudeus.

Rudeus took a few deep breaths before he quelled the anger in his heart. At that moment, however, Rudeus’ hatred toward Jackie became concentrated.

Nash looked over and scoffed. “Don’t think that you can challenge us as you please, you brat!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2960 -

“Rudeus’ behavior in arranging things this way is because he doesn’t want Hestia to be humiliated. If everyone participates so brazenly like you are, won’t it show the other two continents that our alchemists are all so bad?!”

Hearing that, Jackie raised an eyebrow as he said loudly, “Stop looking for excuses, I won’t be convinced just like that. You keep on saying you don’t want Hestia to be humiliated, but what you’re doing will only embarrass us even more. There are so many alchemists here. Is it that hard to pick out a few seventh-grade alchemists? The fact that the seventh-grade alchemists are all unwilling to step up is purely because they’d be humiliated by Rudeus if they didn’t satisfy him.”

“Who’d want to step up just to be berated? You’re stopping others from taking part and humiliating our continent even more! In your eyes, sixth-grade alchemists are nothing, but what about seventh-grade alchemists?! Surely it won’t be hard to pick out a few seventh-grade alchemists when there are over ten thousand of them here! Why can’t we even pick out ten? Simply put, no one wants to be scolded!”

“The standards you uphold are hilarious. As long as they have a seventh-grade alchemist badge, they won’t be mocked when they enter. After all, the badge doesn’t explicitly say how skilled a person is. Even if the alchemists from the other continents are skilled, there’s no way there will be a lot of eighth-grade alchemists. After all, there’s an age restriction!”

Jackie’s words were quite logical, and the other alchemists slowly became convinced. Everyone slowly felt like Rudeus’ earlier arrangements were too tyrannical and too reliant on him alone.

Many alchemists were present, including seventh-grade alchemists. It should not be difficult to pick out 10 of them to compete. The reason why no one stepped up was simply because of Rudeus’ horrible temper. If they were not to his standards, they would be shouted at.

There should have been a lot more people willing to participate. After all, no one wanted Hestia to be humiliated.

Rudeus was shaking in anger as he looked at Jackie with even more hatred in his eyes. If it were not for Jackie, he would not be questioned like that!

Jackie did not care how angry Rudeus was at all. Instead, he turned and raised his voice to speak to all the other alchemists, “You can compete if you want to. It’s a rare chance to train yourselves. After all, you’re not competing with the alchemists of Hestia but those from other worlds instead. Even if you’ll be mocked, it’s fine! Just imagine that they’re dogs that only know how to bark!”

“Hey, that guy has a point, this is a rare chance! We can’t just listen to Rudeus‘ arrangements. Even though I’m not an eighth-grade alchemist, I’m still a seventh-grade alchemist.”

“My skills are decent. There’s no way I‘ll get a treasure, but at least I can train myself. I’ll only be able to improve if I do that!”

“Even though this guy is insufferable, he’s being logical here. We can’t just follow what Rudeus wants, we should think for ourselves!”

Slowly, the alchemists’ stance shifted as they gravitated to accept Jackie’s view and that Rudeus should not have a final say in everything. After all, Rudeus was only concerned with himself.

After a short while, a tall man stood up from his mat. He walked over to the Heaven Array and grabbed a small array before putting it in his storage space.

The man told everyone, “I won’t let this chance go. I’ve decided to take part in the seventh group!”

After saying that, he turned and walked back to his spot. Slowly, everyone started to move, and the remaining arrays were quickly taken.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2961 - 2965

Chapter 2961

The ten spots were finally fixed, and Jackie decided to shut up after that. He looked up and glanced at Rudeus who was staring back at him with an angry and venomous gaze. If looks could kill, Jackie would have already died a thousand times.

He let out a laugh, not caring about Rudeus. After all, Rudeus was just an alchemist who posed no threat to him.

Jackie then turned to look at Rudy who was waving to him. The moment he saw Rudy, he knew that Rudy had something to say. The round was about to start, and Jackie did not have much time left. After frowning and thinking for a moment, he stood up and walked over to Rudy. It was a very secluded place. Anyone not taking specific notice would not have seen that corner. When Jackie walked over, he had naturally attracted some attention, but that did not bother him.

When he arrived in front of Rudy, he sat down on the mat before saying, “You have something to say?”

Rudy took a deep breath before nodding seriously and said, “I feel like you shouldn’t be so reckless. Don’t offend those people too much. I know how you are, but I feel like you’re still a bit too reckless. Rudeus already sees you as an enemy, and definitely won’t let you off. If he joins hand with those people from the Unbreaking Pavilion, it will start to get a lot harder for us. They might even work together to set a trap for you. If we aren’t careful and get caught by them, it would be disastrous!”

Rudy’s words were sincere from the heart, and not exaggerated at all.

Aaron nodded in agreement as well. After chatting with Rudy, he somewhat understood Jackie’s situation and knew of his grudges against the Unbreaking Pavilion. On top of that, there was also Rudeus from the Scarlet Pavilion.

Jackie had seemingly insulted all the biggest forces.

Jackie sighed as he let out a laugh of exasperation. Thinking about it, it really was so. However, he was never the instigator of anything. They were the ones who wanted to cause Jackie trouble, and he was merely retaliating. If he could not even do that, then he would be too suffocated.

Rudy said with some worry, “I feel like they’ll start working together to cause you trouble. What should we do about it?”

Rudy knew very well that, even if Jackie begged for mercy in front of Rudeus, Rudeus would definitely not let Jackie off. Furthermore, Jackie was not the sort to do that anyway. The bridge was already burned between the two of them.

The conflicts between them would only deepen. Jackie was already mortal enemies with the Unbreaking Pavilion, and the Compass Pavilion as well. If they added the Scarlet Pavilion to that, then the future days would be much harder.

Rudy's lips twitched, imagining a scenario where their enemies had the upper hand.

What would the two of them end up like?

It would definitely be excruciating. They would definitely be tortured in various ways.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, reaching out and placing it on Rudy's shoulder, "Don't let your thoughts wander. Do you think I haven't thought about the fact that they might set a trap for me? They will definitely do that, but it's not like we have no counter to that. I've already thought things through, so you can relax…"

Jackie did not go into detail about the plans that he had.

When Rudy heard what Jackie said, Rudy got even more worried. That was because Rudy could not figure out what sort of plans could possibly save them from such dangerous situations. He felt like the future was uncertain, and that there was no way to handle it.

After thinking about it for a while, Rudy said seriously, "I know that you've always had your own thoughts. I just wanted to tell you that I think we should just avoid warriors or alchemists from these major forces if we can in the future. We shouldn't make enemies of them."

Chapter 2962
Rudy had once been someone who did as he pleased as well, but he slowly understood that he could not keep on doing that. It was not good to make enemies out of those large forces. If they really focused on dealing with Jackie, their future days would prove to be very difficult.

Before, he had never bothered to think too deeply about those things, but he slowly realized that things would just get worse if he acted without any regard for the future. He was forced to try and advise Jackie to not be too reckless. After all, Scarlet Pavilion was the only ninth-grade clan in Hestia Continent, making them the strongest. Even in the Whirling World where everyone was restricted to the late stage of the innate level, Jackie still needed to be careful to not make too much of a scene despite his skills.

What would happen after they leave the Whirling World?

Were they just not going to be in Middle Province anymore?

Jackie's skills definitely meant that he would reach greater heights in his life. Middle Province was where most of the masters in Hestia Continent gathered. If he offended all the major forces, then Jackie would not be able to remain in Middle Province in the future.

Rudy was just someone insignificant, so he did not really need to think about that. Even if he did not continue remaining in Middle Province, he could just make a living elsewhere. However, Jackie could not do that.

After Jackie heard Rudy's words, he raised an eyebrow and patted Rudy on the arm, "I know what you're worried about, but you don't have to be so concerned. I haven't offended all of the major forces, and there are some things that you have to think deeper about. Those major forces will protect their own people simply because it benefits them more to do that. As long as my value is greater than those benefits, those major forces won't protect their own people to that extent."

Rudy could not understand what Jackie was saying.

He frowned as he looked at Jackie in confusion, "What do you mean? Are you planning on joining someone?"

Jackie shook his head before letting out a slight laugh. He looked up at the various carvings on the ceiling, only answering after a while, "I definitely won't join them even if they want me to. As long as you're willing to think about it, there are ways to settle everything. Even the major forces have to cooperate when it comes to certain things!"

Rudy was even more confused at that, but he knew that Jackie would never say empty words, nor did Jackie ever brag. Since Jackie said so, Jackie naturally had something in mind. He slowly tossed aside all his worries.

He looked up at the Heaven Array in the middle. With his skills, there was no way he could participate. However, he was still very curious as to what they would be competing at after being sent into that space.

Could it just be an alchemic test?

Various thoughts played in his head. Just as he was about to talk about it to Jackie, he heard footsteps as a familiar figure appeared in front of them.

Jackie looked up and frowned, sighing internally. It had taken a while for things to quiet down for him, but there were still some people who insisted on causing him trouble.

The person had black clothes on, and had a long face as well as a goatee. He was obviously not some ordinary person. That person was Samuel, the alchemist from the Compass Pavilion.

Samuel let out a slight smile as various emotions played in his eyes. He did not say anything, but instead took out a mat from his storage space and placed it right in front of Jackie. After that, he sat down, seemingly prepared for a long conversation with Jackie.

Jackie frowned, starting to plan on changing his spot. He hated talking to these people.

Chapter 2963
Samuel took a deep breath as his eyes darted all over Jackie's body. That searching gaze was obvious to everyone.

Jackie frowned, not saying anything as he waited for Samuel.

After a long while, Samuel said, "I really want to know where you're from. I want to know what gives you that fearlessness. I know you're talented, both in alchemy and in martial skills. Anyone who knows you will definitely admire you and even be jealous of you…"

Jackie chuckled, not expecting that Samuel's tone would be like that.

Samuel did not seem to wait for a response as he continued, "Back then, I said you must not have been from Hestia Continent. I didn't just say that casually, but it was a judgment I made after thinking about it deeply. I still think that there's no way you are as strong as you are without a major force behind you. After your words with Rudeus earlier, I got even more curious…"

Samuel's gaze was incredibly meaningful at that moment.

Jackie could understand what he was trying to say. Samuel felt like Jackie was definitely from the Scarlet Pavilion if Jackie had not been from a different world. Yet, Jackie had just clashed with Rudeus from the Scarlet Pavilion. It was enough to prove that Jackie had nothing to do with them.

Jackie let out a slight laugh, "Is that all you wanted to tell me? You want to know where I'm from?"

Samuel took a deep breath as he calmed down, "I actually have a lot of questions. I feel like you're really very strange. You aren't afraid of anything, but you don't seem to have anyone to rely on. You are exceptionally talented, but your origins are mysterious. I really want to know who you are. Why are you making an enemy out of all the major forces in Hestia Continent?"

After hearing that, Jackie could not help but let out a laugh. He took a deep breath as exasperation was written on his face, "Is there something wrong with your head? Could you think about things before you speak? Since when did I try to make an enemy out of any of the major forces? Was it not all of you who tried to cause me trouble first? I merely fought back against you, and all of you say that I'm trying to make an enemy out of you!"

Jackie could not stand those words.

In the eyes of those major forces, only they were allowed to harm others, and not the other way around. They could treat others as they pleased, but as long as anyone bit back, those people would be punished. Jackie could not stand and could not accept that kind of logic.

Samuel frowned as his eyes glinted in helplessness. After sighing, he said, “We’re all intelligent people here, so why do you need to say that? Do you not understand what I mean? These are all unwritten rules that everyone understands. It’s always been like this, and you’re the only want who wants things your own way! You insist on going against the major forces. You’re no idiot, there has to be a reason you’re doing this…”

Chapter 2964
Hearing that, Jackie suddenly laughed in frustration. This was the first time that he failed to stop himself from laughing. So in the eyes of those disciples from the major forces, everything was an unwritten rule that everyone had to follow. Anyone who did not follow meant that they were going against the grain and making an enemy out of the major forces.

Jackie took a deep breath as he looked away, not wanting to bother arguing anymore.

He merely said coldly, “You’ll pay for those thoughts…”

After saying that, Jackie shut his mouth, not wanting to go any further. He knew very well that they would not think that they did anything wrong, and would just think that the one in the wrong was him. Even if the other party would have to take a loss, it was still reasonable. The major forces were not allowed to suffer any losses at all.

Rudy got angrier as he listened. His arms started to tremble as the fire started to show in his eyes. If he had failed to maintain his sense of reasoning, he would have just rushed out and grabbed Samuel by the collar, slapping that man a few times to think about what he said!

Samuel laughed, “We won’t pay any prices, but you definitely will. You’ll pay a painful price. Don‘t think that you’ll be safe forever just because you’re safe now. Your life will end once you’re out of Prosper City. The major forces will definitely work together to hunt you. Even if you’re very intelligent, there’s no way you can avoid everything. Just you wait. Time will tell you how crazy you’ve been acting…”

After saying that, Samuel stood up and kept his mat, distancing himself from Jackie.

Looking at his retreating back, there was a glint of mockery in Jackie’s eyes.

Aaron had silently heard what they said, and slowly understood Jackie’s grudges against those major forces. He felt like Jackie was crazy.

Aaron was caught even more off guard at the fact that Jackie's eyes were actually looking back in mockery after hearing those threats. It was as if he did not care about them at all, and that this matter was insignificant. He was confused, but felt like Jackie was being too arrogant as well.

He whispered, "Aren't you afraid?"

Jackie raised an eyebrow and said calmly, "Why should I be afraid? I know very well that these people want to kill me, but they'll definitely pay the price for that. We still don't know who'll suffer in the end…"

Jackie shut his mouth after saying that, starting to close his eyes to rest.

Aaron's lips twitched as he looked at Jackie in shock. Jackie's thoughts were completely incomprehensible. He sighed internally, feeling like Jackie really was a madman.

Time slowly ticked away, and it came time for the Heaven Array to be activated. At the moment, there was a faint golden glow on the array. Everyone who was participating needed to stand on the array.

Jackie stretched as he slowly stood up. He shot a look at Rudy as he whispered, "Once I enter, you're not allowed to respond to any challenges. Just shut your eyes and rest."

Rudy nodded, merely looking at Jackie with worry.

Jackie did not hesitate as he walked right over to the Heaven Array. At that moment, the other participants all walked up as well.

Chapter 2965
This was different from the other groups. After all, so much had happened. Rudeus remained to stare at Jackie with venomous looks in his eyes. He looked like he wanted to rip Jackie apart.

Jackie ignored it.

Another person to step on the array was Nash, who was from the Scarlet Pavilion as well. Nash was quite close with Rudeus. He was also the leader of the seventh group. After all, his status and skills were the strongest. After he got on the Heaven Array, Nash looked right at Jackie.

He narrowed his eyes as he glared at Jackie coldly. He looked like a venomous snake that was poised to strike at any moment. Nash had deliberately stood beside Jackie, and constantly shot cold looks at Jackie.

Jackie could not be bothered interacting too much with someone like that and remained quiet the whole time.

After a moment, the golden light shone brighter, and everyone was enveloped in it. After that, the ground beneath them started to feel empty. Jackie was very familiar with that feeling. It was the sign of a long-distance transfer.

After half an hour, the feeling slowly disappeared, and their feet touched the ground again.

When he opened his eyes again, he found that he was in a completely foreign space. He looked around and found that they still seemed to be in a massive palace, but there were no carvings around them. He turned to look behind him and found that the palace was absolutely massive. He could actually not see the end of it with his own eyes.

Other than Jackie, the other alchemists had already heard about the competition venue. They were not too curious about it as they chatted and walked down the array.

Jackie followed suit, noticing that there were two identical arrays not far away that were shining in vibrant golden light.

In just a few moments, people appeared on the first array. The ten of them were dressed the same way. All of them had white robes with mythical beasts stitched on. The other array had ten people as well. Those ten were all in deep-colored robes. They did not have much of an expression on their faces, looking incredibly cold. It was obvious that the first ten were from White Marsh Continent while the latter ten were from Chaos Continent.

The thirty participants had all already arrived, but the atmosphere was a little heavy. They were all alchemists from different worlds, but they exchanged no pleasantries. They seemed incredibly cold. Even the alchemists from the same world did not really talk to each other.

Any conversations were all whispered. Thirty of them walked forward in silence. After about five minutes, Jackie noticed that they were in front of thirty identical furnaces. That was definitely something prepared for the tournament.

The moment they arrived, a wizened voice was heard, “The competition will begin in two hours!”

After that, the voice went silent. Everyone exchanged looks as alchemists from different worlds immediately pulled away from each other.

The Hestia Continent took up the western end. White Marsh Continent was in the middle while Chaos Continent was in the eastern end.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2966 - 2970

Chapter 2966
Jackie was incredibly curious as he looked at the alchemists from the two other worlds. He noticed that, compared to the stronger Chaos Continent, the alchemists from the White Marsh Continent seemed a lot prouder of themselves.

They looked at the alchemists from Hestia Continent with looks that were full of disdain, especially the alchemist that stood in front of all of them. Jackie knew that person. It was Ethan, who had mocked them through the image earlier. He was the leader of the alchemists from White Marsh Continent.

To not stir any unnecessary trouble, Jackie remained standing at the end of Hestia Continent's group.

Right after the voice announced that the tournament would only start after two hours, Ethan had a look of impatience on his face. After a while, he actually shouted, "There's no need to prepare at all. Why do we need to wait for so long? Just start right now. After getting the golden treasure, I still have a lot more things I need to do."

He sounded quite arrogant and sure that he would definitely get the golden treasure. His words had even offended the alchemists from the Chaos Continent.

The one standing in front of the alchemists from Chaos Continent turned to coldly look at Ethan, "You're not that skilled, but you sure have a lot to say. You claimed that you would definitely get the golden treasure as if you're the best in the world."

Ethan's face darkened. He absolutely hated anyone who spoke back to him. No matter how unreasonable he was being, he did not want anyone talking back

He turned to look at who seemed like the leader of the Chaos Continent's alchemists, and coldly said, "I might not be considered the best, but I can obviously get the golden treasure if I'm competing against trash like you. You were just here to make up the numbers! Emilio Lawrence, we've known each other for so many years. I know very well how strong you are. Don't think that I'll look at you better just because you said that, and think that you can snatch the golden treasure away from me!"

At that moment, the atmosphere was incredibly heated. He was practically slapping Emilio in the face. Emilio might not be someone who liked unnecessary trouble, but he would not let someone just bully him like that either.

Emilio narrowed his eyes, "We definitely have known each other for many years, and I know that you have a few tricks up your sleeves as well. That's why I don't have to hear you brag! I heard that you're so pleased with yourself that you even transferred your image to Hestia Continent. All you're good for is bragging in front of them. In Chaos Continent, you would just be a slightly talented alchemist. You would have nothing to brag about at all!”

Ethan’s face reddened when he heard that, and turned around to point at Emilio, “All I’m doing is speaking the truth, you just don’t want to admit it. That’s why you’re lying and saying that I’m bragging. All of you were just here to make up the numbers. Do you think you’re worthy of taking the golden treasure away from me?”

If not for the laws that were in place, the two of them could have very well started fighting. The atmosphere between the two continents started to get more and more heated. Comparatively, Hestia Continent’s side was a lot quieter.

Emilio’s words had not only mocked Ethan, but had insulted Hestia Continent as well. It was possible that, in those people’s eyes, Hestia Continent was trash, and Hestia Continent were the ones who were really just there to make up the numbers.

Chapter 2967
Nash took a deep breath as his face reddened a little.

He was suffering from the humiliation, but there was nothing he could say. After all, the difference in skill was on full display for everyone to see. There was nothing he could say that could change that. However, even if he knew that he could not compare to the two other worlds, he still suffered hearing what was said.

Someone frowned and said, “This is crossing the line. Even if we can’t compete for the golden or bronze treasures, we should still be able to at least fight for the black treasure. I feel that Nash is capable enough!”

After that person finished, the others nodded immediately. They knew very well that Hestia Continent would not be able to fight for the top two places, but they were still hopeful for the last prize. After all, it was not like they had never gotten the black treasure before. Nash was also an alchemist from the Scarlet Pavilion, so he must be talented and skilled. Otherwise, there was no way he could have been an alchemist at a ninth-grade clan!

Nash frowned, not saying anything. He was strangely quiet. The argument on the other side got more and more intense. No one wanted to give way. Even though White Marsh Continent could not compete with the Chaos Continent, Ethan felt like he was quite good.

He felt like he could defeat all of the other alchemists in this round, so he was acting very prideful. No matter what Emilio said, Nash would retort with even more, so they started to argue.

Ethan crossed his arms and said, “I wasn’t doing that at all, I was just trying to tell Hestia Continent to not waste their Lime. Was I wrong? It’s not like you don’t know how bad Hestia Continent is. I'm just giving them advice out of the goodness of my heart. It's their fault for not wanting to accept my kindness!"

Emilio snorted as he said in disdain, "Just say that you're showing off, no need to pretend to be kind. If you really were trying to be kind, how could they not accept it? Why don't you turn around to ask those alchemists from Hestia Continent how they feel about your words?!"

Ethan said, "I don't care what they feel. I just have to know that I really was trying to be kind. They're the ones who don't know their place and insist on participating! They won't admit that they're trash. After all, trash usually tends to not be self-ware!"

The two of them were actually starting to insult Hestia Continent more and more as they argued. Ethan started to hold back less and less, and Hestia Continent's alchemists really wanted to slap the two of them.

The alchemists from Hestia Continent were about to lose control. Ethan really was crossing the line. When they were in the inner city, the communications he had sent over were just pure mockery, how could it be out of kindness?

He was deliberately trying to twist things around, even presenting himself as a good person. Even Jackie was feeling the anger. That person was way too disgusting.

Nash took a deep breath and finally took a step forward. After all, he was the leader of the alchemists from Hestia Continent. If he was forced to just swallow everything, even the alchemists from Hestia Continent would start to look down on him.

Nash looked up and said, "The rules are clear for all to see, so why can't we participate? We've even gotten treasures before. If all of the alchemists from Hestia Continent are trash, then there's no way we could have gotten two treasures. One of them is even a bronze treasure!"

Nash said that to defend Hestia Continent's honor. In truth, his words were completely reasonable, it was not like all of the alchemists from Hestia Continent were trash.

Chapter 2968
If they really were all trash, then how could they have gotten any treasures?

Yet, the moment he said that Ethan started to laugh in a very exaggerated manner. He turned to coldly look at Nash, "You only got two treasures, how did you even have the face to say that? Have you ever gotten any golden treasures? You haven't gotten a single one! White Marsh Continent has gotten two golden treasures, one bronze treasure, and three black treasures! Hestia Continent only has two treasures in total and not a single golden one. You're actually saying you're not trash?"

“Who else would be trash if not you? Based on what I know, those two treasures are already the limit of what Hestia Continent will be able to get. In the following few groups, you‘ll definitely return empty-handed. It‘s precisely because of that, that I asked that you do not waste your time. You’re such an eyesore!”

After Ethan said that, the other alchemists from White Marsh Continent behind him started to laugh as well. They looked at Hestia Continent with mocking gazes.

Jackie could not help but frown when he heard all of that. Ethan’s words did not seem to just be mockery, Jackie had heard something else from it as well. It was as if Ethan knew about Hestia Continent’s situation very clearly, like someone was giving him reports.

After Ethan said all of that, he still did not want to let Hestia Continent off. He felt like Nash trying to uphold Hestia Continent’s honor was a challenge to him, so how could Ethan let him off easily?

Ethan snorted lightly as he walked over.

All of Hestia Continent’s alchemists frowned at the same time as they looked at him in alarm, despite the fact that everyone knew that there was no way Ethan could attack them thanks to the restrictions. However, Ethan obviously looked like he did not harbor any good intentions.

Sure enough, after he walked over, he pushed Nash aside and looked right at Jackie.

He pointed right at Jackie’s alchemist badge and said, “I told you! You were all trash! You really are here to make up the numbers. You refused to admit it but just look at this person. Look at what’s on his chest!”

As he said that, Ethan deliberately raised his voice, letting everyone their hear him clearly. After that, he purposely moved aside, pointing at Jackie’s alchemist badge.

At that moment the alchemists from the two other worlds all saw the sixth-grade alchemist badge on Jackie’s chest.

“He‘s actually a sixth-grade alchemist. It looks like Hestia Continent has really run out of people. It’s only the seventh group, but do they not have enough people anymore? They don‘t even have any more seventh-grade alchemists left?”

Even the alchemists from the Chaos Continent joined in to mock them this time. Everyone looked at the alchemists from Hestia Continent with looks full of disdain.

Jackie’s sixth- grade alchemist badge really did make it seem like he was just here to make up the numbers.

Jackie's lips twitched as he was rendered speechless, suddenly regretting not getting a change of clothes. He had never cared about it but did not want to waste his time on those people and cause himself any trouble either. He had thought that no one would notice him if he was at the end of the group, but Ethan had actually rushed over and pushed everyone aside to point him out. It was as if Ethan already knew everything that happened in the inner city.

Jackie frowned as he started to look at Ethan inquisitively.

If Ethan did not know anything, there was no way Ethan would have pointed him out. After all, he had been standing at the back, not attracting any attention.

Chapter 2969
It seemed like someone really was giving Ethan information about what happened in the inner city. They had even told Ethan What he looked like, which was how Ethan managed to point Jackie out in the crowd.

Jackie took a deep breath as he frowned in exasperation. Trouble really did have a way of finding him wherever he went. He had thought that nothing troublesome would happen as long as he maintained a low enough profile.

The sounds of mockery were constantly heard, and Hestia Continent's alchemists were thoroughly embarrassed. All of them were incredibly angry as a few of them turned to glare at Jackie hatefully.

It was like they were trying to tell Jackie that he was wrong with their eyes.

When Jackie felt those gazes, he could not help but let out a laugh as he said, "What are you looking at me for? Am I the one mocking you? You don't dare to face them, so you're trying to face me instead?"

Those people really were strange. It was clearly Ethan who ran over and started to mock them. It was clearly Ethan who had looked for trouble first. Yet, they knew that they could not beat Ethan, so they turned to look at Jackie. It was as if Jackie had been the one who did everything.

Nash clenched his teeth and looked at Jackie hatefully, "I've never seen someone as shameless as you. Weren't you the cause of this? If you didn't insist on participating, would we have been insulted like this?!"

Nash was furious, his chest rising up and down rapidly. He was practically about to erupt. He cast all his anger on Jackie, as if Jackie had been the reason for everyone.

Jackie had insisted on participating even after they tried to stop him. So what if Jackie was here?

There was no way Jackie could get any results. It was completely useless.

They would just get humiliated even more. He was dragging down all the alchemists from Hestia Continent with him!

Jackie raised an eyebrow, looking at Nash like he was looking at a stray dog by the streets. Ethan definitely knew something. He turned to look at Jackie curiously. There was not much mockery in his eyes, but instead curiosity.

Ethan was curious as to where Jackie got the courage to say all of that. He laughed and said, “Brat, you can really talk. You seem to not be willing to submit to anyone. Do you think you’re the best in the world?”

After saying that, Ethan could not help but to laugh. In his heart, he felt like Jackie’s actions were like those of a clown. He was merely trying to tease that clown.

Jackie looked up and glanced at Ethan, “Are you trying to make sure everyone knows that you exist? You’re just like an ant, scurrying everywhere you can. It’s like you have to tell everyone that you’re amazing. If you really have the skills, you wouldn’t need to show off like this at all! You just look like a joke to me.”

Those words immediately shocked everyone present, causing them to widen their eyes. They never expected that a sixth-grade alchemist from Hestia Continent would actually say something like that. He was practically cursing at Ethan, tossing Ethan’s dignity to the side.

Jackie had completely stunned Ethan.

Ethan’s lips twitched in anger, unable to even form any coherent thoughts.

After Emilio heard that, he looked at Jackie in surprise.

After that, he suddenly clapped in front of everyone, agreeing, “You really are quite brave. I have to say, your words are quite reasonable!”

Chapter 2970
As he said that, Jackie’s tone was incredibly calm. It was as if he was talking about something completely unimportant. Even though Ethan did not reveal everything, Jackie already managed to figure out the deeper meaning behind his words.

Naturally, they were not allowed to fight at that moment. Furthermore, if the alchemists really started fighting, the results were not completely certain.

So he wanted to say that, he might not be able to do anything to Jackie here, but he would not let Jackie off easily after Jackie returned to Hestia Continent. He would do everything he could to kill Jackie.

After what happened in Hestia Continent thirty thousand years ago, Hestia Continent had been isolated from everything else. No one could go into other worlds through that barrier. If he wanted to kill Jackie, he would have to use Hestia Continent' s warriors.

That was where the problem came from. Ethan was an alchemist from White Marsh Continent. Normally, he should not have anything to do with Hestia Continent, so why would anyone be helping him?

That involved a lot more things, but anyone with a brain could be able to understand many things from their conversation.

Ethan froze, not expecting Jackie to grasp things so quickly. Jackie had actually figured things out before he could say anything.

His lips stiffened as his eyes darted around. He suddenly regretted what he said. After all, some things should not have been revealed to the public. However, there was no way he could take back his words. Ethan did not try to explain anything, but the venom and hatred in his eyes deepened. He looked at Jackie as if Jackie was his mortal enemy.

Jackie snorted, looking away and saying plainly, “There’s no reason to continue fighting like this. My skills, and whether I’ll drag Hestia Continent down will be seen when the results are out. Since I’m here taking part, I’m naturally confident enough to get a good placement.”

Ethan’s eyes lit up when he heard that. He suddenly raised his voice as he said, “It looks like you really don’t know your place. Does a sixth-grade alchemist like you really think you‘ll amount to anything?!”

Jackie’s words had given Ethan a chance to fight back He let out a cold smile as he continued, “There really are all sorts of people in the world. Do you think you can just brag however you want to? Look in a mirror before you speak. You’re a sixth-grade alchemist, do you really think you can get any good placements? You’re going to refine sixth-grade pills?”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2971 - 2975

Chapter 2971
After that, the alchemists from White Marsh Continent started to fight back. A sharp-mouthed alchemist immediately said loudly, “The alchemists from Hestia Continent don’t have any skills, but they‘re definitely good at bragging. Don’t think that we’re idiots that will believe you! “

“That’s right! Don’t you think that what you said is just hilarious? You actually told us to wait for the results to judge you. Who do you think you are? There’s no need to wait for any results!”

“If you were a seventh- grade alchemist, we might have had to think about it and see if really have the skills. Where does a sixth- grade alchemist like you get all your courage? Are sixth-grade alchemists actually that impressive in Hestia Continent?”

Those harsh words kept on being spoken. The alchemists of White Marsh Continent refused to let Jackie off easily. They did everything they could to criticize Jackie!

Not only did they criticize Jackie, but they also insulted all the alchemists from Hestia Continent as well. They did not bother holding back on their words at all.

The alchemists from Hestia Continent were incredibly furious listening to those words. All of them were incredibly indignant, and wanted to retort. However, they could not figure out what to say. After all, they were right.

Jackie definitely was a sixth-grade alchemist. As long as he had the badge of a sixth-grade alchemist on his chest, there was nothing they could say that would be more convincing. So, they really had nothing to say bag.

They were forced to keep their looks of indignance on their faces, unable to say anything. Since there was nothing they could say, they threw their hatred onto Jackie instead.

Chapter 2972
Some of the alchemists from Hestia Continent started to turn and look at Jackie, “Can you just stop talking so much? If you really have the skills, we won’t stop you from saying anything.”

“Can you just look at the badge on your chest before you speak? You’re not even a seventh-grade alchemist, so why are you saying all of that? You’re just embarrassing the whole Hestia Continent with you!”

“That’s right! It’s one thing to show off when you’re in the inner city, but you’re still so arrogant here. If you had a reason to be like this, we wouldn’t stop you. Yet, you have no right to be, so you’re just going to be mocked by others!”

Jackie sighed helplessly. Looking at those people, he had to admit that they had a point. After all, they did not know about him.

Jackie let out a laugh as he suddenly felt like he could not just get angered without being compensated. He looked at Ethan who was speaking the loudest. He said in his usual tone, “So you don’t think I can get a treasure, right?”

The moment he said that, Ethan laughed out loud again. Ethan’s stomach was starting to hurt from laughing so much as he pointed at Jackie, “Why are you so funny? Do you really think you can get a treasure?”

Jackie nodded calmly, “I think I can!”

The moment he said that everyone was stunned. They started to look at Jackie like they were looking at an idiot.

Did he know what he was saying? Did he know how hilarious what he said was?

Someone with a sixth-grade alchemist badge on his chest was actually saying that he would place in the top three in this round. Even black treasures were not something just anyone could get.

Among so many alchemists that Hestia Continent had sent, only one of them had gotten a black treasure!

Nash could no longer hold back as he frowned at Jackie, “Do you know what you’re saying? Can you just shut up and stop embarrassing us? Don’t you know they’re laughing at you?!”

Jackie nodded. He was no idiot. He could naturally tell that they were doing everything they could to mock him, but he was already immune to all of that. They could say whatever they wanted to, it was not like he had never heard anything like that before.

When Nash saw that Jackie nodded calmly, he was stunned before he said in exasperation, “You really are something else!”

Chapter 2973
Nash was being completely serious as he said that. He really did think that Jackie was a complete weirdo. Otherwise, he would not be acting so brainless.

He felt like Jackie was crazy, but he did not want one crazy guy to tarnish the reputation of the whole of Hestia Continent. He took a deep breath as he said seriously, “You’d better shut up right now. If you continue speaking, I won’t let you off!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not caring as he said, “What can you do to me? Are you planning on attacking me now? I have my own plans for saying this, it has nothing to do with you…”

After that, he looked at Ethan again. At that moment, Ethan was laughing vigorously.

Jackie’s lips twitched as he sighed. However, he composed himself after thinking about his earlier plan. He looked up at Ethan and said seriously, “Why don’t we make a bet then? If I get a treasure, no matter what kind, then I win. Otherwise, I’ll lose. Let’s bet a million spirit crystals!”

The moment he said that everyone went quiet. All of them widened their eyes as they looked at Jackie, stunned.

Not far away from Jackie, a handsome alchemist from Hestia Continent could not help but say, “You never cease to amaze me. Do you actually want to bet against them? Don’t forget that bets go both ways. You’ll have to give them a million spirit crystals if you lose!”

Jackie nodded, pursing his lips as he said in exasperation, “I’m not a three year old kid. Of course, I know that bets go both ways. Didn’t I already say that I lose if I don’t get a treasure? If I lose, I’ll give him a million spirit crystals. If I win, he’ll give me a million spirit crystals. It’s just that simple. There’s no need to explain…”

As Jackie said, the surroundings got even quieter. It was so quiet that one could literally hear a pin drop. Jackie’s actions completely confused them.

Could Jackie really be so confident, or did he have other plans?

Even Ethan did not know what to say. He frowned in silence for a long time before he said, “Are you crazy? Do you even know what you‘re doing? A million spirit crystals? Do you think that’s a small number? Can you even afford a million spirit crystals?”

Jackie nodded earnestly as he said in an incredibly calm tone, “Of course, I can. If you don’t believe me, we can sign a contract. No one can go against the bet as long as we sign it. If I lose, I have to give you a million spirit crystals!”

At that moment, everyone finally realized that Jackie was not joking. He was being serious. He actually did think that he could get a treasure.

Someone started to whisper, “Could this guy have been playing a fool all the while? Can he really get a treasure?”

“Impossible! If he really did have the skills, his fellow alchemists from Hestia Continent would definitely know even if we didn’t. It’s obvious from their faces that they don’t think this guy can do it!”

After that person said that, everyone nodded, feeling like that was an accurate read on the situation. It was the first time they met Jackie, but Jackie was from the Hestia Continent. The other alchemists there must definitely know who Jackie is.

Chapter 2974
Yet, the way they treated Jackie made it obvious that Jackie was no one extraordinary. It was instead that alchemists called Nash who was the leader of those alchemists.

Since that was the case, how was Jackie so bold?

The discussions around them intensified. In the end, Jackie’s attitude really confused them, since Jackie had spoken with such confidence.

He might have really been that confident the whole time as if he was really that skilled. After all, there was no way to take back the bet after it was signed, they would have to take out a million spirit crystals if they lost.

A million spirit crystals were no small number. Even a chosen disciple from a ninth-grade clan would have to think about it. They were all still young and had not gathered as much wealth as the older alchemists. At that moment, they were starting to get confused. Even Nash did not know what to do.

He felt like Jackie was completely insane, or Jackie would not have done something so crazy.

Could Jackie really just have too much money, or did Jackie have other goals in mind?

After thinking about it over and over, he still could not understand what Jackie was aiming for. There was no way Jackie could get a good result. Instead, Jackie was about to offer up a million spirit crystals for free.

Nash took a deep breath before he whispered to Jackie, “Are you actually crazy? Do you really just have nowhere to spend a million spirit crystals? If you don’t, you can just give them to me!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he glanced at Nash, not answering Nash. He had planned on raising the bet to two million spirit crystals but felt like it might cause trouble if he did so.

They would wonder if he could really take out two million spirit crystals and push the matter, insisting that he showed them. He could actually not do that. Even though Jackie had accumulated quite a lot of wealth, it was still not at two million spirit crystals.

After thinking about it, he pushed it down to a million. Jackie was speechless at the discussions around him. He could not be bothered talking to all of them and did not even have any intentions to argue.

He looked at Ethan and said firmly, “Stop wasting time, just tell me if you’ll take up the bet or not. If you do, let’s hurry up and sign the contract. If you don’t want to, then hurry up and say no.”

Ethan looked at Jackie with a completely different expression after that, ‘Is this kid being serious? Is something wrong with his head?‘

Thinking about it, he could not help but be sure of one thing. There was definitely something wrong with Jackie’s head, or Jackie would not have done that.

He sighed, since Jackie was willing to give him so many spirit crystals, it would be wrong of him to say no. Ethan nodded, “Since you want to give me spirit crystals, there’s no reason for me to reject it.”

After saying that, he pulled out a contract from his storage space. Both of them wrote down the bet on the paper clearly. After making sure that nothing was wrong, they dropped their blood on the contract. When their blood fused with the contract, it resonated with heaven and earth, putting it into effect.

After doing that, Jackie returned to his original spot, not wasting any time. At that moment, everyone was thoroughly confused at Jackie’s actions.

Chapter 2975
However, since Jackie had signed a contract, they could not say what they wanted to. They even started to anticipate the results of the round, wanting to see if Jackie could get a treasure.

Two hours were almost up. That wizened old voice was heard once again, and only then did they realize that two hours passed so quickly.

“Two hours is over, the competition will begin immediately! This time, the competition is very simple. Each of you will have to refine a Purple Sun Pill. It’s an ancient pill that is in the middle-seventh grade. The recipe for this pill doesn’t exist in third-grade worlds. You have five days to refine it. After five days, we will check your results!”

Everyone was stunned after the old voice said that. Every round was different, and they had been wondering what this round would be like.

After the announcement, all of them were alert. Most of them had only heard about the Purple Sun Pill for the first time, regardless of what the effect was, its grade stunned them. It was actually just a middle seventh-grade pill. Even though they heard that it was an ancient pill, they cared less about that fact and more about the grade.

Most of them should be able to perfectly refine the Purple Sun Pill. They would be competing on the refinement rate of the pill runes and the pill itself. After all, the better the refinement rate, the better the effect would be.

They could not help but start to whisper amongst themselves.

Jackie could not hear what the alchemists from the other two worlds were saying, but he could hear what the people around him were talking about Hestia Continent's side was noticeably a little excited, someone even said, "I asked my fellow student before I came. He told me that they had to refine an upper seventh-grade pill during their round. Upper seventh-grade pills are not too different from eighth-grade pills. I was actually quite worried. If I had to refine an eighth-grade pill, I probably wouldn't be able to…"

"I can't believe we're so lucky. It's actually a middle seventh-grade pill. I'm quite confident in pills at that level. We even get five whole days!"

Everyone relaxed when they heard that they would get five days, some of them even started to smile.

"I thought that it would be very hard, but I can't believe we're lucky enough to get such an easy test."

"If they ask us about it after we leave, we can at least say that we managed to refine the pill… It would be like the rest, not even being able to reach fifty percent refinement after trying so hard!"

"I'm a bit curious. Why is this test so relaxed? They gave us five whole days!"

"Who knows? Maybe the Purple Sun Pill is something very complicated that needs a long time to refine…"

No matter what they were discussing, most of them were in a good mood. Even if they had not seen the recipe, they were still given a lot of time. The level of the pill was not that high either.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2976 - 2980

Chapter 2976
On the side of Hestia, Noah was the only one visibly disconcerted. There was a frown on his face as he seemed to be deep in thought.

At that moment, a green light shone in the air as small jade tubes descended from the light, falling into the hands of all the alchemists present.

Jackie reached out and grabbed one. His divine senses entered the tube, and he quickly read the contents of it. The tube was, in fact, the recipe for the Purple Sun Pill. The contents were incredibly detailed and even specified certain important parts that needed to be focused on. Furthermore, the tube had various rules that were specific to this round.

All the materials had been prepared and were placed under the furnaces. Everyone had only two chances, so there were three sets of materials prepared. Failing the third time would mean instant elimination, and despite how well they performed, there would be no consideration given.

There was even a small paragraph written down. On it was the fact that the Purple Sun Pill needed a total of 5600 pill runes, out of which 983 of them were ancient pill runes.

The moment they saw that paragraph, everyone was flabbergasted. The relaxed atmosphere from earlier disappeared as everyone visibly frowned.

5600 pill runes were not much when it came to seventh-grade pills, but out of that number, 983 of them were ancient pill runes, which made things completely different. It did not raise the difficulty by just a level but several times over instead!

The jade tube illustrated all of the pill runes clearly. In particular, it paid special attention to the ancient pill runes.

They used their divine senses to look through all of the pill runes, but they regretfully realized that they did not know a single one of them. They had not even seen them before. That meant that they would need to learn all of the ancient pill runes from scratch. They only had a short five days to memorize and successfully condense those pill runes. They would also need to make sure they were at least 50 percent refined.

All this amounted to the spike of level difficulty that they could not accept. It was incredibly hard for alchemists to rank up. The difference between the two grades of alchemists was incredibly wide, and the key lay in pill runes.

After all, higher-level pills needed more pill runes to be etched into them. Even if they were not ancient pill runes, remembering and condensing 983 new runes was not something that simple.

Knowing all this, many of the alchemists present began fearing they would fail this stage entirely.

Jackie sighed as he pursed his lips helplessly. This explained why they were given five days for this round. With the difficulty of the test, five days was barely something to utilize, what with needing to memorize 983 new ancient pill runes in just five days. After that, they needed to condense those runes to a 50-percent refinement rate.

This was not easy at all!

The alchemists from the Chaos Continent could not keep their composure. Even though there was a difference in the skills of alchemists between the worlds, none of them thought that this round was an easy one.

Ethan and Emilio's faces sank.

Meanwhile, a few alchemists muttered among themselves, "I thought that we'd be getting a break by now, yet this is what happens!"

"Isn't this too hard? I feel like most of us here won't even be able to refine a Purple Sun Pill, let alone one at fifty percent refinement. Anyone who manages to get forty percent is impressive enough!"

"It seems like we're very unlucky. It' s not like we don't know what the earlier rounds had to go through. Compared to the earlier six groups, this group is noticeably several times harder!"

Chapter 2977
"They're going to ask us about the pills we refined and if we succeeded once we go back. They'd laugh at us if we answer honestly!"

"That's right! It's obvious that this round is set to make things difficult for us! I regret joining the seventh group now. If I knew it'd get this difficult, I wouldn't have joined. I should've just joined earlier or later!"

Complaints began to pop as they bemoaned their fate. Before this, they were convinced that they had gotten lucky. After all, they were given a lot of time, and the Purple Sun Pill's grade had been so low. When they knew that the Purple Sun Pill actually needed 983 ancient pill runes, none of them believed they were that lucky anymore. Instead, they felt like 'difficult' was a poor description of their predicament. They felt like they were being attacked by the difficulty instead.

Of everyone present, Jackie was the only one who showed not much of a reaction while everyone else was, interesting enough, panicked.

Ethan sighed as he looked at Emilio meaningfully.

When he saw that even Emilio looked like he was not relaxed, Ethan felt bitter. No matter what kind of bet he had made against Jackie before, his main competitor had been Emilio the whole time, and he did not want to lose to him whatsoever.

The golden treasure was his.

He wanted to earn glory for White Marsh Continent and be a hero for his continent. He would not allow Emilio to exceed him!

Emilio pursed his lips helplessly. He might not covet the golden treasure as much as Ethan did, but he still wanted to get first place. After all, not only would he be able to greatly benefit Chaos Continent if he did so, but the other alchemists would respect him as well as earning rewards for himself. As the one who won the golden treasure, he would be able to pick out the most valuable item from it.

Nonetheless, this task was proven to be immensely difficult, and he was not even sure if he would be able to succeed in the end. The more thought of it made his lips twitch as he silently motivated himself.

At that moment, Ethan coldly smiled and said to him rather proudly, “You don’t look like you’re that confident. With your standards, even refining a Purple Sun Pill at fifty percent refinement is a problem.

“Do remember that as long as the pill doesn’t reach fifty percent refinement, the pill will be discarded. The Purple Sun Pill will only be successfully refined if every pill is at fifty percent refinement!”

Emilio frowned as he turned to look at Ethan spitefully.

“You don’t have to tell me that. Isn’t this common knowledge? Stop trying to pick a fight!”

Ethan, however, did not reach aggressively and merely smiled as he sneered, “You’re just trying to hide your embarrassment with anger. Whatever, just don’t look like a fool afterward. If you fail to refine it, no one will have any results. I’d be the only one in the top three!”

With that, Ethan chuckled. He was very confident in himself, and even though the round was incredibly difficult, he had a feeling that he would be able to win flawlessly.

Emilio furrowed his eyebrows, hating Ethan even more at that point. He gritted his teeth and hissed, “Can you just shut up? Stop gloating before the results are even out. If you’re the one failing in the end, that’d be even more embarrassing!”

Both Ethan and Emilio hated each other, even at sight, and verbally attacked one another.

Jackie, however, was not interested in such arguments. Instead, he was trying to calculate how long it would take him to successfully refine the pill.

At that moment, he happened to see Nash looking over, his eyes inquisitive and hesitant. It was hard to tell what Nash was thinking. Jackie frowned, not asking anything.

After a good while, Nash asked, “You still look so confident, even at this point?”

Chapter 2978
Nash’s eyes widened as he questioned Jackie.

For a moment, Jackie did not know what to say. He assumed that no one would bother talking to him, seeing as he was the only odd one out with his odd behavior, yet Nash actually approached him first and asked him a question.

Jackie frowned. He did not want to have anything to do with Nash, but alas, Nash’s question attracted quite a few gazes. Practically all of the alchemists from Hestia next to Jackie turned to look at him curiously. Some of them began to approach him with questions, too.

“That’s true. Are you not scared? You’re just a sixth-grade alchemist. just five thousand pill runes should be difficult enough for you, let alone with nine hundred and eighty-three pill runes within. Are you not worried at all? Do you think you’ll be able to condense those ancient pill runes?”

“Surely you don’t think five days is a lot of time? Do you think that you’ll be able to condense nine hundred and eighty-three ancient pill runes in five days, and reach fifty percent refinement?”

“To be honest with you, I don’t know what’s going on in that head of yours. Even us seventh-grade alchemists feel like this round is much harder. We don’t even know if we’ll be able to refine the Purple Sun Pill in the end.”

“You don’t seem like you care at all. You don’t seem worried about the bet you made earlier. Is one million spirit crystals not important to you at all?”

“He’s probably in his ignorant little world. Anyone who knows a thing or two won’t be so confused!”

Nash looked at Jackie with a serious expression, trying to see something from Jackie's expression. After all, Jackie had heard everything, and Nash wanted to see past his expressions.

Would Jackie still be as composed after he had heard the truth?

After observing him for a while, Nash noticed with some shock that Jackie's expression did not change at all. It seemed like Jackie really did not care, and really was incredibly confident in himself.

Nash frowned. Minutes later, he chuckled and said, "I think I overestimated you. I thought that you had some other reason for doing anything, but this whole time, you've been acting like an idiot. You might not actually have any other reasons. You're just so confident in yourself thanks to your ignorance! You just don't know how things are."

Nash then turned, no longer bothering with Jackie. The other alchemists, too, looked away as they agreed with Nash's words.

Everyone believed that Jackie was just ill in the head and did not know common sense. Only people like that would be able to act nonchalant in the face of such a difficult challenge. Even they did not know if they would be able to successfully refine the Purple Sun Pill!

He was just a sixth-grade alchemist, yet he was barely perturbed that it seemed like he was an incredible talent. After going through vigorous discussions, the crowd slowly quieted down. After all, no matter what they said, they could never change the contents of the task.

Some of the alchemists had already accepted their fate as they paced around in concern. They noticed that all of the furnaces were exactly the same, both from the looks and the age. They casually picked out a furnace and decided against wasting any more time.

One individual planned on refining the Purple Sun Pill right away. He had just walked close to a furnace when the surrounding three feet around him were suddenly covered by a barrier, covering him in a flash.

Chapter 2979
The barrier of mist seemed ethereal as it blocked everyone's line of sight, leaving everyone stunned at the sudden change.

The familiar wizened voice was heard again. "After choosing a furnace, a barrier will be placed around you, cutting off all contact with the outside world. When you've refined a pill or decided to give up, you can get rid of the barrier."

Jackie raised an eyebrow at this and could not help but feel impressed by the competition's organizer. Everything had been properly arranged. With the barrier, he would be spared a lot of trouble.

He did not have to worry about anyone interrupting him. After all, he would be separated from the outside the moment the barrier was up. The person inside would not know how others were progressing and thus would not feel pressured. They would be able to get past five days peacefully.

Jackie let out a sigh as he frowned and looked at the furnaces. He could not control What everyone else was doing, but his only thought was just to quickly finish the round.

Jackie might have the memories from the past and be confident with those ancient pill runes, but he refused to kick things back and take a breather until the results were out.

He wanted to give himself enough time.

The furnaces were split into six rows of five. After thinking about it, he walked to the last one in the sixth row. He was already used to looking for corners. In the end, all the furnaces were exactly the same, so there was no difference no matter which one he picked. When he stepped within the 90-centimeter range from it, a bundle of mist rose around him, turning into a barrier that cut him off from the outside world.

At that moment, Jackie felt more relaxed than he ever had, despite the fact that he was already calm during this time. Unless anyone crossed the line with their words or directly affected Jackie's benefits, he would not bother with them, treating their words as nonsense. However, everyone was still too noisy, much to his chagrin. The barrier separated him completely from the outside world, which made Jackie quite happy.

Finally, he did not need to listen to their nonsense anymore.

The last furnace on the sixth row was incredibly close to where Jackie had been. After he walked over, the people around him had not even had the time to react before the barrier separated Jackie from everyone else. He was the second person to enter a barrier. When everyone else reacted, they felt their lips twitching.

Exasperated, Ethan snorted. "I guarantee that something is wrong with this kid's head. He seems more enthusiastic than anyone, jumping into the challenge after someone else started. I wonder if he's that confident or if he's just ignorant."

The alchemists from White Marsh Continent behind Ethan all discussed among themselves as well.

"Who knows what goes on in his head? It looks like he doesn't know what nine hundred eighty-three ancient pill runes actually represent. Otherwise, how could he be so confident? Even I'm not confident that I'll be able to perfectly condense nine hundred eighty-three pill ancient pill runes in five days. We even need to guarantee that they'll have a fifty percent refinement rate!"

After saying that, he sighed. It felt as though he was shouldering two large rocks on his shoulders, causing him to not be able to even stand up straight. He could not handle the difficulty.

Chapter 2980
If he truly failed to refine a Purple Sun Pill, he would be laughed at after he got back to White Marsh Continent. Even if he said that it was much harder this time, no one would care. After all, the Purple Sun Pill was a middle seventh- grade pill. To them, it was not hard at all!

Thinking about that, he sighed as he looked up and said to Ethan, "Ethan, do you think that they'll still laugh at me ifI fail to complete the Purple Sun Pill if I tell them that it has nine hundred eighty- three ancient pill runes?"

That person truly cared about his dignity. He was worried that he would be laughed at.

Ethan snorted, not even bothering to look back as he replied, "You've forgotten how they are. Do you think they'll care about your excuses? Failure is failure. No matter how reasonable your excuses are, they'll still ignore them. You'd better make sure you can refine a Purple Sun Pill. Otherwise, you'll be laughing stock when you get back."

Ethan did not exaggerate anything nor did he have any intentions of poking fun at that guy.

When the alchemists from White Marsh Continent behind him heard that, they felt uncomfortable as though they had been splashed by a bucket of cold water.

He sighed and grumbled for a long time before they started choosing their furnaces. Time had already started to tick away, and they were already cursing that there was not enough time. If they delayed any more, it would affect their results. Moments later, everyone had chosen a furnace for themselves and entered the barriers, temporarily cutting off contact from the outside world.

Meanwhile, three sets of materials for Purple Sun pills had been taken out by Jackie in one go and placed on the table. The Purple Sun Pill was not a very high- grade pill, but it was still in the middle of the seventh grade. The materials needed were not cheap, either.

The first step of the refinement process was to turn all the materials into liquid.

Jackie picked up a purple maple stone and placed it in his palm. He looked at the other materials. Refining a Purple Sun Pill needed three purple maple stones, one red sun herb, two phoenix grasses, and three white spirit flowers.

The price of those materials was at least a few thousand spirit crystals altogether. After the Purple Sun Pill was refined, the price would increase by two or three times. He wondered if he would be able to bring the pill with him after he was done. If he could, he might be able to sell it for a good price.

Jackie looked at money like he looked at his life at that point. After all, the ninth- grade crystals needed far too many spirit crystals to buy. Jackie would never give up on any chance to earn more spirit crystals.

After looking at the materials, Jackie was in no hurry to start refining. Instead, he took out the jade tube and looked over at all the pill runes needed for the Purple Sun Pill, especially the ancient pill runes. Not only did Jackie know those pill runes, but he even remembered them as well. The only problem was that he had never refined them before, and his memories had not synchronized with his body. Because of that, Jackie was not sure how much time he would need to condense all those pill runes.

Jackie shut his eyes for a moment before taking several deep breaths and getting rid of all other thoughts from his mind. Afterward, he started to condense the pill runes.

His hands constantly moved as a faint golden glow could be seen on his fingertips. Drawing pill runes did not just need true energy; willpower was needed as well.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2981 - 2985

Chapter 2981
After two hours, 50 ancient pill runes had been perfectly condensed, with only two not condensed at fifty percent.

When he condensed the 57th pill rune, he made a mistake, causing all of the pill runes from before to collapse with an audible blast. Jackie frowned as he watched the pill runes regress into mere pill aura and sighed regretfully. The ancient pill runes were more difficult than regular pill runes, he would admit.

It seemed like he would need to spend a lot of time synchronizing his body and mind. Even though his pace could not be considered that quick, it was far better than everyone else's. Other than Jackie, the one most confident in his abilities among the twenty-nine other alchemists was Ethan from White Marsh Continent.

At that moment, Ethan sat cross-legged. He was not as lucky as Jackie to have the memories of an ancient hero. He needed to memorize all of the ancient pill runes before he attempted condensing them.

Time started to tick away. After a whole day, Ethan opened his eyes. He sighed as his hand constantly moved, trying to condense the pill runes. Try as he did, however, he could not catch up to Jackie's progress. After all, all he needed to train his body, while this was his first time trying.

After 15 minutes, Ethan finally managed to condense the first pill rune, but it was only refined at 30 percent. Nonetheless, he was satisfied, seeing as it was only his first try, and it was a very good sign of things to come. When he started drawing the second pill rune, he made a mistake and did not control the density of the pill aura properly, causing the pill rune to collapse.

Looking at the pill runes turned into pill aura, Ethan was not discouraged at all. He still had time and chances for blunders.

As they threw themselves into the task, three days went by in a flash. At noon on the third day, the barrier on the fifth furnace on the sixth row dispersed.

Jackie's figure appeared in the barrier. What was different from before was the fact that he held a purple-colored pill in his hand that emitted a dense fragrance.

Jackie frowned and turned around, looking at his surroundings and not knowing what to do next. After all, someone needed to appraise the pill after the pill was refined.

Just as Jackie was wondering where he needed to put the pill, the jade tube in Jackie's hand suddenly let out a purple glow. Before Jackie could react, it sucked the Purple Sun

Pill in Jackie's hand inside. After the tube sucked the Purple Sun Pill in, it shook vigorously.

Jackie frowned in bewilderment.

Right after that, the jade tube shot out as if it had been summoned. On the roof, another green glow appeared as it absorbed the tube that was flying over. Everything had happened in a flash, and Jackie widened his mouth slightly in shock.

He suddenly wondered if there was someone hiding behind that green light. After all, assessing pills was not something laws or arrays could do. It needed to be looked at in detail by an alchemist to determine if it was good or bad.

Chapter 2982
Not long after, the green glow disappeared after it had absorbed the jade tube as if it had never appeared before. Jackie raised an eyebrow, no longer dwelling on the question.

He left the furnace and headed to where alchemists of Hestia had gathered earlier. He turned to look at the barriers around the other furnaces. He was the only one whose barrier had dissipated.

It meant that he was the first one to finish refining the pill and leave the barrier. He made a mental calculation and realized that it was already noon on the third day. He felt like most alchemists would not give up that easily, so there should only be people coming out on the fourth day onward. Thinking of this, he took out a mat from Mustard Seed and placed it on the floor before he shut his eyes to rest.

Sure enough, Jackie's prediction came true. Even if they might not garner fruitful results, everyone did the best they could. They would not come out of the barrier unless they were forced to.

A whole day had passed before another alchemist's barrier was lifted. This alchemist walked out of the barrier with a dark look on his face. When one came, others followed.

Slowly, five alchemists were forced to walk away after expending all their materials.

Of those five alchemists, three were from Hestia, one was from the White Marsh Continent, and the last was from the Chaos Continent. As they stepped out, none of them looked the slightest bit joyful. They were not even in any mood to mock the others as they walked back to their original positions. The three from Hestia arrived in front of Jackie. After they measured Jackie for a moment, the three of them exchanged looks of curiosity.

The three of them did not say anything at the start. All of them retrieved mats from their storage spaces and sat down just like Jackie did. Only after that did they start complaining.

An alchemist in gray robes frowned and said, “It’s just like I thought, I couldn’t even condense a hundred ancient pill runes, let alone nine hundred and eighty three. I decided to just give it a shot in the end and ruined the three sets of materials. There was no point staying inside, so I came out.”

“Same here, more or less, just slightly better I suppose. I ended up successfully condensing two hundred pill runes, but a lot of them weren’t at fifty percent refinement.”

“I didn’t ruin those materials. There’s just half a day left after all. There was no point in staying inside, so I came out,” said a white-robed man next to the gray-robed man.

After the white-robed man sighed, he shook his head and lamented, “All I’m getting after participating in this competition is feeling like trash more and more. Even though I knew someone would be better than me, I didn’t think I’d be this bad!”

“We thought we were lucky when we heard that we had five days… Now, it’s obvious that we’re cursed. It’s not like we don’t know how the other rounds went. Compared to them, this round is noticeably harder. We’re just so unlucky…” The man spoke dejectedly as though he was useless, lamenting that his luck was horrible to encounter such a hard round.

The last alchemist, who was a man with a mustache, frowned. “None of our results are good, but it doesn’t mean that everyone here is trash.”

Chapter 2983
“The others might still be in their barriers, but it doesn’t mean they‘re better than us just because they haven’t stepped out. They’re probably so stubborn and want to keep trying until timeout.”

The gray-robed man nodded after hearing that. He patted the white-robed man on the shoulder and said, “There’s no need to be sad. There’s nothing to be that sad about. It‘s clear how difficult this task is. I refuse to believe that their results will be much better than ours. We stood no chance to get a prize, anyway…”

The white-robed man nodded, saying helplessly, “I just feel like I’m both unlucky and useless. This competition showed me how lacking I am. I’m going to work harder when I go back!”

The other two nodded, clearly feeling like they were lacking, especially when compared to the other two worlds. They would no doubt remember the humiliation their whole lives and use that as motivation to work hard.

Jackie merely raised an eyebrow as he quietly sat by the side silently.

The three of them had talked for quite a while before the white-robed man suddenly turned to look at Jackie.

Jackie frowned, helplessly looking behind him and considering leaving the place.

Just looking at the man, it was obvious that the man wanted to talk to him. However, Jackie could not be bothered to talk to those people.

Before Jackie could stand up, however, the man said, “Why are you still acting like this? I don’t understand how you can be this pompous. You’ll lose this time, and you’ll have to pay a million spirit crystals. Do you really think a million spirit crystals is nothing? Are you trying to lose so you can give Ethan those spirit crystals?”

The moment he finished, the gray-robed man turned around as well, chiming in as he scoffed. “I truly don‘t know what goes through your mind. I know most of the alchemists from large clans, but I’ve never seen you before. You’re probably not from a large clan, right? Since your background isn’t something worth noting, where did you get so many spirit crystals? Why are you trying to give them away?”

The three of them looked at Jackie with confused expressions. Their words were, in truth, not that ill-intentioned, they were truly just wondering what Jackie was thinking.

Jackie pursed his lips helplessly. He had not planned on bothering them and leaving. However, Rudy’s words surfaced in Jackie’s mind. He could not afford to just offend everyone.

Thus, Jackie took a deep breath and replied patiently, “How do you know that I’ll lose?”

This remark stunned the three men, their eyes widening as they could not muster a response.

Jackie actually felt like he would not lose! He actually thought he would win, and that Ethan would give him a million spirit crystals.

It was crazy and stupid! How could he say all of that so confidently?

The white-robed man helplessly turned around as he said, “Are you insane or something, Jackie? Why do you still think you cart win? If you can win, why are you here?”

Chapter 2984
Jackie pursed his lips, answering calmly, “Of course I think I can win. Just because I’m here doesn’t mean I’ll lose.”

This response silenced all three men instantly. They looked at Jackie speechlessly, feeling like they were talking to a wall.

All they were speaking were reasons and facts, yet Jackie refused to listen. The three of them sighed helplessly as they decisively gave up on talking to Jackie about this. They felt like Jackie would probably never listen to them.

There was only half a day left in the end. The competition was about to end, and Jackie would clearly see that he was useless without them needing to explain anything.

The three of them shook their heads silently as they turned and started to talk about other things.

As time passed, more people started to come out of the barriers, with most of them visibly despondent. Only some looked happy as if they were confident in their results.

The time finally came for the last two hours.

At that moment, out of the 30 barriers around the furnaces, 27 had already dispersed. Only three alchemists remained inside, still persevering.

The three of them were the three leaders of the competition, Emilio from Chaos Continent, Ethan from White Marsh Continent, and Nash from Hestia Continent. The three of them seemed to be intent on fighting to the last moment, not willing to admit defeat.

Another half an hour passed, and Nash's barrier finally dispersed, his figure revealed to the other participants. His expression, however, was worth noting. His face was slightly pale. With a sigh, the Purple Sun Pill in his hand was swallowed.

Just like the others, after the Purple Sun Pill was swallowed by the jade tube, it was absorbed into the green glow in the air. He started at the ceiling for a very long time, no one knew what he thought. After a while, he turned and walked toward where Hestia's alchemists had gathered. At that moment, everyone had taken out their mats and sat on the floor.

Compared to the inner city, everyone was more packed. There was not much space around them, and Nash had been the latest to arrive. He placed his mat on the front. His expression, though seemingly troubled, was not at all dark. In fact, it was like he was rather confident with himself, though he was not full of himself.

Another alchemist from Scarlet Pavilion started to chat to Nash in a lowered voice. The two of them mumbled to each other for a long time before they stopped.

Jackie merely sat at the back of the group quietly the whole time. He could not be bothered to talk to the rest of them and merely closed his eyes and rested until Nash walked out of the barrier.

When he saw Nash's expression, Jackie knew that Nash was not that satisfied with himself. His expression would be far different if he was.

Just as Jackie wondered if Nash managed to achieve his refinement goal, Nash turned to look at Jackie. Their gazes met, and neither one turned back.

Jackie could clearly feel how sharp Nash's gaze was, but he merely raised an eyebrow and said nothing.

Nash snorted lightly, saying "Sure enough, you didn't disappoint me. You're still the same. How long can you keep acting nonchalant?"

Jackie's lips twitched, unable to stop himself from rolling his eyes.

Nash was like an annoying fly that he could not chase away, that at any given time, he would spout nonsense whenever he could.

Chapter 2985
Jackie lightly snorted. "How long I can keep it up has nothing to do with you. You should focus on yourself. Are you confident that you can get the grand treasure?"

Jackie had not wanted to ask that last part, but he did not want to dwell on the problem with Nash, so he changed the topic. In truth, he was curious as to how confident Nash was.

Nash frowned as his expression stiffened. After a while, he confidently boasted, "I'm fifty percent confident!"

Everyone immediately got excited at that. Nash was not someone who liked to brag. Since Nash said he had a 50 percent chance, then he meant it. In truth, for the alchemists of Hestia, splitting a black treasure might make them happy, but it was still not enough to excite them.

The reason they got excited was that getting a black treasure would let them gloat a little and vent a quarter of their frustration, at least. After all, Ethan had insulted them so much earlier, even telling them to not participate in the later rounds.

He had spoken as if they were completely below notice. Even though they had not fought back at the time, everyone was still angered by it. They were, of course, excited at the fact that they might regain some of their dignity.

Some of them even started to congratulate Nash excitedly, “Since Nash says that there’s a fifty percent chance, it has to be true! Even though Nash is weaker than Rudeus, it’s not like they’re that far different. Since Rudeus managed to get a bronze treasure, it wouldn’t be surprising for you to get a black treasure!”

“That’s right! Even though the leaders of the two continents seem stronger, the others aren’t that special. If the two of them are fighting for the bronze and golden treasures, then the black treasure would be in our hands!”

Nash did not bother listening to those congratulatory words at all. He might have said the truth that he was 50 percent confident, but he was not someone who would just accept compliments like that without being 100 percent confident or before the results were out. His gaze was still fixed on Jackie.

Despite what Nash had said, Jackie did nothing but raise an eyebrow, which irked him.

What did he mean by his behavior? Did Jackie not agree with him?

Nash said in a low voice, “You think I don‘t have a fifty percent chance to get a black treasure?”

Jackie thought about it and nodded calmly. “I feel like you do have no chance of getting a black treasure.”

As he said that, it was like he had thrown a bomb into the crowd, and they erupted into chaos, insulting Jackie.

“Can you use your head a little, you brat? Nash’s alchemy is at the top of Scarlet Pavilion. If he can’t get a black treasure, no one else will apart from those two!”

“That’s right! Jackie, you‘re crossing the line here. You’re practically siding with the enemy at this point!”

Jackie barely reacted to these noises. After all, he had long anticipated their reactions. He looked around and said calmly, “I said what I have said, and it’s up to you if you want to listen. Let’s just all wait for the results, shall we?”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2986 - 2990

Chapter 2986
Right after Jackie said that, the arguments immediately got louder, “You‘re just not willing to accept it! Are you looking down on Nash?! What is the meaning of this?!”

“Whatever, let’s not bother with him anymore. This guy keeps on doing strange things. It doesn’t matter What he’s thinking, as long as we think that Nash has a good chance of getting a black treasure!”

Just as the arguments were escalating, the final two barriers finally dispersed. Ethan and Emilio appeared in front of everyone. The alchemists from White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent immediately stood up and welcomed them.

Ethan and Emilio both had similar calm expressions. The two of them exchanged a look, and both of them could see the anger in their eyes. Ethan snorted as he held his head up high while he walked toward where White Marsh Continent was. Emilio frowned, not saying anything as he returned to Chaos Continent‘s position.

Ethan was the first to speak, “Don’t worry. The golden treasure front this round will definitely belong to us!”

The alchemists from White Marsh Continent started to cheer after he said that. All of them were incredibly excited as if they had gotten the golden treasure!

That was when Emilio‘s expression darkened. Ethan did not think much about Emilio at all. Otherwise, he would not have immediately said that after the round ended.

Emilio still represented Chaos Continent in the end. If he shut his mouth and ignored Ethan, he would end up being slandered and mocked for being too scared. He would end up embarrassing Chaos Continent.

He coldly snorted, “The results are still not out yet, and you’re already acting so pleased with yourselves. Even though I’m also very confident, I’m still trying to be humble before the results are out. After all, it’s very easy for people to bite back when you say things like that!”

Emilio chose his words carefully, leaving himself a route for retreat. If he acted like Ethan and said that the golden treasure was already his, he would be incredibly humiliated if he ended up with just a bronze treasure. However, he did not want Ethan to be too pleased with himself.

After Ethan heard that, he turned to look at Emilio. He was not as humble as Emilio and was incredibly confident in himself. He guffawed after hearing that.

He narrowed his eyes as he measured Emilio up and down, mocking, “You’re just not confident in yourself. Does that mean others aren’t allowed to be as well? You know what your results are. You must already know that you won‘t be able to get the golden treasure, but you don’t want me to get the golden treasure either. That‘s why you’re saying all this. Just take my advice and eat your words. I can guarantee you right now that you won’t get the golden treasure.”

“Even if we’ve never formally competed in any official capacity before, and the two of us have never truly been able to see who is stronger, the results are still obvious. You’re no match for me. I’ll trample all over you and get the golden treasure!”

As he said that, Ethan acted like a victorious general. He talked to Emilio in an incredibly cocky manner, causing Emilio to be shocked at how overly confident Ethan was.

Chapter 2987
Emilio was so angry that he started to pant. He looked at Ethan even more angrily.

Emilio had never hated Ethan so much before. Even if the two of them had never gotten along, it was just a competitive relationship. He had never hated Ethan as he did at that moment.

If he had the chance, Emilio would definitely make Ethan suffer and have him wishing he was dead. Ethan’s words had been too appalling, completely looking down on Emilio. It caused even the other alchemists from Chaos Continent to feel incredibly uncomfortable.

The Chaos Continent was the strongest out of all three worlds in the end, so they naturally had their own pride. After hearing those words, they could not stand it.

An alchemist behind Emilio immediately shouted, “Emilio just doesn’t want to have a petty argument with you, so he minded his words. I can’t believe you got so conceited. Before the results are even out, you‘re already so arrogant! The barrier obscured everything, so you didn’t know how the others did at all. How are you so sure that you’re in the first place?!”

Ethan raised an eyebrow, not even bothering to spare the others a glance. He said coldly, “I don‘t need to look at the results of everyone else at all. All I care about is my own results. My results alone are enough to completely beat all of you. Why would I need to look at anyone else?”

After saying that, Ethan laughed maniacally. The alchemists from White Marsh Pavilion behind him all went in time with him.

“Ethan’s right! There’ s no need to look at the other results at all!”

“Ethan is just that strong! All of you are just envious, but you’re acting so indignantly. It‘s not that he’s acting arrogantly, you’re just not confident enough yourself!”

When Ethan heard that, his smile deepened. Those words were precisely what he wanted to hear. He never felt like he was arrogant. He just felt like they were guilty. They knew what would happen if the results were not good, that was why they did not like how he was acting!

“In just a moment, news of me getting the golden treasure will be spread out. Before we head back, the alchemists on our side have already prepared to welcome us. This will be the third golden treasure for White Marsh Continent. No matter how strong Chaos Continent is, you’ll only have one more than us!”

When Ethan said that, he was acting incredibly proud. He felt like he was making a great contribution to White Marsh Continent. He was even beginning to think about how his fellow students would celebrate him when he got back. He thought about how enviously the other alchemists would look at him. He had already earned himself some glory before this, but it was not much compared to this one. When the time comes, he would be able to get amazing resources thanks to the golden treasure he got. It would improve his skills and status even more.

Just thinking about the future, Ethan could not stop himself from smiling.

All these pieces of trash did not understand him at all. The moment he said what he did, the alchemists from the other two continents could not help but frown, feeling like Ethan was too confident. After all, Emilio was still fighting against him. He did not know Emilio’s results but was acting happily as if he had already gotten the golden treasure.

Chapter 2988
Jackie did not react to Ethan’s arrogance at all. In his mind, Ethan acting so arrogantly was a normal response. His temperament was exactly like that. It would be strange if he did not act like that. Even though Jackie did not react to Ethan’s arrogance, he was still stunned by Ethan’s words.

According to what Ethan said, the news of the result would be spread before they even return. That meant that their results would be sent over through the Heaven Array to the inner city.

Looking at their expressions, the other alchemists definitely knew that as well. After all, six groups had already been through the competition. However, Jackie was caught off guard, since he had just entered the inner city not long ago. He was not aware that results would be sent back directly after the competition.

After thinking about it, he reached out and tapped his hand on the person in front of him. The one in front of him had talked to him before. It was the gray-robed man who had asked him where he got his courage from before this.

The moment the gray-robed man saw that Jackie was pulling at his sleeve, he immediately turned around with widened eyes. He looked at Jackie curiously. In the man's eyes, Jackie was an idiot who only did things by himself.

Jackie tugging his sleeve was nothing extraordinary. If it had been a stranger, the man would probably have ignored the person. However, since it was Jackie, he immediately asked excitedly, "Do you need something? Have you finally thought things through?"

Jackie's lips twitched in exasperation. Even though the gray-robed man did not say anything further, Jackie obviously understood what he meant by that. However, Jackie did not want to care about that at the moment.

He let out a cough as he said seriously, "After the results are announced, will the results be sent back by the Heaven Array before we go back? Will all the alchemists in the inner city see it?"

The gray-robed man never expected that Jackie would ask him that. However, the gray-robed man was quite a simple man, and he was naturally curious as to why Jackie asked.

He honestly answered, "The details won't appear on the Heaven Array. The only thing that it will say is if you get a treasure. If we're lucky enough to get a black treasure, the word black treasure will appear on the Heaven Array back at the inner city."

Jackie was taken aback after hearing that. It was different from what he had thought. He had thought that after the results were announced, the details would be shown in front of all the alchemists. However, it just showed what treasure had been earned. Everything would still be exposed in the end anyway.

After thinking about that, Jackie looked up.

Why were they not announcing the results?

Ethan and Emilio had already been quarreling for a long time. They felt like their ears were about to fall off, but they still did not announce the results.

Jackie absolutely hated listening to others argue, and he hated hearing nonsense about him as well. He just wanted to know if he managed to get a treasure, and what kind. He did not have Ethan‘s confidence. After all, he did not know how skilled everyone else was. Even though he was already out on the third day, that had been after he did everything he could.

"You‘re still acting like this!" Just as Jackie was thinking about things, he suddenly heard Ethan's sharp voice.

Jackie frowned as he lowered his head helplessly. He saw that Ethan was staring at him with a mocking and curious gaze.

Chapter 2989
Jackie sighed helplessly as he muttered in his heart, ‘Why are the results not announced yet? Ethan would definitely not stop talking if they did not announce it soon!’

Jackie could not be bothered to listen, but it was not like Ethan would stop talking if Jackie ignored him. Instead, he would just be laughed at even more. To avoid all that trouble, Jackie turned to look at Ethan.

“How should I be acting? Are the results even out yet? Why are you trying to cause a scene like this…”

Ethan‘s face twitched in surprise as he looked at Jackie and replied, “Do you really think that you won’t lose? Do you still think you can win and get a treasure?”

The exasperation in Ethan‘s voice was incredibly evident. He really wanted to know where Jackie got his courage from. Even now, Jackie was still talking back to Ethan with such indignance. He seemed even more confident than Emilio, but no one knew where that confidence came from.

Ethan laughed in frustration as he looked at Jackie with a frown.

He thought for a long time before he said, “You really do surprise me. I’ve met some stubborn people, but no one nearly as stubborn as you before. Can you tell me where you got your confidence from?”

Ethan was being honest with his words. He really did not know how Jackie was so confident.

Could it be just purely blind confidence? Did Jackie think he was the best in the world?

It was the first time he had met someone like Jackie. Unless Jackie was just a complete madman and spoke without any reasoning, he definitely must have a source of confidence. Yet, Ethan could not understand how that could be the case for a mere sixth-grade alchemist.

Jackie lightly snorted, turning away. When it came to a question like that, the other party would not believe him no matter what he said.

He merely said coldly, “No matter how much you want to say, wait till the results are out to say them. Before the results are announced, I don’t want to waste any more time on you.”

Those words completely stunned everyone there, including Emilio.

Emilio blinked as he looked at Jackie speechlessly. At that moment, he was just as curious as Ethan. He wanted to know why Jackie was so confident in himself. Ethan's lips twitched as he started to be filled with exasperation. Jackie was way too unique. There was no way to deal with Jackie normally.

A sixth-grade alchemist like Jackie wanted to talk about things only after the results are out?

Even their leader, Nash, only had a less than fifty percent chance of getting a black treasure, let alone someone like Jackie. Yet, he seemed to be telling everyone that he had already secured the treasure.

Ethan let out a laugh, "Have you forgotten about our bet? You have to get a treasure for you to win, which means you have to place in the top three. You think you can beat the other alchemists here and place among the top three?"

Jackie took a deep breath, trying to make sure his tone was calm, "If I felt like my skills were not good enough, then I wouldn't have placed that bet against you. Since I've already placed the bet and signed a contract, I won't go back on it. Of course, I remember the bet. Now, can you shut up and just quietly wait for the results…"

Chapter 2990
Ethan's lips twitched as his expression darkened. He had been shot at by Jackie again. Every time, Jackie would ask him to shut up and stop wasting time. In truth, Ethan did not want to waste time on Jackie either. The main reason was that Jackie's actions had caused him to not be able to hold back. Furthermore, he really wanted to figure out what went on in Jackie's mind.

Nash frowned as his gaze constantly shifted between Ethan and Jackie.

He would look at Jackie for a moment before looking at Ethan. At that moment, his mood was complicated and exasperated. He felt like there was something definitely wrong with Jackie's head, and felt like he was definitely no match for Ethan.

It was a conservative estimate when he said he had a fifty percent chance to get a black treasure. In truth, in his own mind, he should have about sixty or seventy percent chance. After all, he came from Scarlet Pavilion and was only a hair away from Rudeus in terms of skill. He was incredibly confident in his alchemic abilities. He was not a braggart like Ethan, nor was he as strange as Jackie.

Looking at Jackie who was acting like he would definitely get a treasure, Nash suddenly wanted to shout at him. After all, in Nash's mind, the black treasure was his, it had nothing to do with Jackie.

Just as Nash was wondering if he should say something, the wizened and cold voice was heard again.

“The results will be announced right now. For various reasons, I’ll only announce the top three results that will win the treasures. In third place, the black treasure goes to Emilio from the Chaos Continent!”

There was a small pause after the voice said that, seemingly to give the crowd some time to react. The alchemists really did react, and it was a huge one as well. Emilio actually got third place?!

That was quite a lot different from what they had expected. Even though Emilio had gotten a treasure, everyone had thought that he would at least get a bronze treasure! Yet, the results were different from expected. He only got a black treasure and ended up in third place for the seventh group.

When Emilio got the result, he completely froze up. His eyes widened slightly as he was filled with disbelief. He could not imagine that he was actually that bad. He had actually gotten third place in this round!

He could already imagine how he would be mocked when he went back to Chaos Continent. After all, he was the leader of the alchemists from Chaos Continent this time. He could not accept the result at all.

His mouth trembled slightly, “How… How is this possible!?”

He was already a bit frantic. At that moment, someone started to laugh. Ethan, who was laughing and clenching his stomach, looked over at Emilio.

“I have to admit, what you said earlier was right. It’s better to not brag too much, or you‘ll end up embarrassing yourself. Haven’t you completely embarrassed yourself this time? You even said you wanted to fight me for first place, but you actually got a black treasure! You’re only worth competing with those alchemists from Hestia Continent…” Saying that, Ethan’s smile widened even more.

Emilio was so furious that his whole body was trembling, but there was nothing he could say. The results were already out, and the truth was on full display. Even if he tried to defend himself, it would just be seen as forcing things. He would just end up being laughed at, so he shut his mouth and took it.

The alchemists from Chaos Continent behind him did not look too happy. After all, Emilio was their leader. Even their leader’s results were so bad that there was nothing they could say.

At that moment, the alchemists from White Marsh Continent were all incredibly ecstatic. All of them started to praise themselves and threw insults to the other side. Only then could they win back the dignity they had lost to Chaos Continent before this.

All this while, White Marsh Continent had lost to Chaos Continent in all facets. Now, they finally had the chance to win back some dignity. Even if their total golden treasures were not as much as Chaos Continent's, the difference was not that great.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2991 - 2995

Chapter 2991
After this round, they would have gotten three golden treasures in total, while Chaos Continent would only have four. The difference would just be on e. As long as their alchemists worked a bit harder, they might even end up getting the golden treasure from the eighth group. Then they would be on equal footing with Chaos Continent. It would mean that their alchemists were no weaker than Chaos Continent's.

"This really vents out my frustrations! The alchemists from Chaos Continent always act so arrogantly toward us. They always feel like they're the best. Now it looks like they're nothing special. We just lost out to them because of some luck and time. In the rounds after this, we'll definitely win back all of our honor!"

"That's right! I've already said before this that we'll definitely win back everything we've lost! The Chaos Continent has already exhausted all of its talents, while we still have a lot of our top talents!"

The White Marsh Continent seemed to be celebrating as if it was a festival. The alchemists from the other two continents were much quieter. The quietest of them all was the Hestia Continent's side.

Nash had a hopeless look on his face. He had thought that he would be able to get third place, but that was actually the end result. Even though Nash was confident in himself, he was not confident to the point of arrogance. Even Emilio was only able to get third place, which meant that he was definitely out of the running. He wondered who the second and first place would be.

Hestia Continent's alchemists started to console Nash, "Nash, you don't have to be too sad. It looks like there's something off about this. Even Emilio was only able to get third place. There must be someone else who's amazingly skilled. It's all just luck!"

"That's right, it's just the seventh group. There's still more after this. We'll definitely still be able to get a treasure!"

Nash sighed deeply. The words of consolation did not get through to him at all. He merely felt helpless in his heart. After all, he had been sixty to seventy percent confident, only to end up having all his hopes extinguished. He felt incredibly bad, but there was nothing he could do about it.

Jackie frowned as he looked into the air.

After the wizened voice announced the results, it went silent.

Jackie only had one thought in mind at the moment, which was for all the results to be read out. Maybe sensing Jackie's hopes, the old voice could be heard again.

"The third place, Emilio's results are so. The Purple Sun Pill was barely successful. Of them, three thousand eight hundred and twenty pill runes are at sixty percent refinement. One thousand seven hundred and eighty pill runes are at fifty percent refinement."

The results were already so detailed, leaving Emilio no room to say anything. Hearing the results, Emilio sighed deeply.

After the old voice announced that, it did not stop like before. Instead, it continued to speak, "Second place, the winner of the bronze treasure is Ethan. Ethan's results are as follows. Purple Sun Pill was barely successful. Four thousand one hundred and twenty pill runes are at sixty percent refinement. One thousand four hundred and eighty pill runes are at fifty percent!"

The moment the voice announced that everyone's eyes widened as they wondered if they were mistaken. They wondered if the organizer had counted it wrongly.

Ethan was only in second place. That result was too absurd.

If Ethan was in second place, then who was first? Who had the right to be in the first place?

Ethan's body stiffened as he shouted out, "I'm second place? How is it that I am in second place?! My results are in the first place. You must have calculated it wrongly. Who could get first place other than me?!"

Chapter 2992
When he heard that he was in second place and only got a bronze treasure, Ethan went crazy. He could not accept that result, nor could he accept that he was not the best alchemist out of everyone there.

Apart from him, who else could get first place and win the golden treasure?

It was absurd! It was so absurd that all of the alchemists present could not accept or believe it.

Ethan continued to shout, "There must be an error! Other than myself, no one can win the golden treasure. Who could potentially be stronger than me?!"

There was only one thought in Ethan' s mind at that moment. He did not want to think about anything else, or any other scenario. Ethan was someone incredibly obstinate. At that moment, he was sure that they had calculated the results wrongly. He was certain that he had actually won first place!

Everyone’s breaths stopped. They might not be as emotional as Ethan, but they were still filled with curiosity and disbelief.

That voice did not care about Ethan’s reactions at all. It said with its usual calm tone, “The winner of the seventh group is Jackie White! Five thousand four hundred and thirty pill runes were at sixty percent refinement, and only a hundred and seventy pill runes were at fifty percent. His results are the best, and is undoubtedly in first place!”

All of the alchemists there were completely stunned. Almost everyone had their mouths opened in disbelief, wondering if they had misheard.

Jackie was iI first place?

His results were so amazing as well. There were 5600 pill runes, and he had successfully refined 5430 to a sixty percent refinement rate. Only 170 of them were at fifty percent refinement.

Those results definitely put him in the first place. That old voice had clearly announced the results of the top three places. It sounded believable, but they could not accept that Jackie was in first place. They started to wonder if they were hallucinating and if everything was an illusion.

Ethan widened his eyes, even forgetting to breathe.

His mouth trembled as he said, “What did you say? Jackie is in the first place? The golden treasure is Jackie?! What kind of joke is this? How could he be in first place, have you not seen his badge?! He’s a sixth-grade alchemist. How can a sixth-grade alchemist get the golden treasure?!”

At that moment, Ethan’s mind was in disarray, wondering if he had misheard, or if he was having a nightmare. His questions were not answered. It was as if the voice refused to acknowledge him. Ethan went even crazier at the lack of a response. He turned around violently and faced Jackie, pointing at Jackie’s chest.

“Just look! Look at what badge is on his chest! Even the other alchemists from the same world look down on him. He’s just a crazy guy who only knows how to brag. He’s just someone who acts strange. How can he get the golden treasure? Tell me how?!”

Ethan’s breathing got erratic as he shouted all of that. His entire body was trembling.

Normally, there would be a lot of discussions after the first three places were announced, but it was incredibly quiet comparatively. Only breathing could be heard as everyone fell silent, not knowing what to say because everything seemed too crazy.

Of the thirty alchemists present, only Ethan was still shouting. Even if he started to lose his voice, he still got no response. He was merely left with reluctance and even more questions in his mind. The lack of response got him even more anxious.

Chapter 2993
He walked over to where the alchemists from Hestia Continent gathered. He had a crazed expression on his face as he pushed past the alchemists in front of him until he arrived in front of Jackie.

The alchemists that were pushed away thought Ethan was acting rudely, but no one dared to say anything. Everyone knew that Ethan had completely exploded at that moment, and could even kill someone.

Ethan's eyes were completely bloodshot. Even the muscles on his face were trembling as he looked at Jackie with hatred as if Jackie was his mortal enemy.

He pointed right at Jackie's chest, "You're just a sixth-grade alchemist, how did you get the golden treasure ahead of me? It's not fair, there must be an error!"

Jackie frowned as he was filled with exasperation. He never expected Ethan to be so crazy. Ethan's expression was very strange like he was losing control of himself.

Jackie sighed helplessly as he said in a relaxed tone, "I might have a sixth- grade alchemist badge, but it doesn't mean my skills are that of a sixth-grade alchemist. I've been a the level of a seventh-grade alchemist for a long time, it's just that I never got to take the test after being delayed by some matters. That's why I still have a sixth- grade alchemist badge!"

Jackie explained things very clearly. When everyone heard that, they started to accept the truth. Only Ethan remained crazed.

He said loudly, "I don't believe it! I refuse to believe it. You're just a liar. A complete scammer. There's no way you got the golden treasure. Even if what you say is true, so what? You come from Hestia Continent. You have no right to get the golden treasure at all. There's no way an alchemist from Hestia Continent would beat me for first place. It's impossible!"

Jackie frowned, really wanting to slap Ethan awake at that moment. When the others heard what Ethan said, they all looked over. Even though Ethan's words had deeply insulted Hestia Continent, there was still some logic in it. Hestia Continent had never won a single first place in the last six groups.

They had only gotten second-place and third-place once respectively. That was why everyone looked down on Hestia Continent, feeling like they had long fallen behind.

Alchemists from Hestia Continent were only able to get black treasures at most. When the alchemists from Hestia Continent heard that, they started to lose their calm. Even if they had their doubts as well, it did not mean they would just let someone else mock them.

The gray-robed man who had talked to Jackie before could not stop himself from saying, “What do you mean by that? Can Hestia Continent never get first place? The first place can only belong to you guys? That’s absurd! Jackie’s the strongest from Hestia Continent. He never participated in the earlier groups, so we never got first place before. Now that he’s here, the first place is his!”

Chapter 2994
“The voice earlier has announced all your results. It’s not like you didn’t hear it. The results are right in front of all of us, so what are you even questioning? If you lost, then you lost!”

After the gray-robed man said that, the other alchemists from the Hestia Continent immediately joined in, “That’s right! If you have lost, then you lost. Are you a sore loser? The results are clear for everyone to see. You’re just not willing to believe it.”

“It’s not like your results are that bad. You managed to get four thousand one hundred and twenty pill runes to sixty percent refinement! It‘s just that Jackie’s stronger than you.”

“Of the five thousand and six hundred pill runes, five thousand four hundred and thirty of them were at sixty percent refinement. As long as he had enough time, he would probably have been able to get all of them to sixty percent refinement!”

“He came out on the third day. You only came out of the barrier at the very last moment! That’s the gulf between you two. Jackie just has a strange temperament. If he stayed till the last moment, he might actually have refined all of them to sixty percent!”

Ethan’s whole body trembled in anger after he heard that. Before, Ethan would always have something to say whenever anyone questioned him, but this time he did not know what to say.

They were right. The results were clear for everyone to see. There was a gulf between his skills and Jackie’s. There was no way he could change that. However, he refused to believe that those results were what Jackie had. After all, Jackie had left a deep impression on him. He would not easily believe that that was the truth.

Ethan started to pant roughly like an angered lion. After a moment, his tone calmed down a little, “You must have cheated, or you would never have gotten this result! You absolutely cheated. There’s no way you’re that strong! How did you get five thousand four hundred and thirty pill runes to sixty percent? That’s impossible. There’s no way you’re better than me!”

Those words were not convincing in the slightest. He was being a complete sore loser and was trying to force things his way after.

Jackie's lips twitched helplessly as he sighed at Ethan's stubbornness. He said, "Can you please be more realistic?! You claim that I cheated, then tell me how did I cheat? Did I already make the Purple Sun Pill beforehand? Or was it something else?"

There was no way to cheat at all unless Jackie had refined this pill before. Yet, to prevent that from happening, the voice had already said that the Purple Sun Pill did not exist in third-grade worlds. The Purple Sun Pill's recipe was a secret. It was the first time all of them refined it.

Ethan's words were stopped again.

Jackie snorted before continuing, "Didn't you say I cheated? Then tell everyone, how did I cheat? Maybe you could tell everyone how it would be possible to cheat? Aren't you just being a sore loser at this point? The results are already out, so what are you trying to argue for? Just compose yourself. I was already being nice by letting you do as you want before this. If you continue on, I won't be so kind anymore."

Jackie could not be bothered with Ethan's rambling anymore. If that guy really continued, Jackie had a lot to refute him.

Ethan's whole body was trembling as his mental state was on the verge of collapsing.

Chapter 2995
He wanted to use the excuse of Jackie cheating, but he could not figure out a way at all. That was because it was impossible to do so!

Since Jackie did not cheat, then the results were real. He really had refined 5430 pill runes to sixty percent refinement. Compared to that, Ethan had lost horribly!

Ethan's heart was thumping wildly as he looked at Jackie with clenched teeth. At that moment, the alchemists from White Marsh continent could no longer bear to let Ethan continue. After all, it was a little humiliating.

Two of the alchemists that were closer to Ethan stepped up and grabbed Ethan's arms. They pulled him back as they said, "Ethan, don't get too angry. This guy must have been hiding his skills the whole time. The results are already out, there's nothing more to say. Let's just go back!"

Ethan struggled and pushed the two of them away, "The results aren't set yet. I refuse to believe that this is his result. There must have been an error! I was the one who refined five thousand four hundred and thirty pill runes at sixty percent refinement! His result is mine, and my result is Jackie's!"

Jackie's lips twitched at that, not wanting to bother Ethan. Ethan would say anything for the sake of getting the golden treasure, even suspecting that their results had been flipped. He was already completely speechless at that point. He had not wanted to say anything, but no one knew what that guy would say if no one stopped him.

Jackie raised his voice and said, "Do you think that the laws of the Whirling World were created for my sake? The one who determined the results is close to me, so he wants me to get first place and swap our results?"

These questions caused Ethan to shut his mouth again.

Jackie was right.

Who was Jackie? How could he possibly have made the laws of the Whirling World twist to suit him?

If Jackie really had that ability, he would not have needed to compete with everyone else. He would have just gotten the resources for himself without that much effort.

The moment he said that Ethan swelled up like a tomato as he hung his head. The two alchemists behind him no longer dared to say anything. They did not want Ethan to continue causing a scene. It was already too embarrassing. They would only he laughed at if Ethan continued to struggle. They practically dragged Ethan back to his original spot.

When Ethan returned, Emilio actually walked over again. At that moment, various emotions were in his eyes. He was naturally not as crazy as Ethan, but he was not completely calm either. He earnestly looked Jackie over, trying to see if he missed out something.

After a long time, he had to admit that Jackie had not changed at all. Everything remained the same the whole time. Before, he felt like Jackie was crazy, but now he realized that he had just been ignorant.

Jackie really was that strong. He had said so many strange things simply because he was incredibly confident in himself.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 2996 - 3000

Chapter 2996
Emilio took a deep breath as he paled slightly, “So you were actually very confident. That’s why you made the bet against Ethan. That was why you looked down on all of us…”

Jackie raised an eyebrow and merely let out a faint smile.

After everyone heard Emilio’s words, they let out looks of realization. No wonder Jackie’s actions had been so hard to understand. Insulting Ethan and betting against Ethan. No matter what anyone else said, Jackie had been unfazed. At that moment, everyone had been wondering if Jackie had some sort of goal in mind. It was then they realized that Jackie had not regarded them as anything at all. Jackie had just been incredibly confident.

Jackie frowned, saying in exasperation, “I already made things very clear earlier, it’s just that none of you wanted to listen. You thought I was spewing nonsense. There’s nothing I could do about that.”

It was then did everyone realize that Jackie had definitely said that he would not have done the bet if he did not have the skills. At the time, no one believed in him. They even thought that he must have been crazy to say that. Now, they know that he was not crazy, it was them who was being ignorant.

Emilio’s lips twitched as his expression soured. At that moment, he did not know what to say. He felt like he was a complete clown in front of Jackie.

He took a deep breath as his lips twitched slightly, “I’m such a joke…”

When it was announced that he got third place, Emilio was actually full of disbelief. He had felt that, even if he could not get the golden treasure, he was not that bad to only get a black treasure. Now it seemed like he was not just bad in terms of skill, but in terms of evaluating others as well.

Emilio sighed as he composed himself. He turned around as he returned to his original spot somewhat despondently. If he had lost, then he could only accept the results as it is. He was not as much of a sore loser compared to Ethan. No matter what, he still managed to obtain a treasure. Even if it was just a black treasure, he would at least have something to bring back with him. Furthermore, things happened unexpectedly this time, so he would be able to explain things if the higher-ups asked.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, suddenly feeling like there was a gaze on him. He then looked up to see Nash looking at him with a complicated expression.

He was actually in a similar state as Ethan. His lips twitched and the muscles on his face were stiff. He was filled with disbelief, frustration, and anger. Nash had never expected that things would end up like that.

Jackie had gotten a golden treasure, while he had gotten nothing. Compared to Jackie, he was nothing. He had actually been the one to suffer a complete loss. There was no way Nash could accept that.

Nash took a deep breath as he asked with a trembling voice, “You were always just pretending. Who are you? And… Why..?”

Nash suddenly stopped as he said that. He still had a load of questions to ask, but his reason told him that the situation would go out of control if he asked the questions out loud.

The alchemists from the other worlds were still staring right at their direction. Even if he hated Jackie, he could not deny Jackie’s value. Just with Jackie’s skills, Scarlet Pavilion would happily accept Jackie. If Scarlet Pavilion‘s higher-ups really did so, then he would be in a difficult spot. So he forced down the anger and doubt in his heart as he stared at Jackie.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he said calmly, “I’m just more talented than all of you. There’s nothing else to it.”

Chapter 2997
The moment he said that, chills could be felt in the air. Everyone’s face soured at the harsh words!

However, they were forced to hold back even if they wanted to mock Jackie. After all, Jackie’s skills had been shown for all to see. Unless they were stronger than Jackie, anything they said would just be a joke.

Everyone had seen that Jackie had actually gotten first place. The results of the top three had been shown to everyone. The numbers were incredibly specific, and there was no way it was fake. Everyone would constantly glance at Jackie, most of them with inquisitive looks.

Jackie did not care how others looked at him, ignoring everyone.

After Nash shut his mouth, Jackie only had one thought in mind. He turned around and walked toward where the alchemists from White Marsh Continent were.

At that moment, the alchemists from White Marsh Continent all looked at Jackie carefully. They were even a little afraid, not sure if Jackie would shoot back at them with some vicious words. If Jackie decided to mock them, they would be thoroughly humiliated. However, Jackie did not even bother looking at the alchemists behind Ethan as he looked right at Ethan.

After reaching in front of Ethan, Jackie reached out and said coldly, “Have you forgotten the million spirit crystals?”

That served as a reminder to everyone. All of them suddenly remembered the bet Jackie had made against Ethan before. It had been clearly written that Ethan would have to give Jackie a million spirit crystals as long as Jackie got a treasure. Not only did Jackie manage to get a treasure, but a golden treasure. Jackie had stood on top of the three of them.

Ethan‘s face darkened completely when he heard that Jackie wanted his spirit crystals. His lips paled, and everyone gulped at how he looked. He looked like he was about to die from anger.

Ethan started to take deep breaths. He had never been so humiliated before. It was incredibly embarrassing. Not only did he lose to Jackie, but he also needed to give Jackie a million spirit crystals for no reason.

Looking at Ethan, it was obvious that Ethan was furious to the point where he had no intentions of taking out any spirit crystals.

Jackie raised an eyebrow and mocked, “What are you trying to do? Are you planning on going against the deal? Don’t forget, you signed the contract very happily…”

Those words caused Ethan’s face to sour even more. He remembered what he had said to Jackie before. At the time, Ethan had thought that Jackie was a complete idiot that was giving him free spirit crystals. Even if he had guessed that Jackie might have other goals, he never expected that Jackie actually had no other intentions. Jackie had merely bet against him because Jackie had been incredibly confident.

Ethan’s hands trembled, “I had no such intentions, I would never do that!”

Ethan felt like he was about to explode from the anger.

Jackie then let out a laugh, “Do you still remember how you talked to me then? You said I was something else for wanting to give you spirit crystals. I was wondering what sort of expression you would have when the results came up. I wondered if you would be as happy as back then when you gave me the spirit crystals. In my eyes, you were like a clown.”

Chapter 2998
After saying that, Jackie even waved the sixth-grade alchemist badge on his chest in front of Ethan.

Ethan lost his balance looking at that. If it were not for the other alchemists behind him, he would probably have tripped and fallen.

At that moment, everyone was looking at Ethan. He let out a bitter smile. There was no way he could back out at that moment. After all, he had signed a contract. With the laws of the world restricting him, there was no way he could violate them. He was forced to swallow his frustration and hatred as he took out a million spirit crystals from his spatial ring to give to Jackie.

Jackie had actually started counting it on the spot. After making sure that the number was right, he put the crystals into the Mustard Seed.

Ethan stood by the side, he was so angry that his whole body was trembling. He felt like he could pass out at any moment. This time, he was positively furious!

However, even if Ethan did die, Jackie would not care at all. After Jackie was done counting the spirit crystals, the Heaven Array in Prosper City's inner city started to glow in green. It was the sign that a message was being sent over.

Everyone reacted when they saw the glow. It looked like the round was already over. The results were out. If someone acquired a treasure, then the results would be sent before the green light disappeared. Everyone was already familiar with the sight. After all, six groups had already competed before this.

Everyone straightened their backs the moment they saw the green light, looking toward the Heaven Array. The green light got denser and denser, causing everyone's spirits to be lifted.

Some of them started to discuss, "I wonder what the results are. I wonder if we managed to get a treasure."

"With Nash, there's a big chance that we did. Even if Nash is not as good as Rudeus, he's not too much worse. If Nash performs as usual, and there's no one overly strong from the two other worlds, the black treasure will be ours!"

"There are too many conditions. I feel like the third place isn't that easy. Just look at Rudeus' expression. He's trying too hard to suppress his worry. We can see that he's not that confident in Nash."

"That's right, even Nash himself probably doesn't know if he can get third place. That Ethan guy had been so arrogant earlier. If we fail to win anything this time, he'll definitely not hold back and keeps on insulting us. How infuriating."

"That guy actually insulted us and told us not to participate. He said that we're all just here to make up the numbers. I get so angry just thinking about it!"

“There’s nothing we can do about it though. Hestia Continent really can’t compare to the other two continents, but that’s not our fault.”

“If the barrier hadn‘t appeared back then, we wouldn‘t be losing to them now. We might even be stronger than Chaos Continent. It’s all because we were completely sealed off. That’s why we became so weak.”

Discussions could be heard everywhere. Most of them did not have too much hope for the results. Many of them felt like the chances of getting a prize were too small. After all, the other two worlds were too strong.

Rudeus was furious listening to their complaints.

Chapter 2999
He had already been in a terrible mood thanks to Jackie. Those negative comments seemed to light up a fuse in him.

He suddenly stood up on his mat as he shouted at all the alchemists around him, “All of you, shut your mouths! The results have not been sent over, and you’re already saying such depressing things. Even if the results are good, they have been swallowed up by your depressing words! I trust Nash’s skills. Even if he doesn’t get a black treasure, he would have only missed by just a little!”

Everyone shut up after hearing that. No one dared to provoke him. They knew that Rudeus was in an incredibly bad mood at that moment.

Mitchell frowned unhappily as he looked at how crazy Rudeus was acting. No matter what Rudeus said before, he had more or less tolerated it, but he never expected that Rudeus would end up being so out of control, biting at everyone like a mad dog.

There was nothing too wrong with what everyone was talking about. All of it was the truth. Even he was not that optimistic about this round’s results. After all, there are a lot of talented alchemists from the two other worlds.

It was not easy to place in the top three among so many masters. He had participated in one of the rounds, and naturally knew how hard it was.

Mitchell took a deep breath, saying unhappily, “Rudeus, I know you’re in a bad mood, but there’s nothing wrong with what everyone is saying. No one wants to be pessimistic. If there really is reason to be confident, I trust that everyone would have gladly said so…”

Rudeus frowned as he looked at Mitchell darkly. His lips twitched as he snorted, “Stop trying to be so snide about everything. This time, Phoenix Valley has their representative in it too. Aren’t you worried? Wouldn’t you be angry with them when you hear such negative evaluations?”

Mitchell coldly answered, “Of course I want my fellow students to get good results, but the truth is clear for all to see. If I say that he’ll definitely be able to get a treasure, I’d just be bragging…”

Mitchell and Rudeus were arguing nonstop on one end, while Rudy and Aaron sat in their corner, starting to discuss things.

Rudy’s face was full of worry. He trusted Jackie‘s skills, but they were against two incredibly strong worlds. He did not know if Jackie would be able to get good results.

Possibly because of the worried look on Rudy, but Aaron could tell right away.

He said curiously, “I feel like Jackie should be able to get a good standing, I just don’t know how well he’ll do. I heard from the other alchemists that only the top three results would be announced, while everything else would be ignored.”

Saying that Aaron was worried as well. If Jackie did not get in the top three, then his results would not be shown. It would be useless even if Jackie had been in fourth place.

After Rudy heard Aaron’s words, he turned and said seriously, ” Jackie will definitely get a treasure!”

Rudy sounded incredibly confident, leaving no room for doubt. Aaron’s lips twitched helplessly, not knowing what to say. He wanted to ask Rudy how he was so confident that Jackie would definitely get a treasure.

Chapter 3000
Did he think the top three were all useless?

It’s not something you can get just because you want it. However, he knew that Rudy would definitely not be his friend anymore if he said all of that, so he was forced to swallow his words.

Rudy continued to say, “I’m just wondering which prize he’ll get, not if he gets one. If he doesn’t get a treasure, then he wouldn’t be Jackie anymore…”

After hearing that, Aaron was even more doubtful. He really wanted to give Rudy some advice, that the higher Rudy’s hopes were, the more painful it would be in the end. Rudy had very high hopes on Jackie.

Did Rudy not know what placing in the top three meant?

Hearing his words, it was like Rudy was even more confident in Jackie than Jackie himself. Before, Aaron had already been confused by Jackie‘s confident actions and words.

Looking at Aaron who seemed like he did not know what to say, Rudy snorted, “I know what you’re thinking. Honestly, I can understand, but you don’t know anything about us. That’s why you think we‘re crazy…”

The moment he said that, the Heaven Array suddenly let out a golden glow. The next second, the words ‘golden treasure‘ appeared in front of everyone. When they saw those words, all the arguments and discussions immediately disappeared. They could not believe their eyes.

It was the first time they had seen those words on the Heaven Array. In the last six groups, four of them saw nothing being sent back at all. This time, not only was something sent back, it was none other than the golden treasure that was sent back.

Everyone was so shocked that they did not know what to say. They could not even believe what was actually happening.

After a while, someone finally pointed at the Heaven Array, trembling, “Are my eyes deceiving me? It’s a golden treasure. An alchemist from Hestia Continent got a golden treasure. Is this real? Am I dreaming?”

“I’m wondering the same thing too. I suspect that I’m dreaming. All of us are!”

“Oh my gosh, we really got a golden treasure? Who got it? Was it Nash? His skills were actually that strong. He actually exceeded Rudeus and got a golden treasure! It’s unbelievable. I was ignorant to assume that he was weaker than Rudeus.”

“I thought the same too. I felt like he would be able to get a black treasure at most. A golden treasure is something unbelievable. I can’t believe this dream actually came true. It’s absurd!”

It was just like that person said. Everyone was filled with disbelief!

An alchemist from Hestia Continent had actually gotten first place! Before, the results of their earlier six groups had been abysmal compared to the two other continents. A golden treasure was something they did not even dare to think about, yet they actually managed to get it.

At that moment, there were many questions in everyone’s minds, but after a few minutes, they started to get excited.

A golden treasure was not just a little better than bronze or black treasures. Once the golden treasure was brought back, it needed to be shared with everyone. The victor could pick first, but could only choose one. The rest was left for everyone else. A happy mood swept across the place. Even those who had been cursed and berated by Rudeus before were incredibly happy and pleased at that moment.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3001 -

Chapter 3001
The fact that Rudeus had gotten a bronze treasure was the main reason why he acted so arrogantly in front of everyone, cursing and berating them without them fighting back. It was because that bronze treasure was to be shared with everyone.

He had gotten something good with his skills, so they had no place nor reason to talk back to Rudeus. On top of that, Rudeus was the strongest one there. For all these reasons, the alchemists were forced to tolerate Rudeus' beratement.

All of a sudden, someone else entered the scene and came out to be better than Rudeus, earning a golden treasure that was a higher level than Rudeus' bronze treasure. No matter how they looked at it, Rudeus could no longer impose himself on everyone else. At that moment, his eyes widened as he looked at the words on the Heaven Array in disbelief.

Someone had exceeded him and gotten a golden treasure? He was not the strongest?

Who did better than him? Was it Nash?

No, Nash could not possibly have done it with his skills. Why else would Nash willingly be in his shadows?

He would always get to pick out the best resources before Nash could. If Nash was really stronger than him, Nash would not have willingly endured that!

The more Rudeus thought about it, the more conflicted he felt. His hands started to tremble as intense jealousy threatened to swallow him whole.

For all these years, he had always felt like his talents and skills were the best. In terms of alchemy, no one in Hestia was better than him. All of a sudden, someone appeared and got the golden treasure!

How could Rudeus bear with that?

He started to pant heavily. His expression changed from the initial shock, to anger, to one of apathy. The jealousy in his eyes threatened to leak out.

Mitchell did not look any better, either. He had thought that he was only behind Rudeus, but someone even better than Rudeus came into the scene. He, in turn, fell to number three. He could not really accept that, but compared to him, Rudeus was in a worse state.

He could not accept the fact, and Rudeus suddenly stood up from the mat, staring right at the words on the Heaven Array. “Someone got a golden treasure? Could the seventh round be especially easy?! Maybe the other two worlds didn‘t send any strong alchemists in!”

After he shouted that, the inner city fell into silence again. Everyone looked at each other, obviously seeing a lot from each other‘s eyes.

Rudeus’ composure was all over the place, and he could not control what he wanted to hide at all. It was obvious what he was trying to do the moment he spoke.

An alchemist from Deer Pavilion whispered to his fellow student, “He’s burning with jealousy at the moment. He doesn’t want to admit that anyone’s better than him! Does he think we’re stupid enough to listen to whatever he says?”

“Someone got a golden treasure, there’s nothing else to say. He said that the seventh group was easy. Well, in that case, we can say that the second group that he was a part of was incredibly easy, too!”

“That‘s right. He‘s already too used to showing off, so much so that he can’t accept the fact that someone else is better than him. He can‘t gloat around anymore.”

“Even if he wants to get angry at anyone from now on, he’ll have to hold back!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3002 -

Chapter 3002
“We were too nice to him before this, letting him curse at us for so long. He said so many nasty things, and we finally don’t have to bear with it anymore. If he continues shouting at people as he pleases, we have a reason to shout back at him and shut him up!”

Rudeus was seen to be the ‘leader‘ of all the alchemists before this. He did not just give our orders and set rules, but he also spat nasty words on the regular, cursing and berating others alchemists. The alchemists, at this point, refused to be bossed around. Before, they did not have a reason or standing, nor did they want to cause any trouble. At this moment, they finally had a reason. They would no doubt fight back if Rudeus continued his reign of terror.

Rudeus felt like he was struggling to even breathe as he stared at the words on the array with gritted teeth. If looks had power, those words would have had a hole pierced through them with Rudeus’ glare.

Mitchell let out a sigh, looking at Rudeus. “It looks like Nash is even better than you in alchemy, but I never thought that he’d be so patient. We thought of him very poorly, but he merely took it all in stride, putting up with your nasty temper.”

It would have been better if Mitchell had not said anything. The moment Mitchell did, it lit a fuse in Rudeus’ head.

He turned and shouted at Mitchell, “What kind of nonsense are you saying? When have I ever looked down on him?! I treated him incredibly well before! I‘ve never bullied him before, so stop trying to cause a scene! Furthermore, he might’ve gotten a golden treasure, but it doesn’t mean that his skills are better than mine. I know his skills better than you do. If he’s that better than me, then why isn‘t he my senior? It looks like his tournament round is probably much easier than ours!”

Rudeus practically screamed his last few words, wanting everyone to digest the fact that this result: did not prove Nash was better than him.

Mitchell merely snorted, and even his shoulders shock as he looked at Rudeus with disdain. Rudeus was a sore loser, not willing to admit that anyone was better than him.

The center of the inner city was incredibly noisy, but the discussions in the outer parts were no less loud. Even though Rudy and Aaron were in a secluded corner, they could hear the intense discussion.

A man in dark purple robes said excitedly, “Seems like the strongest are usually more humble after all. Nash had always just stood by Rudeus’ side before. Even when Rudeus was being unreasonable, Nash here with it as well. He never reacted too much to Rudeus’ attitude, and I thought that it was because Nash wasn’t as good as Rudeus. Nash was actually no worse than Rudeus all this time, and maybe even better. He was just hiding his skills and didn’t want to bother with Rudeus!”

“You’re right. I didn’t pay much attention to Nash before this. I felt like Nash might be stronger than Mitchell but was no stronger than Rudeus. It looks like I stand corrected.”

Rudy’s lips twitched, looking very impatient and disagreeing with their discussions.

Aaron looked at Rudy and asked curiously, “Why do you look like that? Do you not agree with everyone else?”

Rudy said, “Of course I don’t. Nash acted so humbly before solely because he knows he’s not as good as Rudeus. It’s nothing like what the rest of them are saying at all!”

Aaron frowned as he looked even more confused.

Rudy ignored Aaron as he continued speaking.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3003 -

Chapter 3003
“Just wait and see. Everyone will be shocked when the results are shown!”

Aaron’s lips twitched as he looked even more confused, “And why is that?”

Before he could finish asking, the Heaven Array let out another radiant glow. This time, everyone held their breaths, knowing that it was a sign that someone was transferred back.

After a few moments, 10 figures slowly materialized in front of everyone. Jackie stood behind the group as usual, maintaining a casual expression. The other nine, on the other hand, had strange expressions. Some hung their heads low, not daring to look at the other alchemists. Nash stood in front like before. Only, his expression was incredibly stiff. His face was pale as if he had been dealt a heavy blow.

The other alchemists were confused to see such expressions.

Why did those 10 alchemists look like that?

They got a golden treasure! Should they not be cheering? Why did it look like they had just suffered?

The first person to walk down the Heaven Array was Jackie. Those in front were too emotional and merely stood still like wooden puppets.

Jackie was much calmer than the rest of them. Since they were not moving, he decided to just walk down from the Heaven Array by himself.

The other nine saw that Jackie had walked down and exchanged looks between themselves. They sighed collectively as they walked down the Heaven Array.

The transfer this time had taken about 20 minutes. It had been faster than when they were sent to the competition. In truth, they had not had the chance to compose themselves. After all, they had just experienced an out-of-body expression that they struggled to comprehend.

When Nash walked off the Heaven Array, a few alchemists rushed over to welcome him. After all, Nash was the big contributor, having earned a golden treasure for everyone. Even though they had not participated in the competition, they would still benefit from him.

Before Nash could compose himself, congratulatory words poured out in front of him.

“Congratulations for returning victorious, Nash!”

“I can’t believe you’re so amazing, Nash. I was blind not to see it before!”

“It must not have been easy getting first place. That Ethan guy kept on mocking us so much before this, speaking as though he was the best in the world, but we finally ranked first!”

“That’s right. He won’t be able to show off now. Did you make sure to rub salt on his wound a little?”

Nash’s expression soured even more upon hearing these. If he was not concerned about embarrassing himself in front of everyone else, he would have pushed away everyone in front of him and run out. He did not want to appear in front of them anymore.

Slowly, everyone began taking note of just how bitter Nash looked, much to their bewilderment.

Was he not happy to be congratulated?

He had gotten a golden treasure, for goodness’ sake, and he should be happy!

However, Nash’s mood was strangely heavy, and they felt like something was incredibly off. Meanwhile, Rudeus merely stood behind everyone the whole time with a dark look on his face, not willing to say anything.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3004 -

Chapter 3004
At that moment, Rudeus should be standing in front of everyone and congratulating Nash, yet he was not able to say anything like that. He was not willing to let Nash stand head and shoulders above him. It made him feel a little helpless.

Regardless of how irked he was, his eyes were keen as ever to have noticed Nash’s peculiar expression. In his conflict, he felt helpless as if he had a lot he wanted to say but did not know how to.

Rudeus frowned as he started to walk quickly toward Nash. He pushed away the people trying to butter up Nash and said, “You’re not happy?”

Nash frowned as he looked up at Rudeus. At that moment, Nash looked like he had just swallowed a load of crap and could not spit it out. He looked like he was suffering immensely.

When Rudeus asked that question, Nash's expression soured even more as he said, "I… The person you should be congratulating… Isn't me!"

In truth, Nash wanted to tell them that they were congratulating the wrong person, that it was not him who had gotten the golden treasure, but everyone's gazes were fixed on him at that moment, and he found himself unable to speak clearly.

Rudeus frowned in confusion and unhappiness. "Just speak up. What's up with your expression? Are you so stunned that you don't know what to say after getting the golden treasure?"

Nash's lips stiffened as he paled even more. The other alchemists that participated in the round who were standing behind him had incredibly strange expressions on their faces as well. They seemed to be averting their gazes, looking like they were sick.

At that moment, Jackie walked out from behind everyone. He took out a golden ring from Mustard Seed and placed it on the Heaven Array. That was the golden treasure that Jackie had obtained.

At that moment, there were three rings at the corner of the Heaven Array, a black ring, a bronze ring, and the golden ring which Jackie had brought over. He planned the ring between the two other rings. The golden ring glowed faintly. It was a storage ring that was incredibly vast within and had various incredible resources inside!

Everyone's expressions began to shift at the sight.

Why was the golden treasure in Jackie's hands? Should it not be with Nash?

Just as everyone was confused, Nash could no longer take it as he tossed aside all his earlier awkwardness. "I didn't get the golden treasure. You're congratulating the wrong person. Jackie was the one who got first place and won the golden treasure!"

The moment he said that, all of the alchemists in the inner city fell into a strange silence. Jaws hung open in sheer disbelief, and they even wondered if Nash was crazy. He could not possibly spout such nonsense otherwise!

Rudeus' eyes widened. "What sort of nonsense are you saying? Jackie got first place?! That's a load of crap. How could he even think about getting first place? Just open your eyes and look. He has a sixth-grade alchemist badge on his chest. He's not a seventh-grade alchemist. This kid doesn't have any background or standing, so how could he beat you and get first place?!"

"Fair warning, Nash! Stop joking around, or I'll have to smack some sense into you!"

Chapter 3005

Nash's expression soured even more. Before that, Rudeus might have ordered him around, but Rudeus had never used such nasty words. Nash's skills might not be as good as Rudeus', but he was not someone Rudeus could just humiliate and insult as he pleased.

Nash frowned as he loudly refuted, "How could I be spouting nonsense? If you don't believe me, ask the other alchemists behind me that took part in the seventh round. Ask them if I'm lying!"

At that moment, everyone's gazes fell on the other alchemists from the seventh group. Everyone had strange expressions on their faces, but they knew very well that there was no way to avoid this. Even if they chose to remain silent, the truth would not change. When everyone looked toward them, they gave their most earnest nod, albeit a little forced.

A gray-robed man said helplessly, "Jackie was the one who got first place. He managed to beat Ethan from White Marsh Continent and Emilio from Chaos Continent, getting first place. He got the golden treasure?"

Fearing that people would not believe him, the gray-robed man recited all three of their results, especially Jackie's. The crowd were even more shocked after they heard that, wondering if they were dreaming.

Rudeus was dealt a heavy blow. After he took a few deep breaths, his lips trembled as he snapped, "Impossible! Absolutely impossible! He cheated, he must have! How could he get first place? How could he have beaten the best alchemists from the two other worlds? I don't believe it, I refuse to believe it!"

At that moment, Rudeus spiraled out of control. It was even harder for him to accept that than knowing that Nash had gotten first place.

In truth, Nash getting first place might have shocked Rudeus and made Rudeus jealous, but he could wrap his head around it one way or another. When he knew that Nash had not gotten first place, but Jackie instead, Rudeus could not handle it at all. He did not dare to believe it nor could he.

His breathing quickened as he stared right at Jackie and barked, "You must have done something! How could you have gotten first place? Tell me! How?!"

Jackie furrowed his eyebrows as he looked at Rudeus in exasperation. He knew that Rudeus might not be able to accept the truth, but he never expected Rudeus to end up acting as crazily as Ethan did.

He snorted as he said coolly, “Why do you think I can’t get first place? I’ve already said that I’d get a treasure, yet you remained adamant in believing against it. I don‘t really care if you want to believe it or not.”

Jackie could not be bothered explaining things to Rudeus, nor was he responsible for that. Whether or not Rudeus believed it had nothing to do with him.

Rudeus gulped as his eyes reddened. He looked like he was about to rush forward and fight Jackie to the death, but Nash reached out and pulled him back.

Nash could not possibly stand still and watch Rudeus break the laws. If Rudeus truly failed to control his temper and attacked Jackie, he would immediately be punished. Rudeus would never be able to leave the inner city alive by then!

Nash grabbed Rudeus’ arm tightly, worried that Rudeus would attack Jackie if he managed to break free.

Chapter 3006
“He couldn’t have cheated,” said Nash. “This guy is that strong, there’s no doubt about that. If he hadn’t been there, I would’ve been able to get third place. Yet, I was pushed out of it because he was there, which means the results are right. This is reality, and you have to accept it even if you don’t want to!”

With how Rudeus was at that moment, even if Rudeus accepted that Jackie managed to get first place, Rudeus would not accept that Jackie was powerful. He would even say that the leaders from the other two continents were just too weak.

Nash’s words halted Rudeus’ thoughts. Rudeus might not know how strong the rest of them were, but he knew very well how skilled Nash was, yet Nash only got fourth place!

There was a big gap between Nash and the other three.

In truth, Rudeus was just a hair stronger than Nash. With that comparison, Rudeus could more or less tell. When the others heard what was said, they slowly began to accept that Jackie was just that skilled. Rudeus’ whole body trembled as Nash reached out to pull Rudeus back.

He could not allow Rudeus to stay. No one would know if Rudeus would snap.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not wanting to bother interacting with them too much. He walked away from the center where the most important alchemists were and headed back to his corner.

At that moment, Rudy and Aaron stood upright excitedly.

The one person who could accept that Jackie had gotten first place the most was Rudy. Before Jackie even entered, Rudy was already sure that Jackie would get good results. The truth proved to be just as he thought, and in fact, it was even better than Rudy had thought. Jackie got first place and a golden treasure!

Aaron no longer knew what to say. Even his expressions were a little twisted as he finally understood Rudy’s strange behavior and words from earlier. Rudy’s confidence in Jackie was not baseless.

In fact, Rudy knew that Jackie was that good, hence his confidence. After Aaron understood that, he took a deep breath as he viewed Jackie as though he was a beast.

There had been six groups prior, and 60 incredibly skilled alchemists had entered. Not a single one of them had gotten a golden treasure, but the man in front of him did. His results were even quite a lot better than the second and third place. Jackie was an absolute monster in Aaron's eyes.

Jackie waved at the two of them and sat them down. He retrieved his mat from his storage space and sat in his old spot.

They were still at the fringe of the inner city, but thanks to Jackie, the corner had attracted the attention of all alchemists present. Everyone looked in their direction and constantly talked.

Jackie did not even need to think to know what they were talking about. They were shocked at his skill and curious about where he came from. He did not care about any of that at all. As long as all of them kept to themselves and did not challenge him, they could say what they wanted to.

Rudy lowered his voice and laughed. "It looks like this wasn't hard to you at all!"

Jackie furrowed his eyebrows, shaking his head after thinking about it. "I can't say that it wasn't hard, it's difficult in its own right. It was just that it was easier for me than it was for everyone else…"

Chapter 3007
Rudy continued excitedly, "They took five days, but you only used three. They can't compete with you no matter how you look at it!"

Rudy was over the moon as if he had been the one who had gotten the golden treasure. In truth, he had already come to terms with a lot of things. After all, he was worse than Jackie in many ways possible, so he was a burden for Jackie.

Still, Jackie never thought of giving up on him, causing Rudy to treat Jackie as his brother.

Jackie took a deep breath, frowning as he said, "If it wasn't for the fact that we can't distribute the resources at that moment, I'd leave right now. There's no meaning to being here. The remaining groups are all a complete waste of time."

Rudy raised an eyebrow. After being with Jackie for so long, he knew Jackie's temperament in not wanting to waste time.

After thinking about it, he frowned and said, "How many more days do we need to stay here? I remember that there are a total of eleven groups. There are still so many groups left. Can't we just split up the resources now and leave?"

Jackie shook his head. “The rules are clear, and even with a golden treasure, I can’t change them. I have to accept it.”

Rudy felt helpless after hearing that, but there was nothing he could do.

Time slowly passed.

After Jackie showed his skills, none dared to provoke him nor say anything to him. Even Rudeus, who had acted so arrogantly before, fell silent.

The eighth group started after four hours, and Aaron joined as well. Even though his skills did not amount to much, he was still willing to challenge himself. Despite the fact that Rudeus humiliated him before, no one dared to say anything to him this time since he was always beside Jackie.

It was only after Aaron entered the competition did Jackie start to speak. After all, Aaron was just an outsider to them. There were some things that could not be said in front of him.

Since Aaron was taking part in the competition, Jackie immediately whispered to Rudy, “We better plan our next moves out properly. First of all, we can’t use our actual names, and we’ll have to disguise ourselves. Our identities are already too sensitive. A lot of parties will be eyeballing us once word about what’s happened spreads.”

Rudy had already realized the severity of the matter. He nodded vigorously as he took a deep breath. “It’s only going to get harder from now on. Thankfully, the alchemists in the inner valley of Phoenix Valley don’t know us at all. Even if they look into us, they won’t find anything.”

Jackie nodded, but he did not relax at all. “Even if they don’t know us and can’t find out our true identities for now, we won’t be able to hide it after they return to Phoenix Valley. We shouldn’t just be thinking about the next year; we should be thinking about the future. I don’t think you should ever return to Golden Pills, too, since you may be apprehended.”

Rudy’s expression darkened, immediately realizing that Jackie was right. In the Whirling World, it was impossible to find out who they were due to the various restrictions. However, it would not be so simple once they were out.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3008 -

Chapter 3008
After all, they had been in Phoenix Valley for a long time. As long as their enemies decided to look into it carefully, it would be very easy to find out that they were from Phoenix Valley. Everything else would come spilling out soon afterward. The fact that he was from Golden Pills would no longer be a secret. It seemed like there really was no way for Rudy to go back.

Thinking about that, Rudy felt somewhat hopeless. He had thought that he would be able to return to Golden Pills after two years, living the life he used to have-conflict-free and without dangers. He would be able to live his life peacefully if he kept to himself. Alas, everything seemed to have gone up in smoke, and he could never go back. If he did, he might be captured immediately and might even bring Golden Pills trouble.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he patted Rudy on the shoulder. “Don’t worry. Once we go out, I’ll make arrangements for you. It’ll be fine, even if you can’t go back to Golden Pills. Just go somewhere else. Of course, you still need to keep your identity hidden.”

Rudy nodded vigorously. The person he trusted the most in the world would have to be Jackie. He did not even trust his old master completely, but he trusted Jackie 100 percent. If Jackie was not there, he would already have been dead long ago.

Jackie let out a sigh, already making plans on what to do when they got out.

After a while, Rudy suddenly said, “Should we be looking into Grayson? I feel like we can get a lot of answers from him. Grayson is in the Whirling World. If we have the chance, we should just capture him!”

The moment Grayson was brought up, Rudy seemed completely rabid. Ever since they entered Phoenix Valley, Grayson’s secrets seemed to constantly surround them. Even as they spoke, they had no idea what was happening. The Unbreaking Pavilion suddenly decided to go against them, which definitely had to do with Grayson.

Jackie narrowed his eyes and earnestly thought about it before nodding. “If I get the chance, I won‘t let him go.”

The next four groups did not manage to get anything at all. By the time the eleventh group was over, 10 days had already passed. The Hestia Continent had a total of three treasures, a golden treasure, a bronze treasure, and a black treasure. Compared to the other continents, they did not get much, but it was better than nothing. Furthermore, they had been incredibly lucky to get a golden treasure. When it came to splitting up the resources, Jackie got the first pick.

Everything good had been placed in front of all the alchemists. There were two or three ninth-grade pills. There were also incredibly eye-catching treasures there. In the end, Jackie only chose a soul gem. Compared to the other things there, the value of a soul gem was not that great, but Jackie was firm in his decision. After all, the soul gem was the most valuable to him out of everything there. After this, Jackie would be training in the storm god rank technique, the Soul Sky, and the soul gem would allow him to level up.

After he made his pick, Jackie did not hesitate to bring Rudy out of Prosper City.

After another three days, Jackie brought Rudy to the level six city, the Hundred Beast City. At the plaza in front of the city, Jackie and Rudy had disguised themselves as they planned earlier.

Jackie had chosen a great time to leave Prosper City. Since he had been the first to choose from his treasure, he did not even bother hesitating before he left. If any of them wanted to pursue them, they would miss out on the resources.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3009 -

Chapter 3009
They would lose out on the chance to pick something good for themselves if they left with Jackie.

Taking that chance, Jackie easily brought Rudy away from Prosper City. The moment they left Prosper City's gates, a green light suddenly condensed a token in the air, falling into Jackie's hands. The token's instructions directed him to Hundred Beast City.

After spending three days on foot, Jackie and Rudy arrived at the plaza in front of Hundred Beast City. At that moment, the plaza was empty.

Looking at the empty plaza, Jackie suddenly felt a little odd. After all, the few city plazas before had been full of people. They had to even take a test before they entered, but Hundred Beast City's plaza was vacant.

Rudy raised an eyebrow. "No one's here? Do you not need to take a test before you enter?"

Jackie nodded. "It looks to be the case. Whatever, there's no need to think about it. We should just enter the place and see what the situation is."

Rudy nodded, following behind Jackie as they headed toward Hundred Beast City.

On the walls of Hundred Beast City, various kinds of beasts were carved. Some of the beasts seemed to be acting like humans, while some of the beasts had their teeth bared and acted like complete wild animals.

On both sides of the massive city gates were two statues. Those two statues were incredibly lifelike and looked about as tall as a human. However, their arms had a layer of black paint on them. They had skull masks, but there were no pupils in their eyes. It looked incredibly creepy.

Rudy suddenly felt like Hundred Beast City was incredibly evil. Just as the two of them were about to enter the city, the two statues suddenly moved. Rudy was so frightened that he shrieked and hid behind Jackie. His breathing quickened as his whole body shook in fear.

Jackie was immediately on full alert as well. He retrieved his gray sword from his storage space, clutching it in his hand tightly.

“Fear not, for we are the caretakers of Thousand Beast City. Produce fifty thousand spirit crystals to enter,” spoke the caretaker that wore a skeleton mask.

Jackie heard him speak and immediately reacted, giving the caretaker a once-over.

That skeleton-masked caretaker did not look like a human at all, no matter how one looked at it. Instead, it looked like a human that had turned into a demon. Upon closer inspection, Jackie was shocked to notice that the caretaker’s body was exchanging energies with the Hundred Beast City.

Hundred Beast City was slowly letting out energy, and the caretaker’s body was slowly pulsing with energy as well. There were two energies that were intersecting in the air. While Jackie did not understand what he was seeing, it confirmed what the caretaker was saying.

It seemed like he was indeed the caretaker of Hundred Beast City. However, after acknowledging it, Jackie felt even more confused.

Hundred Beast City had a caretaker?

He had thought that there would no longer be any signs of life left in the Whirling World after so many years. However, it was not the time to dwell on that.

After Jackie took a deep breath, he retrieved 100000 spirit crystals from Mustard Seed, handing them to the caretaker.

The caretaker took the spirit crystals and nodded at Jackie, retrieving two entry tokens from his storage space and placed them in Jackie’s palm.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3010 -

Chapter 3010
After doing all of that, the two caretakers stepped back, reverting to their earlier motionless state. If it was not for everything that happened earlier, Jackie would have thought that the two caretakers were just statues.

At that moment, Rudy had recovered from his fear and felt like he had embarrassed himself with his overreaction. He had just been like a scared rabbit, only knowing how to hide behind Jackie. He was not masculine at all.

Jackie looked at the city entry token in his hand. To be more precise, it was the entry token to the outer city.

After that, he looked at Rudy and said, “There’s no need to be afraid anymore. Let’s just get in.”

After saying that, the entry token in his hand suddenly glowed in white, and a sea of information entered Jackie‘s mind. There was information on the various rules of the outer city. He frowned as a flash of emotion was seen in his eyes. He started to get even more excited for Hundred Beast City.

The inside of the city was separated from the outside by a barrier. Only by getting past that barrier would they enter Hundred Beast City. The two of them had just passed the barrier when noise assaulted their ears.

“Why is it so noisy?!” yelled Rudy, though his voice was barely heard with such clamor.

What greeted them was a sea of people. They did not know how many people were gathered in Hundred Beast City, but all of them seemed to be incredibly excited, shouting out crazily. Everyone seemed visibly excited. Upon closer inspection, some bloodlust could be seen in their expressions, too.

Rudy gulped as he reached out and grabbed Jackie’s arm.

He shouted at Jackie, “There wasn’t a single person outside the city, so why are there so many people inside? There are tens of thousands of people here!”

Jackie sighed, answering loudly, “You underestimated everything. There are at least a hundred thousand people here!”

The moment he said that, Rudy’s eyes widened as he shouted, “What did you say? A hundred thousand? Why are there so many people?! This is a level-six city, not a level-nine city! There are so many warriors stuck in the outer cities, so why are there so many people gathered in Hundred Beast City? There were clearly only the two of us when we entered…”

Rudy was confused and shocked at that moment, swearing that it was desolate outside the city. Looking at the over hundred thousand people gathered there, he did not understand how there were this many people inside. No one even entered!

Jackie frowned as he answered after a long time, “We might have just been looking at an illusion just now…”

Rudy was stunned when he heard that. He was even more confused as he sputtered, “What do you mean? What we saw earlier was an illusion? It felt so real.”

Jackie still looked calm, not knowing how to explain it at that moment. He had only said that because of his intuition, feeling as though they were not seeing reality at that time.

Since he could not explain, Jackie said, “Let’s not dwell on that problem. What we need to think about is how we can benefit even more from Hundred Beast City and get even more.”

Rudy still wanted to get to the bottom of it, but since Jackie had said that, it would just annoy Jackie if he continued asking. With that, he decided to hold back his questions for the moment.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3011 - 3015

Chapter 3011
The noise got louder and louder making Jackie feel like it was way too annoying. What he hated the most was noise, but there was nothing he could do about it.

“Why are the odds one to three and a half for the beast, but when it comes to me it’s one to six? Even though you’re a caretaker, you shouldn’t be too excessive. Do you think I’m that weak? I have full confidence in dealing with those beasts. You’re just looking down on me! ” A burly man with a mustache shouted at a caretaker unhappily.

There were countless warriors in the outer city, and countless caretakers as well. The caretakers all looked the same, from what they were and what masks they had.

They did not have pupils, nor did they react at all to the man shouting at him. “These are the rules. If you don’t follow the rules, you’ll be dealt with immediately!”

The man looked like a frightened mouse and immediately shrank back the moment he said that. As soon as he heard the word ‘rules’, all of his hatred and unhappiness disappeared.

The skull-masked caretaker said to all of the warriors behind him, “The warrior’s odds are one to six, the beast’s odds are one to three and a half! Place your bet and leave, bets are open now!”

The moment he said that, the warriors gathered behind him with spirit crystals in their hands as they frantically started placing bets. Spirit crystals flooded the table.

The excited warriors did not really care about spirit crystals at all at that point. They were tempted to gamble their entire fortune away. Five thousand spirit crystals were thrown out like it was nothing, betting on the beasts. Most of the warriors had their money on the beast. The ones who thought the warrior would win were only a fraction in number. Only those who really wanted to take a risk would put their money on the warrior.

After all, the warrior’s odds were one to six. If the warrior really exceeded expectations and won, then they would stand to earn a lot!

The man looked at everyone frantically betting on the beasts, and his face soured quickly.

He angrily looked at those people and said, “You’re just a bunch of short sigh ted people! That birdlike beast is nothing. I’ll be able to defeat it in ten moves. Just you wait, I’ll win and show all of you that you don’t know what you’ re looking at!”

If he was not afraid of angering all the warriors there, he would have said some even nastier words. While waiting for them, the man got angrier and angrier. He turned around and left the betting area, heading toward the colosseum!

Looking at that scene had Rudy feeling a little numb. The entry tokens were still in Jackie's hands, so Rudy did not know what was happening at all.

Jackie let out a smile as he pointed at that colosseum and said, "You see that massive crowd? Beneath the spectator stands is the Colosseum just like the one in Thousand Leaves City. The colosseum is surrounded by spectator stands. It was designed in a circular fashion from the bottom to the top. The stage is not meant for battles between people, but battles between humans and beasts, that's why it's called a colosseum!"

Jackie pointed at the colosseum and said, "The outer city has a total of thirty- three colosseums, and each colosseum can fit three thousand and three hundred people. It's practically all full. Outside of each colosseum will be a designated betting area. Each betting area is occupied by caretakers. Warriors can place bets based on what they want!"

Chapter 3012
After that explanation, Rudy slowly understood things. He looked around and counted, and did see a total of thirty-three colosseums. Each colosseum had a betting area in front of them.

On average, each betting area had ten caretakers. The battles within the colosseum were intense, while outside of the colosseum, the warriors were crazily betting on their savings. It was no wonder that everyone looked crazy and bloodthirsty.

Everyone was shouting frantically. Hundred Beast City really did seem like an incredibly evil place. The warriors were frantic and the battles were intense. Death occurred constantly, and the colosseums were all stained red.

Rudy gulped, feeling a chill across his entire body. For other warriors, the atmosphere excites them. They loved the frantic atmosphere, were not afraid of death and merely looked for even stronger people. However, for someone like Rudy, he could only feel fear from the bottom of his heart.

Rudy's lips trembled slightly, "If you weren't here, I would have turned around and run. It would have felt challenging to you, but all I feel is fear!"

Jackie turned to look at him and said, "I don't feel challenged at all. I just feel like the people here have been infected by the crazed atmosphere."

The moment he heard that, they heard a collective exclamation in front of them. The tightly packed crowd suddenly parted to form a man-wide path.

Jackie and Rudy looked over at the same time. They saw a man in black clothes with an incredibly handsome face walk forward. His head held high, carrying a hint of pride on his face. He walked through the pathway that was formed. Other than the fact that he had a badge on his chest, he did not look that different from anyone else. When the person walked over, the discussions around them got louder.

“When can I get three wins in a row and get a black iron medal for myself? If I get one of those, I definitely won’t have it on my chest. I’d stick it on my head!”

“Oh please! Can you please have some self-awareness? You’re great at nothing but saying embarrassing things!”

“Is it that embarrassing? Don’t tell me you won’t show off if you get a black iron medal.”

“Of course, I would, but that’s something you can only get if you win three rounds in a row. Even disciples of high-grade clans would show respect to warriors with black iron medals! If I had one, I would definitely show off, but I won’t be as embarrassing as you.”

The two of them bicker with one another, not holding back their words. It was as if they were about to fight at any moment. After Rudy heard their discussions, he widened his eyes, his face was full of confusion.

He turned to look at Jackie. Jackie let out a laugh as he patiently explained, “When someone wins three rounds in a row in the colosseum, they will be awarded a medal. It’s the black iron medal that person is wearing. It’s a proof of individual ability, those who acquired a black iron medal won’t just be able to show it off, but they will also be able to enter the central city as well.”

Rudy raised an eyebrow, feeling even more curious, “The central city? Where is that? Is that in Hundred Beast City or outside of it?”

Jackie patiently explained, “It’s in Hundred Beast City. Hundred Beast City is split into three areas, the outer city, central city, and inner city. You need to win two rounds to enter the central city.”

Chapter 3013
When Rudy heard that, he slowly understood. He thought about it before saying, “If you want to enter the central city, you only need to win two rounds. There‘s no need for consecutive wins, but a black iron medal requires three wins in a row. It sounds incredibly difficult!”

Jackie nodded slightly.

Rudy turned to look at where the person was going. At that moment, the person had already disappeared into the crowd.

He frowned and sighed, “No wonder everyone reacted so much after seeing that medal on his chest. It looks like it’s something incredibly difficult to acquire for any ordinary person! “

Jackie nodded as he turned around, looking at where that person disappeared, “It’s definitely not easy. You don’t know the rules, but winning in the colosseum is already something that’s not easy. Not only do you need to be skilled enough, but you also need to be lucky too.”

The moment he said that, Rudy felt even more curious.

Jackie was in no hurry to explain, and instead patted Rudy on the shoulder, pulling him toward the thirteenth colosseum.

At that moment, an intense battle had just ended in that colosseum. Fresh blood littered the stage as a corpse that had been ripped apart by a beast lay on the battlefield in a horrible state. The stench of blood was difficult to bear, but the colosseum had already gotten used to that sight. The warriors in the spectator merely let out a few condolences.

After entering the thirteenth colosseum, Jackie pulled Rudy toward the front of the spectator stand. This time, he did not plan on staying in a corner. After all, he had already disguised himself and changed his name. No one would know that he was Jackie.

Rudy looked at the corpse that was filled with wounds. His lips trembled slightly. That corpse looked completely mutilated. There was not a single area that was in a good state. It was full of claw marks. Bone could be seen through many of the wounds.

After the battle ended, the beast turned into energy, absorbed by the laws of the stage. Their timing had been quite bad. They could not see what sort of beast it was that ripped someone apart to that degree.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, “Looks like that guy wasn’t lucky… He’s also not skilled enough, that’s why he died in such a bad state. If he was just a bit luckier, he might have been able to get off the stage alive even if he was not skilled.”

Rudy looked at Jackie curiously, “What do you mean by luck?”

Jackie looked at the corpse that was being carried off by the skull-masked caretaker. Those caretakers were like emotionless machines. No matter how horrible the situation was, they did not have a reaction at all. They mechanically brought the body away and cleaned up the colosseum. The stage that had been soaked with the stench of blood was once again completely clean. It did not seem like anything had happened at all.

Jackie sighed as he started to explain, “The rules of the colosseum are complicated, yet simple. The warriors who participate need to choose from five beasts. Of the five beasts, some are strong and some are weak. If you pick up a weaker beast, not only would you save yourself from being ripped apart, you would even be able to win. Some people are just unlucky, and end up picking the stronger beasts and end up being killed by them.”

After listening to the rules of the colosseum, Rudy’s mouth opened wide in shock. No wonder it was a colosseum. No wonder everyone seemed to be so excited by all the blood and gore.

Thinking about that, Rudy turned around and looked at the betting area. The place was already filled with people. Quite a lot of them had already used up their entire fortunes placing bets, but it did nothing to diminish their passion.

Chapter 3014
Rudy frowned, mumbling out, “No wonder there‘s a specialized betting area. Luck is so important, it would definitely stir up their gambling spirits.”

Jackie nodded, “In truth, a huge part of the reason why everyone is so crazy in Hundred Beast City is that the results aren’t just about skill, but luck as well. With good luck, even a crazy bet can win you a lot of spirit crystals. Your fortunes can increase by several times in just a moment. If someone bets on a warrior with 1 to 4 odds and they end up winning, his spirit crystals would quadruple in value. Just thinking about it would drive you crazy, no wonder everyone’s acting like this.”

Speaking of that, there was a hint of exasperation in Jackie’s tone.

On the way over, he had seen many warriors with different emotional states. Some of them were so happy that they were full of tears, excitedly dancing around. It was because they had won and gotten a lot of spirit crystals. Some of them were sobbing to the point where they were completely emotionless. They looked like they had completely lost all hope in life. It was because they had lost the bets, and their entire fortune.

What they had saved for many years was all gone just like that. They could not accept it. After all, the laws of Hundred Beast City were plain for all to see. No one had the power or ability to go against the laws of Hundred Beast City.

Rudy shook his head as he said seriously, “It’s just too crazy! I feel like everyone is slowly losing their perspective on life and death.”

Jackie nodded, not continuing to speak.

Time did not stop for anyone, even for a moment. After the stage had been cleaned up, the next battle started immediately. A masked caretaker slowly walked onto the stage.

At that moment, he held a scroll in his black hands as he walked to the center of the stage. He immediately unfurled the scroll, letting out a radiant golden light.

Five massive figures appeared in the air. Five of those figures looked different. Some were forty feet long and floated in the air, some were only the size of a person. The images represented different kinds of beasts.

Rudy widened his eyes as he looked at the five beasts. He suddenly did not know what to say. At that moment, he was too excited. He did not recognize a single one of the beasts. He had liked to read ancient books before. He learned about quite a lot of beasts from those books, but he had never seen those beasts before.

He could not help but turn to look around at everyone.

Jackie had a calm expression on his face, not showing much emotion. Rudy scanned his surroundings, he could see more or less the same expressions. No one knew those beasts.

Rudy frowned and said, “Jackie, do you know what those beasts are?”

Jackie sighed, doing his best to not have anyone hear him.

“I do, but only two of them. The one on the right seems like a three-legged golden bird beast. It‘s called a flying quill. The one in the middle is a fire and ice wolf. Those two beasts are normally in second-grade worlds…”

Rudy was surprised at Jackie’s words and said, “I was just asking, but I didn’t expect you to know. Jackie, you really are amazing. You’re not just strong, but smart as well. You even know beasts from second-grade worlds.”

Chapter 3015
Jackie’s lips twitched, not saying anything. After all, his secrets would be exposed if he continued to explain.

He could only recognize those two beasts because of the memories he inherited. However, even with the memories he inherited, he could only recognize two beasts out of the five there. Even incredible heroes from the first- grade world, the Divine Void World did not recognize every beast there was. After all, there were a few thousand first-grade worlds, let alone second-grade and third-grade worlds which were even more numerous.

There were countless beasts in every world. Adding up all the beasts from every world, there would be at least billions of them.

Rudy said, “Are these the images they need to fight in the next round?”

Jackie nodded, “The warrior that‘s about to fight will need to pick one of those five beasts. The five beasts have varying degrees of strength, but their realm has been restricted to the late stage of the innate realm. No matter which beast is chosen, it‘s considered fair. After all, we’re all restricted to the same level!”

Rudy nodded, lamenting, “Who set these rules? It’s both ingenious and interesting, and it can also stir the spirit of the warriors. Evert if it will make them more impulsive, warriors need their recklessness.

“When a warrior‘s strength reaches its peak, he‘ll be able to discover his complete potential. I think the person who designed the city must have had this in mind.”

Jackie nodded, agreeing with Rudy’s thoughts, “I’m now even more curious about the designers of the Whirling World. What sort of hero had his hands on it? I can’t imagine how strong the person who designed this place must have been. Not only did he design the skill-testing cities, but also constantly searched for warriors with potential. Those who are strong are even able to get various valuables…”

Rudy blinked and said, “That‘s right. The ones who are strong will slowly get stronger and stronger, while the weak will only get weaker. it really is survival of the fittest here.”

Saying that, Rudy’s expression was a little sad. He felt like he was undoubtedly at the bottom of this world. If Jackie had not been helping him or brought him along, there was no way he could have entered a level six city.

He would not have even made it into a level eight city, let alone a level six one. He would not have experienced so much!

After that, he looked at the five beasts and said, “Isn’t the person who set the rules worried that those beasts will be recognized at all? If someone happens to be as smart as you and knows a lot, wouldn’t it be unfair that they knew those beasts and knew which one was weaker?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, turning to look at Rudy. He had a firm tone as he said, “Don’t worry. In the whole city, no one will recognize any of these beasts other than me.”

Jackie’s firm tone caused Rudy to be even more confused.

He looked up curiously and asked, “Why are you so sure? I’m not doubting what you’ re saying, I just feel like the world is so vast. There are all sorts of people. There might be someone who knows just as much as you do, and can recognize a few beasts from the five?”

Jackie shook his head incredibly resolutely after hearing that, “There won’t be. It’s absolutely impossible.”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3016 - 3020

Chapter 3016
The reason why he managed to recognize two of the five beasts was not because he was incredibly knowledgeable, but because he had memories of two heroes in his mind.

Those ancient warriors had lived for tens of thousands of years, going to countless worlds and reading numerous books. Even with all those conditions, Jackie only recognized two of the five beasts.

None of the warriors there were older than sixty years old. None of them had been to another world before as well. No matter how much knowledge they had, there was no way they would know about those beasts. After all, those beasts had never appeared on Hestia Continent before.

They lived in second-grade worlds, and not every second-grade world had them. They only existed in a few of those worlds. With those conditions in place, there was no way they could ever recognize those beasts.

The caretakers let out a cold announcement after showing those beasts, “The hundred and seventh battle. The challenger is Lesley King! You have five minutes to choose one of these five beasts to fight you. After you finish choosing, everyone can place their bets in the betting area. I am sure all of you are clear with the rules and there’s no need for me to go into detail.”

After the caretaker finished his sentence, he turned around and walked off the stage. A disciple from the Deer Pavilion then walked onto the stage with an excited look on his face.

That person was Lesley. Lesley looked at the beasts in the air. Before Lesley chose a beast, they would not disappear.

“Surely all of you know Lesley! He’s a chosen disciple from the Deer Pavilion. I heard that his standing back home was very high. His master is the head elder of the Deer Pavilion. Not only is he a disciple of the head elder, but he‘s also related to the elder. He was heavily nurtured since he was young, and had a very easy path his whole life. Don’t look down on the Deer Pavilion for being a seventh-grade clan, everyone knows that the Deer Pavilion is just a sliver away from becoming an eighth-grade clan.”

“He is definitely quite talented as well. If Lesley was in an eighth-grade clan, he should at least be top five among the inner disciples. With his skills, it should be easy for him to win!”

“I feel like he’ll definitely win as well. After he picks the beast and the betting is open, I’ll place my bet on him. I happen to have fifty thousand spirit crystals left. I’ll place all of them on him. I should be able to make a small fortune even if the odds aren’t good.”

“I plan on betting too. Let’s go together later. I wonder if the odds will be good. There were quite a few disciples from high-grade clans who only had minuscule odds earlier. Evert if there were rewards to be made, it would still be just a small amount. If the odds are good, I plan on placing as much as fifty thousand on him!”

“It’s a pity that the highest bet you cart make in the outer city is fifty thousand. If there was no limit, I would put my whole fortune on him. Even though I don’t like the Deer Pavilion, I have to admit that disciples from high-grade clans rarely disappoint. Talent is talent in the end. They are all definitely strong. I can’t just ignore the fact…”

“It’s good that there’s an upward limit, or you’d be seeing people committing suicide. Those gambling addicts would probably gamble away everything they had.”

“Don’t you feel like the rules are quite amazing? Not only are they preventing people from wasting all their money in one go, but it also allows most people to keep on gamble.”

Chapter 3017
Hearing the discussions around them, Rudy’s eyebrows remained furrowed, barely relaxing. His lips twitched as he turned to look at Jackie.

Jackie remained the same as usual, without a change in his expression.

There were some things that Rudy had not wanted to say, but he could no longer stand it. He looked at Jackie and did his best to lower his voice, “Do you think a betting area is good or bad for the warriors?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, thinking about it for a while before he replied in a low voice, “It’s more bad than good, but there are obviously many benefits for Hundred Beast City. With a fifty thousand limit, the warriors might participate in the bets, but it won’t cost them their whole fortunes. Then, the warriors can continue placing bets. Since it’s gambling, there are definitely winners and losers, but I’m sure that there are definitely more losers than winners. A lot of spirit crystals must have been taken by Hundred Beast City. They probably manage to accumulate tens of millions every day…”

Saying that, Jackie had a look of envy in his eyes. If he was able to earn so many spirit crystals every day, then he would not need to be worried about the ninth-grade crystals at all. After all, no matter how expensive the ninth-grade crystals were, each of them should only be around 100 million at most.

Rudy frowned, “Why does Hundred Beast City need so many spirit crystals? Could Hundred Beast City have someone who needs spirit crystals to train with?”

Jackie did not answer him immediately after that question, and instead thought for a while before saying, “Who knows? It’s a possibility, but. it’s not definitive. I have my own guesses. Every large array needs a lot of spirit crystals releasing energy to be used. I’m guessing that the spirit crystals are meant to maintain the Whirling World. Of course, that’s just a guess. I don’t know if it’s true or not.”

Rudy suddenly widened his eyes, saying emotionally, “It’s very possible. I feel like what you said should be the truth. How could I not think of that before? There are countless cities in the Whirling World. There are multiple arrays in every city. Since they are arrays, they naturally need power. The power can be absorbed naturally, but if the consumption is too big, the ambient energy might not be enough to sustain the arrays. They would need large amounts of spirit crystals! Spirit crystals are basically storages of pure energy after all. That guess should be right.”

Rudy could not stop himself from looking up into the sky. There was a gentle breeze in the air, and the sky was full of clouds. They could not even see the hot sun. Ever since they entered the Whirling World, he had never seen the sun or the moon at all, but night and day were clearly separated. There had been a lot of things happening, so Rudy never had the time to wonder how the Whirling World truly operated.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, patting Rudy on the shoulder as he nodded forward, “Let’s put those thoughts aside for now. Lesley seems to have already made his choice…”

At that moment, Lesley seemed quite anxious. It looked like he was incredibly conflicted, but no matter how conflicted he was at that moment, it could not help Lesley pick out the weakest beast at all.

He had to bet on his luck Even though the beasts all looked different, there was no way to use that to determine how strong they were. Some beasts were half the height of a normal man but were able to kill high-grade disciples in just one move.

Chapter 3018
Some beasts were dozens of feet tall and looked like they could destroy small mountains with a punch. Yet, their actual capabilities were incredibly weak and pitiful. With enough time, even wandering warriors could defeat them. Hence, unless Lesley knew the beasts well and what the beasts were capable of, dwelling on it was just a waste of time. In the end, just picking one by intuition was the way to go.

Lesley let out a sigh as his face paled a little. His eyes were focused on the flying quill. The flying quill looked like a three-legged golden bird but was incredibly colorful. It looked much prettier than a three-legged golden bird.

Lesley did not know what a flying quill was, but he knew that flying beasts were usually weaker. He felt like flying beasts were usually less adept at combat. However, at the final moment of selection, he chose the frostfire wolf!

When Lesley pointed at the frostfire world, the other four beasts suddenly disappeared. The frostfire wolf's figure slowly solidified. In a few moments, it let out a howl that resounded throughout the colosseum. An incredibly ferocious aura came from the wolf.

Earlier, Jackie had said that the beast in the middle was called the frostfire wolf.

When Rudy saw that Lesley had chosen the frostfire wolf, Rudy looked at Jackie excitedly and said, "He chose the frostfire wolf! Is it strong or not? Will it be stronger than Lesley?"

After he said that, Rudy shook his head, "It shouldn't be able to beat Lesley. After all, Lesley came from the Deer Pavilion and was even a chosen disciple. They said earlier that Lesley had a relationship with the head elder of the Deer Pavilion. The elder must have spent a lot of resources on Lesley. With so many resources on him, this kid shouldn't be bad!"

After all, he's a chosen disciple from one of the best seventh-grade clans. In terms of the whole Hestia Continent, he's considered quite outstanding. If he loses in the first round, it would be too crazy. Most warriors were average in skill. Those who lost were probably on the weaker end. When Jackie heard his words, Jackie let out a small laugh as a strange look flashed in his eyes.

At that moment, the skull-masked caretaker waved at the spectators, "The betting will begin! The warrior will payout 1 to 3, while the beast's payout is 1 to 3.2!"

Those odds got everyone quite emotional. They never expected the odds would be as high. In their minds, Lesley would definitely win.

If the results went as planned, then they would be able to make a hundred and fifty thousand spirit crystals by throwing in fifty thousand spirit crystals. Even though the beast's odds were better, the margin was negligible.

At that moment, the crowd was incredibly excited. The high odds caused everyone's gambling spirits to soar. All the warriors that still had money left rushed toward the betting area!

Rudy looked at Jackie emotionally, pointing at the betting area, "We should go over as well. We're already here anyway, so we should just take part. Fifty thousand spirit crystals are nothing to you. It doesn't matter whether you win or lose."

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he nodded and laughed. To Jackie at that moment, fifty thousand spirit crystals really were nothing. After all, he had won a million spirit crystals from Ethan. On top of his earlier savings, he had a few million on him. Those spirit crystals were enough for him to bet for several days.

To Jackie, it really was an insignificant sum. The two of them followed the rest to the betting area. Everyone had their money pouches out. Just as Jackie had thought, most of them were betting on Lesley.

Chapter 3019
The noise caused Jackie to frown. Thanks to the odds, everyone's spirits were burning as they discussed amongst themselves excitedly, "Why are the odds so good this time? The earlier few matches were all only less than two. This time, it's at three. The beast and the warrior's odds are not too different either. Anyone who likes gambling will be betting on this!"

"That's right. My fellow disciple is feeling incredibly frustrated in the spectator stands right now because he doesn't have any more spirit crystals. This is such a good chance. If we don't bet on this, we will regret later on. My senior even asked to borrow my spirit crystals, but I don't even have much left myself…"

"We'll definitely win this time! I know Lesley. He's very strong. He was given the best resources from a young age and he's related to the head elder of the Deer Pavilion. The head elder must have put in a lot of effort into raising him. After all, they're family! With so many advantages, there's no way he' 3 weak!"

"That's right! Lesley should be at the upper end of the warriors who entered the Whirling World. Even if he's still not as strong as the chosen disciples from eighth-grade clans, he shouldn't be that far off from them. Someone like him should be able to win as long as he fights normally. Black iron medals were prepared for people like him!"

The moment the black iron medals were brought up, the discussions got even crazier. These warriors all admired those who had black iron medals. Not only did black iron medals prove that the person was skilled, but they also proved that they were lucky.

Any time they saw someone with a black iron medal, their eyes would light up in jealousy and envy. Rudy took a deep breath. There were a few thousand people in front of him. By the time he could place a bet, two hours probably have passed. However, it did not cause Rudy to get anxious. Instead, Rudy got even more excited. From the initial fear and the later calm, it was followed by his current excitement. Slowly, Rudy was being swallowed up by the atmosphere, stirring his gambler's heart.

Fifty thousand spirit crystals were not that much for alchemists, so even Rudy could afford it. Rudy smiled and said, "No wonder there's no test to enter Hundred Beast City, you just need to pay the fee! If I was the one to set the rules, I would have done the same too."

Jackie laughed in amusement, "If you were the one setting the rules, you probably wouldn't even have thought of this."

Rudy's lips stiffened, wanting to retort. Yet, after thinking about it, he felt like Jackie was right. If he really had been the one setting the rules, he would probably not have thought about that!

Rudy frowned as the thought flashed in his mind. After thinking about it, he turned to look at Jackie, "Why don't we just place our bets together? If we win, you get the spirit crystals. I just want to have some fun. After all, I will end up listening to you on who to bet."

Jackie turned to look at Rudy, shaking his head immediately, "You can bet with me, but it's up to you how much you want to bet. If we win, just take the spirit crystals. There's no need for you to try to show your loyalty like that. Do you think I care about this amount?"

Jackie's words successfully tossed Rudy's thoughts aside. Rudy had said that because he felt like he had been useless to Jackie the whole time, and felt apologetic. As long as he could help Jackie, even if it was just for a bit of profit, he would be willing to do it. However, Rudy felt like he really had been a little too anxious after hearing that.

With his resources, Jackie would not care about that amount of spirit crystals at all.

As time passed, the group in front of him slowly dwindled to only about a hundred left. They started to be able to see what was happening in the betting area. Everyone was in an incredibly heated mood, but even though the atmosphere was very exhilarating, it did not affect the caretakers at all. They merely instructed everyone coldly and mechanically. The caretakers were completely emotionless.

At that moment, Jackie could see Lesley standing toward the east. There were five or six disciples from the Deer Pavilion around him.

Chapter 3020
The Deer Pavilion's disciples all had their backs straightened, but all of them had their arms crossed as well. They looked at everyone with disdain in their eyes. Even though the Deer Pavilion was not a top clan in Middle Province, they still stood at the peak of seventh-grade clans.

They were only a sliver away front becoming an eighth-grade clan. There were so many warriors there, and most of them could not compare to the disciples of the Deer Pavilion. Even if some did not like the disciples from the Deer Pavilion, they would still choose to shut their mouths to prevent any trouble.

The disciples from the Deer Pavilion were great at looking down on those lower than them. When they saw warriors wearing clothes from higher-grade clans, they would immediately wipe away their looks of disdain and put on a smile, as if they had seen a long-lost friend. However, when it came to clans that were lower than them or wandering warriors, their looks would immediately change into looks of incredible disdain.

The closer Jackie got to them, the more they could see how those people enjoyed trampling over those who were lower than thorn. Rudy hated people like that. Even though he once used to be like them, he had experienced so much that the bad habit had been wiped away.

Rudy pursed his lips, whispering into Jackie's ear, "These guys are too much. Look at them, they're not even bothered to hide their expressions. They're just trying to trample all over anyone they can. It's disgusting! They aren't afraid of karma coming back to bite them at all…"

Jackie laughed when he heard that, "No one would dare to break the rules after all. This isn't somewhere you can fight each other. The first person to attack will just end up being punished by the rules. There are plenty of people like this. Even though Deer Pavilion isn't some major clan, they can't be completely ignored. Those who aren't at their level might not. like them but are still forced to bear with them… After all, they're just throwing judgmental glances. If they don't do anything excessive, then the disciples from the bigger Clans would not bother with them at all. So, most of the warriors are forced to just bear with it."

Rudy scrunched up his nose as he said unhappily, "They'll pay for it eventually. They'll be taught a lesson!"

Jackie frowned, saying after a moment, "I just hope that they won't have anything to do with us and that we don't need to be the ones teaching them a lesson."

After he said that, Rudy was taken aback as he looked at Jackie in confusion.

Jackie had clearly seemed to have anticipated something. He sighed lightly but did not explain too much.

At that moment, Lesley suddenly said loudly, "There's more of this filth. I wonder where you got the courage to bet fifty thousand spirit crystals on the beast. Do you think the beast can beat me?"

In front of the betting area, a man in green robes was so angered that his right hand started to tremble slightly.

Earlier, Lesley's words had clearly been targeted at that green-robed man. The man had just decided to throw a wild gamble. He merely wanted to try out his luck and win a hundred and fifty thousand spirit crystals. Even though a hundred and fifty thousand spirit crystals was not an astronomical number, it was still something quite substantial for that man. That was why he ended up betting on the beast. Yet, his actions had clearly angered Lesley who had just been quietly standing by the side.

Lesley seemed to have been deeply insulted, feeling like the green-robed man’s action was a slap to his face.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3021 -

Chapter 3021
Lesley let out a cold snort as he narrowed his eyes, measuring the green-robed man up and down. His anger from the very start turned into raw contempt as he said with a cold laugh, “Wandering warriors really are all dumb. Looking at what you’re wearing, it’s obvious that you’re not from any clan. You should just be one of the luckier wandering warriors. Someone like you just likes choosing something against the flow to show that you’re special. You’re actually just making a fool of yourself!”

The green-robed man’s expression darkened as he started to look at Lesley furiously. Lesley had not held back with his words at all, cursing the man out. Even if the man really was a wandering warrior without any affiliation, the man could still not bear to be insulted like that.

He took a deep breath and turned around to face Lesley, “Is there a rule that says that I have to bet on you? Betting how much and on who is a warrior’s personal choice. What does it have to do with you? There were a few people before who betted on the beast as well, so why didn‘t you say anything? Instead, you’re acting like you’ve been deeply insulted just because I’m betting on the beast, jumping out just to fault me!”

The more the man spoke, the angrier he got. Even if he had no clan, there were still various rules and restrictions in the Whirling World which meant that they could not just do whatever they pleased. It was because of that, the green-robed man dared to say his thoughts.

Those words alone did not manage to fully vent his frustrations.

He started to shout, “I know why you didn’t say anything to them. It’s because they come from a larger clan. You’re only daring to talk to me like this because I don’t have a clan behind me!”

The people there were no idiots. All of them knew that the green-robed man was speaking the truth. Those disciples from the Deer Pavilion were only good at bullying those who were beneath them. They only target those who were worse off than them and tried their best to curry favor with their superiors. Even if Hestia Continent is a place that embraced survival of the fittest, their actions were really despicable!

Lesley‘s expression darkened immediately. He never expected that the wandering warrior would dare to say something like that.

Lesley let out a cold laugh as he narrowed his eyes, “Very well! Since you’ve dared to come to the Deer Pavilion, you’d better remember this. From now on, you’re an enemy of the Deer Pavilion! I assure you, there’s no way you’re leaving the Whirling World alive. You’ll end up rotting in the Whirling World as a corpse!”

Lesley did not hold back from his threats. He looked like he did not care about what anyone else would think about that This person had challenged his dignity, so Lesley would not let the man off!

The green-robed man trembled slightly. Even if the man was furious, he still had some rationality.

Lesley's tone had been incredibly cold when he said that. There was not much emotion on his face. It meant that he had been calm and sure that he would pull it off. It seemed like the man's future was not. looking that bright. He might need to live in hiding from then on. The man's lips stiffened as his earlier anger suddenly disappeared completely.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3022 -

Chapter 3022
The fact that he had survived for so long without a clan was enough to prove that he was both lucky and somewhat skilled. At that moment, he did not dare to speak back at all. He was forced to swallow all his anger as he hurriedly turned around, not even looking back as he left the betting area.

At that moment, everyone around him looked at his retreating back. Everyone could only silently curse in their hearts, feeling disgusted at Lesley's actions. Yet, no one said anything at that moment.

When Rudy saw that, there was a look of doubt on his face. He whispered to Jackie, "Why do I feel like they're getting more and more scared? Do you still remember how the wandering warriors challenged the Unbreaking Pavilion's disciples in Thousand Leaves City? Then, there were so many people in the spectator stands, and most of them were shouting at the disciples from the Compass Pavilion. The Compass Pavilion is even higher up than the Deer Pavilion. The warriors had dared to speak out like that even to a clan that's at a higher level… Yet, all of them are acting like cowards right now, not daring to say a single thing. After being threatened, he was forced to run off with his tail between his legs…"

Rudy could not understand the attitude of the warriors there. He felt like there should not have been such a huge difference.

Could the warriors that had been eliminated be the ones that were the bravest?

Even though the warriors there were more skilled, they seemed more cowardly.

In Jackie's eyes, the situation should have been reversed. After all, the warriors that are gathered at Hundred Beast City should all have already gone through many tests before making it here.

Hundred Beast City was a level six city. Only warriors with intense dignity would want to strengthen themselves, so they should not have reacted like that.

Rudy could not understand at all.

Hearing Rudy's words, Jackie laughed as he narrowed his eyes at Lesley's position. He then said, "The situation is different. There would naturally be two different results. There had been so many spectators in Thousand Leaves City. It was practically full of warriors. During that time, everyone was incredibly excited. They had incredible numbers as well.

"They would naturally voice out their opinions against the Compass Pavilion. The situation this time is different. Everyone's queued up and not far away from Lesley. It would be very easy for Lesley to catch any one of them out and target them. No one is willing to be the one being sacrificed."

When Jackie explained it that way, Rudy suddenly realized that the situation really was like that. They were so close to Lesley at that moment, and all of them were queued up nicely. It was easy to be singled out. That was why those people were not willing to speak up even if they were angry. They were scared that they would catch Lesley's eye. Earlier, Lesley had threatened the man without holding anything back, which sounded off the alarm bells in their minds.

That green-robed man was worried that he would suffer from that day on. It was one thing if he could get to a level five city. If he did not get a token to lead him there, and if he remained stuck at the level six city, he would be in danger.

Jackie frowned, not looking like he was in a good mood. He seemed to have thought of a possibility.

He reached out, grabbed Rudy's arm and said, "In a bit, no matter what happens, do your best to control your anger."

Jackie's words had another meaning to them. Rudy turned around to look at Jackie curiously. However, Jackie merely shook his head, not explaining it.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3023 -

Chapter 3023
As time passed, it quickly got to Jackie‘s turn to place a bet. Jackie sighed as he looked at Rudy. The two of them already had their spirit crystals prepared. Since there was a limit to the amount, they could only bet fifty thousand spirit crystals.

After Jackie took out his spirit crystals, he did not hesitate to place the bet on the beast's side.

His actions attracted the attention of everyone around him. After all, what the green-robed man had just been through was still fresh on their minds. Yet, there was actually someone who dared to bet on the beast.

The person was dressed up ordinarily. He looked like a wandering warrior, just like that green- robed man! His actions looked exactly like a challenge to those around him.

Quite a few of them suddenly had a change of expression as they looked at Jackie in amusement. He raised his eyebrow, not caring about how everyone else was looking at him at all. Just like everyone had thought, Lesley started to frown.

He looked at Jackie, full of hatred, his expression just felt like a complete annoyance to Jackie.

Lesley snorted as he mocked, “It looks like you’re a special kind of an idiot as well! Do you think that betting fifty thousand spirit crystals on the beast will prove that you’re better than everyone else? Can you stop being so disgusting…”

Earlier, Lesley had called the man out for trying to stand out, but in Jackie’s eyes, the one trying to do that was clearly Lesley. It was like what the green-robed man said, betting how much and on who was the warrior’s own choice. It had nothing to do with anyone else. However, Lesley looked like a mad dog that only knew how to bite.

The moment he saw anyone betting on the beasts, he felt like people were looking down on him!

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he looked at Lesley calmly. Some thoughts were in his head. That guy really insisted on barking crazily like such a mad dog. Jackie really did not want to bother with him.

Jackie let out a laugh as he said calmly, “You really love bothering about random things. I want to bet on the beast because I feel like you can’t beat it. So what? I want to bet on the beast! What can you do about it? Don’t you think you’re an idiot? Why do you care about how I spend my spirit crystals?!”

Lesley was the one who came looking for trouble anyway. Even if they offended the Deer Pavilion, they were nothing to Jackie. He had already offended much stronger clans, so what was the Deer Pavilion?!

After Jackie said that, Rudy was so emotional that he was about to clap for Jackie. The warriors around Jackie clapped for Jackie in their hearts. Even though they were looking at Jackie and Lesley with amusement, they really regarded Lesley’s actions with contempt. They were very happy to see Lesley eating his own words.

Lesley’s lips twitched as he got even angrier.

Did Jackie not see how that green-robed man ended up?

Did he not hear what Lesley had said?

That brat was actually challenging Lesley like that!

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3024 -

Chapter 3024
Lesley took a deep breath as his voice turned hoarse, “You brat, you should know your place! You’re now on the Deer Pavilion’s list of enemies as well! Unless you spend your whole life in Hundred Beast City, I’ll definitely have my men cut you apart the moment you step out of the city. I’ll make you regret everything you did today!”

The green-robed man had completely stopped fighting back the moment he heard those threats, leaving the place miserably. Everyone had thought that Jackie would do the same. After all, as wandering warriors, they did not have a clan behind them to support them.

After provoking the Deer Pavilion, they would definitely try to exact revenge. The future would be much harder!

After hearing what he said, Jackie felt like it was a huge joke. He was no longer afraid of anyone like that. It was just the Deer Pavilion. They were not even an eighth-grade clan.

There were so many restrictions in the Whirling World, how could they trouble Jackie at all?

Jackie let out a snort as he said coldly, “Then just try it out. Don’t cry when the time comes.”

After saying that, Jackie walked towards Lesley. His footsteps were firm and his body was straight. He looked like a general that had just won a war. Rudy followed closely behind him.

They were not that far from Lesley in the first place. After Jackie walked over, there were only three feet between them. The atmosphere suddenly turned incredibly tense.

Under everyone’s curious gazes, Jackie said, “Who do you think you are? Do you think bullying those beneath you will make you seem better than you are? Betting on whoever we want is our freedom. I bet on the beast not because I wanted to show off, but purely because I feel like you’ll definitely lose! “

As he said that, Jackie‘s tone was incredibly calm as if he was talking about what he was eating for that day.

Lesley's eyes widened as his arms started to tremble from his anger. No one had ever talked to him like that before. Jackie's words did not hold anything back at all. They merely told Lesley in an incredibly straightforward way that Jackie definitely thought that Lesley would lose.

After Lesley heard that, the flames of anger in his heart roared even greater. He clenched his teeth as he stared at Jackie, wanting to rip Jackie apart.

"If you think that, then you're just stupid. I'll use my skills to prove that your actions are complete idiocy!" Jackie snorted as a look of disdain flashed in his eyes.

He did not bother taking what he said seriously at all. He merely stared at Lesley coldly. The guy would definitely not be nice to him, so Jackie would not bother showing him any kindness either.

Their conversation caused the originally calm atmosphere to break out into discussions.

Everyone looked at Jackie with inquisitive and exciting looks. They really wanted to ask how a wandering warrior like Jackie actually dared to go against the Deer Pavilion.

Did he really not know what the consequences would be like?

Did he have someone behind him that could help him against the Deer Pavilion?

Someone whispered, "Who is this guy? Does anyone know him? Even if he's a wandering warrior, surely someone knows him!"

"I don't know either. I think this kid must have something wrong with his head. Otherwise, there's no way he would do something so absurd. Just listen to what he said earlier. Every single sentence directly assaulted Lesley's heart. If I was Lesley, I would definitely never let him off. He trampled Lesley's dignity right to the ground!"

"So what? Lesley was looking for it. Just look at how pleased with himself he had been earlier. He finally hit someone he couldn't deal with. He thought that he could do whatever he wanted just because he was from the Deer Pavilion. He never thought there would be someone who refused to back down, humiliating him in front of everyone!"

Chapter 3025
"No matter what, there's no way he can just let go of this. I wonder if this kid will be able to handle it…"

Jackie did not care about how everyone else was talking about him. He ack was already used to being the center of discussion. No matter what any of them said, it would not affect him at all.

Lesley felt like he was about to explode from his anger at Jackie.

The disciple from the Deer Pavilion behind him could not stand it at all. After all, Jackie's earlier words had not only insulted Lesley but had even looked down on the Deer Pavilion.

One of the inner disciples from the Deer Pavilion said loudly, "Brat! I'll remember you from now on. You dared to insult Lesley like that and insult the Deer Pavilion. I'll definitely make sure you pay for it a hundredfold!"

Jackie looked at that person up and down. He was just an inner disciple from Deer Pavilion, but he was already acting so arrogantly.

Jackie laughed as he looked over in disdain, "Why do you love to brag just like it? Before the results are even out, you're already praising yourself so much. You're even saying you'll make me pay a hundredfold? Who do you think you are? Do you think you have that ability?"

Jackie shot back without any reservation.

That inner disciple's expression stiffened as he started to pant roughly in anger. If not for the fact that he still had some rationality in him, he would have attacked Jackie right away.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not wanting to bother those people. He looked at Rudy, and Rudy immediately knew what Jackie was planning. The matter had already progressed here, and what needed to be said had already been saying. Jackie naturally did not want to waste any more time there.

Jackie raised an eyebrow at Lesley. After that, he turned around and headed back to the spectator stands. At that moment, Lesley was already trembling in anger. He suddenly turned to look at where Jackie had left.

Jackie had gray robes on that day. To not attract any attention, there was nothing special about those robes. There were not even any patterns on them. That was why Lesley was sure that Jackie was a wandering warrior.

Any disciples with the slightest bit of background would not lower themselves so much.

Lesley clenched his teeth and said, "Just you wait, I'll do what I said. I'll make sure you're begging for mercy!"

After he said that, he started to walk towards the thirteenth colosseum.

At that moment, Lesley was in no mood to stay there. He had stayed there to show off, but after what Jackie did, he would just become a joke if he continued staying there.

Jackie and Rudy had already found a spot in the spectator stands that were near the stage. They did not pick a secluded corner like in the past. After the two of them sat down, Rudy could no longer hold back from speaking.

He turned to look at Jackie, “This time, I won’t try to say anything. It’s just a Deer Pavilion, there’s no point trying to please them. Honestly, [he Deer Pavilion’s disciples are such a joke. Even though the Deer Pavilion is at the top of seventh-grade clans, they’re still just a seventh- grade clan. They can’t compare to eighth-grade clans! I don’t know how the Deer Pavilion educates their disciples. All of them seem to think the world of themselves. They’re so good at acting superior…”

Jackie nodded, “You’re right, these people think too much about themselves. They feel like they can act however they want to just because they have a tiny bit of skill! The Whirling World’s rules are emotionless!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3026 -

Chapter 3026
Thinking about how the disciples from the Deer Pavilion were acting, Rudy felt like they were a complete joke. He raised an eyebrow as he said, “Even the disciples from high-grade clans wouldn’t casually challenge other people and talk down to them. Even if they scorned others, most of them wouldn’t express it outwardly…”

“After all, most of the disciples from high-grade clans are of noble birth, and they wouldn‘t do things that stray too far from morality. Yet, those disciples from the Deer Pavilion don’t seem to care about that at all, they publicly stamp down on those they feel are beneath them! Don’t they feel like their actions reflect on them incredibly badly?”

Rudy could not understand why the disciples of the Deer Pavilion would act that way.

The higher grade a clan was, the less likely their disciples would do something like that. Even if they looked down on wandering warriors, they would not try to interfere with the choices of others like what had happened earlier. They would not have jumped out the moment others bet on the beats, trying to use their statuses to mock others.

Such behaviors were considered bullying, and those of high status would typically deter from that. At the very least, they would not do anything like that unless the other party had offended them first.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, looking up at Lesley who was walking onto the stage. “We could conclude that it’s just an individual’s moral problems had it just been Lesley, but it seemed as though the other disciples from the Deer Pavilion seemed unperturbed with what Lesley was doing at all-even joining in, I’d say. This proves that it’s how the entire Deer Pavilion acts. All of the disciples of the Deer Pavilion will do this.”

After hearing what Jackie said, Rudy warily spoke, “The Deer Pavilion isn’t a small clan. Why would they ignore their statuses and insist on bullying the weak to make themselves look larger than life?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he thought about it, saying in a calm tone, “That’s because the Deer Pavilion is in an awkward spot. They want others to think that they‘re an eighth-grade clan when they’ve yet to reach the standards. Everyone in the Deer Pavilion shares the same mentality. They feel like their clan is already at the level of an eighth-grade clan. An eighth-grade clan is already considered one of the greatest forces in the whole Middle Province…”

“Other than the ninth-grade clan, the Scarlet Pavilion, being able to stand over them, the other clans won’t be able to push them back. Since everyone else doesn’t think they’re an eighth-grade clan, they’re trying their best to prove it… Against warriors from weaker backgrounds, they'll show off the best they can. Those with the least substance are often those who try to show off the most. That's probably how everyone from the Deer Pavilion is…"

After Rudy heard all of that, he thought about it in earnest before nodding solemnly. Jackie was right, the Deer Pavilion's warriors must all have thoughts like that in mind.

It was precisely because the Deer Pavilion is in an awkward spot. They were the greatest among the seventh-grade clans but have not been promoted to an eighth-grade clan, yet they felt like they had achieved that status. Since they were not acknowledged by others, they would not give up any chance they had to show off.

With that in mind, Rudy scoffed and remarked, "If they want to prove themselves that badly and show everyone that the Deer Pavilion is already at the level of an eighth-grade clan, they should be looking for eighth-grade clan disciples instead.

"They shouldn't be causing trouble for weaker warriors. Anyone with any ounce of intelligence would see the Deer Pavilion's actions as petty and dumb."

Jackie nodded. The situation really was like that, but the disciples of the Deer Pavilion did not seem to think so.

At that moment, another howl reverberated across the whole colosseum, attracting everyone's attention.

An icy-blue light shot over as the frostfire wolf descended from the air. The frostfire wolf was about 3 meters in height, and its entire body was covered by icy-blue and scarlet-red fur. It seemed to have heterochromia with one eye being blue, and the other being red.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3027 -

Chapter 3027
The moment its feet touched the ground, the frostfire wolf howled into the blue skies angrily as it unleashed its full might.

Jackie raised an eyebrow and looked at Lesley, who was in front of the frostfire wolf, with great interest.

At that moment, Lesley's expression was not the greatest. The wolf's power was immense, causing his confidence to be shaken a little. It barely chipped off that gargantuan ego of his, however, as he smirked.

"Stop trying to show off! You're just a beast while I'm a chosen disciple of the Deer Pavilion. I've killed so many beasts that I've lost count, and you'll be one of them!"

From everything that had happened earlier, it was easy to tell that the frostfire wolf was not an actual being. It had been condensed out of energy, but its skills were no different from an actual frostfire wolf!

A real frostfire wolf was incredibly intelligent, capable of understanding human speech. The energy-manifested frostfire wolf did not have that ability, but it did nothing to stop the frostfire wolf's intense animosity toward Lesley.

The crowd that had been quiet started to discuss the battle.

"Do you think this beast is strong? It doesn't look too different from a large wolf beast. Of course, I don't know how strong the beast's skills are."

"Will Lesley be able to deal with it? He has to win. I bet fifty thousand spirit crystals on him. If he wins, I'll be getting two hundred thousand back!"

"Who knows? The beast doesn't look that weak. It seems stronger than any ordinary beast, but there's no need to worry too much. Lesley is still a chosen disciple of the Deer Pavilion."

"If he's nowhere close to excellence, there's no way he could have gotten that position! Even if this beast looks a little strong, Lesley should be able to handle it."

The crowd got a little worried when the frostfire wolf unleashed its power. After all, almost all of them had betted their spirit crystals on Lesley. They naturally hoped that Lesley would be able to win.

Jackie had gone against everyone else's choice, betting his spirit crystals on the frostfire wolf, and Rudy had followed suit. Jackie was seated in quite an obvious spot, and everyone around him knew who Jackie was because of the earlier conflict.

Everyone talked about the match, and those who were around Jackie started to glance at him.

A muscular man with a mustache looked at Jackie with a raised eyebrow, asking, "Hey, why are you so confident that Lesley will lose?"

Jackie turned to look at the man. He could tell that the man was just asking out of curiosity and did not have any ill intentions. After all, Jackie did just bet his crystals on the beast decisively.

Thinking about what Jackie had said earlier, they did not think that Jackie's actions were just to stand out.

Jackie answered in a calm tone, "Lesley will definitely lose. There's no other possibility."

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3028 -

Chapter 3028
Jackie had said that with full conviction as if there was no other outcome of the battle. After those around him heard that, the curiosity in their eyes deepened.

Jackie was that confident?

The man with the mustache frowned and followed up, “Why do you think that Lesley will lose? Is there a reason for that?”

Jackie already knew that they would ask something like that. He looked up at the stage and said calmly, “You’ll know why in just a bit.”

He had no intention of explaining himself. After all, if he did, it would reveal his secrets to the others, and he had too many secrets on him. The moment he revealed one, it would be easy to figure out his other secrets as well.

To prevent himself from becoming a lab rat, Jackie decided against saying anything. Those around him were no idiots, either, for the moment they saw that Jackie had no plans on explaining, they did not pester him.

Everyone held back on the gossip as they looked toward the stage again. Lesley had already pulled out his weapon, which was a chakram that was the size of two palms.

The green chakram had countless runes engraved on it, releasing a green glow. He placed the chakram in front of his chest as he held the two ends. Lesley narrowed his eyes slightly as he coldly looked at the frostfire wolf in front of him. The frostfire wolf let out another howl as its hindlegs bent slightly. The next second, he shot at Lesley like a cannonball.

Everyone heard a boom as the frostfire wolf left two craters where it had leaped off from. It was obvious how strong the wolf was.

The frostfire wolf was incredibly quick, so much so that it was difficult to track with the naked eye.

Everyone inhaled sharply at this, sweating bullets for Lesley’s sake, but Lesley’s expression remained calm. Even if the frostfire wolf was terrifyingly quick, he still looked incredibly confident.

Lesley let out a roar as he started to form seals with both his hands. Waves of green runes started to circle around the chakram. The green chakram suddenly glowed in an intense green. Right after that, the whole arena was covered up by the green light.

Everyone started to hear a crackling sound.

They looked in greater detail and noticed that the stage was beginning to crack as if something was frantically trying to burst out of the floor. They took a deep breath in their shock. After a moment, they saw countless vines starting to come out of the ground as though they had been planted on the floor.

Those vines broke out of the ground after hearing the summons. The frostfire wolf was incredibly curious about the sudden occurrence, and it started to slow down in its attacks.

That had been exactly what Lesley had wanted. He then roared again as he formed seal after seal with his hands. Those vines were like tentacles, shooting right at the frostfire wolf. There were too many vines, so much so that they covered up the whole stage. Even if the frostfire wolf was quick, it could not avoid them.

The frostfire wolf leaped into the air in a panic, but the vines were not slow either. After a roar, countless vines wrapped around the frostfire wolf's limbs, restricting its speed.

After wrapping around those limbs, those vines seemed to act like parasites as they climbed upward. The frostfire wolf was not able to struggle out before it was covered up by the vines!

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3029 -

Chapter 3029
All of the vines on the ground were growing in the same direction. The vines that covered the whole stage seemed to have been greatly attracted to the wolf, frantically rushing toward the entangled beast.

After being wrapped up in one layer, even more vines started to pile on. In just a few moments, the vines had already covered up the frostfire wolf like a burrito. There were faint signs that the frostfire wolf was still constantly struggling within. Yet, the fines had covered it up too tightly.

The struggling merely caused the vines to shake a little. It was unable to break free at all.

The scene had quite a few people gaping and commenting on the situation.

"Lesley has this one in the bag for sure! Here I was, worrying that the beast would be too powerful and that this would be a difficult match. Now, it looks like I've underestimated Lesley. I can't believe he dealt with the beast so easily!"

“The beast seems a little weak It’ s much different from what I thought! Isn’t it going to use its natural skills?”

Those warriors who knew Lesley started to explain, “Oh, it’s trying, alright. Sadly, it can’t after being wrapped up like that by those vines.

“I’ve heard before that Lesley uses a middle earth-stage technique, the Sky Swallowing Vin es. Those vines won’t just stop movement, but any counterattacks as well! It’s not a hundred-percent reliable and can’t restrict opponents that are too strong, but it’s obvious that the beast’s skills aren’t enough. Now that its movements have been sealed, it can’t use its skills either! It seems like we know the winner already!”

“So it means that we’ve won… It’s a little boring, but at least we got to see something interesting. I can’t believe the Sky Swallowing Vines skill is so strong. It covered up the whole stage. There’s no way to even avoid it…”

“That guy from before insisted on betting on the beast. What a stubborn guy he was. I thought that he knew a thing or two about the beast, but it looks like he was just reaching!”

“Lesley won. Even though it was a little too easy, we got the spirit crystals, so it’s all fine.”

At that moment, a few warriors had stood up from the spectator stands, heading to the betting area. The odds had been one to three. They would get returns of 150000 from their 50000 bets.

Thinking about the spirit crystals they could earn, they were incredibly impatient to get their spirit crystals.

Rudy stopped his frown as he carefully looked at Jackie. He was still incredibly confident in Jackie.

Earlier, Jackie had chosen the beast, so Rudy decisively followed suit, not even asking a single question. However, it seemed like Jackie had been mistaken. That was no big deal, of course-everyone made mistakes.

Rudy lightly touched Jackie’s arm. “It’s just fifty thousand spirit crystals, I’ll take it as a bet of passion.”

Jackie turned to look at Rudy and merely raised an eyebrow, not saying anything.

Right at that moment, the stage suddenly erupted in a red glow. Everyone heard a massive explosion as they looked over with widened eyes. A bomb seemed to have gone off in the area the frostfire wolf had been wrapped up in. It suddenly exploded, causing the vines to be shattered, flying everywhere.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3030 -

Chapter 3030
Thankfully, the stage had been covered by a barrier, stopping the vines from shooting out to the spectators.

The next second, everyone saw a massive red-and-blue coated wolf walk out of the explosion. The wolf stood firmly on the ground as the vines around it had been blown away. It still had some green liquid on its body, but it did not affect the power it was exuding at all!

The scene made everyone's jaw drop. The frostfire wolf had actually managed to break free of the vines, turning the vines to dust!

The frostfire wolf shot out at Lesley again.

Lesley, at this moment, was too flabbergasted at the abrupt change of events. To show off his skills, he had held nothing back when he used the Sky Swallowing Vines earlier, but he never expected that the results would exceed any of his expectations. Even after all of that, he had failed to kill the beast. Instead, the beast had broken out of the trap.

Everyone held their breath in silence, all eyes wide open as no one was willing to miss out a single second.

Even if he was in a state of shock, Lesley quickly reacted. After all, he was still a chosen disciple of the Deer Pavilion. He had gone through a lot to reach his position. He had fought countless battles, so he was naturally able to react to any surprises.

He started to retreat a few steps, trying to distance himself from the wolf to plan his next action. The frostfire wolf let out an angry howl again as it opened its mouth, condensing energy within.

Everyone saw an icy blue glow and a scarlet red glow condense into two balls in the frostfire-wolf's mouth.

The two balls were incredibly hot, causing the surrounding air to burn. The frostfire wolf's eyes stared right at Lesley in the distance. Everyone watched as it unleashed the balls of fire!

The blue and red balls shot right at Lesley incredibly quickly as they rapidly fused. Even from far away, the power the balls contained could be felt.

Everyone widened their eyes at the sight, and a few of them started to breathe anxiously.

Lesley could obviously tell that he could very well lose if he got hit. Thus, he did his best to retreat, trying to create some distance as his hands constantly formed seal after seal. The vines on the ground rose again, trying to block the attack.

Alas, Lesley underestimated the speed of the attack, as well as how strong the attacks were. Any of the vines that even got close to the attack were turned to ash!

No matter how quickly Lesley was retreating, he could not avoid the attack. In just a few moments, the balls caught up to Lesley, and they hit him right after that. The icy blue ball and the scarlet red ball both had an incredibly explosive power that could not truly fuse. The attack exploded with a loud boom, completely blowing up where Lesley was. The scarlet and blue flames completely enveloped Lesley, and the force covered up the whole stage.

At that moment, the spectators were completely silent. They merely looked on in complete disbelief.

The victor was clear.

Everyone wondered if Lesley had been incapacitated from the explosion. Meanwhile, all of the disciples from the Deer Pavilion shot up as they looked at the stage with concern.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3031 - 3035

Chapter 3031
If they had not known that the stage had a barrier around it and that they could not get on, they would have rushed up there to protect Lesley!

The flames raged for a few moments before slowly receding. The frostfire wolf slowly got closer to the part that was burning the most intensely. After the flames receded, a charred, almost blackened figure was revealed, and everyone could barely recognize him.

The moment the sight registered, they forgot to even breathe.

Lesley had been burned to a crisp. Looking at him, there was no doubt that he had died. Cries of shock and agony could be heard in the spectator stands. Everyone turned to look at the source of the noise, and they saw that the place where the disciples of the Deer Pavilion were gathered rang out with cries. They knew very well that Lesley was dead.

It was far too unexpected. Everything had happened so quickly, so much so that they were caught off guard. They did not expect the beast's power to be so immense that it burned Lesley alive. Even Lesley's corpse was mutilated!

"Goodness gracious, that beast was that strong! Lesley was already quite strong, but he's blown up from just one attack. He died in such a bad state-completely charred. I can't even look at him!"

"Lesley probably never expected that he'd lose this badly. Honestly, I never thought that this beast would be so strong. It's unbelievable…"

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not showing that much emotion on his face. He had expected this much, so he was not surprised at all.

The people around him, on the other hand, never expected this, which was why they were filled with surprise.

After it made sure that Lesley was dead, the frostfire wolf walked around in circles as its body started to glow radiantly. After that, it turned into pure energy and was absorbed by the surrounding array.

The moment the frostfire wolf turned into energy, the barrier around the stage disappeared as well. The disciples of the Deer Pavilion, who had been waiting around the stage, frantically rushed up. When they saw Lesley's blackened body, they looked like they had lost their fathers.

It was far too depressing. The results were something they could not accept. The disciple that mocked Jackie in the betting area immediately fell to their knees as tears flowed from his eyes.

“Lesley! How did this happen?!”

The other disciples from the Deer Pavilion all knelt down as well, crying out in agony.

“Rest easy, Lesley… No one expected the beast to be so strong. You weren’t too weak, you were just unlucky. If you chose any other beast, the results wouldn’t have been like that…”

The disciple who had mocked Jackie cried incredibly intensely as if he had lost his whole family overnight. The other disciples around him hurriedly helped him up, offering sincere consolation.

“Arne, don’t be too sad. We should bring Lesley’s corpse away for now…”

They did not lower their voices as they spoke.

Jackie was relatively close enough to the stage, so he had heard their conversation. Thus, he heard the name of this particular disciple, Arne.

Chapter 3032
He had also heard that Arne’s family name was King. It looked like he and Lesley were close and should have been blood relatives. No wonder the two of them acted the same way.

The match’s result was determined in the blink of an eye as the skull-masked caretakers started to walk toward the stage, coming up to clean the aftermath. If no one carried the corpse away, the caretakers would have gotten rid of the body like trash.

The disciples of the Deer Pavilion would naturally not let Lesley’s body be treated that way. All of them held their sadness back as they picked up Lesley’ s corpse and left the stage.

It was only then did everyone calm down from the shock. The battle had exceeded their expectations. They had thought that they had already seen the results, but the beast actually fought back and killed Lesley.

That beast’s strength had exceeded any of their imaginations. It was stronger than any regular beast!

“Lesley was too unlucky. It looks like that beast was probably the strongest among the five!”

When everyone finished lamenting, the truth started to hit them. At that moment, some could not resist cursing.

“I was so stupid to bet on him. I didn’t have that many spirit crystals left and thought that I’d win this time. I can’t believe I lost. Fifty thousand spirit crystals went down the drain!”

“Tell me about it… I thought that Lesley would win here! He bragged so much before, saying that he’d win. He even took offense to anyone who betted on the beast. No one expected him to lose so badly!”

“If he didn’t have the skills to back it up, he shouldn’t have been so arrogant! He gloated about himself so much that everyone believed him. Now, he’s not only defeated-he’s dead! It’s one thing to embarrass himself, but he even dragged everyone else down with him!”

“I wasn’t planning on betting on him. If he hadn’t been standing there staring at everyone, I would’ve placed my bet on the beast! It’s all his fault. If not for him, I would’ve made a fortune!”

“I’m so furious! Aren’t the disciples of the Deer Pavilion supposed to be all-powerful or something? Are they still parading themselves now? Bragging is all they know!”

The moment their benefits were concerned, everyone suddenly lost their earlier fear. Some of them had basically bet what little they had left on Lesley and ended up completely broke!

In truth, quite a few of them wanted to take a risk and bet on the beast, but Lesley had been looking by the side. Whoever betted on the beast would end up being mocked and stopped if their background was not strong enough. They were forced to remain silent as they betted on Lesley, but no one expected that the result would be like this!

Quite a few people frowned in anger.

Lesley had been way too full of himself before, which already displeased everyone. On top of that, Lesley had caused them to make a loss, so everyone suddenly exploded in anger. Since Lesley was dead, there was no reason for them to curse at him. All of the blame ended up being pushed to the Deer Pavilion instead as a few people started to shout at the disciples of the Deer Pavilion.

“You disciples of the Deer Pavilion are only good at bragging! We lost all our spirit crystals thanks to him! You have to pay us back!”

“That’s right, they should be paying us back! They bragged so much before and had everyone bet on Lesley. He’s not even all that strong! He got killed by the beast in one attack, and he calls himself a chosen disciple from the Deer Pavilion. He said that he’d win. What a joke!”

Quite a few of them hounded the Deer Pavilion to pay them back. Quite a few warriors had lost their whole fortunes due to this bet. Due to their trust that Lesley would win, they had lost all of their spirit crystals!

Chapter 3033
Facing the crowd, the disciples of the Deer Pavilion trembled in anger. They felt like everyone was causing them trouble for no reason.

At that moment, Arne was incredibly emotional. After all, Lesley had died such a horrible death. Thus, he was the first one to verbally engage with the crowd.

“You ignorant fools! You were the ones who were betting so frantically. Did we force you to go place your bets? You were the one who chose who to bet on, so what does it have to do with us?!”

The moment he said that, it was like he had thrown ice into a pot of boiling oil, and it suddenly exploded. Some of the warriors were so emotional that they started to quarrel with the Deer Pavilion.

“How dare you say that! The choice was ours, you say?! Were you not standing there and staring, mocking anyone who betted on the beasts?!”

After Arne heard these accusations, he laughed coldly as he said in disdain, “We were just speaking the truth. We never forced you to choose Lesley! In the end, you were the ones who took out your spirit crystals and betted on Lesley. Who is there to blame? You should’ve gone against us if you could!”

The moment he said that, some almost spat out blood in their frustration. This guy was crossing the line. He was actually accusing them of not being firm enough and for not fighting back!

Arne was basically saying that the Deer Pavilion never physically forced them to pick Lesley, and that they were the ones who placed the bet in the end.

He basically said that the Deer Pavilion was not to blame for anything. Even Jackie’s lips twitched in exasperation after hearing that while Rudy started to tremble in anger. His whole body started to stiffen.

Rudy turned to look at Jackie. “These guys are too much, especially that Arne guy! How could he say all of that? He’s pinning the blame on others. Even if they didn’t directly force others to vote for Lesley physically, they were standing at the side and threatening those who were of lesser backgrounds! If it wasn’t for that, quite a few of them would‘ve chosen differently! Didn’t they threaten us back then? They’re despicable!”

Rudy really felt like those people were completely shameless and despicable. Even at this state, they could still say things like that.

They were relying on the laws of the Whirling World. No matter how angry the warriors in the stands were, they could not do anything!

The man with a mustache who was sitting next to Jackie was completely red in anger. He gritted his teeth and looked like he was about to rush forward. Yet, he could not do anything.

He shouted out, “These despicable fools! They should go to hell. If we could attack them, no one would be able to stop themselves! The Deer Pavilion? The top seventh-grade clan? We don’t care anymore! They’re just way too shameless!”

Some of them could not stop themselves from using Jackie as an example.

A gray-robed man, who was sitting in front of Jackie, suddenly stood up and pointed at Jackie. “This guy was smart to not pick you guys, yet all of you mocked and threatened him because he didn’t bet on Lesley! Heck, everyone heard you people! There was that guy in the green clothes as well. These two are the perfect examples, so stop trying to talk your way out of this!”

Chapter 3034
Arne‘s words had been difficult to swallow, and they ignited everyone’s anger.

Everyone started to feel righteous indignation.

After the person in front of Jackie aired his grievance, his anger never left him as he looked at Arne with gritted teeth. It was as if he wanted to see how the Deer Pavilion would try to talk their way out of it.

It would have been one thing if he had not pointed Jackie out, but the moment Jackie became part of the topic, Arne’s anger boiled over.

Everything Jackie was etched into Arne’s mind vividly. He could not forget how Jackie had looked at them in disdain, completely looking down on them.

Jackie had even won the bet in the end, which caused Arne to hate Jackie even more. He narrowed his eyes, turning to look at Jackie. Anyone could see the venom in his eyes. He looked like a snake, ready to strike at any moment.

Arne snorted. “This guy was just pretending before this, I can‘t believe all of you couldn’t tell. Even if he won, it’s all because he got lucky. He just insisted on trying to go against the grain to make himself stand out. It’s not convincing at all to use him as an example. His conflict with us before this was just to make himself known. He’s a mere wandering warrior, so how could he be able to tell who’s stronger and who’d win?!”

Arne completely diminished Jackie's victory and even added snide remarks. He felt like Jackie had just been lucky, that he was just an insignificant guy who wanted to stand out.

Arne looked visibly disgusted when he spoke, too. It was as if Jackie was just a piece of trash thrown to the roadside.

Rudy was furious after he heard all of that. Arne was trying to twist the truth and went after Jackie altogether. He would not have been able to hold back no matter how good his temper was.

He immediately stood up from his seat and pointed right at Arne's face.

"You shameless, despicable person. How are you saying that we just relied on luck? Are you blind or something? Maybe there's something wrong with your head? You seem to have forgotten everything that happened. Jackie had already said that he had betted on the beast for a very simple reason, Lesley would lose! There were so many people around when he said that, and all of them had heard everything! You were standing nearby, so there's no way you didn't hear it!"

Rudy felt like he was about to get sick from the anger alone. He had met a lot of people who disgusted him before, but none of them could topple Arne.

Arne was not just disgusting but also revolting, he was a man who knew nothing but to slander others!

After Rudy said that, Arne's expression did not change.

"My ears are working just fine, thank you, and so are my memories. It's precisely because I remember what he said that I'm sure that he did all of that just to stand out! If he was so sharp, then have him tell us why he was so sure that Lesley would lose! What was the reason? Don't tell me it's intuition, because even a child wouldn't believe that!"

Arne pointed right at Jackie, which caused all of the warriors there to go quiet immediately.

A few of them looked at Jackie curiously, wanting to know how Jackie was so sure that Lesley would lose before the battle started.

Chapter 3035
Could he have the amount of insight and knowledge?

Was it just like Arne said-that Jackie had merely been lucky in his gamble and wanted to stand out by voting in favor of the frostfire wolf instead?

Arne narrowed his eyes as he looked at Jackie mockingly as though daring him to do something.

Rudy was so angry that he started to pant. His eyes turned red and his hands trembled, looking like he was prepared to rush over at any moment. He was not able to outspeak Arne.

Arne's ability to twist the truth was far above Rudy, and Rudy felt incredibly suffocated at all of that. The truth was clearly not that way, but Arne seemed to have turned Jackie into a show-off in just a few words.

Jackie raised an eyebrow and sighed helplessly as he looked up at the person in front of him. If that person had not pointed him out, he would not have been dragged into this. He was not someone who enjoyed unnecessary trouble like that. Furthermore, there would not be any results from these arguments at all.

They could not fight each other, after all, and all they could do was run their mouths. He never expected that someone would drag him into this, causing him to feel exasperated and a little angered at the same time.

He sighed as he looked up at Rudy, who was about to die from anger. He knew that there would probably be even more disgusting words thrown in if he did not say anything.

Jackie was not scared of trouble. He reached out and grabbed Rudy's arm, pulling Rudy back.

Rudy would not be able to beat Arne in a war of words, and he would only stand to lose if he continued. He was completely red in anger.

It was as if a fuse had been lit as he told Jackie, "This dog is crossing the line! If not for the various restrictions, I would've run up there and slapped that nasty face of his!"

Jackie sighed, he could understand Rudy's feelings and knew that he was standing up to shout at Arne because he was at his limit.

He said silently, "You can't beat him like this, so there's nothing worth arguing for."

After saying that, Jackie stood up himself and faced Arne.

Arne was noticeably looking for a fight when he saw Jackie standing up, as if he was prepared to go through three hundred bouts against Jackie with words.

Jackie lightly snorted and said in disdain, "You truly are Lesley's brother, Arne, both as stupid as each other! You were clearly the one trying to threaten everyone into doing what you want, but you pinned the blame on others. Lesley was the one who bragged so much, which was why everyone thought that he would win! He said that he was a chosen disciple of the Deer Pavilion, but to me, that title was just an accessory…”

“Everyone knows that Lesley’s relationship with the head elder of the Deer Pavilion is really close. I had a very simple reason for thinking that Lesley would lose. That’s because I knew that Lesley didn’t have the skills of a chosen disciple at all. At most, he would’ve just been an inner disciple. He was merely given the title because of his relationship with the head elder!”

Jackie said those words righteously, leaving no room for doubt.

When everyone heard his explanation, their expression brightened as though something had clicked. His words made sense!

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3036 - 3040

Chapter 3036
When Lesley had been introduced earlier, quite a few people had mentioned Lesley's relationship with the head elder of the Deer Pavilion. At that moment, everyone felt like the head elder would definitely nurture Lesley with the best resources since they had close ties to each other.

Lesley's skills then would definitely be better than any ordinary chosen disciple from a seventh-grade clan. Yet, the truth proved everything. He was already dead, his body was absolutely blackened. It proved that his skills were nothing much!

With Jackie's explanation, everyone started to agree with his statement.

Lesley became a chosen disciple not through his own skills but through other means. He did not possess skills at all, but he managed to trick everyone due to the fake position he held. It caused everyone to bet their spirit crystals on him!

Arne did not expect that Jackie would actually be able to explain it. He was aware of Lesley's skills, and the fact that he became a chosen disciple through his skills. He was not Lesley's brother, but his cousin.

The two of them had some conflicts before. They had been incredibly close in terms of skill. He had also gone through a lot as he grew. Even if they were related to the head elder and had access to better resources than ordinary folk, it did not mean that they became chosen disciples through illegitimate means.

If the head elder had dared to do so, then his position would be at stake. The head elder would definitely have not done something to harm his own prospects like that!

This time, it was Arne's turn to be incredibly furious. He stared at Jackie with widened eyes and said, "You're spouting nonsense! Lesley got to where he was through his hard work. He became a chosen disciple through his own skills. My fellow disciples can guarantee that!"

Hearing what he said, Jackie coldly laughed, "You're all from the same clan, you'd naturally protect each other. When you were trying to bully others earlier, Lesley had not been the only one. The whole group of you were lording yourselves over the wandering warriors… Everyone knows very well that you're all from the same nest! No matter what you say, your fellow disciples will definitely agree. Of course, they wouldn't help an outsider like me!"

Arne was so furious that his mouth started to tremble. He felt like he was trapped with no way out.

Before this, he had always been the one backing people into corners, but now that someone else turned the tables against him, Arne could not stand it. In his anger, he started to lose himself a little.

He clenched his teeth as he shouted at Jackie, “You’re a shameless and despicable man. You only know how to twist the truth! Based on what you say, doesn’t it mean that there’s no way for us to prove ourselves?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he coldly stared at Arne, “I’m not twisting the truth, so stop crying foul here. There are many things that can’t be settled with just a few words. I used my own judgment to bet on the beast, and I ended up winning. That’s why I can say all of this… If I had lost, you could say that I was wrong, but I did not lose!”

The moment Jackie said that, Arne looked like he had just been fed poison. His face turned incredibly dark. After Jackie said all of that, he felt like there was nothing he could say.

Rudy had the urge to clap for Jackie. All of the anger he had suffered earlier had dispersed. He quietly gave Jackie a thumbs up as he cheered for Jackie in his heart!

At that moment, the man with a mustache stood up and said, “I feel like this man is very reasonable! He just used his own judgment to place his bet on the beast. The truth proved that his judgment was right. What he said just now is naturally the truth. Lesley merely used his relationships to become a chosen disciple!”

Chapter 3037
“He’d probably been flattered too much to the degree that he doesn’t know his actual level. That’s how he managed to trick everyone to bet on him!”

“This guy is right! Everything has been proven! It really is too much. It’s so frustrating! We never had much as wandering warriors, but we were tricked by all of you into betting our money on a piece of trash!”

“I feel like coughing up blood just thinking about it! I was actually tricked by a piece of trash who only knows how to brag. It’s embarrassing just thinking about it!”

“Stop with the nonsense and pay me back for my losses. You were the ones who tricked us! Claiming to be a chosen disciple from the Deer Pavilion when he had gotten his position through other means! How shameless!”

“That’s right! Hurry up and pay us back. I don’t want to hear your explanations anymore! The more you try, the worse it sounds! All of you are just trash who don’t have the skills to back up your positions!”

In truth, everyone knew that there was a very low chance that they would be paid back. They still let out just to vent their frustrations.

Arne had never been so humiliated in his whole life. Facing all those accusations and doubts, he was incredibly furious. His body started to tremble from everything.

The Deer Pavilion disciples all turned red in anger as well. Everyone started to cry out for Arne and the rest to pay them back, feeling like they were a group of scammers!

Facing the noise that was getting louder and louder, Arne could no longer hold back. He shouted out, “Why would I have to pay you back? You bet the spirit crystals yourselves. It has nothing to do with us! What that brat said earlier was all just imagined by him. It’s not the truth at all!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, saying calmly, “How is it not the truth? Did I lose my bet? Did Lesley actually win his match? That beast was not all that strong, but Lesley still lost and died so horribly that even his corpse was charred. How many matches have gone on in the colosseum? How many of them were actually killed by the beast? One of them was Lesley. You claimed that it’s because he’s unlucky, but I feel like it’s just because he’s too weak!”

Jackie’s words were incredibly agreeable to everyone. All of them felt like Jackie was speaking the truth.

Arne was so furious that he kept on opening and shutting his mouth, mainly because he did not know how to respond. After all, Lesley really did die in the end. Even his corpse was completely blackened. It was definitely the truth. No matter what he says, there is no way to convince everyone!

Jackie looked at Arne with some disdain. That look seemed to be saying to Arne that Jackie had used Arne’s own methods against him.

At Jackie’s look, Arne suddenly froze. He felt like a volcano that had thoroughly erupted. He took a step forward and shouted loudly, “I will prove everything that I said! Lesley and I definitely became chosen disciples on our own merits! Lesley and I are about equal in strength. I’ll use myself to clear Lesley’s name!”

Chapter 3038
When Arne said all of that, he had a look of intense hatred on his face. It was as if Jackie was an incredibly disgusting person.

When Jackie heard Arne, he laughed and raised his eyebrow, “How are you going to prove it? Are you going to prove it through battle? Will you fight the beasts of the colosseum just like Lesley? If you win, will it prove that you are a legitimate chosen disciple? How convincing do you think that will be? After all, everyone knows that there’s always a chance that you get lucky and choose a weaker beast. Then, I don’t think it’ll show anything even if you win…”

Jackie's words cut off another one of Arne's plans. So what if he won? It would not prove anything in the end!

Arne felt incredibly frustrated. It felt like he could faint at any moment. He looked at Jackie with intense hatred. Jackie was just setting traps all over.

Everyone could see what Jackie was doing, but Arne could do nothing about it. He wanted to clear his and Lesley's name, so everyone would need to acknowledge it. Even if not everyone did, he at least needed the majority. Yet, Jackie's words had made things much more difficult for him. Arne took a deep breath as his eyes widened more and more, so much so that they threatened to pop out of their sockets.

After a long time, Arne suddenly let out a laugh. His laugh got more and more exaggerated.

When everyone saw how he was acting, they started to wonder if Arne had gone crazy from everything that was happening. Otherwise, why would he laugh so much at a moment?

After laughing for a long time, he finally stopped.

Jackie had been abnormally calm the whole time. No matter how exaggerated Arne was laughing, he did not show any emotion. He remained to look at Arne. He knew better than anyone else that Arne's smile was not genuine no matter how hard he laughed. It was not a burst of laughter that came from the heart at all. Instead, it was craziness that came after being forced into it.

Arne composed himself, he took a deep breath before glaring at Jackie with reddened eyes. He said loudly, "I'll start a black iron bet! Will luck still play a part?"

The moment he said that the whole place was shocked. Practically everyone had their eyes widened as they looked at Arne. Everyone outside of Rudy knew what such a bet meant.

The atmosphere had been silent, but it erupted once again.

"He's actually starting a black iron bet! It looks like he has gone crazy. Even putting his life on the line, he's trying to clear Lesley's name!"

"It looks like there's no other way to clear his name if he doesn't start a black iron bet!"

"He needs to fight three matches continuously and win all of them. It's been a while since Hundred Beast City was opened, but yet the number of people who have gotten the black iron medal can be counted with one hand. It looks like Arne really has been forced into a crazy way to prove himself!"

“He’s going a bit too far. If he gets unlucky, he may end up dying like Lesley. He’ll probably die just as badly. Putting his life on the line for some of his honor, is it really worth it?”

Chapter 3039
“I think it’s worth it! If they had not actually become chosen disciples through illegitimate means, they would definitely not be able to swallow these accusations. He would have to prove himself for sure!”

After hearing all of that, Rudy was incredibly puzzled.

What did they mean by winning three matches in a row? What was a black iron bet?

What did it have to do with the black iron medal?

He had heard from Jackie that getting a black iron badge meant you needed to win three matches in a row! Even knowing that he could not figure out what a black iron bet meant. Since it was a bet, why would it involve the medal?

However, Jackie did not have time to explain anything to him at that moment. When Arne self-righteously said that he would start a black iron bet, Jackie’s expression immediately changed. He had a smile on his face, but the mocking nature of the smile was obvious to anyone.

Jackie raise his eyebrow and said, “Starting a black iron bet really will clear your name and your dead brother’s. It will prove that the two of you did truly earn your spot as chosen disciples. However, you can’t tum back after you start it. Are you sure you can win three matches in a row? Will you be able to leave the stage alive?”

The moment Jackie said that, Arne suddenly raised his head and coldly stared at Jackie, “Stop looking down on others. Since I‘ve decided to do the black iron bet, it means that I’m confident that I’ll win! I know why you‘re saying all this. You want me to retreat and have no way to clear my name… I’m telling you, I refuse! Put your petty plans away! I want everyone to know how much of a joke your earlier words were. You’re just an insignificant man who won a bet through some luck!”

Jackie’s smile remained on his face, not having a rebuttal for those words. Jackie merely stood quietly by the side. Rudy, who sat next to Jackie, was incredibly curious after hearing what Jackie said.

The others did not know Jackie, but after being with him for so long, Rudy understood Jackie very well. With how Jackie was, there was no way Jackie would have said all of that.

In Jackie's heart, everything earlier was just unnecessary. Even if he wanted to anger the other party, he would not do it by offering advice. He had actually advised Arne against starting the black iron bet and even highlighted the negatives of the bet.

It was way too different from how Jackie usually acted. However, even if he had some suspicions, he could not just voice them at that moment. Since he had said all of that, Jackie naturally had his own plans.

With his heart already set, Arne probably thought that there was no longer any reason to continue talking to Jackie. He sat back down and looked away, no longer looking at Jackie. Only, the anger and hatred on his face did not diminish at all.

Jackie raised his eyebrow as he turned around and sat back at his original spot.

At that moment, the stage had already been cleaned up. It looked as good as new. All of the traces of the earlier battle had already disappeared. The next match was already starting, it was just that everyone was too preoccupied with the Deer Pavilion to notice. Only then did the crowd slowly compose themselves.

After Jackie sat down, Rudy asked impatiently, "What's the black iron bet? What does it have to do with the black iron medal? Why does he need to win three matches in a row? I couldn't understand everything that was said just now at all. Quickly explain it to me. I feel so frustrated."

Chapter 3040
Jackie nodded, smiling as he explained, "When we just entered the city, there happened to be someone walking over with a black iron medal. Those who win the medal are called black iron warriors. When normal warriors saw the black iron warrior, they gave way to him. Even though they were definitely a little jealous, they were mostly filled with respect… If all it took was just winning three matches in a row normally, they would not have been so respectful…"

Rudy was even more puzzled at that, but he did not interrupt Jackie, and quietly listened on.

Jackie continued to explain, "I said so much just to show you that getting a black iron medal is something incredibly difficult. In order to get a black iron medal, you have to start a black iron bet before the battle. A black iron bet is a leveled-up bet! The upper limit of the bet is raised to a million spirit crystals from fifty thousand!"

After hearing that, Rudy's mouth widened in shock

From fifty thousand to a million? That was a huge leap!

Rudy never expected that at all. No wonder it was called a black iron bet!

Even for those wealthy warriors from high-grade clans, a million spirit crystals was no easy feat. After all, it was definitely not a small number.

Rudy muttered, “Then you’d really go bankrupt if you lose.”

As an alchemist, Rudy was richer than any ordinary warrior. However, even after accumulating so much wealth, there was still no way he would take out a million spirit crystals in one go. That sum was enough to completely dry Rudy out.

Thinking about that, he shuddered.

Jackie continued to explain, “Starting a black iron bet will allow you to get a black iron medal after winning three rounds in a row. Normal matches will never give you a black iron medal. The moment you start the bet, you won‘t be allowed off the stage unless you win three matches in a row!”

Rudy frowned and said, “So what you mean is, even if you’re injured after winning one match, you have to continue forward. You need to continue with the next two battles. Only by finishing the three matches and winning all of them will you be allowed off!”

Jackie nodded. Rudy was getting smarter. He had just offered a few hints, and Rudy immediately understood the rules.

Rudy sighed and responded seriously, “Then the chances of dying must be way too high. It would be considered good if even half of the people who started a bet like that survived.”

Jackie nodded, pointing up three fingers, “You’re thinking about it too optimistically. Out of ten people who have started the black iron bet, only three survived.”

That means that there was a seventy percent chance of dying.

Rudy’s lips twitched, leaving only shock in his heart. No wonder everyone reacted that way after hearing that Arne would start a black iron bet. That was where the problem was.

To clear his name, Arne planned on never getting off the stage unless he died. It was enough to show how confident Arne was in himself, or Arne would have never started that bet.

Rudy blinked as he said excitedly, “The black iron bet is something good for us. We can put in a bet of a million spirit crystals. If the odds are good, we might be able to win a few million in one go!”

Even though he did not know why Jackie needed so many spirit crystals, Rudy would still be sincerely happy for Jackie if they won and got even more spirit crystals.

Jackie nodded, “It’ s definitely a good thing for us. “

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3041 - 3045

Chapter 3041
Rudy looked up at the stage where an intense battle was going on.

Since he had been fully focused on the quarrel with Arne earlier, he did not even know what the name of the person on the stage was. All he could see was that the person seemed to be in an even battle against the beast!

Rudy looked at the stage and said, “I‘m actually a little curious. Why were you so sure that Lesley would lose? Lesley died such a horrible death, but you didn’t react at all when you saw his corpse. It’s like you already knew that this would happen.”

Jackie let out a laugh as he said, “Didn’t I already tell you? I recognized the frostfire wolf. Naturally, I knew how strong it was.”

Rudy, who was like an incredibly curious child, responded excitedly, “Then tell me in detail. Just treat it as you expanding my horizons.”

Rudy had naturally seen how strong the frostfire wolf was, but Rudy did not know its exact strength.

Jackie nodded, patiently explaining, “The frostfire wolf’s natural skill is called the Frostfire Death. It’s an upper earth rank technique. Furthermore, that frostfire wolf had already mastered the skill to the second level. It was even close to getting to the last stage. No matter how powerful Lesley’s skill was, it was still just a middle earth rank technique. There was a whole level of difference, so there was no way Lesley would be able to stand up against the frostfire wolf.”

Rudy nodded, suddenly letting out a laugh, “I remember them calling Lesley’s technique the Sky Swallowing Vines. It’s supposed to be able to even swallow up the sky, how strong would it be? Yet, it was nothing impressive. After the frostfire wolf displayed its skills, the vines were completely blown away. The person who created that skill must have been quite amusing. It‘s such an impressive name, but its power is so weak. Was he not afraid of being laughed at?”

Jackie let out a slight laugh as well.

The name definitely was quite extraordinary. If it had been an ultimate god rank technique, then maybe the name would be more befitting. Yet, the technique was only a middle earth rank technique, but even at the upper ranks. It was still named in such a way, which was a complete joke!

Rudy turned to look at where the Deer Pavilion’s disciples were.

At that moment, the disciples of the Deer Pavilion had already wiped away their arrogant looks, remaining indifferent and modest. All of them had dark looks on their faces. After all, Lesley had died such a horrible death. Arne was the one who looked to be in the worst state.

The rest of them only had stiff expressions at most, as if they had a funeral within their family.

Arne looked like he had lost his whole family, and even he himself was ill. His face was absolutely pale. Even his lips were terrifyingly white. His lips were still trembling slightly as if he had a bundle of anger burning in his heart.

After seeing that Rudy raised an eyebrow as he said in amusement.

“I feel like Arne probably hates you to death. Didn’t he want to start a black iron bet? Why isn’t he doing anything right now? If we still need to wait some more, I’ll probably lose my patience. I’m planning on betting everything I have…”

Jackie let out a slight laugh. Even if he did not look at Arne at that moment, he could imagine how angry Arne was.

Chapter 3042
“He definitely hates me to the core, but that’s no big deal. In the Whirling World, there are already plenty of people who feel that way. I don’t really care if there’s one more. Furthermore, the two of us have already changed our looks. He doesn’t know who I am at all…”

“He probably isn’t planning on starting the black iron bet right now. The black iron bet isn’t a regular match, so he would take priority. The moment he registered with the outer city token, he would immediately get moved to the front of the line! The moment the match on the stage ends, it would be the warrior who entered the black iron bet next.”

Rudy said with some disdain, “That guy seemed so confident just now as if he was already in a hurry to start the black iron belt. Yet, it seems like he doesn’t even have the courage. He’ll probably need two days of rest before he starts the black iron bet…”

Jackie did not think anything of it. After all, one’s life was the most important. He raised his eyebrow as he took out the token that belonged to him.

After the intense discussions, everyone had already started to lower their voices as they mumbled to each other. Some were still fixated on discussing Arne and Jackie. Everyone’s eyes were already glued to the stage. No matter when, there was always noise around him.

Jackie hated environments like that, but there was nothing he could do about it. He looked at the warriors around him. Compared to himself, all of them seemed much more excited.

There were those who were still incredibly excited even after they had lost a lot of spirit crystals during Lesley‘s battle. Other than those warriors who had already lost all hope after losing everything they had, most of the others still had a look of bloodlust in their eyes.

Jackie let out a sigh, toying around with the outer city token in his palm. He suddenly felt like there was no reason to continue staying there. It felt like he was wasting his time.

After thinking about it, he made a decision. After all, Jackie felt like there was no way Arne would easily start the black iron bet. Even after bragging so much earlier, Arne still did not reach where he was by charging into everything recklessly. He was naturally incredibly careful. Even after he had said everything, he would not start the black iron bet easily.

If he wanted to wait for his match, Jackie did not know how long it would take.

He then let out a cold laugh before he started to threw his divine senses into the outer city token. Probably because Rudy had been too infuriated by Arne, he seemed exceptionally excited when he allowed Rudy to head out.

The colosseum’s battles were incredibly intense, but Rudy’s skills were much weaker than everyone else, so he could not really understand what was going on. All he could do was cheer in excitement, getting swept up by the crowd.

Jackie looked at Rudy and sighed in his heart. Thankfully, he would be able to bring along another person after he won. Otherwise, he really did not know how he would bring Rudy further inside.

The battle on the stage had gone on for about fifteen minutes before the warrior barely managed to obtain victory. After the battle ended, the warrior‘s limbs were full of blood as he fought to even stand on the stage. However, no matter what, he had still won his match. As long as he won one more, he would be able to enter the central city. The victorious warrior stumbled off the stage, his face full of excitement.

The skull-masked caretakers started to clean up the stage again as the next match was about to follow.

Before the next match started, the skull-masked caretakers would produce a scroll and allow the participant to pick out one of the five beasts from the scroll. No matter how intense the battle before was, the caretakers would still emotionlessly walk up the stage before the next battle.

Chapter 3043
At that moment, a caretaker walked up with an all black scroll in hand.

After someone saw the scroll in his hand, the person immediately shouted out in surprise, “Look! The scroll in the caretaker’s hand is pure black. The scrolls before had all been white, so why is this one black?”

“What are you saying?! The scroll is black! My god… It looks like it’s true!”

The moment they realized that the scroll in the caretaker’s hand was black, questions started to erupt everywhere. The warriors that understood what it meant all widened their mouths in surprise, unable to suppress their excited expressions.

Quite a few of them started to get excited. Everyone looked at the caretaker on the stage before looking at where the disciples of the Deer Pavilion were gathered. They seemed to have a lot to say, but they knew that the caretaker was about to say something in line with what they were thinking. So, they held back their excited emotions as they decided to wait for it.

After the caretaker arrived at the center of the stage, he unfurled the black scroll. The moment the scroll was opened, a wave of pressure shot out with the scroll in the middle. It flowed everywhere, causing every warrior to suddenly find it a little harder to breathe.

The skull-masked caretaker announced emotionlessly, “Everyone who wants to place their bets, you have an hour to make your decision! After an hour, the black iron bet will commence!”

The moment he said that, everyone was surprised. It was just like they had thought, the black scroll meant that this match would not be an ordinary match, but a black iron bet!

A lot of the warriors who had not been in Hundred Beast City for that long had never seen a black iron bet before. Even those that had seen before still got so excited that their faces reddened. Some of them were even dancing around.

A black iron bet represented fervor, courage, and bloodlust. It was a huge gamble that would not let the participant off the stage before the participant won. The limits were set at a million spirit crystals. Even the lower bet was set at fifty thousand!

If they won, they would strike it rich. If they lost, they would lose everything. No matter who started the bet, all of them had a fifty-fifty chance of winning and striking it rich.

How could anyone not be excited?

A lot of them started to breathe frantically. All of them wanted to say something but could not compose the right words.

Rudy could not help but widen his mouth as he looked at Jackie in confusion, “Looks like we were wrong! That guy really does have some courage. He actually started the black iron bet! It’s probably better this way. People who are acting on an impulse usually don’t end up well. I feel like he’s probably not that prepared. There‘s a good chance he’ll fail.”

Jackie looked at Rudy, smiling but saying nothing.

At that moment, everyone kept on looking between the caretaker on the stage and Arne. The caretaker showed no emotions, so there was naturally no way to tell anything. They were actually able to see some emotions on Arne, but it felt incredibly strange. That was because Arne’s face was in shock, and slowly turned into anger and awkwardness.

Chapter 3044
The people around them could not tell that the disciples who were sitting behind Arne were all incredibly anxious.

One of the disciples from the Deer Pavilion said anxiously, “Arne, how could you be so reckless?! Didn‘t we already talk about it? We’d wait one or two days before starting the black iron bet. Starting it now will just leave yourself ill-prepared. You should let yourself calm down first. Only then will you be able to act confidently on stage! We can’t afford any mistakes at all! We’d already discussed everything, so why did you suddenly start a black iron bet?!”

After saying that, the others from the Deer Pavilion started to complain as well. They felt like Arne was acting way too rashly.

Feeling the intense gazes from everyone, and listening to the complaints from his fellow disciples, Arne felt incredibly incredulous. His lips twitched in exasperation.

The moment he wanted to say something, the caretaker at the center of the stage said again, “The challenger for the black iron bet is called Lucius! Please head to the stage right now and choose the beast for the first match!”

The moment the caretaker said that quite a few people were stunned.

Were they mistaken?

The one who started the black iron bet called Lucius! It was not Arne!

Arne had been so arrogant, trying his best to tell everyone that he would start a black iron bet to clear his and Lesley’s name. Yet, the person who started the black iron bet was not him, but someone called Lucius.

Quite a few of them started to look all over, asking loudly, “Who’s Lucius? Do any of you know him? Have you ever heard of this name?”

“Anyone who would dare to start a black iron bet at this moment must be a disciple from a big clan!”

“Since they’re a disciple from a big clan, they should more or less be somewhat well known. I know most of the famous disciples, but I’ve never heard of anyone by that name!”

As everyone was discussing the matter, Jackie stood up from the crowd. He walked right onto the stage, stunning everyone, including Arne and Rudy.

All of them had their mouths slightly open as they looked at Jackie in disbelief.

That was Lucius?

He had started the black iron bet! A wandering warrior?

Various thoughts formed in their heads as they struggled to find the words. Rudy took a deep breath. No wonder Jackie had just remained smiling. Jackie had already known that the person who started the black iron bet was not Arne, but himself!

Rudy took a deep breath as he suppressed the excitement in his heart. He was a hundred percent confident in Jackie. No matter how absurd the things Jackie did seemed to be, he would feel that Jackie had his reasons. Furthermore, he felt like Jackie absolutely could start the black iron bet. Rudy knew him, but the others did not. All of them felt like the guy called Lucius must be mad!

To avoid any unnecessary trouble, Jackie had not only changed his looks but even his name as well. Hundred Beast City would not deliberately ask for a warrior’s true name after all. There was nothing wrong with giving himself a fake name. Jackie had no affiliation at all, so he could change it all!

When Jackie stepped onto the stage, everyone was in an uproar!

“Is this Lucius guy really crazy? Does he know what he’s doing? Does he know what will happen if he doesn’t win after starting the black iron bet? Why did he do that? He seems a bit too confident in himself. Even disciples from high-grade clans won’t easily start black iron bets!”

“That‘s right! Even chosen disciples from eighth-grade clans wouldn’t easily start a black iron bet before being absolutely confident in their skills.”

Chapter 3045
“Just look at Arne earlier. He kept saying that he would start a black iron bet, but he did not start it immediately! In the end, it's because he's not confident enough in himself. How can a wandering warrior be so confident to think that he can win three matches in a row?"

"He probably let all the passion get to his head. He had just had a large fight with Arne, and he ended up with the upper hand. He probably didn't know what a black iron bet even represents, and what the results would be like. He just wanted to trample over Arne by doing this!"

"Even if he wanted to do that, surely there's no need for this? Is there really something wrong with his head? He's putting his life on the line just for some honor. It looks like this guy is just immature!"

"That's right, not only that, but he's crazy as well. It's obvious that he's not mentally sound!"

Everyone there exploded out in the discussion, saying anything they wanted. However, practically no one felt like Jackie had good prospects. After all, the difficulty of the black iron bet was something even disciples from high-grade clans did not dare to try out easily, let alone a wandering warrior without any background.

Jackie's actions looked like a complete joke to them.

Arne could not stop himself from laughing out loud. This time, his laughter was earnest. The chosen disciples of the Deer Pavilion around him all frantically laughed as well.

Arne raised an eyebrow and said, "He's the stupidest wandering warrior I've ever seen! This Lucius guy really is such a joke that I could not be bothered with him anymore. Does he think he'll show me up by doing this? Does he think that people will look at him in a better light because he started the black iron bet? Does he think that he'll be lucky enough to choose three weak beasts in a row?"

The warrior behind Arne laughed and said, "This guy started to get too pleased with himself after getting an advantage. He probably thinks that no one is a match for him! He's actually challenging something that even disciples of high-grade clans wouldn't dare to. Everyone can tell that he's just trying to stand out."

After saying that, he could not stop himself from laughing.

Arne snorted as he said, "Before this, I just felt like this guy is despicable. Now it looks like he's just a fool. I should not have bothered with an idiot like this! Now I just look petty. We should be taking care of mentally ill warriors like him."

After saying that, Arne could not stop laughing.

Jackie did not care about the laughter or discussions around him. At that moment, he was already on the stage, standing in front of the caretaker. He quietly glanced at the caretaker. It was the first time he was standing so close to one. He could not feel any warmth as if the caretaker was a complete machine.

After Jackie stood in front, the caretaker did not hesitate at all to wave his right hand, revealing five figures from the black scroll.

Jackie looked up and regretfully realized that he only recognized one of them from the five. He could not help but lament in his heart that there was so much to see in the world.

He recognized the creature called the Thousand Feathered Beast. It looked like a peacock, with radiant colors on its feathers. It looked incredibly beautiful but carried a dangerous aura as well. The Thousand Feathered Beast's skills were no match for the frostfire wolf, but not that far away. Jackie estimated that it was probably either the second or third place among the five beasts.

Jackie had never seen any of the other beasts before. He could not find an answer even after going through the memories that were left for him. The few beasts all had their own shapes and forms. There was a large rat, but it was dozens of times larger than any ordinary rat.

There was one with the head of a lion that looked incredibly robust. At that moment, the skull-masked caretaker said again, "Just like before, you have five minutes to choose. After five minutes, you have to choose one beast to fight against"

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3046 - 3050

Chapter 3046
Five minutes was more than enough time. In truth, after looking at the five beasts, Jackie already had an answer in his mind. Even if he was a little unlucky and chose the strongest among the five, it was not a big issue for Jackie. No matter how strong they were, they should just be slightly stronger than the frostfire wolf. To him, that was no issue at all.

Compared to Jackie's lack of emotion, the spectators were incredibly excited.

When they saw that Jackie had started the black iron bet, they were so shocked that they did not know how to react. They had slowly begun to calm down, and when they saw the five images in the air, they felt like cursing in their hearts.

"This guy is for real! He's already choosing his beast. I feel like I'm seeing things. Ever since Lesley lost the match, I've already felt like I was dreaming."

"I feel astounded as well. I thought that the person who started the black iron bet was Arne, but I never expected it to be the wandering warrior who had been arguing with Arne. Do you think he really has something up his sleeves, or is he just overly excited?"

"Do you really think that he has any skill? How do you even begin to believe that? If he really had any skills, he would have been picked up by a clan as a disciple. How could he still be a wandering warrior?! Even a disciple from a major clan wouldn't casually start a black iron bet. Have you forgotten how hard it is? You have to have three matches in a row, and win all of them. Even if he's lucky enough to choose a weaker beast in the first round, there's no way he can be so lucky to choose the weakest beast every round!"

"Quite a few people have started the black iron bets before, but only three out of ten can walk off the stage and earn a black iron medal! Don't think that this guy is actually that skilled just because he knows how to talk a little."

"You're right, but I feel like there should be nothing wrong with Lucius' mind. Everything he said earlier seemed very well thought out and clear. He doesn't seem like someone who would act so rashly at all. There's no way he would do something so absurd. After all, in a black medal bet, any bit of carelessness would cost him his life. It's impossible he doesn't know that. Since he is aware of all these, there must be a reason why he's doing this."

"You're regarding that guy too highly. You can't say that he's all that reasonable, he just has a way with his words. I feel like this guy is probably just stupid. He might have done all of this because what Arne had said earlier was right. He might be doing this to stand out from the crowd and gain our attention!"

“That‘s right! Some people will do anything for attention. I feel like this guy doesn’t just love to brag, but has immense confidence in himself too!”

Slowly, all sorts of discussions surfaced. Some of them felt like Jackie’ s actions really did have some skill behind them to lead him to be so confident. However, most of them just felt like Jackie was a clown desperate for attention.

Even disciples from high-grade clans would not dare to start black iron bets so easily. He had dared to do so simply for the sake of attracting more attention. People like that usually end up dead, and would suffer a far worse fate than Lesley!

Rudy‘s face was cold as he listened to everyone. If not for Jackie‘s words, he would have already tried to argue against all of them.

Chapter 3047
Before, Rudy would try to correct the thoughts of others even if he was angered by the discussions. On the other hand, Jackie never wanted to bother with the hassle. Back then, Rudy felt like it was not right for Jackie to do that.

That way, everyone would misunderstand Jackie, and try to insult him.

Jackie should have tried to clear up his name. Yet, as time passed Rudy slowly understood why Jackie acted that way.

Facing a crowd like that, no matter how loud someone was and how much truth he spoke, it was completely useless. There was no way to correct their thoughts. There was only one way to shut them up, which was to use his own strength to force them to shut up.

The one who was the most excited among all of them was definitely Arne. He had been forced into silence by Jackie, but finally found a way for him to vent out his frustrations. When he heard the discussions around him, Arne immediately stood up in the stands.

He shouted out, “Anyone who feels like Lucius is skilled, can you please wake up? If Lucius is really that exceptionally talented, then how could he still be a wandering warrior? His clothes look like he’s a beggar on the streets. Have you ever seen a talented warrior who did not dress well and exude an impressive aura? How could they be like Lucius?” Arne insulted Jackie, saying that Jackie looked like a beggar.

It was obviously an exaggeration. Even though Jackie’s clothes were not that luxurious, they were still clean and tidy. The robes were not ripped anywhere at all, but in the eyes of someone from a high-grade clan like Arne, clean and tidy clothes like that still belonged to beggars.

People of noble birth naturally got to wear the corresponding clothes. Their full attire costs at least ten thousand spirit crystals! Rudy took a deep breath, feeling like he was starting to lose control. Arne was far too despicable, even caring about what others wore and using that as an attack.

He loudly continued, “I already said that he was just trying to stand out and attract attention, but none of you believed me! Do you believe me now? How could an ordinary wandering warrior ever start a black iron bet! Does he think he’s a chosen disciple from a ninth-grade clan? Just think about how arrogant he was acting before. It’s like he thinks he is better than everyone!”

Arne was taking the chance to completely degrade Jackie!

He only had one thought in mind, which was to cause everyone to attack this Lucius!

The warriors on the stand might have felt that Arne’s words were a little exaggerated and doubtful, but they still agreed with some of his words. After all, the black iron bet’s difficulty was plain for all to see.

Almost everyone present would not dare to start a black iron bet. It was far too difficult. The most important point was that they would die if they did not win all three rounds! Unless they win, they would never be able to leave. They could not even surrender.

It was a battle that would not end. Anyone who was slightly average would never try the bet because it was far too dangerous. Even if winning the black iron bet earns them a black iron medal, the title of black iron warrior, an entry into the central city, and the respect of everyone, they would still not start the black iron bet!

Chapter 3048
The cruel reality was plain for all to see. They could not help but wonder if Jackie really was crazy.

The discussions around him did not affect Jackie at all. Two and a half minutes quickly passed by, and he raised an eyebrow, feeling like there was no reason to hesitate any longer. He turned to look at the caretaker, pointing right at the Thousand Feathered Beast.

Since he did not know the skill level of the other four beasts and what they were called, he would pick one he was familiar with. Even if he had estimated the Thousand Feathered Beast to be at the second or third among the five beasts, putting it at above average, Jackie did not mind. It would not affect anything at all.

The caretaker was different from the others. He did not care about Jackie‘s status or background. He was just a caretaker who upheld the rules. After Jackie made his choice, the other four figures turned into energy, disappearing into the air. Only the Thousand Feathered Beast remained, slowly solidifying. Its rainbow-colored feathers reflected the light intensely. It seemed like they were looking at a rainbow-colored phoenix.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, remembering that the Thousand Feathered Beast's natural skill was called the Deadly Plume!

Only, he did not know how much the Thousand Feathered Beast had mastered Deadly Plume. After the choice was made, the caretaker kept the black scroll and walked forward to make an announcement for all the warriors.

"You have an hour to make your choice. The black iron bet is different from the normal betting. The upper limit for a black iron bet is a million spirit crystals, and the lowest bet you can place is fifty thousand. Anyone who wants to bet can head to the betting area with your spirit crystals. We will announce the odds right now. The beast is one to two! The warrior is one to seven!"

The moment that was said, the spectators were in an uproar. Everyone had their eyes widened. It was the first time they had seen such high odds!

The difference between the two odds was three times more. Those odds could be absurd in the real world. It looked like even the caretakers felt like Lucius' chances of winning were incredibly slim. Otherwise, there was no way the odds would be so high.

If a lot of people bet on the beast, Hundred Beast City would probably lose a lot of money. They had set the odds so ridiculously possibly because they did not think that Lucius would win!

Hearing those odds, Jackie's lips twitched in exasperation. Even if he had never taken part in any battles, his aura should not be that weak.

Was there a reason for the odds to be so high?

However, that suited his intentions perfectly.

Since his odds were one to seven, then he just needed to bet a million on himself. After that, he would be able to get seven million spirit crystals for free after winning the black iron bet! Thinking about it made him happy. The more Arne laughed, the happier he was. He suddenly felt like even the caretakers were starting to get lovable.

He deliberately said loudly, "Everyone, did you hear that? It looks like even the caretakers feel that Lucius' acting absurdly. That's why they set the odds so high. They just want to attract more people to bet on Lucius to make more for themselves!"

Normally, high odds are meant to even out the betting pool. They could not have everyone placing their bets on one side. That way, Hundred Beast City would not lose that much if one side won. Pulling Jackie's odds so high was meant to attract more warriors to bet on Jackie.

Chapter 3049
Quite a few warriors shook their heads silently.

Practically no one felt that Jackie would win. The chances of him winning were so slim that it was negligible. Compared to the one to seven odds, they felt like one to two odds was not too bad. Even if they could not win seven times their bet, betting on Jackie was a sure loss.

“What are you even thinking about? Do you think that the one to seven odds is very attractive? Even if it’s rare, this guy will definitely lose. There’s no reason to bet on him at all! One to two odds might be much lower, but there’s nothing to think about considering the other option would lose!”

“You shouldn’t be so intent on gambling! That guy might be acting so confidently, but he’s still just a wandering warrior. You have to think things through. This is a black iron bet, there’s no way to get by with just luck!”

“Those who think that Lucius will win are just too crazy for money, but there’s no reasoning with people like that. You should think about it honestly and not take risks. Go ahead and bet your whole fortune on Lucius. When you lose, remember not to curse at others. It was your own choice!”

Slowly, those thoughts became the dominating ones. As long as anyone wanted to bet on Jackie, they would be seen as gambling addicts greedy for money. That was because the one to seven odds did not matter when the reality was right in front of them!

When Arne heard that there were still those who wanted to bet on Jackie, he was furious.

When they were betting on Lesley’s match, Jackie had not only bet on the beast but even mocked Lesley and cursed Arne as well. When Lesley lost and died, Jackie even mocked him alongside the crowd.

Arne would never forget that grudge. He would definitely not allow anyone to bet on Jackie. He was already certain that Jackie was just trying to show off and stand out. He would definitely not let anyone think highly of Jackie. He wanted Jackie to personally see how the crowd had forsaken Jackie. He wanted Jackie to hear how little everyone thought of him!

At that moment, Arne started to shout again, “Can all of you please wake up? Don’t get tricked by this guy. I already said it before, he merely started the black iron bet to show me up. It’s because i said I would start a black iron bet, so he tried to start it before me. He just wanted to show off and have everyone acknowledge him…”

“He’s just trying desperately to gain everyone’s attention. Otherwise, how could a mere wandering warrior attempt something as difficult as the black iron bet? Even if he’s confident in his skills, there’s no way he would risk his life on the black iron bet… He only has one goal in doing this. He wants everyone to acknowledge him! He did so before as well, so why are you betting on someone like him? You’ ll definitely lose. There’s nothing to hesitate about!”

After saying that, he walked out of where all the Deer Pavilion’s disciples were and headed to the center of the spectator stands.

He shouted out, “Someone said before! One to seven odds are high, but you’ll just lose no matter how much you put in. One to two odds might seem lower, but you’ll at least be able to win!”

“The upper limit of the black iron bet is a million spirit crystals. You’ll be able to get two million back if you put a million in! However, if you place a million on Lucius, you’ll just be throwing your spirit crystals away!”

“A warrior can only bet on one side! You have to be careful. After all, black iron bets don’t happen every day. It’s so rare that you might only be able to see it once a month!”

Chapter 3050
“Black iron bets have a very high upper limit. If you win, you’ll get many times your spirit crystals back. If you lose, you lose everything!”

Arne’s yelling slowly swayed the warriors who wanted to bet on Jackie. After all, his words sounded quite reasonable. Even if the odds were so high, there was no way Lucius could win the black iron bet.

No matter how much they bet on him, it would just amount to nothing. It was better if they bet on the beast instead. Even if they would only be able to make twice their bets, they were still betting a lot on this!

Looking on as people slowly stopped wanting to bet on Jackie, Arne was incredibly ecstatic. That was what he wanted to see!

As long as Jackie suffered, Arne would be happy. Not only did he want to watch as Jackie dies, but he also wanted Jackie to suffer as well. He wanted Jackie to regret going against him!

Arne turned to look at Jackie, who was still on the stage. He felt like Jackie had definitely heard everyone’s words, and was definitely suffering on the inside. Jackie’s expression was probably about to change. However, he was stunned when he saw Jackie’s expression because Jackie remained emotionless. Even if others did not acknowledge him, Jackie seemed incredibly calm, as if he did not hear anything. He did not seem to care that no one was betting on him.

Jackie immediately understood what Arne was confused about when he saw the look on Jackie's face. After all, Arne had been frantically shouting at the crowd to not bet on Jackie.

When Jackie thought about that, he almost failed to stop himself from laughing.

Arne really was simple-minded. He actually thought that Jackie had started the black iron bet just to show off!

Jackie had no intention of attracting any attention at all in making a bet. Even if that had been his intention, there was no way he would put his life on the line for that. Arne had not thought that far at all. Even if he thought about it, he would have denied the thought. He felt like Jackie was just a clown lacking attention. He thought that he would be able to deal a blow to Jackie by doing that.

Arne's eyes widened as he was first filled with doubts before he started to feel shocked. His lips twitched slightly.

After a long time, he said to Jackie, "What are you putting on a show for? Don't think that I don't know how badly you're affected right now just because you're acting like you don't care. You must hate me so much right now! You must be regretting ever going against me! You didn't get the results you wanted. Everyone will always look down on you. Don't think that people will bet on you just because you started the black iron bet. It's because you're just a complete idiot!"

Hearing his words, Jackie felt like Arne was a complete joke.

He raised an eyebrow and said plainly, "Is there something wrong with your head? How do you know what I'm thinking? Can you read my mind? In my mind, you're the idiot. It's actually laughable how stupid you are!"

Arne's eyes narrowed as he snorted, "Why are you in such a hurry to deny everything? I must have been right. You'll definitely lose, completely too!"

Jackie's lips twitched in exasperation. Arne was already too far gone. No matter what he said, Arne would remain stubborn.

Jackie might not want to deal with a crazy guy like that, but he still remembered what Arne had done that day. When he had a chance in the future, he would make Arne pay back several fold.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, suddenly thinking about something. He laughed and said, "Since you're sure that I'll definitely lose, bet a million spirit crystals on the beast!"

Arne snorted, “Of course, I’ll be betting on the beast. I’ll be paying a lot too! Do you think everyone’s as poor as a wandering warrior like you?! Don’t just focus on other people’s bets. You must join too. Who are you betting on?”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3051 -

Chapter 3051
Arne's eyes had a challenging glint in them. He wanted to see how many spirit crystals Jackie would take out and who he would bet on.

Logically, with how arrogant that guy was, he would bet on himself, but it was also possible that the brat would throw a curveball and bet his spirit crystals on the beast.

After Arne said all of that, he attracted the curiosity of all those around them as well. They wanted to see how much Jackie would bet and whether Jackie would bet on the beast or himself.

Facing the curious gazes of the crowd, Jackie maintained his composure, not caring what the others thought or said. They did not know Jackie's skills at all nor did they know what he was thinking. He did not want them to know more about him either.

He turned around and walked right over to the betting area outside of the colosseum. Jackie's actions caused everyone else to stand up from the spectator stands as well, following Jackie toward the betting area.

Rudy was practically jogging to keep up with Jackie's footsteps.

When he reached Jackie's side, Rudy hurriedly whispered, "Jackie, how many spirit crystals should I bet?"

Jackie sighed as he faced forward, thinking about it for a moment before he slowly said, "Do you trust me?"

Rudy was stunned when he heard that.

Was that not a silly question? If Rudy did not trust Jackie, why would he follow him everywhere?

Rudy frowned and said, "Of course I trust you. Who would I trust if not you?"

Jackie straightened his back, letting out a faint smile. "Since you trust me, then bet everything you have on me. The odds are one to seven, and it's an excellent chance."

Jackie only had an approximation of Rudy's wealth. He probably did not have a million spirit crystals, but Rudy definitely had 500000. After all, Rudy had already been an alchemist for a while, and he should have had some savings.

Rudy did not even need to think about it before he nodded after he heard that. "I was planning on doing that."

After the two of them finished talking, they arrived at the betting area. At that moment, a large group of warriors was right behind them. All of them curiously watched on as they looked at Jackie's every action.

Jackie did not care how heated their looks seemed to be.

He looked at the caretaker behind the long desk. He was like any other caretaker; standing with his body straightened and not showing a single hint of emotion like a machine crafted for the Hundred Beast City.

Jackie did not hesitate at all before taking out a million spirit crystals and handing them to the caretaker, saying, "I want to bet a million spirit crystals. All of them will be on me."

The caretaker mechanically collected the spirit crystals before writing down his name on the warrior's segment.

Jackie heard a collective gasp when he said that. Some people started to remark that Jackie was from a special place to be able to fork out a million spirit crystals. Others remarked that Jackie truly was demented to be so confident in himself. He did not seem to care about how hard the black iron bet was.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3052 -

Chapter 3052
With that, Jackie walked to the side.

Rudy, standing behind him, stepped up after Jackie placed his bet and did not hesitate at all as he took out all his savings from his storage ring. It was 67000 spirit crystals, all placed on Jackie. He then walked to Jackie's side.

At that moment, everyone started to look at the two of them differently as the discussions slowly got louder.

"They've been sitting together from the start. The guy beside Lucius had always been protecting Lucius. It was obvious that their relationship was quite close."

"Now it looks like they're not just close but incredibly slow. That guy took out an odd number of spirit crystals, so that has to be all that he has."

"He bet everything on Lucius! Isn't be afraid of losing it all? He heard everything we said earlier. Is he really that confident in this Lucius guy, and actually feels like Lucius can win the black iron bet?"

“Don’t overestimate those two. They must’ve come from an insignificant place. They probably don’t know how strong everyone else is. That guy next to Lucius probably has no real experience and is just blindly trusting him. He’s going to end up crying!”

“You’re right, these two are clearly just ignorant. Anyone with any intelligence wouldn’t do what they did!”

These people raised their voices as they talked, seemingly intending for the two of them to hear everything. However, both Jackie, who was Lucius, and Rudy acted like they heard nothing. It was a waste of time to fight against them.

Before the results were out, they had no way of changing the minds of those people at all. Anyone who still had any spirit crystals in hand came and placed their bets as well. After Rudy placed his bet, he merely stood by Jackie’s side.

The warriors from the spectator stands followed. When they placed their bets, they did not hesitate at all to bet their spirit crystals on the beasts.

A bald man who wore the uniform of the Rosefinch Pavilion took out everything he had, a total of 760000 spirit crystals, and bet them all on the beasts.

The bald man had an incredibly pleased look on his face, looking like a poor beggar who struck it rich overnight. After he pulled out all his spirit crystals, he mumbled to himself, “Seven hundred and sixty thousand spirit crystals are about to become a million and five hundred and twenty thousand in a snap! I’m about to become a millionaire!”

“After all my losses and wins, multiple bets after, I only managed to earn twenty thousand spirit crystals. I can’t believe my fortune is about to turn just like that!”

After he said that, he looked up at Jackie. “I should thank you, really. If you hadn’t started the black iron bet, I wouldn’t have been able to earn so many spirit crystals at once!”

The bald man’s smile was wide as he spoke as if he had just hit the lottery.

Jackie’s expression remained unchanged at those words. Rudy frowned as he looked at the bald man, irked.

The bald man was not expressing his gratitude at all. He was just mocking Jackie. Rudy coldly snorted as he turned away, not bothering with someone like that.

All of them were so pleased with themselves, certain that Jackie would lose. He would let them think what they wanted. Even though Jackie was going to go through three battles on the stage, Rudy was certain that Jackie would probably not need that much time.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3053 -

Chapter 3053
In two hours at most, they would see who would be the ones laughing.

The ones who took part in the bet took up two-thirds of the audience, and among them, only one of them was someone Jackie was familiar with. That person bet 100000 spirit crystals on Jackie. It was the wandering warrior who wore a green robe from before, the same man Lesley had berated.

The green-robed man had betted on the beast in the battle before the last, winning three times his spirit crystals. At that moment, he took out a portion of that and betted it on Jackie.

When the green-robed man shouted out that he would bet a hundred thousand spirit crystals on the warrior, everyone was stunned. They looked at the green-robed man with disdain and mockery.

“This guy’s gone nuts, just like Lucius. Both of them had been threatened by Lesley before, but this green-robed guy is a little smarter than Lucius. After being threatened by Lesley, he didn’t talk back. With what he’s doing right now, it’s clear that he’s coming for the Deer Pavilion!”

“That’s right. I don’t know what this guy is thinking. Is he not worried about being threatened again? Does he think that he should just double down since he’s already in a bad situation?”

Jackie looked at the green-robed man curiously, and their gazes met. He did not care about. what everyone else seemed to say as he maintained a calm expression.

When Jackie looked over, the man merely nodded at Jackie wordlessly. Jackie let out a sigh, a little gratified. Even though the green-robed man said nothing the whole time, Jackie could tell what he felt. He wanted to fight back. He did not want to be pushed down by disciples from high-grade clans anymore.

He was pitiful to not have any status or background, but he refused to give in. He bet those spirit crystals on Jackie as a way to fight back against fate.

Arne let out a cold laugh. “What a hilarious sight! It looks like you’re intent on fighting the Deer Pavilion to the end! Well then, I’ll fulfill your wish. You better remember this. Be more careful in the future. If you aren’t careful, we’ll slice you apart. Even if the Whirling World has a lot of restrictions, there are many places without any. From now on, you should be ready to die at any moment as long as you live in this world!”

The green-robed man's face darkened as a look of anger flashed in his eyes. However, he bit his words back, not saying anything.

He looked at Arne before walking right back to the spectator stands.

Looking at the man's figure, Rudy could not help but sigh. He whispered to Jackie, "I can understand what he feels right now. If you weren't around, I'd probably be in the same situation. I might not even be as well off as he is! When facing injustice, I might just accept it without a single thought of fighting back. He's actually willing to fight back!"

An hour passed quickly, and the people taking part in the bets had all placed their bets. Other than the green-robed man and Jackie's duo, the others bet their spirit crystals on the beasts. Even though the one-to-two odds were not as good as one-to-seven, all of them were sure that Jackie would lose. Being able to make money was still something!

On the stage, the Thousand Feathered Beast was already waiting.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3054 -

Chapter 3054
The Thousand Feathered Beast was about six meters tall and looked like a miniature mountain.

Jackie walked up to the stage steadily.

The moment he walked on the stage, the barrier around the arena activated, separating the stage from the outside world. No matter how powerful the attacks from the inside were, nothing would break through and reach the spectator stands.

The moment Jackie stood in place, the Thousand Feathered Beast moved. It flapped its massive wings, rushing into the air after an intense screech. Its sharp eyes remained fixed on him, even in the air.

Jackie narrowed his eyes slightly as he pulled out his gray sword from Mustard Seed. The black iron bet required him to win three consecutive matches in a row, and this was his first one. His hands constantly moved as he formed gray rune after gray rune. A hundred soul swords materialized from those runes. He reached out and fused them into his sword.

The gray sword started to vibrate from the energy within as the Thousand Feathered Beast constantly flew in the air, looking at Jackie. It let out another sharp cry, which caused his eardrums to thrum.

The next second, the Thousand Feathered Beast moved its wings and suddenly attacked.

It let out a rainbow-colored glow so vibrant that it was borderline blinding. It flapped its wings, forming miniature cyclones due to how fast it was. It then let out another cry as countless feathers left its body, rushing quickly at Jackie. Those feathers might have looked incredibly beautiful, but they had a killing intent that could pierce into anyone‘s soul.

It was the Thousand Feathered Beast’s natural-born technique, the Deadly Plume. The Thousand Feathered Beast’s feathers were filled with its essence. Whether it was defensively or offensively, it was dozens of times stronger than any ordinary weapon.

Jackie merely heard winds blowing as those feathers rapidly flew at Jackie at imperceptible speed.

He raised an eyebrow. Thankfully, he knew of Deadly Plume. He knew that Deadly Plume’s impressiveness came from its speed and power. He thus activated the laws of space, disappearing from the spot.

The moment Jackie disappeared, countless rainbow-colored feathers landed on his original spot. The speed and amount of those feathers would have at least covered up 15 meters around where Jackie had been.

In any normal retreat, even if Jackie had not been heavily injured, he would have sustained some injuries from not being able to avoid the speed and density of the attack. If he had been injured from the first strike, the future battles would be affected.

Jackie had a plan against that and thus avoided the attack.

Meanwhile, the spectators were so shocked that they did not know what to say. Their eyes widened, threatening to pop out of their sockets.

“My lord, this bird is so powerful! Its attacks are horrifyingly quick. It was so far from Lucius. Normally, as long as a warrior wants to avoid an attack from that distance, they should be able to, but that attack came at such a shocking speed.”

“If that brat didn’t have something up his sleeve to flicker away, most people wouldn’t have been able to avoid it!”

“That’s right. Could the guy have used something to shrink the distance? I feel like the space was distorted. Could he have used a spatial technique? Does he know spatial techniques? You really can’t judge a book by its cover. Regardless, this bird won’t be easy to deal with. It’s so quick that even if the attacks aren’t that strong, it’ll be hard to deal with!”

“That‘s right! This guy is that unlucky to pick the strongest beast out of the five. This bird doesn’t look any weaker than the wolf Lesley picked out earlier!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3055 -

Chapter 3055
The spectator stands had already blown up in discussion due to that exchange. They had never seen a beast that quick before. Even if the two of them were already at a safe distance, there was a very good chance that Jackie would not have been able to avoid the attack if he had not used the laws of space. He might have gotten injured, even, affecting the final results.

Looking at that exchange, they could not help but wonder if they would have been able to escape unscathed if they were on the stage.

Arne let out a cold laugh as he said, “Karma always finds a way to punish those who deserve it. This guy has done so many nasty things, so that’s why he’s being punished. He chose the strongest of the beasts, and he won’t even be able to win the first match. He might end up destroyed by the rainbow feathers on that bird in just a moment!”

The moment he said that, the other disciples from the Deer Pavilion behind him started to laugh. As long as Jackie met misfortune, they would be elated. Arne, on the other hand, looked like he had struck the lottery.

Rudy was actually not that far away from Arne, so Arne deliberately raised his voice to make sure Rudy heard everything.

Rudy, unable to stand it anymore, turned to Arne with a cold look and said loudly, “You’re right, karma always strikes back! The beast Lesley chose was even stronger than this bird. He died such a horrible death, and it just proves what you said is right!”

The moment Rudy said that, the crowd burst into laughter. Rudy’s words had truly stung, using Arne’s own words against him.

Arne’s face darkened as his prideful self faltered in a flash. He gritted his teeth as he stared at Rudy, looking like he wanted to rip him apart.

Arne’s lips twitched as he raised his voice. “You filthy mongrel. You’re just as wicked as Lucius. Just you wait! Once I get the chance, I’ll have the two of you begging me for mercy!”

Facing threats like these, Rudy’s heart would still shake a little, but he had already gotten used to it and started to even feel immune.

He did not even bother raising an eyebrow before he let out a cold laugh. “If you have the skills, then come right over. Stop bragging before you actually do something. Make sure you‘re not the one begging for mercy before you die!”

The two of them shot at each other back and forth, causing the atmosphere to grow tense by the minute. The warriors around them knew that those two would not be sitting if not for the rules of Hundred Beast City. They would not be able to forgive themselves if they did not start fighting right away.

Arne was already so furious that his hands were trembling.

“Alright, then! You’re just an ignorant cur like Lucius! I won’t even need a few days for me to show you who‘ll be crying!”

Rudy raised an eyebrow, deciding to just turn away.

Nothing would come from arguing like that. Both of them were just shooting words back and forth. Even if he beat Arne in a war of words, what did it mean?

It was not like he could do anything to Arne at that moment. All it did was push Arne back slightly.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3056 -

Chapter 3056
Slowly, Rudy noticed that he was becoming more and more like Jackie. He slowly understood why Jackie was always so calm, and why none could get to his head.

Fwoop! Fwoop! Fwoop!

Countless rainbow-colored feathers viciously slammed onto the surface of the stage.

Jackie barely managed to avoid them all. He looked up at the Thousand Feathered Beast in the sky, noticing its sharp eyes still looking right at him. Even though it showed no emotions, the intense killing intent coming from it washed over Jackie like a wave.

“Is he only good at evading? It’s been a while, but he’s been dodging! Why isn’t he fighting back?! Has be given up on even fighting back because he knows he’ll lose?”

“Who knows what this kid is thinking. Does he think that the Thousand Feathered Beast will exhaust all its energy if he keeps on hiding like that? If that guy really thinks that way, what a joke this will turn out to be.”

“The Thousand Feathered Beast isn’t an actual beast at all. Its energy is inexhaustible thanks to the whole Hundred Beast City. The only one who’ll run out of energy is Lucius!”

Rudy listened to all of that with a calm outward expression. He might be curious as to why Jackie was not attacking, but he remained calm. After all, he trusted Jackie and knew there was a reason for everything he did. However, those around Rudy did not have his calm attitude at all.

The man with a mustache who was beside Jackie earlier turned to look at Rudy and said curiously, “Why is he not attacking? Won’t it just put him at a disadvantage if he keeps on doing this? Could he just be trying to drag things out because he knows he’ll lose?”

In truth, he had worded it very vaguely. What he meant to ask was if Jackie knew that he would die, and was just trying to stay alive for as long as possible.

No matter how dumb Rudy could be at times, he understood the meaning behind those words. He thus turned to look at the man and answered coldly, “We’ve got no reason to speculate before the results are out. Just keep watching.”

The man’s lips twitched, swallowing back the words he was about to say.

After avoiding another attack, Jackie looked up at the beast again.

‘It flew up again,’ he muttered to himself.

He had just been avoiding the attacks, but he had also been observing the movements of the beast. He still had a question he needed an answer to. He stopped as he grabbed his sword with both hands, slashing at the beast. Destroying the Void turned into a black slash that flew right at the Thousand Feathered Beast.

At that moment, the crowd burst into murmurs and gasps.

“He attacked! He finally attacked! I really don’t want to see the guy dying of exhaustion before he even launches a single attack!”

“Tell me about it. That’d make the battle way too boring. Only the beast was attacking, while the guy was dodging! It wasn‘t interesting at all!”

The gray slash traveled very quickly. In a flash, it appeared in front of the Thousand Feathered Beast.

Facing Jackie’s attack, there was no way the beast would not move. It stretched its wings as it shot into the skies. The slash whizzed past the Thousand Feathered Beast’s claws, not hitting it at all.

Everyone heard a boom as the slash hit the barrier.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3057 -

Chapter 3057
It was a barrier specifically made to cut off the stage and the outside world, protecting the spectator stands from being affected. When the slash hit the barrier, it caused small ripples before being absorbed.

Jackie let out a sigh as he frowned helplessly.

The Thousand Feathered Beast did not just attack incredibly quickly, but the speed at which it moves was not to be underestimated, too.

Earlier, the Thousand Feathered Beast had the chance to move away before he attacked, but it waited until Destroying the Void was coming at it before it fled.

Was it trying to show off its speed?

The beast was made of energy, incapable of thinking for itself!

Those thoughts floated in Jackie’s mind before he discarded them. It was not the time to think of any of that when the spectators saw what happened, they could not stop talking.

Even Arne lamented, “How quick! Lucius truly is unlucky, ’cause that bird is nimble. Attacks can’t reach it with how fast it moves! Even if Lucius has a way to run, his true energy will get exhausted in time. He’s bound to die, delivered like a slab of meat on the chopping block!”

A Deer Pavilion disciple quickly said, “You’re right, Arne! This kid is already meat on the chopping board waiting to be cut in half by that bird! He’s lucky, though. If he fell in our hands, we wouldn’t have let him off so easily!”

Arne pursed his lips as a look of disappointment flashed in his eyes. “You’re right. If Lucius ended up in our hands, he’d suffer a worse fate and would wish he was dead. Letting him die like this is too good of a fate for him!”

After saying that, Arne curled up his fists as he looked at Jackie‘s figure with venomous hatred.

Jackie narrowed his eyes slightly on the stage. He gripped his sword With both hands again as he stared right at the Thousand Feathered Beast. His right hand started to form even more seals.

Ample energy flowed into the gray sword as he activated the laws of space, pulling into a safe distance away from the beast again. This time, he planned on launching a long-range attack.

In truth, Jackie was in no hurry to end the fight. Even though he experienced quite a lot recently, he felt like he lacked experience compared to others. He did not want fights that were in his control to end too early.

He clenched his sword as he faced the Thousand Feathered Beast again. He let out a slash, this time only the size of a fist. Suddenly, it completely expanded in the air, turning into a massive slash that was nine meters wide!

Before, the Thousand Feathered Beast avoided Jackie’s attack because the attack was too small in scale. The Thousand Feathered Beast had avoided the attack so quickly, so Jackie decided to launch a huge attack this time. He wanted to see if the beast would be able to avoid it.

When the slash turned large, the Thousand Feathered Beast immediately felt a sense of danger. It flapped its wings against as it flew right up.

Since Jackie had launched a horizontal attack, the attack only expanded horizontally, yet the beast flew upward. Jackie’s attack slammed into the barrier again. After causing some ripples, nothing else happened.

The crowd fell silent for a moment after witnessing that before they erupted again.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3058 -

Chapter 3058
“There has to be something wrong with this guy! Doesn’t he know what expanding the range of an attack does? Every technique has its limitations. Unless they were large area attacks to begin with, expanding the area of an attack would mean decreasing the strength of a technique!”

“That’s right. If the strength of the attack had been a ten, the attack was probably only left with a five after what he did. He’s a wandering warrior, so how strong can the technique be?”

“If the attack had been at its peak, it might’ve been able to injure the bird. After he expanded the attack, the attack was only left with a strength of five! Even if it damaged the bird, the bird would only lose a few feathers at most!”

Arne started to cackle. This time, he did not deliberately laugh in an exaggerated manner but was really laughing at Jackie’s idiocy.

Everyone could tell that the technique Jackie used was not supposed to be a large area attack. He would just be reducing the damage it would deal by expanding it, which was completely foolish!

Anyone with a sliver of intelligence would never do it!

Arne laughed and said, “I’m beginning to suspect that this guy was just trying to entertain me when he started the black iron bet! Ever since he stepped on stage, everything he did has just made me laugh. First, he just kept on avoiding the attacks. After that, he impatiently countered. His attack wasn’t fast enough, but instead of changing his way of attack, he decided to expand his attack range. Does he think he’s using an ultimate god rank technique that would heavily injure the bird even if he expanded the area?!”

The other disciple laughed.

“He’d be extremely lucky to have access to a lower earth rank technique, let alone an ultimate god rank one! I think he‘s probably only good at running away. No wonder he was so arrogant. He probably thought that he’d be able to run away from all of us!”

Arne let out a snort. “Please! Even if he can run, it doesn’t mean we don’t have anyone here who specializes in speed. As long as we want to, we’d catch him! It’s all too late, though, ‘cause this guy will die here. There‘s no way he can survive!”

Rudy’s face was red with anger. He wanted to walk up to Arne and slap him right in the face. He did his best to hold back his anger, however. It was not that he did not want to offend Arne, he just did not want to do anything pointless. Nothing would happen no matter how much they argued.

He meditated on this thought to suppress the anger welling up in him, trying not to lose his cool. Arguing with them would do nothing.

Just as Rudy was composing himself, Arne said again, “This is the dumbest person I‘ve ever seen. He thinks so much of himself and is so prideful! Lucius is probably regretting everything at the moment. He never expected the beast he picked to not only be strong but so quick as well. He knows that he’ll die if this goes on! That’s why he’s regretting things. He was too prideful, unable to see through his decisions!”

The other disciple joined in the hate train.

“I don’t think he’s that prideful, but he’s just very stubborn. He insists on showing off to the end. We already know what awaits him; he’ll have thousands of feathers pierced through him! He’ll die horribly!”

“He will. He‘s so confident in himself, there‘s no way he can accept the result,” Arne mocked.

Rudy could no longer hold back after hearing all that. He suddenly stood up and looked at Arne. “Before the results are revealed, can you please shut your mouths? Do you think you’re all smart? In my eyes, you’re the scatterbrained ones!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3059 -

Chapter 3059
“You know nothing about Lucius, so how are you so sure he’ll lose? Do you think everyone will end up getting burnt to a crisp like Lesley?!”

After Rudy said that, he looked at Arne coldly, causing Arne to turn purple in the face. “What did you say?!”

Rudy smiled coldly. “I‘m speaking human words. Do you not understand them? Can you shut that annoying mouth of yours? You might feel that it’s fine after you speak, but please be considerate of how others feel. I feel like puking the moment you open your mouth, do you know that? The things you say are far too stupid!”

The moment Rudy started talking, he could not stop himself. He recalled everything that Arne had said and got even furious. If he could, he wanted to kill Arne with his words.

Arne stood up from his seat angrily as the tension between the two of them rose instantly. The tension was so thick it could be cut with a knife, and a fight was bound to happen if nothing was done.

The disciples of the Deer Pavilion hurriedly pulled back Arne when they saw that the situation was not great. If they started fighting, it would be no joke. It would anger the laws of Hundred Beast City.

Hundred Beast City would not care about one's skill or background. As long as a person broke the rules, they would immediately be punished. If they were struck by lightning, they would end up just like Lesley. No matter how reluctant they were, they had to stand up and grab Arne's arm.

"Arne, calm down. Don't try to argue with someone like that. If you come to blows, then everything is over! Even if you were a chosen disciple of the Scarlet Pavilion, you wouldn't be able to stand up to the laws of the Whirling World. After all, the laws here ignore anything. If he died, nothing of value would be lost, but if you're dragged down with him, it wouldn't have been worth your life!"

Those words successfully calmed Arne.

He sighed as he looked back. "You're right, my life is worth so much more than his!"

After that, Arne shouted at Rudy, "Don't even think about dragging me down with you, you brat. I won't fall for your tricks. If you want to die that badly, run up to the stage and die with Lucius!"

After saying that, Arne let out a cold laugh, looking like he would not fall for any tricks. He sat back down, not bothering to look at Rudy anymore.

Rudy's lips twitched in exasperation, certain that Arne was of unsound mind. It was probably something that Arne would never change in his whole life as well. Since he chose to keep quiet, however, Rudy could not be bothered with anything else and returned to his seat.

Jackie could not hear anything from the spectator stands no matter how loud they were. At that moment, he had thoroughly figured out the Thousand Feathered Beast. He let out a cold smile before he gripped his sword with both hands.

He pointed his feet forward and rushed into the air, slashing right at the Thousand Feathered Beast again. He slashed from the lower left to the upper right angle. The gray slash turned into a massive nine-meter slash once again. This time, he had expanded the technique just like before. He knew that it would reduce the power of the attack.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3060 -

Chapter 3060
However, Jackie did not care. He even activated the laws of space around his blade, causing the original attack to only need to travel half the distance.

The Thousand Feathered Beast let out a cry and shot up into the air like before. This time, it was unfortunately not as quick to dodge as a fraction of the nine-meter slash pierced through its lower body!

The Thousand Feathered Beast's whole body stiffened as its wings constantly shook. It could not stop crying out in the air.

Someone shouted among the spectators, "It hit! The slash hit the lower body of that bird!"

"Something's wrong! Look! Why aren't there any wounds on the bird's body at all? It clearly hit the beast, so why isn't there any blood at all?"

"That's true! I feel like that bird just shouted out a few times! It's still flying upwards… So it's not affected at all!"

The Thousand Feathered Beast indeed flapped its wings to stay afloat.

Jackie's Destroying the Void did pierce the Thousand Feathered Beast's lower body. Other than letting out a cry of agony after being hit, the beast did not seem to have any other reaction at all. It caused quite a few people to be curious, too.

"It seems like the beast's defense is just too strong. Even if Lucius' attack managed to catch the beast, the beast's defense was top-notch, so it caused no great damage."

"Even if it's that strong, a few feathers should've fallen, but this bird didn't even drop a single feather. Isn't that crazy?"

"You 're right… I think it's a little absurd as well. Could this guy's offensive abilities be so weak that he can't even break a few feathers? Or perhaps this beast's defenses affect every single part of its body?"

The discussions on the spectator stands were intense as everyone was baffled at the sight.

Jackie's attack looked like it was quite powerful. Even if the power had been reduced because it was expanded, it still hit the beast in the end. It should have at least left a bit of a mark!

They were speechless at the fact that not a single feather fell from the beast. Other than a few cries of agony, it did not seem affected at all!

Arne laughed crazily again. "Hilarious! What kind of technique is this kid using? Is it even at the earth rank? He runs so fast, but I can't believe his attacks are so weak. He wasn't even able to break a single feather!"

The other disciples of the Deer Pavilion joined in.

“Arne’s right. Could this guy be using an elementary red level technique?! Otherwise, how could it be so weak? It’s so weak that I can’t even bear to look at it!”

“If it is that weak, why was he so pompous before his match? Where did he derive his courage?”

“Didn’t we mention it before? This kid probably came from somewhere insignificant. He probably thinks that his meager skills can bring him to great heights, that no one in the Hestia Continent is a match for him!”

“He’s just an ignorant fool who doesn’t know how vast the outside world is, and that’s why he dared to start the black iron bet. He thought he could win three matches in a row!”

The disciples of the Deer Pavilion were just filled with ill intent at that point. They were incredibly happy, incessantly saying that Jackie was completely useless. Compared to how excited the Deer Pavilion was, the other spectators were much calmer.

“I think I can see the end of it all, so there’s no need to fight anymore. I thought that he might actually be able to at least win one match before dying in the second round. I can’t believe he can’t even make it through the first!”

“I feel some sympathy for that green-robed wandering warrior, though. He earned quite a bit before but threw a hundred thousand spirit crystals in one go. He’s making such a huge loss. Luckily, I listened to your advice and didn’t bet on Lucius. Otherwise, I’d be crying right now!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3061 -

Chapter 3061
“That’s right, there is no limit to the black iron bet. There’s no guarantee you can even see one in a whole month. Many people would get instigated by the black iron bet and throw away their whole life savings, trying to earn a big sum.”

“One to seven odds is far too alluring. If Arne wasn’t making such a big fuss earlier, quite a few people might have bitten the bait and put a lot of spirit crystals on Lucius. Then, they’d really be suffering great losses!”

“That’s right, I almost put all my life savings on Lucius. After I heard what all of you said, I was lucky enough to realize my mistakes. I placed my bet on the beast. Even if the odds are only one to two, it would still double my spirit crystals! It‘s still a good thing…”

Just as everyone was busy discussing, the Thousand Feathered Beast suddenly fell from the air. With a bang, the beast’s massive body heavily slammed onto the stage, causing dust to fly everywhere!

As it flew in the air, the beast still had the strength to constantly cry out, but after it fell to the ground, it could only manage small frills. It seemed like it was dealing with a great deal of pain!

The beast constantly rolled on the ground. Its feathers and massive body shook. Jackie let out a cold laugh as he raised an eyebrow. He knew that most of the beast’s soul had already been eaten. No matter how much it tried to fly, it would be pointless!

Jackie raised the sword in his hand as countless strands of black energy condensed on the tip of his sword. He summoned his strength and slashed at the beast. The crowd heard a slash, and the blade pierced through the beast’s throat.

Blood suddenly shot out, staining the whole arena with the blood of the beast. The smell of blood filled Jackie’s nostrils, but he remained expressionless. After all, everything had been within his calculations.

Destroying the Void was a soul attribute technique. After mastering it, Jackie was already well versed in controlling the technique. He no longer wasted any energy on destroying physical flesh, but only focused on rotting the soul. Even though the Thousand Feathered Beast was still trying to fly upward, its soul had been constantly ripped apart and dissolved!

Slowly, the beast could no longer hold on after most of its soul had rotted away thus falling from the skies!

That scene stunned everyone there. Arne‘s smile froze on his face as be widened his eyes, staring at the corpse of the beast in disbelief!

How was that possible?

Why did the Thousand Feathered Beast fall from the skies?

Why did it constantly roll on the floor and cry out?

Why did the beast not avoid Jackie’s final strike?

With how fast the beast was, as long as the beast wanted to, the blade would have only struck the ground. It would not have been able to harm the beast at all. However, the beast looked like it was in such excruciating pain that it could not pay attention to its surroundings at all.

Everything that had happened was out of their expectations. It had happened too suddenly as well, causing the spectators and the warriors to all be speechless. Everyone was first stunned before they started to look at each other in confusion.

What happened? How did things progress to that stage?

Before Jackie dealt the final blow, there had been no wounds on the beast at all. Other than those few cries, it had been flying upward. There did not seem to be anything odd about it, but even despite all of that, the beast seemed to have had all its strength drained from it as it fell heavily from the air.

“What exactly happened? The beast was clearly fine, so why did it suddenly fall from the sky? Why didn’t it dodge the attack? Who can tell me what happened? Isn’t everything too sudden? I feel like Lucius was cheating!”

“I don’t understand either. Lucius clearly looked like he lost, but how did things suddenly change? Could Lucius’ attack have some other effects? We might not have seen the beast get injured, but it actually was!”

“Could it be a soul attribute attack? If it really was, then the outer injuries might not have been obvious. After all, those techniques attack the soul!”

The discussions could not stop. After all, everyone was far too shocked at what happened.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3062 -

Chapter 3062
Some managed to guess, but most of them were still trapped in confusion. All of them frowned, anxious to know the answer. The passionate discussions did not stop things from going on as they should. After being sure that the beast was dead, the masked caretaker walked up the stage steadily.

He raised his hand and waved, “Challenger, please exit the stage. The stage needs to undergo maintenance. The second match will commence in five minutes.”

Jackie nodded as he turned around and left the stage. He looked around at the passionate crowd. At that moment, even the calmest warriors were deep in discussions.

Jackie had planned to return to the spectator stands since Rudy was still there. Yet, when he saw how thirsty everyone was for more information, Jackie immediately changed his mind. He did not want to bother talking to them at all. They could assume whatever they wanted to. After all, only one match had ended.

After three battles were all done would those people stop insulting him. Jackie knew very well that even though he had won the first battle, those people with sinister intentions would still be incredibly focused on belittling and insulting him.

A lot of people would probably just say that he got lucky, and that his luck would not keep on holding out.

Winning the first out of three did not mean anything. Only by winning all three in a row would he be able to truly prove his strength.

Thinking about that, Jackie let out a light laugh as he turned away, not even bothering to spare a second glance at the audience.

The warriors in the audience were about to go crazy. They had thought that Jackie would return to the spectator stands during the break. Then they would be able to get some answers to their questions. Yet, Jackie did not seem intent on returning at all.

He merely stood on the stage quietly looking at the caretakers cleaning up the stage as he waited for the second match to commence.

The warriors on the spectator stand pulled their hairs in frustration, really wanting to know the answer. They had complicated moods in their hearts.

“So in the second last attack, the beast really was injured. That’s why it kept on crying out as it flew, we just couldn’t see the wound!”

“I think so. Otherwise, Why would it suddenly fall from the sky as it was flying? It must have been too heavily injured to continue. Furthermore, when Lucius dealt that final blow, the beast would definitely have been able to dodge it if it still had any ability to react!”

“Even I would have been able to avoid that attack, let alone the beast, but Jackie still managed to pierce its throat, killing it right away. This means that the beast did not have the ability or awareness to avoid the blow at all. It was already so heavily injured that it only knew how to cry out in pain!”

“That‘s right. After it fell from the skies, it kept on struggling on the ground. If they did not have wings that restricted its movements, it might have been rolling all over!”

“It looks like it must have been hurting. Was it really a soul injury?”

“Do you even need to ask? Of course, it’s a soul injury. If it was a physical one, none of us are too blind to see the wound. There are so many people here, no one saw any wounds at all. They only saw the bird falling from the sky!”

“So there’s only one conclusion. The beast’s soul was injured. Lucius is a soul attribute warrior, that’s why we did not see a wound. The technique should be at a high grade as well. Otherwise, there’s no way the beast would have lost all awareness after falling and even get pierced in the throat!”

After all that discussion, everyone slowly got their answers. They started to understand that Jackie’s technique was a soul attribute technique. This soul attribute techniques or warriors that specialized in them were a minority on Hestia Continent. Only warriors that were talented in that department would choose to train in them, and even those who were talented would sometimes give up midway. That was because the soul attribute was far too difficult to learn and master.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3063 -

Chapter 3063
Many masters had failed in front of soul attribute techniques. They never expected that Lucius was a soul attribute warrior. It seemed like he definitely had some talent.

Initially, everyone was incredibly curious about Jackie. When Jackie started the black iron bet, they felt like he was just crazy and attention-seeking. They were then convinced by Arne’s words that Jackie was just someone greedy for pride and attention.

Everyone started to change their opinion toward Jackie. They felt like he had started the black iron bet because he actually was talented and skilled!

Those who had wanted to take a gamble and bet their spirit crystals on Jackie slowly started to have a change of heart.

“I think that Lucius might actually be able to win…”

“I think that things don’t always happen how you expect them to. Everyone might have bet on the wrong side…”

At those discussions, the spectator stands erupted again. That was because almost everyone there had placed their bets on the beasts. It was not an ordinary bet either, it was a black iron bet with a limit of a million spirit crystals.

Everyone felt like they would definitely win, so quite a lot of people placed their entire life savings on the beast. They felt like they would be able to double their fortunes. After Jackie won the first match, they started to get worried. Yet, the more that was so, the more manic they got. The moment someone said that Jackie might win, those crazed gamblers jumped out immediately.

“What kind of nonsense are you saying?! So what if he won the first match? Don’t forget that this isn’t just one round! You can’t just be sure after one match, he needs to win three in a row. What’ s the point of winning just one!”

“That’s right, it’s just the first battle. Can those idiots who are trying to hype Lucius up just shut your mouths? Didn’t you all bet on the beast as well? What good would Lucius winning get you? Your spirit crystals would all be gone!”

“Can’t you just be more patient?! That brat might have won earlier, but he was lucky enough to choose a weak beast in the first round! There’s no way he’d beat any of the stronger ones!”

“That’s right, that beast’s defenses were just too weak! He was lucky enough to win thanks to that one weakness. He’s a soul attribute warrior, there’s no way he’d be able to beat any beasts that were defensively stronger!”

“I’ll curse at anyone who says anything so depressing again! I don’t care which clan you’re from!”

“Everyone knows that soul attribute warriors fear defensive capabilities the most, and beasts are even stronger in defense than warriors. It’s just that that beast was a long-range attacking one.”

“Its power came at an amazing speed. In terms of its defenses, it was weaker than other beasts. That’s why it died so quickly!”

“You’re right! That guy only managed to win in the first round thanks to his luck!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3064 -

Chapter 3064
Those sentiments quickly became mainstream among the spectators.

In truth, the one with the most complicated mood at that moment was Arne from the Deer Pavilion. After witnessing Jackie's win, he was absolutely stunned. His mouth dropped and even his breathing became erratic!

He refused to believe what he saw was real, nor did he want to. When he saw the beast being stabbed in the throat, Arne immediately stood up from his seat. He reached out and clutched his throat as if he had been the one who was stabbed!

If the disciples behind him had not pulled him back, Arne might not have been able to control himself anymore. Thankfully, the discussions around them slowly calmed him down. Even if there was no one of any significance there, he had to say that they were right this time.

Lucius had only won because he was lucky to have specialized in the soul attribute while the opposing beast was not a defensive one. That's how Lucius won.

Luck would not always be on his side. The second match was about to begin, and there was still the third match after that! There was no way Lucius could keep on getting lucky! With that in mind, he slowly calmed his frantic heart down.

After taking a deep breath, he slowly looked up with a slightly purple hue on his face, "He only managed to win the first match thanks to luck, but luck can't always be on his side. The second and third matches will start soon! His luck has run out! He'll definitely lose, and he'll lose incredibly badly. He'll get ripped apart!"

Arne was basically chanting at that point as his hands slowly opened, raising his voice as he said, "A win is a win. It would be boring if he died in the first match anyway. We'll just let him suffer longer!"

The suck-up disciple nodded, saying with emotion, "You're right. If he died the moment he went on, it would be too cold of a fate for him. Things should drag out longer so his heart can suffer more. That would be better!"

Arne nodded vigorously, narrowing his eyes as he stared at Jackie's back, "You're right! Only then can our hatred be sated. Earlier, Lucius definitely heard everything I said when I stood in the middle of the spectators. He's only good at acting. He must be incredibly nervous right now. He's just forcing himself to look fine so he doesn't embarrass himself. He's actually incredibly scared at the moment. The longer time passes, the more he'll suffer!"

The more Arne thought about it, the more Arne felt like it was true.

Lucius must be suffering internally. He knew that he would die, but things were still just dragging on, his death looming over him.

The only reason why Lucius looked like he was calmly accepting everything was because he was a clown that wanted attention. That was why he started a black iron bet when he did not know what it was at all.

Lucius thought that he would be able to win with just a little bit of skill. Hearing everything that had been said, Lucius must have finally realized the truth. The more of the truth he saw, the more clearly he could see his end result, and the more he would suffer.

Thinking about how Lucius was suffering on the inside, Arne suddenly felt incredibly happy. He tossed his earlier anxiety aside as he looked toward Rudy.

Yet, Rudy was merely looking at the stage with a calm expression, not showing too much emotion. He clearly heard what everyone was saying, but he showed no reaction at all. Looking at how calm Rudy was, Arne snorted.

He could not stand how the two acted so nonchalantly. He raised his voice and said to Rudy, “Lucius’ friend, you look like you are completely fine. Aren’t you worried that Lucius will be ripped apart?”

Chapter 3065
Arne did not know Rudy‘s name at all, only knowing him as Lucius’ friend.

Initially, Rudy did not react at all. It took him a while to realize that Arne was talking to him.

Rudy turned around in frustration. When he saw how happily Arne was acting, he could not stop himself from rolling his eyes. He felt that Arne seemed like a mentally ill person. He loved jumping to conclusions without a shred of judgment.

Anything that was not good for Jackie would see him believing it wholeheartedly.

The reality was right in front of everyone, but they did not seem willing to accept it. Arne actually seemed so sure.

Rudy‘s lips twitched as he shot back, “Why are you so happy? Did Lucius lose?”

Those words completely stunned Arne, he did not know what to say for a moment.

Rudy snorted as he continued, “Anyone with some amount of intelligence wouldn’t be challenging me right now. If he already lost, then I wouldn’t be able to bite back at what you’re saying at all, but he clearly won his match. The second match is about to start, there’s nothing for you to be pleased about!”

After saying that, Rudy turned his head away again, not bothered with Arne. At that moment, the time was already up, and the stage had already been cleaned.

The caretaker took out his pitch-black scroll again. This time, a new batch of beasts appeared in the air in front of everyone.

Everyone straightened their backs and held their breaths as they looked at Jackie, anticipating his second choice.

Jackie looked up at the five beasts in the air. His lips twitched in exasperation, lamenting how many beasts there were. Out of the five beasts, Jackie only recognized one! He had never seen or heard of the four others before.

After looking at the true memories he had, he could not find any clue on the other four. He sighed as he walked on the stage again. The five beasts were all completely different than the five before.

After contemplating, Jackie’s eyes stopped on the second beast. It was the only beast Jackie recognized as the energy hound. It looked like a wolfhound but was full of spikes. It was five or six times bigger than a normal wolfhound.

Its actual shape was about the size of a small element. The energy hound specialized in attacks of rampant power, and it was much stronger in terms of defense than regular beasts. It was a purely savage beast filled with brute force. It was not that intelligent either.

Jackie calculated in his heart and felt like the energy hound was probably only at half the strength of the Thousand Feathered Beast. In the current batch of beasts, it probably was in the last place.

Thinking about it, he let out a smile as he did not hesitate to choose the hound.

Based on the rules, Jackie had five minutes to choose, and everyone had been waiting for the five minutes to run out so Jackie would make his choice. Yet, they did not expect Jackie to be so decisive.

Jackie had made his choice in just a few seconds. It felt a little too hasty.

Chapter 3066
Did he really think that he was lucky enough to pick the weakest of the beasts on a whim?

However, Jackie did not care what the others thought at all. He had his own judgments.

The caretaker next to him remained emotionless, looking like nothing that happened around him had anything to do with him at all. When Jackie chose the energy hound, the other four beasts turned into nothing, and energy turned into an image of the energy hound.

The energy hound solidified very quickly. It let out a howl that filled the whole arena. The next second, the hound dropped from the air.

Jackie was on the south side while the hound was on the north side. The two of them looked at each other from opposing sides.

The energy hound bared its sharp teeth as its blood-red eyes viciously stared at Jackie, looking like it was prepared to bite into Jackie's throat at the next second. As it howled, saliva could be seen dripping from its teeth. The spikes around its body constantly shook, like a wild dog that had seen meat!

At that moment, the spectators were abuzz again as everyone looked at the man and beast in anticipation.

"It's a beast that looks like a wolf and a dog. It looks like it has strong defenses. It clearly looks like a brute of a beast. Beasts like these are usually incredibly sturdy."

"Lucius is done for now! There's no way he can win."

"Soul attribute attacks struggle the most against defensively strong beasts. Out of the five beasts, there had clearly been those who looked weaker defensively, but Lucius still picked this one! I don't know what he's thinking!"

"He might just be too confident in himself right now. The earlier victory gave him so much of a rush that he can't even think straight anymore. He decided to just randomly pick a beast, not caring what he would face!"

"I think Arne's right. He's just too pleased with himself. All he wants is to show off in front of us. Just look at how he chose the beast immediately without any thought to it. He's trying to show us how smart he is by doing that, but I think he's just dumb!"

"You're all too right. I think so too. If he had just taken time and properly observed before making his pick, I wouldn't have thought so at all! Yet, now I can guarantee that it's exactly like you said! He thinks that he can win even if he randomly chooses the beast. He would then stand on the center of the stage and tell everyone that he managed to win so easily, that he can win the black iron bet!”

“Oh please! If he wins, I’ll name my firstborn after him!”

Jackie’s decisive action had caused everyone to think that he was just a complete show off!

Everyone mocked Jackie for just choosing randomly and ending up choosing the strongest of the beast defensively. Jackie would definitely pay for his choice!

At that moment, if anyone turned to look at Arne, they would notice that he had his hands clasped together, muttering something. He looked like he was praying, or like he was uttering a curse. His eyes had veins in them at that point. However, he was already somewhat consoled seeing Jackie make the wrong choice.

Yet, he was still unwilling to relax. That was why he had his hands together, muttering, “He will lose! He’ll definitely lose! He’ll lose incredibly horribly. He’ll get ripped to shreds by that dog! He will die a horrible death, never resting in peace!”

He was sincerely chanting all of that, hoping that Jackie would lose. Arne’s hatred for Jackie was already at its limits. He no longer wanted to see Jackie getting any more victories.

If Jackie won this time, there was no way to explain certain things anymore.

Jackie calmly faced the hound‘s teeth. No matter how fierce the hound looked, he did not seem to react at all.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3067 - 3075

Chapter 3067
The hound's saliva was all over the floor which looked quite disgusting.

Since Jackie had not moved at all, the hound started to get anxious. It had been waiting for Jackie to make the first move but did not expect Jackie to be so patient, merely standing in place with his sword in hand, not moving at all. Slowly, the hound's patience wore off. Its hind legs bent slightly, looking like it was about to attack.

Looking at that, Jackie raised an eyebrow as his left hand constantly moved, forming seal after seal.

In the air, a hundred soul swords slowly condensed.

After being summoned by Jackie, those swords turned into black spots of light and fused into the sword in Jackie's right hand.

This time, he did not hold back at all. The upper ultimate god rank technique, Destroying the Void, had already been completely mastered by Jackie, and Jackie was using it in full force! The whole blade was filled with his full might.

With a howl, the hound could finally not hold back anymore as it shot right at Jackie like an arrow. Its mouth was wide open as it charged incredibly quickly!

With how powerful it was, each step it took caused the earth to shake slightly.

Looking at that, all of the warriors breathed a sigh of relief. It was just like they thought, that beast had an incredible defense, and that was perfect for going against a soul attribute warrior.

"This guy is done for! Unless his technique is an ultimate god rank technique, there's no way he'll survive this battle!"

"That's right! In front of a beast like that, the sword in Lucius' hand is just like a twig. It can't stop the beast's claws at all!"

As the hound started to speed up, Jackie could even feel the wind blowing in his direction. He frowned slightly as he shot forward as well!

Just as they were about to clash, Jackie activated the laws of space and disappeared from the spot. When he appeared again, he was already behind the beast. However, the beast's reactions were faster than any ordinary beast.

After Jackie disappeared, it was immediately on alert. The moment Jackie appeared behind it, its whole body turned around as its mouth bit right at Jackie.

Jackie retreated, slashing out as he pulled the distance. The gray slash suddenly struck the hound's forehead!

Jackie merely heard a small crack. He could not help but raise an eyebrow as he saw a drop of blood flow out from where the attack landed.

Being that, he licked his lips and lamented how strong the beast's defenses were. Beasts with weaker defenses would not even leave any wounds on their bodies after being struck by Destroying the Void. That was because they could not stop its power at all. It would go right into their souls.

However, the defenses on the energy hound had actually managed to block a small portion of Destroying the Void's power. Even though most of it still entered the hound's body, it was still enough to shock Jackie!

However, even if the hound's defenses were very strong, it could not completely stop Destroying the Void. Only a portion of its power had been used to break through the hound's defenses, and the wound on the hound's forehead was where Destroying the Void's power chipped off.

Chapter 3068
With a thud, the hound's body fell heavily on the stage.

Jackie looked at the hound's body, not showing much emotion at all. After all, he had already expected that result.

The hound was no match for the Thousand Feathered Beast, and its attacks only relied on brute strength. It was not going to trouble him at all. After the bound died, the barrier around the stage disappeared.

Jackie turned around slowly as he walked off the stage calmly. He knew that the caretakers needed to clean up the stage to revert it to its original state.

When Jackie walked off the stage, he was shocked to realize that the noisy spectators had turned completely silent. He looked up to see that all of the spectators had their eyes widened, and their mouths were gaping as well.

No one was talking anymore. It looked like the warriors on the spectator stands had all frozen in place. Even their breathing was shallow.

It took a long time before someone started to rub their eyes and pinch their arms, telling themselves that everything was real.

“I actually saw all of that. I’m not dreaming at all! Lucius won again! He won so cleanly this time…”

“Didn’t all of you say that the beast‘s defenses were incredibly strong and that Lucius could definitely not break through them? Didn’t you say that he would be ripped apart?”

“That’s right! Didn‘t a lot of people say that Lucius was definitely going to lose and that he had no chance? You all said that he would definitely get ripped apart by this wolf-like or dog-like beast. You said that he would end up even worse off than Lesley!”

“Come out and tell us what happened. Didn’t you say that the beast’s defenses were very strong? Why did it crumble like paper in front of Lucius? Lucius killed it in one blow!”

“During the first match, Lucius had fought for a long time and used a few skills. You said that he would definitely lose in the second match, but why did he win so easily? He won with just one strike. It was so easy! Tell me right now, what happened?!”

The ones who asked those questions were those who had remained silent before. They had only listened and felt like everyone else sounded reasonable. Some of them had initially planned on betting on Jackie, but had been stopped by those around them.

Slowly, they started to notice that Jackie‘s chances of winning were slowly growing. The second match that everyone thought would be so difficult turned into a match that ended so easily. It had not been difficult at all. It was as easy as drinking water.

That caused those warriors who had initially planned to bet on Jackie to start to lose their calm. They started to question those warriors who led the flow initially.

At that moment, all of those people had their mouths completely shut, unable to say a word at all. They had turned completely mute, not responding no matter what those around them said. It was as if they had not been the ones who had said anything before.

“All of you really know how to talk! Didn’t you analyze everything so well earlier? What’s happening right now? Are you not going to continue?”

Chapter 3069
“Shouldn’t you at least address the matter to us? I had planned on placing my bet on Lucius, but all of you did your best to stop me!”

“That’s right! Weren’t you so sure that Lucius would definitely lose in the second match? Weren’t you sure that he would lose incredibly badly too? You even analyzed everything so much, talking like you’ve personally witnessed it. Why aren’t you saying anything now?”

“Can you stop trying to hide?! I had planned on just gambling on Lucius, but you were the ones who laughed at me for trying to stand out from the crowd, and seemed so confident in your analysis!”

“Thanks to all of you, I have placed my spirit crystals on the beasts and took out my whole family fortune. Don’t think you can just avoid everything like this. If you don’t do something about this, I won’t let you off!”

Thanks to Jackie’s victory, those warriors that had been so sure that Jackie would lose did not dare to say anything anymore. However, when the shouts got louder and louder, some people could no longer stand them.

A gray-robed man let out a cold laugh and said, “You were the ones who bet on the beasts yourself, what does anyone else have to do with it? People can think what they want, you don’t have to follow them… In the end, you were the ones who weren’t resolved enough. You asked for an explanation, but how are you going to explain it to yourselves? Why do people owe you anything? Stop trying to force your way!”

The moment that person spoke, it caused even more people to stand up, “That’s right! What does anyone have to do with you staking your whole fortune on the beasts? No one forced you to do it!”

“Don‘t you think you’re acting like a complete joke? We said everything because we thought we were right. You didn‘t have to listen to us at all. We didn’t say you had to listen to us. You were the ones who insisted on doing that, so why does it concern us?!”

The man who was demanding an explanation earlier was shaking in anger after hearing all of that. He felt like he was being thrown under a bus, and hated himself for being weak-willed.

Why did he falter and insist on following the guesses of others when making a choice?

The more that person thought, the more furious he got. He could not even breathe properly at that point. There was no way anyone could ignore what had happened.

Those of them who had been certain that Jackie would die had long looks on their faces. After all, two-thirds of the warriors there had taken part in the bet. Some of them had even taken out all of their savings.

If they lose the bet, they would have nothing left. To them, it would be quite a big blow. Quite a few of them were beginning to get incredibly anxious.

The mustache man turned to look at Rudy anxiously. It was then did he realize why Rudy had been so calm the whole time.

Rudy already knew how strong Jackie was. That was why he never faltered no matter what everyone else said!

The mustache man took a deep breath and said, “Hey, it looks like you already knew how strong Lucius was.”

Rudy raised an eyebrow as he looked at the man, “Of course. I told you early on as well, but you didn’t believe me. You thought I was ignorant to say all of that.”

Those words rendered the guy speechless. That really had been the case. When Rudy said that he was incredibly confident in Jackie, everyone thought that he was crazy.

Chapter 3070
After all, Lucius was definitely a wandering warrior.

The mustache man felt a bitter taste in his mouth, regretting that he had bet on the beast. He should have ignited his gambler’s spirit and betted everything on Jackie.

If Jackie really won, he would have gotten seven times the crystals back. Just thinking about it drove him crazy. Even if he had not spent his whole fortune like some others, he still put in quite a bit.

A loss would be quite a big blow for that man. After all, he did not come from a large clan and had slowly accumulated his wealth. He had participated in so many bets before and had carefully made safe choices for all of them. This time, he had gotten a bit greedy, but he did not expect the results to end up like this!

The man felt a chill as he shook his head, shutting his mouth up.

Arne felt his whole body stiffen, not even feeling like he was breathing. He felt like everything seemed unreal as if he was in a dream. Otherwise, he would not have seen something so absurd!

His mouth trembled, taking a long time before he said, “This can’t be real!”

At that moment, his words did not sound convincing at all. Even the disciples behind him did not know what to say. If Jackie really won in the end, Arne felt like he would not be able to accept it!

He suddenly straightened his back as he raised his voice, “What they said earlier was all wrong! That beast wasn‘t strong defensively at all. It just looked like it was!”

“Lucius was just lucky! He picked another incredibly weak beast. That has to be the case! It’s definitely so! Soul attribute warriors are afraid of defensively strong beasts. That beast died so easily. It must be because it was weak. Otherwise, it would at least have taken a few more blows!”

After he said that, Arne's eyes slowly regained their color. He felt like he was right, that it was definitely so.

Jackie was definitely just incredibly lucky to choose another weak beast. Not only was it weak offensively, but incredibly weak defensively as well. The body just looked strong. After all, Jackie had fought the bird in the first match for so long.

The bird should not have been that strong defensively, only stronger than normal beasts in terms of its attack and speed. The second one had died so easily simply because it was just too weak. Not only was it weak, but it was also fragile as well. That was how it all happened.

Arne sighed, feeling like his guess was right. He could not overestimate Lucius.

Lucius was just a wandering warrior without a clan. He was just lucky.

Thinking about that, Arne could not help but curse, "It's so unfair. Why did fate allow him to win twice in a row?! He's just too lucky!"

The moment he said that the discussions around him started to quiet down quite a bit. A lot of them looked over with looks of pity. Some of them had hatred, but it was mostly exasperation and sympathy.

The warriors there all understood that Arne would definitely not be able to accept what happened with everything that had gone on between him and Jackie.

He had brought up the same argument from before, saying that Jackie merely won because of good luck. No one believed him anymore, feeling like it was completely unconvincing and hilarious given the circumstances.

Chapter 3071
However, Arne was not trying to convince those around him. He was only trying to convince himself.

He panted as he continued to say loudly, "The third match is about to start! He's already used all his luck on the second one. You absolutely won't win the third match! You can't get the black iron medal!"

As he said that, Arne's expression started to get more and more resolved. It was as if what he said would definitely happen. Even God would not be able to change it!

Everyone did not know what to say after they heard that. They even felt like Arne was quite pitiful at that moment. After all, Lucius was just a wandering warrior, but he had already won two rounds. He only had the last round left to win the black iron bet.

Luck would not always stick to one person. Even if they did not want to see Lucius winning, the reality was right in front of all of them. Even if they wanted to deny it, they had no reason to.

The second beast relied on brute strength to fight. Those beasts were usually stronger defensively than normal. It was an irrefutable truth.

Furthermore, so many of the warriors there had been at the colosseum for a long time. They had seen countless battles. Each time, even if there were weaker and stronger beasts, even the weakest one would have a baseline of strength.

The fact that Lucius managed to win two in a row meant that his skills were definitely much stronger than most warriors. Other than Arne, even those who did not want to admit that fact had been forced to. Even the disciples of the Deer Pavilion behind Arne had slowly accepted the truth.

Time flashed by, and the stage was quickly cleaned up.

Jackie steadily walked up the stage again. This time, the crowd was exceptionally quiet. Everyone was already looking at Jackie with a different expression.

The caretaker took out another black scroll. After opening the scroll, five new beast images were shot into the air.

Jackie looked up at those beasts in detail. He was thankful that he recognized two out of the five beasts this time. The first was a coral drake that was on the rightmost end, while the nine-tailed scarlet fox was on the left end.

The two beasts were at about the same level, they were both a bit stronger than the energy hound. If Jackie was arranging them in order, the coral drake should be in third, while the nine-tailed scarlet fox should be in the fourth.

The two beasts were not too different from each other. If the environment suited the fox, it would probably be able to fight to a draw against the drake or even have an advantage.

The coral drake specialized in poison. Its whole body was surrounded by poisonous gas. Weaker warriors would start to foam at the mouth the moment they got close to the coral drake. It would not take long for their bodies to turn purple from the poison and eventually die.

The nine-tailed scarlet fox specialized in illusions. Its natural-born skill was called the nine-tailed illusion. Some mentally or spiritually weaker warriors would immediately lose themselves in the illusions after it was used. The fox would then hide in the shadows and take the chance to bite the warrior’s neck, killing it in an instant!

Neither of the beasts was easy to deal with, but they were not too difficult for Jackie. He then decided in just a moment as he pointed right at the nine-tailed scarlet fox!

Chapter 3072
Just like before, compared to the others, Jackie had chosen the beast incredibly quickly. He clearly had five minutes to choose, but he merely picked one out swiftly. However, this time the spectators were strangely quiet. Not a single one of them voiced any opposing sentiments.

The truth was on display for all of them to see. The more they had doubted Jackie, the greater the blow had been on them!

When it came to this wandering warrior, anything could happen!

When the nine-tailed scarlet fox solidified, the spectators were already completely silent. The fox's body was completely red, and its fur was very bright. Compared to how ferocious other beasts looked, the fox looked much tamer.

On closer inspection, there seemed to even be a hint of human charm to the fox. However, no matter how nice the fox looked, it was still just a beast in Jackie's eyes.

After the nine-tailed fox dropped to the ground, it stood at the opposite end of the stage to Jackie. The fox was quite smart. Its intelligence was similar to that of a teenage human. Even if the nine-tailed fox was composed of just energy, it still retained some of the original fox's intelligence. It gave Jackie a glance over as an incredibly cunning glint showed in its eyes.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not paying what the beast did much thought. The fox paced around lightly, seemingly waiting for something, looking like it was trying to figure something out. However, no matter how far it walked, its eyes were always fixed on him.

Jackie narrowed his eyes, curious as to what the fox was planning.

Any other warrior would probably be on full alert at that moment, wary of any sudden attacks from the fox. However, Jackie did not care and was instead full of anticipation as to what the fox would do.

Feeling Jackie's emotions, the fox frowned slightly, feeling like he was different from other humans. At that moment, the fox narrowed its eyes as it suddenly turned red, as if they had been stained by blood.

Jackie suddenly felt everything change. The stage that originally only had the two of them was suddenly filled with scantily clad beauties. Those beauties were incredibly seductive, and their faces were covered by thin veils. The women laughed and played around.

He turned to look and noticed that some of the girls were already in front of him. He saw that the women reached out and begged for him to join them.

Jackie could not help but roll his eyes. Low-level illusions like that would not affect Jackie at all. Probably feeling Jackie's temperament, the women suddenly stiffened as their eyes filled with anger. They seemed angry that Jackie was not reacting. After that, Jackie heard several explosions as the beautiful women exploded into pink powder one after another, disappearing into the air.

Jackie's lips twitched helplessly, wondering if that was all. It felt a little too useless.

Did he already enter another illusion?

It did not even elicit any interest from Jackie.

Just as he was wondering if it had already ended, the spectators suddenly let out a few cries. He immediately turned around, finding that the silent spectators were suddenly in an uproar.

Quite a few of them stood up with looks of horror!

Right after that, a group of caretakers suddenly rushed up to the stands. Those caretakers had their swords in hand, all of them were filled with killing intent.

Chapter 3073
The spectators were all retreating. Some of them were shouting out while some of them were frantically rimning away!

At that moment, Jackie was in no mood to care about anyone else but merely looked over at Rudy.

Rudy seemed exceptionally pitiful in front of the crowd. He had a look of complete horror as he constantly begged for mercy. Since he was seated at the front, he had been the closest to the caretakers. At that moment, they were already in front of him.

The caretakers seemed to have gone mad, slashing at everyone they saw. Their skills were extraordinary. They were at least in the divine solidifying realm. Warriors at that level were absolutely impossible to defeat especially when none of them were over sixty years of age! No one had any ability to stand up to the caretakers!

The caretakers were incredibly quick. After cutting off two heads in front of him, Rudy was right in front of them!

If Jackie continued to not do anything, then Rudy would definitely die!

Feeling Jackie's gaze, Rudy looked over with an expression of complete helplessness. He knew he was about to die, and he begged for Jackie's help!

Facing that sudden development, Jackie merely stared coldly, not moving his body at all. Even if he saw someone about to kill Rudy, his expressions did not change. He did not react to anything that was happening at all!

The nine-tailed scarlet fox's eyes reddened more and more, so much that it was beginning to glow. At that moment, it was already using the nine-tailed illusion to the brink. The whole arena had been covered by a red glow.

At that moment, the stage was covered up in that light, but the spectators could still see the stage. Unlike what Jackie was seeing, the actual spectators were fine. Nothing had happened, and the caretakers were not on a rampage. Everything he had seen had just been an illusion from the nine-tailed scarlet fox. The spectators had not been hit by the illusion, so all they saw was a man and a beast facing each other.

The fox stared right at Jackie, and Jackie did not move at all. It was like his whole body had stiffened and was fixed in place.

Someone curiously asked, "Why isn't Lucius moving? It's like he's been pinned!"

"Who knows? Could that be his strategy?"

"Can all of you just use your brains?! Don't you see that the nine-tailed fox is already attacking!"

"What? The beast has already attacked? Why don't I see anything? All I see is a red glow surrounding the whole stage. Other than that, nothing is happening! I feel like Lucius is just standing there not moving. I don't feel anything else."

"You're such an idiot. Have you never heard of illusions?! It looks like this beast is good at illusions, and its natural-born skill should be at quite a high level. Lucius is not moving because he's in an illusion. That red fox is waiting for a chance. Once it's sure that Lucius is completely trapped in the illusion, it will launch its attack! If Lucius can't escape the illusion, he's dead!"

Arne naturally had some knowledge as a chosen disciple of the Deer Pavilion. When he saw that the red glow had enveloped the whole stage, he was certain that the beast was using an illusory attack.

Chapter 3074
He narrowed his eyes as he chanted at the stage again, "He'll definitely die! He won't get away this time! That fox will bite down on his throat!"

At that moment, Arne seemed like a scorned woman who only knew how to curse.

The nine-tailed scarlet fox finally moved. It was sure that Jackie was already trapped in the illusion, unable to escape for the moment. That had been the chance it was waiting for!

The nine-tailed scarlet fox opened its mouth, revealing a human-like sinister smile on its face. It suddenly shot forward at Jackie at an incredible speed!

Everyone held their breaths. The distance between the beast and Jackie got shorter and shorter. With how fast the fox was, it only took a while for it to be right in front of Jackie. If he did not wake up at that time, he would definitely die!

Everyone there, including Rudy, who was still absolutely confident in Jackie, held their breaths. Rudy might be confident in Jackie's skills, but he did not know if Jackie could withstand an illusion. After all, illusions were not physical attacks.

Rudy pursed his lips into a line, unable to stop himself from praying for Jackie.

"He's still not awake? Then… Lucius is dead! There's no way he can live!" On the spectator stands, someone could not help but shout.

At that moment, the nine-tailed fox was right in front of Jackie. It had its jaws wide open and would rip Jackie's throat off the next second. There was no hope anymore!

At that precise moment, Jackie widened his eyes in sudden and pierced his blade out. That strike had perfectly pierced the fox's throat.

The fox never expected that Jackie would actually wake up at that moment Even if it wanted to, it was already too late to dodge! Everyone heard a splash as blood spurted over thirty feet. The nine-tailed fox's eyes widened and Jackie saw a sliver of disbelief in them.

Jackie let out a cold snort, he knew what the nine-tailed fox was thinking at that moment. After all, the fox was already certain that he had been completely trapped in the illusion, unable to even struggle. That was why the fox attacked.

Yet, Jackie had actually broken through at the last moment, attacking so suddenly that the fox could not avoid it!

With a bang, the fox's body slammed onto the ground. It was in so much pain that its whole body twitched. Yet, it could not even cry out in pain since its throat had been pierced through, unable to make a sound.

Jackie let out a laugh as he said, "Your meager illusions are nothing in front of me. I'm a soul attribute warrior. If my soul wasn't strong enough, how could I practice soul attribute techniques?!"

Warriors with strong souls were the bane of illusions. As long as one's soul was strong enough, illusions would not affect them. Jackie had already mastered Destroying the Void and had absorbed so many soul fragments. His soul was already as strong as a city wall. The nine-tailed fox's illusions were nothing to him. It would never be able to break down those walls.

Jackie had deliberately let the fox think that he had fallen into the illusion, unable to get out. It was to get the fox to attack. In truth, Jackie had seen everything the fox did!

Jackie's explanation basically answered the fox's question. Its body shook a bit, seemingly wanting to say something, but Jackie clearly did not want to waste any time.

With another stab, the fox's body stiffened as it stopped breathing.

Chapter 3075
The moment the fox died, the barrier around the arena completely dispersed.

Jackie finally let out a sigh of relief as he breathed in the air from outside. It was finally done. Even though the three matches were actually not that difficult for Jackie, he did not want to waste any more time in the outer city.

After the fox died, its body turned back into energy and was absorbed by Hundred Beast city. Once the energy had been completely absorbed, a bundle of black smoke suddenly formed in the air. The smoke got denser and denser before it finally condensed together and formed a medal that was about the size of half a palm.

Jackie reached out and the medal fell into his hand. That was the famous black iron medal. It was the highest honor in the outer city. He had not felt anything when he saw someone else with it earlier, but now that he got it himself, he was actually quite elated. His lips curled up slightly as he walked over to Rudy.

Rudy was already waving his hands excitedly as he shouted, but Jackie could not hear him due to the distance.

Jackie merely nodded at him before he put the medal in his hand into Mustard Seed. He did not plan on wearing it since it attracted too much attention. It would only invite looks of envy and admiration from others, but he did not care about that.

No matter where he want, Jackie merely wanted to maintain a low profile. That was because attracting attention without a background would only invite endless trouble. If not because of that, Jackie would not have changed his name and his looks.

The three matches had already ended, so all of the arguments and fights before had lost all meaning. The results were out!

Jackie had won. He had won incredibly easily. Other than the first match taking up some time, the second and third had been quick. He had only used three attacks in total.

Compared to others who battled to their limits, he had won far too easily. It had been so easy that many of spectators could not believe what they saw was real. They felt like they were dreaming.

“He won! He actually won!”

“It was one to seven odds. I would be rich if I had just bet on him!”

Quite a few spectators were filled with regret at that moment. They were tempted to chop off their own hands, lamenting their choices.

Why did they decide to believe in others and bet on the beast?!

If they had bet on Lucius, then they would have been rich. Betting one million would have given them seven million back!

Just thinking about it got them emotional. The gap was so great that some of them could not calm down. Those who had been tempted to bet on Jackie were all furious.

“I bet eight hundred thousand spirit crystals, and they’re all gone now. That was my whole fortune. I’m done for!”

Rudy felt a sense of relief hearing everyone’s regrets. They had all been so adamant that Jackie was worth nothing, saying that Jackie was just a clown that only knew how to show off. They finally knew who the real clowns were.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3076 - 3085 -

Chapter 3076
Thanks to the earlier frustrations he suffered, Rudy no longer wanted to bear with it anymore. He let out a cold laugh as he stood up from his seat.

Just like how Arne had acted before this, he headed right to the center of the spectator stands.

Rudy shouted out as he walked, “Do all of you know who you should be directing your hatred to? Who was it that did the most to instigate everyone, speaking like he knew the best in the world? He even threatened you all to not bet your spirit crystals on Lucius!”

His words were directed to Arne. With what Rudy said, everyone finally remembered what Arne had done earlier.

They immediately changed their target as they started to shout at Arne, “Arne, you dog! It’s one thing for you to think that Lucius wouldn’t win. Why did you try to get us to not believe in him as well? It‘s because of your grudge toward him. That’s the only reason you dragged us into going against Lucius as well!”

“Your hands are dirty! It’s because we listened to your baseless speculations that we ended up making the wrong choice. It’s all your fault!”

“That’s right! It’s all your fault! If it wasn’t for your incessant claiming that Lucius was just trying to show off and that he couldn’t possibly win, I would’ve placed my bet on Lucius!”

At that moment, Arne became everyone’s primary target. Thinking about everything he had done before, the warriors present felt like they had been tricked by him. If Arne had not insulted Lucius so much, not a lot of them would have placed their bet on the beasts at all.

At that moment, many of them had one thought in their minds. If they had betted on Jackie, they would have stood to earn a lot. Ever since they entered Hundred Beast City, they had never seen odds as high as that. The bets they put into would get them seven times the payout in a flash!

Just thinking about it made their eyes water.

Such a huge gift had slipped away right in front of their eyes, and it was all because of Arne. If it was not for him, they might have gritted their teeth and bet on Lucius back then. They would have been so happy that they would have forgotten their names!

If they had invested a million spirit crystals, they would have gotten seven million back, increasing the amount by seven times in one go!

Frustratingly, it had all gone up in smoke as they lost their bet.

If it had not affected their profit, they might have been afraid of Arne's background. Yet, at that moment, their wallets had been severely affected.

Many began to grow angry as they cast their worries aside. If the laws of the city had not been in place, a lot of them might have attacked Arne to vent their frustrations.

Hearing the complaints of everyone else, no one from the Deer Pavilion dared to say anything. After all, they knew very well that it was all thanks to Arne's actions. Even if all of them were crying for Arne's head, in the end, Arne had merely voiced his inner thoughts and had not pressured them to bet on the beasts.

The Deer Pavilion were convinced that their 'loss' was because of their own decision.

Of course, they did not dare to voice that at all. If they did, the situation could very well go out of control, and they might be berated by all of the warriors present right away. They were thus forced to hang their heads low and remain silent.

Pacing all those shouts, Arne's expression was devoid of emotion as his eyes lost their luster. He sat stiffly at the spectator stands, looking forward. If his chest had not been moving, the disciple behind him would have thought that he was dead.

The suck-up disciple looked at Arne with worry. Arne's state was incredibly strange and worrisome.

The fact that Lucius had won was something that Arne could not accept. Yet, Arne was completely devoid of emotion. His entire body was tense, and he barely reacted.

Chapter 3077
This greatly worried Arne's fellow disciples behind him. After looking at Arne for a long time, they noticed that Arne did not seem to hear anything anyone was saying at all, no matter how loud the shouts got.

One of them said with concern, "Arne, are you alright? Well, the kid just got lucky, I bet. Even if it's hard to get lucky three times in a row, it doesn't mean it's impossible. I just think that this guy only managed to win three in a row purely out of luck, but it doesn't prove that he's strong at all. Yeah, that's right, he's just lucky. We've already told our fellow disciples about him anyway. As long as the chance arises, we won't let him live!"

After hearing that, Arne's stiffened face finally moved.

After a long time, Arne slowly spoke in a raspy voice, "You're right, luck was just on his side! That's how he won three in a row…"

Arne was already at the stage where he would never accept the truth, even if it was right in front of him. Even if luck could only play a small part in winning three matches in a row, Arne still felt the same way.

At that moment, he heard a cold laugh next to him. Arne looked up and saw Jackie in gray robes, straightening his body as a hint of mockery could be seen in Jackie's cold gaze.

Arne's lips twitched as he shouted, "What are you looking at me for?!"

Jackie was exasperated by actions like these, but after everything that Arne had done, he would never let Arne off easily. Even if they could not attack at that moment, he would be fine as long as he could get Arne to be angrier, more unbridled.

Jackie laughed coldly before saying, "You said that something was wrong with my head, but I think you should look at yourself in the mirror. I've won three in a row and got a black iron medal, but you're still adamant that it's just because my luck is good like a stubborn mule! If there's nothing wrong with your head, then you must just be a complete idiot!"

Arne's face darkened as he shouted, "What did you say?! Who are you calling an idiot?!"

Jackie said calmly, "So you're not just an idiot, there's something wrong with your ears as well. Was I not clear enough with what I said?"

Arne was so angry he was about to spit out blood. He abruptly stood up as he glared at Jackie in anger, "You!"

"You should just shut your mouth," Jackie interjected curtly. "Have you even told the truth at all?"

Arne loudly said, "What have I ever said that' s untrue?!"

Jackie snorted. "Have you forgotten what you said? You said that I only started the black iron bet because I love being the center of attention and showing off. Do you think that all that is true?"

Arne's lips twitched. He did say that, but it was far less convincing at that moment. Yet, he refused to submit. "What I said is still true. You only started the black iron bet to stand out!"

After hearing that, Jackie could not stop himself from laughing. Even the warriors around them were laughing as well.

Arne's words were far too hilarious. Jackie had already proven everything with his skills. There was no need for any more explanations.

Chapter 3078
Jackie laughed and coolly remarked, "It looks like you'll never admit to anything. Honestly, it's fine even if you refuse to admit it!"

After saying that, Jackie took out his black iron medal from Mustard Seed. He looked at the medal and said, "Even until the end, all you've been was a complete clown. You tried to criticize me with your standards? Hilarious!"

Jackie looked right at Arne and said loudly, "That person who you claimed to only like to show off completed the black iron bet. Shouldn't it be your turn now?"

"Didn't you say before this that you'd start a black iron bet? Or is someone a wuss now? Were you just giving out empty promises? All you know to do is to run your mouth, but you don't have the skills to prove yourself at all!"

Jackie's words instantly reminded everyone that Arne had promised so much and said that he would start a black iron bet to clear his name.

Arne' s lips twitched as his earlier demeanor completely deflated. He started to pant roughly, not daring to look Jackie in the eye.

There was no way Jackie would let him off easily, however.

"Isn't it about time you put some action into your words? After all, you were claiming that you're oh-so- powerful, swearing that you got to your position legitimately. Don't tell me that you weren't being serious when you said you'd start the black iron bet?"

Arne's entire body trembled, feeling like he had been backed into a corner. Even if he did not say anything, Jackie would not let him off.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, continuing, "It seems that the Deer Pavilion's disciples are only good at bragging but never stay true to their word. Is this really the clan at the peak of seventh-grade clans? You've broadened my horizons today. The disciples of the Deer Pavilion truly are trash!"

The moment that was said, his fellow disciples could no longer hold back.

Jackie had dragged the whole clan into it, which they would not allow.

One of them stood up and said, "What kind of nonsense are you saying?! How dare you slander the Deer Pavilion!"

Jackie raised an eyebrow and nonchalantly shot back, “Who slandered the Deer Pavilion? Was what I said wrong? Did Arne not say he‘d start a black iron bet to clear his name? Has he started it?”

Jackie’s words shot down that statement completely. The disciple that said that panted heavily, unable to say anything. The rest of the disciples of the Deer Pavilion were completely reddened in anger. They had nothing to retort at Jackie’s words either.

Jackie laughed as he looked at Arne again. “Do you think burying your head in sand like this will make everything just go away? How could this pass on easily? You were the one telling everyone to not bet on me before this. A lot of them could’ve gotten back seven times their fortune, but your so-called ‘encouraging words’ changed that.”

After saying that, Jackie looked at the spectators. He glanced around and saw the bald man who had mocked him before.

He remembered how the bald man bet his entire fortune on the beast at the betting area, saying that he would be able to double it.

The bald man had a dark look on his face at that moment, having lost his entire fortune in a flash.

Jackie let out a smile as he walked two steps toward the guy. “Didn’t you bet seven hundred and sixty thousand spirit crystals before this?”

Chapter 3079
Jackie’s memory was impeccable. The bald man had shown off his fortune at that moment, saying that he managed to accumulate that many spirit crystals in all his years, confident that he would double it if he bet it all on the beasts.

It was impossible for him to even get back what he put in at that point, let alone double it. In just one turn, be was reduced to a mere beggar, so he was already mentally destroyed.

After the bald man heard that, he suddenly looked at Jackie with a complicated gaze. His lips twitched as he was filled with regret. He had planned on betting everything on the warrior, but after hearing everyone’s discussions as well as what Arne said, he changed his mind. If he had put his whole fortune on Jackie, he would have made over five million!

Just thinking about that filled his eyes with hatred.

He suddenly stood up and walked toward Arne. The bald man’s inner rage had completely exploded. He focused all that anger on him. If Arne was not there, he would not have lost everything.

He had to start all over! How could he not hate the guy?!

The bald man's eyes were red as he stared at Arne. He pointed at Arne and said, "You cowardly piece of trash! You were bragging so much, but now you're just trying to hide! Don't you think you're a joke? Since you had the gall to say that someone else loved to brag and that someone else was a clown who just wanted to stand out, then can you just look at yourself in the mirror? Who's the clown? Who's the coward?!"

The bald man was about to lose himself to his anger. The more Arne suffered, the happier he would be.

The disciples of the Deer Pavilion immediately stood up to defend Arne.

One of them shouted, "What are you saying?! Did Arne say he wasn't going to start the black iron bet?! He's just not ready yet; he'll do it after waiting for a while!"

The bald man was not sold on that at all. He sneered, "Who are you trying to fool? He's not ready, you say? What are you preparing? What's there to even prepare? Are you planning on waiting for a year or two when your strength is even better to start the black iron bet?"

"What kind of joke is that? Alright, then. Maybe I'll brag to everyone that I'll start a black iron bet too. When people ask me why I haven't started it, I'll just say I' m not mentally prepared yet!"

The bald man cackled obnoxiously. The disciples of the Deer Pavilion were about to go crazy from their anger.

Seeing this, Jackie nodded happily.

This was what he wanted to happen. Arne had constantly insulted him before, even saying that they would have him begging for mercy. He remembered everything they did and said, so he would never let them off the hook that easily.

Arne's lips twitched. His face was completely pale as he felt like he was about to go crazy. The feeling of wanting to beg for mercy, he was already feeling it before Jackie did!

Arne knew very well that there was no taking back a black iron bet. He would have to do what Jackie had done and win three matches in a row to get the black iron medal.

Arne did not have the confidence to win three in a row, nor did he trust in his own skills. If he happened to choose a stronger beast, he might end up like Lesley!

Chapter 3080
Alas, he could never take back what he said, and the warriors around him would not let him go easily after all that he had done either. He had to explain himself.

The bald man's actions only made the warriors around them happier. A lot of people there had pinned the blame for their loss of spirit crystals on Arne's words and threats.

When everyone saw that Arne failed to answer, a lot of them stood up like the bald man and hurled insults at Arne, saying he was scum and a complete fake.

Their provoking words caused Arne to tremble in anger. He looked at all of them who mocked him in hatred. After being shouted at for a while, Arne could finally not hold back. "Listen well! I'll start the black iron bet right now! I, Arne, am not some coward nor am I a fake!"

After saying all of that, he used the outer city token to register in front of everyone. After doing that, the skeleton-masked caretaker once again walked up the stage with the pitch-black scroll.

After doing all of that, Arne stared at Jackie viciously. He looked like he wanted to rip Jackie apart.

Jackie let out a laugh as he said plainly, "Good luck, then… Hahaha!"

He then turned and went back to his spot where Rudy had been waiting.

After Jackie sat down, Rudy said eagerly, "I've gotten the spirit crystals. You have seven million while I have a total of four million six hundred ninety thousand. I've never seen so many spirit crystals in my life!"

Rudy was so excited that he could not keep his mouth shut. He only had about 670000 spirit crystals before this and had bet everything on Jackie for such a massive windfall. Rudy felt like he would be smiling even in his sleep that night.

Jackie raised an eyebrow. "That's nothing. You'll even be able to earn even more later. You'll have over ten million!"

Rudy was stunned to hear this. He had not reacted initially, but after a while, he straightened his body.

Rudy whispered, "You mean to say that you already know if Arne will win or lose?"

Arne had just started the black iron bet as everyone watched on. This time, not a single person dared to be certain about the results. After all, with what happened with Jackie, everyone started to feel like everything was possible. Even though they held Arne with disdain, no one dared to be certain of anything at that moment, afraid that they would end up being bitten back.

At that moment, Arne had walked over to the stage with shaky footsteps. His demeanor was far different from Jackie's.

When Jackie was on the stage, his expression was passive though with a confident flair. Arne, on the other hand, had a sunken face as if he had just lost everything he held dear.

The caretaker opened up the black scroll and announced the rules just like before. Most of it was irrelevant, and only the last part was important.

"The warrior's odds are one to four, and the beast's odds are one to two. The warrior has five minutes to choose the beast he'll face!"

Images of five beasts then appeared in the air.

Chapter 3081
Jackie raised an eyebrow, not looking at the beasts for the moment. After the odds were recited, the spectators were in an uproar again as noises filled his ears.

"I thought Arne's odds would be like Jackie's, that it would be one to seven! I can't believe it's lowered by almost half. What is Beast City trying to do? Are they thinking that the chances of Arne winning are greater than Jackie?"

"Don't just blindly speak when you don't get it Do you think the caretakers are as stupid as you? The odds aren't just determined based on the skills of the warriors; it depends on our reactions as well. Hundred Beast City doesn't want one-sided bets. The high odds are to attract you to bet on the other side!"

After that explanation, everyone slowly started to understand.

"I can't believe the odds are so low that they're only one to four. If that's the case, then you can't break the ten million mark today."

Rudy could not hold himself back from laughing. "I wasn't planning on breaking that mark anyway. Even if I lose, it's no big deal, seeing as I made so much. I haven't learned a lot of skills, but I've learned to be happy with what I have."

If he had not been with Jackie, Rudy might have died a long time ago. At that moment, he was not just alive, but he also had so many spirit crystals. He just felt incredibly fortunate in his heart, not even thinking about anything else.

If he could win a bit more, then he would. Even if he lost, it did not matter. Jackie raised an eyebrow, not expecting that Rudy's attitude was already so good. He could still remember how arrogant and how much of a show- off Rudy had been when he first met him.

That attitude was long gone, fortunately.

Jackie laughed as he patted Rudy on the shoulder. The warriors around them were already in intense discussions due to the odds.

Some of them felt like the odds were too low while others felt like it was just right. After that, they started to discuss if they should bet on the beast or on Arne.

Jackie frowned, feeling a bit suffocated. He turned to look at Rudy and saw that Rudy was unhappy as well.

He whispered, “After winning the spirit crystals, let’s leave the outer city. I’ve gotten sick of this place.”

Rudy nodded vehemently, sharing the same idea. He felt like the outer city was getting annoying as well and was anxious to enter the middle city to see some new things.

Jackie took out a token from Mustard Seed, and on it were the words Middle City. When he walked off the stage, the caretaker handed him that token.

After completing the black iron bet, he had earned the right to enter the middle city. He noticed that the rules were more or less the same as in Thousand Leaves Tower. As long as he had the entry token, he could bring a subordinate with him. With that rule, Jackie could bring Rudy with him.

With that in mind, he could not help but raise an eyebrow, incredibly curious as to the identity of the person who set the rules.

How were they able to consider everything so thoroughly?

After thinking about it for a while, Jackie slowly understood why those rules had been set.

It was probably thanks to the special role alchemists played. Regardless of the place, alchemists were special. After all, they put all their focus on alchemy. People were normally unable to divide their attention, so alchemists would naturally have neglected their combat abilities.

Chapter 3082
They could not possibly enter the Whirling World relying solely on their skills. Yet, with those rules in place, the stronger warriors could bring a weaker alchemist with them, traversing the cities of the Whirling World.

Right after he figured that out, Arne made his choice on the stage as well. Of the five beasts in the air, he pointed at the one in the middle.

Jackie was stunned when he looked at it. He had not looked at the five beasts earlier since he was wrapped up in his thoughts. Now that he looked over, Jackie was surprised to notice that he only recognized one out of the five beasts, and the one Arne picked happened to be the one he recognized.

Jackie let out a snort as a hint of mockery flashed in his eyes.

At that moment, the masked caretaker announced that the betting area would be opened. Everyone interested in placing bets could head over.

Jackie silently stood up and brought Rudy to the betting area. They both took out a million spirit crystals each and betted them on the beast.

No one was surprised at Jackie’s choice at all, seeing as these two men were both at odds. It would be far too strange if Jackie bet on Arne.

After placing the bets, Jackie did not plan on going back to the spectator stands at all with how noisy it was. He did not want to listen to all the noise and constant discussions.

Jackie pulled Rudy to a corner of the betting area. “Let’s just wait here. The battle should be ending quite soon. Then, we can just get our spirit crystals and head to the middle.”

Rudy looked at Jackie curiously. Even though Rudy felt like Arne would lose, he did not think that he would lose that quickly. However, Jackie’s words seemed to imply that Arne would not just fail to win the first round but would lose terribly as well.

Jackie immediately knew what was on Rudy’s mind when he saw Rudy’s expression. He laughed as he explained patiently, “That guy chose a rockwind snake, a beast much stronger than a frostfire wolf…”

“Didn’t Arne say that Lesley and him were on comparable levels? Between the two of them, Lesley even seems to be the more senior one, which means that Lesley was a bit stronger than Arne. Lesley couldn’t even beat the frostfire wolf, let alone the more powerful rockwind snake!”

Rudy immediately understood after Jackie’s explanation. That was why Jackie was so sure that the battle would end very quickly. If the rockwind snake was stronger than the frostfire wolf, then Arne was about to lose horribly!

There was not much reason to return to the stands, and they would not need to listen to those discussions. The results were just as Jackie said. The battle had only lasted for less than five minutes before the results were out.

Arne had been bitten by the snake, and its venom spread throughout his whole body. Arne suffered from a horrendously painful death, spasming on the stage for a long time before he succumbed.

The disciples from the Deer Pavilion were thrown into chaos. Too much had happened on that day. They had lost two chosen disciples and lost a lot of spirit crystals to boot.

When Jackie activated the black iron bet, all of them had bet at least half a million on the beasts. Their spirit crystals were lost to that.

With Arne's black iron bet, they had betted on Arne as well. After all, there was no way they could bet on the beast since they were from the same clan. Even then, they lost!

Chapter 3083
Not only did their fellow disciples die, they even lost their spirit crystals. It was a ridiculously unlucky day for them!

Jackie stood at the entrance of the colosseum, looking at Arne's corpse being taken off the stage from afar. However, he merely raised an eyebrow as he said coolly, "Arne thought that he'd be very safe under the rules of Hundred Beast City. I've said before how ridiculous such thoughts were!"

Rudy giddily gave him a thumbs-up. " Jackie, you're amazing! You didn't even need to do anything. With just a few words, that guy died a horrible death. It's a relief that he's dead, to be honest!"

Arne was relentless in cursing them before, causing them trouble for no reason. They had no grudges against the Deer Pavilion, but just because they had not bet on Lesley, they ended up in conflict.

Their tragic state was all their doing.

After getting their spirit crystals, Jackie brought Rudy away from the outer city.

What Jackie was surprised at was the fact that the middle city was not in Hundred Beast City at all. If they wanted to enter the middle city, they would need to step into a large-scale transfer array and get sent to somewhere far away.

When he got the outer city token, Jackie knew that there was an outer, middle, and inner city. Jackie had thought that all three areas would be within Hundred Beast City itself, but it seemed to be different than what he expected.

It was a massive plain filled with people. Not only were these people from Hestia Continent, but a large number of them were from White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent as well.

The three continents were gathered there. Everywhere they looked, it was full of people. The warriors there were several times what they had seen in the outer city. It looked endless.

Jackie felt like what they had seen the most in the Whirling World was people. Back then, he did not have much of a grasp of numbers when it came to warriors, but after arriving in the Whirling World, he had a basic understanding of the number of warriors in Middle Province.

Rudy‘s jaw hung open in shock, and it took him a while before he said, “There are so many people! There should at least be a few hundred thousand or even over a million warriors here! Is this the middle city? It’s different from what I thought. I thought that the middle city would be an actual city as well, but this is clearly a massive plain…”

Jackie let out a laugh and said, “If there were city walls, how big do you think the city needed to be for so many warriors?”

Rudy’s lips twitched, thinking about it for a moment.

As he wondered how large the city walls would be, he felt like it was out of his grasp in a flash. All he knew was that it would need to be several times the size of the outer city.

Jackie patted Rudy’s shoulder. “Alright, let’s forget about that for now. We should wash away our disguises for now, no need for fake personas. There’s no reason to change our names either.”

Rudy widened his eyes in surprise. “Why? There are so many benefits to hiding ourselves. Why do you want to use our real names and looks?”

They were at different times. After entering the Whirling World, so much had happened. They had provoked so many enemies. Changing their appearances and their names would save them a lot of trouble, so he did not understand why Jackie wanted to use their actual looks.

Jackie frowned and sighed before he said, “There’s nothing we can do about it. I’ve thought about it, and I feel like using our original looks is much easier.”

Chapter 3084
“After changing our looks and names, they might not recognize us, but the skills and weapons I use will expose me in the end. In fact, we might just be caught off- guard if we continue to fake our identities. It’s better for us to just change ourselves back and face them head-on…”

“All of them are so used to flaunting themselves everywhere, relying on their backgrounds. However, as long as we’re strong enough, they’ll still fear us. What I want is for them to fear us so that they’d think twice before ambushing us.”

After Rudy thought about it, he felt like Jackie’s words were reasonable. Jackie had already shown what he could do quite a few times in Thousand Leaves City. As long as they remembered it, Jackie would immediately be recognized when he attacked.

Looking at this angle, there would be no meaning to them putting on a disguise and changing their names.

Rudy sighed as he said in exasperation, “I feel like they’re just a group of flies that we can never chase away. They’re so annoying. I only have one thing in mind at the moment, which is to capture Grayson and make him spill. After that, I want to just beat him up!”

Rudy already hated Grayson deeply at that point. The moment he thought of Grayson, he would start gritting his teeth.

When they were in Phoenix Valley, his sudden disappearance greatly unsettled Rudy. After entering the Whirling World, quite a lot happened because of him. Grayson was even in the Unbreaking Pavilion at that moment, constantly causing them trouble and even trying to kill them.

Just thinking about that caused Rudy to want no thing more than to drop everything and capture Grayson.

Nonetheless, he knew very well that he was too weak. He was far weaker than Grayson at that moment. Furthermore, he was not smart enough either. He might just accidentally fall for any of Grayson’s tricks. All he could do was to put his hopes on Jackie, hoping that he would be able to capture Grayson.

At the very least, they had to find out what happened. They had to find out how Grayson was alive and unscathed, and why he suddenly appeared in the Unbreaking Pavilion. They also had to find out why he did not remember the two of them. A lot must have happened in between all of that!

Rudy got a headache as he thought about it. He shook his head and said, “Whatever, let’s not think about this for now.”

Jackie left the transfer array with Rudy. The two of them headed toward the crowd.

“There are so many warriors from Hestia,” said Rudy as they walked. “Even if Hundred Beast City is a level six city, there are still so many of them! Today, I’ve truly seen how many warriors there are…”

Jackie turned to look at Rudy and could not help but laugh.

Rudy curiously looked up at Jackie, saying in confusion, “What are you laughing at? I was just pointing out something.”

Jackie pointed at the crowd in front of him and said, “Just look at what those people are wearing. Don’t those clothes look foreign? You must not have seen them before on Hestia.”

They have been in the Whirling World for a while, and they had seen many clan uniforms during that time. They could more or less recognize which uniforms belonged to most clans.

Rudy was stunned as he looked up at Jackie. “What do you mean? Are you saying that it’s not just the warriors of Hestia here?”

Rudy’s eyes widened in shock as he spoke.

Jackie nodded. He had not been able to explain that to Rudy.

Jackie looked around and the warriors around them, saying calmly, “The warriors here came from three worlds, and the Hestia continent is one of them.”

Chapter 3085
“There are also warriors from White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent. When I got the middle city entry token, the rules of the middle city had been transferred into my mind.”

Rudy’s jaw hung open in shock as he hurriedly looked at the warriors around him like a curious child, staring at one person after the next.

The warriors around them felt Rudy’s gaze and were suddenly on alert. They had sharp looks in their eyes.

Jackie hurriedly pushed Rudy. “Don’t gawk at people like that. It’s very rude, and you’ll end up causing trouble.”

Rudy nodded obediently, admitting that he did lose control for a moment. He was just too surprised and curious.

Jackie patted Rudy’s shoulder and pulled him to the side.

“Why are you so surprised, anyway? It’s not like you haven’t met warriors from White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent before.”

Rudy said excitedly, “You were the one who met them before, not me. It’s my first time seeing warriors from a different world. Of course I’m curious!”

Jackie smiled as he thought about how he had joined the seventh group in Prosper City, meeting alchemists from the other worlds. Yet, Rudy had only heard about it, never meeting them on his own before.

Rudy took a deep breath, saying curiously, “I wonder why we always find ourselves being grouped with those two continents. The tournament was one thing, seeing as there’s not much point in competing with ourselves. It’s more interesting to compete with other worlds…”

“Why are all the warriors grouped together again now? Could the Whirling World be opened to all the worlds?”

When Rudy said that, his head was full of questions.

He had not thought much about what happened before this, but since he was looking at the warriors from the other worlds right in front of him, Rudy could not help but voice out his questions.

Jackie sighed as he frowned. “I’ve thought about this before as well. Initially, I thought that the opening of the Whirling World was related to the struggle between Phoenix Valley and the Unbreaking Pavilion…”

“Yet, after I entered the Whirling World, we found out that Phoenix Valley had been in cahoots with the Unbreaking Pavilion on something, and no one knows about it. Everything we’ve heard before this had just been smoke and mirrors that they deliberately put out. We don’t know the actual goals…”

“After seeing the warriors of the other worlds, I’ve slowly understood the opening of the Whirling World is not something Phoenix Valley and the Unbreaking Pavilion can control at all. It looks like a lot of secrets are involved.”

Rudy nodded earnestly. “No matter how powerful Phoenix Valley and the Unbreaking Pavilion are, they’re just two eighth-grade clans in Hestia, and they’re nothing compared to the two other worlds! I think that the two of them just have a bit of extra information at most, but they can’t control the Whirling World at all.”

Jackie nodded.

As time passed, they encountered more and more things, and the questions in their minds started to be answered.

Jackie looked at the crowd as more questions surfaced in his head.

Those questions flowed in Jackie’s head chaotically, and he was unable to decipher them. All he could do was pull out a few clues from the chaos. If he wanted to figure out the unadulterated truth, he would need a lot of time.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3086 - 3090

Chapter 3086
Rudy reached out and grabbed Jackie's hand as a happy glint appeared in his eyes and said, "Most of those from our world probably don't know the truth. Even if they know some of it, their months are completely shut. They won't reveal the truth to us at all, but we can ask warriors from the other worlds! To them, the Whirling World might not be a secret at all!"

Jackie nodded, feeling like Rudy's mind was getting sharper. He had not even thought about that, but Rudy had.

He then nodded earnestly, "You're right! All that information is treated like a complete secret in Hestia Continent, but it might be common knowledge in the other worlds. After all, Hestia Continent had been sealed off for some unknown reason for so long!"

Thinking about that, Jackie immediately started to make plans on how he would get the information. Even if the primary goal at that moment was to continue advancing in the Whirling World, they could not just rush forward without any information. The more they knew, the more solutions they would have when they were in danger!

At the southeastern corner of the city, some of the disciples of the Pentagram Clan from the White Marsh Continent were gathered. They had emotional looks on their faces as they intensely discussed something.

"Trevor, just stop! I won't give up on entering a level two city!" Ethan shouted.

Trevor Henry frowned, feeling like Ethan was acting like an obstinate mule. No matter how nicely he put things, the guy refused to listen.

Trevor said in frustration, "Why do you think I'm trying so hard to advise you? Is it just because I like playing around? It's all for your own sake!"

"No matter how high your position is in the Pentagram Clan, you're still just an alchemist! You can't defend yourself at all! Don't you know what sort of place level two cities are? Do you not know how dangerous they are?"

"After entering, our fellow disciples will be struggling to even protect themselves. Would they have the ability to protect you? If there's any danger, you'll definitely be the first to die inside. Are you really happy being cannon fodder?"

A string of questions was shot over, but Ethan remained stubborn, refusing to submit!

He raised his voice and said, “I’m not an idiot. Of course, I know what a level two city is. I know it’s dangerous inside as well. I might be an alchemist, but I have my ways to protect myself!”

“Level two cities aren’t filled with danger everywhere. There are quite a few safe spots. After I enter, I won‘t be in danger as long as I stay in the safe areas! All of you can face the dangers. I won’t drag you down by going to dangerous places with you!”

Trevor felt like he was about to explode in anger at Ethan.

His lips twitched as he said, “You’re being too optimistic! There are definitely safe spots in level two cities, but they’re still level two cities in the end. Without the rules around, they’re complete hunting grounds!”

“In there, you’re just pure cannon fodder. You’re a big slab of meat! After all, everyone knows that alchemists tend to be rich. After you enter the level two city, as long as you stay in the safe spots, the dangers in the city would naturally not harm you…”

“What about outside the city? Will the other warriors just ignore a fat piece of meat like you? Won’t they attack you? We won’t be able to take care of you when we’re surrounded by danger at all. You‘ll just be forced to stay alone in the safe areas. As long as other warriors walk past, you should have no chance at surviving!”

The more Trevor spoke, the angrier he got.

His face was reddened, and the other chosen disciples of the Pentagram Clan spoke to Ethan as well, “Trevor‘s right. Ethan, why are you so insistent on entering a level two city? Can’t you just stay in a level three city? It‘s too dangerous there. Even warriors at Trevor’s level have to be extremely careful in level two cities…”

Chapter 3087
“Not only does he need to be wary of the dangers the level two cities themselves pose, but he also needs to be on guard against the warriors from the other worlds! Weak warriors are non-existent there. After you enter, there’s a high chance you’ll be in danger!”

“I don’t think it’s just a high chance, I think it’s almost assured! As long as you meet any danger, your chances of survival will be incredibly slim. Are you going to throw your life away in the whirling World? Don’t forget, there won’t just be warriors from White Marsh Continent in the level two city, there will be warriors from other worlds as well!”

“The warriors of the other worlds won’t know anything about the Pentagram Clan. They won’ t be afraid to attack you nor are they afraid of any revenge from the clan! In their eyes, you’re just an incredibly delicious piece of meat. Why would they ignore you?”

Ethan's lips twitched as he panted furiously. He started to walk forward, and the disciples behind him followed along.

The more Ethan thought about it, the angrier he got, "Do you just think that I'm an idiot? Do you think I'll go around provoking warriors from other worlds the moment I enter a level two city? As long as I don't wear my alchemist robes, would they know who I am? They won't try to attack me for no reason. Do you really think I want to die?!"

Trevor got even angrier after hearing that and replied, "I don't understand. Why are you insisting on entering a level two city? What benefits would it give you? Are you just trying to see how dangerous a level two city is?"

Ethan said indignantly, "Of course, I'm not entering a level two city just because I want some experience! Level two cities haven't seen any alchemists for countless years…"

"All those valuable materials are just like wild grass to all of you. Yet, I can tell at a glance which ones are valuable!"

Trevor pursed his lips as he looked at Ethan like a complete idiot. He was entering a level two city to get materials!

He was completely speechless. If he had not managed to retain his rationality, he might have grabbed Ethan's collar and slapped him a few times. He wanted Ethan to realize that valuable materials were nothing. If Ethan died, the materials would just be someone else's prize.

Ethan felt that no matter what he said, the disciples around him would not bring him into a level two city.

The more he thought about it, the angrier he got. He felt like he was being branded as a useless alchemist by them.

Ethan widened his eyes and said, "I know you see me as a burden! I know that I'm not as skilled as all of you! We all have our specialties. Not a single one of you can compete against me when it comes to alchemy!"

"The Whirling World only opens once every five hundred and thirty years! Surely you know what five hundred and thirty years mean without me telling you? So many masters have missed out on this… There is an age limit to enter the Whirling World, and so many people have been denied entry because of that!"

"I was able to enter because I was lucky. I can't just waste an opportunity like this!"

Trevor frowned and said, "Then tell me, around how many warriors enter the Whirling World each time? After two years, how many of them manage to stay alive?"

Ethan’ s lips froze at that moment!

The Whirling World’s death rate was as high as fifty percent. If six hundred thousand warriors entered, three hundred thousand making it out alive was already considered a miracle.

In certain cities, many matches ended in a lot of deaths. Even if the rules in the cities prevented killing, warriors would kill each other outside of the cities.

Death was a mainstay in the Whirling World, but Ethan felt like he was not that unlucky. If half of the warriors died inside, did that not mean the other half made it out alive?

He was sure that he would be part of the half that made it out alive!

Chapter 3088
The only reason they were trying so hard to stop him was that they felt like his skills were not good enough and that he would drag them down.

Ethan felt frustrated just thinking about that. He had become a disciple of the Pentagram Clan thanks to his status as an alchemist, but at that moment, he was the one being tossed aside.

The Whirling World only opened once every five hundred and thirty years. The chance to enter the Whirling World was something incredibly valuable to every warrior. The Whirling World was a miraculous world created by ancient heroes.

There were countless cities in the world, and each city had its own unique trait. Countless treasures were kept within the cities. The closer they got to the center of the Whirling World, the more treasures there were, and the more valuable. Even though a level two city was incredibly dangerous, there were still quite a few safe spots.

As long as he quietly stayed in a safe place and did what he wanted to do, he would not be in danger. It was something everyone knew, but they frantically denied him.

The reason was simple, it was just because they thought he was a burden! Ethan got angrier when he thought about it. When they needed him to refine pills for them, he had never said no. Yet, when he was asking them for help, they found all sorts of reasons to reject him.

Trevor was especially hateful. He was one of the leaders of the Pentagram Clan, and a chosen disciple as well. He had the power to make certain decisions.

Before, Ethan had always treated him politely and helped him quite a lot as well. Yet, that was the attitude Trevor was treating him with. It was as if he was a completely ignorant idiot.

Just as Ethan was feeling all that rage, he suddenly saw a familiar figure in the corner of his eye. His entire body stiffened immediately. He looked over and felt like a fuse had been lit inside him when he saw who that person was clearly. He almost lost his mind as his rage exploded.

He narrowed his eyes as he rushed over, grabbing that person's arm, "Jackie! I can't believe I'll see you here! I thought you would have already been killed by someone!"

Jackie's expression darkened as he pulled his hand away from Ethan's grasp with annoyance.

When he saw Ethan, Jackie felt incredibly annoyed.

During the seventh group competition, he had listened to a lot of nonsense from that guy. Now that he bumped into Ethan again, that fly that could not be chased away would definitely blabber on like before. He was absolutely annoying!

When Ethan saw Jackie, various feelings surfaced. He still remembered how Jackie had mocked him and challenged him. After getting the golden treasure. Jackie had looked at him with disdain as well. Jackie even said a lot of things that caused him to he laughed at.

At that moment, Ethan absolutely hated Jackie!

If he had not been delayed by certain things before, he would definitely have tried his best to look for the warriors he was familiar with in Hestia Continent and have them help him to kill Jackie!

Ethan was already furious at what had happened earlier, so when he saw Jackie, his anger reached its boiling point. Facing his own fellow disciples, there was no way he would go too far no matter how angry he was. Yet, Jackie was always an enemy. All of his anger condensed together immediately and it exploded right at Jackie.

When Jackie saw Ethan's slowly distorting expression, his lips twitched helplessly. He felt like the guy seemed to be ill.

Rudy looked at Ethan curiously. Ethan's face was unknown to Rudy, but with what Ethan said, Ethan must have a tremendous grudge against Jackie, which meant that Ethan was an enemy.

Chapter 3089
Jackie's lips twitched helplessly as he took a step back, stepping away from Ethan.

He felt like Ethan was acting like a mad dog that had lost all rationality. If he did not distance himself, he might end up getting bit.

‘So it’s you. That guy who loves to brag but doesn’t have the skill to back it up,’ That was what Jackie thought of Ethan.

He still remembered how Ethan had constantly declared that he was the strongest alchemist present during the tournament. He claimed that no one could beat him, but he got a bronze treasure in the end.

After he got the bronze treasure, he refused to believe the results. He claimed that Jackie had cheated, and said a lot of unbelievable things. What Jackie just said had definitely angered Ethan.

The embarrassing scene immediately appeared in his mind. Everything had been caused by Jackie. If it had not been for Jackie, he would not have embarrassed himself in front of the alchemists from the three worlds.

After returning to White Marsh Continent, he had been constantly mocked for what had happened in the tournament. He had even dragged down the Pentagram Clan with him. All the anger condensed together. If it was not for the rules of the middle city preventing any fights, he would have fought Jackie to the death on the spot.

At that moment, the other disciples from the Pentagram Clan walked over. They looked at Jackie curiously. When they felt Ethan’s anger, all of them automatically regarded Jackie as an enemy, looking at Jackie with an unkind expression.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, feeling even more exasperated. He could not believe that such a big coincidence had happened. Of all the people there, he actually met Ethan.

He looked at the people behind Ethan and sighed internally. It seemed like there was no way he could just brush this thing aside. Then, he decided to just not care anymore.

He had already offended so many people anyway, there was no harm in adding one more. Furthermore, they were from White Marsh Continent. The Hestia Continent had already been separated by an unknown barrier. Even if they wanted to cause him trouble in the outside world, they would not be able to.

That was unless they enlisted other warriors from Hestia Continent, but Jackie no longer cared about that. He would just let the storm intensify a bit more!

Ethan clenched his teeth and said, “It’s all because of you! Don’t think that I can’t do anything to you! I’ve already made plans for my revenge. You won’t be able to run away!”

Ethan stared at Jackie viciously, looking like a snake that had just been incited into combat. He looked like he was about to bite at any moment.

Jackie pursed his lips, feeling incredibly amused, “Can you think about your words before you speak? You said I harmed you, but how did I do that? Did I force you to tell everyone that you’ll definitely get first place in the group? Did I make you say that you’ll definitely get the golden treasure? Did I force you to insult me?”

Ethan’s lips froze, his face reddening at Jackie’s words.

After saying that, Rudy finally realized who Ethan was. Jackie had told Rudy about what happened at the tournament before. That hateful person turns out to be Ethan. No wonder Jackie said that Ethan only knew how to brag.

Thinking about how Ethan had only gotten second place in the end, Rudy felt like laughing.

Chapter 3090
The sixth-grade alchemist that he had looked down on had beat him to get first place, slapping him on the face viciously. Rudy could not stop himself from letting out a laugh, unable to stop the mocking smile from appearing on his face.

Looking at Rudy, Ethan almost stopped breathing from the anger. He was an incredibly prideful person. He could not stand being mocked by others at all.

His mouth dried in anger. He barely managed to gulp as he said, “I won’t let you off so easily! The two of you will die! I’ll let you know the consequences of offending me!”

Jackie’s lips twitched speechlessly. He had heard those similar words countless times. Many people had told him that they would make him pay the price before, and even worse had been said as well.

Jackie was already completely immune to all of them. Furthermore, Ethan was just an alchemist. No matter how strong he was at alchemy, he was still trash as a warrior.

He estimated that Ethan was probably a little stronger than Rudy. After all, he had a good background, but he was only a fraction stronger than Rudy!

Alchemists put most of their time into alchemy, so how would they have the time to practice combat?

Jackie completely disregarded Ethan’s threats!

He sneered and said, “I really want to see how you plan on dealing with me. What ability do you have to deal with me? Don’t tell me you’ll look for warriors of the Hestia Continent to kill me. You can’t do it!”

Ethan almost lost his mind after hearing that, “Why do you thinkI can’t do it?! Let me tell you! I absolutely can! I can easily find someone to kill you. You might be a little stronger than me in alchemy, but an alchemist is still an alchemist. Facing strong warriors, you're just a big ant. You'll die with just a pinch!"

After hearing that, Jackie could not hold himself back from laughing either. After all, Ethan's words were exceptionally funny to Jackie.

He spoke as he laughed, "You speak like you're not an alchemist? I'm a large ant? I will die with just a pinch?"

Jackie was more and more amused as Ethan shouted in reply, "That's right! You're just an ant. Any strong warrior can kill you easily. I can as well! I heard that you have no background at all. You're just a wandering warrior…"

"You probably got some inheritance from someone, which is how you reached your heights in alchemy! You should have put all your focus on alchemy! You did not have time to practice combat at all. I'm different from you. I might be deeply into alchemy, but I never forgot to improve my skills as well! Killing a warrior like you would be incredibly easy for me!"

As he said that, Ethan's face was incredibly confident. It was like he was the absolute strongest, and everyone else was nothing to him.

Jackie raised an eyebrow and asked, "You think you can beat me?"

Ethan nodded vigorously, "Of course, I can beat you. Killing you is something incredibly easy for me, let alone just beating you."

As he said that, Ethan reached out three fingers, "I only need three moves. I'd cripple you in three moves!"

Jackie laughed as he took out the middle city token from Mustard Seed and played with it in his palm.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3091 - 3095

Chapter 3091
He pointed at the middle city token and said, “This is the surface level of the middle city. Further down, there are still the first and second underground levels. These three levels are filled with various challenges!”

“I think you already know most of those challenges. There happens to be a challenge that’s very suitable for the two of us! I just wonder if you dare.”

Ethan raised an eyebrow, narrowing his eyes before he said, “Are you talking about the death match? You want to start a deathmatch against me?”

Jackie earnestly nodded, “That’s right! Didn’t you say that you could kill me off easily? You love to brag so much, but I don’t believe you at all. You keep on saying that you were harmed or framed by others. Why don’t we just use the simplest way to prove it!”

After he said that, all of the disciples of the Pentagram Clan frowned.

Trevor pushed away the disciples in front of him, walking toward the two of them, “No! You can’t start a deathmatch!”

After saying that, Trevor stared at Jackie, “You must be that guy, Jackie, who got the golden treasure. I’ve heard quite a few people mention you before. You really are arrogant!”

“I don’t care what you think, nor do I care how cheap your life is to be able to start a deathmatch just like that. Ethan’s life is worth much more than yours! There’s no way he’ll start a deathmatch with you!”

When Ethan heard that, he started to get a little anxious even though it was what he wanted. He hated Jackie to the core at that point. With a chance to kill Jackie right in front of him, he would naturally not want to let it slip.

Ethan grabbed Trevor’s arm and said, “Trevor… Listen to me! This guy has no clan at all. His skills can’t even compare to our janitors! I’ll be able to kill him easily. Since he wants to die so much, we should just give him what he wants!”

Trevor was absolutely furious. If there were not so many people gathered there, he would have slapped Ethan.

“Shut up right now! Do you not know what a deathmatch is? The moment the death match starts, both of you have to go on the stage! It will be a fight to the death. Unless someone dies, the match won’t end! How old are you right now? Can you stop throwing tantrums like a kid? Why do you need to personally fight him? Can you stop causing so much trouble?”

“Do you not know how important your life is? Why are you trying to fight to the death against an alchemist from the Hestia Continent? How could you do something like that?”

Rudy was more and more unhappy when he heard that. Everything that guy said had been insulting Jackie’s worth. He was crossing the line.

Rudy sneered and said, “You really are from the same clan! Both of you act exactly the same way, with a tendency to brag about yourself. Why are you talking about the worth of everyone’s lives? Who determines that worth?”

“How is Ethan comparable to Jackie? He’s far worse than Jackie in alchemy! He refused to admit defeat so he’s just rambling about! Now, he’s even claiming that he’s stronger than Jackie in combat! In my eyes, there’s only one thing he’s better than Jackie at, which is bragging!”

Rudy had already trained his mouth very well at that point. He scolded the two of them at the same time!

Trevor’s expression darkened as he turned around and looked at Rudy with the intent to kill. This killing intent Trevor let out crashed into Rudy like a wave.

Rudy was so scared he hid behind Jackie. After all, Rudy’s skills were far below Trevor’s.

The killing intent and power that Trevor sent out had Rudy clearly reeling, but Jackie was fine with it. Power at that level could not affect Jackie at all.

Chapter 3092
At that moment, Trevor was left with anger. He did not notice that Jackie had ignored his killing intent at all.

Ethan did not notice it either. Ethan only had one thought in mind, which was to kill Jackie personally. Otherwise, he would regret it forever if he let this chance go!

He could not let Trevor stop him.

At that moment, Ethan was starting to get anxious as he shouted, “Trevor, don‘t stop me! This guy is no match for me at all! I’ll definitely be able to handle him!”

Trevor frowned, “What will you handle? Your life is more important! Stop playing around!”

Ethan merely felt like Trevor was incredibly petty, only nagging him on one thing and another. Ethan felt like he could get nothing done.

Ethan waved his hands around and yelled, “Don’t try to stop me! I was the one who wanted to start the death match. Even if I end up in any danger, it has nothing to do with you at all. Everyone can be our witness. You won’t be affected!”

His words had been so determined that the other disciples of the Pentagram Clan did not know what to do.

Trevor was so angry that he started panting, he regretted bringing Ethan into his team at that point!

He felt like Ethan kept on causing him trouble!

Trevor absolutely did not want to let Ethan start a death match. Even though he felt like Jackie was not at Ethan’s level, something unexpected could always happen. Before the results were out, no one could be sure of what would happen. Even if Ethan won, there was still a chance that Ethan would suffer heavy injuries. That would be his responsibility as well.

It was completely avoidable. The most important task for Ethan in the Whirling World was to refine pills, not to fight against others!

Ethan seemed to see through Trevor’s thoughts. He laughed, saying, “I know what you’re thinking, but this is a personal grudge of mine! If I can’t settle this grudge, I’ll suffer my whole life! I will take responsibility for myself, you don‘t have to worry!”

Trevor’s face was completely red in anger. Since everything had reached a point of no return, things would probably get even worse if he continued to stop Ethan. As the leader, he had to maintain his image. He could not let himself lose his authority.

Trevor narrowed his eyes, saying angrily, “Alright! Since you want to start a deathmatch so much, there’s no point for me to stop you.

“However, remember what you said. It was all your own choice. We couldn’t stop you at all!”

Ethan nodded vigorously as he said proudly, “Of course, I‘ll take responsibility for myself!”

Jackie was starting to get impatient when he finally voiced out, “Since it’s already decided, let’s go over!”

The area where the death match was normally held was in the west. Since the middle city was incredibly large, they chose to use a transfer array to reach where the death matches were held to save time.

On the way, Rudy whispered curiously, “You still haven’t told me about the various rules of the middle city. What is a death match? Other than death matches, are there other things? Other than the surface, are there two levels underground?”

Rudy had felt incredibly puzzled trying to follow that conversation earlier.

Earlier, Jackie and himself had been talking about Grayson and had not been able to talk about middle city’s rules at all. He felt like there were far too many warriors in the middle city.

Jackie slowly explained, “Let’s not talk about the first and second underground levels for now. There are three challenges on the surface. You can look at them as three different games…”

Chapter 3093
In Jackie’s eyes, the various challenges, and matches in the Whirling World were more like games, the victor would get benefits while the losers would not get anything and even stand to lose their lives.

In the middle city, various matches were like games to level up, while more and more people dies.

“What are the three challenges?” Rudy asked with widened eyes.

Jackie answered, “From the most difficult to the least is the slaughter of gambits, the death matches, and the gentleman‘s bet!”

After hearing that, Rudy widened his eyes.

The death match was not the hardest. There was also slaughter of gambits after that. Just from the name, it sounded like it would involve a lot of killing.

Rudy was even more excited. Before Rudy asked anything, Jackie continued, “The middle city’s upper and lower limits are much higher than the outer city for gambling. The regular bets in the outer city were set at five thousand as a lower limit and fifty thousand at the highest! Black iron bets had a limit of fifty thousand spirit crystals to a million. You know all of that…”

“The slaughter gambit is even greater than black iron bets. Participating in the slaughter gambit has a lower limit of five hundred thousand spirit crystals, while an upper limit of two million!”

The moment he said that Rudy's mouth widened in shock. He widened his eyes as he put up five fingers and said, "The lowest is five hundred thousand! My gosh, are spirit crystals free? They're treating them like nothing!"

Jackie laughed before he explained, "I actually feel like the prices are quite decent. Do you know how the slaughter of gambit is done?"

Rudy shook his head, "You haven't told me, so how would I? However, just listening to the name tells me that it's going to be bloody!"

Jackie sighed and said, "It really is bloody. A total of ten people need to be gathered for each slaughter of gambit! Ten of them will be sent to an isolated space before the slaughter starts. The end result is nine deaths!"

Jackie's words stunned Rudy, "Nine deaths?"

After thinking about it, Rudy immediately understood, "You meant that only after one person is left standing will the match end, right?"

Jackie only nodded to answer Rudy's question.

Rudy felt a chill. No wonder it was called a slaughter of gambit.

For every ten participants, only one person would survive. It was definitely exciting, just thinking about it gave him goosebumps!

After ten of them were sent to the isolated space, they would immediately start killing each other like wild animals in an arena. Only one person would survive to leave the space.

Rudy's expression stiffened after thinking about it, "Isn't that too crazy?! No wonder it's more difficult than a death match. At the most, a death match would end up with both people dying! Each slaughter of gambit leads to nine people dying! Any warriors who would participate in something like this would not be weak To me, they would all be masters! Nine of them would die in one go, that's crazy!"

Now that he thought about it, a lower limit of half a million to place a bet was not much. After all, it was such a crazy bet!

Thinking about it, another thought surfaced in his head. Just those three bets on the surface were crazy enough, so what about the two levels underground?

Chapter 3094
Rudy was more and more excited as he thought about it and was filled with anticipation. If the death match was not about to start, he would have impatiently dragged Jackie down to the first underground level to see if anything was interesting.

The death match area contained three large colosseums. Other than the fact that it was twice as big, it was not much different from the colosseums of the outer city.

At that moment, there was a match that had just ended, the blood had yet to be cleaned off.

The participants of the death matches needed to register themselves with the betting area outside of the colosseum. There were masked caretakers there.

The two of them did not hesitate to walk over to the betting area. The caretaker still had a cold look on his face. The only thing different from the caretakers in the outer city was his eyes.

The caretakers of the outer city had pure white eyes, giving anyone an uneasy feeling whenever they looked into those eyes. The caretakers of the middle city were the exact opposite, they had pitch-black eyes. Looking into them made someone feel like their souls were going to be sucked in.

“Registration?” the caretaker said coldly.

The two of them nodded.

The caretaker then pulled out a yellow scroll from his storage ring, placing it on the table in front of them. After the scroll was produced, all they could see was that it was full of symbols they could not understand.

The caretaker pointed at the lower left corner of the scroll and said coldly, “Sign your names. You should already know the rules. The moment the death match starts, it won’t stop until someone dies…”

The two of them exchanged a look, not saying anything before they quietly signed their names.

Trevor’s face was incredibly tense. There was a bundle of fire in his heart. Compared to Jackie, he was angrier at Ethan. He had tried so hard to advise Ethan properly, but all of it fell on dead ears.

The death match was a completely unnecessary risk in Trevor’s mind. Even if Ethan had a grudge against that guy, there was no need for Ethan to do anything himself. In the end, Ethan was still just an alchemist. If anything happened, it would affect their future plans. He was the best alchemist from the Pentagram Clan that entered the Whirling World. After this, they would need to rely heavily on Ethan for his pills. If not for the fact that he was an alchemist, they would not have brought Ethan with them. After all, Ethan was trash as a warrior.

He clearly knew his purpose in the team, but he insisted on acting so recklessly, starting a death match with an alchemist from Hestia Continent. In Trevor's eyes, it was all unnecessary trouble!

Trevor was unable to voice out his anger and he could do nothing about it. After all, he could not stop Ethan, and he could not ruin their relationship too much. Hence, he was forced to watch as Ethan caused all that trouble.

The two of them had finished the registration after they signed their names. The caretaker brought the two of them to the stage in the middle of the colosseum. There was not a single empty seat in the spectator stands at that moment.

It was a colosseum that was much bigger than the one in the outer city. There were over twenty thousand seats in the spectator stands. Even so, there were still a lot of warriors waiting outside the colosseum, waiting for people to leave so they could go inside to spectate.

Jackie looked up and saw the sea of people. He could even see the excited looks of the spectators.

After the two of them took their place, the colosseum was in an uproar. There were even those who started whistling.

"Wow! Two alchemists? That's… Rare!"

Ever since he took away his disguise, Jackie had put back his earlier gray alchemist robes. Only, he took off his alchemist badge.

Chapter 3095
After all, the badge had caused Jackie so much trouble. Even he was beginning to feel like the badge was unlucky, so he decided just not to wear it.

Alchemist uniforms were not completely standard. It was just that certain patterns on it were universally recognized. That was why Jackie and Ethan's clothes were different in terms of color and design, but everyone could still tell that they were alchemists thanks to the special patterns on their clothes.

"Even alchemists are starting to fight each other. Didn't alchemists used to say that they were incredibly calm, not as filled with bloodlust as the rest of us?"

"Oh please! Alchemists just love to make themselves look good! They keep trying to show us how different they are, claiming that they are so noble. They keep saying that they're different from us rough warriors!"

"It's such a joke, aren't they just trash-tier warriors? If not for the fact that we need them, they wouldn't need to exist at all!"

“That’s right, I just want to spit at any alchemists I see! All of them are scum! I tried asking a seventh-grade alchemist to refine a lower seventh-grade pill for me. The guy quoted me six figures right away! I was furious, it was practically daylight robbery! In the end, the guy even told me to screw off!”

The relationship between warriors and alchemists was a complicated one.

The warriors on the spectator stand all felt both interested and strange looking at the stage. It was like their own territory had been invaded.

Alchemists always say that they were noble. Whether it was how they talked or did things, they insisted on setting themselves apart from regular warriors. Furthermore, alchemists were incredibly rare in the Whirling World.

High-grade alchemists were treasures among treasures. The Whirling World only opened once every five hundred and thirty years. Each time it opened, many valuable materials would be available.

To quickly improve themselves, the warriors needed to get alchemists to refine the materials into pills. Yet, since the alchemists were rare, they would always quote incredibly high prices and acted like the warriors absolutely needed them. That was why a lot of warriors were frustrated. People had even died thanks to that.

Looking at Jackie and Ethan then, a lot of those complaints surfaced. Many of the warriors had a lot to say about alchemists!

However, they did not dare to just kill alchemists. After all, many alchemists had major forces behind them. The warriors were afraid of retribution!

Hearing those discussions, Jackie felt like the grudges between warriors and alchemists would probably completely explode given enough time.

There might even be those who would risk kidnapping alchemists to do forced labor. After all, they really needed alchemists to help them with refining pills, but the prices the alchemists offered were absurdly high.

Jackie felt like he not only needed to be wary of his enemies attacking him in the future but even warriors with ill intentions for alchemists. He felt like there were enemies everywhere.

Ethan looked at Jackie’s frown. It looked like Jackie was incredibly worried.

Ethan laughed and said, “It’s too late to regret everything now. The death match has already started.”

Jackie rolled his eyes, too lazy to bother with Ethan.

The caretaker put his hand up, and the crowd went quiet. The caretaker emotionlessly said, “The one on the left is Ethan and the one on the right is Jackie. I will now announce their odds!”

The spectators were completely silent at that moment. Those spectators were not just there to look at the fights. Betting was the most important and anticipated part!

The caretaker raised his voice, “Ethan’s odds are one to four! Jackie’s odds are one to two!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3096 - 3100 -

Chapter 3096
When the odds were announced, the warriors in the spectator stands thought nothing of it, but Ethan was the first to blow up. He turned to look at the caretaker. He almost went up and snatched the scroll from the caretaker's hands.

Why were his odds one to four?

Jackie's odds were half of his. Higher odds meant that the caretakers did not think he was as strong as the other side. That was why the odds were pulled up to attract other warriors to bet on him. That was to even up the bets between the two of them.

Ethan got frustrated just thinking about it.

Before they got on the stage, Jackie had coldly mocked him quite a bit, so Jackie was obviously pleased.

Ethan's face reddened as he said to the caretaker, "That's not fair! Lord caretaker, please look at it again. How could you have my odds so high against this guy? Do you think my skills are worse than his?"

"How are my skills not at his level? I'm an alchemist from the Pentagram Clan of White Marsh Continent. Even if I'm an alchemist, I didn't completely abandon combat! He's just a wandering warrior without any background!"

He did not dare to be too harsh with his words. He tried to hold back and did his best to reason with the caretaker.

The skull-masked caretaker did not show any emotion at those words. He stiffly and coldly turned to look at Ethan.

Feeling the caretaker's cold gaze, Ethan pursed his lips, suddenly regretting what he said.

At that moment, the caretaker said, "The odds are set by the caretakers. We have our own rules to follow, and you have no right to interfere. If you continue questioning the caretakers, you will be punished by the middle city's rules!"

Hearing that, Ethan shuddered. Even an idiot knew that the punishment was being struck by lightning immediately which would result in one getting burnt alive. There was nothing he could do against that. Ethan completely stopped questioning everything.

The caretaker pointed at the betting area, “The betting area has opened. Those who want to place any bets can go there. The rules are the same. You have an hour to make your choice. After an hour, the match will start!”

After saying that, the caretaker walked off the stage. The warriors on the stands had already placed a lot of bets and had accumulated quite a lot of experience.

After the announcement, no one stood up and went to the betting area immediately. They continued to make their observations on the stands of the two alchemists on the stage.

“Even though I hate alchemists, I have to say that they’re starting to look better after I have heard those odds!”

“The odds are incredibly high. In the few matches before, the odds have shifted around one point something to two points something. The two of them are at two and four. With odds that are so high, there should be a lot of itchy hands!”

“I’ve decided to bet anyway. I happen to have a million left on me! If I get it right, I’ll either double or quadruple my spirit crystals!”

“Stop talking about the odds for now. Let’s hurry out and figure out who will win.”

“Does anyone know either of them? I heard Ethan say that he’s from the Pentagram Clan of White Marsh Continent. Does anyone know him enough to explain to everyone what his skill levels are at?”

Chapter 3097
“I know him! My clan has a good relationship with the Pentagram Clan. I’d seen him a few times before, but I don‘t know what his skills are like. After all, he’s still an alchemist who focuses on alchemy. Normally, they never take part in fights between warriors, so I’ve never had the chance to see his skills!”

“Then who’s that Jackie guy? Does anyone know him? How are his skills? Which clan is he from?”

“Are you deaf? Didn’t Ethan say it before? That guy has no background. Since that’s the case, Ethan should have better odds, so why are Jackie’s odds lower? Quickly look into it. Why is this so?”

“I don’t know Jackie! Are there any warriors from Hestia Continent? Who knows Jackie?”

An intense discussion was starting among the spectators at the stands.

First, they looked into Ethan's skills. After finding nothing, they started to look into Jackie. However, there were far fewer warriors from Hestia Continent than in the other two worlds.

There were even fewer of them who knew about him. There were a few of them who did know about Jackie, but they were from the Unbreaking Pavilion and the Compass Pavilion.

The Unbreaking Pavilion and the Compass Pavilion absolutely hated Jackie. His image had been sent around to all the disciples within those clans. Almost every disciple knew Jackie. They had even received orders to notify the whole clan the moment they noticed Jackie. After all, not only was Jackie was mysterious, but he was also a huge bane for both of those clans.

The disciples of the two clans were stunned when they saw Jackie walking onto the stage. When they saw that his opponent was an alchemist from Hestia Continent, they exchanged strange looks between themselves.

They knew Jackie, but would definitely not reveal Jackie's true strength. They did not want others to know about him, nor did they want anyone to know about his true skills. Only then would they not be interrupted when they wanted to deal with Jackie.

They naturally knew who was stronger among the two alchemists standing there.

A disciple from the Unbreaking Pavilion in dark black clothes said to his fellow disciples, "This is a great chance to make some money. We should really thank him. Everyone, don't be stingy. Those who can afford half a million spirit crystals take all of it out to the betting area. Let's place a bet!"

The Compass Pavilion was the same. All of them clenched their fists. Even those who did not have half a million in hand took out loans!

Those who wanted to bet on death matches had to bet half a million!

No more, and no less. It had to be that number. That was why the disciples who did not have half a million all took out loans.

To the disciples from those clans, it was free money. They would naturally not let it slip by!

Compared to the noisy crowd, the two of them on the stage were much quieter. Jackie could not be bothered with Ethan, feeling like Ethan was just an annoying fly.

Ethan was trying to find the chance to mock Jackie, but he knew that Jackie was not so fragile. Even if he wanted to mock Jackie, he had to say something that Jackie would not be able to form a reply to.

Yet, he could not figure out anything to say after a long time. He was a bit frustrated as he panted. His expression was rapidly souring.

Chapter 3098
He could not stand it anymore in the end.

He turned and said to Jackie, “These odds are nothing, so don’t be so pleased with yourself! Everyone makes mistakes. The results will prove everything!”

Jackie snorted, closing his eyes as he ignored Ethan which made Ethan even angrier.

He started at Jackie and said, “You can keep on acting like this. The more you act like this, the happier I am. That’s because you’re about to kneel and beg me for mercy soon! However, I’m warning you. I won’t let you off easy…”

“Even if you kneel and plead for your life in front of me, I’ll still torture you! I won’t kill you so easily. I’ll slowly torture you. There’s no time limit to the death match after all. I have plenty of time to slowly torture you! I’ll let you feel the greatest pain, and have you hoping for death. You’ll just see yourself slowly dying away!”

Ethan felt more and more excited when he said all that to Jackie. His smile almost split his mouth in half.

Jackie turned to look at Ethan, who was smiling sinisterly and just felt incredibly exasperated.

He felt like there really must be something wrong with Ethan’s mind. Talking to Ethan would only lower his own intelligence. Ethan saw that Jackie remained silent and merely looked at him with a mocking expression, and his rage burned even greater.

“I know you’re actually already scared. You‘re just pretending not to care. I’ve already seen through your thoughts. Don’t think that I can’t tell just because you’re acting this way!”

Jackie’s lips twitched, suddenly not knowing what to say.

He felt like Ethan was living in his own world, feeling like whatever he said was definitely right. Jackie only felt exasperation when dealing with those people.

In the end, Jackie retorted, “You can think what you want. I can’t be bothered with you, but can you just shut up? I feel like I’m fighting against a complete idiot listening to you speak!”

Jackie almost caused Ethan to start fighting right there and then. Jackie’s words had been too hurtful, completely damaging Ethan’s heart.

Ethan’s fists trembled in anger as his eyes almost popped out of their sockets. He clenched his teeth as he looked at Jackie, wanting to rush right at Jackie, “I will definitely have you begging for mercy!”

There was nothing else he could say at that moment.

Thoughts of how he would torture Jackie filled his mind. He wanted Jackie to beg for mercy, repenting for everything he did wrong!

The crowd was incredibly happy with those arguments. Since there was nowhere to sit, Rudy and the disciples of the Pentagram Clan were waiting in the betting area. The moment the caretaker announced the odds, Rudy impatiently put five hundred thousand on Jackie.

The disciples of the Pentagram Clan did not move at all. As the leader of that team, Trevor’s expression was incredibly dark.

Sometimes, the odds would reveal certain problems. Before announcing the odds, Trevor had already thought about it. He felt like the caretakers would not have their odds be too far apart. He felt like they should only be one decimal place apart at most, but the situation was unexpectedly worse than he thought. One side had double the odds.

What caused Trevor even more nervousness was the fact that Jackie was the one with one to two odds, while Ethan’s odds were one to four. From that, it was obvious that the caretakers felt like Ethan would lose.

With that in mind, Trevor became incredibly worried.

Chapter 3099
Yet, some things could not be said. After all, Rudy was still beside them. He could not put himself down!

Probably because they could see through Trevor’s worries, one of the disciples from the Pentagram Clan whispered, “Trevor, don’t worry. The caretakers aren’t gods. There’s no way they can tell which one of them is stronger just from a look…”

“They’re just relying on their intuition. If the caretaker actually understood the two of them, the odds would not be like that. The odds might even be the exact opposite!”

Trevor nodded slightly, “You’re right. It’s not like the caretakers can judge everything accurately. It’s probably because of Ethan’s bad temper. The caretakers probably feel like a bad attitude means having horrible skills. That’s why the odds are so high!”

The disciple behind him nodded vigorously, “Jackie’s just an alchemist. Didn’t Ethan say so before? Jackie has no background. An alchemist like him is lucky enough to be good at alchemy. He definitely put most of his time into alchemy, not having any time for martial training at all! That's why we don't have to worry that much. I believe in Ethan!"

After saying that, the other disciples of the Pentagram clan expressed their support for Ethan. They did not know much about Jackie, but they knew Ethan very well.

Ethan's skills might not be comparable to notable warriors, but among alchemists, he stood at the top.

There was not a single alchemist from the Pentagram clan who could beat Ethan. Since that was the case, then Jackie was definitely no match for Ethan.

Trevor snorted and said, "I was overthinking things. I was just fooled by how he acted. He's just acting too calm, causing me to feel like he's hiding something…"

Trevor could not help but laugh after saying that, feeling like he was being naive to actually think that the guy was hiding something. Even if he did, he was still just an alchemist.

He was just an ant in front of Trevor, that Trevor could deal with easily!

Rudy had heard everything they said and almost laughed.

Facing other strong warriors, Rudy would not have dared to say that Jackie would definitely win, but if it was Ethan, he could confidently tell everyone there that Jackie would be the victor. That was because Ethan was the ant that could die at any moment!

Rudy laughed and said, "Since you're so confident that Ethan will win, then hurry up and bet on him. Could you just be saying that you support him, but actually thinking that he'll lose?!"

"What do you know?!" A disciple behind Trevor said loudly.

The disciple had widened eyes and rage on his face, "We're not as stupid as you, blindly trusting Jackie! We didn't place our bets because we were talking! Couldn't you see that?"

Chapter 3100
After saying that, the disciple pulled out half a million spirit crystals from his storage ring with a huff, betting it on Ethan!

After doing that, he coldly looked at Rudy, "Do you see it now? Don't try to be petty with us! I despise ignorant country bumpkins like you guys!"

Rudy sneered, already used to hearing words like that. Had it been in the past, he would have shouted something back, but at that moment, Rudy could not be bothered.

He turned to look at the two people who were standing on the stage. He tried to estimate the time it would take for the battle to end. With Jackie's personality, the fight would have a result soon.

Time ticked away, and the spectators were finally reaching their conclusions. Even though they were still discussing, most of them already knew who they were betting on. There was just some uncertainty left.

After all, the odds were so high at that time. If Ethan won, those that have bet on Ethan would be able to quadruple their spirit crystals. So, most of the warriors hoped that Ethan would win. After all, Ethan's odds were far higher.

Just thinking about winning four times the spirit crystals made them happy. If Jackie won, they would only be able to get a million from half a million, which was far less.

"No matter what, I feel like Ethan's more likely to win. After all, he's from the Pentagram Clan. It's one of the top eighth-grade clans in White Marsh Continent. As for Jackie, he's from Hestia Continent, and he's a wandering warrior. The two of them are from completely different backgrounds!"

"You're right, but the odds are so high. It means that the caretakers think that Jackie's more likely to win. Even though I don't know how strong he is, there has to be a reason for the odds!"

"The caretakers make mistakes. Don't regard the caretakers so highly, okay? They've made a few mistakes before by giving the loser much higher odds. So, before the results are out, everything is uncertain!"

"From their conditions, I think Ethan's better. After all, Ethan comes from a high grade clan, he's stronger than Jackie no matter how you look at it!"

It was obvious from their discussions that most of the spectators planned on choosing Ethan. After all, Ethan came from a high grade clan.

Jackie was from Hestia Continent and did not have much of a background. White Marsh Continent was already stronger than Hestia Continent.

In the eyes of the warriors, White Marsh Continent's eighth-grade clans were comparable to Hestia Continent's ninth-grade clans! Even though Ethan was an alchemist, he should still be stronger than a warrior from a small clan.

After Ethan heard the discussions, the rage in his heart started to get suppressed.

He coldly stared at Jackie, "Do you hear that? Do you still think you can win?"

Ethan yearned to see Jackie's hopeless expression. As long as he had the chance, he would say something to provoke Jackie. Jackie frowned, opening his eyes in frustration as he looked at Ethan, who was pleased with himself.

Jackie sneered, "Do you still remember how much you bragged in the tournament? You told everyone that you would definitely get the golden treasure, but what ended up happening?"

"You are behaving exactly the same today. Can you just stop bragging? I'm getting annoyed just listening to you!"

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3101 - 3105 -

Chapter 3101
Ethan's face reddened in anger, finding himself at a loss for words.

What Jackie said had been the truth. What happened during the tournament felt like it had only happened a day ago. No matter what he said, the truth was more convincing.

All Ethan could do was wallow in his rage. After all, he had no way to shoot back at Jackie. He felt like even his heart was beginning to hurt as the lust to kill Jackie rose in his mind.

He gritted his teeth and stared at Jackie. He only had one thought in mind at that moment, which was that he wanted the match to start as soon as possible. He was in a hurry to kill Jackie.

An hour was not too long. When there were only 10 minutes left, the spectators all stood up and headed to the betting area.

Of the warriors that were betting, almost three-quarters of them placed their bets on Ethan. A quarter of the warriors betted on Jackie.

Rudy merely stood quietly by the side and observed.

When the last person placed a 500000 bet on Ethan, the match was finally starting.

Rudy looked up at the stage. Since there was no space in the spectator stands, they were forced to stay in the betting area outside, tiptoeing to look at the stage. The view, while it was barely anything, allowed them to see the stage.

One of the disciples from the Pentagram Clan coldly stared at Rudy's back, thinking about what Rudy had said earlier. He was full of anger, incredibly unhappy with Rudy and Jackie.

Though the match was about to start, he did not forget to mock Rudy.

"The truth beats anything you can say. The crowd knows what they're looking at. To Ethan, Jackie's an ant that can be easily squashed at will. Let me give you some advice. The higher you put your hopes up, the more dis appointed you'll be. Don't be too disappointed when Jackie is on his knees begging for mercy later."

Rudy, upon hearing that, turned to look at that person coldly. "Truth be told, I have something to say to all of you as well. The higher your hopes, the more disappointed you'll be. I don't know how sharp their eyes are, but I know that all of you are cretins!"

It was like the tension between them completely ignited with this exchange. The disciples of the Pentagram Clan all reddened in anger as they started to hurl various insults at Rudy.

“Who are you calling cretins? The two of you are the idiots here, but you’re still so pompous! I have no idea how you’re this full of yourself!”

“I wonder if the two of them even have brains. They‘re probably filled with dog poop!”

Rudy’s lips twitched, suddenly regretting what he said. After all, they outnumbered him greatly, and he could not possibly defend himself on his own. However, the insults did not last for too long since the battle was starting.

Ethan narrowed his eyes as he stared at Jackie in hatred. He cracked his knuckles, looking like he was about to start a slaughter.

He took out a silver sword from his storage space. “You probably don’t know what kind of technique I’m using. Since you’re going to die today, I’ll satisfy your curiosity. It’ s an act of mercy for you…”

“Listen here! I‘m using a lower Earth-rank technique, the Pentagram Sword Style.”

As he said that, he deliberately raised his voice as well, making sure that all the warriors there could hear him.

Jackie pursed his lips helplessly, unable to stop himself from rolling his eyes.

Why did Ethen seem more foolish by the minute?

Chapter 3102
When did he ever wonder what technique Ethan was using?

For one, Ethan was just revealing his secrets, and Ethan insisted on dragging him in as well. Jackie was beyond baffled, truth be told.

The warriors in the spectator stands all erupted in conversation when they heard what Ethan said. Quite a few of them started to regret betting on Jackie.

“Ethan is using the Pentagram Sword Style! That technique was created by an old hero from the Pentagram Clan. I heard it’s quite difficult, even if the rank isn’t that high for us.”

“However, Ethan is an alchemist. The fact that he’s able to use the Pentagram Sword Style means that he’s quite talented! Most alchemists are only able to use elementary red-rank techniques! It looks like Jackie will lose this time for sure!”

Since no one knew where Jackie was from, most of them had lumped him as a wandering warrior. On top of that, he was an alchemist, so he had left an impression in everyone's hearts.

Before Ethan said that he was using a lower Earth-rank technique, quite a few people still placed their bets on Jackie out of curiosity. After hearing Ethan's declaration, however, they regretted their choice.

Alas, it was too late for them to do anything.

When Ethan heard what was being said, the smile on his face deepened.

"Do you hear that now, brat? Everyone's looking down on you. I've reached the preliminary level of the technique, and I'm very close to proficiency. It'll be very easy to deal with you!"

Jackie' s lips twitched helplessly, really not wanting to waste his breath on Ethan. "Alright, fine, you're amazing! Can you hurry and attack now? Stop wasting time!"

Ethan's lips stiffened. He had thought that Jackie would cower in fear after he told Jackie what his technique was. He never expected Jackie to be so good at keeping a straight face. No matter what he said, Jackie did not seem to care.

Ethan was furious he did not want to waste any more time either. Since his words were not enough to make Jackie feel any fear, he would use his skills to have Jackie kneeling before him!

Ethan let out a shout of anger as his aura erupted all around him. The sword in his hand started to glow in silver, and eight stars suddenly floated in the air.

"Taste the Pentagram Sword Style!" Ethan launched himself forward like a sharp blade, charging right at Jackie while he was covered in the silver glow.

Eight glowing stars followed Ethan, slowly fusing with him.

Jackie merely raised an eyebrow, not even moving where he stood. He held his gray sword with both hands, and as Ethan was rushing over, he started to form seals, causing soul swords to condense in the air.

When Ethan was only 30 meters away, Jackie let out a slash. The gray slash shot at Ethan at a speed invisible to the naked eye. Suddenly, the gray slash clashed with the silver light, and everyone started to hear something crackling.

The silver aura suddenly shattered. In less than a second, it completely disappeared. The moment the silver aura dispersed, cracks appeared on Ethan's blade as well.

Before he could react, the gray slash swiftly thrust into Ethan's chest. Ethan suddenly felt the pain of his soul being ripped apart from his chest. The pain caused him to suddenly lose his mind.

After a cry of agony, he collapsed on the floor, spitting out blood.

Chapter 3103
Thankfully, Jackie avoided it quickly, and no blood got on his body.

"Argh!" Ethan cried out in agony like a captured wild boar, frantically rolling around as though he had gone crazy.

The sight caused the rowdy crowd to fall silent instantly. Everyone widened their eyes, looking at the writhing, crying Ethan, not knowing what to say at that moment. Just from his cries, they could tell how much pain he was in.

Ethan must be feeling the pain down to his bone. Otherwise, a warrior would not have forgotten about their dignity and rolled on the floor like that, crying out in agony!

After a long time, someone finally said, "Aren't these two supposed to be far different in terms of strength? Weren't they both supposed to be alchemists? Why is Jackie so strong that Ethan couldn't even block a single strike?"

"Earlier, it was obvious that Jackie and Ethan were on completely different levels the moment Jackie attacked. No wonder Jackie was so indifferent from start to finish, not even reacting, he didn't think Ethan was worth noting. To Jackie, Ethan posed no challenge at all!"

"That's true! The difference in skill is too great, I'm regretting betting on Ethan so much, and now I've lost half a million for no reason! Why am I so unlucky? I haven't won a bet for a few rounds!"

"I'm more or less the same. I've lost a million and a half from three consecutive rounds! If this goes on, I'll probably stop betting on these death matches! I might as well go to the gentleman's bets. I might be able to win a few rounds there!"

"Didn't Ethan say that he was using a lower Earth rank technique? He even said that he wasn't far away from reaching the second stage of mastery. With those skills, he should've been one of the strongest alchemists! How did he die to Jackie in one blow? It doesn't make sense…"

After that person spoke, a man in blue robes suddenly shouted, "It makes perfect sense, Jackie was just stronger. If Ethan was using a lower Earth rank technique, then Jackie must've used a middle Earth rank technique! He's probably reached proficiency or even perfection with the technique. That was how be defeated Ethan in one blow!"

The moment he said that, everyone agreed with him. They nodded as they felt regret for betting on Ethan.

The spectators had only lost half a million, so they were not that shaken up. However, the disciples of the Pentagram Clan in the betting area had lost their calm. Just hearing Ethan's cries of agony rattled them to the core.

They looked like their father had died.

Trevor rushed right over, shouting to the stage, "Jackie, stop! Stop right now, do you hear me?! Stop right now!"

He shouted as cold sweat dripped down his face. No one knew better than him how bad the situation would be if Ethan died. He would definitely be questioned by the Pentagram Clan. After all, Ethan was no ordinary warrior.

He was an incredibly rare alchemist, so he was immensely useful. Back then, Ethan would have been in first place in the seventh group if not for Jackie. It was obvious that Ethan's skills in alchemy were stellar, he was just worse than Jackie.

Even if Trevor did not like Ethan, he could not just watch Ethan die. After all, he would be punished if he did. Even if his fellow disciples could vouch for him that it was Ethan's choice, it would be useless if he perished.

He would still be punished!

Chapter 3104
Even if Ethan was still alive at that moment, he was dangerously close to death's door. Trevor was so anxious his entire body was shaking, already predicting what would happen.

Jackie looked up upon hearing Trevor's voice and saw him standing beneath the stage with his pale, panic-stricken face.

Trevor was staring right at Jackie with a complicated expression. While he tried to come off as forceful, the pleading glint in his eyes was just as evident as though he was begging for Ethan's release.

The sight of Trevor merely amused Jackie, however. He could not be bothered with him, and nothing he shouted would affect the results of the match.

He slowly turned to look at Ethan, who was still rolling on the floor.

At that moment, Ethan's clothes were completely disheveled. His entire body was covered in dirt, and he looked to be in an incredibly bad state. Despite his appearance,

Ethan could barely care, the pain made him forget everything else as he wailed in agony.

The stage suddenly turned into a slaughterhouse.

Seeing that Jackie would not do anything regardless of what he said, Trevor started to panic. “We can talk about this, Jackie!” he said. “As long as you release him, I’ll do anything as long as it’s within my power!”

“You killing him won’t amount to anything but merely taking a life. This brat has suffered the punishment he should have. Just look at how much pain he’s in! You should‘ve already vented your frustration. Let him go! Just act like you didn’t see him today!”

Trevor finally lowered his head.

If this went on, Ethan would surely die. Since threatening Jackie was useless, he was forced to try coercing Jackie.

Ethan’s death would entail his misery after all, seeing as Ethan was special, a talented alchemist. As long as Ethan did not die, Ethan would be one of the top eighth-grade alchemists in the future.

Nurturing an alchemist required a lot of resources, and the Pentagram Clan had invested a lot in Ethan. If Ethan died, then those investments would go up in flames.

If the higher ups found out, they would no doubt be angered while he would get dragged into it. Even if Ethan had requested everything himself, even if Ethan had refused to listen to anything he said, the blame would still fall on him!

After all, he was Ethan’s team leader, and regardless of what happened, he would be held responsible if Ethan died. There was no telling how angry the higher ups would be and how he would be punished. Even if he was a chosen disciple in the Pentagram Clan, he was not the only one in the clan. It was not like he had no enemies in the clan either, and it would be the perfect chance to deal with him.

Those who were not on good terms with him would not let the chance to deal with him slip. They would try everything in their power to have the higher ups give him the death penalty!

Jackie raised an eyebrow curiously. He never expected that Trevor would humble himself and try to negotiate. He gazed at Trevor again, noting how bloodshot his eyes were and how his lips shivered. It was obvious how much he was begging Jackie.

Jackie let out a laugh before he said, “There’s nothing that I desire. You can give me whatever I’d want, anyway.”

Trevor's face darkened as he said loudly, "Do you know what you 're doing, Jackie? You're challenging the Pentagram Clan. If you kill Ethan, you'll be the enemy of the whole clan!"

Chapter 3105
"You'll always be pursued. Even if you're lucky enough to avoid it once, you'll never be at peace to the point you'll never be able to show yourself in public! It's a terrible fate. You have to think it through!"

Hearing that, Jackie was incredibly amused and looked at Trevor indifferently. "Don't you think you're being hilarious? If I hadn't prepared myself, how would I have started a death match with him? Do you think I started one so I'd die myself?

"Since I knew that he'd die, it's natural that I understood what'll happen if he did. So what if I offend the Pentagram Clan? If you want to kill me, you've got to have skills."

After saying that, Jackie ignored what Trevor was saying beneath the stage. Jackie acted like he did not hear anything, and the spectators erupted in discussions.

Most of the warriors had betted on Ethan, and as the results were the complete opposite of what they expected, half a million had gone down the drain.

Various complaints could be heard everywhere.

A lot of the warriors were more shocked at the result. After all, Ethan had lost far too quickly, having failed to even survive one strike from Jackie.

"I'm beginning to suspect that this kid isn't an alchemist," said a person among the crowd suspiciously.

Another warrior chimed in, "Why are you doubting that he isn't an alchemist? Those robes aren't something anyone can get. Those clothes all have special runes on them. Unless he stole someone's, there's no way to fake those robes."

The one who questioned Jackie explained, "If he's not an alchemist, why doesn't he have an alchemist badge on his chest? It's not like we've never seen alchemists before…"

"Other alchemists would always have alchemist badges on their chests; it's their symbol, and they wouldn't take it off easily. Just look at that seventh-grade alchemist badge on Ethan's robes!"

"However, this guy doesn't have a badge at all. Furthermore, when did alchemists get so strong? Even though we lost, our thought processes had been logical…"

“Ethan came from the Pentagram Clan, and he used a lower Earth rank technique, the Pentagram Sword Style. He had even reached the first level of mastery! I’ve met so many alchemists, and not a single one of them could compare to Ethan. Yet, this guy dealt with Ethan in one strike! Don’t you all think it’s strange? All of this proves that this guy isn’t an alchemist at all. He’s just like the rest of us, pure warriors…”

“He probably stole or borrowed those alchemist robes from someone else. There’s no way he’s an alchemist!”

“I think you might be right. There are some flaws in his disguise. It’s the first time I‘ve met such a strong alchemist. I think you’re right. This guy isn’t an alchemist at all!”

“Ethan’ s so unlucky!”

“You can’t say he’s unlucky either. He was the one who didn’t verify the facts. He didn’t check who the other person was before the death match, and everyone knows death matches aren’t something you play around with.”

“Yeah… The moment you get on stage, someone will have to die. In the worst cases, both of them will end up dying. The fact that he was this careless probably means he deserved his fate.”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3106 - 3110 -

Chapter 3106
The discussions grew louder as some began to theorize that Jackie was not an alchemist at all since they did not know where Jackie got his robes from.

Quite a lot of them felt pity for Ethan's misfortune as well to have fallen for a trick.

Ethan thought Jackie was an alchemist, which was why Ethan started a death match, all while Jackie might not be an alchemist at all.

"This guy is too shameless! We're all warriors here, and we never fight against alchemists! After all, we have different specialties. There's nothing great about beating an alchemist, yet this guy even tricked them!"

"He truly is despicable. I wonder what's going through his mind!"

The discussions started to shift their attacks toward Jackie. After all, a lot of them had lost their spirit crystals, so they needed something to blame. Jackie became their prime target.

A lot of them frantically criticized Jackie, feeling like his victory was not honorable at all. They even described him as a despicable, disgusting clown. Those discussions rose among the warriors.

Some of them even started to attack Hestia, saying that the continent's warriors needed to prove themselves with alchemists!

At the start, the warriors of Hestia did not say anything. After all, they did not have anything to do with Jackie. Yet, when they started to move on from Jackie and attack Hestia, many decided to speak up.

A warrior from Hestia stood up and shouted, "I can prove that Jackie's an alchemist, so stop trying to find reasons to insult him! Before you learn the truth, don't act like you know everything!"

"Jackie participated in the treasure tournament before, and he even managed to get a golden treasure for Hestia. It's not just the warriors and alchemists from the Hestia Continent who know that; the alchemists and warriors from your own worlds should know as well!"

The moment that was said, the discussions quieted down quite a bit.

A warrior from White Marsh Continent said loudly, "Is what you're saying true? "

That person laughed coldly, saying in disdain, “Why would I lie? Jackie was a part of the seventh group. If you don’t believe me, you can look into this. It’s the truth. As long as you look into it a bit more, you’ll see that I’m not lying.”

The moment that person said that, quite a few of them looked into it. The results were immediately out, and the warrior from Hestia had not been lying after all. Jackie truly did take part in the seventh group, placing first and getting a golden treasure.

What surprised them even more was the fact that Ethan had been a part of the seventh group. Everyone slowly started to understand what happened.

Death matches were where grudges were settled, and the grudge between them had started from the seventh group. After figuring that out, those who were calling Jackie shameless all shut their mouths.

Quite a few of them lamented, “So Jackie is an alchemist. Why doesn’t he have his badge on?”

“Who knows? Isn’t this guy a little crazy? He’s not just talented enough to get a treasure in an alchemy tournament, placing first among so many alchemists, but he’s not weak as a warrior either. With his skills, most wandering warriors would probably fall to him! He’s really insane. It’s the first time I’ve seen such a strong alchemist!”

Chapter 3107
“I heard that this guy doesn’t have a notable background either. How strange is that? Does he have something unique that’s backing him up?”

“Even if he did, he’d need the talent in the first place. It looks like he’s hiding quite a few secrets. It’s a pity there are so many rules here. Even if I wanted to investigate this, I wouldn’t be able to…”

Jackie did not care what the spectators were talking about, but it did not mean that he did not know either.

It was understandable how he would invite a lot of interest with all the extraordinary things about him. However, they were in the middle city. Even if they were keen, there was nothing they could do.

They would only get the chance after he left, but he was no fool either. He would never give them the chance to do as they wanted.

At that moment, Jackie switched his focus on Ethan again. Under his control, Ethan’s pain slowly diminished, but it did not mean that the power that was rotting Ethan’s soul was already depleted. It was just decreasing the speed of the rot.

Slowly, Ethan regained some of his sanity. He opened his eyes and looked at Jackie weakly. When he saw Jackie's face clearly, the hatred in his heart soared. However, he quickly realized that he was a goner, and the fear of death filled his body. He did not want to die. He still had a beautiful future ahead of him!

As an incredibly talented alchemist, he would become an eighth-grade alchemist if he lived. He even had a shot at becoming a ninth-grade alchemist. If that happened, even the leader of the Pentagram Clan would treat him respectfully!

No one would dare to look down on him, and many would kneel before him!

These thoughts flashed through his mind as he lamented his deadly fate. The fear he felt sent chills down his spine, causing him to shiver.

Looking at him, Jackie laughed and said, "Are you horrified? I'm sure this doesn't feel good. I'll be honest with you… Even if you beg me, I won't grant you mercy…"

That was what Ethan had threatened Jackie with before the battle, and Jackie merely made him taste his medicine.

Ethan almost fainted from anger when he heard that. Fear and anger mixed together, and he spat out a mouthful of blood. He clutched his chest as he looked at Jackie with a complicated expression.

"Who are you?! Tell me who you are!"

Jackie raised an eyebrow, scoffing, "Why are you asking that? Don't you know who I am?"

"You're not an alchemist, I know it! You're not Jackie… You're someone else in disguise! There's no way Jackie is this strong. He's an alchemist, but you're not!" Ethan spat out even more blood as he shuddered and spoke, clutching his chest.

Jackie was speechless. Ethan would rather claim that he was someone else in disguise than admit that he was better!

Jackie raised an eyebrow and said, "Are you unable to accept that I'm better than you at everything? That's the truth. I'm better than you in every way…"

"Didn't you laugh at me and think that I was just giving up my life when I started the death match with you? All this while, you were the clown impatiently jumping to his demise!"

Jackie's words pierced through Ethan's thoughts.

Ethan’s eyes widened completely as the color drained from his face. He looked like he was a ghost that just crawled out of hell.

Chapter 3108
Jackie snorted, no longer wanting to waste his time on him, the power of Destroying the Void exploded within Ethan’s body with a wave of his hand. Very quickly, pain drowned Ethan’s senses.

This time, Jackie did not hold back, Ethan’s soul was torn to oblivion by Destroying the Void. In just a few seconds, his soul was completely consumed.

The stage’s barrier fell at that moment, signifying that Ethan had died.

Trevor was in sheer shock as Ethan’s corpse was brought down from the stage. His lips trembled as he looked at the lifeless body before him, and various thoughts surfaced in his mind. He was already imagining how he would be punished by the higher-ups.

He caught a figure slowly walking toward the betting area from the corner of his eyes. With the match already ended, all his rage had condensed into one point.

He rushed toward the figure. “Stop right there!”

Jackie stopped and slowly turned to look at the angered, pale-faced Trevor. With his lips twitching and his eyes widened, he looked at Jackie as if Jackie killed his own father.

Jackie barely reacted as he calmly faced Trevor‘s rage.

Trevor gritted his teeth and hissed, “Do you know what’ll happen now?”

It was the same old dance. Trevor had said everything before but was about to repeat himself.

“Do you have nothing else to say?” grumbled Jackie exasperatedly. “I told you that I know what’ll happen. I just don’t care!”

Trevor’s eyes were filled with anger. “You’ll regret this! You’ll be begging for mercy! You’ll pay for this!”

Jackie frowned as he scoffed, “Pay for what? Are you going to kill me? Will you, or maybe anyone else?”

“If I have the chance, I’ll kill you!” snarled Trevor.

Jackie’s lips curled into a smile of disdain. “With just your strength? You’re not that much better than Ethan, the way I see it. If you have the skills, come and kill me. What’s the point of playing around?”

With that, Jackie turned and walked toward Rudy, who was visibly happy and waving at him.

“I made another five hundred thousand!”

He felt like Jackie was his god of health. He had earned a few million spirit crystals in such a short time.

Before this, he only managed to make a few hundred thousand after saving up for so long, but it suddenly multiplied by so much. He was already a millionaire!

Rudy grew happier as he thought about it, so much so that his smile threatened to split his face apart.

Jackie patted Rudy on the shoulder. “It’s just half a million. You’ll make even more in the future!”

After hearing that, Rudy got even more excited. “What are you planning on participating in?”

Jackie raised his head slightly. He had figured out what to do before Ethan even started the death match. The death match had just been something unexpected.

After the death match started, Jackie did not even bother placing a bet. Even if he did, he would only make half a million. To him, half a million was an insignificant number.

Chapter 3109
As Rudy waited for Jackie’s next plans excitedly, another uninvited guest appeared in front of them. It was Trevor and the Pentagram Clan’s disciples.

The next death match had already started, and the spectators were focused on the next participants. No one was paying attention to this side.

Trevor‘s anger had slowly dissipated, but the sinister look in his eyes had deepened. He looked at Jackie incredibly venomously.

Rudy immediately recognized that these were the people that mocked him and called him various harsh insults. It was the perfect time to fight back.

He walked forward and said to them, “Next time, please look at yourselves in the mirror before you call anyone ignorant. Didn’t you say that Ethan was very strong? How did he die so badly? He was writhing on the floor for so long that his body was covered in dirt. He was no different than a beggar in the streets.”

The disciples immediately rushed forward when they heard that. Their faces were red, ready to fight Rudy at the next moment, but Rudy was not worried at all.

Middle city was not the wilderness. If they wanted to fight, they would need to be able to withstand a lightning strike first.

Trevor reached his hand out to pull them back.

It was not the time to be impulsive, and he had somehow accepted the truth. “Don’t be reckless, their days are numbered anyway. The Pentagram Clan will definitely get him back for everything he did today!”

Rudy and Jackie were already used to threats like that. Jackie looked at Trevor curiously, feeling something strange about what Trevor said.

After a moment, Jackie smiled and said, “It makes sense now…”

Rudy tilted his head and asked, “What?”

Jackie took a step forward, saying to Trevor, “No wonder you were so anxious. On the stage, you promised me so much just to make me stop. So it was because of that!”

Jackie had a smile on his face as he spoke.

Trevor frowned, and the rage he had suppressed once again boiled. His anger surged when he saw how Jackie was acting. He was tempted to start fighting with Jackie. Thankfully, he managed to suppress that urge.

“Stop trying to imply things!”

Jackie snorted and said, “I’m not. It’s not like I didn’t hear what you said to Ethan before. Your relationship with him is clearly nothing great, so why did you care so much about him being alive?”

“I thought about it, you know? It’s probably because you’ll be punished by the Pentagram Clan’s higher-ups for his death, isn’t it? Otherwise, you wouldn’t care that Ethan‘s dead.”

Trevor frowned as he got angrier. “What kind of nonsense are you spouting? I was anxious because he was a clan member! Stop trying to apply your standards onto others!”

Jackie sneered. “Am I? Stop trying to make yourself look good. Just look at your guilty expression, anyone can see it. Don‘t you hate me so much that you want to kill me yourself right now?”

Chapter 3110
Trevor’s lips twitched. Of course he wanted to kill Jackie with his own hands. If it was not for Jackie, he would not have been dragged into this mess, and he would not have needed to bear with the anger of the higher-ups when he got back, suffering from heavy punishments!

Thinking about that, Trevor wanted nothing more than to rip Jackie.

Alas, even if he did, they were in the Whirling World. He did not have the skills to challenge the laws of the Whirling World at all!

Jackie let out a light smile, suddenly turning serious. “I’ll give you a chance to kill me.”

The moment he said that, all of the disciples there were stunned, not dating to believe what they had heard.

What did he say?

He was going to give Trevor the chance to kill him?

Was this guy mad? Was he suicidal?

Trevor frowned. “What did you say? You want me to kill you?”

Jackie’s lips twitched in exasperation.

This guy was really good at only catching what he wanted to hear. Jackie clearly said that he would give Trevor a chance to kill him, but Trevor thought that he wanted to die by Trevor’s hands.

Rudy could not stand it. “Are you deaf or stupid? When did he say he wanted you to kill him? He just said he’d give you a chance. Whether or not you succeed, that’ll be up to your skills.”

There was a glint in Trevor’s eyes. “If you’re just saying this for fun, I’ll look down on you. A man keeps his word!”

Jackie smiled coldly. “Of course I will. I’ve already participated in a death match, mind you. It’s quite boring. Why don’t we both head to the slaughter gambits and take part?”

The moment he said that, even Rudy froze.

Earlier, Rudy had thought that Jackie wanted to start a death match with Trevor. He never expected that Jackie did not have any plans to start a death match at all. Instead, Jackie had his eyes on the slaughter gambits. He wanted to play with something bigger!

The disciples of the Pentagram Clan all frowned.

Slaughter gambits were no joke. The moment one started, nine out of ten would die. Only one person would be able to get out of it alive!

Something as crazy as that was far too dangerous.

Normally, only adrenaline junkies or those who did not mind dying would participate in slaughter gambits. After all, only then would they be able to improve themselves. However, death was often the result In a death match, only two would die at most.

Starting a slaughter gambit meant that there would be nine corpses!

The disciples of the Pentagram Clan started to worry. The disciple behind Trevor said with a conflicted expression, “Trevor, this guy is crazy. Let’s just forget about it!”

“There’s no point arguing with this crazy man. He doesn’t care about his life, but we care about ours.”

“Your life is much more valuable than his. Slaughter gambits aren’t something to play around with. Everyone who participates in slaughter gambits are madmen who don‘t care about dying! You’ll be in constant danger the moment you step inside. No one knows what’ll happen…”

Trevor’s frown deepened, intensely conflicted at that moment. On one hand, he wanted to kill Jackie himself, but on the other, he was worried he might die to someone else if he participated.

Participating in a slaughter gambit was too dangerous for him. He might lose his life if he was not careful.

Trevor took a deep breath, saying, “There‘s too much uncertainty in a slaughter gambit. You might die to someone else before I even get the chance to kill you. There would be no point in me participating. Why don’t we start a death match? We can fight to the death on the stage!”

Jackie merely let out a cold laugh, having expected that Trevor would suggest that.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3111 -

Chapter 3111
He let out a laugh before he said, “I refuse! If you want to kill me with your own hands then participate in the slaughter gambit with me. Otherwise, you won’t get the chance.”

Jackie was very firm when he said that, leaving no room for doubt. After that, he turned around and walked forward. Rudy let out a smile as he followed behind Jackie, walking into the distance.

The disciples of the Pentagram Clan were left in disarray.

Jackie deliberately slowed down his footsteps as he walked.

Rudy whispered after he caught up, “Jackie, are you really going to take part in the slaughter gambit?”

Jackie’s lips twitched in exasperation, “Did you think I was joking?”

Of course, Rudy knew that Jackie was not the type to joke around. Since Jackie had said it, Jackie would do it. Furthermore, Rudy knew that Jackie had said all of that to get Trevor to participate in the slaughter gambit with him.

Once they were on the stage, there was no telling who would be the more powerful one.

In the end, Rudy was still a little worried. He scratched his head, thinking about it for a moment before speaking up.

“I’m not doubting your skills, but I feel like the slaughter gambit is a little dangerous. After you enter, you’ll be facing nine opponents. There‘s just too much risk, so I’m a bit worried…”

“Why don’t you do what he asked and start another death match? In a death match, you’ll only face one opponent. It’s so much easier than a slaughter gambit. I feel like death matches are easier.”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, turning around to look at Rudy, “I’m not joining the slaughter gambit to kill Trevor.”

“Then what is your purpose for joining?” Rudy was even more confused.

Jackie sighed as he looked into the distance, “It’s for a bronze medal!”

After saying that, he took out the black iron medal from his storage. When Rudy heard what Jackie said, he was stunned but replied, “A bronze medal? There’s even a bronze medal?!”

Jackie nodded as he continued walking forward slowly.

He explained, “If you want to get the bronze medal, you have to participate in the slaughter gambit. I’ve already thought about it. The medals shouldn’t just be something to brag about. They must be useful later on!”

Jackie clenched the black iron medal in his hand, wondering what gathering the medals would yield.

Since there was a black iron medal and a bronze medal now, there should be a gold medal waiting for them in the end. The black iron medal was in the outer city, while the bronze medal was in the middle city, so the gold medal should be in the inner city. Jackie was already anticipating the challenges he would face in the inner city!

Rudy’s lips twitched as he lamented, “What kind of a hero created the Whirling World? Every stage is so bloody.”

Jackie continued, “Let’s not think about that for now. Let me tell you the rules of the slaughter gambit so you don’t complain later.”

Right after he said that Jackie heard some frantic footsteps behind him. He smiled, not needing to turn around to know who it was.

Trevor’s face was stiff. At that moment, he was feeling exceptionally turbulent . His face was somewhat twisted. He was still a little conflicted to make a decision.

Even though he was a chosen disciple of the Pentagram Clan, which definitely proved his skills, the slaughter gambit was still incredibly dangerous where only one out of ten survived. If he was careless, he could very well lose his life.

“I’ll participate!” Trevor said loudly.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3112 -

Chapter 3112
Trevor was incredibly wound up when he shouted that as if he was ready to fight someone at any moment.

Jackie’s lips curled up into a satisfied smile. That was exactly what he wanted.

Trevor started to huff as he glared at Jackie, “I know you just want someone to die with you! Let me tell you, don’t underestimate a chosen disciple from an eighth-grade clan. You’re more than just a little weaker than me!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not saying anything about that. He did not want to bother explaining everything at that moment. Rudy furrowed his eyebrows. Every time he heard something like that, Rudy felt like jumping out to defend Jackie.

The whole time, he knew better than anyone how strong Jackie was. However, since Jackie did not say anything, he was worried that he would disrupt Jackie’s plans, so he kept quiet.

At that moment, the other disciples from the Pentagram Clan caught up. They had heard everything Trevor said earlier. They suddenly got incredibly noisy, and all of them were incredibly anxious.

The one closest to Trevor was an inner disciple of the Pentagram Clan, Evan Brown. Evan’s lips constantly shook as an anxious look appeared on his face.

He clenched his fists and shouted, “Trevor, you’re being too stubborn! You know better than I do what a slaughter gambit is! You and this brat won’t be the only ones taking part, there will be eight other people…”

“There’s no way to tell who the other eight will be. Are you going to agree to take part so easily? There might even be other chosen disciples. Once you enter, only one will survive out of the ten. I’ve never doubted your skills, but you have to think about this more. This guy is just crazy. Why do you want to go into this with a crazy person?!”

After saying that, Evan turned abruptly, glaring right at Jackie. At that moment, he looked like a lion that had been provoked.

“I know you want to die! Can you just die yourself? Why do you have to be so despicable and shameless that you insist on dragging someone else with you?!”

Jackie frowned as he scoffed in his mind. Sometimes, he really hated talking to those disciples from high-grade clans. No matter what they said, they always acted like they were above everyone else.

Everything they said was just to stand out from the crowd, acting like they were better.

Jackie coldly looked at Evan, “I’m not forcing him. I just wanted to give him a chance to kill me, and he agreed. If he didn’t want to, I wouldn’t force him either…”

“If I’m not mistaken, the leader of your team is Trevor, not you. Shouldn’t this be the leader’s decision? You really are crossing the line, trying to make the decision for him like that. It looks like you have even more power than him.”

Evan's face reddened in anger, "Stop trying to pick a fight! I have a great relationship with Trevor, it's not something a few words from you can shake! I don't want Trevor to take part in the slaughter gambit purely out of consideration for his life. You're the one insisting on dragging him to die with you!"

At that moment, the disciples of the Pentagram Clan seemed to all be glaring at Jackie viciously, as if they wanted to rip Jackie to shreds.

One of the disciples behind Evan said, "Is that all you've got? Let me tell you, there's no use trying to get us to fight each other! Trevor will definitely not die with you!"

"That's right! You're just a crazy guy. If you want to be crazy, no one will stop you, but don't just think you can drag Trevor along with you! Your victory earlier probably made you confident! Do you think that you're unbeatable right now?"

"Do you think that you can handle nine opponents by yourself? Is killing nine masters something that easy for you?"

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3113 -

Chapter 3113
Jackie laughed, suddenly feeling like they were incredibly amusing.

He put his hand on his chin, acting like he was thinking for a while before he said, "How did you know what I was thinking? If I didn't think I could beat nine other opponents, why would I participate in the slaughter gambit? Do you think I will die just like you were saying?"

After he said that, the disciples of the Pentagram Clan started to laugh, but the laughter did not reach their eyes. It was clear they only did that to mock Jackie.

Evan narrowed his eyes and said, "I've never seen anyone as full of himself as you. Did you think we were praising you? Do you really think you're unbeatable? That you can beat nine opponents by yourself?"

"How are you going to do that? You're an alchemist. You can't even challenge wandering warriors. How did you think you're good enough to fight against the masters from large clans? You'll just be cannon fodder in the slaughter gambit. You might not even be worthy of being called cannon fodder. You're just an idiot to all those masters!"

After Evan said that, the other disciples piled on, throwing in nasty insult after nasty insult.

At that moment, Trevor suddenly said, “Alright, that’s enough. I’ve already decided to participate in the slaughter gambit. Jackie, I don’t care what you‘re trying to do. I don’t care if you want to die or if you’re just crazy. Just remember this, you’re the one who gave me a chance to kill you…”

“Of course, I wouldn’t let such a good chance go. Even if there’s some danger, that’s not a problem. I’ve walked on the path of the warrior myself, and I’ve never admitted defeat. This time, I won’t lose either!”

After saying that, he walked right toward the transfer array. The Pentagram Clan disciples panicked at that moment as they hurried after Trevor, too focused on trying to talk Trevor out of it to bother with Jackie.

However, Trevor was already determined to kill Jackie no matter how dangerous the slaughter gambit was. Furthermore, he had a certain level of pride as a chosen disciple of the Pentagram Clan.

The slaughter gambit was sure death for any regular warrior, but he was not a regular warrior. Ever since he entered the Pentagram Clan, he had never slacked off. He worked himself to the bone and became a chosen disciple. He never got any help from the outside.

He had managed to get to where he was thanks to his own talent and pride. He never retreated before this, and he would not be afraid this time either.

So what if there was danger?

Danger and opportunity came hand in hand!

He refused to believe that the slaughter gambit would kill him. After affirming his own confidence, the words of advice around him became useless. He would definitely take part in the slaughter gambit and kill Jackie to relieve his anger!

Looking at Trevor leaving in a hurry, Jackie laughed and said, “I just needed to provoke him a little, and he stopped listening to anyone else. It looks like he’s quite confident in himself.”

Rudy raised an eyebrow and looked at Trevor, “He’s not just a little confident, but very much so. I have to say, the other disciples from the Pentagram Clan made sense…”

“Someone rational would be able to listen to them, but Trevor’s already possessed with thoughts of killing you. He would never let the chance to kill you slip. With your provocations, he became completely stuck on the idea!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3114 -

Chapter 3114
Saying that, Rudy could not stop himself from letting out a laugh, “It’s obvious how much he hates you. Even if he’s risking his life, he won’t let the chance to kill you slip away!”

Jackie let out a laugh as he said, “After all, he’s the leader of that team from the Pentagram Clan. Ethan being alive or dead definitely concerns Trevor…”

“Trevor would have to take responsibility regardless, but Ethan’s no regular warrior. He’s an alchemist that had a lot of resources given to him. If Ethan managed to stay alive, he would definitely become an eighth-grade alchemist in the future…”

“Trevor knows very well how valuable an eighth-grade alchemist is to a clan. It’s because of that he realized how much Ethan’s death would end up affecting him. He would probably not be able to be a chosen disciple anymore, and might even be punished even harder than that. He would not even be able to escape.”

Hearing that, Rudy frowned as he widened his mouth slightly, “No wonder that guy hates you so much. Before you killed Ethan, he even tried to sweet talk you. It’s actually a big deal!”

Jackie nodded, narrowing his eyes as he looked at the transfer array, “In the past, I was someone who let bygones be bygones, but it seems like that attitude can’t be used on disciples from high grade clans at all!”

The slaughter gambit was held in the western side of the middle city. The spectator stands were already completely full. Noise filled the air.

The slaughter gambit was split into three large areas, which were the viewing area, the betting area and the battle area. There were a lot of spectators filling up the spectating area.

The viewing area for the slaughter gambits was different from the spectator stands of the colosseums. The entire area was spread out in a fan shape and covered an extremely large area. There was no stage below, but a large transfer array.

On the transfer array was a massive open scroll. The scroll was two hundred feet long and seven feet tall. Every warrior in the viewing area could clearly see inside the scroll.

On the scroll were seven names. Those names were the ones who had already registered for the slaughter gambit!

Those seven had indicated which world they were from in red letters. Looking over, there were four from Chaos Continent and three from White Marsh Continent.

The seven participants were at an isolated area in front of the viewing area. That was the waiting area. There were ten seats in the waiting area, and seven were already filled.

The seven of them were seen resting. There was a tense atmosphere around them. Even those from the same world were not friendly to each other. After all, they were taking part in the slaughter gambit where only one could live. Other than themselves, everyone else was an enemy.

After being sent to the isolated space, it was every man for themselves!

At the spectator stand it was a completely different atmosphere. It was incredibly noisy and everyone seemed excitedly discussing among themselves.

“I think that Chris is stronger. I heard that he’s already even stronger than the direct disciple of the head elder of the Purple Cloud Pavilion. Some say that he’s the top three among the chosen disciples from the Purple Cloud Pavilion!”

“It’s rare to see anyone as strong as him. I don’t see how the victor will be anyone else but him.”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3115 -

Chapter 3115
“You do make sense, but I think you’re being a bit rash. Chris’ skills and talents might sit at the peak, but there are those among the seven who can compete with him.”

After saying that, the person pointed at a handsome man clad in a white robe.

“Edward from the Nimbus Alliance. All of you should know him right? He’s the brother of the top chosen disciple from the Nimbus Alliance! I heard that he‘s not that far away from his brother in terms of skills. It’s just that his brother is a few years older and has been training for longer…”

“If he has enough time, Edward will be able to catch up. I heard from others that Edward should be among the top five in the Nimbus Alliance. Even if Chris is in the top three, those are two different clans…”

“They’re from different worlds as well. The Purple Cloud Pavilion is an eighth- grade clan from White Marsh Continent, while the Nimbus Alliance is an eighth-grade clan from Chaos Continent. Chaos Continent is a bit stronger than White Marsh Continent!

Even if the two clans have never competed with each other, I still feel like the Nimbus Alliance is stronger! Being in the top five might just be better than being in the top three!”

“I feel like Edward might be stronger than Chris despite being in the top five of the Nimbus Alliance compared to the top three of the Purple Cloud Pavilion!”

The person who said that was abnormally calm as if it was assuredly the truth.

After the others heard that, they nodded slightly, feeling like the person made sense. However, no one dared to say that it was definitely true. After all, they were from different worlds and clans.

There was no way to make an accurate comparison!

Furthermore, it would not be a battle between the two of them after they were sent to isolated space. It would be a ten-person battle royale.

There was no telling what could happen!

They might even make temporary alliances. Nothing was certain. The only way to be sure was to wait for the results. At that moment, they were constantly discussing things in order to have a better understanding of who to bet on. Everyone had their own choices in mind.

Everyone of them was only allowed to bet on one person!

“I feel like David from the Frenzied Blade Clan is quite strong too. He’s just not as famous as the other two. I feel like he can win. Otherwise, why would he take this risk as a chosen disciple of the Frenzied Blade Clan?”

Anyone who participated in the slaughter of gambits were either adrenaline junkies, those who gambled with their lives, or warriors immensely confident in themselves.

A lot of them were chosen disciples from major clans. They were confident in their skills, feeling like their skills would lead them to victory. They felt that they would be able to triumph over the other nine, becoming the sole survivor and earning a bronze medal!

The final winner would not just get a bronze medal, but also entry into the inner city. They would not need to try and accumulate points to enter like the other warriors.

They would need to fight on the surface and go through the two underground levels. Furthermore, there were other rewards outside of the entry token and bronze medal.

They would be able to pick one out of ten treasures. All those benefits were far too attractive. Most of the participants put their lives on the line precisely for that.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3116 -

Chapter 3116
Many wandering warriors had managed to get this far precisely because they were ruthless enough to charge forward without a care for their lives. They took up a majority of the slaughter gambit participants.

There were already seven participants registered for this slaughter gambit. Other than the three from major clans, the others were all wandering warriors who did not care about their lives!

All the warriors in the viewing area felt that those four had no chance of winning! If they really had the skill, they would have already become disciples of major clans. There would be no need for them to frantically fight for resources for themselves. The clans would have provided everything!

“It’s already six hours, why is it not full yet?”

“You must be new. It’s only been six hours. I waited for a whole day before ten people signed up.”

It was too difficult, and it was also the one that needed the most participants out of the three events. So, the time between slaughtering gambits was quite long.

Sometimes, they would be lucky enough to have it start in two hours. Other times, they would have to wait for the whole day. After all, it was far too dangerous. As long as they were sent to isolated space, only one would return alive.

The disciples of high-grade clans had always valued their lives highly. Normally, they would never participate in something so dangerous.

Anyone who participated would definitely be an immensely confident warrior. Even those desperate wandering warriors had a limit to them. Most of the time, they made up the majority of those that died. Since more and more died, their numbers dwindled even more.

The newer warriors at the viewing area would not know the situation. They would definitely complain after staying there for a while. Those who had already been at the viewing area for a few days were already used to it. They did not even feel like six hours was that long.

“That’s right, were there no participants from Hestia Continent last time?”

“There were none. It wasn’t just last time, but the time before that as well. What are the warriors from the Hestia Continent doing? Are they all staying at the gentleman‘s bets?” The person laughed out loud at that.

The gentleman’s bets were the easiest of the three on the surface, and the one with the most participants.

The slaughter gambits were the most dangerous, and the betting limits were also the highest. That was why it managed to attract so many warriors to watch and bet on.

“Hestia Continent’s warriors all value themselves highly. They would never participate in anything so dangerous. I was around the death matches for a while. It’s already amazing if you see one Hestia Continent warrior in ten matches there! “Most of them are gathered at the first underground level and the gentleman’s bets. After all, the difficulty is lower and the risk of dying isn’t that high!”

The warriors in the viewing area suddenly started talking about how the Hestia Continent was not participating in the slaughter of gambits.

The warriors of Chaos Continent and White Marsh Continent started to mock the warriors of Hestia Continent. They never cursed, but still managed to completely humiliate the Hestia Continent.

There were naturally quite a few warriors from the Hestia Continent among the spectators.

After hearing all of them, they were all furious. However, not a single one of them dared to stand up to fight for Hestia Continent. After all, it was the truth.

There had been so many slaughter gambits, but Hestia Continent’s warriors had only participated in a very meager amount. The last two matches had no warriors from the Hestia Continent at all.

They were forced to swallow all their anger!

A burly man started to laugh out loud after he heard the discussions, deliberately raising his voice, “What’s the point of talking about Hestia Continent? I already knew that they were a bunch of useless people! Hestia Continent ended up in last place in any tournament or competition…”

“As long as there’s a bit of danger, they run to hide like rats, running away faster than anyone else. The slaughter of gambits is too difficult for them to even dare to participate in!”

Chapter 3117
After the man said that, the other warriors started to pile on. They started to describe Hestia Continent's warriors as cowards and pieces of trash!

More and more nasty insults started to get thrown at the warriors of Hestia Continent.

There were a lot of spectators, and a lot of the warriors from Hestia Continent were fuming in anger. They wanted to rush forward and fight those warriors that insulted the Hestia Continent.

However, they knew that they would get struck by lightning if they tried. They would just end up being burnt to a crisp. They could not attack physically and verbally. After all, the facts were against them.

Quite a few warriors from the Hestia Continent started to think about leaving.

At the end of the day, they could not fight, nor could they argue. They were forced to sit down and be humiliated. At that moment, two names suddenly appeared on the scroll, as well as where those names were from.

The burly man looked at the scroll and muttered, "Jackie? Hestia Continent?"

At that moment, all of the warriors in the viewing area saw Jackie's name and where Jackie was from. He was actually from Hestia Continent!

Speak of the devil and he shall come. They had just been talking about it, and someone from Hestia Continent was actually taking part!

The warriors from Hestia Continent in the viewing area all breathed sighs of relief when they saw Jackie's name and continent!

Jackie's participation gave them some cover for the moment. Even if most of the warriors from Hestia Continent did not know who Jackie was, at least someone had participated.

They were happy as long as someone joined! It would spare them the insults from the other two continents about being cowards.

Beneath Jackie's name was Trevor's, who had registered with Jackie. After registering, the two of them walked toward the waiting area.

Since the spectating area was full, Rudy and the others were forced to wait outside for the results. The betting area was not too far away. If they tried, they could still see what was going on. It would just take some effort.

After telling Rudy some things, Jackie walked in. Trevor had been right behind Jackie.

Before they entered the waiting area, they heard the discussions from the viewing area. Even if Jackie did not want to care about what others were saying around him, they were so loud that he heard everything clearly, “Who is Jackie? Is he the one in front or behind?”

“He’s the one in front! I know the one at the back. It’s Trevor from the Pentagram Clan! He’s quite strong, but he’s a bit worse than Chris. Wouldn’t warriors like Trevor usually avoid the slaughter of gambits? What’s going on?”

To the warriors in the viewing area, warriors like Trevor, who was not at the peak, but not weak either, were really scared of dying. They would normally not take part in slaughter gambits. Even if they did, they would still see who else was taking part.

They would see if there were any strong opponents. If there were, they would give up or wait for the next round!

Chris and Edward were already two incredibly strong participants who had registered, did Trevor not see that?

Did he not care? Was he that confident?

Trevor frowned as he followed Jackie. Various thoughts were on his mind. He was starting to regret being so impulsive. He should have tried to find out who was already registered first!

Even if he was participating, he should have waited for one with weaker participants. He had been too impulsive, and registered right away!

He was suddenly a little regretful. After taking a few breaths, he looked up at Jackie. He saw that Jackie seemed to be walking very steadily.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3118 - 3120 -

Chapter 3118
Looking at Jackie's straightened back, Trevor suddenly felt like he was incredibly weak. Even an alchemist who was a wandering warrior was more confident than he was. He was too focused on worrying about everything. He did not look like a chosen disciple from an eighthgrade clan at all.

Thinking about that, he puffed up his chest and started to radiate confidence. It was like he had suddenly turned into the strongest chosen disciple of the Pentagram Clan. However, his confidence did not last long.

When the two of them entered the waiting area, Trevor immediately saw Chris. His confident expression froze. The worry, pain, and fear that he had suppressed suddenly resurfaced!

Chris was actually participating as well. Chris would be going into an isolated space with him and fighting it out in a battle royale?

They were both warriors from White Marsh Continent, so he naturally knew who Chris was. The Purple Cloud Pavilion was even stronger than the Pentagram Clan, and Chris ranked in third place among their chosen disciples.

He was barely in the top ten of chosen disciples from the Pentagram Clan. Comparatively, it was obvious which one of them was weaker. He knew better than anyone.

Trevor's lips trembled as words surfaced in his mind.

Why?

Why did he have to encounter Chris?!

Even if Trevor was confident in himself, it was not blind confidence. Trevor's face paled as fear rose in his heart, almost swallowing him up.

Compared to that, Jackie was emotionless. When they arrived at the waiting area, he chose one of the empty seats and happened to sit beside Chris.

Chris frowned as he appraised Jackie. No one had dared to sit next to him. After all, his skills were plain for everyone to see. The others had subconsciously avoided sitting next to him.

Chris had thought that the seat next to him would have been left for the last person. That person would not be able to choose and would be forced to sit next to him, feeling the immense power he gave out.

He never expected that this unknown warrior from Hestia Continent would sit next to him, ignoring his aura!

Disciples from highgrade clans were all incredibly particular about their dignity. Jackie's actions made Chris incredibly unhappy.

He snorted before saying, "Two more volunteers to die. How could someone like you dare to participate in the slaughter gambit? It looks like you're either sick of living, or you daydream too much!"

Jackie frowned, glancing at Chris. He did not expect that Chris would start causing trouble right as he sat down before he even said anything.

The look Chris had shot him earlier had been full of disdain and contempt, which made Jackie feel incredibly uncomfortable.

Jackie coldly looked at Chris, "Who do you think you are? Why do you care who participates in the slaughter gambit?"

Chris choked at those words. The other participants around them all looked over, opening their eyes from their rest.

Someone actually talked back to Chris?

He was even a warrior from Hestia Continent. Looking at his attire, he was definitely no one special. Jackie's clothes were the cheapest among the nine of them.

Other than Jackie and Trevor, the other participants were looking at Jackie strangely. They felt like Jackie was too ignorant to know fear, which was why Jackie dared to talk back to Chris so harshly.

Chapter 3119
Chris' face reddened in anger as he narrowed his eyes and glared at Jackie viciously.

Ever since he became a chosen disciple, he had never been spoken to like that. The feeling of his power being ignored caused Chris incredible fury.

"Do you know who I am? It looks like you want to die a horrible death."

Jackie raised his eyebrow in exasperation, saying calmly, "I don't care who you are. You can be whoever you want, but I just don't care. You shouldn't be trying to cause me trouble anyway!"

“People like you disgust me. Since you said that, you must be someone important from your continent. No one can ever offend you, which is why you said all of that. However, you’re nothing but air in my eyes!”

Jackie absolutely hated double standards where only one side was allowed to say anything. It had clearly been Chris who was looking for trouble. Jackie had merely spoken back, and Chris felt like he was being challenged.

Jackie had seen a lot. Every time he met someone like that, Jackie would be full of disgust. He would not hold back with his words. There would only be one person remaining after this match anyway.

Sitting in the waiting area, the others were his enemies. Since that was the case, he had no reason to hold back.

Chris’ lips shook as he looked at Jackie with clenched teeth. He looked like he wanted to rip Jackie apart.

“Very well! In so many years, I’ve never met someone as daring as you. It looks like you really want to be tortured to death by me. I’ll make sure to fulfill that wish. Your death will be excruciating. I’ll leave you behind for last and slowly torture you!”

Those words had been squeezed out of Chris through clenched teeth. He looked at Jackie like a mortal enemy!

Jackie’s lips twitched in exasperation as he snorted, “If you have the skills, then feel free. Don’t just run your mouth. Anyone knows how to talk!”

The others around him all widened their eyes as they stared at Jackie.

This guy was too bold. He did not seem to be holding back at all.

Was he really not afraid of getting tortured by Chris?

If he was angering Chris like this, he would be Chris’ first target the moment they entered the isolated space. There were no rules on how your opponents needed to be killed. It meant that, as long as Chris captured Jackie, he would get to decide how he killed Jackie!

David from the Frenzied Blade Clan was seated next to Trevor. He could not help but say, “Are you just ignorant or are you crazy? Do you really not feel afraid at all that he’ll torture you? After entering the isolated world, no one will respond to your cries for help.”

Jackie looked at David and felt like David was talking too much. He felt like David knew nothing, and David’s words proved that.

He snorted and said, “Do you think I’m participating in the slaughter gambit to die?”

David raised an eyebrow and said loudly, “Of course. Do you think you can kill us?”

After saying that, David let out a laugh. His face was filled with disdain. Even though Hestia Continent was placed last among the three worlds, it was still a vast place. There were definitely some masters.

He had tried looking into the skilled warriors from the clans of Hestia Continent, but had never heard of Jackie. That was why he was sure that Jackie was probably not that strong even if Jackie was from a major clan.

Chapter 3120
Furthermore, the clothes Jackie was wearing were about the same as those wandering warriors in the viewing area.

Normally, disciples of highgrade clans would place great importance on their standing. They would be very particular about how they dressed. There was no way they would casually wear the clothes of wandering warriors.

That was why David even suspected that Jackie might be a wandering warrior. If Jackie really was a wandering warrior from Hestia Continent, his earlier words would be even more hilarious.

David could tell that the others present were smart. The others had glints in their eyes. Jackie raised an eyebrow, feeling everyone’s gaze and understanding what they were thinking.

He let out a snort before he started to laugh. When they saw that Jackie was laughing, they were a little stunned. It seemed like there really was something wrong with Jackie’s head.

Could he not tell that everyone was laughing at him?

Why was he laughing with them? Was he laughing at himself?

David said to Jackie, “Who do you think you are? Do you think that we can’t see through you?”

At that moment, Trevor, who had been trapped in his own fear, suddenly said, “There’s no need to guess. This guy isn’t just a wandering warrior without any background, he’s even an alchemist. However, he’s quite a good alchemist. He even got a treasure at the alchemist tournament.”

The moment he said that everyone was stunned for a moment before they erupted into laughter. So this guy was not just devoid of any background, but was an alchemist.

He had actually dared to take part in the slaughter gambit and even challenged Chris like that. The most hilarious thing was how he had asked them if they thought he participated in the slaughter gambit because he wanted to die. It seemed like the answer was clear.

Of course, he was going to die. An alchemist actually abandoned his own specialty of refining pills to participate in an incredibly dangerous slaughter gambit. He even thought he could win!

Just thinking about it made them laugh. The eight other participants had mocking smiles on their faces. Some of them were even laughing in an incredibly exaggerated manner.

Chris said, “It looks like there’s something wrong with your head. No wonder you managed to say all of that. However, I don’t care about all of that. The fact that you offended me means you’ll have to endure my wrath!”

Jackie took a deep breath, composing himself. If Chris had not challenged him the moment he sat down, he would not have bothered anyone there. At that moment, he knew that the others would just treat him as a joke no matter what he said.

Since that was the case, there was no point in him wasting any effort. He merely looked at everyone coldly, “Remember what all of you are saying at this moment. Once we enter the isolated space, I’ll repeat your words.”

The moment he said that, it invited even more laughter.

One blackrobed guy coldly snorted, “Are you threatening us? You’re saying that you’ll appear in front of all of us after we enter the space and repeat what he said. Do you think that’s much of a threat?”

That person felt like there was definitely something wrong with Jackie. Otherwise, there was no way Jackie would say something so absurd and hilarious.

Jackie scoffed, shutting his eyes and resting instead. He ignored everyone else.

He had already said his piece after all. Seeing how Jackie was, the rest of them lost interest. The laughter and mockery stopped. However, Chris still felt furious. Even if Jackie was an idiot, he remembered every single thing Jackie had said back.

Jackie was already shutting his eyes and ignoring everything, if he dwelled on the matter, he would only look petty.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3121-3125

Chapter 3121
He could not do anything in the waiting area but seethe in anger. He felt more and more uncomfortable, feeling like he had to vent all his anger.

He suddenly saw Trevor acting incredibly sullen. Chris frowned as doubt flashed in his eyes.

They were both disciples from highgrade clans from White Marsh Continent. He knew Trevor a little and the extent of his skills. If Edward and himself were not there Trevor might actually have a chance of winning. However, with him there, and Edward as well, Trevor's chances were minuscule.

Did Trevor not look into who was participating before he registered?

He seemed to just barge in hotheadedly.

Did Trevor look down on him?

Thinking about that, Chris suddenly found a target for his frustrations, "Trevor, is something wrong with you? Are you just as crazy as this guy?"

Trevor frowned as a look of unhappiness flashed in his eyes. Even if he was not as strong as Chris, the two of them were still chosen disciples from eighthgrade clans. It felt bad being talked to like that.

Trevor looked up at Chris and replied, "I'm not mad, nor am I sick of living. Or maybe everyone here's actually already sick of living."

Chris' expression darkened. Even Trevor had talked back to him. That intensified Chris' anger even more.

"You're another one who refuses to listen to reason!"

Trevor felt like Chris' words were incredibly funny.

How could someone with good intentions speak so nastily?

Trevor had just answered truthfully, but Chris felt like Trevor had insulted him.

Trevor glanced at Jackie and resolved himself. Everyone here was an enemy anyway, there was no reason for him to be nice to Chris. He would try for victory with all his might. He would not die here. He still had a bright future!

Chris was also his enemy. He would do everything he could to defeat Chris. Even if Chris was skilled, if Trevor put in everything he had, Trevor might actually stand a chance. After motivating himself internally, he found his lost confidence again. He straightened his body subconsciously.

He looked up at Chris, “Since we’re already in the slaughter gambit, everyone here is an enemy. This isn’t a tea party. I don’t have to treat you with respect, so watch yourself!”

Chris was really infuriated at that point. He felt like his dignity was being challenged over and over again. He clenched his teeth and looked at Trevor coldly.

He decided that Trevor would be his next target after he killed Jackie. He would use the same method to torture Trevor to death. He would have Trevor know the consequences of challenging his dignity!

After Trevor said that, the waiting room was in an incredibly tense atmosphere again. All of them looked at their fellow participants with alertness.

The viewing area was bustling. No one bothered to lower their voices there. The ones closer to the waiting area had heard some of the conversations.

Chapter 3122
What was said spread like wildfire everywhere. In just a few minutes, the altercations that had just happened were known by everyone.

Everyone was curious and shocked by Jackie.

Most of them felt like Jackie was either incredibly brave or just completely crazy.

Otherwise, how could he challenge Chris like that?

If Jackie had Edward’s skills, what Jackie said would have been nothing to shout about. However, he was a wandering warrior without any backing and was even an alchemist.

Where did he gain the courage to have an altercation with Chris?

Was he really not worried about being tortured to death?

“This guy’s head must be filled with paste. I was feeling glad that there was finally a warrior from Hestia Continent taking part in the slaughter gambit, but now it looks like they were better off without him. He’s embarrassing the warriors of Hestia Continent!”

The burly man who had mocked Hestia Continent before laughed maniacally as he said, “This guy is hilarious. Does he know what he’s doing? Does he know what’s waiting for him? Are the alchemists of Hestia Continent all either complete cowards or complete idiots?”

This time, the warriors of Hestia Continent were once again trapped in a state of silent rage. Quite a few of them started to curse at Jackie for his actions.

Just like the others had said, it would have been better if he did not participate. Before Jackie joined, those insults being thrown at Hestia Continent would probably have stopped after a while.

Jackie's appearance had not only done nothing to improve the situation, it had worsened it as well. Everyone started to talk about how the warriors from Hestia Continent were trash and complete idiots.

At that moment, a few anxious warriors were standing at the southwestern side of the betting area. Evan clenched his teeth, full of worry. At that moment, he really wanted to rush into the waiting area and pull Trevor out. It was only then did he find out that Chris from the Purple Cloud Pavilion was participating.

The warriors from the other worlds might not know of Chris' skills, but Evan was in front of the White Marsh Continent as well. He knew how strong Chris was.

There were so many experts in the Purple Cloud Pavilion. The fact that he managed to place in the top three among their chosen disciples meant that his skills were unquestionable.

He was not deaf either. He had heard a lot of the discussions from the viewing area. He found out about the one called Edward. Even if he did not know much about Chaos Continent, he had heard of the Nimbus Alliance before.

The fact that those two were a part of this slaughter gambit meant that it was far more dangerous than he had thought. Even if he was confident in Trevor, it did not mean he blindly believed that Trevor would win.

The situation was already incredibly bad. The opponents were strong. Unless Trevor made a breakthrough within this time or something happened when they entered the isolated world, causing both Chris and Edward to die together, Trevor's chances of winning were far too low.

Evan's lips constantly twitched, and his face was full of worry. The disciples behind him were all incredibly miserable as well.

"Evan, what do you think we should do? Trevor really was too impulsive this time. He didn't even bother to look at who the other participants were before he registered with that crazy guy. Isn't it too late now?"

"I don't care if it's late or not, let's rush in and pull Trevor out! The moment the slaughter gambit starts, it really will be too late!"

Chapter 3123

“I’m not trying to curse Trevor. I really am worried! The slaughter gambit itself is already a dangerous thing. There are even strong opponents this time. It doesn’t really look good. If we just stand here and do nothing, it’s very possible that…”

He did not dare to continue what he was saying but everyone there knew what he wanted to say.

Evan sighed as he glared at the waiting area. Various thoughts surfaced in his mind at that moment. He really wanted to rush inside and drag Trevor out no matter what Trevor said. Trevor’s life was more important.

Yet, he immediately shook his head and discarded the thought.

The slaughter gambit was not a game. The moment they registered and entered the waiting area, leaving would violate the laws of the Whirling World. Lightning would strike on them, and Trevor would die anyway!

Evan gulped as a hopeless look flashed on his face.

At that moment, anger ignited in his heart. He suddenly turned around to look at Rudy.

Rudy had a slight frown on his face, and his expression showed some worry. However, he was not nearly as worried as Evan.

It was obvious that Rudy was still quite confident in Jackie’s skills. The more Rudy acted like that, the angrier Evan got.

“The two of you are completely crazy! If Trevor ends up being dragged down by the two of you and dies, I won’t let you off! I’ll definitely rip you to shreds! No! Even that won’t satisfy my hatred! I’ll torture you to the brink of death!”

Even the most venomous words could not relieve Evan of his anger. That was because he was already panicking. He really did not know what to do with the situation.

In truth, he knew very well that all he could do was wait. That was because there was nothing he could possibly do. There was no way for him to pull Trevor out, and no way for him to stop the slaughter gambit.

Rudy frowned as he looked at Evan in disgust. He was worried about Jackie as well, but he knew Jackie incredibly well. He felt like Jackie would be able to overcome the hurdle.

Hearing Evan’s words, his indifference completely vanished, “Those with true power never show it! Don‘t think that you’re the only one capable of saying all those disgusting things!”

After saying that, Rudy paused as a look of mockery flashed in his eyes.

He continued, “Don’t you feel like your anger is at its limits? Let me give you some advice. You should try to keep calm right now. Once you see everything later, you‘ll realize that you won’t be the one being ripped to shreds. If you don’t believe me, just look at what happened to Trevor!”

Evan clenched his teeth and looked at Rudy.

The tension between the two of them was already at the point where they could fight each other to the death. However, they held back, knowing that they could not fight here. They still hated the other party to bits!

Time ticked away, and Jackie started to get impatient. He finally opened his eyes and looked at the viewing area. He measured the time and found that half an hour had passed.

Where was the last person?

Chapter 3124
There were so many warriors in the viewing area, and an unending flow of warriors came over from afar as well.

Jackie trusted in the allure of the slaughter gambit. There would always be those that are not afraid to die, feeling like they would be able to be the final victor.

Not only would they get a bronze medal, but they would also get an amazing treasure and the admiration of the crowd!

Yet, they were struggling to find the last person to register. Jackie sighed helplessly, not knowing how long he would need to wait.

As Jackie said, there was finally some movement on that massive scroll. The last name appeared. It was another warrior from the Chaos Continent!

That person was called Marko. He looked incredibly average. He was dressed somewhat well. At least, his clothes were worth several times more than Jackies.

When the person entered, the nine participants all sighed in relief.

Someone was finally there. They did not need to waste any more time. After Marko entered the waiting area, the ten participants were finally all gathered. The caretaker, who had been hidden the whole time, arrived in front of the array. He wore a skeleton mask, as usual, not allowing anyone to see his actual looks.

He announced in a cold tone, “The fiftythird slaughter gambit shall begin! The odds will be announced immediately. The same rules apply. One person is only allowed to bet on one participant! The bets are limited to half a million to two million spirit crystals!”

After saying that, the caretaker pointed at the massive scroll.

A golden light shot out of the caretaker’s finger, piercing into the scroll. The scroll started to glow golden.

Behind everyone‘s name, the odds appeared. At that moment, even the participants stood up to look at the scroll with widened eyes.

Quite a few of them started to read out the odds, “Chris from White Marsh Continent, one to one point seven, Edward from Chaos Continent, one to two point nine, David from Chaos Continent, one to three point five…”

Jackie looked up at his odds and pursed his lips in shock. This time, his odds were even higher than the last. It was already at one to seven point five. It was obvious how low the caretakers regarded him.

If the odds were low, it would mean that the caretakers thought he had a higher chance of winning. The higher odds meant that the caretakers did not regard him highly.

Jackie let out a laugh before he looked away. To him, the odds did not mean that he was being underestimated. Instead, it was an amazing chance.

The slaughter gambit’s upper limit was so high. He could bet two million in one go. Two million was no longer a number that Jackie could not afford. It was not even a large sum for Rudy!

It was not a lot to bet, but once he won, it would be a small fortune. He would make over ten million in one go.

Ten million was already worth the entire fortune of a chosen disciple from a seventhgrade clan!

Even Jackie was incredibly excited!

At that moment, a thought flashed in Jackie’s mind. Danger equal opportunity!

“How are my odds so high?!” Trevor said unhappily.

Jackie looked at the scroll and was slightly shocked at Trevor’s odds. Trevor‘s odds were definitely high. They were only a bit lower than his at six points eight. It was obvious from that that the caretakers did not regard Trevor highly either.

Trevor's lips twitched, "One to six point eight… What kind of odds are these?! Do they think before setting the odds?"

Trevor felt like he had been underestimated and instilled!

Jackie's odds were seven point five, while his were six point eight. He was only zero point seven away from an alchemist. There was no way Trevor could accept that.

Chapter 3125
However, he did not dare to run over to question the caretakers, so he was resigned to mumbling his discontent to himself in the waiting area.

Hearing Trevor's complaints, Chris let out a cold laugh and said, "Do you think the caretakers assigned you those odds for no reason? Do you think the caretakers are somehow targeting you?"

Trevor let out a scoff, not saying anything. He really did think the caretakers were targeting him. Otherwise, the odds would not be so high, only zero point seven away from Jackie.

He did not even dare to look at Jackie at that moment, worried that Jackie would mock him. He felt incredibly insulted at that moment.

When Chris saw that Trevor was not saying anything, he treated it as a silent acknowledgment.

Chris continued, "Don't flatter yourself too much. Who do you think you are? Do you think the caretakers would bother to target you? These odds are a reflection of the truth they perceive. They think you can't win at all!"

Chris' words were not exaggerated at all.

When Trevor heard that, he got even angrier. He stared at Chris angrily, but Chris glared right back at him.

The two of them started to dislike each other more and more, and were practically about to jump at each other!

At that moment, Chris had shifted his full attention to Trevor, not even bothering with Jackie. Chris did not say anything to Jackie, but there were always those who could not keep their mouths shut.

David let out a laugh as he said to Jackie, " Jackie, it looks like your odds are the highest here. If you manage to win in the end, those who bet on you will get seven times the returns! It's amazing. As long as you bet enough, you'd be able to get over ten million in one go! I'm so jealous…"

He said he was jealous, but he was actually mocking Jackie.

Everyone there knew that the higher one odds were, the less highly the caretakers regarded him.

The reason for Jackie's high odds was that he was not highly regarded. There were a lot of warriors present, but most of the spectators knew very well that no matter how many warriors were around, there would not be that many of them who placed their bets on Jackie.

Anyone who bet on Jackie was probably just wasting their spirit crystals.

Jackie's lips twitched speechlessly. He could really not be bothered with these people, but if he said nothing, they would just get worse.

Jackie was then forced to say, "Can you just shut up? Is being snide with others give you a sense of accomplishment? The final results are not out yet, so why are you mocking others like this?!"

Hearing that, David raised his head, deliberately raising his voice, "You're right, there's no reason to mock anyone, but there's no need for a reason when it's you!"

"The fact that an alchemist without any background is entering this is already funny enough. You're even so confident in yourself. I just feel like you're a complete joke. Participating in the slaughter gambit with you completely drags down our standards!"

Jackie took a deep breath as he said with a cold smile, "Don't cry later…"

After saying that, Jackie shut his eyes again as he quietly waited for the time to pass.

After hearing what Jackie said, David was stunned.

What did Jackie mean by that?

Why did Jackie ask him not to cry? Why would he cry?

Could Jackie really think that Jackie would have him begging for mercy?

Thinking about it for a while, he was sure that Jackie really did think that way!

David's lips trembled slightly, suddenly feeling like choking Jackie to death. He finally understood how Chris felt!

The spectators were in an uproar again.

Jackie and David had not lowered their voices when they talked just now, so the warriors in the viewing area had all heard that.

They were shocked at Jackie’s blind confidence. At the same time, they were filled with anticipation as well. They wondered who would dare to bet on Jackie!

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3126 -3130

Chapter 3126
“Honestly, I think there’s something wrong with this guy’s head. He’s so crass with everyone! Does he think he’s the king of the world? Since when have wandering warriors been so arrogant? He’s even a wandering warrior that’s an alchemist. I wouldn’t have believed it if I wasn’t here myself!” remarked a warrior from White Marsh Continent.

His lips twitched as he stared at Jackie as though he was looking at an idiot.

Others chimed in, too.

“I knew something was wrong with this guy. He had been in front of Trevor just now, but he seemed even more confident than him. If I didn’t know any better, I would’ve thought he was an expert that made him so confident in himself!”

“It’s probably confidence derived from ignorance. Alchemists usually put all their focus on alchemy. They don’t know how strong warriors in the outside world are at all…”

“This guy probably has a high level of alchemy, so he’s now thinking he’ s not inferior whatsoever. That’s why he said all of that. He thinks everyone is beneath him!”

Some of them evaluated the situation with what they knew and could be considered unbiased. However, there were more of them who looked at Jackie through a different lens.

The first reason was that Jackie was from Hestia, and this was enough to make them look down on him.

On top of that, the things that Jackie had said showed that he was not willing to back down from any of the nine of them in the waiting area, which sparked fury.

“Can all of you stop evaluating Jackie so highly? You all say that he’s confident because his alchemy is strong, but that’s all nonsense! This guy is clearly just abnormal. What’s the point of judging him through regular logic?”

“If he was normal, how could he not know of the gap between him and regular warriors? The moment he said it all, he picked a fight with Chris. Who does he think he is?”

Everyone had conveniently forgotten that it was Chris who had picked a fight with Jackie, but everyone felt like Jackie retaliating meant that he started it. The double standard was real, and it was deeply rooted.

All of them felt like Jackie was just wrong to oppose him at all, because he was weak!

More people began to come up and mocked Jackie, saying that he was mentally deficient or just absurdly arrogant.

No one had anything good to say about him at all. Some of them had deliberately raised their voices, causing the ten in the waiting area to hear everything.

Jackie's lips twitched helplessly, having nothing to say to the warriors in the viewing area. He would have accomplished nothing, even if he tried to stand up to speak for himself against the crowd.

They would not listen to him anyway, so Jackie decided to ignore them. They could say whatever they wanted. Nonetheless, he remembered everything that was said. After the battle, he would do what he said, and repeat everything that was uttered.

"I wonder who'd even bet on Jackie? I respect anyone who'd dare to!"

"Who'd even bet on him, anyway? Isn't that just madness? Do they just have too many spirit crystals and need somewhere to spend them? The chances of him winning are practically zero."

"Unless the other nine die of mysterious causes, this kid can't possibly win. Even if he fought against the weakest among the nine, he won't have any chance to win at all, let alone against Chris!"

Chapter 3127
All of them did not just look down on warriors from the Hestia Continent, but also on alchemists in general as well. It was so natural to them, and those two labels stuck on Jackie.

Practically everyone felt like Jackie was a weakling that should not even be there.

Any of the warriors in the viewing area would be able to wipe the floor with him, so Jackie participating in the slaughter gambit was a joke.

"Alright, let's not focus on Jackie too much. There's nothing much to discuss. It's almost time, so we should hurry up and figure out who we're betting on. Should we bet on Chris from the White Marsh Continent, or Edward from Chaos Continent?"

"I've already decided long ago that my bet is on Edward. Even though Chris is in the top three of the Purple Cloud Pavilion, the two of them are from different continents. Edward's brother is the top disciple of the Nimbus Alliance, and there's no way he's that much worse…"

"It's worth noting that those rankings were determined half a year ago. To warriors that are constantly improving, those rankings are no longer valid references!"

“Do you like Edward that much? I feel like he’s not that skilled. Leaving the rankings aside, even when Edward participated in interclan fights in the past, his performance has never stood out that much…”

“Chris, on the other hand, has stood out a few times already in interdisciple competitions and has always remained in the top rankings. Everyone can see Chris’ results. For the warriors of White Marsh Continent, even wandering warriors have heard of him before.”

A warrior from Chaos Continent sneered, “Everyone from the White Marsh Continent has heard of Chris from the Purple Cloud Pavilion, but all the warriors from Chaos Continent have heard of Edward as well. You know, we’ve never heard of Chris before…”

“It’s impossible to compare the two continents like this. White Marsh Continent is far behind Chaos Continent in terms of overall power. The eighthgrade clans of Chaos Continent are quite a bit stronger than the eighthgrade clans of White Marsh Continent!”

“We were already displeased when you used the rankings for discussion, but now you’re bringing up interclan competitions. Edward didn‘t manage to stand out in them, but that’ s because there are so many masters from the Chaos Continent.”

“It’s nothing like White Marsh Continent; only a few of you are exceptional. If Edward was placed in White Marsh Continent, he would be even more famous than Chris!”

Warriors from the White Marsh Continent were provoked to have heard such words. Their initial calmness dissipated as the topics slowly got more serious in drawing comparisons between the two worlds.

A warrior from the White Marsh Continent immediately stood up from his seat and retorted, “Oh, please! Can you warriors from the Chaos Continent stop flattering yourselves so much? You talk about the massive difference in skill? Please, tell me how great it can be?!”

“You’re just a little stronger, but we’ll be able to catch up in just a little while. You speak as though the Chaos Continent has already leveled up to a secondgrade world. How could you not be embarrassed saying all this? What a joke!”

“That’s right. You even say that the Chaos Continent is filled with masters as if there are no masters in other worlds. If Edward didn’t perform well, it’s just because he’s not good enough. Even in White Marsh Continent, he won’t be able to stand out!”

The viewing area suddenly exploded into a flurry of debates. At that moment, it was no longer as simple as who to bet on, but protecting the honor of their respective worlds as well.

The White Marsh Continent and the Chaos Continent's warriors never had a good relationship in the first place. Thus, the viewing area erupted with noises, and the more hot tempered warriors were already quarreling with their counterparts.

Chapter 3128
If the laws of the Whirling World did not loom over them so intensely, the viewing area might have broken out into a brawl at that moment.

The warriors of the two worlds were in intense arguments, and only the warriors of Hestia looked on in amusement.

"You keep saying that Edward from Chaos Continent is stronger, so why are Edward's odds higher than Chris'?"

"Odds are just one thing, they're just the evaluations of the caretakers. The odds don't mean anything! Wasn't the fiftysecond slaughter gambit completely unexpected as well? Everyone thought that the winner would be Andrew, yet Craig came out as the winner instead!"

"That's right! The odds are nothing. In the fiftysecond slaughter gambit, Craig's odds were one point five points higher than Andrew's! In the end, Craig still won. Andrew was no match for him at all…"

"More importantly, Craig came from the Chaos Continent, and Andrew came from the White Marsh Continent. During that slaughter gambit, the warriors of White Marsh Continent bragged about Andrew a lot too. All of you seemed to feel like no one could beat him…"

"In the end, Craig from Chaos Continent won. The truth is the best proof. Your constant bickering is useless!"

After that person said that, the voices of the White Marsh Continent's warriors waned. After all, no matter what they said, the truth was still the more concrete proof. Nonetheless, a lot of warriors from White Marsh Continent did not want to give in.

"There's a victor every round. You can't just use the results of one round to prove your point. Have there not been warriors from the White Marsh Continent that won before?"

"There've been over fifty slaughter gambits, and the warriors of White Marsh Continent have won a lot of them! You're just trying to twist the truth!"

The arguments did not stop. In the end, the warriors from both worlds were practically digging out history to prove that their warriors were stronger.

Nothing fruitful was sown in the end, and none could convince the other party. There was only a short time left.

The betting area had opened, so all of the warriors who still had any spirit crystals with them stood up the moment the betting area opened, heading toward the place.

Due to the intense arguments, the warriors from the White Marsh Continent and the Chaos Continent did not care about who they had favored earlier. All of them betted their spirit crystals on warriors from their own continents, other than the warriors from Hestia.

Most of the warriors from the Chaos Continent placed their bets on Edward, while most of the warriors from the White Marsh Continent placed their bets on Chris.

The warriors from Hestia had more choices. Even though Jackie was from Hestia, those that voted for him were few to none. Even if his odds were the highest at seven point five, it remained the same.

As the warriors in the viewing area were heading to the betting area, the waiting area was strangely quiet. The arguments in the viewing area had been clearly heard by the warriors there.

At that moment, Chris and Edward had become the focal points. The two of them naturally did not regard each other highly, but they did not start quarreling right away due to their respective positions.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, curious as to why none of them seemed prepared to stand up.

Were the participants not allowed to place bets?

There was clearly no such rule, so why were they not going to the betting area to place their bets?

After waiting for a while, everyone remained seated. Jackie decided to just stand up as he walked to the betting area without turning around.

Chapter 3129
There was no such rule that prohibited the participants from betting, anyway, and Jackie would naturally not give up such a golden opportunity.

The other nine in the waiting area were stunned when they saw Jackie calmly getting up and walking toward the betting area.

Trevor frowned as he shouted at Jackie, “Are you really planning on placing a bet?”

Jackie could not be bothered to deal with him and merely strode toward the betting area.

Trevor reddened in anger at being ignored by Jackie again.

David frowned. “Just look at him. He must be going to place a bet. With how this guy is, he’s probably betting on himself. He feels like he’ll be able to beat the nine of us himself, kill us, and obtain the final victory before getting a seventime reward.”

Saying that, David could not help but let out a cold laugh as he looked at Jackie’s backwith a mocking gaze. He continued, “We can’t think of this guy in a normal manner. He’s a complete madman…”

The others exchanged looks as they saw looks of incredulity in each other’s eyes.

David lamented that there were all sorts of strange things in the world. He could not believe that he met someone as odd as Jackie in this slaughter gambit.

David genuinely thought that Jackie was crazy. If he was not, there was no way Jackie’s actions would make sense.

Chris’ lips twitched as he said in disdain, “What gave him the courage to think that he’ll be able to beat nine of us? Even among madmen, he’s the most arrogant!”

Chris felt like he should not have been so petty with Jackie, it was beneath him to argue with a madman. It was thanks to Jackie that his anger had risen when he had calmed down quite a bit. After all, to him, Jackie was no longer a normal person.

Even so, Chris did not plan on letting Jackie off. The things Jackie had said were still fresh in his mind, and he would not be able to forgive himself if he let Jackie off so easily.

Jackie walked into the crowd in the betting area with steady footsteps. At that moment, most of the warriors were queueing up, waiting to place their bets on the table.

Jackie then looked at the list on the table. On it was a recording of who had betted on who, and how much had been bet on each warrior alongside the odds.

There was not a single spirit crystal that had been bet on him. That meant that not a single person had chosen to bet on him. He let out a smile, not really caring about that.

Jackie’s arrival attracted quite a lot of attention. The warriors from the Hestia Continent looked at Jackie with a firm expression. Many of them stopped talking as they looked at Jackie like they wanted to lecture him and have him stop. However, they did not want others to know that they were from Hestia, so they swallowed their words.

The warriors of the White Marsh Continent and the Chaos Continent, on the other hand, looked at Jackie like they were looking at an idiot.

Earlier, everyone had heard all the discussions around Jackie. Other than Rudy, all of the warriors there felt like he was crazy. If Jackie was not crazy, he would have never said what he did.

Jackie did not care what the others thought of him, however.

After he arrived there, he looked around for Rudy.

Chapter 3130
Thankfully, Rudy had been waiting at a corner, knowing that Jackie would want to place some bets.

When he noticed Jackie looking around for him, he hurriedly stood on his toes and waved at him.

Rudy gushed, “Other than during the death match, your odds are always so high!”

Jackie’s lips twitched in exasperation and raised three fingers as he said, “I’ve only taken part three times.”

Rudy let out a laugh before he said earnestly, “This time, your odds are at seven point five. The upper limit for the bets is two million. I have a small fortune at the moment, so I’ll bet two million on you later.”

Saying that, Rudy could not help but look up with a cloudy expression. “Two million spirit crystals… I would never have dared to think about betting all of that in one go before this. It’s all so easy for me now, two million isn’t even a number that I won’t bear to part with…”

“I’m genuinely glad I followed you in Phoenix Valley back then!”

Compared to the past, Rudy was a different man. He had experienced so much and was still alive. He had even accumulated so many spirit crystals.

Before this, his life had not been that great. He could not spend so many spirit crystals at all.

His greatest ambition in life had just been to be a seventhgrade alchemist, and being able to save up three million spirit crystals was already a lofty dream of his. Yet, he had four to five million at that moment. If this continued, he would be able to get more than ten million, what more five million.

Rudy became excited at the thought, so much so that his smile threatened to split his face in half. However, after a short period of excitement, a sliver of worry flashed in Rudy’s heart.

He turned around and looked at Jackie seriously.

“You know this… I’m very confident in your abilities. However, I still feel like I should remind you. You need to be very careful once you enter the isolated space…”

“Chris isn’t someone who’s easily dealt with… He’s very strong and hails from the Purple Cloud Pavilion of White Marsh Continent. The Purple Cloud Pavilion is an eighth grade clan. Among the chosen disciples there, he’s ranked in third place…”

“I think that he’s incredibly skilled. I’m not saying you can’t do it, but you have to be careful against an opponent who’s that strong. You can’t make any mistakes!”

Jackie nodded, knowing that Rudy’s words were out of concern for him.

Once the slaughter gambit started, the 10 of them would be sent into an isolated space that was out of the Whirling World where a bloodbath would ensue as they duked it out. Only one of them would be able to survive, so the intensity was easy to see.

Rudy frowned and continued, “I thought about it for a while. After all of you are sent to the isolated space, some of them may team up. It’ll be a chaotic battle…”

“You’re very strong fighting individually, but you might not have an advantage in this scenario. Your opponents aren’t weak, either.”

Rudy’s worries made sense. Jackie smiled as he nodded earnestly.

After being sent to the isolated space, the 10 of them would be sent to 10 different spots, and not confined to one position.

The slaughter would not start immediately. The first thing they had to do was find the other participants. Some of them might just make allies out of one another for only a brief moment, serving their own purposes.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3131 - 3140

Chapter 3131
Once they have teamed up, they would no doubt eliminate other threats before turning against each other. Such a process was akin to raising vicious bugs that would attack the kings first to get even more resources.

Jackie patted Rudy's shoulder. "I'll keep your advice in mind."

With that, Jackie brought Rudy along to place their bets, and they both took out two million without any hesitation, betting it all on Jackie.

This attracted everyone's attention, and it sparked another wave of unsavory conversations from busybodies.

"I'm not surprised at what this guy is doing at all. It'd be more surprising if he bet on anyone else. He placed two million in one go, so it looks like he's very confident!"

"He took out two million so casually. It looks like he has a bit of a fortune."

"Have you forgotten that he's an alchemist? Could alchemists be less wealthy than us? Alas, this guy has gone nuts, and he decided to go to his death instead of properly focusing on his alchemy."

"Who knows what's on his mind? Does he really think he's that good, or does he just want to die?"

Jackie merely shut them out.

While his former self would try to argue with them, the current Jackie knew that no matter what he said, it would just be a waste of time. The truth would prevail, and he did not need to say anything to defend himself.

After placing his bet, Jackie returned to the waiting area and waited for the slaughter gambit to start.

When they saw that Jackie had returned, the nine warriors seemed to be looking at some rare animal. Jackie was, in truth, rather curious as to why they were not participating in the bet.

Was there an unwritten rule about it?

Were they not confident in themselves?

Jackie wisely chose not to say anything. He merely returned to his spot and shut his eyes to rest once again.

David's lips twitched when he saw Jackie closing his eyes. "You never fail to surprise me. I'm curious, how much did you bet on yourself? Surely you didn't bet two million, did you?"

Jackie sighed, not wanting to bother with David at all.

He ignored David and continued to rest, but David seemed adamant this time. He insisted on making things clear.

"Are you not answering because you're feeling guilty?" sneered David. "There's nothing to be guilty about. In the end, you'll die anyway. You only have this little bit of peace left, so what's wrong with answering my question?"

Jackie continued to ignore him, so David narrowed his eyes and said coldly, "I can't attack you if you don't answer, but it doesn't mean I can't do anything to you. I can continue pestering you until you answer me!"

Jackie opened his eyes exasperatedly as David sat down right in front of him with an expression of amusement. He sighed and lamented to himself how David was like an annoying fly.

David was so disgusting that Jackie could not remain calm. He knew that David would do what he said. If Jackie said nothing, he would continue annoying him!

For some peace and quiet, Jackie eventually answered, "I bet two million. Why are you so curious? Are you so sure I'll lose?"

Chapter 3132
David cackled upon hearing Jackie's response, and the thought that Jackie was an idiot solidified in his mind.

"Do I need to confirm that? Of course you'll lose, it's the unavoidable truth. It'll be a horrible death, too. Chris won't let you off. Even if he doesn't kill anyone else, he'll definitely kill you!"

Chris laughed and chimed in with a sinister tone, his expression cold, "He's right. After entering the isolated space, you'll be a sheep in a wolf's den. I'll look for you immediately, and once I do, you're done for…"

"You'll soon realize the severity of offending me. I'll have you experience the cruelest punishment in the world. I'll only let you die after I've tortured you enough."

Jackie's lips twitched, really not wanting to bother with all of them. He had heard so much nonsense, and not a single one of them was saying anything worth listening to.

He took a deep breath before he looked at Chris coldly. "These are all just empty words when nothing's done, so you should stop talking so much. Save some strength to think about your life!"

The moment he said that, the nine other participants were stunned.

What was that guy saying?

Did he even know himself?

He basically told Chris to think for himself!

Jackie was speaking as if he was the top chosen disciple from a ninthgrade clan and the rest of them were just weaklings!

David laughed after he heard that, looking at Jackie speechlessly. Jackie was incredibly calm facing all of them.

At that moment, the warriors who went to place their bets were already returning to the viewing area. There was not much time left until the start of the slaughter gambit.

Jackie raised his voice at that moment. "I'll say the same thing. Remember everything you've said right now. When we enter the isolated space, I'll repeat everything to all of you."

"Madman! You're crazy! I truly regret taking part in the slaughter gambit with you right now! Why was I trying to go against a madman?!" Trevor said loudly.

He was filled with regret at that moment. He had barely managed to motivate himself earlier, but when he saw Jackie's actions, all he had left, apart from desperation, was regret.

Jackie was insane.

Why was he so fixated on someone like that?

Chris rolled his eyes in exasperation, not knowing what to say at that moment. Even David shut his mouth, feeling like it was pointless to argue.

There was only one way to make this guy see the truth, and that was to kill him after entering the isolated space.

They were about to enter the space anyway. It was a natural slaughterhouse. They could do what they wanted without any fear. If he had the chance, he would teach the guy a lesson himself!

The masked caretaker slowly walked to the front of the viewing area again. At that moment, the 10 of them in the waiting area stood up as well.

The caretaker announced, “The slaughter gambit will officially begin! All participants, please step on the transfer array. You’ll be sent to the isolated space. In that space, you can kill each other without regard for the rules…”

“Only one person will return alive! The person who returns won’t just get the bronze medal, but the entry token for the inner city as well. They will also get a valuable treasure!”

At that moment, the 10 participants were already on the transfer array.

The array glowed in a radiant and colorful light. Vibrant spirit crystals were placed on the ports around the array, and each crystal was an incredibly rare and valuable crystal.

All 10 were visibly serious. Even Chris, who was incredibly confident in himself, seemed anxious. After all, only one of them would exit the isolated space alive.

Chapter 3133
It would be an intense bloodbath. No one knew what would happen in the process, hence why none of them could keep their internal composure. Even Jackie was not as calm as he looked.

At that moment, he thought of what Rudy said to him. If it was oneonone combat, he would not be afraid at all. However, he would need to face more than one opponent if he stumbled upon any ‘alliances’ during the gambit.

Knowing that he would face difficulty in facing off against several prodigies at one go, Jackie knew he would have to make proper plans upon entering. He could not let himself get into any situations like that.

Time slowly ticked away. All of the warriors in the viewing area looked at them expectantly. There were various emotions written on their faces, putting some pressure on the 10 participants.

With the sound of the mechanisms activating, the radiant glow on the transfer array brightened and enveloped everyone. When they lost the feeling of solid ground beneath their feet, the transfer officially started.

Space rapidly distorted as the 10 of them were sent somewhere far away. After 15 minutes, Jackie suddenly felt a flash in his eyes. He seemed to be flung away.

When he opened his eyes again, he was shocked to see that he was in the air with nothing beneath him, causing him to panic for a moment. He was freefalling!

Thankfully, Jackie reacted quickly enough. As he was 9 meters away from the ground, he activated his true energy and moved himself, landing firmly on the ground.

He noticed that he was in a desolate wasteland. His feet were on the driedup ground. There was an intense sun above him, and heat waves struck his body.

As a warrior, this did not affect Jackie that much, but it was enough to disconcert him. He sighed as he looked around himself, observing his surroundings. In the desolate wasteland, he saw nothing but himself. He could not even see any patches of grass.

At that moment, Jackie could not help but wonder if he was still in the Whirling World or if he had been sent outside of it.

Those thoughts did not dwell in his mind for too long. After simply getting his bearings, he started to head toward the west, all while making mental preparations.

Should he attack anyone he crossed paths with, or should he try to form temporary alliances, only fighting that person after they dealt with the stronger opponents?

At that moment, the warriors in the viewing area all had their eyes widened as they stared at the massive scroll in the air. The names on the scroll had disappeared, turning into 10 images that were shown to everyone. Everything the participants did would be shown on the scroll.

Rudy still did not have the chance to enter the viewing area, so he was forced to look in from the outside as he stood on his toes.

Thankfully, Jackie's image was in the lower right corner, and he could see it. When he saw that Jackie was in a desolate wasteland, Rudy could not help but frown in worry.

The other participants were either sent deep into a forest or some mountainous areas. At the very least, they had some cover, while Jackie was sent to the most unfortunate position. He was sent to an endless wasteland without any cover in sight.

Jackie was completely exposed in the wasteland, visible even from a long distance. This would make him an easy target.

Rudy was praying to himself at that moment, hoping that no one would find him. 'Let the others fight each other first…'

Once most of them had died off, Jackie could appear to pick up what was left. It would save time and effort!

Chapter 3134

It was a shoal filled with pebbles, but Blade slowly made his way across them all. With every step he took, he looked around to observe his surroundings. Even a slight breeze was enough to make him stop in his tracks.

As an assassin, his perception was far sharper than regular warriors, though this did not once let him lower his guard. After all, only one person would walk out alive from this isolated space. He was confident in his skills but not blindly confident.

If he faced someone as strong as Chris, he would not be able to defeat him in single combat. Thus, Blade planned on obtaining victory through strategy. Before entering the isolated space, he already had the start of a plan.

If everything went on smoothly, he would be able to emerge victorious. He would get the bronze medal and obtain a valuable treasure while Chris, Edward, and everyone else would die under his sword. All of the bragging they did would become a medal on his body.

Blade could not help but let out a smile at the thought. There was a reason he was so careful. Before he could carry out his plans, he needed to make sure he was safe.

He desperately prayed that he would not meet Chris or Edward. If he met either of them, everything would be for naught. He might die on the spot!

After all, facing someone as strong as them, he would not even get the chance to speak normally.

He took a deep breath and continued walking forward. After he got out of that shoal, which lacked places to hide, the first thing he needed to do was find a good hiding spot to conceal himself. He could not let anyone else find him!

Blade wanted to conceal himself first. Once everyone else killed each other, he would reveal himself. However, thinking about that, he would not be the only one with that thought in mind.

If everyone thought the same way and concealed themselves, would the slaughter gambit not go on forever, turning into a game of cat-and-mouse?

At that moment, a cold voice rang out, “I know what you’re thinking. “

Blade shuddered in fright. Even his breathing stopped. He looked toward the source of the noise and saw Chris walking toward him from a large tree.

He seemed composed as if he was walking in his backyard. Compared to how Blade was trembling, Chris was the picture of calmness.

A hopeless look flashed in Blade's eyes. He cursed himself for being so unlucky. He did not even make it that far before meeting the strongest of the 10!

Blade started to panic as his lips trembled. "What are you trying to do?"

The moment he asked that, Balde cursed himself for being stupid.

What else could Chris do in such a time and place?

Since the two of them had met, it would probably be a fight to the death. Unless their skills were at an equal level, only one person would leave this shoal.

Chris did not seem to have any intention of attacking immediately, however. He had a smile on his face, looking like a cat toying with a mouse.

He ignored Blade's question as he continued, "Weren't you thinking of hiding yourself and watching everyone kill each other? You're thinking you' ll stand a greater chance of winning if you jump out at the last moment, right?"

Chapter 3135
The moment that was said, Blade's lips twitched as he looked to the side.

Chris had accurately guessed what was on his mind, that was indeed what he had planned. Chris immediately knew that he was right when he saw how Blade reacted.

He laughed coldly and said, "Do you think everyone else is an idiot? If you have that thought, don't you think the others will think the same, too? Did you think I wouldn't be able to think of it since you did?"

"To stop something like that from happening, I left my aura on every one of you, allowing me to accurately determine everyone's position. Even if you grow wings, you won't be able to escape!"

The moment that was said, Blade was stunned.

Chris had left a tracker on him? Why did he not feel anything at all?

He started to pant roughly, using his perception to check his body. When his senses swept his body, he was shocked to realize that it was not only Chris who had left a mark on him.

There were other marks as well. It meant that his position was exposed to all of those people.

After realizing that, Blade's face paled. He only had one thought in mind at that moment, he thought too highly of himself.

There were a total of four marks on his body. After looking at it, he could tell that they were from Chris, Edward, Daniel, and Luther Moon.

Chris coldly laughed and said, “With your meager skills, you wouldn’t have realized that anyone left a mark on you at all. Other than the warriors with strong souls or those who are smarter, your positions are all obvious to me!”

After Blade heard that, his face turned from white to red.

He was furious at himself for being too cocky. He had thought that things would be easier than they were. He was so sure everything was according to plan!

He never expected that others had thought of his plans as well and had made the necessary countermeasures.

It was a joke that he never expected this, and he had allowed others to plant trackers on him without him realizing it at all!

Chris was right. Warriors with strong souls would have been able to feel it the moment a tracker was placed on their bodies. His soul was not that strong, so he was not able to feel what was done at all. Even if his soul was not strong enough, if he had been smart enough to foresee what others were planning, he would have been able to pay more attention before others placed any marks on him.

In truth, it was not difficult to find any marks like that.

As long as he had used his senses to scan his body, he would have noticed and been able to get rid of them. It would only take a bit of time.

Blade let out a wry smile. He would have slapped himself if he was not facing Chris at that moment.

Chris let out a cold laugh. “Another one who thinks too much of themselves. Do you truly think that others wouldn’t have thought of your simple plan? You thought you could just hide in the dark and watch the others kill each other before you jump out and the right time to kill the rest, winning it all…”

“I can’t help but say that it’s both hilarious and stupid. You’re not just lacking in skill but intelligence as well. You came into this slaughter gambit just to die,” Chris snorted lightly at Blade’s lack of intelligence.

He was merely a little stronger than Jackie. When Chris thought of Jackie , a cold smile crept on his face.

Thankfully, Jackie was not stronger than Blade. He could still feel the mark he had left on Jackie’s body, proving that he had not sensed it.

Chapter 3136
After dealing with this person, he would immediately head to where Jackie was and get rid of Jackie himself.

With that in mind, Chris walked forward and said, “You can either do it yourself, or I’ll help you. I don‘t have much time, so hurry up and make your choice. Don’t waste my time.”

Blade widened his eyes as a complicated look appeared on his face. He was filled with anger, hatred, and reluctance. When Chris said all of that, the disdain on his face was obvious.

In Chris‘ eyes, he was just an ant that could be killed off at any moment. It felt horrible being in that position.

Blade was an assassin, and he was far behind Chris in status. The assassin clan he was a part of was a force that hid in the darkness of White March Continent. They were not a clan that could operate in the light. Hence, when he registered himself, he merely registered himself as a wandering warrior.

Facing Chris, who was from a high-grade clan, he felt like he was lacking in comparison. However, it did not mean that he would allow his honor to be insulted by Chris like that nor would he kill himself so easily.

Blade‘s lips twitched as anger and hatred burned in his eyes.

He clenched his teeth as he shouted at Chris, “I‘ll admit that my skills are no match for yours, but don’t think that you‘ll be able to deal with me so effortlessly if I’m putting my life on the line. Even if I die, I’ll make you pay the price!”

After he said that, Blade bit the tip of his tongue, and his power erupted. He started to burn through his essence as his skin glowed blood red. He looked like air had been injected into him. Even his skin was slowly expanding, looking like it could explode at any moment.

Burning his blood essence was equal to burning his own life. He would improve his skills temporarily. It was something that would only be done when he was determined to put his life on the line. It meant that he wanted to die together with Chris!

Even if he won, he would lose a lot of his life because he had already burned his blood essence. Even if he survived, he would not live long!

Chris frowned slowly, coldly snorting as he said in disdain, “Do you think you‘ll be able to face me just by burning your blood essence? You think too highly of yourself. You’re just an ant in front of me regardless. I can kill you at any moment!”

“However, since you’ve done it, I’ll play around with you for a bit. I’ll let you know how big the difference is between us!”

As he said that, Chris took out a silver blade from his storage ring. The blade had a faint glow to it. Under the sunlight, it reflected a chilling glow.

Chris laughed before he said, “This sword is called the Frozen Star Sword. It’s something my grandfather personally crafted and gave me. In all these years, it’s gone through thick and thin with me, and I‘ve never lost! The Frozen Star Sword has slain countless masters. You should be grateful you‘re going to be killed by it!”

Those words infuriated Blade once again.

Chris actually said that he should be grateful. Blade was so furious his hands trembled. He wanted nothing more than to explode right now and drag Chris down with him!

The situation was completely shown on the massive scroll. The warriors at the viewing area all had their eyes widened as they looked at it with excitement.

It was the fifty-third slaughter gambit. They did not expect the first battle to involve the favorite, Chris!

Chapter 3137
All of the warriors in the viewing area started their discussions in excitement.

“I thought that the first thing Chris would do after entering the isolated space would be to look for Jackie!”

“He probably thinks that Jackie won’t be able to escape him. Killing off any opponents will bring him a step closer to victory anyway! I have to say, these warriors from high grade clans are all so careful. They actually left a mark on everyone so they can find their targets!”

After that person said that, he drew looks from everyone.

Someone laughed and said, “I guess it’s your first time watching slaughter gambits. It’s not the first time anyone’s left marks on their opponents…”

“It’s just that they never outright said it. Anyone who’s not a complete idiot would be able to tell after seeing what they did!”

“Oh, so that‘s what’s been happening! Any participants who are prepared would have already seen the earlier participants having marks left on them. They would definitely have immediately cleansed the marks on their bodies. Then wouldn’t it be a waste of effort?”

“I guess you’re not understanding something here. It‘s not that simple to remove a mark. You’d need to use up a certain amount of time. While you’re cleansing the mark, the person who left the mark behind will feel it Before the mark is cleansed, they’ll hurry over and kill that person!”

After those explanations, the spectators that had seen more than one slaughter gambit could not stop themselves from clicking their tongues.

They wondered what would happen if they were the ones in the slaughter gambit.

They thought about it for a long time, thinking of various possible scenarios. There was only one conclusion they landed at. They would all die, without a single doubt!

Facing disciples from high-grade clans, they would not be able to fight back. Even if they had some plots in their minds, they would immediately be eliminated due to the marks left on their bodies!

At that moment, someone said loudly, “I finally understand now. Those stronger warriors will get rid of the weaker ones first. They’ll leave the ones that are almost at their level behind to fight to the death at the last moment. It’ll spare them a lot of trouble! They’re all intelligent people!”

“Of course they are. If they only had the skills and not the brains, they would not have climbed to such high positions!”

Even though Rudy was outside of the area, he could still hear their discussions. Hearing what was said, his worry intensified.

He wondered if Jackie noticed it!

Initially, he had hoped that Jackie would hide back at the start and only reveal himself after they had killed one another off. Now that he thought about it, that plan was a joke.

Jackie definitely had marks left on him, not just one at that. That was because Jackie was the weakest in everyone’s eyes!

He was a fish that they could cut up at any moment.

Thinking about that, Rudy’s lips twitched, “You have to hold on!”

In truth, Rudy did not know how Jackie should hold on at all. He did not know if Jackie should try to remain hidden or hope that those who came to kill him did not form any teams.

Various thoughts surfaced in Rudy’s head. Even if he thought about it for a long time, there was nothing he could do other than wait!

Chapter 3138
At that moment, an anxious voice could be heard, “Trevor’s skills should be above average among the ten of them. As long as he uses some strategies, he should be able to win!”

Rudy turned to look and saw that Evan was looking at the scroll with hopeful eyes. His eyes were fixed on Trevor’s image.

At that moment, Trevor was in a forest. He was surrounded by a cover to conceal himself, so there were naturally no problems. Yet, Chris had said before that he had left marks on a lot of them.

No matter how much coverage he had, even if he hid deep in the mountains, he could still be easily found.

When Evan saw that Trevor had been sent to a forest, he was quite thankful. Yet, after hearing Chris’ words, those thoughts disappeared. However, he could not stop himself from cheering for Trevor.

As he cheered, he prayed in his heart that Trevor would be able to win the slaughter gambit

He did not care what they would get after the victory, nor did he care how others would look at Trevor with admiration and envy. He merely hoped that Trevor would be able to walk out of this alive!

Rudy lightly snorted in disdain, “Did you not hear them say that the stronger warriors will clear off the weaker warriors first? Your ideas won’t be able to last that much longer. Trevor will die very soon!”

“What did you say?! You’d better shut up!” Rudy’s words managed to anger Evan.

He looked like a cat that just had its tail stepped on. He turned around and glared at Rudy viciously.

He looked like he wanted to rip Rudy apart while he shouted, “You brat. Don’t think that I won’t be able to do anything to you!”

Rudy shrugged nonchalantly.

Of course, they could not do anything to him at that moment. If they did, they would break the laws of the middle city and get struck by lightning.

Evan was filled with anger at that moment. He was quickly losing his rationality at that moment. He was closer to Trevor than family. The two of them supported each other throughout their journey.

He treated Trevor as his own brother. With the situation at that moment, anyone who mentioned that Trevor would die would invite his wrath.

Evan took a deep breath before he walked over to Rudy, “After Jackie dies, you won‘t die immediately. Your life will belong to the Pentagram Clan. We’ll make sure you stay alive and have you begging for mercy every day until you pay back for your crimes!”

Rudy raised an eyebrow, already numb to these threats. No matter what Evan said, it would not affect Rudy’s mental state at all.

Evan let out a cold smile, “Do you think that you can just stay in the middle city, and I won’t be able to do anything to you? You’re being too naive…”

“You can only stay here for two months. After two months, you’ll be kicked out even if you refuse to leave. That’ll be the end of you!”

Rudy raised an eyebrow. He did not think that he would stay in the middle city for that long. Yet, Evan seemed to think that he would try to hide here where the laws would protect him just to stay alive.

Chapter 3139
However, Rudy had Jackie’s protection, so he did not care about their threats at all.

He felt like even an additional five days in the middle city might be too long. After all, they still needed to head to other cities. However, Rudy was a bit curious about what Evan said.

To Rudy, the various laws of the Whirling World were like an ancient manual that had never been read before. In truth, the Whirling World was full of mysteries to most of the warriors of Hestia Continent. Before this, they knew nothing. If it were not for the sudden opening of the Whirling World, they would not have known about the Whirling World at all.

The Whirling World was not a secret to the warriors from the other two continents. They knew a lot more about the Whirling World than the warriors of Hestia Continent.

Before participating in the death match, Jackie had talked to him about it before. If they wanted to know more about the Whirling World, they would have to learn about it from the warriors from the other continents. It would be easier than learning from the warriors from Hestia Continent. Even if the warriors from Hestia Continent knew the secrets of the Whirling World, they would not reveal it to Jackie and Rudy easily.

Rudy felt like it was a good chance to look into the secrets of the Whirling World.

Rudy let out a smile and said, “Are you so certain that I can only stay in the middle city for two months? There’s no such rule that says warriors will be chased out after staying here for two months!”

When Evan heard that, he had a mocking look on his face, “You really are an ignorant fool. The middle city is a sixth-level city. It will only be open for one year…”

“After the year is over, the middle city will be shut. No one can stay here. Even while it’s still open, it will clear out anyone without enough points every two months. With your meager skills, there’s no way you can gain any points. You’ll definitely be kicked out!”

After saying that, Evan stared into Rudy’s eyes, trying to find a hint of terror. To his disappointment, Rudy only showed confusion and shock. He was not scared at all.

Evan could not help but frown, feeling like Rudy was just like Jackie. There was something wrong with their heads. They were different from ordinary people!

At that moment, Rudy was in no mood to care about what Evan was thinking.

Earlier, Evan’s words had some information to them. He wanted to figure out what he could from all of that.

He would then be able to report it to Jackie after he got out.

After following and being under Jackie’s protection for so long, he had done nothing for Jackie. He was reluctant to let that continue. He did not want to be useless. Even if it’s just providing Jackie with some information, it was still better than nothing.

At that moment, there was an exclamation from the crowd.

Rudy’s attention was caught. He hurriedly looked up at the massive scroll in the air. He noticed that Jackie’s image was no longer just Jackie alone.

A young man in gray robes was standing in front of him. The two of them had a tense atmosphere between them!

Rudy could remember his name and where he was from. That person was Luther from the Dual Sovereign Pavilion of Chaos Continent. He was the last participant who joined the fifty-third slaughter gambit.

Chapter 3140
The crowd was abnormally hyped, “Oh my gosh! I thought that the first person to find Jackie would be Chris, who hates Jackie to the core. I can’t believe it’s Luther. Luther was clearly far away from Jackie, so how did he find Jackie so quickly? Did he leave a mark on Jackie?”

“Do you really need to question that? Of course, he did. I can‘t believe his target is Jackie! The two of them did not have any feud when they were in the waiting area.”

“Even if nothing happened between them, Jackie’s still an opponent. Don’t forget, nine people will die in this slaughter gambit. One dead person means one less opponent. They left their marks in order to clear out all the weaker warriors before they fought the ones at their level!”

In the isolated space, Luther looked at Jackie with a smile. He did not look like he was looking at an enemy, but an old friend.

Jackie raised an eyebrow. He was a little surprised that Luther was there.

Luther laughed and said, “Are you wondering how I found you so quickly? It’s nothing strange. I just left a mark on your body. You were the closest to where I was, so I came to deal with you first!”

Jackie smiled, not saying anything.

Luther expected that Jackie would react that way.

“You’re just like I thought, a pure madman. I won’t bother trying to argue with you, but let me tell you something. To stop the others from coming, you should clear the other marks on you for now.”

Jackie had already noticed those marks since his soul was incredibly strong. Yet, he did not bother clearing them immediately.

He wanted the others to find him quickly. He did not want to just stay idle. Those marks gave the others a chance to find him, which was a chance for him to find them as well.

However, since someone was already there, he would naturally need to clear those marks in case a whole group appeared. It would be harder for him to go against multiple opponents.

Jackie nodded at Luther. His hands constantly moved as he formed seal after seal, clearing the marks in front of him.

Luther raised an eyebrow, surprised that Jackie listened to him.

With how Jackie was, Luther would not have been surprised if Jackie had done anything other than listening. After all, Jackie was a complete madman.

Yet, Jackie had actually listened to him so obediently, clearing the marks in front of him. Luther frowned as various thoughts surfaced in his mind.

However, he quickly discarded those thoughts. It was pointless to try to understand a madman like that. He should just take everything in his stride!

While Jackie was clearing the marks left by the others, Chris was already fighting.

As an assassin, Blade’s speed and movement were top-notch.

At that moment, he had ignited his blood essence, using up his life force. His skills had improved by several times. His teeth were clenched as he glared right at Chris. He had discarded his life. He only had one thought in mind. Even if he died, he would drag Chris down with him. Even if he couldn’t he would heavily injure Chris and make Chris pay the price!

He pulled out his weapon. With a chakram in hand, he shot forward at an amazing speed. He turned into an afterimage as he rushed at Chris.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3141-3150

Chapter 3141
Chris' lips curled up into a smile of disdain.

The sword in his hand glowed in shimmering light. His left hand was forming seals that fused in the air. The seals turned into rays of silver light that fell on the Frozen Star Sword.

The spectators in the viewing area immediately recognized the power that was falling into the Frozen Star Sword. It was the power of starlight!

Someone asked loudly, "Does anyone know what level Chris' technique is?"

A lot of them shook their heads, including those from the same clan as Chris. It was obvious they did not know the name or rank of Chris' technique!

"Even the warriors from the Purple Cloud Pavilion don't know what technique Chris is using. They don't know what rank it is either… Is he that secretive?"

After someone asked, a warrior from the Purple Cloud Pavilion said loudly, "This has always been something that should be a personal secret. What's the point of having it known to everyone? Isn't it normal for us to not know?"

"No matter what, Chris' technique must be at a very high level. It might even be an ultimate god rank technique!"

The moment he said that it caused a ruckus. Quite a few warriors loudly rebuked, "An ultimate god rank technique? How could you even say that? Do you know what an ultimate god rank technique is?"

"Even warriors of the divine solidifying realm need a certain amount of talent to train in ultimate god rank techniques! No matter how strong Chris is, is he stronger than warriors of the divine solidifying realm? At most, it's an upper earth rank technique."

The warriors from the Purple Cloud Pavilion did not agree.

They felt like even if ultimate god rank techniques are atrociously hard to learn and that divine solidifying realm warriors still needed a certain amount of talent to learn, it did not stop miracles from happening.

In the eyes of the disciples from the Purple Cloud Pavilion, Chris could create miracles. More precisely, he was a miracle himself!

At that moment, Chris was already in a battle with Blade.

Blade’s speed was incredibly quick. In just a flash, he sent out three slashes at Chris.

Chris sent out his blade. Everyone heard a crack as those three slashes were shattered in an instant. They were not able to get close to Chris at all.

As those two techniques clashed, Chris took a few steps back. It was not because of the shockwaves, but because he wanted to distance himself from Blade.

Earlier, Chris had seen all the rage and reluctance on Blade’s face. The more Blade acted like that, the more Chris wanted to toy with him. He would slowly torture Blade.

After the three slashes were easily blocked by Chris, Blade’s face darkened!

Those slashes were not his full strength, but they were still at least sixty percent of his power. He had used those attacks to test Chris out, but he never expected Chris to break them so easily.

Blade sighed as he tried to encourage himself. It was possible that Chris merely looked relaxed on the surface. He might have actually used most of his power.

Chris had always been obsessed with how he looked. No matter how much power he was using, he would definitely act like he was incredibly relaxed. That was the only way Chris could damage Blade’s confidence even more!

Chapter 3142
Quite a few people would agree with that.

Burning his blood essence meant that he was using his life in exchange for power. He would be able to be several times stronger than usual.

Chris was the third-ranked Purple Cloud Pavilion chosen disciple. He should be the strongest among the ten of them. Even so, there was no way he was not being pushed back by Blade after Blade ignited his blood essence.

A lot of them agreed with that view, but there were some who did not, especially the disciples of the Purple Cloud Pavilion. When they heard all of that, they were incredibly amused.

One of the inner disciples of Purple Cloud Pavilion said, “Blade isn’t a wandering warrior. He’s an assassin. Assassins like him are like street rats in White Marsh Continent. He registered himself as a wandering warrior just because he was worried that his true identity would be looked down on!”

“However, it’s not like we’re looking down on them for no reason. Assassins don’t care about honor. They attack quickly and run away even quicker. They try to deal with their opponents before their opponents can notice them. Their actual skills are not that strong."

"Face-to-face combat is their weakness! Fakes like Blade wouldn't even have the right to stand next to Chris if he wasn't a part of the slaughter gambit. Even after igniting all the blood essence in his body, he would still not be able to harm Chris at all. Don't worry, Blade will die in the end no matter what!"

"That's right! Who do you all think Blade is? He's just a little stronger than Jackie. As an assassin that lives in the sewers, who never dares to use his true identity, facing Chris head-on is suicide!"

Those who felt like Chris would be able to win without any harm to himself were incredibly one-sided in their thinking as they did not allow anyone else to question them. Even if others sounded reasonable, in those people's eyes, it was all ignorant.

They would not listen at all. Many of the warriors did not want to argue with those people, so they lowered their voices to talk to their friends.

"I feel like Chris will definitely get injured. No matter how strong he is, there's no way he's invincible. Blade might be an assassin, but he no longer has any regard for his own life. In such a situation, he'll do anything as long as he can drag Chris down with him!"

"Blade's already thrown his life away. If he can't even injure Chris after that, he'll definitely fall into despair. To avoid that, he'll do anything he can!"

"You're right. Chris will definitely get injured. I think that's a certainty. Only, his supporters just refuse to listen to anyone!"

The viewing area's discussions were incredibly heated.

In the isolated space, Chris and Blade were already at the final stage of their battle. The reason for that was Blade.

At that moment, Blade already realized that, if he did not immediately use all his strength to injure Chris, he might not have the chance anymore in his whole life!

Blade could not accept that he was still not able to injure Chris even after paying for all this power with his life. With that in mind, Blade started to go crazy. He let out an angry roar as he shot forward like an arrow, rushing at Chris once again. There was a crazed look in his eyes and he was determined to injure Chris at all costs!

He shouted out, "Die!"

The chakram in his hand sent out five slashes in a row. All of them emitted a chilling glint. The five slashes contained incredible killing intent. In a flash, they appeared in front of Chris.

Chris let out a light laugh as he formed seals once again, causing starlight to surround his body.

Chapter 3143
The Frozen Star Sword in his hand glowed. Chris did not even blink as he looked at the five slashes that were being sent to him. He snorted and let out a slash.

Five of Blade's slashes clashed with the Frozen Star Sword. In the blink of an eye, the slashes shattered and disappeared!

Chris raised an eyebrow as he snorted in disdain, "Whatever, I've already played around with you enough. I might end up losing the initiative if I waste any more time. I won't give anyone else the chance!"

He had felt that the mark he left on Jackie was slowly weakening. It meant that Jackie was clearing the mark, which made Chris incredibly unhappy.

Compared to killing Blade, Chris was more interested in slowly torturing Jackie. With that in mind, he no longer held back.

Chris sneered as the sword in his hand glowed again. Suddenly, spots of starlight began to appear in the air, slowly condensing into a stream that flowed into the Frozen Star Sword.

Chris narrowed his eyes and shot forward at Blade!

At that moment, Blade's heart was just filled with despair and shock. He had sent out five slashes earlier!

It was the strongest attack that he could use!

Yet, it was still easily broken apart by Chris. That caused Blade to fall into complete hopelessness. He had clearly burned his blood essence and paid with his life, so why could he still not beat Chris?

He could not even injure Chris.

Was he really just trash?

Various thoughts surfaced in Blade's head. Even when Chris rushed over, Blade was still filled with shock.

Chris was emitting an immense amount of killing intent that completely surrounded Blade. Only then did Blade react. Chris was already almost there. Blade's lips curled as he bit his lip, forcing himself to wake up!

Looking at Chris rushing over, Blade did not dare to have a moment of hesitation. He tried to move away from Chris' attack, but he was shocked to realize that he could not move his feet!

His feet felt like they had been trapped in quicksand. He frantically tried to pull away, but could not do it at all!

Blade looked down and noticed that both his legs had somehow been surrounded by starlight. It was the pure power of the stars. They felt like they weighed tonnes as they locked his legs in place!

Blade broke out in cold sweat as hopelessness surrounded his heart!

Slash!

Blade felt a chill in his heart as the blood in his body frantically flowed outward. He looked down, and the Frozen Star Sword had pierced deeply into his chest. His blood was frantically flowing outward.

At that moment, there was still a little bit of starlight on the sword, looking majestic and mysterious!

Blade's lips twitched. At that moment, various images appeared in his head.

From him getting abandoned when he was young to being adopted by an inhuman assassin. He had been placed among a group of children, having them kill each other. Only he had left the place alive!

He had gained a lot in his life and lost a lot of things as well. However, at that moment, none of that was important anymore. In the end, death was coming down on him. Only, he did not want to accept that he was dying like that!

Chapter 3144
Why was he still unable to hurt the arrogant Chris after using everything at his disposal?

Even if it was just a flesh wound, Blade would be happy. Yet, Chris remained unharmed in the end. He had not been able to touch Chris at all!

Blade fell heavily on the floor as he slowly closed his eyes.

Chris raised an eyebrow. The results had been obvious to him. Just like what he said earlier, even if Blade burned his blood essence, it was still nothing to him.

Blade had just turned slightly stronger, but Chris could still kill Blade easily. Chris had seen the look of reluctance on Blade's face before he died, which deeply amused him. Blade had thought too much of himself.

Chris was a chosen disciple of the Purple Cloud Pavilion!

How could an assassin who grew up in the dark harm him?

Chris let out a cold laugh, "Trash will be trash. Why didn't you just accept your fate?"

After saying that, Chris kept the Frozen Star sword and looked to the west.

There was where he had felt Jackie's mark last. He sighed as anger flashed in his eyes!

He would not allow Jackie to die in anyone else's hands, nor would he allow Jackie to stay alive until the end!

The isolated space did not have any time limits. That meant that he had more than enough time to torture Jackie. He would have that brat who did not know his place understand the consequences of offending him!

The warriors at the viewing area were shocked to see the final results!

From the images that were sent over, they could clearly see the reluctance on Blade's face. Even if they were in a different space, they could still tell what Blade was feeling. After doing everything he could, even burning his own blood essence to make Chris pay, the result was still so tragic!

He could not even hurt Chris!

No matter how strong the skills he used were, Chris had easily dealt with them. He had not even been able to get close to Chris, let alone hurt Chris!

"Chris is actually that strong! I thought that Blade would definitely be able to at least cause Chris some harm after burning his blood essence, but it looks like I was wrong! Chris really is a chosen disciple of the Purple Cloud Pavilion! With his skills, even if I had twice the blood essence to burn, I would still be no match for him!"

"That's right. It's not just you. Ninety-nine percent of the people here would not be able to beat Chris at all. Now it looks like Chris will be winning the slaughter gambit."

"Even Edward from the Nimbus Alliance should be quite a bit behind Chris! Chris is in first place for sure! If Edward knew how strong Chris is, Edward would definitely regret taking part in this slaughter gambit!"

“Isn’t that right? He’d definitely regret it! Edward is actually quite strong as well, but Chris is just far too impressive. I feel like he shouldn’t just be in third place among the chosen disciples of the Purple Cloud Pavilion anymore. After all, those rankings are already half a year old. He should already be able to face the second-placed disciple!”

After witnessing Chris’ skills for themselves, most of the warriors present were sure that Chris was definitely the strongest among the ten participants. Even Edward should be lagging behind Chris.

After knowing how strong Chris was, quite a few of the warriors who had bet on Edward started to regret their choices!

However, it was all already too late.

Chapter 3145
“Alright, this battle is already done and dusted. Jackie still hasn’t fought against Luther. Let’s look at their battle first. I wonder what the two of them are doing. They’re just standing there talking, not attacking at all. Luther’s in no hurry, and Jackie’s not afraid either. The two of them are so strange!”

After that person’s reminder, the crowd looked at Jackie again.

At that moment, Jackie and Luther were merely looking at each other in the isolated space. Neither of them seemed to be in any sort of hurry.

Jackie had already cleared all of the marks on his body. Luther looked at him with a raised eyebrow, looking like he had something to say. Jackie let out a slight laugh, knowing what Luther wanted to say. However, he did not want to waste any time.

Jackie looked right at Luther, “Alright, all the marks are cleared. Are you still not going to attack?”

Luther’s lips twitched. At that moment, he was even more certain that Jackie was crazy.

Did Jackie really want to die so badly?

Jackie was actually urging him to attack?

Luther had planned on finishing it quickly anyway. After all, he still had other things to do after killing Jackie. However, after seeing Jackie’s actions, Luther could not help but ask, “Do you really want to die so badly? Don’t you know what will happen the moment I attack?”

Jackie’s lips twitched helplessly.

He hated wasting time on meaningless conversations. However, Jackie had some questions for Luther as well, so he decided to just answer Luther.

“Can you stop imposing your own thoughts on others? In my eyes, you’re the one who’s in a hurry to die!” Jackie said what he thought.

Luther was furious after he heard that. Luther narrowed his eyes, “You really are a strange one. You don’t seem to care who you’re facing, you just want to challenge them regardless. Don’t you know what will happen if you act this way?”

“I was planning on killing you quickly so I can get other things done. I’ve changed my mind now. I can push the other things aside for now. Torturing you properly is my priority! I have to make you realize what all this nonsense you’re spouting will bring you!”

Jackie did not care about Luther’s threats. He heard threats like that a few times a day. Every time, it was more or less the same thing that was being said. However, the results were always the opposite of what they said.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he asked, “Why did you participate in the slaughter gambit? You’re from the Dual Sovereign Pavilion from the Chaos Continent. From what I know it’s a seventh-grade clan. Even though you’re a chosen disciple, you’re definitely at a disadvantage facing Chris and Edward…”

“Even if you played some tricks, they would be nothing in front of their absolute skill! You’re no match for either of them, so there’ll only be one thing waiting for you in the end, which is death! I refuse to believe you can’t see that, so why are you participating in the slaughter gambit?”

In the waiting area, Jackie had been waiting for the final participant the whole time.

When he saw Luther as well as Luther’s clan, Jackie immediately put the Dual Sovereign Pavilion at the same level as an eighth-grade clan, since he did not know about the Chaos Continent. However, Jackie found out from the warriors in the viewing area what rank the Dual Sovereign Pavilion was.

That suddenly sparked his curiosity.

Chapter 3146
The Dual Sovereign Pavilion was just a seventh-grade clan in Chaos Continent. Furthermore, Luther was not even among the top disciples of the clan.

Compared to Chris and Edward, he was lacking behind.

With those two there, it was a pipe dream for Luther to win the slaughter gambit. The slaughter gambit was unlike any of the other contests. If he wanted to win, the nine other participants needed to die. Only one person would be able to survive.

If you lost, you died. But under such a massive gulf in skill, Luther still participated. That confused Jackie.

There were two types of warriors who took part in the slaughter of gambits. The first were the daredevils who did not care about putting their lives on the line, the second was the warriors with absolute confidence in their skills. Furthermore, they needed to see who the other participants were before they joined.

If there were strong participants, many warriors would choose to delay their participation. After all, they would die if they lost!

Normally, disciples from seventh-grade clans, whether they were inner disciples or chosen disciples, would not participate in the slaughter of gambits.

Disciples of seventh-grade clans were definitely not in positions that were as high as disciples of eighth-grade clans, but they were still notable existences in their respective continents. As long as they put in the effort, their future would still be bright.

Hence, warriors like that usually treasure their lives a lot. They would not participate in such a dangerous contest. Most importantly, Luther had been the last participant.

He had clearly seen the nine other participants and had heard the discussion from the viewing area as well. He knew of the other participants, yet he still registered. If he was not suicidal, then it meant that he had his own plans and trump cards.

Jackie felt like he was facing a logical person, so he was curious as to what was going through his mind.

After Luther heard Jackie's question, he had a pleased smile on his face, "I knew someone would ask that. Since you're about to die to my blade, I'll be merciful and tell you. I just participated in the slaughter gambit to improve my skills and win. I have that confidence!"

As he said that, Luther seemed full of confidence as if he was just a short step away from winning. He seemed confident that no one would be able to stop him.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, getting even more curious. He never expected that Luther would be that confident in himself.

Did Luther not know how strong Chris was?

It was not just Jackie who was curious. Even the spectators in the viewing area found it strange after hearing Luther's words.

If Luther had said that he could definitely kill Jackie, that would make sense. However, Luther had said that he could win the slaughter gambit. His tone sounded like he could kill the rest of them at any moment.

It dumbfounded the spectators, "Isn't Luther too arrogant? Could he just be saying all of that because he wants to brag to Jackie?"

"Probably not. Just think about where they are right now. Luther was the last participant to sign up. He knew very well who the other participants were."

"Yet, even with Chris from the Purple Cloud Pavilion and Edward from the Nimbus Alliance there, he still registered without any hesitation! It means that he's immensely confident in himself! Luther isn't that bad of a warrior either. He's a chosen disciple of the Dual Sovereign Pavilion, a seventh-grade clan in White Marsh Continent."

"Could he have some hidden trump card?"

"I don't think he does. Even if he does, it would just disintegrate in front of Chris!"

Chapter 3147
"Don't give him too much credit, he would only be more arrogant. If he was that strong, he would at least be in the top three of the Dual Sovereign Pavilion."

"Yet, based on what I know, he's barely among the top fifteen chosen disciples in his clan. Even if the rankings were from half a year ago, I doubt there would have been such a drastic change. Even if his skills improved rapidly, he'd still be among the top ten chosen disciples at most. Even at the top ten, it would still be a massive gulf from Chris."

"Don't forget, the Purple Cloud Pavilion is at a higher level. On top of that, Chris is in third place there! That difference isn't something that can be overcome in half a year!"

A lot of them agreed with that view.

They felt like Luther was just overconfident to the point of being delusional thinking that he would be able to win the slaughter gambit. The way Luther spoke, it was as if he had already beaten Chris!

When they heard all of that, they felt like Luther was a joke!

Someone said loudly, "Didn't this guy see his odds before he entered the isolated realm? Chris had one point seven odds, while Luther's is seven point three. He's only just a bit better than Jackie! How could he say he'll be able to win in the end?!"

“Are there any disciples from the Dual Sovereign Pavilion here? Can you tell me what’s wrong with Luther? Is there something wrong with his head or does he have delusions of grandeur?”

The viewing area was incredibly noisy thanks to these discussions, but silence was all there was at the isolated space. Jackie had remained quiet after hearing Luther’s words.

Luther felt like Jackie was being incredibly amusing at that moment and said, “Stop trying to speculate. Just ask whatever you want to. I’m feeling generous right now. I’ll answer whatever you want!”

Jackie laughed, feeling like the situation was quite strange. However, since Luther had said so, he would not object.

He said straightforwardly, “Why are you so confident? Do you think Chris is no match for you? Edward as well?”

Luther put his chin up and said, “Yes! The two of them are no match for me!”

Luther pulled out a white sword and a black sword from his storage space as he replied to Jackie. He had one sword in each hand.

“Do you see these swords? Let me introduce them to you. The black sword on my right is called the Absolute Darkness Blade. The white sword on my left is the Absolute Light Blade! The technique I’m using is an upper earth rank technique called the Dual Absolutes. I’ve already reached proficiency, and am only a step away from perfection…”

The moment he said that Jackie raised an eyebrow in surprise.

Warriors who could practice an upper earth rank technique were definitely strong and talented. Upper earth rank techniques were the pinnacle for most warriors below sixty. After all, ultimate god rank techniques were too difficult.

Luther looked at the swords in his hand and let out a strange smile, “Do you know why I took part in this slaughter gambit? It’s because only this will make me stronger…”

“Only by threading the line between life and death will I understand what absolute light and darkness are! I’ve already been tethered between life and death countless times. It’s precisely thanks to that that I’ve been improving!”

Chapter 3148
Absolute light and darkness represented the powers of life and death.

To understand life and death, one had to first feel it. Only by wandering between the lines of life and death would someone understand them better. Only then would they be able to master it even more.

Luther let out a laugh before he said, “Chris and Edward are only so arrogant because they’ve already managed to master their upper earth rank techniques to proficiency, and are close to perfection…”

“They felt like no one other than them could possibly master an upper earth rank technique, let alone reach proficiency or perfection! Their thoughts are a joke. In my eyes, they’re just ignorant fools!”

The more Luther spoke, the more emotional he got.

He constantly thought about how Chris and Edward looked down on everyone else before they entered the isolated space. Just thinking about that, Luther was furious.

“Isn’t it just an upper earth rank technique? Do they think they’re the only ones who can learn them? They’re a little more talented than I am, but so what? With my own hard work, I managed to be just as accomplished as well…”

“This time, I‘ll be able to go even higher with this slaughter gambit. As long as I have a breakthrough, the two of them are no match for me!”

As he said that, Luther’s veins were bulging. His eyes threatened to pop out of their sockets, and he was practically shouting every word.

Jackie raised an eyebrow.

Luther’s words answered all the questions he had. Turns out, Luther joined the slaughter gambit to improve himself. He really did not regard Chris and Edward as anything notable at all. He felt like they were mere stepping stones for him.

It was obvious how hard Luther had worked to get to his level. The more murderous and hungry one was, the more accomplished one could be. However, they would also be exposed to even more danger comparatively.

It would be easy for them to fall into a bad situation. For instance, Luther had made an incredibly wrong decision at that very moment.

After Luther shouted everything out, he felt much better. Even if a complete madman was standing in front of him, at least he had an audience.

Luther composed himself and pursed his lips. He reverted to his calm demeanor and sighed, “Alright, you already know everything you should. Now, I’ll give you two choices. Do you want to die in front of me, or do you want my help?”

Hearing that, Jackie was amused. He raised an eyebrow, not wanting to say anymore.

Seeing that Jackie was ignoring him, Luther’s suppressed anger surfaced again.

Luther snorted, “I was being too nice to you! Since you refuse to accept my kindness, don’t blame me for being rude!”

After he said that, the blades in his hand pointed right at Jackie’s forehead.

Jackie did not react too much at that, but the spectators outside burst out in an uproar.

“No wonder this guy is so confident, he’s using an upper earth rank technique! I was even wondering before why Luther was participating in this. Does he really not know the dangers? Now it looks like this guy is just daring. In order to improve himself, he’s putting his life on the line!”

Chapter 3149
“However, he won’t be as lucky this time. So what if he uses the Dual Absolutes? He’s still not a match for Chris! As long as Luther faces Chris, Luther will realize how dumb he is!”

After the person said that, someone else rebutted, “That’s not certain. Didn’t Luther say that he’s already close to perfection?”

“As long as he goes through another life or death experience, he’ll be able to break through his limits and step into the second stage! Chris and Edward are definitely strong, but they’re still using upper earth rank techniques in the end… It’s just that the two of them have reached higher levels in their techniques. As long as Luther catches up, he might really be able to compete with Chris!”

The moment that was said, the disciples of the Purple Cloud Pavilion loudly shouted back, not allowing anyone to doubt Chris at all. They felt insulted that Chris was being compared to a disciple of a seventh-grade clan!

One of the inner disciples from the Purple Cloud Pavilion stood up from his chair and shouted at the earlier warrior, “Can you think before you speak?! Luther doesn’t even have the right to be compared to Chris! In Chris’ eyes, he’s not even an appetizer! Do you just believe everything he says?”

“I think this guy is probably just bragging. He’s just trying to get some praise from Jackie! If he’s really that strong, why isn‘t he even in the top ten of the Dual Sovereign Pavilion?”

“Training himself through life and death? That’s all just nonsense. He might actually be able to learn from being on the verge of death, but there’s no way he can directly advance a whole level…”

“Do you think it’s that easy to get from proficiency to perfection? Furthermore, he’s using an upper earth rank technique! If it’s that easy to level up, everyone would be a chosen disciple of an eighth- grade clan!”

After saying that, quite a few people reacted.

They felt like the disciple from the Purple Cloud Pavilion made sense. Going through life or death experiences can improve one's understanding and skill, but there is no way it would allow one to jump a whole level. However, there were those with an opposing view as well.

A warrior from the Chaos continent said loudly, "You're right, but you're too biased! Didn't Luther mention it earlier? His accomplishments have all come from brushes with death…"

"Since he's already at proficiency and close to perfection, he participated in the slaughter gambit in hopes of getting through this hurdle. As long as he gets through the hurdle and successfully perfects the Dual Absolutes, then he might really be able to stand up to Chris!"

When the inner disciple from the Purple Cloud Pavilion heard that, he suddenly shouted, "Nonsense! What do you know?! Even if he gets to perfection, there's no way he's worth fighting Chris!"

"Chris is already at perfection, and only a little away from complete mastery. If he can make a breakthrough, can't Chris as well?! Even if he passes the hurdle, he would just be at the same level as Chris. Chris has already been at this level for a long time, so how could Chris lose?!"

Chapter 3150
Everyone listened on as they argued nonstop. Many felt like both of them had their own points, but there was no absolute answer.

No matter how it was, they would have to wait for Luther to truly face Chris before they could get their answer. However, the crowd was inclined to believe that Luther would not be able to beat Chris even if he managed to get past the hurdle.

After all, they had just witnessed how strong Chris was. Even after burning up his blood essence, Blade was still unable to harm a single hair on Chris.

Luther was skilled, but there was no way he was that much stronger than Blade who used his blood essence!

"Even if this was discussed for a whole day, there's no way to get a conclusion before the actual results. Jackie's the one facing Luther right now! Why don't we talk about them first?!"

"There's nothing much to say about them. Jackie's just an alchemist who has his head screwed on wrong. Even if Jackie burned his blood essence ten times, there's no way he can face Luther. There's no reason to talk about their match!"

“That’s right. Jackie’s only good at talking. How could he be a match for Luther? Even if Luther was using a middle earth rank technique, Jackie would not be able to beat him, let alone an upper earth rank technique. There’s no way Jackie can beat him. Let’s not even talk about beating him, Jackie would be skilled if he can even surface three strikes from Luther!”

“But, if Jackie dies in Luther’s hands, Chris will definitely be furious. Chris is hurrying over right now. If he personally witnesses it, Chris would definitely not let Luther off. He might even attack Luther right away!”

The two in the isolated space could not hear the discussions outside at all.

At that moment, Luther was not willing to waste any more time. He wanted to cripple Jackie first before bringing him somewhere safe to be properly tortured!

He laughed coldly and narrowed his eyes. His hands constantly moved with the two swords, shooting out many slashes.

The Absolute Darkness Blade was black as ink, while the Absolute Light Blade glowed like it was reflecting the sun. Two different energies were constantly released by the blades, and the slashes merely stopped in the air, not rushing at Jackie. Instead, they slowly condensed together.

In just a few moments, the powers of light and darkness merged into a pentagram, appearing in front of everyone!

After finishing that, Luther said pridefully, “This is the power of absolute light and darkness. Even if it’s not truly life or death, it still has a portion of its power. It comes from pure light and pure darkness. When both these powers intersect, they can suppress everything!”

After hearing that, Jackie’s lips twitched as he said in exasperation, “Do you think everyone’s an idiot? Can you use your brain a bit even if you’re trying to brag? Suppress everything?”

“If it was truly the power of life and death, you might be able to do that. The technique you’re using is only harnessing a fraction of that power! It’s very far from the true thing! With your skills, you can’t even beat David, let alone me!”

Luther felt like he was about to get angered to death by Jackie.

The guy kept on saying the exact things that would anger him the most. He wanted to rip Jackie to shreds!

Luther widened his eyes and looked at Jackie with clenched teeth, “You say I’m bragging, but aren’t you bragging as well? Are you saying you’re far stronger than David? David’s no match for you?”

Jackie acknowledged honestly, “That’s exactly what I mean. He’s no match for me at all. Even Chris is no match for me!”

The moment he said that Luther’s lips twitched speechlessly. He was silently angry at the fact that he was actually being calculative with a madman.

From a madman’s perspective, everything they said was logical. Yet, Luther had still been infuriated by Jackie.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3151 - 3155

Chapter 3151
Luther snorted, and his expression soured. “I don’t care if you’re a madman; your end will always be gruesome so long as you cross me…”

“You have nothing but your foul mouth to blame. If you didn’t say so much, things might have ended better for you. I would’ve given you a quick, painless death!”

Luther readied himself as his hands quickly moved.

Waves of darkness and light condensed in front of him.

He pushed forward, sending the image right at Jackie. The pentagram formed of the powers of light and darkness constantly spun in the air. As it flew toward Jackie, it absorbed the power of light and darkness in the air!

Jackie raised an eyebrow. Just looking at the power of the pentagram, he could tell that Luther was either fourth or fifth in terms of power among the ten of them. This explained why he was this confident.

Alas, Luther was too naive. He thought of others too simply and thought too highly of himself.

Jackie let out a short laugh, temporarily discarding that thought. He had foreseen Luther’s plans, after all.

He did not want to stay there for too long as it would only attract too much attention, having provoked a lot of people.

These people wanted to kill him for the sake of their dignity. Jackie was never afraid of facing anyone head-on, but he was still worried that they would come after him as a group.

Jackie’s hands constantly moved as he formed seal after seal that slowly condensed in the air, turning into Soul Swords.

Having complete mastery of Destroying the Void, he did not hold back to finish the battle quickly. A hundred Soul Swords were formed in the air. With a wave, the swords condensed into one massive Soul Sword. He pushed forward, and the massive Soul Sword hurtled right toward the pentagram.

Jackie controlled the sword’s trajectory, aiming at the lower left corner to hit where the dark energy was condensing. That was the portion of the pentagram that was black.

He could feel dense soul energy at that part, and he aimed to test what would happen if soul energy clashed against soul energy.

When Luther saw that the Soul Sword was heading to where the power of darkness was condensed, he found it deeply amusing.

He shouted behind the pentagram, “You should forget about your tricks. The power of darkness and light can interchange with each other. Don’t think that you can destroy the whole thing by just destroying a part and not the whole! You can’t possibly counter me!”

As he said that, the Soul Sword was already right in front of the pentagram, accurately piercing through where the power of darkness was gathered!

Chapter 3152
When the Soul Sword and the power of darkness clashed, it caused no shockwaves. Instead, it was like two balls of flames clashing.

Since they were the same kind of energy, they would absorb each other instead of clashing.

Luther’s brow raised in shock at the sight. Amid his confusion, he suddenly felt a change.

He noticed that he had lost control of part of the pentagram!

Feeling it further, he was surprised to notice that the power of darkness had actually fused into the Soul Sword after they clashed, leaving the pentagram. It was no longer in his control!

The next second, Luther felt a chill in his heart. Looking down, he noticed a black energy sword pierced through his chest.

After the darkness left the pentagram, it fused into the Soul Sword, causing it to solidify even more. The pentagram had only been half a ureter away from Luther. He never stood a chance in avoiding it.

The pain of his soul being ripped apart from his heart caused Luther’s whole body to stiffen. His face started to twist as he fell from the air.

Jackie let out a slight laugh.

He never thought that Destroying the Void would seize control of Luther’s dark energy after clashing with it.

In the end, it was because the dark energy and Destroying the Void were from the same form of power, which was the soul attribute. Nonetheless, Destroying the Void's power and grade were far higher than the dark energy.

Destroying the Void was an upper ultimate god rank technique, while Dual Absolutes was only an upper earth rank technique. The two techniques were a whole level apart. Against Destroying the Void, Luther's power was as insignificant as an ant.

Luther was in so much pain that he spasmed on the ground vigorously; Destroying the Void was slowly eating away at his soul. The pain the soul could feel was far greater than any physical pain.

No matter how strong Luther's will was, it was insignificant against such pain. At that moment, he had lost even his most basic rationality. He constantly rolled on the floor as though seeking relief.

Try as he did, however, the pain of his soul being torn apart did not cease.

At that moment, Luther did not look like a chosen disciple from a seventh-grade clan at all, looking more like a common beggar seen on the streets. His body was covered in dirt as he spasmed pathetically.

Jackie's expression remained unchanged at the sight. After all, he had witnessed these scenes countless times. However, the warriors at the viewing area were not as calm as he was.

When they saw the Soul Sword piercing Luther's heart, their expressions stiffened. Their eyes widened as disbelief overwhelmed their features.

The sight of Luther dropping from the air and writhing on the floor deeply affected everyone there.

Everything had happened far too quickly and suddenly. It was completely different from the result they were expecting. No one could accept what happened that easily.

The crowd was completely silent. Even their breathing had become slower. The sight was far too unbelievable!

After a while, someone stammered, "Isn't Jackie an alchemist? Who said he was an alchemist? Since when did alchemists become so strong? He dealt with Luther in one strike! Isn't Luther a chosen disciple of the Dual Sovereign Pavilion?"

"Even if he isn't among the top chosen disciples, he's still a chosen disciple from a seventh-grade clan. How did this happen? How did he lose without a contest?!"

Chapter 3153
“You’re asking me? I have questions, too. I’m wondering if I’m hallucinating right now. Isn’t it all too absurd?!”

At that moment, the disciples from the Dual Sovereign Pavilion all stood up from their seats. They had heard all of the discussions, but their disciples did not participate, allowing others to say what they wanted.

Luther had told his fellow disciples before entering the slaughter gambit not to say anything no matter what they heard, hence their silence. However, the abrupt turn of events made them unable to retain their composure.

They had seen Luther’s tragic scene, which caused them to panic. They wanted to rush into the isolated space to save Luther. However, they knew very well that it was just a pipe dream.

They could not do anything outside, nor were they able to. They were forced to look on as Luther rolled on the ground and cried out in agony.

At that rate, Luther could die!

An inner disciple from the Dual Sovereign Pavilion shouted, “Liar! Jackie isn’t an alchemist! When did alchemists become stronger than us proper warriors?! He’s just been a wolf in sheep’s clothing the whole time. Who said he was an alchemist?!”

He was furious and reluctant to accept it.

Various emotions were present in the hearts of the disciples of the Dual Sovereign Pavilion. They wanted to rush into the crowd, pull out whoever had said that Jackie was an alchemist power, and smack them senseless.

They wanted an explanation as to what was happening!

Everyone in the viewing area had complicated expressions on their faces. After all, the result was too absurd.

Jackie’s odds were at seven point five, the highest among everyone. It meant that he was the weakest even in the eyes of the caretakers. Furthermore, everything he had said and done before had been far too crazy. Even though Jackie viewed everything he had done as normal retaliation, in the eyes of the warriors in the viewing area, his retaliation made no sense!

Disciples from high-grade clans did not allow their honor and pride to be challenged.

Everything that was happening caused everyone there to think that Jackie was just a deranged weakling, yet that weakling had shed the moniker in just one strike.

How could anyone digest the change so easily?

The change had been far too quick, and they were not given any time to prepare themselves before that chance.

“I don’t think he’s an alchemist either!”

“An alchemist can’t possibly be that strong. They put most of their time into mastering alchemy, so they should have no time to train at all, so their power should naturally be weaker than ours!”

“That‘s right! It looks like he was just faking it. No wonder he refused to back down to anyone. He was actually that strong. Luther was no match for him at all; he couldn’t even stand up to a single blow!”

“I feel like their exchange is too strange. Jackie let out that massive gray blade. After it pierced into the dark energy, it swallowed it up to strengthen itself. It pierced into Luther’s chest before he could react! Luther had no chance to fight back!”

After that person said that, the warriors around him asked curiously, “You feel like Jackie’s technique can swallow dark energy?”

“That has to be it!” came the reply.

“Otherwise, why did both energies fuse when they clashed?!”

“It looked like they fused, but how could two techniques fuse together? There’s only one reason that could happen, both techniques use the same energy. Thus, the stronger power managed to swallow up the weaker one, strengthening itself!”

Chapter 3154
That person’s eyes were sharp, and he immediately saw through the one most important aspect, two different techniques should not be able to merge.

The reason why Luther lost control of the dark energy was exactly what that person said, Destroying the Void was too strong. After piercing through the energy, Destroying the Void swallowed it to strengthen itself!

The viewing area was filled with fervent discussions. After all, they had just witnessed something that shattered what they had thought before.

Compared to the intensity in the viewing area, the betting area that Rudy was at was much calmer. Of course, the peace did not last that long.

Evan was panting roughly as his whole body quivered. It was not just Evan, even the other disciples from the Pentagram Clan behind him were all breathing erratically.

Compared to the others, Rudy was noticeably much calmer. He knew how strong Jackie was from the start, so Luther challenging Jackie amused him to no end. Luther had even bragged about how strong he was before.

After hearing all of that, Rudy almost lost control and laughed on the spot.

Luther did not have much longer to live at that point, and Rudy did not even blink an eye!

Evan's breaths grew labored. Even Rudy, who was a few meters away from him, could hear it.

Rudy turned and noticed Evan's eyes had reddened. His fists were clenched tightly, and he looked like he had seen a ghost. Rudy let out a cold laugh, recalling what Evan had said to him before.

Evan had said that he was an ignorant fool and that Jackie was a complete madman. There had been insults hurled at Rudy and Jackie.

Rudy only had one thought in mind at that moment, it was the perfect time for some revenge.

He sneered as he quickly walked to Evan. "Oh, what's wrong? Have you been poisoned? You look a little breathless. Why do you look so bad? Are you alright? Thankfully, I'm an alchemist. If you need any pills, I can sell them to you!"

The moment he said that, Evan almost lost himself in anger.

Evan was no idiot, and he could tell that Rudy had been mocking him. Evan gritted his teeth and looked at Rudy. He wanted to say something in retaliation but found himself unable to.

Rudy raised an eyebrow and said, "With the grudges between Trevor and Jackie, Trevor must be frantically searching for Jackie right now. When he finds Jackie, he'll definitely attack Jackie right away!"

"Trevor thinks that he'll be able to kill Jackie incredibly easily with his skills, so I'm really looking forward to them meeting each other!"

Evan continued panting. His eyes were threatening to pop out of their sockets. If he had heard what Rudy was saying before, he would have rebuked Rudy since he trusted in Trevor's skills. However, he no longer had that confidence.

Jackie had dealt with Luther in one strike, which meant that Jackie was stronger than most warriors. Even he did not have the confidence that he would beat Jackie.

Trevor was stronger than himself but not by a long shot. The chances of Trevor beating Jackie were not that much higher.

Evan's lips twitched, not wanting to see Rudy acting so pleased with himself at that moment.

He took a deep breath and said, "Stop gloating. Trevor's skills are stronger than Luther! There's no telling who'll win if he fights Jackie!"

Rudy let out a laugh as though he heard a joke. "Didn't you hear what Luther said just now? He was using an upper earth rank technique, and he was only a step away from the second level!"

Chapter 3155
"If I'm not mistaken, Trevor's probably at around the same level as Luther. Even if Trevor is stronger than Luther, he's that much stronger!"

Evan's lips quivered. "I'm telling you right now! Don't underestimate Trevor! I myself don't know how strong Trevor is right now. We haven't faced each other for a while. He told me that he has gotten quite a lot stronger since he entered the Whirling World, and if memory serves, he's already passed the hurdle and is now close to or at perfection with his technique! If Jackie fights him, it should be an even match!"

As he said that, his tone was strangely firm as if he had already seen the result.

Rudy was amused, raising an eyebrow as he said, "There's no point saying all of that. Trevor might even be killed before he even meets Jackie. Who knows?"

Evan was furious when he heard that and half-shrieked, "Is speaking nonsense your specialty?! I can assure you that other than Chris and Edward, no one can kill Trevor!"

Evan looked so emotional that it looked like he could pass out at any moment!

Rudy raised an eyebrow and laughed slightly, saying, "Alright. Let's wait and see!"

Jackie slowly walked toward Luther in the isolated space, coldly staring as he watched Luther writhing and rolling about.

At that moment, he could feel that a third of Luther's soul had already been consumed. Even if Jackie stopped at that moment, Luther would still die.

Jackie raised his hand and stopped Destroying the Void from eating Luther's soul, which allowed Luther to finally regain his sanity.

He was panting weakly as the light in his eyes slowly returned. After regaining a bit of himself, he stared at Jackie's calm face.

Luther felt his chest constrict, and he spat out the blood in his mouth. He started to twitch as his eyes were filled with anger and hatred. “Who are you?! “

Jackie’s lips twitched helplessly. Many had asked him that same question and why he was ‘in a disguise.‘

He felt helpless. He clearly never disguised himself, but none of them believed him when he spoke the truth, and they still questioned him in the end.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, starting to think about his interactions with Luther before entering the isolated space.

After thinking about it, he found that the two of them had not even exchanged a look after Luther entered the waiting area.

He sighed in exasperation, “We never even butted heads before, yet you came to me so ready to die. I tried to stop you, but you left me with no choice. You needed to die, anyway. There’s no difference if you died to someone else or in my hands…”

Luther had an intense fit of coughs as his whole body shook.

After coughing for a long time, he panted as he said, “I was too careless! Your disguise was too perfect. I thought that you were just a crazy alchemist! If I’d known that you were hiding your skills, I wouldn’t have lost to you!”

After hearing that, Jackie felt like it was a complete joke. Even as his death loomed near, Luther was still trying to fool himself.

Jackie calmly said, “Let’s not talk about if I disguised myself for now. Let’s talk about what would happen if you knew my skills…”

“Actually, there’s no need to think about it at all. You know very well that no matter how much more you know, you’re just too weak for there to be any changes.”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3156 -

Chapter 3156
Luther looked at Jackie with gritted teeth as hatred oozed from his eyes. “No! It’s all because of your petty tricks. If I knew what you’re truly capable of, I would’ve been more defensive! Your skills wouldn’t have rendered me in a fatal state!”

“I can use that to improve myself, entering perfection with my technique! You wouldn’t last against me then, you’d die a horrible death! I just lacked a bit of luck and lost to you because of that!”

Jackie snorted, feeling like Luther was already in a state of complete incoherence.

Even with the state Luther was in, he still felt like he did not lose because of his skills but because of his rotten luck and someone else’s supposed disguise.

With how Jackie usually was, he was merely amused after hearing all of that.

He would not continue dwelling on the problem, because there was no meaning to it. However, Jackie was particularly annoyed that day.

He coldly looked Luther right in the eye and said in a low voice, “Guess… What level is the technique I’m using?”

Luther’s breathing got more erratic as he looked at Jackie. It was as if he could prove that he did not lose by doing that.

He narrowed his eyes and said with all his might, “Is there any need? It’s in the upper earth rank! If you… Managed to do that, you must already be at the second stage of mastery, right?!”

After he said that, Luther continued, “Why did you need to ask? Do you think that others can’t see it? Are you just trying to show off in front of me?”

In truth, Luther knew that Jackie was stronger than him, which was how he had lost so terribly.

After his dark energy had been pierced by the Soul Sword, he had completely lost control of it.

At that moment, he might have been panicking, but he still did everything he could to gain back control. Alas, it was all for naught.

He held onto his stubbornness partially because he did not want to see Jackie being too pleased. After all, he saw him as a madman who only knew how to brag the whole time.

In the end, he realized that Jackie was not a madman at all but an expert pretending to be weak.

Luther could not accept the fact.

Another part of it was also because he kept on feeling like he would have been able to level up his technique if he managed to toe the line between life and death. The battle would have been more righteous!

Jackie laughed and said, “Brag? What’s there to brag about? Since you’re being so obstinate, I’ll just tell you…”

As he said that, Jackie deliberately stopped.

Jackie slowly knelt until he was incredibly close to Luther. He could even hear Luther’s weak breaths.

Jackie deliberately lowered his voice as he spoke, “I asked that question because it’s impossible for you to get the right answer. In my eyes, you‘re not even an ant. It’s so easy to kill you. Even if you manage to level up, nothing will change.”

Luther widened his reddened eyes as he retorted viciously, “You’re bragging!”

Jackie laughed as he sneered, “Why do I need to brag? When we fought, you were the one constantly shouting at me. I’m just saying all of that to expose you a little.”

“Do you know how amused I am listening to you speak? Even if you burned your blood essence and leveled up just now, you‘d still be no threat to me at all. Your technique is absolute trash!”

Chapter 3157
Hearing all of that, Luther’s breathing grew erratic.

Blood oozed out of his mouth as he completely stiffened. He was already at the stage where he could die at any moment.

Jackie finished his words while Luther was still alive.

“Upper earth rank techniques are nothing to me because I’m using an upper ultimate god rank technique, Destroying the Void. It came from the first-grade world, the Divine Void World…”

Luther widened his eyes as he fell deep in shock.

After thinking for a while, he shook his head vigorously. “Nonsense! You… You’re lying! It’s impossible! It can’t be!”

Jackie laughed. “You’re about to die anyway. What’s the point of lying to you? Do you really think an upper earth rank technique would be able to take away control of your technique? You know very well that you didn‘t just lose control of the darkness, my technique devoured yours entirely!”

Luther’s lips trembled slightly as he shuddered. This time, he could not help but start to recount everything that had happened when he was facing Jackie.

Jackie was right after all. He did not slowly lose control of his technique, but it had instead been swallowed up by a massive power.

Thinking about it, his dark energy had probably been absorbed by Jackie’s technique and turned against him!

At that moment, Luther’s mind raced as various thoughts surfaced in his head.

What sort of technique would be able to swallow his like that?

He might not truly be using the power of life and death, but it still contained a sliver of it.

Normally, even if he lost, he should have lost because his opponent shattered his technique. It should not have been swallowed.

The fact that Jackie’s technique had swallowed his dark energy meant that the two attacks had the same source of energy. Otherwise, it would not have fused. It meant that Jackie’s technique was also of the soul attribute!

The power of darkness and the power of light cattle from life and death. Darkness represented death and was the soul attribute. On top of that, he had not felt any massive energy fluctuations when Jackie used his technique. There was only one explanation for that, which was that Jackie was using the soul attribute.

Only soul attribute techniques would have such weak energy fluctuations when used!

Luther’s expression soured as realization sank in. He paled as he thought about it emotionally.

The more he thought about it, the more he realized that Jackie was not lying.

Jackie truly was strong. Jackie was so strong that Luther could not believe it!

Jackie’s technique devouring him only meant one thing, his technique was so strong that his own technique stood no chance!

Luther's breathing got more and more erratic as his eyes darted all over. He felt like his mind was about to explode. He felt like he was being boiled alive.

He wanted to just die on the spot!

He looked up as he straightened his body, trembling as he shouted with all his might, "Who… Who are you?! You… You're not a normal person!"

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3158 -

Chapter 3158
Jackie slowly got up and looked down on the breathless Luther. "You don't have the right to know."

"I… I don't have the right?" sneered Luther bitterly.

He remembered everything he had said earlier and felt like he was the buffoon all along.

If he had heard Jackie say anything like that in the past, Luther would have refused to acknowledge it angrily. At this moment, however, he had to.

After breathing out his last breath, he held on and said one last sentence, "You're right, I really don't have the right to know…"

The moment he said his last words, Luther coughed out some more blood. The moment the blood left his mouth, Luther lost his fight, falling to the ground heavily as he breathed his last.

Jackie shook his head slightly.

If Luther had not run into him, Luther might have been able to level up as he expected. Even if he still died in the end, he would at least be able to accomplish his dream. However, Jackie did not feel any pity, this was the fruit of his labor.

If Jackie had really been complete trash like Luther thought, it would have been him dead instead.

He looked around and saw that it was still a desolate wasteland around him. After thinking about it, he flew up into the air and chose a direction before he shot forward.

All of the warriors in the viewing area became visibly solemn.

Luther was dead.

Before this, they were even discussing if Luther could reach the next level with his technique and challenge Chris and Edward. They were even discussing how likely it was that Luther could win. However, everything was overturned in just a flash as Jackie struck him down, sparing him not a chance to fight back.

It caused a great stir among all the warriors there.

“Luther must‘ve regretted saying everything he did. If not for that verbal spat before the battle, Jackie probably wouldn’t have tortured him so much…”

“That’s true. His corpse is just left there. Jackie didn’t even bother burning it or burying it. It looks like Jackie isn’t that tolerant.”

“Have you ever seen any powerful person being nice? You should wake up. Jackie isn’t a crazy alchemist; he’s an expert who didn’t mind disguising himself. I’m beginning to wonder if he’s even stronger than David!”

More of them started to accept that Jackie’s skills were definitely not average.

They also started to understand why Jackie acted like he did before such as angering Chris, ignoring David, and being impolite to everyone. They had thought that Jackie only participated in the slaughter gambit because he was crazy.

At this moment, everyone felt that it was no longer that simple.

A wandering warrior from White Marsh Continent mumbled, “It just doesn’t add up. Why did Jackie deliberately whisper to Luther before he died? What did they say for Luther to react like that? Thinking of Luther’s expression… It’s just off…”

After that person said that, many of the warriors with similar doubts started to speak up.

“That’s true. Luther‘s final expression really was strange! He first refused to admit defeat and was in disbelief, but all of a sudden, his expression changed as though realizing something and accepting his fate.”

“What he said in the end doesn‘t make sense with his temperament either. Jackie said, and I quote, ‘didn’t have the right’, and Luther actually accepted it just like that?”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3159 -

Chapter 3159
“He had been adamant in saying that he only lost because of Jackie’s tricks and that he was just unlucky. Why did he suddenly accept the truth just like that? What did he say to him? Someone tell me! I’m so curious!”

Jackie had lowered his voice when he knelt and spoke to him. This meant that Jackie had told Luther a secret, and it shocked Luther so badly that he accepted his fate after knowing it.

It was a drastic change. He even accepted Jackie's ridicule. It meant that the secret must be incredible, enough for Luther to admit his defeat.

Because of that, everyone desperately wanted to know what was said, but they had not been there. No matter how they thought about it, they could not figure it out. All of them were frantically scratching their heads like monkeys.

In the isolated space, a man in light purple robes arrived just five minutes after Jackie left.

He shot over incredibly quickly. Chris had not stopped at all the whole way. He was worried that he would lose track of Jackie or that someone else would beat him to it.

Even from a distance, Chris could see someone lying down on the ground.

Before he could see who it was, he assumed that it was Jackie and thus cursed, "What dog killed my prey? They better not let me find out, or I'll tear them to shreds!"

Jackie had to die, but it had to be done with his hands to vent Jackie the hatred he felt.

Jackie's earlier actions had not only stomped on his dignity but insulted his character as well. Even if Jackie was crazy, Chris would never forgive him!

He had said that he would make Jackie pay for it. He would let Jackie know the consequences of offending him. He wanted to see Jackie struggling to survive, only for him to fail.

He glared at the corpse lying on the ground as a string of curses left him. Someone had stolen his chance of killing Jackie. No wonder the mark he had left on Jackie slowly disappeared, Jackie was already killed off!

Without Jackie's life to support it, the mark would slowly fade away.

It seemed like Jackie was unlucky and met someone else not long after arriving. There was no way anyone would spare Jackie if they saw him. It would not have taken long to kill him!

Thinking about that, Chris increased his speed as his mind raced.

Since they had left a corpse behind, he would be able to determine what kind of attack killed Jackie from the injuries. He would look for the person who had dared to steal his prey and have them pay dearly!

Chris was incredibly quick. He was constantly thinking about how he would check the corpse later. He did not notice anything strange until he arrived next to the corpse.

When he saw the somewhat unknown face of the corpse, he frowned.

“That’s… L-Luther?”

Luther had been the last participant, and there had been no conflicts between them, so Chris did not have a deep impression of him, only vaguely remembering his name.

This was Luther, not Jackie!

That had clearly been the last place he had felt Jackie.

He knelt to look at Luther’s corpse. Other than the fact that the clothes were somewhat ripped, there did not seem to be any injuries. It seemed like Luther had been killed in one blow. The person who killed him must be incredibly strong.

Was it Edward?

He did not expect Edward to be around the vicinity.

He shot out his perception of Luther‘s body. After checking it in detail, he could feel that strange energy was left in Luther’s body. The moment his senses touched that energy, it started to rot.

Chris was so shocked that he hurriedly pulled his senses back.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3160 -

Chapter 3160
“What is this?” gasped Chris as his eyes widened.

It was able to rot his senses. That was too strange!

He muttered, “Divine senses are part of the soul. This power is actually able to rot the soul. Could it be poison?”

He was immensely curious, so he sent out his divine senses again. This time, he did not dare to be as careless as the last time. He carefully controlled his senses, avoiding the mysterious power that was left in Luther’s body.

After moving around for a long time, Chris was shocked to find that two-thirds of Luther’s soul had been devoured, and only a third of his soul was left in his body. After a person died, their soul usually slowly dispersed in three days.

Chris had checked Luther's temperature earlier. Based on the heat, he had probably died not too long ago. In such a short time, if Luther's soul had not been affected by any outside influences, it should still be wholly within Luther's body. Even if Luther died, his soul would have slowly dispersed in three days.

There was no way only a third of the soul would be left like what Chris saw. The third of Luther's soul was in disarray as well. It meant that Luther suffered an attack targeting the soul…

"What a strange attack. Who did it? It can't be Edward… He uses wood-attribute techniques, far different from this strange energy! Who was it?

"Was it David, then? No, that can't be… Could there have been a hidden expert among the other few?"

Thinking about that, Chris frowned as alarm bells rang in his mind.

He slowly got up and walked around with an alert expression in his eyes. He looked around the desolate wasteland, but it seemed like no one else had been here.

There was nothing to obstruct his view around him. If anyone was close, they would not have been able to hide from Chris' eyes.

Nonetheless, he remained vigilant. After all, the energy that had attacked Luther was far too strange.

He gritted his teeth and hissed, "No matter who it is, they'll just die if they meet me!"

After saying that, he turned around and randomly chose a direction to head to. He left the cold corpse behind in the wasteland.

After two hours, Jackie stopped his movements. He was in a hilly area that was dense with grass, and the hills obstructed most of the view.

A breeze blew past, causing the wild grass to move slightly and rustle.

If they were not in an isolated space full of people who wanted to kill him, Jackie would probably have found a comfortable spot to lie down and rest.

The scenery was beautiful with the gentle breeze. It would be even better if there was a bit of rain.

At that moment, he suddenly heard the sound of a shoe brushing against grass from a distance. Jackie raised an eyebrow as he looked over.

After a moment, he saw a familiar figure.

David was walking around calmly and slowly approaching him.

When David saw that Jackie was standing in the distance, David was stunned for a moment before he smiled. The smile threatened to split his face open.

“I heard a bit of rustling. Heh, it was you all along!” David said loudly.

He quickly rushed toward Jackie in delight as if he had found something amazing.

As he moved, he exclaimed, “I really am lucky! I was walking around for quite a long time, but I actually met you!”

“Do you still remember what I told you before we entered the isolated space? I’ll repeat it again. I’ll have you begging for mercy and regretting everything you said!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3161 - 3165 -

Chapter 3161
Jackie let out a slight laugh as he stood still on the spot.

His actions surprised David even more. He snorted, “So you weren’t just being stubborn. You actually think you’re capable of standing up to my strength!”

David was quite close to Jackie at that moment.

With that distance, Jackie would definitely not be able to escape if David did not want him to. Even with things already as they were, Jackie still planted himself on the spot, not moving. It seemed like Jackie really was confident in himself.

David’s lips twitched in exasperation, staring at Jackie like he was a complete idiot, “I’ve never seen an alchemist like you before. Even if you’re bursting with confidence, you should have a bit of common sense. You’ve put all your time into alchemy, so where did you get the skills to fight against me?”

The spectators in the viewing area fell into silence again. When they saw that David was the one who appeared, all of them shut their mouths.

David had even said that he would have Jackie begging for mercy.

The warriors in the viewing area all had complicated expressions on their faces. If they had not personally witnessed Jackie’s skills, they would definitely have felt some pity for Jackie.

David was definitely not a kind person.

Before they entered the isolated space, the conflict between the two of them was already incredibly heated.

The warriors at the viewing area knew that the two of them would have already attacked each other in the waiting area if not for the laws. Now that the two of them met, David would definitely do everything he could to torture Jackie!

Yet, they knew very well that David probably did not have the skills to be able to torture Jackie. The victor was not even certain!

They could somewhat guess that David should already be at the second stage of his technique, so he was stronger than Luther. Yet, there was no way he was that much stronger. Compared to David, Jackie might even be at an advantage.

At that moment, even the warriors from Chaos Continent were not that confident in David being able to win. The disciples from the Frenzied Blade Clan were all incredibly nervous.

They really wanted to tell David that Jackie was a wolf in sheep's clothing. They wanted to warn him against underestimating Jackie. Furthermore, everything about Jackie was incredibly strange. No one knew what Jackie was hiding.

The disciples of the Frenzied Blade Clan even felt like it might be better for David to meet Edward instead. That was because David at least knew of Edward's skills, but Jackie had disguised himself far too well.

Practically everyone was fooled!

However, David did not know how worried his fellow disciples were for him at all. He only felt like he had hit the Jackiepot at that moment. He was even already starting to plan out how he would torture Jackie. He would first cripple Jackie before using poison and whips on Jackie.

Jackie would suffer all sorts of pain, and when Jackie was about to die, he would give Jackie some recovery pills. He would not let Jackie die so easily, or he would not have enough fun!

Those ideas all surfaced in David's mind. His smile got wider and wider.

Ever since he met David, Jackie's expression did not change that much at all. When David arrived in front of him, Jackie calmly took his sword out of Mustard Seed.

Jackie had not reacted to everything David had said at all. He had even calmly pulled out his own weapon to face him. This caused David to feel like he had been challenged.

David's lips twitched before he said, "Brat, you never fail to surprise me! Every time I see you, I feel like beating you up. The fact that you're still alive is a miracle!"

Chapter 3162
After Jackie heard all of that, he just felt like David was getting more and more annoying. Every time he met David, David could not stop talking.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he gripped the sword in his palm.

"Why do you talk so much every time? You're not annoyed by it, but others are."

David's lips twitched as his face turned red in anger, "Brat! I've been nice to you, but you are constantly challenging me. Do you think that this is the waiting area? Do you think the rules will stop me from attacking you?!"

“Open your eyes and look around. This is an isolated space. The only thing you’ll get from provoking me is me torturing you longer!”

Jackie’s lips twitched helplessly before he looked at David and replied, “There was someone before you who wasted a lot of time talking before as well. However, I didn’t have any past conflicts with him, so I let him off in the end…”

“You’re different, we’ve had too many conflicts. I won’t be so kind to you now that you’re in front of me!” Jackie said all of that in an incredibly casual manner.

David frowned in confusion.

He snorted before he said, “Are you crazy? Do you know what you’re saying? Don’t tell me you’ve already killed someone else before coming here?”

Jackie nodded, admitting to it honestly.

After David saw Jackie nod, he started to laugh out loud, as if he had heard a huge job.

He reached out and pointed at Jackie as he laughed, “It looks like there really is something wrong with your head. Are you hallucinating? You managed to kill someone? Who do you think you are? You’re a mere alchemist. How could you possibly kill any of the ten participants?”

Jackie let out a laugh, saying nonchalantly, “I’ll be kind this time. No matter what you say, I’ll answer you honestly. Not a single one of the participants is a match for me…”

“Other than Chris and Edward, killing the others will be incredibly easy! You’ll just end up dying after being tortured!”

After he heard that, David’s laughter got even more exaggerated. He felt like Jackie’s head really had been hit a few times too much for Jackie to say something so absurd.

Did Jackie think he was in the divine solidifying realm?

He actually said that the other participants were no match for him!

Did he think he was Chris?

Even Chris would not have said something like that!

David laughed maniacally within the isolated space, but the warriors in the viewing area were all silent. Looking at how exaggerated David was laughing, all of them had conflicted expressions on their faces. The more David laughed, the more clueless they felt David was.

Someone said helplessly, “David will regret this. I feel like Jackie is actually being honest with everything he said, and he might actually be able to do it. If David falls to Jackie, Jackie won’t let David off easily…”

“I can even imagine how David will be tortured. He‘ll definitely pay for everything he said!”

“Poor David. He probably won’t be able to accept that Jackie is stronger than him even in his final moments!”

The warriors from Chaos Continent started to discuss everything excitedly after they heard that.

The warriors from the Chaos Continent said loudly, “Oh please, the two of them haven’t even started fighting yet. We still don’t know who’s stronger and weaker, but you’ve already determined that David is no match for Jackie? Jackie has some skills, but compared to David, he should be an even match at most!”

“I feel like it’s probably not that bad. Jackie’s just exaggerating things. just listen to what he says. Other than himself, the other participants are no match for him at all? Who does he think he is? Does he think he’s better than Chris?”

Chapter 3163
” Jackie is strong, but Chris is not weak either! Unless he’s already completely mastered an upper earth rank technique, there’s no way he can do this!”

“I feel like Jackie really believes what he said, but it doesn‘t mean that he can actually do it. It’s because Jackie doesn’t know how strong the others are at all…”

“He’s so clueless that he‘s actually confident in himself. Jackie comes from Hestia Continent. They were sealed off by a strange power, isolating them from other worlds…”

“If it wasn’t for the Whirling World, they wouldn’t be able to meet the warriors from other worlds at all. So, Jackie doesn’t know how strong the warriors from the other worlds are at all!”

“I feel like that’s quite reasonable. I think so too. Jackie’s just saying that because he’s too ignorant! David should be about equal to him in strength…”

“There’s no way he’ll end the fight in one attack like last time. Luther had been stuck in a bottleneck with his technique anyway. That’s why Luther lost so quickly!”

The inner disciples of the Frenzied Blade Clan felt like their fellow disciple was being insulted, so they stood up and loudly shouted, “David uses a lightning attribute technique. If I’m not mistaken, Jackie probably uses a soul attribute technique!”

“Lightning attribute techniques are a natural counter to soul attribute techniques. Without that in play, the two of them might be even in terms of strength, but David’s technique counters Jackie’s. It’s very unlikely that Jackie will be able to win!”

“So that’s the case… David uses a lightning attribute technique. If so, then Jackie’s chances of winning should be thirty to forty percent at most. However, David will probably not be able to kill Jackie. He’ll probably just be able to heavily injured Jackie at most!”

“You’re right, that’s probably what’s going to happen. No matter what, we can‘t deny Jackie’s skills. Jackie might actually be able to win in the end…”

The discussions could not be taken back. Some people started to regret that they had not bet their spirit crystals on Jackie!

Jackie’s odds were the highest among everyone there. If Jackie was actually lucky enough to win, then those who bet on him would have hit the Jackiepot!

“I think you’re going too far there. Jackie might be strong, but his chances of winning, in the end, are minuscule. In my eyes, it’s absolutely impossible!”

“Chris and Edward aren’t the only ones who are strong. David is quite strong as well. Let’s look at what happens before we say anything else! I feel like there’s a good chance that David will just kill Jackie right here!”

Most of the warriors there might have acknowledged Jackie’s skills, but they still did not think that Jackie would be able to beat Chris in the end and obtain victory!

No matter how intense the discussions outside were, the two of them in the isolated space were not affected at all.

David was incredibly pleased with himself, feeling like he was incredibly fortunate to have met Jackie. However, there really was something wrong with Jackie’s head.

What Jackie said was too hilarious!

Jackie actually thought that he was unbeatable. Even a chosen disciple from the ninth-grade clan would not have dared to be as arrogant as Jackie. It was as if no one in the Whirling World was a match for him.

Jackie coldly stared at David, “Are you done wasting time? If you are, let’s start!”

After saying that, Jackie started to form seals. A hundred Soul Swords suddenly appeared in the air.

David immediately recognized that Jackie was using a soul attribute technique.

After seeing that scene, David laughed again, “You’re actually using a soul attribute technique. You’ll suffer even more now!”

Chapter 3164
After saying that, David retrieved a purplish-gold ring of thunder from his storage.

David waved the ring in front of Jackie and said, “Do you know what this is? An ignorant warrior like you probably doesn’t know what this is at all. You probably don‘t even know that ring-shaped weapons exist!”

Jackie’s lips twitched.

It was already the second time Jackie had seen a weapon like that. Even though he had not been in Middle Province for that long, he knew that weapons like that were not rare.

David felt like Hestia Continent was a completely rural countryside that had nothing. The weapons they regularly saw were probably weapons that the warriors of Hestia Continent had never seen before.

The viewing area outside of the isolated space was in a bit of an uproar thanks to what David said.

The warriors of Hestia Continent were so angry that some of them even started to curse at him on the spot, “Ignorant fool! What’s so special about ring weapons? It’s everywhere in Hestia Continent! He’s talking as if Hestia Continent has nothing at all!”

“That‘s right. So what if he came from Chaos Continent? He doesn’t know how to do anything other than speaking blindly!”

The warriors of the Chaos Continent immediately quarreled with the warriors from Hestia Continent in defense of David, “Is there anything wrong with calling all of you ignorant?”

“For so many years, all of you have lived in a closed-off world. You don‘t know how vast the outside world is at all!”

“That’s right, I feel like David is right. The only way we even met here is because Hestia Continent, Chaos Continent, and White Marsh Continent were on equal footing when the Whirling World was first created!”

“After so many years, Hestia Continent was sealed off the whole time. Your standards have fallen far behind ours. Can’t you even understand that? Don’t talk as if Hestia Continent is incredibly strong. Just look at this slaughter gambit. Of the ten participants, Jackie’s the only one from Hestia Continent! Doesn’t that prove how weak you are?”

Hestia Continent had fallen behind the other two worlds for various reasons.

That was something the warriors of Hestia Continent did not and could not deny. However, David mocked Jackie and said that Jackie could not even recognize ring weapons.

That crossed the line because ring weapons were not rare. Even if Hestia Continent had been sealed off for many years, they were not far behind to that degree.

David's words were a direct insult to the whole of Hestia Continent, so how could Hestia Continent's warriors accept that?

In the isolated space, Jackie coldly stared at David. He looked at the snide look on David's face, and could naturally hear what David was implying.

He snorted and said, "I can't believe you're so ignorant. Do you really think a ring weapon is a rare weapon? These things are everywhere in Hestia Continent, but I can't believe you think it's rare. You're really expanding my horizons here!"

Those words caused David's face to turn red. That pride he felt was suddenly completely deflated.

The warriors from Hestia Continent got excited in the viewing area after hearing that. Some of them even started to clap!

Someone loudly shouted, " Jackie is right! David's the one who's short-sighted. He actually thinks something that's found everywhere is rare. Who's the ignorant one now?"

Chapter 3165
After the warriors of Chaos Continent heard what Jackie said, their expressions soured.

They looked at the warriors from Hestia Continent who had gotten excited thanks to Jackie's words and really wanted to say something. However, they could not find anything to say at all, because it was impossible to counter Jackie's words!

David started to pant loudly in the isolated space, "Brat, you're still constantly trying to challenge me. Don't forget, this isn't the waiting area. We're already in an isolated space. Don't you know how bad things will end for you if you continue?"

Jackie snorted, "Then attack me. We've been stuck with you wasting time here. Are you done with your nonsense? If you are, then hurry up and attack. I don't want to waste any more time on you."

The moment he said that, David's temper soared even more. Both his hands trembled as he clenched the ring in his hand tightly, "Very good. Since you want to die so badly, I'll give you what you want!"

David shook the ring in his hand, and lightning started to ripple around the ring, letting out a crackling sound.

David looked at the ring and said, “This is something I spent a lot of money to buy from a master craftsman. It’s been with me for a long time, and a lot of warriors have died to the Thunder God Ring!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, so the ring was actually called the Thunder God Ring.

The name sounded like it was unbeatable. It was obvious that the name was given to make himself look better.

Even though Jackie did not know what the materials used to make the Thunder God Ring was, David was still someone who was not even in the divine solidifying realm in the end. He was just a young master.

There was no way the Thunder God Ring had been crafted with anything exceptionally expensive. Among the young warriors, the Thunder God Ring might be expensive, but when it came to the whole third-grade world, it was probably just average.

The Thunder God Ring was an incredibly exaggerated name!

Jackie said helplessly, “Aren’t you afraid that you can’t live up to the name? The Thunder God Ring? How arrogant!”

David raised an eyebrow nonchalantly, “I named it the Thunder God Ring because I’ll truly become the god of thunder in Chaos Continent eventually. You can’t begin to imagine my future accomplishments. It’s not wrong to name it that!”

“My technique is called Thunder Destroys All! Using the Thunder God Ring, the technique will be greatly enhanced! I thought that Chris would have found you before me, and I wouldn’t have had the chance to show you how strong my technique is…”

“I can’t believe fate brought us together to let you die in my hands. I’ll let you see what Thunder Destroys All is, and what an upper earth rank technique is!”

The moment he said that David’s hands started to move rapidly, forming seal after seal. The Thunder God Ring was like a beast with its mouth wide open, absorbing all of the seals within and starting to glow vibrantly.

The crackling thunder got even louder. Even the surroundings were stained in its glow. David’s feet slowly left the ground, and streaks of thunder started to emit from his body, resonating with the Thunder God Ring in his hand.

At that moment, David was already a man made of thunder that was glowing brightly. His whole body was surrounded by purple lightning!

Jackie raised an eyebrow, standing in place and not moving. Even though he asked David not to waste time, he was actually in no hurry to end the fight.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3166 - 3170 -

Chapter 3166
Even though David was nothing in Jackie's eyes, each battle was still a chance for him to improve himself.

Jackie's skills had already improved quite a bit, but he lacked experience. Hence, every time he met an opponent that was on the strong side, he would hold back, not giving up the chance to train himself!

After David rose into the air, he stopped. He looked down at Jackie with a cold smile, "Brat! You'll find out what happens when you offend me soon!"

Jackie could not stop himself from rolling his eyes after he heard that. Even now, David was still intent on wasting time.

Jackie could not be bothered to entertain him. He merely stood in place like an unmoving willow.

After feeling Jackie's gaze, David frowned. He clenched his teeth as he looked at Jackie, not saying anything else!

He let out an angry roar as he started to form seals with his hands again. The Thunder God Ring let out an intense glow, so bright that it forced people to shut their eyes.

They heard a loud crackling sound as a ray of thunder shot right at Jackie. Jackie hurriedly retreated, avoiding the strike!

David's lips curled up in disdain as he said, "You managed to avoid the first one, but you can't avoid the rest! Since you managed to avoid one thunderbolt, how about ten!"

After he said that, ten thunderbolts shout out with a boom, shooting right at Jackie again. Those ten bolts took up a large area, and they charged over incredibly quickly! Unless Jackie had a speed technique, there was no way Jackie would be able to avoid it!

At that moment, the warriors in the viewing area all held their breaths! If Jackie could not avoid it, he would definitely get injured from that attack!

Jackie activated the laws of space. When the thunder was only three feet away from him, Jackie disappeared from the spot, appearing two hundred feet away!

Right after that, a huge boom was heard. The spot Jackie was previously at, turned into a massive crater after being damaged by the thunderbolts!

David was stunned at the sight.

He had thought that he would be able to deal with Jackie in one blow. Yet, Jackie had actually managed to avoid it.

David came from the eighth-grade clan, the Frenzied Blade Clan. Even if he was not as high-ranked as Chris was in the Purple Cloud Pavilion, his skills were still regarded highly.

David immediately recognized that Jackie had used the laws of space.

He frowned as he coldly said, “I can’t believe you actually know how to use the laws of space!”

Jackie smiled lightly, not bothering David at all. In his eyes, being able to use the laws of space was something incredibly normal, but David did not seem to think so.

Jackie knew that David never regarded him as normal from the start!

The laws of space were something only masters could wield. David thought that Jackie did not have the right to use them at all!

The warriors in the viewing area were in an uproar again. They had witnessed Jackie’s skills before and had thought that his skills would be around David’s level.

They never expected that Jackie was able to use the laws of space. Even if it was just a minute, it was still far stronger than most warriors.

Chapter 3167
Even talented warriors were not able to master the laws of space after many years of training, yet Jackie could actually use some of it. He was even able to use the laws of space to avoid David‘s attack!

” Jackie’s skills far exceed my expectations. I thought he already revealed his strongest techniques to us, but it was just a small part! Jackie’s too strong!”

“It looks like Jackie actually has a decent chance of winning. After all, with the laws of space, he’ll be able to use it to get close to David as long as he manages to avoid David’s long-range attacks! He would be able to launch a sudden attack that David won’t be able to stop!”

“Now I’m sure that Jackie will win! Even if it’s just a small part of the laws of space, as long as he uses it well, he’ll be able to seize the initiative! It doesn’t matter if the two of them are about equal in strength, but as long as Jackie constantly avoids and dodges David‘s attacks, David‘s true energy will be spent eventually. Then, David will just be a fish on the chopping board!”

“What’s the point of his attribute countering Jackie’s? His technique is too amazing. David’s definitely in a rough position. If this continues, this might turn into a war of attrition.”

“If it becomes a prolonged battle, it would be a death sentence to David! After all, David’s Thunder Destroys All uses up a lot of true energy each time he attacks!”

The disciples of the Frenzied Blade Clan could not take it when anyone said that David would definitely lose.

One of the inner disciples said loudly, “What do you know?! Stop trying to curse David. Do you think David doesn’t know what you’re saying? Do you think he‘ll let Jackie keep on avoiding his attacks and use up his true energy? Anyone who can say something like that clearly lacks experience with combat!”

Everyone had their own things to say. The viewing area went into an uproar once again.

David did not know that arguments had broken out because of them since he was in an isolated space.

At that moment, he had electricity in his eyes as he coldly looked at Jackie, “No wonder you dared to act so arrogantly in front of us, saying you’re not afraid of anyone. It’s because you mastered a bit of the law of space so you can avoid my attacks!”

After he said that, David let out a cold laugh as he said with disdain, “That’s a naive thought! So what if you’ve mastered the laws of space? It’ll only let you run. If you can run, can’t I just stop you from running? Don’t think it’ll be that easy!”

Jackie looked up and said calmly, “I’m not the one thinking things will be too easy, but you.”

David’ s lips twitched as he was rendered speechless.

He found that he had no way of guessing what Jackie was thinking no matter what. He felt like Jackie kept on surprising him more and more.

David narrowed his eyes and said in a low voice, “I know how you’re planning on winning. Aren’t you planning on using the laws of space to constantly avoid my attacks and expend my true energy?”

“Then, you’ll wait until my energy is spent before you attack, right?”

Jackie’s lips twitched as he shook his head seriously.

He had never thought of doing that. He used the laws of space just because he wanted to see how strong David’s attack was, but David seemed to make his own conclusions!

David did not know what Jackie was thinking. He merely looked at Jackie's calm demeanor and got even angrier.

Jackie always looked like he did not care, as if anything that happened around him would not affect him at all.

David hated seeing Jackie like that. He narrowed his eyes as he formed seal after seal again, fusing the seals with the Thunder God Ring.

Chapter 3168
Suddenly, the Thunder God Ring glowed a lot more vibrantly. Many more thunderbolts shot out.

This time, Jackie was already prepared. After the thunderbolts shot out, he fixed his gaze right on them, preparing to avoid them at any moment. However, Jackie was surprised when the thunderbolts did not head for him at all, but the air around him.

After some crackling noises, countless thunderbolts struck his surroundings.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as surprise flashed on his face.

What was David trying to do?

As Jackie was feeling confused about it, he was shocked to realize that the area where the thunderbolts struck had countless small currents around them.

Those currents did not disappear immediately and instead seemed to linger in the air. Thunder constantly struck, and in just a moment, their surroundings were completely surrounded by currents!

David had a smile on his face as he shouted again, "Let's see how you avoid it now!"

The moment he said that Jackie understood what was happening. He frowned as he activated the laws of space again.

This time, it was not as smooth as usual. When he activated the laws of space, the small web-like currents were stuck in space.

The space that Jackie could use had a lot of electricity stuck in it. Jackie let out a low roar as he activated all his true energy to summon up all the laws of space he could control.

The space that was filled with electricity was incredibly hard to move in. When Jackie appeared again, he was only thirty feet away from his earlier position.

With Jackie's mastery of the laws of space, he would have been able to move at least two hundred feet in one go if the electric currents had not interfered. However, the currents present greatly affected Jackie's use of the laws of space. Even after giving everything he had, he was only able to move three hundred feet!

His ability to avoid any attacks had been greatly diminished.

"Hahaha," A string of laughter came from the air.

Jackie looked up to see David incredibly pleased with himself.

David said loudly, "Are you panicking now? I have already told you. Those meager skills of yours aren't even worth mentioning in front of me. Did you think that you're invincible just because you know how to use the laws of space a little? I still have my ways to deal with you!"

"If you have mastered the laws of space to a level worth nothing, I really might not be able to do anything to you. However, you only know a tiny bit of it! I just needed to use a few of my skills, and you're already captured in my net! Let's see how you'll avoid my attacks now!"

Seeing that, the discussions in the viewing area changed again.

A lot of the warriors from the Chaos Continent felt like they could finally breathe sighs of relief.

Those ignorant fools from the Hestia Continent had talked down on David so much for their own pride. It was the warriors from the Chaos Continent's turn to have something to say.

The warriors from Chaos Continent started to speak loudly.

Chapter 3169
"Did you all hear that? That's the gulf between them! So what if he knew how to use the laws of space a little? In front of true masters, it's all for naught! David has a way to overcome anything Jackie can throw at him! Even if Jackie has some skills, he won't be able to escape David's grasp!"

"Without the laws of space, Jackie will have to face David's attacks head-on. The countering of attributes isn't something that can just be played around with. Jackie is in trouble now!"

" Jackie's plans have all gone up in smoke. His movement has been confined to thirty feet. He won't be able to completely avoid David's attacks. Looking at him, it probably took a great deal of effort for him to even move that far."

“The true energy he needs to use the laws of space is probably now comparable to what David needs. Even if he wants to deplete David’s true energy, his own energy is depleting too! His plans have been foiled! I just wonder how long Jackie will be able to take David head-on.”

The warriors all felt like Jackie’s chances of winning were not that high at that point.

They felt like he probably only stood a twenty or thirty percent chance of winning. Unless Jackie still had other trump cards, Jackie would definitely lose. He might not die, but he won’t be able to avoid heavy injuries.

One of the disciples from the Frenzied Blade Clan said loudly, “Let’s see how much he wants to brag now! He completely looked down on everyone before this. He really deserves a proper beating! Now, David will be able to deal with him properly. There’s no way he’ll get to be that arrogant now! It would be best if he could be dealt with in one go. I don’t want to see his arrogance anymore!”

After he said that, a lot of the warriors of Hestia Continent were quite unhappy.

The warriors from Hestia Continent had felt that Jackie’s actions had been humiliating because they did not know how strong Jackie was before.

They had thought that Jackie participating in the slaughter gambit would only embarrass them. However, Jackie had used his skills to change their minds.

Jackie had suddenly become Hestia Continent’s biggest hope!

Jackie being insulted by the disciples of the Frenzied Blade Clan made the warriors from Hestia Continent quite unhappy, “The results are yet to be seen, so stop bragging! Even if it’s a bad matchup in terms of attributes, if Jackie manages to perform normally, it’s still impossible to tell who’s weaker! Jackie might still have some trump cards. David is no match for him at all!”

An inner disciple from the Frenzied Blade Clan countered, “What trump card? How could he have a trump card? Even if Jackie does have more trump cards, do you think David doesn’t? Jackie can’t win because he can’t win, there’s no need to argue about it anymore”.

“Even though the match hasn’t ended, the results are plain for everyone to see! Jackie will definitely lose. If you’re free to help Jackie argue, shouldn‘t you be praying for Jackie to not die from this instead? Otherwise, the consequences will be disastrous for Jackie!”

David was so happy at that moment that his smile reached his ears.

When he saw Jackie frown, he was happier than if he picked up a million spirit crystals on the street. He was already quite familiar with Jackie's temperament at that point. Jackie was really good at acting.

No matter what others said or what happened, Jackie was able to act like he did not care. Even though he was excellent at acting, Jackie actually started to frown, revealing his inner worries.

David guessed that Jackie must be incredibly terrified at that moment!

He was probably incredibly worried that he would lose and be tortured until he died. David was already dreaming about how Jackie would look as he kneels on the ground and begged for mercy.

That would feel great. He would definitely pay back for all the anger Jackie had caused him. Jackie would definitely be tortured!

At that moment, other than a slight frown, Jackie did not reveal much emotion.

He had not frowned because he was afraid that he would lose. Instead, it was just the first time he was not able to easily use the laws of space. His opponents before this had all not really reacted to this technique.

Chapter 3170
It was the first time Jackie had encountered anyone who could restrict his laws of space.

The fact that David could do it probably meant that Chris and Edward had their own ways as well! It looked like he would need to leave the laws of space for crucial moments in the future. He could not let his opponent's know of his abilities!

David narrowed his eyes before he started to form seals once again. He was eagerly looking forward to Jackie kneeling and pleading to him. He did not want to waste any time as his seals fused into the Thunder God Ring again!

The Thunder God Ring glowed as ten more thunderbolts were shot at Jackie!

The sounds of thunder resounded in his ears, and Jackie knew that he could no longer avoid them. He was forced to face it head-on!

He let out a sigh before he formed seal after seal, condensing forty Soul Swords in the air.

When he faced Luther, Jackie had not held back and formed a hundred Soul Swords to kill Luther immediately. However, he did not want to do that at that moment. David's skills were quite a bit better than Luther's.

To Jackie, David was quite a good whetstone to sharpen his battle experience. That was why he merely formed forty Soul Swords. He wanted to see what the result would be if he only used the first stage of Destroying the Void!

This place was different from before. Forty Soul Swords in the outside world was different from within the Whirling World.

After all, the Whirling World restricted everyone's abilities. Everyone had been restricted to the late stage of the innate realm. Back then, he had needed to use his techniques to make up for the difference in power.

Yet, everyone was on the same level there. It was a true test of technique against technique. He wanted to see what the results would be when a technique at the second stage of the upper earth rank went against an upper ultimate god rank technique.

With that in mind, he shot forward and rushed right at the thunder!

Quite a few of them widened their mouths in shock when they saw what happened.

Was Jackie crazy?

He was rushing right into the thunder.

Was he not afraid of being burnt alive?

Soul attribute techniques were naturally bad against thunder attribute techniques. Hence, Jackie's techniques were already handicapped. Even if Jackie was strong, the warriors in the viewing area all felt like Jackie was definitely going to lose!

He was definitely no match for David in a head-on fight. He was looking to die!

When David saw Jackie rushing forward, he laughed as he shouted, "Since you want to die, I'll grant you your wish!"

Jackie never cared about what his opponents had to say. His eyes were only looking at the thunder. He let out a shout, and forty Soul Swords condensed into one massive one, fusing into Jackie's sword.

With a slash, the sword clashed with the vibrant thunder. Everyone merely heard a boom as the two attacks clashed violently against each other.

Waves and waves of energy were pouring out. At that moment, everyone's eyes were widened. Even if the light was incredibly bright, hurting their eyes, they were still not willing to avert their gaze. They were worried they would miss out on any detail.

After some crackling noises, the gray slash sliced the thunderbolts in half!

The gray slash had noticeably lost a portion of its power, but it still raced toward David!

Jackie raised an eyebrow. It was just like he thought. The power of an upper ultimate god rank technique was not to be challenged. It was a whole level apart. Even if Jackie only used the first level, the result was obvious for everyone to see!

He let out a sigh as he changed his mind. He controlled the slash that was flying in the air and made it dissipate.

It was still not time for the final strike. He did not want it to end so quickly.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3171 - 3175 -

Chapter 3171
Jackie turned around and headed back to the ground, standing firmly.

At that moment, David was already stunned. He looked at Jackie in disbelief.

It was then did David realize that Jackie did not just know how to use the laws of space. Jackie was actually not weak either.

Otherwise, how could Jackie have split open his attack?!

David's lips trembled slightly as his expression stiffened. When he realized the fact, he was naturally not very willing to accept it However, he was still forced to!

David gulped as his expression darkened. He glared at Jackie through clenched teeth.

After a long time, he finally spoke, "So you're actually not that weak. Were you just putting on an act the whole time?"

Jackie was speechless after he heard that.

He had never tried to put on an act. He had even told all of them quite firmly that they were no match for him. Yet, they always refused to listen. They felt like Jackie's words were a joke. They did not believe him nor accept what he said.

Now that they saw the truth, they ended up accusing him of faking everything. Jackie was incredibly exasperated at that moment, not knowing what to say.

After a long time, Jackie finally spoke, "What is wrong with your heads? Tell me, when have I ever put on an act? In the waiting area, I answered everything you asked me honestly, you were the one who refused to believe it."

David replied furiously, "Aren't you an alchemist?! How could an alchemist possess skills like that? What else could it be other than you putting on an act?!"

Jackie let out a laugh before he took out his sixth-grade alchemist badge from Mustard Seed.

He lifted the badge and shook it around, "Look closely! I've never put on an act. I really am an alchemist. I'm not just a sixth-grade alchemist either. Are alchemists not allowed to fight?"

David’s lips stiffened when he saw the sixth-grade alchemist badge and he gaped slightly.

He felt like something was stuck in his throat. He was unable to say anything. Upon closer inspection, David was sure that the badge was real.

It really was a sixth-grade alchemist’s badge. Even though they were from different worlds, the patterns and seals on alchemist badges were the same. There was no way to falsify it, and Jackie’s name was even on it.

David’s lips twitched as he struggled to find something to say. It was clear that Jackie was not lying. It was just that they misjudged Jackie because they were too stuck on their own impressions. However, they could not really be blamed for that.

In the first place, Jackie was from Hestia Continent. Just that alone would have invited them to look down on him.

Secondly, Jackie was an alchemist.

Whether it was in Hestia Continent, Chaos Continent, or White Marsh Continent, it was practically impossible for alchemists to be strong when it came to combat. That was common knowledge!

Alchemists usually put all their thoughts and focus on alchemy.

How could they have time to practice fighting?

If an alchemist was stronger than warriors that dedicated themselves to combat, it would be unreasonable!

Yet, everything that he had seen that day had shattered David’s preconceptions! Even if he hated Jackie, he still had to accept that truth. The viewing area once again exploded in an uproar thanks to Jackie.

Jackie had faced David head-on, and actually did not lose. They had also seen that the slash still had some power to it after breaking through the thunder.

However, it had just consumed too much energy to hold on to its form, causing it to disperse in the air. None of the warriors there realized that Jackie had been the one to disperse the slash.

Chapter 3172
Jackie had done that earlier to trick those who were watching his battle. He wanted everyone to think that the slash had expended all its energy and dispersed in the air instead of him dispersing it.

After all, if the truth was revealed, there would be no reason to continue the fight.

David was completely stiff. He remained floating in the air, but his eyes started to lose their calm for the first time. They quickly reddened as he started to look like a ghost that just climbed out of hell.

His lips constantly twitched, and he seemed like he was constantly burning with intense rage. He stared at Jackie viciously, wanting to curse at Jackie, but not able to find a reason.

All those things he had said to insult Jackie before this had suddenly lost their meaning.

Jackie was not trash, but a warrior that could stand on an even footing against him. Jackie was not just an alchemist, but a warrior that could rival him.

He could not help but place Jackie in the rankings of the Frenzied Blade Clan. Based on what Jackie had shown thus far, Jackie would at least be in the top ten!

Just thinking about that caused David's face to twist. All of that had completely shattered his prior experiences.

When were alchemists ever able to do all that?

Since when did alchemists end up being at the same level as him in combat?

The more David thought about it, the angrier David got. He really wanted to just slice Jackie up, but it was not that easy!

He composed himself for a long time before he widened his eyes and said, "Even if you weren't lying, you still intentionally put on an act before. You wanted to mislead us so you would be able to shock us at times like this. You really are full of tricks. I've never met a warrior as dishonorable as you before!"

Jackie's lips twitched in exasperation when he heard that. Even if he did not lie, he was still putting on an act.

Jackie snorted, "You've already completely muddled up the truth. Since I didn't lie, how was I putting on an act? You've already been completely blinded by your hatred. You refused to acknowledge my skills, insisting on blaming me…"

"Why can't you just admit that you were blind? I've never hidden anything from anyone, it was just you who had thought that my actions were crazy. After that, you even constantly ridiculed me in the waiting area, saying that you'd show me your skills…"

As he said that, Jackie let out a laugh.

He looked at David coldly, “Well, I’ve seen your skills now. It’s nothing special!”

David was absolutely furious. His face started to swell in anger as he clenched his teeth, “Don’t think that you can win just because you were capable of facing me head-on. I still have some tricks up my sleeve. Don’t get too excited!”

David had said all of that through clenched teeth. It was obvious how angered he was.

They were facing each other in the isolated space, and outside the isolated space, the viewing area was in an uproar.

The fight was constantly changing, and their mood was with it. It started with everyone thinking they would be evenly matched to them siding with Jackie after seeing Jackie use the laws of space.

After that, they saw that David had suppressed Jackie’s technique, and the odds seemed to be in David’s favor. The situation had been overturned yet again. After experiencing everything, all of them were incredibly excited!

“Oh my! This is entertaining! I thought that Jackie rushing at the thunder would have been his last move! Yet, he was actually able to face that attack head-on without any fear!”

Skip to content

Chapter 3173
“You can’t blame us for being so excited. Even David himself was shocked. Just look at his expression. He clearly doesn’t want to accept the truth…”

“He finally realized that Jackie’s no pushover. Jackie won’t just focus on running away. Jackie’s skills are equal to his. Even with the advantage in attributes, Jackie managed to face one of his attacks without any fear!”

“That’s right. I feel like David ‘s just barely holding on. His mental state is probably already in complete disarray!”

“His face is already starting to turn purple. He must be suffering inside!”

As they said that, quite a few of them shook their heads helplessly, even starting to sympathize with David. After all, David had not seen Jackie’s duel with Luther earlier.

David had always felt like Jackie was just an ant that he could kill at any time. Yet, the ant had turned into a phoenix. Even he could not really face Jackie.

Would that not mess with his head?

“If I was David, I probably would not be able to keep it in! I’d go crazy with anger. After all, he’s ridiculed Jackie so much, but it turns out he was just the one who had been blind. Jackie really is strong, and he looks like a complete clown now!”

That person hit all the right points. Quite a few people agreed with him.

David’s expression was so sour at that moment probably because he was remembering everything he had said before. All of those words had come back to slap him in the face.

Jackie really did have the skills to not be afraid of everyone there, the others were just ignorant!

Those discussions turned into the main topic of conversation, causing quite a few people to lose their calm.

The ones from the Purple Cloud Pavilion and the Frenzied Blade Clan were the primary ones affected. After all, Jackie’s conflicts with Chris and the others had been seen by everyone. Their conversations in the waiting area had been spread everywhere too.

During that time, not a single person regarded Jackie nicely. In truth, nothing would have happened if no words were spoken, but Chris, Edward, David, and the others kept on ridiculing Jackie. They made Jackie seem completely useless.

Now that Jackie had proven his skills, everything they had said before this seemed like a complete joke. The disciples from their clans could obviously not remain calm.

One of the inner disciples from the Purple Cloud Pavilion said, “Before the conclusion, you shouldn’t be in such a hurry to praise him! This guy is a bit skilled, but so what? He’ll just die in the end anyway. His appearance just caused us some surprise!”

A warrior from Hestia Continent heard that and immediately countered, “Can you not be so stubborn? Even with what Jackie’ s currently shown, even Chris would need to think twice about facing him. The final victor isn’t certain yet! Best to watch what you’re saying right now because once the final results are out, those words might end up slapping you in the face!”

One of the inner disciples of the Frenzied Blade Clan said with a sour look, “Stop being so reactionary. Jackie is strong, but he’s not strong enough that he can ignore everyone. This is just the start. There are still many battles waiting for him!”

Chapter 3174
“It’s still early in the game. Don’t make conclusions so early. No matter what you say, we won’t believe you! You warriors from the Hestia Continent really are quite amusing. After so long, someone like Jackie finally appeared. All of you suddenly seem so proud of yourselves!”

The warriors from Hestia Continent were thoroughly angered by those words. They were not willing to just accept it and shouted back loudly.

“So what if we’re proud? Jackie is strong. Is there anything wrong with being proud of that? Do you remember how all of you seemed so proud of yourselves when you looked down on us?”

“Didn’t you act like that because you have some very strong warriors from your worlds? Now, look at how you’re acting. Are you the only one allowed to be proud? Who do you think you are?”

The tension in the viewing area was immense.

The warriors from all three worlds did not like each other. Those warriors wanted nothing more than to gather themselves to go against the warriors from the other worlds.

The place had lost control of itself!

At that moment, the ones feeling the most frustrated in the viewing area were the disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion of Hestia Continent.

Their disciples naturally knew who Jackie was.

Grayson had issued an order to capture Jackie alive no matter what. Yet, with what was happening in front of them, they were suddenly at a loss for what to do. Jackie’s skills had exceeded any of their expectations. If Jackie really managed to survive, his fame would soar. Then, many forces would throw olive branches at Jackie.

If that happened, it would become much harder to deal with Jackie. Yet, Grayson had issued a firm order. If they did not complete it, they would have to take responsibility!

An inner disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion clenched his teeth and said, “Why does it have to be Jackie?! The Unbreaking Pavilion must just be fated to have trouble with Jackie. Ever since we met Jackie, our troubles have never ceased…”

“First, so many of our men died in that level nine city. After that, So many things happened in Thousand Leaves City and Prosper City. We’ve never managed to gain anything from all of them. If he survives this, the Unbreaking Pavilion might end up being targeted by Jackie. It would be a big problem if that happens!”

A chosen disciple next to that man frowned and said, “You’re worrying too much. Even if he wants to deal with our clan, he’s just one man… We have so many men, why would we be afraid? As long as all of us remain united, he would have no chance to do anything to us!”

The inner disciple sighed as he looked at the chosen disciple, “I’m not trying to praise him at our own expense. It’s rarely a good idea to offend someone as talented and strong as Jackie.”

“You’re right, he’s alone, while the Unbreaking Pavilion has strength in numbers. However, that also means he has much more freedom! If he gets the chance to ambush our disciples, a lot of us will die!”

Those words were the crucial points of the conversation.

Just like that inner disciple said, the Unbreaking Pavilion had the advantage of numbers, but it also meant that they were not as flexible. Jackie was too strong.

If Jackie encountered any stray disciples, there would only be one result!

Over a long time, a numbers advantage would be useless. They would need to gather all the disciples together to stop Jackie from getting these chances.

After the disciples around him heard that analysis, all of them started to frown. It was definitely a problem they would have to face, and it was a serious enough problem that their lives were at stake.

Chapter 3175
After thinking about it for a long time, the chosen disciple said, “Let’s not jump into things too quickly. The slaughter gambit is still on. Jackie might not be able to leave this alive. There’s still one problem for him. Chris is very strong. It won‘t be easy for him to kill Chris!”

In the isolated space, David finally calmed down after a long mental struggle.

No matter how much he hated Jackie, he still needed to deal with what was in front of him. He had to kill Jackie, or the consequences would be horrible!

David took a deep breath before he raised his chin and said, “Aren’t you feeling pleased with yourself? You think that you can win just because you faced one attack from me. Let me tell you, it’s impossible!”

“I haven’t even shown you my last and strongest attack. I was planning on leaving it for Chris, but surprises always happen. I actually need to use it on you!”

After saying that, David’s whole body glowed brightly.

Everyone heard a shriek as six wings suddenly appeared behind David. Those wings glowed intensely, making him look like a god.

David formed seal after seal, and the wings constantly danced. Thunder constantly jumped around those wings! David's aura had changed. His sharp eyes were actually glowing purple.

He looked like a massive current himself, glowing brightly in the air.

He said loudly, "This is called the Wingest Thunder God Possession. It's the strongest attack I can use! It's also the second strongest attack within Thunder Destroys All!"

"Prepare to receive my anger, Jackie. You'll definitely not be able to stand up to this! Even Chris would need to retreat and avoid facing it head-on, let alone you, whose skills are countered!"

Jackie's lips twitched after hearing that.

He laughed and said, "You just love to brag so much! What do you think Chris would do if he heard what you said? Would he try to avoid facing you head-on after hearing that?"

Sure enough, Jackie was always able to strike David where it hurt. David was absolutely furious, wanting to rip Jackie apart. His hatred was already at its peak!

He already decided that he would even burn his blood essence if he could not kill Jackie with this move. After all, it was survival of the fittest within the isolated space. Even if he had to pay for it with his life, he would make sure Jackie died with him.

At that moment, David had already been driven completely crazy by Jackie. He was like Blade form before, willing to even discard his own life!

Jackie did not know what David was thinking, but it would not make a difference anyway. If David wanted to hurt himself, they would see if he could last!

Jackie took a deep breath, forming many seals with his hands.

Sixty Soul Swords suddenly appeared in front of Jackie. Those Soul Swords glowed dimly, like an arrow show out of hell. It was obvious they were dense with soul energy!

Jackie said loudly, "Come! I want to taste how strong your technique is. However, let me remind you, this is my last attack too."

David glared at Jackie hatefully. He shouted out, "Brat, I'll kill you!"

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3176 - 3180 -

Chapter 3176
The moment that was said, rumbling thunder reverberated across the sky. It was as if the sky itself was about to be split open by the thunder.

The six wings on David's back started to move faster and faster. Countless runes were released from the wings, heading toward the Thunder God Wing. The thunder started to take a reddish-gold color.

With David at the center, faint electricity currents surged at about 60 meters around him. They seeped into David's intense killing intent, and it made for an awe-inspiring sight.

Jackie took a deep breath as he adopted a relaxed expression. Even after that final attack, Jackie still planned on testing himself.

At that moment, he adjusted Destroying the Void to the second level.

The first level used 10 Soul Swords, the second used 50, and the third used 100 of them. Jackie had condensed 60 Soul Swords, enough to be at the second level.

The two of them looked up at the same time. Looking at David suspended mid-air, Jackie aimed to break that so-called Winged Thunder God Possession.

With a crackle, a 15-meter-long thunderbolt shot right at Jackie.

He frowned as he jumped into battle again, rushing toward the thunderbolt. He let out a roar as he slashed his sword.

The gray slash looked like a crescent blade in the night. It went at a speed invisible to the naked eye as it aimed toward the massive thunderbolt.

After that, intense crackling sounds could be heard. The spot Jackie was at was already covered in the golden glow. Everything happened so abruptly that the spectators could barely catch on and predict the outcome!

At that moment, a gray slash the size of a fist broke through the golden light and quickly sped toward David‘s chest.

David had already spent all his energy at that point and was in a very weakened state. When he saw the slash flying at him, he suddenly panicked. However, his battle instincts kicked in swiftly, and he managed to evade the attack.

Yet, Jackie had already imbued the laws of space into that slash. Despite the fact that the slash was still 15 meters away from David, it appeared right in front of him in just a flash.

David let out a cry as he frantically tried to avoid it. At that moment, he shuddered as he cried out. However, it was all too late.

With a thud, he saw the gray-colored slash piercing his heart. The intense pain caused his whole body to stiffen. After that, he lost all sense of reasoning as he fell from the air, much like Luther did. He plummeted to the ground and was evidently incapacitated beyond relief.

Jackie landed back on the ground as well. He looked on as David writhed on the ground in pain just like Luther had. Sure enough, most people reacted the same way when it came to pain in the soul.

The pain completely burned away all sense of reasoning. He was no longer even able to use the true energy in his body, which caused him to drop to the ground from the air.

Jackie raised an eyebrow. Even the power of 60 Soul Swords could not be underestimated. It really was an upper ultimate god rank technique. Against such a technique, upper earth-rank techniques were nothing.

The Winged Thunder God Possession?

A fancy name it was, but it posed no threat at all to Jackie.

Jackie let out a laugh as he slowly walked toward David.

He controlled the power within David’s body, ensuring that Destroying the Void slowly consumed David‘s soul.

He still remembered what David had told him in the waiting area. David had said that he would slowly torture Jackie to the point he understood the difference between their powers.

Jackie remembered everything David said, and it was time for him to pay the price.

The situation was completely different from what David had said. Jackie was the hand that dealt judgment instead, and David slowly understood the immense difference between them.

Chapter 3177
David spasmed in agony as his snot and tears stained his whole face. He no longer carried the same demeanor as he did before.

It led everyone to sigh.

The warriors in the viewing area once again fell silent. No one could say anything about the result.

It did not matter if they had supported Jackie or if they had thought that he would lose. After witnessing everything that had happened, not a word came from them.

David had said that he had a trump card, but the warriors there did not react too much to what he said. After all, they felt like Jackie would also have a trump card as well. Now that they saw the trump cards of both sides, they could not remain calm.

David had sent out his strongest attack, and Jackie had faced it calmly. The results far exceeded their expectations. Jackie had easily dealt with David's strongest attack, winning the battle!

All this while, Jackie barely reacted against such a powerful attack, too. There was no difference from when he faced Luther!

A disciple from the Chaos Continent gulped and said, " Jackie's far too strong! I don't even think he has shown us everything. He might still be able to be even stronger…"

"That explains why Jackie acted so calm the whole time, he's been holding back. Even David's strongest attack was beneath his notice!"

"That's right! He's too strong! I don't even know if Chris would be stronger than him. Before this, I thought that Jackie wouldn't be able to compare to Chris even if he's somewhat skilled, but now, I think I may stand corrected!"

" Jackie didn't participate in the slaughter gambit because there was something wrong with his head or because he was ignorant. He really does have the skills to stand against Chris!"

"This fight was so entertaining, and I had a good time watching it. I'm really looking forward to Jackie's fight with Chris now. It's going to be entertaining for sure! It's just a pity that my one and a-half million spirit crystals have gone down the drain. I shouldn't have bet on David. I'm regretting it so much!"

Most of the warriors there had bet on either Chris, Edward, or David. After all, the three of them were recognized as the strongest.

Just thinking about Jackie's incredibly high odds, they deeply regretted their actions. With the odds being so good, they would have gotten back over three million even if they had just bet half a million!

A lot of them were filled with regret, and the ones who regretted it the most were the warriors of Hestia.

Back then, the warriors of the White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent had been fighting so hard to prove that Chris or Edward was stronger.

To stand up for a warrior from their own continent, they had bet their spirit crystals on someone from the same continent. The warriors of Hestia should have done the same, betting on Jackie in solidarity, yet they had thought that he was an embarrassment instead. They even wanted to say that he was not one of them!

Thus, all of them had bet on warriors from other worlds, but as they saw Jackie's skills, they deeply regretted their actions. They wanted to slap themselves in the face!

It was all too little, too late. They were forced to silently lament everything. If they had placed two million on Jackie earlier, they would have gotten at least 17 million once the slaughter gambit ended.

Just thinking about that large sum made them excited. Alas, there was no cure for regret in the world.

Chapter 3178
In the isolated space, Jackie calmly looked on as David writhed on the ground in pain.

He thought of how arrogant David had been before they entered the isolated space, and the memory only amused him.

Warriors like David loved to render their judgment on others so that they would be able to show how much more talented they were compared to everyone else.

Every time he bumped into someone like that, Jackie would want nothing to do with them. However, people like them would be relentless if he ignored them, and they would do everything they could to make him admit that they were more talented than him. Just because of that, they would form a grudge against him.

Jackie let out a laugh as he felt Destroying the Void consuming David's soul.

At that moment, David's soul had already been mostly consumed. At this rate, David was at death's door already.

He still had some things to say, so Jackie formed a seal and stopped Destroying the Void's power within David's body, causing it to dissipate. David slowly regained his sanity.

David was already on the brink of death at that point. He only had a few breaths left in him.

He opened his eyes with great difficulty and saw Jackie standing next to him. The first thing he did was to use his divine senses on his own body, which caused him to notice that only a third of his soul was left.

He realized that he did not have much time left.

No wonder Jackie stopped. Even at the end of his life, he was still deeply afraid of the pain. If he knew that he would not need to bear the pain much longer, he was still terrified. That was because the pain of his soul being torn apart was far too difficult to bear.

He would rather die than suffer the pain again. He gulped as his entire body shuddered.

His lips trembled as he feebly spoke, “Just let me die… I admit defeat!”

David no longer cared about his honor or dignity at that point, having discarded them at this point. The pain in his soul had caused him to toss aside his dignity as someone strong.

Jackie let out a laugh. “Then kneel in front of me right now, beg me for mercy like what you said I’d do before this. If you do that, I can consider letting you off.”

David‘s face stiffened and paled. His eyes were completely red, and he felt like he was about to go crazy.

Jackie wanted him to kneel and beg him!

Earlier, he did put his honor aside by admitting defeat, but that did not mean he had discarded everything. If he was to kneel and beg Jackie for mercy on the spot, it would completely shatter whatever honor he had left.

David felt like he would not be able to do that, even if he died, he would not do it.

David looked around him. Even though there was nothing around, David knew very well that all the warriors in the viewing area must be staring at him and Jackie with widened eyes.

If he did so, it would be him tarnishing the Frenzied Blade Clan’s reputation before he died. He could dishonor himself, but he could not dishonor his clan!

For the sake of dying a quick death, he would be forced to kneel in front of his opponent. The opponent was even from Hestia, a place that he had always looked down upon!

He panted roughly, already at the brink of collapse. He was deeply afraid of the pain of his soul being ripped apart, but he could still not bring himself to cross that line.

Various emotions surfaced in his heart, and David suddenly felt something up his throat. He spat out a mouthful of blood and coughed intensely as his whole body trembled.

Chapter 3179
Jackie looked at David, who was on the brink of death, and suddenly let out a laugh. “Do you still remember what I told you before?”

David coughed violently as he looked up slowly after hearing Jackie’s words, his expression muddled with conflict.

Jackie did not wait for David to answer as he continued, “I told you that I’d make you repeat everything you said after entering the isolated space. I kept you alive instead of continuing to torture you to death precisely for this!”

He slowly bent his knee as he spoke, staring right into David’s eyes. He looked on and said, “You said I was too arrogant, that a mere alchemist could never dare to challenge you. You said I didn‘t know my place and that you’d show me, through your actions, the gap between the two of us. Do you remember all that?”

Jackie was unperturbed when he spoke as if he was talking about what he had for dinner.

David’s lips twitched as he could not stop himself from thinking about what had happened in the waiting area.

He had held himself to such a high standard and treated Jackie like he was worthless.

To him, Jackie was nothing more than a joke. Yet that joke was torturing him to extremity at that moment. Even if he did everything he could, he was still no match for Jackie.

David’s whole body shook, and even the muscles on his face started to twist.

Jackie continued, “You said that there’s a gulf between the two of us. Can you please explain to me what the gulf is?”

“You even told me I didn’t know how strong true experts are. Can you please explain to me right now how strong they are? I really do not know.”

Hearing that, David’s breathing got even more erratic as his pale face slowly turned red. He felt like he was completely humiliated.

Hearing those words again made it look like he was being unbelievably arrogant. He wanted to defend himself, but he did not know what to say.

Jackie's words had naturally spread to the ears of the warriors in the viewing area. Hearing that, the warriors could not stop themselves from sighing.

Before entering the isolated space, Jackie's conversation with David had been spread all around the viewing area, and none believed in Jackie.

How the tables have turned. He had looked down upon everyone else because he did have the right to do so.

There truly was a gulf between Jackie and David, but it was Jackie who had the higher ground while David was merely dirt on the ground.

A wandering warrior in the viewing area could not help but shake his head and say, "This world really is full of surprises. I can't believe David was the conceited one! It's true after all that no one should ever be underestimated!"

A warrior of high status next to him said, "I always knew something was wrong with Jackie. By that, I don't mean he's a lunatic, but his actions are just far too strange."

"Made our conclusions about him far too quickly, and we didn't know anything about him, so he felt like everything he said was too much of a joke. However, I feel like anyone sane would not have done anything so absurd without a reason."

"That's why I felt like Jackie was hiding something. Now, it seems my guess is correct. However, he didn't really hide anything, it's just that I never imagined the truth!"

Chapter 3180
Before this, someone said that Jackie was an alchemist without any background. Could a wandering warrior really reach his heights? Not only is his alchemy exceptional, but his prowess is extraordinary too. He's no regular guy. Jackie can't be a mere wandering warrior!"

After that person said that, the wandering warriors around him shot back.

"Please don't mindlessly speculate. Just because you think it's impossible, doesn't mean others can't do it. So what if he's a wandering warrior? Are wandering warriors not allowed to be masters?"

"There are plenty of hidden masters among wandering warriors. Are disciples from high-grade clans the only ones allowed to be masters? I hate ignorant fools who like to assume things like you!"

The viewing area was filled with arguments, while David was barely holding on to his final thread in the isolated space. He had no response to what Jackie had said. He only felt like he was incredibly humiliating, and that he was a complete joke.

David slowly raised his head and said loudly, “Are you using a lower ultimate god rank technique?!”

Jackie was taken aback by his words. He never expected that David would say that after all he had said.

Jackie raised an eyebrow and laughed as he said, “Why do you say that?”

David took a deep breath before he summoned up the last of his remaining strength, “I’m no idiot… I felt how strong your technique was when I clashed with you…”

“I lost, and I’m willing to accept that, but I’m sure that even if I‘d perfected my Thunder Destroys All, I still wouldn’t be a match for you! That won’t be the case if your technique is the same level as mine… That’s why I’m sure that you’re using a technique higher than earth rank!”

After he said that, he laughed at himself, “I can’t believe I mocked a master among masters. After all this humiliation, I accept that I was ignorant.”

After he said that, the soul in David’s body could no longer hold on. It dissipated completely. With a thud, David fell to the ground, and he breathed his last.

Jackie merely chuckled. He knew that David did not need his answer, but David still guessed wrong, even if the answer was very close.

Destroying the Void was not a lower ultimate god rank technique, but a higher one.

Jackie shook his head slightly before he shot one last look at David’s corpse. After that, he turned around and headed in another direction.

The image of a person flashed in Jackie’s mind. The next person he needed to deal with was that person!

The isolated space was silent once again, but the viewing area had erupted with noises. David’s final words ignited the emotions of all the warriors in the viewing area.

After someone heard David‘s words, they said, “What did David say? Jackie’s using a lower ultimate god rank technique? Do my ears deceive me? A lower ultimate god rank technique?”

“You heard right. If you hadn’t, there’s no way the viewing area would be in such an uproar. It was a lower ultimate god rank technique!”

“David seemed very sure of himself when he said that as well. He was dying anyway, so there was no reason to fool around. What David said after that seemed logical as well. I feel like Jackie has definitely used a lower ultimate god rank technique!”

“What?! Is it true? I refuse to believe ultimate god rank techniques would be so easy to learn. Even divine solidifying realm experts might not be able to learn them! Jackie’s not even over sixty years of age, so can he really compare to someone in the divine solidifying realm?”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3181 -3185 -

Chapter 3181
The only thing I can say is, there's always someone better. This guy is an absolute master!"

"Before arriving at the Whirling World, I had a feeling there would be a monster who was able to use a lower ultimate god rank technique gathered among all the masters in the Whirling World. I can't believe I saw one so quickly!"

"It's unbelievable. We thought he was a weakling with a damaged brain, but he's practically a god among us!"

Due to what David said, the viewing area was completely bustling. Compared to how excited everyone was, however, the expressions of the Unbreaking Pavilion's disciples were all sullen as if they were at a family funeral.

The inner disciple from before looked at the massive scroll in the air helplessly. After a long time, he slowly said, "What kind of misfortune have we brought on ourselves? A lower ultimate god rank technique? That's not something to be played around with. Can we even deal with it?"

Another inner disciple next to him said, "Of course we can't. Unless we attack him with great numbers, it won't be a problem for him to deal with us one or two at a time…"

"Even if we attacked him in a group, he can use the laws of space that he mastered to escape. We'd be the ones in danger!"

The one sitting in the middle of the disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion was their leader, a chosen disciple of the Unbreaking Pavilion. At that moment, his face was just as sunken as the others as if he had lost his whole family in a single night.

He frowned and thought about it for a while. "Let's stop discussing this. We should hurry and report the news. After Grayson learns about it, he'll definitely make the best decision. Then, we'll just have to follow his orders!"

Back in the isolated space…

David's corpse slowly got colder as time passed. Four hours after Jackie left, Chris arrived.

When he saw the lifeless body, he thought that the corpse might, again, be Jackie. However, he was stunned when he landed. No matter how he thought about it, he would never have guessed that the person who died was David!

Chris frowned as he hurried over. With a wipe, he noticed that David's corpse had already gone cold, much to his surprise. Even though only one person would survive the isolated space, David should not have died so quickly after entering the slaughter gambit with his skills.

Chris had assumed David would have been one of the last ones standing, one that he would battle and win against. Even Edward might not have the skills to kill David!

For David to have died so early into the match…

It made Chris have doubts.

Chris knelt and observed David's corpse. After his study, Chris was surprised to notice that David had died just like Luther did. There was no trace of any injuries caused by weapons on the corpse, and the soul had been torn apart.

From the attacks, the person who killed Luther and David should be the same person. When he realized that, Chris' expression changed.

He frowned as various thoughts surfaced in his head. That mysterious warrior had not just been capable of killing Luther, but David as well. This meant that the person's skills should at least be at his level!

Chapter 3182
He could not believe that an expert like that was hidden among the 10, but who was it?

Why had he failed to sense that person before?

Chris had a certain level of understanding of Edward. From the attacks, the two of them had not died to Edward.

Who was this, then?

How did this person hide everything so well that even Chris failed to notice?

At that moment, Chris was no longer in the mood to care about Jackie. The first thing he needed to do was to find this person before making his plans. He could leave the others aside for the moment, but this person had to die.

He could not leave this person to live on. If he did, unforeseen surprises might happen!

Chris' eyebrows furrowed tightly as his expression soured. He had thought that winning the slaughter gambit would be incredibly easy, but it seemed like he had been too optimistic.

He took a deep breath as he looked up. The clear skies had no clouds in them, and everything looked incredibly peaceful. However, he knew that the slaughter had already begun. If he did not want to die to that mysterious person, he had to make his moves carefully.

At the junction between the jungle and desert regions…

A dense forest was to the east, while to the west was an endless wasteland. The border was clearly defined, making for a magnificent sight. However, there were two people in there at that moment in no mood to admire the scenery at all.

Trevor frowned as he stared at Marco Reus in front of him unblinkingly.

Marco was truly a daredevil. He had no background and relied on himself to get to where he was. When he looked at Trevor, who was from a high-grade clan, Marco was filled with disgust.

He hated these so-called masters who grew up in a life of luxury. He felt that true growth only came from experiencing life and death, walking at the edge of danger.

Even if he knew that someone as strong as Chris was taking part in the slaughter gambit, he did not back down. Chris was strong, but Marco was no weakling either.

With a trick or two, Marco stood a chance to win in the end. As long as he could win, he would not only be able to greatly benefit from it, but win the applause of everyone as well. He would gain the admiration of everyone and gain irreplaceable glory!

Meanwhile…

Trevor might have a serious expression, but he was not too worried. He knew the person in front of him. Both of them came from White Marsh Continent, and he had heard of Marco’s name before.

When Trevor saw that Marco was looking at him in disdain, Trevor’s expression soured. Being looked down on by a wandering warrior was a massive insult.

Trevor snorted coldly. “Are you looking at me with that expression because you think I’m not that highly ranked? Are you looking down on me because my odds aren’t good?”

Hearing that, Trevor himself started to get angry. Marco was just a wandering warrior with no background.

How dare Marco look at him with those eyes? It was a joke!

Marco snorted before he said, “I am looking down on you? Yes! There‘s nothing about you that’s worth my notice. Even though you’re from the Pentagram Clan, you’re only in the top fifteen at most. Among the ten warriors here, you're only average at most. Of course I'd look down on you!"

Chapter 3183
Those words triggered Trevor.

He was downright furious as he narrowed his eyes and said in a cold voice, "Even a wandering warrior like you dares to look down on me? True, my rankings aren't as good as the others, but that's something from half a year ago, and I've already improved greatly since then. I wouldn't even be afraid of David, let alone you!"

"If you were Chris, I wouldn't have said anything, but who do you think you are to look down on me? I'm already being very polite by not regarding you with contempt, but I can't believe you'd repay my kindness like that!"

Marco frowned and sneered, his anger starting to burn as his lips twitched slightly. "Don't think you can defeat me just because you're from a high-grade clan! Ever since I started as a warrior, I've killed so many so-called masters…"

"They might be talented, but their practical combat experience was dirt-poor. These daggers in my hands have drunk the blood of quite a few masters, and you'll be one of them!"

As he said that, he took out a pair of daggers from his storage ring, two of them were only about the size of a palm. They were small but incredibly sharp, quite different from regular weapons.

Normally, very few people used daggers as weapons since there were a lot of limitations. However, Marco had an affinity for using daggers and was very adept at using them as well.

He laughed and said, "You so-called masters always look at others with such arrogant expressions. Everytime I see you, I feel so disgusted. What gives you the right to be so arrogant? You're just warriors who got good resources…"

"Clans are like landlords in the mortal realm. You take up most of the resources and give them to your own disciples. Us wandering warriors are forced to struggle over what little remains, yet there are a lot of wandering warriors who carve a path for themselves with their own skills. If clans weren't around, all of you would be weaklings!"

Trevor was so furious that his lips trembled as he said loudly, "What kind of nonsense are you saying? Yes, clans do take a lot of resources, but that allows them to cultivate even more talented warriors."

"If you had the talent, you would've been accepted into a large clan. You clearly just failed the tests to enter the larger clans and aren't willing to enter a smaller clan at the same time, that's why you're a wandering warrior. Yet, you make up all this faulty logic to defend yourself. What a joke!"

Trevor felt like Marco's words were a complete joke.

Major clans did take a lot of the resources, but that was so that they could give excellent warriors the chance to become strong.

Every year, countless warriors participated in the tests to join the major clans. Any warriors with confidence in themselves would take part. Even though he did not know what Marco had gone through, Trevor was still incredibly certain of one thing: Marco had definitely taken part in the tests for major clans before but failed.

That was why Marco had carved out all those excuses to save his dignity.

Marco's expression soured greatly. Trevor's words had hit him where it hurt. He narrowed his eyes slightly as he sentenced Trevor to death in his heart.

He raised his voice and said loudly, "Do you know what the consequences of your words will be?"

"I've always had an easy time killing others, and anyone who provokes me never gets a good ending. I'll make you regret what you said!"

Trevor's expression did not change, those words barely fazed him, too. He pulled out his sword from his storage ring.

Marco wanted to kill him, and he, likewise, wanted to kill him as well.

Chapter 3184
Marco's words had thoroughly angered Trevor, and they both regarded each other as mortal enemies internally.

The atmosphere suddenly grew tense as if they were both ready to attack at the next moment.

At that moment, footsteps were suddenly heard in the distance. The two of them paused at the same time as they turned and looked over. They saw a man in green robes walking over towards them slowly.

That person seemed incredibly calm as if he was admiring the sights. When Trevor saw who it was, his expression suddenly changed.

His lips twitched as his head filled with anger. "So it's you, Jackie! I can't believe you came looking for me before I even found you. It looks like you really want to die by my hands!"

When Jackie heard that, his lips curled up in an easygoing smile.

Trevor was right this time, Jackie really was looking for him. Before entering the slaughter gambit, Jackie had already planned on dealing with Trevor himself.

Trevor stared at Jackie with gritted teeth.

All their grudges from before this surfaced in his mind, causing Trevor to hate Jackie to the bone. Ethan had died at Jackie's hands, which meant that Trevor would be punished by the higher-ups.

This was why he had followed Jackie into the slaughter gambit. When Trevor saw the other participants, he started to hate Jackie even more. Because of Jackie, he had been too angry to even remember checking who the other participants were, which landed him in such a dangerous predicament.

After seeing Jackie, Trevor's hands shook as his true energy surged chaotically. Even the Polaris Sword in his hand started to hum. It was obvious that his anger was quickly eroding his rationality.

Marco narrowed his eyes before a chuckle escaped him.

"You really are a madman, always acting out of expectations. I guess you're here for Trevor?"

"Even if I look down on Trevor, I still have to admit that Trevor isn't as weak as you are. You looking for him here will just hasten your death. That's fine, though, at least you won't fall into Chris' hands. You know how much he hates you, and you'll only suffer unnecessarily if you walk into his hands."

Hearing the two of them speak, Jackie merely smiled as he looked at them calmly.

The noise in the viewing area quieted down, but when they saw that Jackie had found Trevor, the peace vanished instantaneously.

When they heard Trevor's words, they could not help but shake their heads internally. They could already see what kind of fate awaited Trevor.

Before this, two other people had said similar things to Jackie, yet both of their corpses had gone cold at this point.

Trevor' s grudge against Jackie had already spread throughout the viewing area before they even entered the isolated space. They knew that Trevor had participated in the slaughter gambit because he wanted to settle their score in the isolated space.

A warrior from White Marsh Continent shook his head slightly and spoke, “I thought that the two of them were just impulsive idiots, but it seems like Trevor is the only impulsive idiot. Jackie, on the other hand, participated in the slaughter gambit because he had the skills to!”

“There really are surprises everywhere. If someone told me before the slaughter gambit that Jackie has the skills to win in the end, I would’ve called them an idiot.”

“Isn’t that right? You’re not the only one who thinks that way. Everyone here thought that initially. The only thing I can say is that we really shouldn‘t be too quick to cast judgment on others.”

Chapter 3185
“I truly regret not just taking the chance and betting on Jackie back then. A warrior with a lower ultimate god rank technique. Other than Chris, no one has the right to face him!”

“I pity Trevor a little. He must be thinking that he’ll be able to squash Jackie like an ant and that his actions are driven by a mad mind. He’ll soon realize how laughable those thoughts are!”

“I’m beginning to feel bad for him. With Jackie’s temper, there‘s no way Jackie will let Trevor off easy. I’m certain that he’ll torture Trevor for even longer than he tortured David.”

No one had anything to say about that thought either. Unless Trevor was using a lower ultimate god rank technique as well, he stood no chance.

Everyone already knew the results of that fight.

The ones with the most complicated emotions at that moment were the other disciples of the Pentagram Clan. Evan and the others were still at the gambling area. Not a single person had left the viewing area, so there was no space for them there at all. All they could do was stand on their toes to watch what was transmitted on the scroll.

When they saw Jackie appearing in front of Trevor, Evan and the others felt a chill in their hearts. It was then did they realize how much of a joke their various actions were.

Back then, they felt like everything Jackie did was hilarious, but they realized that Jackie was not the fool in this story but they were.

They had actually made an enemy out of such an outstanding master. They were the ones who were unlucky!

At that moment, Evan felt his tears pooling in his eyes. He really wanted to rush into the isolated space to tell Trevor not to say anything and to run away. At least then Trevor might be able to stay alive.

If Jackie ended up fighting against Chris, Trevor might be able to find an opportunity and get out alive, but only one result awaited Trevor if he faced Jackie!

Evan‘s breathing got more erratic as he started to pale. The disciples behind him had similar expressions to Evan, and they were starting to lose hope.

An inner disciple from the Pentagram Clan said, “How did it get to this? Why is Jackie so strong? Isn’t he an alchemist? Where did he get so much time to learn everything?! This is unbelievable! Am I dreaming? I have to be!”

Evan glared at him viciously after hearing what he said. “What kind of nonsense are you saying? This isn’t a dream. Just pinch yourself and you’ll know!”

The inner disciple‘s lips twitched awkwardly. “It’s all too hard to believe! Could Ethan have been wrong? Maybe the Jackie he met before isn’t this one…”

“Whatever, just shut up!” Evan was already trembling in anger.

“Is this the time to say all of that? Rather than thinking about all of this, why don’t you think about how we’re going to report this to the main team when we meet them?!”

Evan and Trevor were both chosen disciples. With Trevor missing, he was the leader of the team.

At that moment, Evan was no longer hopeful. There was a very high chance that Trevor might never come back. Even when he was filled with pain, he needed to think about what he would do after this.

Trevor and Ethan were both extraordinary disciples. With both of them dead, it was quite a big blow to the disciples on the Pentagram Clan in the Whirling World.

At that moment, they needed a long discussion if they would seek Jackie for revenge or forget about it. After all, they were not in the outside world.

Going against a master like Jackie would have big consequences even if they had so many of them around!

At that moment, a familiar voice was heard, “I thought that Trevor would ‘ve been killed by someone else before met Jackie. It seems like Trevor is quite lucky. He didn’t even encounter a single battle after so many hours and managed to survive this long!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3186 - 3190

Chapter 3186
Rudy did not say all of that to challenge them, but merely because that was what he thought.

In the end, the fact that Trevor had managed to be safe for so long was because his skills were not that strong, but not that weak either. He came from a high-grade clan and although he could not compare to Chris, Edward, and their ilk, he was not weak

Chris and the others had seemingly left a mark on everyone else.

Trevor had basically been hoodwinked into this slaughter gambit. He had joined because he did not want Jackie to be killed by anyone else. He did not know that anyone would leave a mark on him, so he had not checked for them at all.

Naturally, they had yet to be cleared.

Everyone who left a mark on him knew where Trevor was at that moment, but he had not been targeted because he possessed skills and came from a good background.

Chris, Edward, and the others wanted to get rid of the weakest before the final battle started. That would prevent any unexpected situations and Trevor happened to not be among those. Furthermore, Trevor was from an eighth-grade clan.

Leaving him for the last was a form of respect toward the Pentagram Clan. However, Rudy did not think that deeply about it. He merely lamented Trevor's good luck.

Evan turned around to look at Rudy with a complicated expression. He still remembered how they completely looked down on Jackie and Rudy. On top of that, with Ethan's grudges against Jackie, they had automatically grouped those two as enemies.

Even Ethan starting a death match against Jackie had been just a nuisance in Evan's eyes. After all, alchemists were all weaklings in their eyes.

Yet, they never expected that their grudges against Jackie and Rudy would get deeper until they reached that state. There was no longer any way to repair their relationship. Furthermore, Jackie's abilities were unbelievable. Evan doubted that he would even be able to escape from Jackie.

At that moment, Evan was already starting to regret everything. If they had stopped any conflict with Jackie after the death match, things would not reach this point.

Yet, it was already too late. The slaughter gambit had already started, and Jackie was already standing in front of Trevor. The two of them were definitely going to fight.

Evan took a deep breath and said, “The two of you were just putting on an act all along! Your acting skills were too good, and you managed to trick all of us. However, even if Jackie is strong, you can’ t hide his underhanded tricks!”

“Don’t think that the Pentagram Clan will be afraid of you two because of this. We’re an eighth-grade clan in White Marsh Continent. We have plenty of strong warriors…”

“Even if we’re currently in the Whirling World and restricted by age, we still have many strong chosen disciples to support us. The strength of our top two disciples is much stronger than Chris. If the two of them were here today, you wouldn’t be so pleased with yourself!”

Hearing that, Rudy just felt incredulous.

He coldly snorted and said, “Idiot! You were the one who was being stubborn. You clearly refused to give us any leeway, and now you know the results of that. To regain your dignity, you can say anything. When did we ever put on an act?”

“Were we the ones who provoked you first? Do you have a goldfish’s memory? Don’t you remember how we met? Ethan was the one who ran up to us like a madman, spewing all these harsh words…”

“Ethan wanted to regain his honor which was why he started a death match against Jackie. Then, he wasn’t skilled enough and died in the arena. Was that us putting on an act?”

Chapter 3187
When that was said, Rudy had a look of disdain on his face. He hated those kinds of people the most, those who were sore losers.

Evan’s face reddened in anger. His chest rose and fell, looking like he was about to faint from his anger at any moment.

He paused for a long time before he said, “Stop trying to be obstinate. Even if Ethan’s grudges were not acting, what about after that? Wasn’t the slaughter gambit a trick you pulled?”

“He kept on saying that he would give Trevor a chance to kill him so that Trevor would fall for it! Both of you actually already knew what he was planning!”

He finally found a reason. When Evan said all of that, he looked like he had been deeply wronged, and was seeking justice for himself.

Rudy pursed his lips, unable to stop himself from laughing. He narrowed his eyes and looked at Evan like an idiot.

“You think that’s called acting? Jackie said he would give Trevor a chance to kill him, why is that called an act? Isn’t that a chance? A chance needs to be seized. Who can you blame but Trevor for not having the skill to seize it?”

Evan’s face darkened in anger. His rationality had been completely burned away by Rudy’s words. He reached out and grabbed Rudy by the collar, raising his right fist and aiming it right at Rudy’s face.

He was just about to send his fist over when the disciples behind him quickly pulled him back. They grabbed onto both of Evan’s arms, and someone even held onto Evan’s waist, pulling him aside.

At that moment, Rudy was infuriated as well.

After Evan let go of his collar, he adjusted his clothes in anger. He stared coldly at Evan and shouted, “You want to fight me? Come on then! If you don’t do it, then you’re just a coward! I can‘t stand people like you!”

Evan’s face reddened even more after hearing those words. His veins popped as he clenched his fists tightly.

He glared at Jackie with clenched teeth. Even if the disciples behind him were frantically holding him back, they could not stop him from struggling.

He had already lost all rationality at that moment. Even if he needed to pay for it with his life, he would teach Rudy a lesson!

An inner disciple that was pulling Evan’s right arm said bitterly, “Evan, calm down. This guy is trying to trick you, you mustn’t fall for his trap. The moment you attack, you’ll end up being punished. You won’t be able to survive it!”

Evan who was still struggling, shouted back, “Stop trying to stop me! So what if I die? Before I die, I’ll vent my frustrations on this brat! These two shameless and despicable guys have harmed us so much. We can’t let them be so pleased!”

The disciple that was holding onto Evan’s left arm was almost crying, “Evan, calm down! Jackie’s skills are unfathomable, do you think Rudy’s skills can be that bad? Before you hit him, you’d already have been punished…”

“Then you’ll turn into ashes, while he’d be perfectly fine. Wouldn’t that be completely pointless? He’ll end up being even more pleased with himself. Just think about it!”

Those last words successfully calmed down the rage in Evan. He panted heavily as his entire body shuddered.

Chapter 3188
The disciple was right.

Jackie was so strong that he could use a lower ultimate god rank technique, so how could Jackie's follower be any weaker?

The guy in front of him might even be his equal.

The moment Evan attacked, he would not just fail to kill Rudy, but he would die instantly from being punished by the laws as well!

That would be completely pointless.

He snorted lightly, "Let me go. I've already calmed down. I won't do anything reckless!"

After hearing Evan's words, the disciples holding him back slowly relaxed their hands and let go of Evan.

When they saw that Evan was no longer acting impulsively, they breathed sighs of relief.

If Evan died there, they would really not be able to explain anything.

Rudy smiled in disdain, "You really are a coward!"

Evan's anger soared again after hearing Rudy's words. However, he did not allow his anger to take over his rationality this time.

He could tell that Rudy had said all of that to provoke him into attacking so he would be punished by the laws. Evan let out a scoff, "I won't fall for your trick! We don't even know what will happen yet. We still don't know who will win!"

After hearing that, Rudy laughed again, "Then you can just wait and see!"

The gambling area was incredibly bustling, and the isolated space was similar. At that moment, Trevor looked incredibly happy as he narrowed his eyes and stared at Jackie.

"I thought that I would be able to kill you myself by participating in the slaughter gambit, but you just went crazy insulting everyone. I had lost any hope of killing you myself then…"

"I can't believe you want to die by my hands so much. You came looking for me before I even found you. Even luckier that you found me before Chris found you. It looks like Lady Luck is smiling upon me!"

As he said that, Trevor's smile was already threatening to split his face in half. Trevor's smile was incredibly sinister as if he had found his prey!

Jackie let out a laugh as he remained calm as if Trevor would not be able to affect Jackie no matter what Trevor said.

Marco frowned, feeling like Jackie was acting stranger and stranger. Ever since he stepped into the waiting area, Jackie had constantly surprised him.

He had already regarded Jackie as a complete madman.

Trevor had said so much, but Jackie did not feel threatened at all, remaining calm and quiet. There was even a smile on Jackie's face.

It was as if whatever Trevor had said just now and whatever was about to happen had nothing to do with Jackie at all.

Marco said curiously, "Could you really be crazy? Everything you're doing right now only makes you look like a madman. Don't you know what you're about to experience?"

"Do you think you can't escape Trevor? Don't you know the gulf between alchemists and true warriors?"

Jackie raised an eyebrow before he finally looked at Marco.

He did not have a deep impression of Marco. After all, the only ones who could leave an impression on Jackie were only the stronger ones.

Chapter 3189
In the waiting area, Marco had sat by the side, remaining quiet no matter what anyone said.

Jackie frowned, "I think you're called Marco, right? You're a wandering warrior from White Marsh Continent That makes the both of us wandering warriors, so why are you talking to me like this?"

Jackie had no intentions of challenging Marco with those words, he was just curious as to how Marco was so confident.

Both of them were wandering warriors without any background, but Marco acted like he was a master from a high-grade clan.

Marco's face darkened, getting angry at Jackie, "This has nothing to do with being a wandering warrior. You're a worthless wandering warrior, but I'm different! Furthermore, you come from the trashiest place, Hestia Continent!"

“Even though I’m a wandering warrior, I came from White Marsh Continent. White Marsh Continent has plenty of resources to improve my skills. Even without a high-grade clan to rely on, I can still carve a path with my own skills!”

“Hestia Continent has no resources nor do they have any masters. The limited resources have already been cleaned up by your major clans. There are no resources left for wandering warriors at all! What’s more, you’re only an alchemist and that makes it even worse for you!”

Saying that Marco raised his chin proudly.

Jackie scoffed, successfully getting angered by that guy. It was one thing to insult him, but Marco had even insulted Hestia Continent.

Jackie never expected that Marco would be so proud of his status as a wandering warrior and even insult him.

Jackie snorted as he looked aside, not bothering Marco at all.

When Marco saw that Jackie was completely ignoring him, Marco started to get angrier. If he was looked down on by others, he would prove them wrong with his power. Even if he was angry, it would not affect his rationality. However, he could not: stand being looked down on by Jackie.

Who did Jackie think he was?

Marco furrowed his eyebrows and walked forward, “Brat! You dare to ignore me? What gives you the right to do that? Today, even if Trevor doesn’t kill you, I‘ll be waiting by aside to get rid of you at any moment. I’ll slowly torture you after that. I have the time anyway!”

Jackie’ s lips twitched helplessly.

They were all familiar words and phrases. Anyone who had a grudge against him would always threaten him like that. He could even hear it a few times in a single day.

Jackie was already so numb hearing those words that it made him almost yawn. Marco said he had a lot of time, and Jackie naturally had the time to keep Marco company.

Since that was the case, Jackie turned around and said to Marco, “So what if I’m ignoring you? I’m not just ignoring you, I’m also looking down on you! We‘re both wandering warriors, but all you do is brag! You said that you carved a path for yourself by going through many hardships. What can’t you say?”

“Do you think we’re all idiots here? If you had enough talent, you would have been accepted by a high-grade clan. Did you need to suffer as a wandering warrior?”

Marco's face reddened in anger after he heard that.

Trevor could not help but laugh at the side. Earlier, he had struggled to come up with things to say against Marco.

It seemed like Jackie had quite a good mouth on him even though he was crazy. He had successfully shut Marco up.

Marco widened his eyes, "You've successfully angered me now!"

Jackie said in exasperation, "So what? Did I say anything wrong? You said you're stronger than me. How so? I have yet to witness that, so can't I look down on you?"

Marco was absolutely infuriated. He clenched his teeth and shouted back, "You dare look down on me?!"

Chapter 3190
Marco's actions were practically just asking for trouble.

Jackie let out a laugh, going along with Marco, "I do look down on you. The caretakers placed our odds so close together. It means that even the caretakers think that you're nothing special."

"My odds were at seven point five, while yours were at seven point one. There's only a difference of four decimal point, but you speak as if there's a massive gulf between us. Is there anything wrong with me saying you're bragging?"

Marco felt like he was about to explode from anger, "Stop using the odds, they don't mean anything! The fact that our odds are close is just a reflection of the caretakers' thoughts!"

"The caretakers merely use their surface level impressions to determine the odds. They don't know the difference between us at all. Even the warriors in the viewing area know more titan the caretakers. Just pull any of the warriors from the viewing area over. They'll be able to tell you who's stronger between the two of us! They'd be even more accurate than the caretakers!"

Marco's words had been heard by all of the warriors in the viewing area via the massive scroll.

All of those warriors had complicated expressions on their faces when they heard that.

Some of the warriors lamented, "We naturally know how the two of you compare. We are clearer than the caretakers as to who is stronger, it's just that it's completely different from what you think!"

“If Marco knew about the truth, he would definitely be filled with regret. Honestly, I agree with Marco’s words but in a different sentiment that the odds the caretakers set really are a bit off…”

“They’re underselling Jackie. If I was the one to determine the odds, I’d give Jackie the lowest. Even one point one percent odds would be too high!”

A man in blue robes looked like he wanted to say something, but stopped.

The man beside him looked over and said, “I know you’re close to Marco. Do you think he’ll be able to beat Jackie?”

As the man said that, he seemed to have a mocking look on his face.

It was no longer a question of whether or not Marco could win, but how long Marco could survive against Jackie.

The blue-robed man’s face darkened, knowing that he was being mocked. He snorted, not saying anything. When it was obvious that the blue-robed man would not answer, the man lost interest.

After that, with a serious tone, he asked, “Do you have any hopes for Marco? You have to answer me. If you don’t, I’ll keep asking questions and annoy you to death!”

The man was adamant that he wanted to chat with the blue-robed man. Even if the blue-robed man was not willing, it seemed like he had no choice.

He was forced to say, “All I want to say to him right now is for him to shut up!”

He really was quite close to Marco. The two of them knew each other since they were young.

They were friends who had gone through many things together. He was naturally worried now that Marco was in danger. After witnessing Jackie’s skills, the blue-robed man could already see how things would end for Marco. He had thought that Jackie would not trouble Marco so much since they did not have any conflicts between them, and would give Marco a quick death.

Yet, something seriously went wrong with Marco’s head.

Marco seemed insistent on offending Jackie, trying his best to show Jackie how much better he was than Jackie. He seemed to have successfully angered Jackie.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3191 - 3195

Chapter 3191
With Jackie's personality, he would definitely not let Marco off easily!

The blue-robed man had his hand against his forehead, "Marco, I'm begging you, shut up! If you keep on talking, Jackie might not even leave your corpse intact!"

The blue-robed man had always treated Marco like a brother. As he said that, the blue-robed man looked like he was about to start praying.

Even if the blue-robed man was incredibly conflicted for Marco's sake, Marco seemed to have no intentions of stopping within the isolated space.

At that moment, Marco only seemed to have one thought in mind. He wanted to kill Jackie himself, and torture Jackie to his heart's content!

Trevor could no longer wait. He felt like listening to their nonsense was pointless.

"Alright! I don't want to waste any more time listening to you two! Jackie! Every additional breath I let you take just makes me feel uncomfortable. It's time to settle our grudges!"

As Trevor said that, he formed seal after seal.

Countless seals started to merge into the Polaris Sword in his hand.

The sword started to glow in silver light. It started to glow brighter, and with a whoosh, a silver flame was formed on the sword. The flames burned more and more intensely. It had a strange glow, even distorting the air around it!

The silver flames soared higher and higher. After a few moments, it turned into a flaming beast!

The beast was the size of two fists. The moment it was born, it started to violently spit out flames around it. Its eyes glowed silver as he glared right at Jackie!

Trevor gently stared at the beast on his sword, "The technique I'm using is called the Polar Annihilation. My sword was made specifically for it. The power of stars has condensed fire into it."

"This flaming beast is made with starfire! Let me remind you, starfire is different from regular fire. The moment it touches you, it will burn you to the core. Unless it burns you to a crisp, it won't go out!"

Saying that, Trevor paused for a moment before looking at Jackie. He had a proud smile on his face, “You must have never seen anyone using an upper earth rank technique before! Before you die, I’ll let you witness one!”

Jackie’s lips twitched, not knowing what to say at that moment.

The warriors in the viewing area actually laughed after they heard that.

“What did Trevor say? Jackie has never seen an upper earth rank technique? I‘m going to lose my teeth from laughing too much. Even lower ultimate god rank techniques aren’t anything much in Jackie’s eyes, let alone upper earth rank techniques. Even if Trevor was using an ultimate earth rank technique, it would only be at Jackie’s level. What’s there to experience…”

“Trevor looks like he’s still being kept in the dark. He knows nothing about Jackie’s skills at all. I heard that Trevor joined the slaughter gambit for the sake of killing Jackie himself…”

“I guarantee you, that decision is the worst decision he’s made in his life. Even if the top disciple of the Pentagram Clan wanted to kill Jackie, the chances are probably low, let alone a chosen disciple that isn’t even in the top ten!”

Chapter 3192
Rudy started to laugh out loud when he heard that in the betting area. Even his stomach started to hurt. He felt like Trevor was acting like a complete clown at that moment.

Trevor thought that he would definitely win, but Trevor was actually nothing in Jackie‘s eyes!

David’s skills were far above Trevor’s, but David still died in Jackie’s hands without even managing to put up a fight!

Rudy laughed so much even tears started to fall. He rubbed his eyes as he looked over at Evan.

Rudy said to him, “You guys said we were ignorant fools before this. Who’s the ignorant fool now? Are upper earth rank techniques that rare? He wanted to show it to Jackie? That’s hilarious!”

Evan’s lips twitched, really wanting to shout something back at Rudy, but he struggled to find anything to say. After all, Trevor’s actions really were pathetic at that moment.

In the isolated space, Jackie was speechless for quite a long time before he slowly said, “So it’s an upper earth rank technique. How amazing. Come on and show me, then!”

Even though nothing seemed wrong about those words, Trevor was no idiot. He could tell from Jackie's expression that they were not sincere at all.

Jackie even seemed to be teasing him!

Trevor's eyes twitched as he decided against wasting any more time with the conversation. His instincts told him that he might actually be angered to death by Jackie if he continued. After all, even Chris had failed to beat Jackie's mouth.

Jackie did not care who the opponent was. As long as he did not like the person, the person would be thoroughly angered.

Trevor took a deep breath, not waiting any longer as he clutched the Polaris Sword tightly. His eyes had a violet glint on them as he slashed right at Jackie with one hand.

At that moment, he was so quick that only an afterimage was left. It was obvious that Trevor's technique focused on speed, but it was not that high ranked. Still, it was enough to deal with ordinary warriors.

Jackie snorted, feeling like Trevor did not practice what he preached. Trevor kept saying that Jackie was beneath Trevor's notice, but when Trevor attacked, he seemed incredibly serious.

It seemed like Trevor was afraid of any surprises as well, so Trevor planned on making sure his first strike hit. It would not kill Jackie immediately, but it would cripple Jackie.

With that thought in mind, Jackie merely stood on the spot, not moving. He started to form seals with both his hands, and gray seals started to form in the air.

Sixty Soul Swords were suddenly formed. Those Soul Swords looked like spirits dancing in the night, floating in the air.

Jackie clapped his hands together, and the swords merged into a massive Soul Sword, fusing into the gray sword in Jackie's hand.

Jackie was already incredibly familiar with Destroying the Void and could control everything easily. The killing intent coming from in front of him caused Jackie to raise an eyebrow.

If the person in front of Trevor had really been a normal alchemist, he might have been terrified. However, Jackie was not just an alchemist. Alchemy was just a way for him to earn spirit crystals.

He had never paid much attention to alchemy. Trevor roared angrily, "Die, brat!"

The beast around the Polaris Sword roared at Jackie.

From its silver eyes came a bloody glow!

Chapter 3193
The flaming beast charged right at Jackie.

Jackie let out a laugh as he shot out his blade. The gray slash pierced through the body of the flaming beast.

The silver flame that was burning intensely suddenly looked like cold water had been poured on it after being pierced by the gray slash. The flames were suddenly put off!

Everything had happened too quickly. It exceeded any expectations.

Before Trevor could even react, he felt a chill in his neck. Liquid started to flow out of his neck.

When he looked down, blood had stained his clothes.

Seeing that, he felt his mind go numb, unable to process what had happened. After that, another piercing was heard, and a sharp pain came from his wrist.

He looked down and saw that blood was frantically shooting out of his wrist. His tendons had been sliced by Jackie, and he lost control of his hand. He could no longer hold the Polaris Sword, causing it to fall to the ground.

The clanking of the sword assaulted Trevor’s senses. However, the pain did not stop.

Right after that, a piercing pain came from his legs. His legs lost the ability to support his body and he collapsed on the ground with a thud.

That was not all. He watched as the gray energy that came from Jackie started to seep into his body from the wound on his neck. After that, a wave of maddening pain was felt, causing him to cry out in agony.

He felt like his soul had been thrown into a nest of poisonous snakes. Those poisonous snakes bit him over and over again.

What was even more saddening was the fact that his arms and legs had been severed. He tried to move and escape the pain, but he was unable to even turn his body around. All he could do was twitch helplessly on the ground.

Cries of agony constantly came from his throat. He looked like he had been possessed by a demon.

Just looking at the sight would cause anyone to get goosebumps and retreat a few steps.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he looked at the scene calmly. He did not show too much expression, because everything was in his control. Other than Trevor's cries of agony, he heard the heavy breathing of another person as well.

He looked up toward the sound. Marco, who was so arrogant earlier, had paled as his hands trembled slightly. He stared right at Trevor, who was completely submerged in pain.

Jackie let out a laugh as he walked forward. He did not forget that there was someone else there other than Trevor.

When he heard the footsteps, Marco looked like he had been summoned by the god of death. He abruptly looked up and stared at Jackie with reddened eyes and fear.

It had only taken a few seconds from the start of Trevor's attack to Trevor crying out in agony on the floor. Everything had happened far too quickly. Since he had not known about Jackie's skills, Marco was filled with shock.

His breathing got more and more frantic as he retreated subconsciously.

Marco gulped as he retreated and said, "So you've always just been in a disguise! Aren't you despicable?"

"I said everything I did because I didn't know anything about you. If I knew you were this skilled, I would definitely not have said anything. Can you just show me some compassion and let me go?"

Marco really was afraid at that point. That was because everything that had just happened seemed too terrifying for him.

He was not some inexperienced wandering warrior. After going through so many battles, he could naturally tell that Trevor might have said that he looked down on Jackie, but Trevor had definitely used his full strength in that earlier strike. Yet, he was defeated with just one blow.

Chapter 3194
Jackie had attacked so casually, and Trevor's technique was like a piece of broken paper in front of him, ripping apart easily.

That gray slash had pierced through the silver flames like a massive rain that completely extinguished the flames.

Jackie let out a laugh after he heard that, "Just listen to what you' re saying. Don't you think it's hilarious? If my skills really weren't up to par, would you let me off if I asked?"

“You would just humiliate me even more. You wouldn’t even hesitate to attack. Causing me more pain would make you even happier!”

Hearing that, Marco felt a chill in his heart. Jackie would definitely not let him off.

After understanding that, he did not hesitate anymore as he turned around to escape. He activated all of his true energy, even burning his blood essence!

As long as he still had a chance to escape, he would not give up. However, there was no way Jackie would let him. At the moment, the distance between the two of them was four hundred feet.

Marco had calculated it in his heart. Four hundred feet greatly benefitted Marco. As long as Jackie did not have any speed techniques, he would be able to run away.

However, the moment that thought flashed in Marco’s mind, he heard a gust of wind blow past him. He turned to look and his eyes widened dramatically.

Jackie had already arrived next to him!

The gray sword pierced forward without hesitation, aiming right for his chest. Marco felt a chill as his blood started to flow out. After that, a bone-piercing pain was felt.

His soul was slowly being ripped apart from his chest. The pain was something no one could bear.

With a thud, he fell from the air, landing heavily on the ground. Jackie followed down as well.

Jackie let out a mocking smile. Even though he had never learned any speed techniques, he knew how to use some of the laws of space. He only needed to use the laws of space twice to reach four hundred feet away.

Jackie let out a laugh as he grabbed Marco‘s collar, pulling Marco toward Trevor.

They were not too far away, and he only needed to drag Marco for a little bit before he tossed Marco at Trevor. Marco landed three feet away from Trevor.

At that moment, both of them were being tortured by the pain of their souls being ripped apart. Since Trevor‘s arms and legs had been snapped, he could only twitch. Marco was in a better state, but the pain still caused Marco to lose all his rationality.

Marco constantly rolled on the floor, and his tears constantly flowed.

In just a few seconds, the arrogant man had turned into someone who looked like a beggar on the streets, incredibly pathetic.

Jackie looked at the two of them and did not show much emotion on his face. To the cries of agony in the isolated space, the viewing area was strangely quiet.

The result was within everyone's expectations. Seeing the two of them in such a bad state, the warriors there could not even let out a sigh.

One of the victims was a chosen disciple of a high-grade clan. As long as nothing happened to him, his future would be incredibly bright.

The other did not have any noble status, but he was rich in combat experience. He had been several times more talented than ordinary wandering warriors. Yet, the two of them had lost to Jackie without a chance to even fight back.

After a long time, someone said helplessly, "Do you think Jackie was putting on an act earlier? Was his act just too good? None of them could tell at all. Or maybe it was because they had too many preconceived notions that caused them to be blinded from Jackie's true strength…"

Chapter 3195
"Just look at how combative Jackie was from the start. Does that look like he's putting on an act? We thought he was too arrogant then, not understanding his place…"

"Now, we finally see that we were the ignorant ones. Jackie had every right to say all of that! From the start, he had no intentions of hiding anything, it was just that everyone else failed to see that face!"

"They thought that Jackie was just a crazy alchemist. Thinking about it now, any alchemist with a shred of logic would not have participated if he was not suicidal. Even warriors like us wouldn't dare to participate in the slaughter gambits."

"All of us have been talking about Chris' skills. We talked about it so loudly as well. There's no way he did not hear our discussions, but he still didn't seem to care. It means that he really didn't care. It's not just the warriors in the waiting area that didn't see through him, but all of us as well!"

"You're right, we were too wrapped up in our own preconceived notions. On top of that, he's even from Hestia Continent. We didn't think there was any other possibility at all. It's a pity that they don't have the massive scroll to see what Jackie is doing as we do. If they knew of Jackie's skills, none of them would dare to face Jackie head-on!"

At that moment, Evan was about to go crazy in the betting area. From the image on the massive scroll, he could clearly see Trevor constantly struggling on the ground.

Trevor's tendons had been snapped by Jackie.

That sight was so cruel that many averted their gaze. Evan had encountered a lot to get to where he was, but he still failed to control himself after witnessing that scene.

Tears constantly flowed. He was actually crying. All the disciples behind Evan looked incredibly miserable as well. They seemed to have lost all hope.

They were done for now!

There was no other consequence that awaited Trevor. Evan took a deep breath. His whole body trembled, hating himself for not stopping Trevor back then.

At the time, he might have looked down on Jackie, but he still felt like the slaughter gambit was far too dangerous. Unfortunately, Trevor had already made up his mind. Trevor had refused to listen to anyone else and was adamant that he would follow Jackie into the slaughter gambit.

“Trevor, you were too impulsive. Jackie was setting a trap, but you fell into it just like that!” Evan’s voice was trembling.

Rudy‘s lips twitched when he heard what Evan said. He wondered that even at this point, Evan still threw all the blame on Jackie. Just hearing that made him angry.

He turned to look at Evan and said, “I admit that Jackie definitely did provoke Trevor a little, but you can’t call that a trap. You were the ones who provoked us first and kept on challenging us… We just fought back a little, and you’re already pinning all the blame on Jackie. Did you not do anything wrong at all?”

Rudy hated people who refused to take responsibility.

Hearing what was said, Rudy had the urge to rush over and slap Evan a few times to wake him up.

They still insisted on pinning all the blame on Jackie. They refused to think about it.

If Ethan had not tried to start any trouble from the start, the death match would not have happened.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3196 - 3200

Chapter 3196
After Ethan died, Trevor completely exploded. He did not hold back with his words at all and constantly challenged Jackie.

Trevor ended up falling to Jackie, but the blame was put on Jackie for plotting against them!

Evan abruptly turned his head around. His reddened eyes glared at Rudy viciously.

Rudy stared back without any fear.

Evan clenched his teeth and said, “You‘d better remember this. We’ll make sure you pay for what happened today many times over. Don’t think this is the end!”

Rudy pursed his lips helplessly.

Evan decided to just resort to threats since he knew he had lost when it came to words. However, Rudy no longer felt anything when faced with that.

He looked at Evan in disdain, “True, there’s no way this matter is settled here. You want revenge on us, but we want to teach all of you a lesson too. This is just the beginning! Things will be even more entertaining in the future. Let’s just wait and see!”

After Evan heard that, his heart started to beat rapidly.

Earlier, Evan had just uttered those threats out of habit. He knew very well that, with Jackie’s skills, all Jackie needed to do was hide in the Whirling World. If he attacked whenever he had a good opportunity, the Pentagram Clan would be in a lot of trouble!

Evan looked at Rudy and could even start to see the constant trouble they would be in. He suddenly started to regret those threats he said.

Even if it had been unintentional, it still brought on a world of trouble. He averted his gaze and started to think about how he would report the matter, and how he would withstand Jackie’s revenge.

In the isolated space, Jackie’s hands formed seal after seal, stopping the power of Destroying the Void that was within their bodies.

Only, both of their souls had already been half-eaten by the time he did that. It was already impossible for them to fight back. If they could even live for another day, they could be considered incredibly lucky.

After the pain subsided, the two of them slowly regained their sanity. The one who woke up first was actually Trevor, who was more heavily injured. His eyes slowly got clearer. After that, he started to get filled with fear.

He no longer looked at Jackie with disdain and mockery. Instead, his face was filled with fear, shock, and various complicated emotions.

After a long time, Trevor finally said, “You’re… Jackie?”

He was even suspecting that the person in front of him was someone else in disguise.

When did alchemists get so strong?

Various ideas surfaced in his head, binding him tightly.

Jackie narrowed his eyes as he looked down at Trevor, “It seems like you really have been treating me like a madman…”

Jackie’s tone was calm as if he was talking about something incredibly simple.

When Trevor heard that, it sounded like a resounding thunderstrike. At that moment, all those ideas in his head disappeared.

He could not even think clearly!

Chapter 3197
He panted roughly, so angry that tears were about to fall, “You were just pretending the whole time? You’re not an alchemist? It was just an act? You told me you would give me a chance to kill you, but you were just setting a trap!”

Reality was cruel. Even at the final moment, Trevor did not want to believe it. Yet, with everything that had happened, he was forced to.

From that exchange earlier, Trevor could clearly feel how great the gap between Jackie and himself was.

Jackie’s expression had been so relaxed. It had not taken much effort to launch that attack at all, but it had shattered Trevor’s technique which Trevor was so proud of.

The technique he used seemed as weak as paper in front of Jackie. Even if it was shocking, it was still the truth.

After Jackie heard that, he smiled and said, “Do you think that I said I would give you a chance to kill me because I really want to die? That I wanted you to kill me? You always felt that I was an idiot and that I was crazy. In my eyes, you were the crazy one…”

“Who would be so free to give their lives to their opponents? If I didn’t have the confidence, why would I have participated in the slaughter gambit? Do you think I didn’t know how dangerous the slaughter gambit is?”

“Am I not supposed to know the gulf between alchemists and warriors? Since I know, why did I do all of this? It’s such a simple question, but you didn’t bother to think about it. Who do you have to blame but yourself for your current predicament?”

Trevor was so agitated that he could not breathe properly.

He started to cough violently, like someone who was about to die after suffering from a terminal disease. His eyes were completely reddened. He had been so agitated by those words that he could not figure out anything to say.

Even though he hated Jackie to the core, he had to admit that Jackie was right. Unless there was something wrong with a person’s mind, no one would want to die to their opponents.

Jackie had clearly known what would await him by offending so many people, but he did not care. Unless Jackie actually had the skills to back it up, there was no way he would have done that.

In the waiting area, Trevor was surprised by all of Jackie’s actions. He could not understand it.

Did Jackie not know what would happen if he offended Chris?

Jackie did not seem like an idiot, so he definitely knew what would happen. Since he knew, why did he do all that?

Did he have any other reasons?

Was he so arrogant that everyone else was just beneath him?

Trevor even thought that the victory Jackie had gotten before had clouded Jackie’s judgment, stopping Jackie from seeing how much weaker he was than everyone else.

Thinking about it, those thoughts were all hilarious. The actual reason should have been easy to guess, but Trevor had allowed all his preconceived notions to cloud his mind.

He felt like Jackie was just lower than him, that Jackie was a weak alchemist!

“I can’t believe things ended up like this. You said you would give me a chance to kill you, and I believed it like an idiot!”

Saying that Trevor could not help but smile bitterly. His coughing intensified as even more blood flowed from his mouth, staining his clothes.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, “You thought that someone from Hestia Continent would definitely not be able to stand up to someone from White Marsh Continent. You thought that I was definitely an alchemist because others said so! It’s all because of your ignorance, and you’re paying the price now.”

Trevor’s lips twitched, unable to say anything.

Jackie smiled coldly and said, “You told me more than once that I would pay the price. You said I would be begging for mercy. I’ve always believed in dishing out what is given. You’ll be facing exactly what you said I would!”

The moment Jackie said that, Trevor’s body suddenly stiffened.

He widened his eyes as they filled up with fear. He struggled to get up to run, but all he could do was struggle on the ground like a worm since he had lost all his limbs. He could not escape at all.

Chapter 3198
Right at that moment, a swish was heard next to Jackie.

A ray of light shot up into the air from next to him.

Jackie looked over to see Marco’s right hand slightly curved. There was still some residual energy circulating in his palm.

After that ray of light shot into the air, it did not slow down as it frantic ally flew further and further away. It was as if it was trying to break the barrier that contained the space.

After a few moments, an explosion was heard from above. A wave of energy frantically expanded outward with the explosion at the center. The energy wave looked like a signal tower, traveling far away at speeds that were hard to perceive.

Looking at the scene, Jackie was not angry at all. Instead, he even had a slight smile on his face.

Marco was panting roughly. After using his sound wave array, he looked at Jackie with alarm. Before he activated it, he had already decided to end his own life the moment Jackie made any moves.

He would have to die in the end anyway. However, he never expected that Jackie would not be surprised at all when he saw the sound wave array go up into the air slowly. Jackie did not make any moves to stop it at all and merely looked on quietly.

When the sound array exploded with a massive force that spread out energy waves in all directions, Jackie did not even blink an eye.

It was like it did not matter at all!

Marco's lips stiffened as he looked at Jackie even more fearfully. At that moment, Jackie was like a monster that had just crawled out of hell in Marco's eyes. No matter what he did, it exceeded any expectations. It was like Jackie was not worried about anything at all.

After feeling Marco's gaze, Jackie looked back as well.

His lips curled up in a smile as he said plainly, "You must've used a sound wave array just now. It might not be able to convey any information, but it can allow people far away to accurately know your position. Are you trying to gather the remaining warriors so they'll work together to kill me?"

A sound wave array was different from a sound array.

Actually, a sound array could transmit sound through long distances, but both sides needed to have compatible sound arrays for information to be transmitted. Furthermore, one sound array could only communicate with another person.

The sound wave array was different. It could not communicate with someone, but it could transmit a person's position through sound waves. It was similar to a beacon.

When everyone felt the energy of the sound wave array, they would know that something had definitely happened at that position, but they would not know the details.

In truth, Jackie had actually felt Marco's movements earlier, but he did bother stopping Marco. After all, there was nothing much Marco could do anymore, and he could change positions at any moment.

The sound waves exposing his position was something both unexpected and accepted. It suited Jackie just fine.

Marco was so scared that his entire body shook.

Jackie lowered his head slightly, "There's no longer any reason to keep you alive, but Trevor still has to stay alive. That's because I still have some things I want Trevor to see!"

After an hour, Chris hastily arrived at where the sound wave had exploded from. He had rushed over, going through the forest before arriving at the border between the forest and the desert.

Chris immediately saw two people on the ground. He frowned as his face darkened considerably. It was another similar situation, it was just that he did not know if it was the mysterious warrior again.

He slowly descended from the air. He did not stop his feet at all as he quickly arrived next to Trevor and Marco.

When he lowered his head, he noticed that Trevor's eyes were still open, and his eyeballs were still moving.

Chapter 3199
Chris was surprised at the sight that Trevor was still alive.

That was completely unexpected.

Upon closer inspection, Trevor could not speak. Even though Trevor was alive, the tendons on his limbs had been severed, and even his tongue had been cut. He was practically a dead person.

He had wanted to ask a few questions when he saw that Trevor was still alive, but his hopes were dashed.

Trevor could not speak or even move. There was no way Trevor could relay any information. Chris looked over to Marco.

Looking over, he noticed that Marco had already been dead for quite a while. Upon closer inspection, he was certain that the two of them had died at the hands of the mysterious person as well.

Almost half of their souls had been consumed. The only difference was that both David and Luther had physical wounds on them.

Chris was filled with suspicion.

Who was it?

Who managed to kill so many participants in one go?

Furthermore, even David, who was quite strong, was among those who died.

Just thinking about that, Chris turned to look at Trevor who was on the verge of death.

At that moment, Trevor' s mouth widened, wanting to say something. However, with out a tongue, there was no way he could.

He had no way to use his hands either. All he could do was widen his eyes to convey his hopelessness. At that moment, Trevor even hoped that Chris would just end him there and then so he would not need to suffer any longer.

Chris took a deep breath as he slowly stood up. He turned around and looked all over, shouting, “Who are you?! Get out here right now! Since you have the skills, why don’t you come out and fight me?!”

His voice was loud and buzzed with true energy. It sent his voice traveling great distances, but no one responded. He could not even hear the sounds of leaves being blown by the wind. It was so quiet it seemed like he was the only person in the world.

After a while, a gust of wind was heard in the distance.

He abruptly looked up to see a familiar figure frantically rushing over. As he looked closer, he noticed that it was Edward.

At that moment, Edward had a frown on his face as he looked confused. When he saw Chris, the confusion on his face suddenly disappeared as he suppressed all his emotions.

After Edward landed, he did not say a single thing to Chris. He hastily went to the two who were lying on the ground. After checking them for a moment, he slowly stood up.

At that moment, he turned to look at Chris.

He took a deep breath and a complicated glint surfaced in his eyes, “This is the fourth!”

The moment that was said, Chris slowly understood.

It seemed like he was not the only one who had found David and Luther’s bodies. Edward had been behind him and saw their corpses.

When Edward saw that Chris did not show any emotion, he knew that Chris had seen everything as well.

When they saw David’s corpse, their first reaction was to suspect each other. However, after closer inspection, they denied the thought. After all, techniques that could consume the soul were not something just everyone could learn.

They had a certain understanding of each other and knew that the other party could not know it.

There came the problem. Since it was not either of them, then who could it be?

The two of them were supposed to be absolutely incompatible enemies, but they realized that they had a skilled opponent! If they did not deal with the opponent, they might end up suffering.

Edward was the first to speak, “Who is this person? The two of us don’t have a conclusion yet. Even though I would have never thought of working together with you, we might be forced to with this current situation!”

“Only one person can survive in this place. Why don’t we deal with this guy first before we have our match?”

Chapter 3200
After Chris shot him a deep look, Chris nodded.

He held the same disgust towards Edward, but if they did not work together, the situation would only get worse. After all, they had no way of knowing who, and how strong that person was.

If they would be at a disadvantage in head on combat, then it would be disastrous. Neither of them wanted to fall to something unexpected.

Chris frowned before he said seriously, “Let’s eliminate some candidates. Blade was killed by me, then I saw Luther and David’s corpses on the way. Other than the two of us, there are five others! Including the two lying down here, there are only three people left…”

“The remaining three are Jackie, Souza, and Rich! We can eliminate Jackie, so only Souza and Rich are left!”

Saying that Chris had a look of concern on his face.

Chris already knew the other two from before, and he had an estimation of their skills. He never expected that one of them was actually a hidden expert.

Edward frowned, pointing out two fingers before he pushed one down. He said in a sunken tone, “Rich is dead. I killed him, so he can be eliminated too…”

The moment that was said, Chris was stunned.

That meant that only Souza was left. Compared to Rich, Chris knew more about Souza since Souza was from the Frenzied Blade Clan of Chaos Continent. He was a fellow disciple of David.

The two of them were both closely ranked in the clan. They constantly fought over resources, and the two of them did not have a good relationship. That was why they had participated in the slaughter gambit together. It was probably to settle their grudges.

Chris took a deep breath as his eyebrows furrowed, “If I remember correctly, David’s ranked sixth in the Frenzied Blade Clan while Souza is ranked seventh. The two of them should be about equal…”

“Half a year ago, Souza had lost just by a single move to David during the Frenzied Blade Clan’s internal tournament. However, Souza was not willing to accept that result. He deliberately spread a rumor that he did not lose David. David merely used some shameless tactics to cause Souza to fail!”

Their relationship was something that was an open secret among the chosen disciples of Chaos Continent.

Anyone who knows either of them knows of their grudges.

Edward said, “If Souza really has the skills, he would not have lost to David half a year ago. Just looking at what Souza did after that, it’s obvious that Souza is a petty person…”

“If he really could beat David and even rival the both of us, there’s no way he would be able to hide it. He’d have spread it far and wide!”

Chris nodded. Even though Chris was an arrogant person, he was still intelligent. Even though Souza was the only target of suspicion, they felt like there were too many strange things about this. It went against Souza’s personality.

Edward took a deep breath and said, “If he concealed his true skills the whole time, he definitely has other intentions, even if it doesn’t match his personality. There has to be some other reason. Could he have kept it a secret all this while to shock everyone today?”

Edward was full of confusion, feeling like he could not figure it out. He sighed as he discarded the notion for a moment. No matter what the reason was, now that they knew he was the enemy, they would just have to kill him.

As for what caused his personality to change and for him to keep the secret for so long, they would figure it out after!

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3201 - 3205

Chapter 3201
Both individuals fell silent after saying their piece. They had their opinions.

The situation was far too strange and absurd for them, so they had a lot of thoughts in mind that they had no answer to. They did not know what they would even talk about, either.

After the two of them were silent for a few minutes, they heard a gust of wind.

When the two of them looked up at the same time, they saw Souza, with a noticeable frown on his face, quickly heading toward them.

When he saw the two of them on the ground, his expression hardened. The moment he landed, he looked at Chris and Edward in alarm.

When Chris and Edward saw that it was Souza, the two of them exchanged glances, and they could see the complicated emotions in each other's eyes.

Nonetheless, they remained silent.

Souza had no intention of greeting them. After all, the two men before him were incredibly strong. If he did not use some tricks, he would not be able to defeat either of them in single combat.

He turned and walked over to the two bodies on the ground. After observing them for a while, his expression darkened.

He took a deep breath and turned to look at Chris. "Did you do this..?"

"I can't believe you know a technique that can eat the soul. I guess David died at your hand too, right?"

Chris furrowed his brow as he shot a look at Souza. He looked like he wanted to split Souza apart to look at his insides.

Souza had goosebumps when faced with such a look. He subconsciously took a step back before he turned to look at Edward.

He was shocked to notice that even Edward was looking at him with the same expression. It was as if he had a massive secret.

Souza gulped, "What's this look for?"

Chris snorted, raising an eyebrow. “Are you trying to tell Edward that I killed these two people and David?”

Souza’s lips twitched, feeling like the situation was a little strange. However, he could not tell what was so strange about it. He stared back and answered, “I was just guessing. You‘re the strongest here. The few that died all succumbed to the same technique, so I guessed that it’s you. Of course, you can deny it too. I have no way of making you acknowledge it.”

In the end, Souza did not dare to face Chris head on. He knew very well how strong Chris was.

When Chris heard all of that, he let out a laugh and had a strange glint in his eyes.

“Looks really can be deceiving. How did I not see it before? I can’t believe you’re such a schemer. You probably said all of that so you can work with Chris against me, right?”

Souza’s lips twitched as he averted his gaze guiltily. He did plan on working with Chris. After all, among the three of them, Chris was the strongest, Edward was the second, and he was the weakest.

He would naturally need to choose the weaker one to work with so he had the best chance of winning in the end.

When Souza averted his gaze guiltily, Chris let out a laugh. It was just that his laughter did not reach his eyes, and there was even anger in his expression.

“Very well! I’ve seen a lot today. I can’t believe your acting skills are so good. However, you’re overconfident. You think everyone else is stupid!”

Chapter 3202
Souza got more and more confused, feeling like there was something off about how Chris and Edward were looking at him.

It was hard to blame Souza for not understanding the situation. After all, he knew where he stood.

His skills were no threat to both men. Heck, they did not need to treat him with any sense of alarm. Yet, Souza felt like he could feel a touch of alertness in Chris and Edward‘s eyes, which somewhat baffled him.

Why was Chris cautious of him?

What was there to be cautious of?

He was the one who had to be careful about Chris, yet both men eyed him as though he posed an ominous threat. It caused Souza a great deal of confusion.

He took a step back as he looked at Chris and Edward in alarm.

Chris said lightly, “Do you think your petty tricks can fool us? You want to work with Edward to kill me before you kill Edward yourself, making you the victor!”

Souza frowned as his breathing quickened. He could not help but say, “What are you talking about? You speak as if I’m particularly strong…”

After hearing that, Chris let out a laugh of frustration.

He coldly laughed as he said, “Cut the crap, why don’t you. I’ve seen through you, there’s no point in acting anymore!”

Souza was more and more confused.

He said with a puzzled expression, “What kind of act am I putting up? I don’t understand what you’re both saying!”

Souza truly did not understand what they were saying, and the two of them had very strange expressions. He felt his heart beating quickly, feeling like he could not figure out the situation at all.

When the warriors at the viewing area heard their conversation, there were a lot of discussions.

“If I was Souza, I wouldn’t understand what they’re saying either. After all, he’s probably thinking that Chris and Edward are acting way too strangely…”

“They’re clearly so strong, but they’re acting so cautious around him. They’re even speaking with a hint of warning and alarm. It’d be so confusing!”

“I’m beginning to feel some pity for Souza. He’s probably very afraid right now because he can already feel that Chris might attack him. However, he can’t figure out Chris’ actions.”

A disciple from the Frenzied Blade Clan said, “I pity Souza. He doesn’t know what’s happening at all. If he knew, he’d definitely cry out that he was framed. If he really did have the skills, Souza would’ve let everyone know, considering how he is. Would he have hidden his powers?”

A warrior from White Marsh Continent said, “If I was Chris, that’d be my conclusion, too. I would’ve thought that Souza was the dark horse. After all, after eliminating everyone else, Souza and Jackie are the only ones left”

“Without looking at Jackie’s actions through the massive scroll, I would never have guessed that Jackie is this strong. Furthermore, Chris hates Jackie so much. He’s naturally proud, so even ifhe found some clues, there‘s no way he’d admit to how strong Jackie is!”

“You’re right. He had access to look at everything, so we know that Jackie is the secret master! Chris and the others only saw the corpses and don’t know anything else. On top of that, they had a fixed opinion of Jackie, so they automatically eliminated Jackie from their consideration and were left with Souza!”

“That’s right. No matter what Souza says, Chris and Edward would think that he’s lying. The more confused Souza acts, the more the two of them will believe their judgment!”

Chapter 3203
A disciple of the Purple Cloud Pavilion frowned and said, “Jackie’s been hiding for so long, not showing himself. Is he scared?”

The moment he said that, multiple sardonic glares were aimed his way.

The disciple’s lips twitched, knowing that what he said was not convincing at all. They were just words spoken out of envy and jealousy.

That person’s lips twitched and continued, “I just think that he doesn‘t need to hide and watch the show if he’s so strong!”

The moment he said that, someone pointed at the massive scroll and said, “Jackie has come out!”

The moment that was said, that disciple from the Purple Cloud Pavilion stiffened. His face heated up a bit, feeling like he had just greatly embarrassed himself. His words had been disproven in just a few moments.

In the isolated space, Jackie was slowly walking past a big tree to where Chris, Edward, and Souza were with a calm and nonchalant expression, as if he was not on a battlefield at all. He looked like he was just walking around and relaxing as he took in the scenery!

When he saw Jackie, Chris’ mouth twitched as the anger in his heart suddenly flared. Edward, on the other hand, raised an eyebrow as a curious glint flashed in his eyes.

Chris narrowed his eyes and sneered, “You’re still alive?”

At that moment, Chris was conflicted. He had hoped that Jackie would still be alive so he could deal with Jackie, but he also felt like Jackie was a piece of trash that should have been killed long ago. He could not believe that Jackie was still alive!

At that moment, other than Trevor who was not dead, there were only four others that could stand.

Jackie actually survived it all!

Jackie snorted, “If you’re still alive, then how could I die? I knew you’d be here, so I came out.”

The moment that was said, no one except Trevor could understand the other meaning to his words. However, all of the warriors in the viewing area immediately understood what Jackie meant.

A disciple from the Nimbus Alliance lamented, “They don’t understand what Jackie is saying. He has left too deep of an impression on everyone before this. Even after what he said, Chris and Edward still didn’t think that much about it!”

A warrior next to him chimed in, “That’s right. There’s something wrong with what Jackie said, and as long as they think about it, they would’ve noticed. Jackie said that he knew they’d be here, meaning that he was already there much earlier.”

“Other than that mysterious person who had hidden himself, who else could Jackie be? Jackie even said that he came out because of that, proving that he had been hiding there and had never left! It’s sad that neither of them managed to figure it out!”

The lips of that disciple from the Nimbus Alliance trembled.

“If only Edward managed to understand. He would at least have been able to be on alert against Jackie. He might not have that high of a chance going against Jackie alone, but if he worked with Chris or even if the three of them attacked together, Jackie would be no match for them! That’s the only way they stood a chance!”

“All of you can see it, but Chris and Edward can’t in the isolated space. The two of them are already too stuck on their opinions on Jackie, feeling like whatever he does is just crazy! They think that there’s something wrong with his head!”

Chapter 3204
A warrior from Hestia teased, “So impressions can kill. They stubbornly cling on to some of the preconceived notions, thinking that warriors from the Hestia Continent are all weak. They deserve to die!”

The moment he said that, he got angry gazes from disciples of the Purple Cloud Pavilion and the Nimbus Alliance.

One of the disciples from the Purple Cloud Pavilion shouted, “Stop being snarky! It’s just that Jackie was too good at acting, so he ended up confusing Chris!”

Hearing that, a warrior from the Hestia Continent immediately shouted back, “Acting? Since when did he pretend to be anything else? Has Jackie ever said that he was weak? Did he ever say that he couldn’t beat the others? Did he talk about his status as an alchemist?

“It’s clearly been others who were painting an image of Jackie, so how could you blame Jackie? They’re the ones who had trouble seeing clearly, but all of you are trying to say that others are acting. Aren’t you afraid that you’ll be laughed at?!”

The disciple from the Purple Cloud Pavilion’s face reddened in anger. He gritted his teeth as he looked at the warrior from Hestia. Even though the warriors from Hestia numbered less than the two other worlds, arguments were not something that could be won with numbers.

The warriors from Hestia had logic by their side. In the first place, Jackie never attempted to hide. Secondly, Jackie was strong enough that they were able to fire back at anything that was said.

At that moment, the warriors from Hestia realized that they finally had a standing. Before this, they kept on being mocked until their faces were red, but they never dared to talk back.

At last, they finally found a way to regain their dignity. Even the warriors who were not very talkative would add a word or two.

The viewing area suddenly turned into Hestia Continent’s home field. The warriors from the other two continents were forced to look on as the warriors from Hestia did what they wanted.

In the isolated space, Chris was already red in anger. It was not because of anything Jackie said, but because of his calm and casual behavior. The more Jackie acted like that, the angrier Chris got. The anger in his heart was about to override any rationality he had.

“Don‘t be so pleased with yourself, Jackie!” he scoffed. “Once I deal with him, you’re next. You’re smarter than some others, I’ll give you that. You cleared the mark I left on you not long after you entered the isolated space, making me lose for a while.”

Jackie let out a laugh after he heard that and confessed, “Actually, I wasn’t planning on getting rid of the mark. I was looking forward to you finding me, but someone else asked me to… To prevent any unnecessary trouble, I ended up clearing the mark.”

Chris looked at Jackie in disdain. “Bragging again, are we? Do you think we can’t see through your lies? Bragging is the only thing you’re left with right now, huh?”

“You weren’t planning on clearing the mark, you say? You were looking forward to me finding you? You’re able to say such arrogant words! Every participant is an enemy after entering the isolated space. Who’d remind you to do such a thing?”

“What would they gain from that? You were looking forward to me finding you? Did you want to die by my hand so badly? You can’t even lie properly! You’re clearly afraid of dying, but you insist on trying to defend yourself! How laughable!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, shaking his head helplessly. “I was telling the truth. It’s up to you if you want to believe it…”

The warriors at the viewing area suddenly fell silent after hearing their conversation.

Chapter 3205
After a long silence, someone said, “It looks like Jackie has been truthful all along. It’s just a pity that Chris doesn’t want to listen, and we’ve all had such a thought. We’d probably remain like Chris if we hadn’t seen him in action and think he’s just pompous!”

“I’ll have a bone to pick with anyone who says that Jackie’s putting on an act from now on. Is this called an act? He’s just telling the truth! It’s just that no one wants to listen to him!”

At that moment, Chris was stubbornly refusing to listen. He even felt like Jackie had probably hit his head too hard. Otherwise, there was no way Jackie would say things that were so hilarious.

Edward’s lips twitched, saying in exasperation, “Things have gotten this far, but you’re still so stubborn! Do you need to start banging your head against the wall before you realize how absurd everything you say is?”

“You truly have expanded my horizons. I’ve never seen someone as stubborn as you. You’re clearly afraid, and you know you’re no match for me, but you insist on putting up a front and even facing us head-on! I really don‘t understand what you’re thinking!”

At that moment, Edward did not think that there was something wrong with Jackie’s head; just that he could not figure out what Jackie was thinking.

He knew that others had left marks on him and gotten rid of them. It meant that Jackie did not want others to find him, so he had to be afraid. Yet, Jackie chose to walk out at that moment and kept on challenging Chris!

Did Jackie not know what his behavior would bring?

Was it just him stubbornly refusing to admit defeat, even though he already knew the result?

Even if he was going to be tortured, he still wanted to hold on!

Thinking about that, Edward let out a scoff as he shook his head in exasperation. He felt like Jackie was just someone who rendered him speechless.

Jackie looked up at Edward and said calmly, “You’ll find out in just a bit…”

Edward was even more speechless at that, and he started to wonder if Jackie truly was crazy.

What kind of nonsense was be saying?

Why was his tone even a little mysterious?

What was he trying to do?

He looked away and ignored Jackie. He had to first kill Souza with Chris before dealing with Jackie.

Jackie would only stop being stubborn after they let him feel true pain and death!

Chris had the same thoughts on his mind as well, so he temporarily put his attention on Souza again.

At that moment, Souza was not listening to their conversation with Jackie as well. Instead, he was thinking about how strangely Chris and Edward were acting earlier.

What did he even do?

During the start, he had been sent to a grassy, uneven-surfaced hill that helped him hide. Before participating in the slaughter gambit, he had known that others would leave marks on him, so clearing them was the first thing he did.

After that, he headed north the whole time, wary of any ambushes. He was also patiently observing his surroundings. He wanted to let others fight and swoop in to take advantage. He would either pick up what remained in the end or work with weaker opponents to kill the stronger ones first before be dealt with these temporary allies personally.

He had prepared some pills that would stimulate his potential for this slaughter gambit and had planned on using them during the last battle to raise his power. Even though it had sight effects, the side effects were irrelevant if he could win.

Yet, he never expected things to reach a stage he had never expected. Chris and Edward were acting far too strangely. His questions had gotten snide responses from Chris.

When he was deep in thought about the matter, Chris suddenly said to him, “Enough chit-chat. Let’s settle this, now!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3206 -

chapter 3206
Chris pulled out his weapon. It was a golden blade that had a reddish-gold python with its mouth open engraved on it. He held the sword in his right hand as he looked at Souza coldly.

Edward pulled out his weapon as well-a pair of icy blue gloves. Those gloves were made of celestial silk and had a blue glow to them.

Both men stood in front of Souza.

Souza went wide-eyed in disbelief when they pulled out their weapons. These two were going to work together to kill him?

He had been planning on allying with Edward to kill Chris and even tried to figure out what to say to Edward. His plans were ruined!

Everyone knew the grudge between them, yet they had actually put those grudges aside to face him. It was unbelievable!

Of course, two people working together to kill an opponent was something common in slaughter gambits. After entering the isolated space, quite a few of the ten participants were planning on doing that. Still, Souza could not shake off how odd this cooperation seemed.

There were usually conditions for working together. First of all, they needed to be facing someone who was incredibly strong that they could not just defeat alone. No matter what, Souza had some self-awareness. With his skills, he was no match for either of them in single combat, so they did not need to work together to kill him.

In the first place, they were not that friendly with each other, so the fact that they were working together meant that there was something they agreed on!

Souza's lips twitched as he spoke, "The two of you want to work together to kill me?"

Souza was internally speechless. He felt more and more confused, but neither Chris nor Edward were in the mood to explain anything to him.

It might have been Jackie's expression from earlier that had instigated them. The two of them were completely set on dealing with the hidden expert first before they properly tortured Jackie. They wanted to show Jackie his place!

Chris was the first to rush forward. He formed many golden seals with his hands, and a golden python appeared behind him. That golden python had countless runes circling it. Its bloody mouth was wide open, looking just like the carving.

Souza immediately recognized Chris' technique, it was the Consuming Slash, an upper earth rank technique. Even among upper earth rank techniques, it stood at its peak. It could even rival some lower ultimate god rank technique!

It was due to certain restrictions that the Consuming Slash had been designated as an upper earth rank technique, but its power could not be underestimated.

Souza felt a chill in his heart at the sight. He was going crazy!

Edward followed closely behind Chris. His icy blue gloves started to glow as runes started to dance around Edward like lively spirits. Three ice pillars appeared in front of Edward.

Souza's jaw hung open in shock. "Ice Breaker!"

Ice Breaker, too, was an upper earth rank technique, around the same level as the Consuming Slash. It was hard to tell who was stronger from the attacks they were using!

Seeing that the two of them were really attacking him at the same time, Souza almost bit his tongue in panic. He was not even thinking about retaliating. After all, he was already no match for either of them alone, let alone facing both of them.

He turned around and ran without any hesitation and frantically used up all of his true energy, not forgetting to summon a shield to protect him. However, Souza was not as fast as Chris and Edward. They were not that far apart in the first place.

In just a few moments, the two of them caught up.

Souza only heard a breeze before two dense killing intents surged from behind him. Even though he felt that they were right behind him, he did not even dare to look back. He was worried that he would lose the courage to even run away if he did!

Chapter 3207
Chris smirked and thrust his sword forward. The golden python opened its venomous mouth wide and bit right at Souza.

Edward's three ice pillars followed behind it, and two techniques fell on Souza's back at the same time.

Jackie heard a loud bang.

Souza did not even have the chance to cry out in agony before he was blown up in the air. Right after that, the explosion from the two techniques launched shockwaves, causing another massive explosion as a crater formed on the ground.

Souza suffered a pitiful fate as these two techniques disintegrated him instantly. He did not even have a corpse left behind. Looking at the scene, Chris still did not relax at all. Instead, he frowned.

He turned to look at Edward and noticed that he had a serious expression, too.

Chris could not help but say, “This is weird. Why didn’t he fight back? With his skills, he should’ve at least stood a chance to survive if he fought back; that’s why I used all my power. It seemed like we’d gone overboard. I didn’t even need you to kill him… “

Saying that, Chris’ expression greatly soured. A thought surfaced in his mind that he did not want to acknowledge.

At that moment, they heard a gust of wind behind them, and Edward suddenly turned back.

At some point, Jackie had arrived behind him. The moment he turned around, Jackie’s sword struck!

A gray slash went right for his chest. Edward felt a chill in his heart, suddenly understanding everything. He was incredibly experienced in combat, so despite the sudden attack that came his way, he reacted instantly.

He formed seals with his hands, and countless ice pillars formed around him, turning into a shield of ice that protected him completely.

Chris chose that moment to strike. He struck out again, and the golden python widened its mouth to bite at the gray slash. The gray slash clashed with the golden python!

Chris heard a shatter, and the python was cut in half. The slash did not slow down and continued to head for the ice shield!

With a sizzle, it seemed to burn through the ice as a hole suddenly formed in the shield. Even though the slash’s momentum had slowed down significantly, a small fraction of its power remained.

After melting through the ice, it sliced right into Edward’s chest!

Edward let out a cry of agony as he spat out a mouthful of blood. The true energy in his body ran wild, and he could no longer control himself as he fell to the ground. However, the energy that pierced Edward's chest had been greatly diminished due to the ice shield blocking a lot of the power.

It still ate Edward's soul, his injuries stabilized after he swiftly used his true energy to block Destroying the Void, disallowing his soul from being consumed entirely. Even though he collapsed on the floor, he ignored the immense pain as he frantically retrieved a pill from his storage space and used it.

On the other hand, Chris rapidly retreated in the air. When he saw that Jackie was no longer attacking, he landed three meters away from Edward.

At that moment, Chris' expression was incredibly sour, and he looked like he had lost his whole family in a single night.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, slowly landing on the ground as well. His earlier strike had just been a test!

Chapter 3208
He had only condensed 30 Soul Swords, but it was equivalent to the first stage of mastery.

Using the first stage of Destroying the Void, he had stood up to Chris and Edward's full might. Jackie deliberately leaked out some killing intent so Chris and Edward had the chance to react.

He did so because he wanted to test how powerful 30 Soul Swords would be, but he was left with only disappointment. He had thought that he would be able to kill off Edward instantly with that attack, but not only had Edward survived, but he even managed to consume a pill to stabilize his injuries.

He could feel the power of Destroying the Void left in Edward's body being forcefully suppressed. Even though it was still eating at Edward's soul, the speed of consumption was much slower.

Jackie sighed as he shook his head in disappointment.

He had thought that an upper ultimate god rank technique would be unstoppable against the two of them, even at the first stage. The reality displeased him.

If Chris knew of Jackie's thoughts at that moment, he would have spat out blood in anger.

At that moment, Chris' mood was in disarray. He was not willing to believe everything that had happened, but he was forced to.

Both he and Edward had misjudged the situation. The hidden expert had not been Souza but Jackie all along. Chris could not accept that fact at all.

What was Jackie?

Was he not just an alchemist?

How was Jackie so strong?!

He was using an upper earth rank technique. Consuming Slash could even be considered a slightly weaker lower ultimate god rank technique.

Based on what he knew, the Ice Breaker that Edward used was about equal to his technique. They were both upper earth rank techniques close to ultimate god rank!

After feeling Jackie's killing intent, both Chris and Edward reacted immediately. He had first struck out and used a lot of power in his Consuming Slash. It was not at his full strength, but there was still 90 percent of his power.

Edward had erected his ice pillars in front of him.

Chris was certain that Edward had used his full might to block Jackie's attack, but Edward was still hit in the end.

When his Consuming Slash clashed against Jackie's technique, it was slashed in half instantaneously and quickly went through Edward's defenses. There was even enough power left to pierce into Edward's body, causing Edward to collapse on the ground, injured.

The scene replayed in Chris' mind in a loop. His lips twitched, and even the muscles on his face contorted. He felt like his heart was about to explode.

Chris took a deep breath as he gritted his teeth and said with reddened eyes, "So it was you! I can't believe it really is you! You put on such a good act. You fooled everyone!"

When he said that, Chris felt like spitting out blood. He did not want to see reality at all.

The hidden expert was actually Jackie, whom he belittled and ridiculed.

He had thought that Jackie was just an ant that he could kill at any moment, but Jackie had proven to be a lion that was at the helm of them all. Even though he did not want to admit the truth at all, Chris knew that he was no match for Jackie alone. Otherwise, he would not have worked with Edward against Souza. It was precisely because they were not completely confident that they worked together to kill the hidden expert.

They just never expected that their guess would be so drastically wrong!

Jackie's sneak attack landed, causing Edward to not even be able to open his eyes as he used all of his true energy to suppress his internal injuries.

Jackie's lips twitched in exasperation as he let out a small laugh. "This again. All of you keep saying that I lied to all of you. Why don't you just admit that something was wrong with your own eyes? I've never put on an act, you just didn't believe me!"

Chapter 3209
Those words caused Chris' mouth to freeze.

In his mind, he could not help but recall everything that had happened.

In the waiting area, Chris thought that Jackie was challenging him by sitting next to him, which displeased him. That was why Chris had mocked Jackie on the spot, but all along, Jackie was not afraid at all.

For anything that he said, he would shoot back with something 10 times harsher. At the time, he thought that Jackie did not know his place and that he was a lunatic. He thought that Jackie was just recklessly arrogant without thinking about the consequences.

It seemed like reality was far different from what he expected.

It was not that Jackie did not know his place, but that he had absolute confidence in himself. He had never regarded Chris as a threat at all, which was why Jackie was so nonchalant, not even sparing him any dignity.

The mere thought had Chris enraged beyond relief and coughing cough violently.

Jackie raised an eyebrow and said, "You're all so incredibly strange. I was clearly just acting and speaking like I'm supposed to, but all of you thought I was crazy. Luther said that, and David said that too. The two of you probably think so as well…"

Saying that, Jackie could not help but let out a slight laugh. "You two probably think that only the White Marsh Continent and the Chaos Continent can produce masters, and all other alchemists are trash, right?"

Chris wanted to refute, wanting to say that indeed, only these two continents could produce prodigies, but he was coughing so violently that he could not say a thing!

The truth was slapping him in the face at that moment!

Jackie let out a scoff as he continued, “You said that you wanted to have me begging for mercy, that you’d have me on the verge of death. Do you know how amused I was hearing you say all of that?”

Chris’ face started to redden. He had never been so thoroughly embarrassed in his entire life. He really did say all of that, and he did mean it all. That was because he had never thought that Jackie would be stronger than him!

Alas, his thoughts were nothing but a mere joke in the end. He had used 90 percent of his strength, and Edward had defended with all his power, but they failed to completely stop Jackie’s attack!

Just from that alone, it was obvious that Jackie even had the potential to fight them two against one. They had vastly underestimated Jackie!

At that moment, Chris felt immensely afflicted.

The crowd in the viewing area grew rowdy right after Jackie’s sudden attack.

Someone loudly said, “His strength is absurd! Is this the power of a lower ultimate god rank technique? He managed to fight one against two so easily and managed to injure Edward, too. I’m certain that Jackie has mastered his technique to the second level, or he’d never be that strong!”

“If he’s already at that level, then Jackie’s skills would be a little horrifying. Even chosen disciples from ninth-grade clans won’tbe able to stand up against Jackie!”

“Most of the chosen disciples from ninth-grade clans would be no match for Jackie, only a few of them who are at the top rankings could!”

“He’s terrifying… He’s so scary! I never expected to see a battle of his level in the slaughter gambit!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3210 -

Chapter 3210
Upon hearing others saying that Jackie could fight two people on his own, the disciples of the Purple Cloud Pavilion lost their composure. The reality was in front of them, and they had to admit Jackie’s skills were overwhelming. However, that did not mean that others could flatter him without limits!

The more Jackie was praised, the lesser it made Chris look.

Those people were naturally unwilling to see that!

One of the chosen disciples from the Purple Cloud Pavilion said loudly, “You’re all shameless with your words. You actually think that Jackie can fight one against two? Have you gone blind? Didn’t you see that Jackie’s attack had been a sneak attack? Chris and Edward had to defend themselves in a hurry and didn’t show much of their skills at all. That’s why Jackie managed to get a slight advantage. You don’t understand anything, but you’re being so reckless with your words! What a joke!”

The moment that person said that, everyone frowned, but no one dared to fight back. After all, what the chosen disciple said did have some merit. Jackie did launch a sneak attack, and Chris and Edward definitely reacted in a hurry.

No one knew how much of their true power the two of them had used!

The disciples of the Unbreaking Pavilion and Compass Pavilion looked incredibly grim at that moment.

Jackie shattered their impressions repeatedly.

At that moment, they did not have the heart to listen to the discussions around them. As warriors of the Hestia Continent, they knew very well what Jackie’s skills represented. Even the top chosen disciple from the Scarlet Pavilion, the only ninth- grade clan in Hestia Continent, would be no match for Jackie, let alone them!

Quite a few of the disciples from those two clans started to regret ever making an enemy out of Jackie.

If Jackie managed to survive this easily, then the two clans would be in for a world of trouble!

One of the inner disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion said with a conflicted look, “Even though Jackie’s an enemy, we can’t ignore the truth. We have to redo all our plans. Let’s not provoke Jackie for the moment, and don’t provoke the disciple next to Jackie either… What we need to do right now is to distance ourselves from them…”

“Even though we can’t have any private fights in the middle city, Jackie could always fight us in public matches if he wanted to. We’d have no way to do anything about that!”

His words hit the point right on the mark. The other disciples around him nodded.

With the situation as it was, they had no way of following Grayson’s orders for the moment; they had to keep themselves safe.

After this, they would discuss their plans with Grayson when they met him.

In the betting area, Rudy idly looked up at Jackie calmly facing the other two on the massive scroll. Of course, he believed in Jackie's skills. He was just a bit worried before the slaughter gambit started.

He trusted Jackie regardless and believed in every decision Jackie made. It seemed like his confidence in Jackie had not been for naught.

Jackie's skills really did back it up!

Meanwhile, Evan's face was completely ashen. He had an incredibly dark look on his face, looking like he was someone who was about to die.

What happened to Trevor had been too cruel. He was even hoping that Trevor's death would come swiftly so he would not have to suffer all that pain anymore.

With the situation, even if Jackie ended up dying with Chris and Edward and Trevor ended up winning, there was no way Trevor could survive after being sent back!

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3211 - 3220 -

Chapter 3211

Since that was the case, ending things quicker was the better option. At least he would no longer be in pain.

Thinking about it, the cause for everything was Jackie. Evan's anger surged in his heart. Even if he knew that he should not be challenging Rudy anymore at that moment, he could not stop himself.

Evan turned around and said angrily, "Of the ten participants, Jackie would be a prime candidate for being the cruelest! Not only is he cruel, but his methods are also ruthless as well. He's absolutely despicable!"

"Just because he's talented and strong, he does whatever he wants! Isn't he afraid of being punished eventually?"

Evan was panting when he said all of that. The anger in his head had already completely burned away all of his rationality.

Rudy raised an eyebrow, surprised that Evan still dared to say all of that.

He had thought that Evan would shrink after his warning, but he had still overestimated disciples from high-grade clans.

He forgot how arrogant they were!

Rudy scoffed as he said in disdain, "Can you think before you speak? If you want to call others cruel, why don't you look at yourself first? This is like the pot calling the kettle black!"

"If Jackie's skills weren't as good as they were, would he be in a better state than Trevor? Are you going to tell me that Jackie should spare Trevor out of kindness?"

When he said that, Rudy laughed coldly. He felt like Evan's actions were a complete joke.

Evan was trembling from the anger, and he no longer cared about holding back.

"Trevor just likes to talk a lot. He might hate Jackie, but he would have never used such an extreme method to torture Jackie!"

He was furious when he said that. He pointed right at the image on the massive scroll, "Don't you see what Jackie did earlier? Jackie first snapped all of Trevor's tendons, then cut his tongue! There’s no way someone who isn’ t completely venomous and evil would be able to do something so cruel!”

When Rudy heard that he rolled his eyes and sighed, coldly answering, “Don’t you remember what Trevor said before? He said he would delay Jackie’s death, and slowly rip the flesh off Jackie!”

“I wasn’t the only one who heard that, you did too! We’re not saints here, so why are you trying to act like you’re so pure? Don’t you think it’s embarrassing?”

After saying that, Rudy turned away and decided to completely ignore Evan. Once Jackie was out, the first thing they would have to discuss is how they would deal with the Pentagram Clan. After all, they were already mortal enemies.

In the isolated space, Chris panted roughly, and his eyes were completely red!

He looked like a ghost that had just crawled out of hell. He had already asked everything he needed to ask, and he knew everything he wanted to.

It was not the time for him to let his emotions take over.

Only one person could survive the slaughter gambit. If he lost himself to his anger, then he would not be far away from dying. Even though Chris was incredibly arrogant, he still had a brain. He could not allow his emotions to control everything at that moment. He had to calm down.

Thankfully, Jackie was just standing in front of him with an idle look on his face.

Jackie did not seem to have any plans to attack immediately. That was a good thing for Chris as he took a few deep breaths, pushing down all of his emotions and forcing himself to calm down.

Chapter 3212

He turned around to look at Edward, who was still trying to completely suppress his injuries. Even if one of them had to die in the end, Chris was at least sixty to seventy percent confident that he would be able to win if the opponent was Edward. However, if he faced Jackie alone, his chances of winning were lower than ten percent.

Chris clenched his teeth with that thought in mind as he started to feel a little anxious.

Edward was trying his best to suppress his injuries, and Chris needed to buy Edward as much time as possible.

They would only stand a chance against Jackie if both of them attacked together!

Feeling Chris' gaze, Edward forced the pain down as he slowly opened his eyes to look back.

The two of them immediately conveyed their plans to each other in that brief moment. They knew that they needed to buy time. Edward was heavily injured at that moment, so the person who would have to do it was Chris.

Chris' lips twitched. He had always been an arrogant person. If he wanted to talk to someone, he would, if he did not want to, then his mouth would be completely shut. He had never engaged in any idle chit-chat before.

It was much harder considering the fact that the target was Jackie, who he had insulted before.

He was incredibly reluctant, but he could do nothing about it.

He took a deep breath and looked at Jackie, "I'll admit that I misjudged you earlier, but you have to admit that you deliberately hid who you were back then!"

Jackie scoffed at those words and then looked at Chris like he was looking at an idiot.

He had noticed Chris' look with Edward earlier. After all, the two of them were right in front of Jackie.

He was no idiot. He naturally knew that the two of them planned on stalling for time so Edward could suppress his internal injuries. Even if Edward could not completely recover, there was a chance that Edward could fight at seventy or eighty percent of his abilities. Then Jackie would be faced with two opponents!

They wanted to work together to defeat him, so Jackie decided to give them the chance. He could take that opportunity to train himself.

With that in mind, Jackie took a deep breath and decided to play along with Chris.

"What are you saying? Why would I admit to something I haven't done? I've already said it before, you were the one who was blind, so why are you blaming me?"

Chris perked up when he saw that Jackie had answered. He was worried that Jackie would have seen through their plan. It seemed like Jackie might be strong, but he was not intelligent.

Chris frowned as he said, "If one person couldn't tell, then that person was probably mistaken, but not a single one of the ten participants could tell. It means that you're a good actor!"

Jackie raised an eyebrow, saying with not much emotion, “Absurd! You’re just trying everything you can to drag my reputation down, right?!”

The two of them constantly argued in the isolated space, but the warriors in the viewing area could tell what was happening.

Quite a few of them could see what Chris and Edward were planning, and a warrior from White Marsh Continent started to frown.

Chapter 3213

“Chris is forced to do this. Only by dragging things on will Edward have enough time to recover. If they faced Jackie alone, neither Chris nor Rudy would be a match for him. Their only chance is to work together!”

A warrior from Chaos Continent nodded vigorously, “You’re right! Jackie’s just too strong. Even Chris, who regards himself so highly, is being forced to lower his head to stall for time! They only have one way out at this point. If Jackie manages to see through their plans, then even that would go up in smoke!”

The discussions around the place started to intensify, “I can’t believe this is the current situation. If anyone had told me that Chris and Edward would be afraid of Jackie before the slaughter gambit started, even having to lower their heads to stall for time, I would have thought that the person’s brain was underdeveloped!”

“We weren’t the only ones who weren’t able to tell. Wasn’t it also the caretakers who made a mistake? Do you remember the odds they gave? Chris had the lower returns, with one to one point seven. Edwards was two point nine.”

” Jackie’s returns had been the highest with seven and a half. Less than three people have ever gotten those odds in all of the other slaughter gambits, and Jackie’s one of them.”

“Yet, Jackie’s the most absurd one of them all. His actual skills are even stronger than a warrior with one point seven odds! I’m really regretting not betting on Jackie before this. I’d be rich!”

”That’s right! I’m filled with regret right now too. It’s seven and a half times! I’d be able to get fifteen million spirit crystals in the end! That’s a profit of thirteen million! I’d be a rich man. Just thinking about it gets me excited! It’s a pity that I didn’t take the chance that was right in front of me!”

“It’s not just you. Everyone here is filled with regret. It’s a pity that we were just like the nine participants initially, unable to see Jackie’s potential. Only when we saw his true skills did we know how wrong we were!”

At that moment, a warrior from Hestia Continent said curiously, “There are so many people here. Who placed their bet on Jackie? I remember there were some bets on him!”

When that person asked, the viewing area fell silent for a long time before someone answered, “A total of two people bet on Jackie. The first was Jackie himself, and the other was his follower. I remember that that person’s called Rudy!”

The moment that was said, everyone sighed.

They still remembered how Jackie had been mocked when he bet on himself. They felt like Jackie’s actions were such a joke, and they wondered what he was thinking!

It seemed like they were idiots instead. Jackie had always known What he was doing. This time, Jackie would have earned thirteen million spirit crystals in one go if he won. That sum was no small number even in a ninth-grade clan!

After lamenting their fates, a wandering warrior from Chaos Continent suddenly asked, “I think that Jackie’s quite smart. How could he be falling for Chris and Edward’s plan to stall for time? Is he letting them do it on purpose?”

The moment that was said, the discussion started to die down. Everyone was exchanging looks with each other as various thoughts formed in their minds.

At that moment, Jackie was still constantly talking to Chris in the isolated space. They were just purely wasting time conversing.

Chapter 3214

Initially, Chris had been quite happy thinking that Jackie had not seen through his plans. However, he slowly felt like something was off.

Jackie seemed elated to let him waste time which caused Chris to be shocked.

Jackie was not stupid. He naturally had his own goals in doing that, so what was he planning?

Just as Chris’ heart was beating frantically, Edward finally managed to suppress his injuries. He had one hand on the ground, and his face was a little red.

He forced himself up. Even though his injuries were not completely recovered, he was no longer in danger of dying. He had to stand up to face Jackie even if he did not want to!

Edward was not as arrogant as Chris. He had just temporarily suppressed his injuries. If he did not get better treatment quickly, his injuries would definitely flare again. If that happened, then everything was over.

At that moment, Edward was very clear-minded. He knew of his injuries and knew what could end up killing him. Even if they managed to kill Jackie, there was still Chris waiting for him. The chances of him leaving the isolated space were less than thirty percent.

He was already prepared to die, it was just that he was incredibly reluctant. If he did not die, then his future would have been so bright!

Just thinking about that, Edward could not help but let out a bitter smile as he tossed those thoughts aside. Even if he would not be able to leave the isolated space forever, he still wanted to drag Jackie down with him!

If it were not for Jackie, he would have fought a final battle against Chris, and stood a fifty percent chance of walking out alive!

Yet, Jackie had changed everything, pushing him into the deep end. Edward put all his hatred and anger onto Jackie and started to look at Jackie like he was looking at his mortal enemy.

Jackie suddenly let out a laugh as he looked up at Edward and said, “It looks like you’ve successfully suppressed your injuries. You’re not bad. I thought that I would still have to talk to Chris for even longer…”

The moment that was said, Chris could not help but shudder as his eyes widened. His heart beat faster.

Jackie really did see through their plans!

Then why did Jackie play along with them?

Did he want to find out if Edward would be able to suppress Edward’s injuries?

Did he want Edward to work with Chris against him?

After those thoughts surfaced in Chris’ mind, fear started creeping in.

Chris had always been someone who did whatever he wanted thanks to his talent. He had never been afraid of anyone and had never shrunk back from anyone. Yet, he was feeling fear toward Jackie at that moment.

He looked at Jackie like he was looking at a demon who had just crawled out of a deep hole!

Chris loudly said, “So you want to fight two against one?”

Jackie nodded seriously, “There’s no meaning to fighting one on one. The two of you are quite decent. You can help me train!”

The moment that was said, Chris’ and Edward’s expressions darkened.

If that had been said before they entered the isolated space, the two of them would have treated it as a joke. Yet, they were forced to believe it this time.

During their earlier exchange, the two of them had not utilized their full potential, but they were uncertain as to how much of Jackie’s power he used.

Listening to Jackie’s tone, it seemed like Jackie felt even the two of them would not be difficult. Everything he said showed how confident he was.

The two of them gulped at the same time, regretting taking part in the slaughter gambit immensely. The two of them had been in the upper echelons of their respective clans in terms of talent and skill. As long as they survived, they would have been even better after they left the Whirling World!

Chapter 3215

They would have become elders in their clans or even started their own clans. All of these would have been easy to achieve. Yet, those beautiful dreams seemed further and further away!

At that moment, a cold chill was felt in the viewing area. Jackie’s words had proven what some among them had guessed.

Jackie had seen through Chris’ plans early on and had even played along with Chris.

How confident did Jackie have to be to do so?

Quite a few of them were so surprised they did not know what to say!

“I can guarantee you now that Jackie’s definitely already stepped into the second stage. He might not even be far away from the third stage. Otherwise, there’s no way he would be so confident. He completely disregarded his opponents!”

“You’re right. I think so too! No wonder Jackie was so arrogant before they entered the isolated space. He definitely had the right to act that way. If the others had known of Jackie’s true skills before this, there probably wouldn’t have been a single person with any courage to participate. Even Chris would have been forced to give up. It’s too late for regrets now!”

The disciples of the Purple Cloud Pavilion and Nimbus Alliance were so anxious that they jumped off their seats.

The slaughter gambit was already at its final moments, and Chris and Edward stood less than a forty percent chance of winning!

There were still those who remained stubborn, ”We haven’t seen the results yet, so why are you so quick to make your conclusions? What if Jackie’s just being too proud?! He might not actually have those skills, and is saying all of that to show off!”

Those words invited a lot of laughter, “With things already as they are, you should really stop making yourself look like an idiot. It’s because there are people like you who always have these thoughts that Jackie’s true skills were never seen through!”

At that moment, Jackie was already holding his gray sword in his hand.

The thirty Soul Swords earlier had not had the desired effect, but they did show Jackie the destructiveness of thirty Soul Swords.

He no longer wanted to waste any time. After completing the slaughter gambit, he planned on entering the inner city right away. While Jackie was happy with what had happened in the middle city, he got more and more curious about the inner city. He was looking forward to entering the inner city immensely. He wanted to see what challenges awaits him there!

As he thought about it, he formed seal after seal.

Countless seals were circulating in the air. After a few moments, fifty Soul Swords floated in front of Jackie.

Jackie clapped his hands, and the swords condensed into a large one. It fused into the gray sword in his hand!

Chris and Edward were already incredibly anxious.

The two of them exchanged looks before they summoned up all of the true energy in their bodies. Chris even took out a pill to stimulate his potential.

Jackie scoffed as he held his sword with both hands. With a slash, a gray-colored slash shot out like an arrow!

Chris formed his golden python again. The python opened its mouth wide, and its eyes were red!

Edward formed seal after seal, condensing a pillar the size of a person. It floated in the air, letting out a radiant blue light!

The two of them attacked at the same time, and in just a few moments, the three techniques clashed in the air.

The three of them heard a loud bang. When the attacks clashed, intense shockwaves were sent out, forming a crater on the ground in an instant!

Dust filled the air, obstructing any vision.

The warriors in the viewing area all had their eyes wide open, worried they would miss anything.

It was time for the final battle! The losers and winners would be determined in just a flash! However, the dust completely obscured everything, and no one could see clearly. Some people cursed at it, but there was nothing they could do!

Chapter 3216

“I can’t see clearly! I can’t see anything! Can someone tell me what’s happening? I feel like I’m going blind!”

“What are you panicking for? Do you think others can see if you can’t? It’s not like he can blow away the dust!”

Everyone was incredibly anxious as the dust slowly dispersed.

There were two more figures on the ground. Edward lay on the ground, covered in dust. He was not moving at all, looking like he had lost his life.

Chris was half on the ground, with one hand against it to support himself. His breathing was erratic.

After an intense bout of coughing, he spat out a mouthful of blood. At that moment, his hair was completely disheveled, and his eyes had lost their color. It looked like he could die at any moment.

Jackie remained standing on the spot. His back was straight as he coldly looked toward Chris.

The scene caused a chill in all the warriors in the viewing area. They no longer knew what to say. In truth, they had guessed that this would be the result, but witnessing it was a different matter entirely.

Jackie’s strength had exceeded their imaginations. He had actually held back before this. Even when the two of them had put everything into the attack, he had still easily dealt with them alone. It was hard to tell if one of his opponents was even alive, while the other was barely sitting up on the ground.

It caused everyone to shudder at the sight.

“I can’t believe Jackie was not threatened at all even though the two of them worked together. I finally understand why Jackie was so easygoing before this. If I had the skills, I would be even more arrogant!”

“What are you saying?! Arrogance is when you can’t back it up! Does Jackie not have the skills? We call that acting normally!”

The Purple Cloud Pavilion and the Nimbus Alliance had already fallen completely silent.

All of them stared at the scroll, stunned. They were incredibly saddened, but there was nothing they could do about it!

It was all done for. They had no chance of turning the tables at all. In the end, the winner had not been Chris or Edward. No one could believe that even the two of them working together had failed to beat Jackie.

That had shattered all expectations!

An inner disciple from the Purple Cloud Pavilion said, “We’re done for! We’re all done for! What do we say when we go back? We should have stopped him before he took part. The elders will definitely blame us!”

Another disciple next to him sighed, saying with a defeated expression, “The punishments will just be for the public eye. We’ll definitely be targeted in secret. Don’t forget how much the first elder loved Chris. We’ll be okay in the Whirling World, but once we come out and return to the real world, we won’t be able to get out of this unscathed!”

“It wasn’t our fault though. Chris was the one who said he wanted to take part. Were we supposed to stop him with our lives? Would we have been able to stop him?”

“We would not! So what could we have done? Even if the first elder wants someone should blame, he should blame Jackie. Why would he target us?!”

The disciple that voiced out the severity of the matter said with a frown, ”You’re looking at things too simply. No matter how despicable Jackie is, he’s still from Hestia Continent. The warriors there can’t come out, and we can’t go in either. If he wants to kill Jackie, we would need to use the local forces.”

“It’s not as simple as that. With Jackie’s extraordinary talents, there has to be some expert protecting him. It’s impossible for us to kill Jackie! The elder will know this too. He would have nowhere to vent his frustrations but us…”

“Furthermore, it’s not like the first elder has never done something like this. Something similar happened before this. The first elder couldn’t get the culprit so he threw all his anger at the disciples. During that time, all of the inner disciples were incredibly careful, but the first elder still managed to find reasons to compound their punishments.”

Chapter 3217

When that was said, everyone’s expressions were abnormally serious.

The Nimbus Alliance’s side was not much better. The disciples from both clans looked like they were grieving someone. They had incredibly long faces, looking like they were about to cry at any moment.

At that moment, Jackie raised his hand to brush off the dust in front of him. He raised an eyebrow and walked over to Chris step by step.

Chris clutched his chest and looked at Jackie in alarm. He had lost all the arrogance in his demeanor. His whole face was filled with fear.

Before, he was sure exactly how strong Jackie was, Chris still exuded arrogance. However, at that moment, he was already certain about everything. The arrogance he used to have was already completely thrown aside. He even wanted to ask for mercy, but he realized how much of a joke it would seem like.

In the isolated space, only one person could survive. Everyone else had to die!

Chris completely lost all hope when he thought about that. He even started to regret participating in the slaughter gambit. He had thought that victory was certain with his skills, but he never expected to be so unlucky to have actually met a hidden expert.

Jackie was already right in front of him.

Jackie let out a laugh as he said casually, “Do you remember what I said to you before? When we’re in the isolated space, I would repeat everything you’ve said to me back to you…”

Chris was stunned once again when that was said.

If Jackie had not reminded Chris, he would have forgotten that. He had thought that what Jackie said was really amusing.

What was the point of repeating what he said?

Was that considered a threat?

However, he finally understood what Jackie meant.

Chris' face was pale as he retreated. He did not want to be too close to Jackie. He wanted to be as far away as possible from Jackie.

Jackie lowered his eyes as he said coldly, "You told me that I was just an ant that you could kill at any moment. You said you would make sure I died slowly, that you would slowly skin me. You would let me know of the gulf between us…"

Chris' face was completely distorted. He had said all of that, and he even remembered how he had felt when he said that. At the time, he felt like everything that Jackie said was absolutely hilarious.

Jackie was like a crazy person!

His breathing got more and more erratic, but he could not say anything.

Jackie pulled out a knife from Mustard Seed, "I've always believed in an eye for an eye. I'll do exactly what you said you wanted to do to me…"

Chris broke out in cold sweat. Trevor's state showed that Jackie would absolutely do it.

He did not want to die a slow death!

He did not want to be tortured!

"You can't treat me like that! The elders of my clan won't let you off!" Chris was incredibly agitated.

Jackie let out a laugh. That threat did not work at all.

He scoffed before he said, "How would they reach me? Are they planning on breaking the barrier around Hestia Continent and going there to kill me?"

Chapter 3218

When Chris heard that, it was like cold water had been splashed on him.

Jackie started to form seals with his hands. He did not plan on actually torturing Chris slowly. He did not want to waste the effort. After all, the pain of one's soul being consumed was the greatest torture.

At that moment, Chris suddenly made his move. He slammed his hand into his mind with a bang. Then, blood spurted out and Chris' life ended.

With a thud, his body fell on the ground stiffly.

Jackie raised an eyebrow.

Chris really was decisive…

Jackie then looked to Trevor, who was still alive. Thanks to his tendons being cut off and his tongue as well, Trevor could not even end his own life. He had been forced to look on as everything happened.

When Trevor saw Jackie slowly walking to him again, he let out a despondent whimper. His body started to twitch violently, but there was nothing he could do. He no longer had the ability to even support his body.

Trevor only had one thing to say in his heart, “ Jackie is a demon! He’s a demon straight out of hell!”

Unfortunately, he could no longer speak. All he could do was make murmuring sounds.

When Jackie arrived next to Trevor, he saw Trevor’s expression of hopelessness.

At that moment, Trevor was already thoroughly in despair. It was either because Trevor was too afraid, or because too much of his soul had been eaten, but Trevor suddenly widened his eyes and started to cough violently.

Blood constantly flowed out.

In just a few moments, he lost all signs of life, closing his eyes. It meant that all nine of the participants were already dead. Most of them had died to Jackie, and he was the well-deserved winner.

The moment Trevor died, there was a vibrant bronze light in the air. The bronze light slowly condensed into a bronze badge.

Jackie knew that that was one of the prizes for winning!

He then reached out and let the bronze badge slowly fall into his palm. After that, the space around him started to distort, wrapping him within. Jackie did not protest at all. He knew that he would be sent out of the isolated space after the battle.

After a moment, the distorted space slowly stabilized to reveal a familiar sight. Looking up, it was the crowded viewing area.

Most of the warriors in the viewing area stood up when they saw him. They looked at him with intense gazes, completely different from the mockery they had before.

When he walked off the transfer array, he could hear loud applause. He looked up at the massive scroll. At that moment, the images from the isolated space were still being broadcasted. All of those corpses remained in their original spots. Out of ten people nine have died. The battle had been incredibly intense.

Rudy excitedly rushed into the viewing area, waving at Jackie. Jackie merely nodded slightly.

What happened after went remarkably well. The caretaker took out ten treasures for Jackie to choose from.

Jackie immediately saw a soul gem the size of a fist. He had already gotten another soul gem before this, but this one was smaller. It had only been a third of the size of the one in front of him at that moment.

To Jackie, the other treasures were not that useful. He needed treasures that could help him cultivate his soul.

After receiving the soul gem, Jackie put the bronze badge into Mustard Seed. He did not plan on wearing it on his chest to show everyone. He felt like maintaining a low profile was better.

After getting his prizes, Jackie immediately left the slaughter gambit.

At that moment, Evan and the others had already left. After all, Trevor was already dead. There was no other reason to remain there unless they wanted to face Jackie.

Chapter 3219

Facing Jackie was of no benefit to them anyway, and there was even a chance that they would get threatened by Jackie.

The Pentagram Clan was no longer as proud as before facing Jackie. After Jackie showed his true skills, they had felt the immense danger he posed.

Jackie brought Rudy along and left the slaughter gambit's area. However, They did not leave the middle city immediately. Instead, they stopped at a more secluded location.

Rudy said curiously, "Aren't you going to leave the middle city right now?"

Before this, the two of them had discussed when they would head toward the inner city. Rudy had thought that Jackie would immediately head to the inner city after obtaining the rights to. After all, Jackie was not the type to dally.

Jackie sighed before he said, "The further we go, the stronger the opponents will be. I have to make preparations for that. I've already perfectly mastered the skill I'm using. Even though it's powerful enough, I can't stop improving just in case anything happened!"

Jackie was planning on learning the storm god rank technique, Soul Sky, before entering the inner city!

The moment Rudy heard that, Rudy said, “You mean you’re planning on learning an even higher leveled technique?”

Jackie nodded.

He had already mastered Destroying the Void. Destroying the Void was an upper ultimate god rank technique. Higher than that was a storm god rank technique.

Normally, storm god rank techniques were no joke. Most divine solidifying realm warriors were unable to master storm god rank techniques. That was because storm god rank techniques involved using the laws of nature. It was incredibly hard to practice.

If one’s skills or talents were not at a certain level, it would be impossible to learn. However, all of that was irrelevant to Jackie. After all, he had inherited the memories of ancient heroes. All those difficulties were nothing for Jackie.

Jackie sighed before he said seriously, “We’ll meet even stronger warriors in the future. The warriors from White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent are definitely stronger than those from Hestia Continent, but in the end, they’re still just from third-grade worlds. There are still second-grade worlds after that. I can’t stop moving forward when there are still so many strong warriors waiting for me!”

Rudy’s lips twitched when he heard what Jackie said, “It’s so frustrating comparing myself to others. You’re already so strong, but you still feel like you’re not enough. It seems like I’m only suited for alchemy.”

Jackie let out a laugh as he patted Rudy on the shoulder, “Didn’t you say you found out some secrets related to the Whirling World?”

Rudy was immediately spirited when he heard that.

He took a deep breath before he said seriously, “I did manage to hear of some things. It wasn’t just Evan to told me some things. I heard some news in the viewing area as well. I’ve compiled the information…”

Saying that, there was a glint in Rudy’s eyes. He was finally of use!

He frowned and continued, “The Whirling World is a complete mystery to the warriors from Hestia Continent, but the Whirling World is common knowledge to the warriors from the other worlds. It opens once every five hundred or so years. It doesn’t just open for three worlds, but all third grade and second grade worlds!”

Jackie’s eyes widened at that. It opened to all third grade and second grade worlds!

Jackie’s breathing quickened at the thought.

What sort of hero created the Whirling World?

He had actually been able to connect all third grade and second grade worlds.

It was amazing!

Chapter 3220

Jackie took a deep breath before he looked into the distance.

After a while, he said, “The most important thing I can do right now is to improve my own skills. I’ll ignore all of that first.”

Rudy nodded before he looked at Jackie curiously, “Are you going to learn a middle ultimate god rank technique?”

He felt like he would never be able to learn an ultimate god rank technique his whole life, let alone one in the middle tier. He was both r.envious and curious when he faced Jackie.

He wanted to know how strong those techniques could be.

In the images from the massive scroll, Rudy had personally witnessed how strong Jackie was. Not a single person there had been a match for Jackie. Even when two incredibly talented warriors worked together, they were no match for Jackie.

He could clearly feel the change of attitude in the viewing area. The warriors went from their initial disdain to respect and admiration. There were a lot of changes that Rudy had seen. It caused Rudy to be grateful for Jackie and respect him as well.

Jackie let out a laugh and said, “I’ve never said that I was using a lower ultimate god rank technique.”

Rudy was stunned at those words.

He was already beginning to think of everything that had happened. It was true. Jackie had never said that his technique was at the lower ultimate god rank Rudy had just speculated on it.

After that, the opinions of the warriors in the viewing area confirmed his thoughts, but it did not seem the case from what Jackie said. It surprised Rudy.

He frowned and said, “You’re not using a lower ultimate god rank technique? Then what level is your technique? Could it be a middle ultimate god rank technique?!”

Jackie shook his head and he said plainly, “Guess higher!”

The moment he said that Rudy was stunned momentarily.

He widened his eyes as he looked at Jackie in disbelief, “What did you say? Guess higher? Are you telling me you’re using an upper ultimate god rank technique?”

His voice trembled when he said that, and his eyes threatened to pop out of their sockets.

He was full of shock and even started to breathe faster. He could not help but shake his head, forcing the shock out of his system.

He took a deep breath and said hoarsely, “Are you joking?”

Jackie sighed in exasperation, smiling as he said, “Why would I joke about that? When have I ever bragged to you?”

The moment that was said, all of Rudy’s doubts were gone. After interacting for so long, he had a deep understanding of Jackie. He never exaggerated. Everything he said was certain.

Just thinking about that caused Rudy to be filled with shock. He stood on the ground and stomped on it.

After that, he circled Jackie, looking like he wanted to say something, but he could not form the words. He circled Jackie excitedly again.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3221 - 3230 -

Chapter 3221

After circling him three times, Jackie could no longer stand it and grabbed Rudy's shoulder, "What are you being so excited for? I don't think it was that hard to guess…"

"If I was only using a lower ultimate god rank technique, I would not have won so easily against the two of them. Only upper ultimate god rank techniques would be able to be so powerful."

Rudy took a deep breath.

His eyes were still full of shock. At that moment, he felt like his brain had turned to mush. He frantically tried to compose his thoughts, but the thoughts constantly swam around his mind.

After a long time, he said, "That's how it is! So you told David the truth back then. That's why David was so shocked and agitated!"

Jackie nodded.

Rudy took a deep breath as he slowly composed himself. He slowly accepted the truth.

He looked up and looked at Jackie seriously, "It's never crossed my mind that I would ever know a warrior who can use an upper ultimate god rank technique! I've never thought that a master like that would ever appear in front of me. I thought it's something I would never touch, I can't believe…"

Saying that his voice started to shake again.

Jackie smiled helplessly, feeling like Rudy was being too emotional.

He tugged at Rudy's shoulder, "That's nothing. There are so many special things in the world. Even though I'm using an upper ultimate god rank technique, I wouldn't be considered all that talented in a first grade world…"

Rudy's lips twitched when he heard that.

He said in exasperation, "It's so frustrating comparing with others. If the other masters heard that, I don't know how many of them would be immensely jealous of you. All of them are struggling to climb up their own respective worlds, but you're already comparing yourself to first grade worlds."

Jackie laughed and said nothing. He did not offer up an explanation. After all, if he went any further, it would end up bringing up a lot of his secrets. Even though Jackie was willing to share some of his secrets with Rudy, it did not mean that Jackie had no reservations about him.

Jackie had never thought of stopping in a third grade world. He had always targeted first grade worlds. The Divine Void World was his greatest secret and his only goal. Back then, a lot had happened in the Divine Void World. All of his achievements were thanks to the Divine Void World.

Since he had promised the head of the Divine Void Clan, then he would definitely see it done!

At that moment, Rudy might not be as excited as before, but he was still shocked.

He frowned and said, “However, an ultimate god realm technique is hard to learn. It’s incredibly difficult to understand. Even divine solidifying realm experts were not assured of being able to learn them, so how did you? I’m not doubting your talent, I‘m just finding it hard to fathom!”

Jackie nodded. He would have felt mocked if anyone else said it, but if it was Rudy, then it was obviously pure curiosity.

Jackie took a deep breath and looked into the distance, “That’s one of my secrets. You’ll find out in the future. ”

Rudy nodded, not pursuing the matter. He was already much more obedient than before. Since Jackie did not want to speak of it, he would not ask. However, another question surfaced at that moment.

He suddenly looked up and asked Jackie, “Since you’ve already mastered an upper ultimate god rank technique, then you must be planning on learning something even better if you’re saying you want to go up a level!”

Jackie nodded calmly.

When Rudy saw Jackie nodding, his lips started to twitch again. He did not know what to say at that point. All those thoughts from before surfaced in his head.

He was shocked, and he started to fumble again.

After a long time, he finally said again, “I don’t even know what level is after the ultimate god rank. Compared to you, I feel like a joke.”

Chapter 3222

Jackie turned around and looked at Rudy meaningfully.

He felt like Rudy had been dealt some heavy blows. He never planned on doing all of that to Rudy, but it was all the truth.

He looked at Rudy earnestly, “Don’t worry, it’s not just you. There are plenty of people who don’t know what comes after the ultimate god rank. You’ve never been someone focused on walking the path of a warrior. Your talents lie in alchemy. ”

Jackie’s consolation proved useful.

Rudy nodded, “You’re right, I’ve never chosen this pass. Then why don’t you teach me right now? I really want to know what rank lies above it…”

Jackie said honestly, “Above the ultimate god rank is the storm god rank. The storm god rank isn’t split up into levels. There are no weak techniques in that rank.:

Rudy looked up and said, “The storm god rank… I feel like it’s so far away from me.”

After he said that, Rudy laughed in self mockery.

It was not just storm god rank techniques that were far away from him, even ultimate god rank techniques were far beyond his reach. Ever since he got to know Jackie, he noticed that he was demanding more and more of himself.

He should already have been considered quite exceptional if he managed to use an ultimate god rank technique.

Thinking about that, he shook his head.

He tossed those wild ideas aside before he looked at Jackie and said, “So you’re planning on learning a storm god rank technique?”

Jackie straightened his body and looked around.

The middle city was incredibly vast. Most of it was fairly deserted. Only a small area was filled with warriors. They were in one of the deserted areas.

Looking around, they were the only living beings around.

It should be very safe, but thinking about it, Jackie still shook his head, “Let’s go find somewhere to practice after we enter the inner city!”

Rudy raised his eyebrow in surprise. He looked around in alarm, but could not see anything other than the two of them.

Rudy said curiously, “It’s quite safe here, but you don’t seem to think so?”

Jackie took a deep breath, “It looks safe, but it doesn’t mean it actually is safe. After exiting the slaughter gambit, I keep on feeling like we’ve been followed by quite a few people. My performance had been too eye-catching. It’s caught quite a bit of attention…”

“Furthermore, I killed Chris and the others. The clans they’re from will definitely hate me. We’re surrounded by enemies at the moment, so it’s better to be safe. The inner city will be different…”

“There are various conditions someone needs to fulfill before they can enter the inner city. It’s not somewhere everyone can just enter. We’ll go in through a transfer array as well. As long as we’re careful enough and we move quickly, we can slip away from those eyes that are following us!”

After determining his plans, Jackie no longer hesitated to bring Rudy to the transfer array towards the inner city.

After obtaining the bronze badge, he had gotten the right to enter the inner city. Furthermore, the bronze badge allowed him to bring two others into the city with him.

The way to the transfer array was incredibly smooth. There were no sudden troublesome matters that popped up.

After a transfer of six hours, they arrived in the inner city. Six whole hours had been needed for the journey. It was a long distance transfer, and it was obvious how far they had gone.

Chapter 3223

In a small inn in the southwest corner of the inner city, Jackie and Rudy were enjoying some tea with great interest.

Rudy’s eyes were wide as he looked all over, observing everything in the place. He was filled with surprise and curiosity as if it was his first time in a city.

Jackie looked at him for a long time before laughing and said, “What are you looking at? What’s there to be so curious about?”

After hearing what he said, Rudy’s lips twitched in exasperation.

He lowered his voice as he leaned towards Jackie, “You’re asking me why I’m curious? How are you so calm? You don’t seem curious at all. It’s already strange enough that there’s an inn in the inner city, but the one manning the inn is actually a masked caretaker! Isn’t that to…”

Saying that Rudy was so surprised that he did not know what to say.

Jackie shook his head slightly, saying helplessly, “What’s there to be so surprised about? Every place has its own specialties. No matter what appears in the Whirling World, I wouldn’t be surprised. Since there are inns here, caretakers are naturally needed as well…”

”Those masked caretakers are basically the managers of the Whirling World anyway. They would appear anywhere if the place needed someone to man it. It doesn’t matter if it’s a betting area of a teahouse.”

Jackie’s words were reasonable, but Rudy still could not hold back his surprise. He sipped some more tea before he said, the inns here seem safe.

“You could use one of the rooms to practice a storm god rank technique.”

Jackie nodded. That was precisely what he was planning.

The inns had rules against private fights and barging into other rooms. With those two rooms, he would absolutely be safe if he wanted to practice a storm god rank technique.

The Whirling Worlds rules were not something that cared about your background. As long as you broke them, you would be struck by lightning and turn to ash. So there were no idiots who would decide to launch a sneak attack in the inns.

Rudy added some more tea for himself, lamenting, “It’s definitely safe, but it’s so expensive. just one night here costs a hundred thousand spirit crystals! Any ordinary wandering warrior would go broke after staying here for a few days?”

It was not a friendly price, but Jackie did not mind.

He had earned so much from the gambles anyway. He had tens of millions, so he could spend however he wanted to. Furthermore, Rudy was willing to share the expenses. After all, he had been completely useless the whole journey. If he even insisted that Jackie paid for this, he would feel too awful.

The two of them got a room in the inn.

They forked out a million right away, reserving a room for ten days. Jackie did not know how far he could get in ten days, but it would be fine as long as he showed some improvements.

As the two of them were walking up the stairs to the second floor, a quarrel was suddenly heard. The two of them looked over to see two men in deep gray robes arguing with each other.

The younger man on the left was grabbing the man on the right's arm and saying, "Can you please calm down?! This isn't the middle city!"

The older man said angrily, "I know this isn't the middle city, but so what?! That guy is going too far. If I don't teach him a lesson, he might act even more arrogantly the next time we see him! Can you stand it?"

Chapter 3224

The younger man sighed helplessly, not letting go of the older man, "Of course I wouldn't be able to stand it! Since they will continue causing us trouble, it means that we definitely can't fight them head on…"

"Can't we just avoid them? The inner city was so large. As long as we don't bump into them, we won't be troubled! We don't have that big of a grudge against them, it'll be fine as long as we avoid any trouble!"

Hearing that, the older warrior absolutely reddened in anger. He looked like he had been gravely insulted. He reached out and pushed to hand that was grabbing his arm away.

"Just listen to what you're saying! Do you not know shame?! Do you not have any shred of pride?! Does being from the Golden Continent mean that you're spared from anything you do? The Golden Continent is a second grade world, but there are so many clans there…"

"They're just a little stronger than Chaos Continent. If an eighth-grade clan from the Chaos Continent was in the Golden Continent, they would be considered a seventh or sixth grade clan. It's not that much different! He's just some small fry from an unknown clan. If he was in the Chaos Continent, he would be nothing. How could I stand it?!"

Hearing that, the younger man was even more anxious.

He grabbed the older man's arm again, and he practically shouted, "Who told you he was a small fry?! He's an inner disciple of the Azure Clan!"

When that was said, the younger disciple looked incredibly sour. His lips twitched slightly, feeling like he was about to spit out blood from the anger.

After the older man heard that, he suddenly stiffened. However, he quickly reverted to his earlier demeanor, shaking the younger man off again, "So what? We're just supposed to get bullied like that?"

The younger man saw that his words were completely fruitless. The older man was not listening to him at all.

The younger man suddenly felt like he wanted to spit out blood.

“You’re just refusing to listen to me, aren’t you? The Azure Clan isn’t some small clan. They’re above average in the Golden Continent. If we face them head-on, we’d just be causing ourselves trouble. Can you please wake up?”

“It’s not the time to be stubborn. Things will be better if we just take a step back We’re not some mortal enemies anyway. If we just let it pass, then things will go away. After all, second grade worlds are separated from third grade worlds As long as we avoid them, there won’t be any trouble in the future. Why do you insist on loolo’ng for trouble?!”

The moment that was said, the older man looked like he had exploded. His face was completely red, looking like he had just been viciously slapped by the younger man.

The older man clenched his teeth, “What did you say?! I’m insisting on causing trouble?”

He pointed at his own nose and his eyes widened in anger, “They’re the ones who had clearly caused us trouble first! The rules of the gamble are obvious. As long as both sides agree, then it can happen! I want to wager against him because he has something I want!”

“If it wasn’t for that, I wouldn’t have bothered with him. Just because I’m not from a ninth grade clan, he met me with a sneer. If you didn’t stop me, I would have fought him on the spot. Who cares about what clan he’s from? Is he allowed to do anything he wants just because of his standing?”

When the younger man heard that, his lips twitched slightly and his expression soured greatly. He took a deep breath, suppressing his urge to scold the older man.

He straightened his body and said, “How old are you now? In so many years, haven’t you experienced a lot? Why are you letting your emotions control you?! If he looks down on you, it’s just because he doesn’t know of you.”

Chapter 3225

“Just like you said, it’s purely because he looks down on your clan. So what? Isn’t that something normal when it comes to disciples of high grade clans? You’ve done this before as well. Are you the only one allowed to do it?”

“I told you to watch your temper before entering the inner city. After all, there are warriors from four worlds here! Even if the Golden Continent ranks low among second grade worlds, it’s still a second grade world. We can’t underestimate them!”

The younger man tried very hard to advise the older man, hoping that the older man would be able to accept his words.

The older man only thought of venting his frustrations. He could not stand what had happened. He felt like his dignity had been trampled on.

Jackie raised an eyebrow at the arguments below. His eyes had a curious glint in them. He had not expected there to be warriors from four worlds there. Even the warriors from Chaos Continent were not able to act like kings.

In the middle city, the warriors from Chaos Continent were stronger on average. That was because their world was the strongest one out of the three.

It was said that Chaos Continent was only a sliver away from becoming a second grade world. In just a few more centuries or millennia, they stood a good chance of being promoted. However, even with that possibility, they were still a third grade world. There was still a gap between them and the Golden Continent.

Rudy's expression darkened when he heard the conversation below. He looked up at Jackie with some worry.

Jackie's expression remained calm as if he did not really care about what was happening downstairs.

The two of them did not say much as they walked upstairs. When they got to their room, Rudy could not hold himself back from pulling Jackie to the table in the room, and sitting Jackie down before Rudy sat in front.

He held his words back, pouring some tea and putting a cup in front of Jackie before he took a deep breath and said, "Is the Golden Continent dangerous?"

It was a bit of a sudden question.

Jackie sipped some of the tea before he laughed and said, "Are you worried that I can't beat the warriors from Golden Continent?"

Rudy's lips stiffened, wanting to deny it. That was because it would look like he did not trust Jackie.

He thought about it for a while but still nodded. After being with Jackie for so long, he already saw Jackie as an elder brother. He did not want to hide these things.

When Jackie saw the node, he let out a laugh, "You don't have to worry. Even though I don't know how strong the warriors from Golden Continent are exactly, normal warriors are still no match for me…"

Rudy sighed before he gulped down his tea, pushing down his panic.

“I know that third grade worlds have never been your goal. Even second grade worlds are beneath you. You’ve always been looking at first grade worlds, but you still don’t know how strong the warriors of second grade worlds are. The unknown is dangerous…”

“You usually make a lot of enemies too. We should be careful. just like what that person below said, let’s not provoke them. We should just keep our distance!”

Chapter 3226

During that period, they had made a lot of enemies, whether intentionally or not. Even though they had been able to deal with it the whole time, Rudy was still a little afraid of the prodigies they knew nothing about.

Jackie took a sip of tea and said plainly, “Calm down. In the Whirling World, as long as we take precautions, we won’t find ourselves in any dangerous circumstances. However, if anyone provokes us, how can we not retaliate?”

Hearing those words, Rudy sighed helplessly. He knew that he would not be able to sway Jackie, but he really was worried.

The closer they got to the center of the Whirling World, the stronger their enemies would be. He could not imagine how strong the warriors in first-level cities would be.

Those chaotic thoughts surfaced in Rudy’s mind. While he was scared, he was incredibly worried as well!

Jackie sighed as he looked at Rudy, and gently placed the teacup on the table. “Don’t worry yourself for no reason before anything happens, there’s no point in that. You must be tired after the past few days, so go to sleep for now. Without permission, no one can come in here anyway. I’ll try mastering Soul Sky.”

Rudy nodded.

There was an order in things, and even though he was worried, he had to put them aside before anything transpired.

There was a bed and a couch in the room.

Jackie let Rudy rest on the bed while he used the couch.

The storm god rank technique, Soul Sky, was a soul-attribute technique. Even powerhouses of the divine solidifying realm were often crushed by storm god rank techniques as they were incredibly difficult to understand. just understanding the contents would usually take up a large amount of time, let alone getting it to a proficient level.

Those without enough talent would not even be able to understand the techniques, but these did not trouble Jackie at all. With the memories from the ancient warriors, Jackie did not need to try before he got a complete understanding of Soul Sky.

The situational bottlenecks that stopped others were nothing to Jackie at all. He only needed to do one thing, which was to slowly start training on the technique from the start.

For others, storm god rank techniques were like massive mountains that needed a lot of time to climb.

Some of the places did not even have a path for the warriors to climb on, requiring them to carve out a path for themselves. However, it was more akin to an empty bottle to Jackie. He only needed to constantly add water to the bottle for him to train in the technique.

Storm god rank techniques were also split into three stages, and each stage had its own name.

The first stage of Soul Sky was called the Broken Soul Blade. If Jackie wanted to use Soul Sky against his enemies, he would need to get Soul Sky to proficiency. Only by getting it to that level would he be able to eliminate people with it!

Jackie took a deep breath and took out the bounty he had accumulated in Mustard Seed. He took out the Purple Soul Fruit, the Green Phoenix Fruit, and the two soul gems, putting them all on the table. No matter if those treasures were useful or not, he would absorb them first.

Only by accumulating enough power could him condense a Divine Soul. With a Divine Soul, he would be able to use the Broken Soul Blade!

Time slowly ticked away, and they had been in the inner city for 10 days. While they had paid for their stay, the results Jackie received were very unsatisfactory.

In 10 days, he had only been able to absorb one soul gem and one Purple Soul Fruit, and he only had a tenth of a Divine Soul. This was not what he anticipated whatsoever!

He had thought that absorbing so many treasures would have at least allowed him to reach 60 percent, but it was a huge difference!

Rudy had already rested enough at that time and was drinking tea on the table.

When Jackie opened his eyes, Rudy let out a laugh as he said, “I’ve already paid for the fees and added ten more days. You still have one soul gem that you haven’t absorbed. Good luck…”

Chapter 3227

Jackie was spared from the trouble of settling the fees for their stay thanks to Rudy’s proactive self. Thus, he nodded and continued to absorb the soul gem.

Meanwhile, Rudy leisurely drank his tea as he thought of everything he had experienced during this time. Even though he experienced a lot, his actual skills had not increased by that much. He specialized in alchemy, but even that was nothing special.

He had learned quite a lot from Jackie, but his talents were ordinary. There was a gulf between him and Jackie, and though he improved, it was not by much at all, which made him doubt himself.

After five days, Jackie finally opened his eyes again. He had absorbed all the treasures and had even absorbed some valuable pills, but he only had one-fifth of a Divine Soul.

Jackie shook his head regretfully, but there was nothing he could do. He fretfully realized that the slower his absorption was, the more treasures it meant he would need in the future.

Thinking about that, Jackie sighed helplessly.

True, he had much wealth on him at the moment, and he genuinely believed that even though he was far from his goal, he had thought that things were looking up. Alas, it seemed like that was all just a pipe dream.

After all, he needed to improve his strength and to do that, he would need a lot of treasures to support him. He could get them through competitions, but those did not yield that much.

If Jackie wanted to form a Divine Soul, he would need a lot of treasures. The remainder of those would require Jackie to spend large amounts of spirit crystals to purchase. just thinking about it caused Jackie to hurt physically, lamenting that he might need to spend all of his spirit crystals to get treasures soon.

Jackie sighed. “Sure enough, spirit crystals are never enough for warriors…”

Rudy raised an eyebrow when he heard that, wanting to ask Jackie something, but Jackie had already gotten off the couch. “If we’re lacking spirit crystals, then I’ll have to make more. Thankfully, there’s somewhere that we can make spirit crystals nearby. I might even be able to get some good things there…”

Rudy raised an eyebrow as he looked at Jackie's back curiously.

Jackie explained things to Rudy as he walked forward. "Do you still remember the argument we heard when we were going upstairs three days ago? That guy mentioned an attribute gamble."

Rudy suddenly recalled it when Jackie mentioned it.

"What's an attribute gamble? The name sounds so weird…"

Jackie laughed and said, "It's actually not that strange, the name's very straightforward. An attribute gamble just means you're gambling on everyone's attributes…"

"For instance, I'm a soul attribute warrior. When it comes to the soul attribute, control over it is many times stronger than other attributes. I'd be a soul attribute warrior. The attribute gamble is a competition over the control of various attributes."

Rudy's lips twitched at this. Even though Jackie had patiently explained it, he felt like he was still in the dark.

Jackie turned to look at Rudy and could immediately see that Rudy did not understand. He let out a laugh, not thinking anything of Rudy's comprehension abilities.

The moment they entered the inner city, all the rules had flooded into his mind. Rudy had been following Jackie in, so he had not gotten all that knowledge.

Chapter 3228

Rudy frowned and thought about it for a while before saying, "So, can I understand it as purely using attributes to attack?"

Jackie nodded. "That's basically it. Use the attribute you have the most control of to launch the purest attack."

Rudy was still a little doubtful. "I still can't understand. How strong would a pure attribute attack be?"

Jackie patiently explained, "All techniques have their own attributes. While you train in those techniques, you're also gaining an understanding of those attributes. The attribute gamble puts your control over those attributes to the test. If my control over the attribute is higher, my attack would beat a lower-level warrior, and I'd win. Can you understand it now?"

Rudy pursed his lips, feeling as though he had a slightly better grasp of the idea. He was just a bit puzzled at the details.

After thinking about it, Rudy shook his head. “Whatever. I should just watch before trying to understand it.”

Jackie smiled and agreed.

They were not far away from where the gamble was anyway. The two of them no longer wasted any time after they made the decision.

Jackie brought Rudy over to the Projne Area.

The Projne Area was to the east side of the inner city, and they encountered quite a few warriors that were heading there on the way.

Rudy could see the excitement and even fervency on their faces; such expressions were common in the middle city.

During the time, Rudy felt like their hearts were affected by all the gambling. He had thought that the warriors that entered the inner city were all incredibly strong and talented, so their hearts should be more firm, but it seemed he stood corrected.

Rudy frowned as he whispered, “I think everyone seems to be a bit crazy. They’re always immersed in the excitement.”

Jackie nodded, not surprised. “Isn’t that normal? No matter what kind of gamble it is, there’s always uncertainty and chances to turn the tide. Many people have made a lot of money from the gambles, while others have lost all their fortunes…”

“Ups and downs like these make it easy for someone to lose their rationality. Even warriors who are more resolute than others would get excited in such an atmosphere.”

Rudy nodded understandingly.

After about two hours, they finally arrived at the Projne Area which was split into three parts. The middle was the betting area, and a big row of Projne Sky Stones was present. Rudy counted a total of 33 of them.

On their way, Jackie explained the rules of the attribute gamble in detail.

Rudy looked at the row of Projne Sky Stones and excitedly repeated, “So both sides of the gamble just need to put their hands on both ends of the stone and use the attribute they mastered. The Projne Sky Stone will convert the attributes into an attack, and both sides will clash. The victor will be determined in a flash, right?”

Jackie nodded. “Not only do you need to circulate the attribute in your body, but you also need to inject it into the stone for the attack to materialize.”

Rudy nodded as he stared right at the 33 stones.

These stones were about the height of half a person, and all of them were colored like dust. On the stones were red-colored runes that covered the stones.

The center of the Projne Area had the stones, while the eastern side was called the eastern area where countless warriors were gathered.

The warriors that had walked with them earlier had all headed in that direction as well.

Chapter 3229

Rudy looked over and noted that the place was jam-packed with people. He estimated that there were at least 10000 people there.

He sighed, thinking that the inner city would have fewer people than the middle city since they were all elites. Alas, he stood corrected yet again. Compared to the eastern area, the western area had fewer people.

Rudy looked over and estimated that the western area only had about 1000 people there. It was 90 percent less than the western area.

The western area's warriors were all seated on mats. They were not as noisy as the eastern area, and the clothes they wore made them seem otherworldly.

What separated them from the warriors in the eastern area was the fact that they all had a whiteboard in front of them, and a lot of words were written on them.

Rudy looked at the boards and said, "You still haven't told me what's the difference between the warriors in the east and in the west. What's written on the boards?"

Jackie explained, "To put it simply, the warriors gathered in the east are mostly warriors who still haven't figured out if they want to participate in the gamble, while the warriors in the west are those who are determined to participate. Since it' s a gamble, they naturally need someone else to compete against. The board in front of them has the gamble they want and the treasures as well."

Hearing that, Rudy blinked curiously. "You can even bet treasures?"

Jackie nodded, explaining in detail, "The attribute gamble isn't completely like the ones we've seen before. The attribute gamble has two parts to it. One is on spirit crystals, while the other one is on treasures. Technique scrolls can be used, too…"

"As long as it' s something valuable, it can be used as a bet. It also increases the challenge. Some people take out valuable treasures to stake so they can attract warriors who are interested to bet against them. If they win, they'll be able to get the treasures and spirit crystals. Naturally, they'll have to fork out the same spirit crystals if they lose."

When Rudy heard that, he raised a hand to interrupt Jackie. "If you lose, you just need to pay with the same amount of spirit crystals, right?"

Jackie nodded and continued, "The attribute gamble is separated to the bet-setter and the bet-taker. The ones in the east are mostly bet-takers, and the ones in the west are mostly bet-setters. The ones who set the bets not only need spirit crystals but treasures as well. Meanwhile, the takers will only need to have spirit crystals."

"That's not very fair!" blurted Rudy.

Jackie laughed before he answered, "Just think about it, it's not that unfair. The bet-setters aren't idiots. If it wasn't fair, then the western area would be empty. There are over a thousand people there because they all feel like it's very fair. Do you know why?"

Hearing what Jackie said, Rudy was a little confused.

He could not understand, so he asked again, and Jackie did not begrudge him the answer.

"The reason's very simple… It's because the bet setters are all very confident in their skills. They agreed to the rules because they were worried that no one would bet against them. The bets are split into two parts, forcing the setters to produce treasures, because they need to attract people to take their bets."

After all that was said, Rudy said with half-understanding, "So they're allowing the setters to bait people into betting against them!"

Chapter 3230

Jackie nodded, letting out a laugh as he looked at the warriors gathered in the western area.

"The fish that take the bait isn't even fish sometimes but a beast that can't be swallowed. So, no one knows how things will end," he spoke.

Rudy nodded. Only then did he have a rough understanding of the rules of the attribute gamble.

Rudy glanced at the warriors in the western area once more and noticed that most of them had dark gold patterns on their sleeves. Noticing that, he tugged at Jackie's sleeve with surprise and pointed it out.

When Jackie saw those patterns, he immediately understood.

With a frown, he said, “They must be warriors from the Golden Continent.”

Rudy could not help but widen his eyes.

The two of them had talked about the Golden Continent. Even though they knew that there were warriors from that world in the inner city, Rudy thought that they would be very far away from him. He did not expect them to appear so quickly.

The warriors that were gathered in the western area from the Golden Continent were over 500. Most of them had their eyes shut and were resting, but even with their eyes shut, the air of arrogance around them was obvious.

Rudy hated arrogant people and thus frowned in displeasure. However, he did not say anything. He turned to look at the eastern area and noticed that the warriors of the Golden Continent only took up a fifth of the eastern area. In terms of total number, there were not that many of them.

What confused Rudy was the fact that warriors from the Golden Continent that were from the eastern area were not mingling with the warriors from the three other worlds. They even took up the centermost area, placing a clear border between them and other warriors.

The warriors of the Golden Continent in the western area were different, mixing with everyone.

Rudy asked in confusion, “Why are the warriors gathered in the eastern area all gathered together, and all of them…”

After saying that, Rudy’s lips twitched.

The warriors in the eastern area were not as quiet as in the western area. Very few of them were resting. Instead, they seemed to be in passionate discussions.

Thanks to the golden patterns on their sleeves, Rudy could immediately tell which warriors were from the Golden Continent. It was obvious how they looked down on everyone else.

Jackie looked over as well. He sighed as his gaze turned a little cold. “The warriors from the Golden Continent look down on warriors from the three other worlds. They made such a clear distinction between them because of that. They probably feel like the warriors from the three other worlds aren’t fit to stand with them.”

Rudy’s anger soared, feeling as though fire was coursing through him. “Disgusting. Who do they think they are? Even though the Golden Continent is a second-grade world, they’re the lowest among second-grade worlds! Do they think others don’t know that? Why do they insist on acting like they aren’t?”

Jackie snorted.

Looking at the arrogance on their faces, he felt like he would probably end up being in conflict with them. However, that was fine, he would respond appropriately.

“That’s not what they’ll think They think that they’re just better than others just by virtue of being from a secondgrade world. In their eyes, warriors from third-grade worlds are all a level lower than them. People like that aren’t easy to get along with,” Jackie said plainly.

Rudy’s lips twitched as he said with contempt, “Must they try to show off like that? It’s just disgusting. Just thinking about it makes me speechless.”

Saying that, he looked up at Jackie.

With Jackie’s temper, it was very possible that Jackie would butt heads with them.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3231 - 3240 -

Chapter 3231

At that moment, a loud sound suddenly came from the east that caught their attention.

A man in gray robes looked incredibly furious as he looked at a warrior from the golden continent about six meters away from him.

“What are you acting so arrogantly? Don’t think that you can act like you’re better just because you’re from the Golden Continent. You might be from a second-grade world, but that doesn’t mean everyone is strong. There are the strong and the weak in every world!”

“You have strong warriors in your world, but does that mean Chaos Continent doesn’t? Are Chaos Continent’s warriors not allowed to bet against the warriors from the Golden Continent?”

When the warrior from the Golden Continent heard that, he held his head high as he looked down on the other man. “Of course you can, but that depends on who’s issuing the bet…”

“My fellow disciple is a chosen disciple, and he’s not someone warriors from the Chaos Continent can challenge. What are you making a fuss about? Know your place!”

The warrior from the Chaos Continent started to breathe erratically, and even his eyes reddened. “So what if you’re a chosen disciple? That would depend on what clan you’re a chosen disciple of. You look so weak that there’s no way your senior is much stronger. Furthermore, an attribute battle is focused on control over your attribute. Even if your senior is strong, it doesn’t mean he can win the attribute battle!”

That warrior from the Golden Continent narrowed his eyes angrily and snarled, “You insulted me and my clan?! Very well! I’ll remember you! just you wait!”

The warrior from the Chaos Continent snorted.

“I’ll wait, then!” he growled.

The warriors around that person immediately knew that the person was getting hot-headed and pulled at his sleeve, whispering something into his ears.

That person’s expression immediately darkened, but he was still indignant. Nonetheless, he no longer resumed his argument with the warrior from the Golden Continent.

The argument attracted a lot of looks, and it caused the unfriendly atmosphere to get even tenser.

The warriors from the Golden Continent looked down on the warriors from the third-grade worlds even more, and the warriors from thirdgrade worlds hated the warriors from the Golden Continent a lot more.

Rudy sighed. “The warriors of the Chaos Continent should’ve been the strongest among us, but they weren’t as arrogant. When the warriors of the Golden Continent appeared, they instantly acted like they’re different. They don’t have any grace at all.”

Jackie raised an eyebrow and sneered, “The more they lack, the more they want to show off. The Golden Continent might be a second-grade world, but they’re at the bottom of that category. They’re definitely looked down on by warriors from other second-grade worlds…”

“Normally, worlds of different grades wouldn’t interact with each other. Since Chaos Continent was in the upper levels of the third-grade worlds, they were rarely looked down on. When they meet worlds that are weaker than theirs, they won’t need to show off that much, but the Golden Continent is different.”

Hearing that, Rudy immediately understood.

He laughed and said, “So that’s how it is. They’re looked down on when they’re among second-grade worlds, so they try to show off in front of us, making it look like they’re better… Disgusting!”

Chapter 3232

At this point, Rudy loathed the very thought of the Golden Continent warriors.

However, Rudy suddenly thought of something amid their conversation. He thus turned and looked at Jackie in confusion, “That warrior from Chaos Continent said that attribute attacks aren’t pure attacks. Even if you’re strong, your attribute attack might not be.”

Jackie nodded and explained, “That is the case, yes. That’s because your actual strength is determined by the technique you mastered and the control of your technique, but a highgrade technique doesn’t mean it uses a lot of your attributes.”

Rudy could understand only about half of that.

He frowned and asked, “So you’re saying that even if the level of the technique is high, it doesn’t mean that the technique uses a lot of a given attribute. Some techniques are lower in rank but use a lot more attributes. The warriors that use those techniques might even be able to release attribute attacks that are stronger than higher-grade techniques.”

Jackie nodded; that was exactly what he meant.

Attribute gambles could incite a gambler's heart even more due to how unpredictable they were.

Some people were incredibly strong in actual combat, but since their techniques did not use a lot of attributes, they might end up losing to others inferior to them.

The other gambles more or less put the onus on a person's true skills, but an attribute gamble was different.

Rudy said somewhat excitedly, "Then, I can try too, right?"

Jackie did not want to burst Rudy's excitement, but reality was cruel.

Jackie said helplessly, "Even though there's some uncertainty, high-grade techniques usually use a lot of attributes. After all, more of the element would usually cause the technique to be even stronger."

Rudy's excitement was dampened in an instant. "So… It's still a game for the strong in the end. It's just that the uncertainty exists between the strong, right?"

This time, Rudy's understanding was spot on.

Jackie nodded and said, "You're right, the uncertainty exists between the strong. If two people face off, their skills need to be similar for the weaker one to have a chance."

Rudy sighed helplessly, not knowing what to say. All he could do was lament the fact that the world belonged to the strong. The weaklings were better off not participating.

Jackie patted Rudy's shoulder. "Alright, don't think about it anymore. Let's go to the eastern area to understand the situation first."

Rudy followed after Jackie, arriving at the eastern area where most of the warriors were gathered.

The center was taken up by the warriors from the Golden Continent while the other areas were a mix of the three worlds. With the Golden Continent around, the warriors from the other three worlds became much friendlier with each other as though in unity. After all, the Golden Continent belittled them all.

The two of them had just stopped when they saw another argument flare up.

Chapter 3233

Logan Reaves was pulling back Justin Miller's arm.

“Justin, you’re crazy! No matter how amazing a White Phoenix Fruit is, it depends on who you’re up against. You can’t face Gale Hughes!”

Justin frowned as a glint of unhappiness flashed in his eyes. “If it was a matter of actual skill, I’d rethink things, but an attribute gamble is a battle over our mastery of attributes. How would you know I’m any weaker than him?”

“Gale might be from the Azure Clan of the Golden Continent, but he’s not a chosen disciple. He’s just an inner disciple.”

Hearing that, Logan’s face stiffened in exasperation as he let go of his hold on Justin. “So what if he’s an inner disciple? Don’t forget that the Azure Clan is a holy-grade clan. That means they’re even stronger than ninth-grade clans! Our clan, the Green Cliff Clan, is only an eighth-grade clan, we can’t compare to them at all! Their inner disciples are completely different from ours!”

Logan was very sincere with his advice, and his words were very reasonable.

Justin finally listened, but he refused to let the White Phoenix Fruit go.

He pursed his lips and said, “But… I really need a White Phoenix Fruit. If I win, the fruit will be mine…”

Logan scoffed, “What if you lose?”

He waved four fingers in front of Justin. “It’s four million spirit crystals, that’s not a small number! You probably only have five million in your storage space, so if you lose, you’ll be throwing away most of your fortune. That’s the fruit of your many years of labor! Are you willing to do that?”

These words were akin to a bucket of cold water on Justin.

He had a bitter look on his face as he sighed. “You’re right… The price of losing is too hefty. I can’t bear it…”

Rudy silently looked at Justin and Logan and suddenly realized that he was several times richer than a disciple from an eighth-grade clan. With that thought in mind, he could not help but lament that the gambles were involving larger and larger numbers.

The minimum bet for the attribute gamble was three million spirit crystals while the highest was four million. He had looked around earlier, and almost 90 percent of the warriors there were putting four million at stake.

That meant that the bet-takers would need to fork out four million as well, which was no small amount. Most of the people present needed to consider if they could really win before taking up that sum.

Rudy looked at Jackie and whispered, “No wonder you said you wanted to make some spirit crystals here. You can bet four million in one go, and you can participate in three attribute gambles in one day. If you win all three of them, you’d be able to make twelve million, even forgetting about those valuable treasures.”

Meanwhile…

Justin sighed, “Are we supposed to just watch as the chance slips away? I feel like I’m stuck here. There’s a good chance I’ll be able to break through it if I have the White Phoenix Fruit…”

Logan said in exasperation, “I know the White Phoenix Fruit contains the power of fire and wind which can let you go even higher, but your chances of winning aren’t great. As a matter of fact, you stand a big chance of losing. If you lose, you’d lose more than half your fortune!”

Justin nodded miserably, having accepted his fate rationally.

“You’re right, but I’m just reluctant. A White Phoenix Fruit is worth eight million. If I want to buy one, I’ll still need to save up for a long time, and it will be my whole fortune after I buy it.”

Logan sighed, understanding why Justin was so impulsive earlier. If it had been himself, he would not have been able to remain calm either. After all, the allure was too great.

Chapter 3234

At that moment, an unfriendly voice was suddenly heard by them.

A warrior from the Golden Continent suddenly walked over and looked at Justin. “You kept on staring at Gale just now. Are you thinking about wagering against him?”

There was a bit of a distance between the few of them and the center, but the warrior from the Golden Continent walked right over to them. His dislike for them was evident as he looked at them.

Looking at the scene, Jackie was speechless. it was just a few looks, and it was not like Justin was going to wager against Gale, yet this person decided to assert himself!

Rudy pursed his lips in disdain as he whispered to Jackie, “Does he have that much free time?”

Jackie felt that way as well. it was indeed exasperating.

“I am Lorien Miles, an inner disciple of the Azure Clan. The one who you were staring at is my senior, Gale.”

“Don’t look at me so incredulously; you should be flattered that I’m even talking to you. I just walked over because I can’t stand it anymore!” sneered Lorien, his eyes narrowed.

Jackie was even more speechless when he heard that.

It was obvious how absurd the warriors of the Golden Continent were with their behavior.

Normally, disciples from high-grade clans would keep to themselves, and unless they were challenged, they would not look for trouble. After all, stirring the pot like that was usually something for lowly gangsters. However, the warriors of the Golden Continent did not seem to care. As long as they did not like someone, they would walk over for ‘small talk’.

Jackie’s lips twitched.

It seemed all of them had something wrong with their heads. They had probably been bullied too much in the past and were looking for the chance to do the same.

They would naturally not let up any chances and would create chances at a whim. Justin’s expression soured at this exasperating confrontation. He did not expect that someone would want to cause trouble just because of a few words he had exchanged with his fellow disciple.

Justin took a deep breath and said patiently, “I did think about taking up the bet, but so what? He’s the bet-setter. There’s no rule to say who can’t take his bets.”

Logan was always mild-tempered. As long as the other person did not cross the line, he would rarely be involved with any conflicts. However, facing Lorien, he seemed to have lost that composure. He was never someone who looked for trouble, but he would not back down if someone else came looking.

Logan said with a low voice, “Don’t cross the line here. We didn’t do anything, and you’re trying to look for trouble. What do you want?”

Lorien did not expect that the other side would not be afraid of him at all. He felt like he was not being shown any respect, which caused him to become furious.

He snorted and narrowed his eyes. “Well, well… You’re not accepting my kindness, I see! Don’t think I don’t know about it. I’ve already had my eyes on you two. You held him back, but he said a load of crap. Even though I didn’t hear it, it doesn’t mean I don’t know what he said!”

“Weren’t you saying that you were equal to Gale? Gale’s just an inner disciple from the Azure Clan, but you’re a chosen disciple! it’s because you had such a hilarious thought that you thought you could face my senior!”

Justin was absolutely furious.

This man was becoming even more outrageous by the minute!

Even if he did think so, what of it?

It was absurd to want to pick on others' thoughts. Not only that, but he was also purely looking for trouble when there was none!

Chapter 3235

"Don't push your luck!" shouted Justin.

"So, what if you're from a holy-grade clan and a different world? This is the Whirling World, if you haven't noticed already. You can't do anything in the inner city no matter who you are!"

Lorien felt like he had been insulted by a low-class person, and his anger soared, "Push my luck, you say? I should be telling you that! I came here to warn you and everyone else as well: don't push your stupid thoughts on our world!"

"Even if Gale is an inner disciple, he's not someone weaklings like you can challenge. Even if the attribute battle is a bit special, you still don't stand a chance! "

As he said that, Lorien deliberately raised his voice so most of the warriors gathered there could hear him.

Rudy's eyes widened. "This guy is too much…"

The warriors around them could no longer remain calm at that. Lorien had truly crossed the line with blunt words slapping at the faces of all the warriors from the three other worlds. Even if he was from the Golden Continent, a secondgrade world, he had no right to be so arrogant.

It was no longer just sheer arrogance; it was like he was humiliating everyone.

Jackie finally understood why that warrior in the inn had been so angry that he could not contain himself.

The warriors from the Golden Continent really were absurd. They made everyone want to slap them on the spot.

The warriors around them could no longer stand it.

A warrior from the Chaos Continent said loudly, "Why are you running your mouth like that? So what if you're an inner disciple? If you're that strong, why aren't you taking part in the attribute gamble? Who do you think you are, even restricting others from taking part?!”

“That’s right! The Golden Continent is too much. Even if you’re from a higher-grade world, you’re just at the bottom of second-grade worlds. Why are you acting like you’re all larger than life?”

Those words instigated all of the warriors from the Golden Continent, and they exploded as well. There was only one person talking, but almost every warrior from the Golden Continent started to speak at that moment.

“What do you understand? You’re just trash from third-grade worlds. You should be honored that you’re even standing next to us! You don’t have the right to, anyway!”

“Why don’t you talk to us when you’re from a second-grade world?! How dare you insult the Golden Continent? Look at yourselves in the mirror first!”

“A bunch of third-class trash. You’re all so ignorant in our eyes. How dare you try to judge us. What a joke. You say we’re arrogant, but that’s because we have the right to be. Why aren’t you showing off? That’s because you’re not skilled enough to do it. Just stand there and be good!”

The eastern area suddenly turned incredibly noisy as fights burst out everywhere.

If it were not for the rules, the fights would probably have turned into a war between worlds.

Jackie sighed, reaching up to rub his sore ears. He could not stand all the noise.

Rudy clenched his teeth in anger as well. He started to argue with the warriors of the Golden Continent as well. He was so riled up that he no longer minded his words and even cursed their ancestors.

Lorien was right in front of Justin and not far away from Rudy as well, so Lorien heard everything Rudy said.

“What did you say?!” he snarled. “You dared to curse my seniors?! Very well! You’re dead meat!”

Rudy was not afraid and instead said, “You want to fight me? Well, let’s see if you have the skills. Even Gale doesn’t have the right to, let alone you!”

Lorien laughed. “Who do you think you are? Don’t think I can’t tell that the energy in your body isn’t stable. it’s obvious that you’re just trash. I don’t know how you got into the inner city, but don’t think that we can’t tell what you are just because you know how to talk!”

Chapter 3236

Rudy's lips stiffened, unable to respond to that.

Lorien's eyes were sharp as he could immediately tell that Rudy's skills were not up to par.

Rudy had been greatly pushed back by that, but his heart was still angry. As his anger grew, he felt like he was going to get a heart attack anytime.

Facts hurt the most. Even if he knew that Lorien's words were over the line, there was no way he could respond to the truth. He stomped his feet angrily, and the noise around him got louder and louder, but he could still say nothing.

Lorien was amused looking at him stomping his feet angrily.

Lorien smiled snidely and said, "How dare trash like you talk so much in front of me? You must really not know your place. You act like we're equals, but you're just a rock by the side of the road, not even qualified to die under my feet!"

"If it weren't for the rules, you'd already be dead. However, you shouldn't be too pleased with yourself. There are a lot of fun places in the inner city. I have all the time in the world to torture you. I have already memorized you, and I'll have people constantly looking out for you. As long as we get the chance, you'll be buried alive."

Rudy's lips twitched, and his expression stiffened.

He had been threatened again. If he was a little insignificant guy with no one to rely on, then he would start living like a street rat from then on. He would be forced to be incredibly careful every day and probably find a place to hide, no longer appearing in public. Yet, he was not. However, he did not want to continue arguing with Lorien.

After being threatened, Rudy slowly calmed down. He knew that he had been impulsive just now. They already made so many enemies, his conflict with Lorien would just be adding to Jackie's troubles.

Thinking of that, he turned to look at Jackie with regret. Jackie happened to turn his head as well.

When the two of them exchanged a look, Rudy felt even more guilty. He pursed his lips and sent an apologetic smile.

Looking at him, Jackie knew that Rudy had finally calmed down. Moments ago, Rudy was ready to fight against anyone.

Jackie sighed, whispering, “What’s the point of regretting it? I already know what happened. If you regret it, then you should know what to do in the future. Regret is pointless…”

Rudy’s expression stiffened, not knowing what to say out of his guilt.

He suddenly remembered all the trouble he had caused Jackie due to his impulsiveness. However, he could not stop himself, especially when facing injustice. He would explode just like cold water in boiling oil.

Rudy said apologetically, “I’ll be careful in the future, it won’t happen again, Jackie…”

However, he was stopped by Jackie’s hand before he could finish, “It’s fine, there’s no need to apologize. Honestly, even if you weren’t impulsive, things would have still happened anyway.”

Rudy did not understand what Jackie meant by that and looked at him in confusion. However, Jackie did not plan on explaining anything to Rudy. He merely looked right at Lorien.

When Lorien saw that Rudy no longer dared to speak, he was very pleased with himself.

He held his head high as he looked at everyone arrogantly, “Gale might be an inner disciple, but he’s already mastered his upper earth rank technique to the second stage. He’s only a sliver away from perfecting it!”

“He’ll be able to make a breakthrough before too long! What about all of you? You’re all just trash. You might never even be able to learn a technique of that level your whole life!”

The moment that was said, the surroundings became quiet.

The arguments started to die down. Facts were the most convincing thing. Gale was an inner disciple, but his skills were already at the level of the chosen disciples of the best eighth-grade clans of their world.

Jackie raised an eyebrow. it was more or less as he expected.

Chris had been a chosen disciple of the Purple Cloud Pavilion and was among the top three at that. His skills were more or less at Gale’s level.

Chapter 3237

Gale was just an inner disciple of the Azure Clan. The difference between the two sides was obvious. The reality was more convincing than anything.

However, a warrior from the Chaos Continent loudly shot back, “So what? Chaos Continent is filled with warriors of upper-earth rank techniques. Even Hestia Continent has them, let alone us. You do have a lot of masters, but third-grade worlds have a lot too. If you say that we are all trash, then what are you?!”

“That’s right! You speak as if no one else can do it. Upper-earth rank techniques are nothing. Among the chosen disciples from ninth-grade clans in the Chaos continent, there are even those who know lower ultimate god-rank techniques! It’s just that they aren’t here today. Don’t talk as if masters only exist in the Golden Continent, okay?!”

“That’s right! Your world might be a second-grade world that’s a level higher than ours, but that’s just one level! The Golden Continent is far worse compared to other continents. You only know how to act like heroes in front of us!”

Those words were like an explosion that destroyed the earlier quietness.

The warriors of the Golden Continent hated being compared with other second-grade worlds!

All of them started to look ready for battle.

“You’re all just trash from third-grade worlds who only know how to talk up a big show. Can you look at yourselves before you speak?! You put up an act like that, so go challenge Gale if you have the skills! You don’t even dare to. Even if you do, you’ll just lose!”

“That’s right! The ones who are the loudest shouldn’t just focus on bragging. If you have the skills, then go take up Gale’s bet!”

The third-grade world warriors quieted down quite a bit again.

To challenge Gale, they would first need to be at his skill level. Most of the people present were not at that level. Those with the skills to challenge Gale were calmer, having their own considerations. After all, they could only issue three challenges a day.

If they stood up to challenge Gale, the pressure would be multiplied. They could not afford to lose, but attribute gambles were too uncertain. It was not true skill at stake. The others knew that very well, so no one stood up to accept the challenge.

When Lorien saw that there was no response, he started to laugh out loud. It was an incredibly exaggerated laugh that caused Rudy to be infuriated just looking at him.

Justin and Logan were incredibly angered as well. The warriors from Golden Continent were far too arrogant, but they could do nothing about it.

Lorien was very close to Rudy and happened to notice Rudy’s hateful expression.

He suddenly stopped his laughing as he narrowed his eyes, walking toward Rudy, “What? Are you not happy? If you’re not happy, then challenge him! If you don’t have the skills, then suffer in silence!”

Chapter 3238

Rudy almost spat out a mouthful of blood. He looked at Lorien with his teeth clenched, and his veins popped from the anger.

Jackie sighed helplessly, grabbing Rudy’s arm to stop Rudy from getting punished by the laws.

Jackie could tell that Lorien was deliberately provoking Rudy. The more unhappy Rudy seemed about the situation, the more arrogantly he would act in front of Rudy.

He wanted to thoroughly infuriate Rudy so Rudy would lose control of himself and launch an attack. That way, Rudy would immediately be punished by the laws of the Whirling World.

Jackie was incredibly calm at that moment. If that continued, Rudy really would not be able to handle it.

A White Phoenix Fruit was something amazing. It was worth quite a lot of spirit crystals.

He hated the noise around him, so he looked toward Gale in the west direction. He started to walk firmly toward the area until Jackie was right in front of Gale.

The warriors in the eastern area went completely silent. Both of Gale’s eyes opened to look at Jackie coldly.

Jackie said calmly, “I will challenge you as a bet-taker. I hope you won’t waste time talking, because I’m very short on time.”

Gale clearly heard those words, causing Gale to raise an eyebrow.

A flash of rage shone in his eyes. Even though his eyes had been closed, he still heard the arguments from the eastern area. He knew why they had been fighting, and the contents of the arguments.

He had thought that no one would dare to step up to challenge him. Even if there was anyone, it would be someone from the Golden Continent. He never expected that there would be an idiot willing to challenge him.

Gale narrowed his eyes, and his tone was incredibly cold, “What’s your name? Which continent are you from?”

Jackie calmly answered, “ Jackie, from Hestia Continent.”

When he heard Jackie’s origins, Gale started to laugh. However, his laugh did not reach his eyes. Gale’s eyes got even colder.

A piece of trash from Hestia Continent had actually dared to challenge him.

How bold!

He would not allow his honor to be challenged. Jackie challenging him was like a stomp on his dignity. Gale frowned as killing intent flashed in his eyes. He recalled what Jackie had just said, and the killing intent deepened.

That kid actually asked him not to waste any time. How arrogant. If it was not for the rules, he would have attacked Jackie right away.

Gale narrowed his eyes, slowly standing up from the mat. There was an aura of strength around his body.

He wanted to push Jackie back, but Jackie was not affected at all. Jackie’s expression remained calm. All of his actions and words were clearly seen by the man.

The western side was still quiet, but the eastern side had exploded.

Everyone was looking at Jackie strangely. He was just from Hestia Continent, so they felt like he was overestimating himself.

Who did he think he was?

Lorien was stunned. His lips twitched speechlessly. He turned to look at Rudy and saw that Rudy was incredibly excited. Lorien felt even more strange looking at Rudy.

Jackie had stood next to Rudy earlier, and the two of them had whispered to each other for a long time. It was obvious that they were close. Rudy was already a crazy braggart, but he did not expect Jackie to be crazier.

Rudy had just been bragging, but Jackie had gone and challenged Gale. That took a lot of guts.

Could four million spirit crystals be worth nothing to him?

Maybe he did so because he thought he would be able to earn the praises of the warriors from the third-grade worlds.

Chapter 3239

Lorien felt like it was hilarious, he looked at Rudy and said, “You’re just second-class trash that only knows how to brag, and he’s just an idiot who doesn’t think before he acts. No wonder you’re friends, you both are an amazing pairing!”

After he said that, the warriors from Golden Continent all laughed uproariously. They felt like Jackie’s actions were just crazy. They looked at Jackie like they were looking at an idiot.

Hearing all of that, Rudy was not angry at all. He was already used to words like that.

Every time, Jackie would use his abilities to shut those people up.

Rudy laughed coldly before saying, “Don’t speak too earlier. In a while, you’ll know who’s the second-class and who’s the idiot!”

Lorien scoffed as his lips twitched, not knowing what to say.

Rudy did not seem to care about what others were saying and merely looked at Jackie with anticipation. He had been waiting for Jackie to do something the whole time.

Winning everyone else’s praise was secondary to winning the spirit crystals and the White Phoenix Fruit.

Justin had even clearly stated the value of the White Phoenix Fruit. Jackie would be able to get at least seven or eight million after he sold it. It was no small number.

He could feel that Jackie was in desperate need of spirit crystals, so there was no way Jackie would give up such a chance! Jackie’s actions rendered those from the other third-grade worlds speechless especially when they heard that Jackie was from Hestia Continent.

They felt like Jackie was only going to embarrass them.

Anyone who stepped up at that moment should at least be a chosen disciple of an eighth-grade clan from White Marsh Continent or Chaos Continent, otherwise, the match would have no meaning. The results were obvious. Even if attribute gambles had some uncertainty, that still depended on both sides being equal in skill!

Most of the warriors of the inner city did not know who Jackie was. After all, Jackie had only gotten a name for himself in the inner city.

Those from White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent started to ask the warriors from Hestia Continent what clan Jackie was from, but they ended up with just a shake of the head. Even warriors from Hestia Continent wanted to know who that person who appeared out of nowhere was.

When they found no answer even after asking around, they determined that Jackie should be a wandering warrior.

That answer caused them to be even more exasperated.

They said that wandering warriors should just keep quiet and know their place, and they wondered why Jackie had to stand out at that moment.

Did Jackie think they would praise him?

A warrior from Chaos Continent said with exasperation, “This guy must be obsessed with showing off, but the more he acts like that, the more the opposite would happen. If he loses, he’d just embarrass all of us with him! I really want to call him back and ask him not to try to show off at a time like this, but I’m worried that he won’t listen! Then we’ d be laughed at by Golden Continent even more!”

“That’s right. it’s so frustrating. Is there something wrong with his brain? Was he kicked by a donkey or something? I wonder if he knows what he’s doing. If he knows that he’ll only embarrass himself by losing.”

“If he knew, he wouldn’t be doing this. A wandering warrior could never win. He’s just fooling himself!”

Chapter 3240

Compared to Gale, the other warriors from Golden Continent were not that angry.

They merely felt like something must be wrong with Jackie’s head. Otherwise, there was no way Jackie would do something like that!

A warrior from the Golden Continent laughed and said, “This person must be trying to make a name for himself by doing this, but he’s only going to embarrass himself. Just look at the expressions on those country bumpkins’ faces.”

“This is so hilarious. All of them are so embarrassed right now. They want to pull him back, but this guy looks like a complete idiot that wouldn’t care about what others say. He wants to become a hero like this, how funny! This is great, though, Gale will get four million spirit crystals for free!”

“That’s right. He’s just a mindless idiot. Just listen to what he said just now. He dared to tell Gale to shut up with such a commanding tone, and to not waste his time! I almost laughed when I heard that. Who does he think he is? Does he think he’s some fantastic hero?”

“He even said that Gale was wasting his time. I wonder what’s going on in his mind for him to say that. It’s no longer just a joke, this guy must be crippled in the head!”

“It would be praise calling him a cripple…”

Various insults were constantly being thrown around.

Rudy was able to take it initially, but his anger started to build. He was starting to lose his temper.

These people were really crossing the line with what they said.

He frowned and suddenly said, “What do all of you know?! it’s one thing that you’re ignorant, but you’re just throwing your judgment everywhere. Remember what you’re saying right now! Don’t slap yourself in the face later!”

Rudy’s words did nothing to stop the discussions and only made everyone else think that he was an idiot too.

The warriors from the third-grade worlds wanted nothing more than for someone to cover up Rudy’s face so he would stop saying such embarrassing things.

The warriors from the Golden Continent were all laughing.

One of them said in between laughs, “No wonder you have such a good relationship with him. Indeed, birds of the same feather flock together. Both of you are the same!”

“There’s probably something wrong with your head. You even asked us to remember what we said. We’ll listen to you then. We’ll remember everything we said, but what would that do? Do you think that would change the results?”

“Do you think that, if we remember what we said, then Jackie would be able to beat Gale? Don’t joke around so much! Both of you are absolute treasures. Did you come here to make us happy today?”

The eastern side was a complete mess, but the western side was so quiet that one could hear others breathing.

At that moment, the warriors of the western side all had their eyes opened as they stared at Jackie with a look of mockery. Gale felt like he had been challenged. That kid was challenging him and making a joke out of him!

Gale narrowed his eyes as he said in a cold tone, “Brat! Do you know what will happen if you offend me?”

Jackie took a deep breath. He was already used to hearing that. Many people had asked him if he knew what offending them meant.

What ended up happening to those who asked him that question?

Jackie saw everything clearly. Thinking about that, Jackie could not help but let out a laugh.

He had a relaxed look on his face as he replied, “Of course, I know! You act like you didn’t hear what I said. Let me repeat myself, I’m short on time. Once I gamble against you, I still have others to go against. Please don’t waste my time.”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3241 - 3250 -

Chapter 3241

Those words ultimately set fire to the explosives.

Gale could no longer hold his temper as he stepped forward, “You brat! Don’t be so pleased with yourself! Don’t think that you can do whatever you want, and I won’t be able to do anything to you. The inner city is different from the middle city!”

“There are a lot of places where I can attack you. Unless you spend your whole life in places with restrictions, your end will be worse than death! You’ll be begging me for mercy!”

Jackie could not hold himself back from rolling his eyes. He had said so many times to not waste any time, but these people seem to always choose to not listen.

They seemed insistent on constantly talking to him, which only annoyed Jackie more.

He reached out and stopped Gale from speaking anymore, “Hey! Do you not understand what I’m saying?! Can you please shut up? No matter how strong you think you are, can you stop acting as if you’ve already won?! Can you brag after you’ve beaten me?!”

Gale’s lips twitched as he reddened in fury.

He wanted nothing more than to attack Jackie on the spot, but his reason told him that he should leave Jackie behind to slowly torture. He narrowed his eyes as he looked at Jackie with a threatening gaze.

After taking a few breaths, he slowly said, “Very good! Since you want to lose so much, then I’ll let you!”

Jackie nodded, not wanting to waste any more time.

After Gale agreed, Jackie turned around and walked right to the Projne Stones. Jackie arrived in front of the twenty-seventh stone. Every Projne Stone had a masked caretaker beside them.

The start of an attribute gamble was straightforward. One just had to report their names and put down the bets for the attribute gamble to start.

After the caretaker took down some simple notes, they gave up their spot.

Jackie arrived at the east of the stone, while Gale stood at the west of the stone. The two of them faced each other, and Gale looked at Jackie with an angered expression. Jackie did not even bother looking at Gale as if Gale was just air.

The caretaker shouted out, “The gamble will start! Both parties are to activate their attributes and put their attributes into the Projne Stone!”

Gale snorted and said, “Brat! You’re the most blindly confident piece of trash I’ve seen!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow and replied calmly, “You’re also the most annoying idiot I’ve seen!”

The two of them stared at each other, not giving way.

Gale had already been infuriated by Jackie enough and was impatiently summoning up all the elements that he could control in his body. He was a wood attribute warrior. He summoned up a green light from his body, and even his eyes started to glow green. He let out a shout and poured all of the power into his right hand before pushing it onto the Projne Stone.

Jackie was noticeably much calmer. Gray energy circulated his skin which was incredibly hard to notice.

He gently placed his left hand on the Projne Stone. The gray energy flowed like a river, violently injecting itself into the Projne Stone.

The crowd only saw gray energy and a green glow slowly rise from the Projne Stone.

Chapter 3242

Those two energies were incredibly full, and they looked evenly matched. Jackie looked at it calmly, while Gale had a smile of victory on his face.

Jackie could see that he was incredibly confident.

Right at that moment, the two forces of energy collided in the air. The gray energy was like an incredibly potent acid, immediately dissolving the green light.

That green light was completely dissolved by the gray energy in a flash. Only the gray energy was left floating in the air, not weakening at all.

Everyone saw the scene, and other than the emotionless caretaker and Jackie, they were all stunned. They had their eyes opened wide and their mouths gaping. Suddenly, there was complete silence.

Even Gale himself could not believe it and wondered if he was hallucinating. They rubbed their eyes to try and see things more clearly and still saw the gray energy remaining in the air.

At that moment, Gale realized he was not seeing things.

Everything he saw had happened!

Gale's face was pale as his lips trembled. His eyes had, at some point, reddened. He started to breathe incredibly erratically.

He did not want to believe what he had seen and wanted to prove that everything that had happened was just an illusion. However, as he thought about it, the more terrified he got.

Gale took a deep breath, "This is all fake!"

He practically shouted that out. His eyes constantly shook, and it was obvious how hard it was for him to accept the truth. Yet, even if he could not accept it, it was the reality!

Jackie raised an eyebrow, feeling amused by Gale.

He snorted and said, "It's useless even if you shout to the skies."

Jackie could not be bothered to argue with him, so he kept quiet after saying that.

The results of the attribute gamble were clear. It had been displayed in front of everyone, leaving no room for doubt. The caretaker stood up at that moment, and his cold tone made it sound like it had nothing to do with him. He was just the reader of the results.

" Jackie wins. He gets four million spirit crystals and a White Phoenix Fruit," After saying that, his white, pupil-less eyes coldly looked at Gale.

The attribute had clear rules. Once the victor was determined, the one who lost needed to hand over the stakes to the other party within five minutes. Otherwise, they would be punished.

Gale's lips twitched as he started to cough intensely. He even started to cough out blood, which stained his clothes. His expression paled a lot.

Jackie raised an eyebrow. He never expected it to be so hard for Gale to accept.

The attribute gamble was filled with uncertainty in the first place. Everyone who participated should already have adjusted their mentality. Even if they were unwilling, they would be able to force themselves to accept it. After all, there was always a loser and a winner.

Chapter 3243

Gale's hands trembled as he stared right at Jackie, filled with reluctance. He heaved heavily.

His lips trembled slightly, "Why did I lose to you?!"

When he said that, Gale was already on the brink of a mental collapse. He was on the verge of exploding at any moment.

The warriors of the eastern side all had their eyes widened in shock, not believing what they had just witnessed.

A warrior from Chaos Continent shook slightly, "Pinch me. I need to see if I'm crazy. Otherwise, how could something so absurd happen? Is he really a wandering warrior from Hestia Continent? Since when are wandering warriors so strong?!"

As he said that, he even started to breathe more quickly. His face was full of disbelief.

A warrior standing next to him found it hard to speak at all.

The man took a deep breath, "It's not an illusion! If it was, then everyone here has been trapped inside. This is absurd! Isn't Gale using an upper ultimate earth rank technique? That guy earlier even said that Gale was already at the second level, only a sliver away from perfection."

"With skills like that, he should not have lost so quickly. If I didn't know anything before and merely looked at the match, I would have suspected that Gale was not using an upper-earth rank technique, but a lower-earth rank one. He lost too quickly!"

A lot of people agreed with what he said. Gale had lost far too quickly. He had not been able to even hold on before he was defeated. At that moment, the warriors from Golden Continent who had been so arrogant before looked like deflated balloons. All of them had sour looks on their faces.

The attitude they had earlier had completely disappeared. it was like they had all been violently slapped on the face.

The shock did not last for too long. After the shock disappeared, the warriors from the third-grade worlds regained their confidence.

They had been humiliated by the warriors from Golden Continent so much, and it was their turn to fight back.

A warrior from Chaos Continent laughed and said, “Now I have to admit that you’re all right. Gale’s powers are so extraordinary, so how could Jackie face up to him? Look, look at how badly Jackie lost.”

Those words immediately summoned the pride of all the warriors from the third-grade world. Quite a few people started to speak up, “That’s right! Gale‘s so strong. He’s so strong that I can’t even dare to look at him. How could Jackie be a match for him? That warrior named Lorien praised Gale so much. I didn’t agree at the time, but it looks like it’s true! Don’t you all think so?!”

“Of course. He’s a warrior from Golden Continent. How could he lose to a wandering warrior from Hestia Continent? That would be too hilarious!”

As they spoke, they laughed loudly. They were so happy it was as if they had picked up some high-grade pills on the road. They were so happy their smiles were incredibly wide. Compared to the warriors from the third-grade worlds, the warriors from Golden Continent were all furious.

Those words did not put Gale down at all, but it was still hard to listen to all the same. Their earlier comments had all been thrown back at their faces. They found it hard to even lift their heads.

Lorien had said that Jackie was not even worthy of facing Gale, but Gale had lost so completely to Jackie.

Gale did not even compare to Jackie at all.

He had been dominated by Jackie in an instant. Everything that happened earlier had been seen by everyone. Even if they wanted to say something back, they had nothing to say.

The warriors of Golden Continent were all completely quiet as if they had lost their ability to breathe.

The warriors from the third-grade worlds got more and more excited as they spoke.

The insults that had been thrown at them from before were all being hurled right back at the warriors from the Golden Continent’s faces.

Chapter 3244

“I remembered that someone said Jackie had no right to challenge Gale, that he did not even have the right to stand with Gale. it looks like that person was right. Look at how badly Jackie lost. I was too scared to even look.”

“He only lasted for a second before he was defeated. There was no chance at all. it was so quick I don’t even know what to say about it. I really want to console Jackie right now, since he lost so quickly!”

Everyone seemed incredibly happy being sarcastic.

The loser had clearly been Gale, but they were speaking as if Gale had won. Quite a few of the warriors from the Golden Continent were red with anger. They breathed heavily but had nothing to say at all. Their expressions were so dark it was like they had lost their families overnight.

Rudy’s smile was about to split his face apart.

Everyone was talking so happily, and he joined in as well. He had heard so many insults being thrown at Jackie from the warriors of Golden Continent earlier, and he finally had the chance to fight back.

Lorien was right in front of him and did not even dare to look over at him.

Lorien merely looked at the Projne Stone, stunned. It was like he had been dealt a heavy blow. He heard all the mocking words around him. At that moment, he was no longer as arrogant as before. He was like his backbone had been taken out from him, unable to support him anymore.

He felt like all of the discussions were about to be targeted at him, so he frowned and attempted to head back to the center, where the warriors from Golden Continent gathered. However, he had just taken a step forward when Rudy noticed him.

Rudy let out a cold laugh, “What? Are you leaving? Weren’t you acting so arrogantly earlier? Why are you trying to leave now? Didn’t you say that us warriors from third-grade worlds weren’t worthy of challenging the warriors from Golden Continent? Why aren’t you saying anything right now? We’re all waiting!”

“We’ll agree to anything you say right now. We won’t talk back anymore! I think you were absolutely right. The warriors from Golden Continent really are strong. Just look at how quickly you won!”

Lorien’s whole body stiffened, and his mouth constantly twitched. He did not even dare to look back.

He was caught off guard at that moment, not daring to walk away, but feeling like staying there was wrong as well. He suddenly regretted why he had been so antagonistic earlier, insisting on harassing those people.

Rudy would obviously not let him off easy. Just thinking about how Lorien had mocked him made him furious.

Rudy narrowed his eyes and stared right at Lorien's back, "Didn't you call us country bumpkins just now? Why aren't you saying that anymore? Are you suddenly feeling like the country bumpkins are stronger than all of you? The master you were praising was so weak!"

Lorien straightened his back, but not because of his pride. His whole body stiffened. He did not want to seem weak at that moment.

He wanted to say something back to win back some of his dignity, but he could not form the words. After all, nothing he said would be convincing at that moment!

Rudy scoffed before he continued to say, "Now, do you finally know who the ignorant ones are? Calling you ignorant is as good as praising you. At least ignorant people aren't delusional like you are."

Chapter 3245

"You're clearly just insignificant, but you think you can rule the skies. You think that no one can compare to you. Golden Continent might be a second-grade world, but you forgot something-information spreads. All of us know that you're at the bottom of second-grade worlds. Otherwise, you wouldn't have been sent here to compete with us!"

After Rudy finished saying that, the warriors from Golden Continent were all so furious that they were about to cough out blood.

If Jackie had not won, those words would definitely have them arguing to death. After all, they were all sensitive to that point.

Yet, all they could do at that moment was duck their heads. They knew very well that if they refused to admit it or bring up something else, the warriors from the third-grade worlds would smell blood and start attacking them verbally.

Hence, they were forced to bear with it. The eastern side was incredibly noisy, but Jackie's side was practically silent. He could feel like Gale was about to mentally collapse.

Gale was breathing louder and louder, and his eyes were incredibly red as if he could faint at any moment.

He knew he could not accept the truth, but did not expect him to struggle so much. It had already been quite some time, but he was still caught up in his own thoughts, refusing to admit or accept the truth.

Jackie did not bother reminding him that he would be punished if he did not produce the rewards.

Gale was more valuable staying there to Jackie anyway. After all, Gale had threatened Jackie earlier. If Gale had the chance, he would definitely attack Jackie.

Jackie would naturally not show any mercy to enemies like that. Thankfully, Gale still had a shred of rationality left, even if he was quickly losing it.

Right before the time limit was up, he weakly raised his hand and produced four million spirit crystals and a White Phoenix Fruit from his storage space.

The White Phoenix Fruit was placed in a special box.

Jackie took the box and examined the fruit in front of everyone. The moment the box was opened, a dense fragrance assaulted his nose. After looking at it for a long time, Jackie kept the White Phoenix Fruit.

Justin almost drooled at the sight. The White Phoenix Fruit was necessary for him to ascend. If the White Phoenix Fruit was sold in the market, it would be worth at least eight or nine million.

On top of the four million spirit crystals, Jackie's winnings amounted to twelve or thirteen million.

It attracted quite a lot of looks, and people were so jealous that their eyes threatened to pop out of their sockets. Even if they were jealous, they knew very well that if they were the ones standing in front of Gale, they would have been the losers.

Jackie laughed as he raised an eyebrow, "Not bad. The attribute gamble really is profitable…"

The moment he said that Gale spat out some more blood. His eyes were filled with rage. He wanted to rip Jackie's neck apart.

Jackie was already immune to looks of hatred like that since a long time ago.

After the bet was settled, Jackie walked right back to the eastern side.

He had just taken three steps when Gale shouted out to him, "Stay there! Who are you? You can't be a wandering warrior. Even worse is that you said you're from Hestia Continent! I don't believe it! It's impossible!"

Chapter 3246

Jackie's lips twitched as he turned to look at Gale in exasperation.

He sneered and said, “That’s the truth. Why would I lie to you? I know you’re in a complicated mood right now, but I don’t have the time to waste on you. If you want to keep on lying to yourself, there’s nothing I can do about it.”

Those words caused Gale’s chest to hurt again. Compared to being slapped on the face, this was more painful.

His hands trembled slightly and his hands were clenched tight, “Don’t even try to attack me in this manner. I admit that I lost, but you should stop lying to me. If you were a wandering warrior from Hestia Continent, there’s no way I would have lost so quickly!”

After saying that, Gale pointed at the thirteenth Projne Stone.

There were two people standing around the Projne Stone. One of them was from Chaos Continent, and the other was from Golden Continent. The two of them were in an intense battle.

They were frantically summoning all of the attributes that they had control of, injecting them into the Projne Stone. On the stone, two rays of light clashed. One was icy blue, while the other was mud yellow.

The two lights clashed in mid-air, not giving way to the other. The icy blue light suddenly let out an attack, taking away a part of the yellow light. The yellow light launched a counterattack at the blue light.

From that, it was obvious that the two of them were evenly matched, and the victor would need some time to be determined.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not understanding what Gale meant.

Was he trying to prove how quickly it had been?

Gale took a deep breath, his face was incredibly sour, “Do you see that?! This is what happens when your skills are close. If you are at the same level as me, then that would happen, but it clearly didn’t! The technique I’m learning is an upper-earth rank technique. If you can do this, it means you were using a lower ultimate god rank technique!”

“Since when have wandering warriors from Hestia Continent been able to learn lower ultimate god rank techniques? Don’t think that I’ll just believe your lies. Don’t treat me like an idiot!”

“Even if Hestia Continent has a barrier-breaking them off from the other worlds, I still have some basic knowledge. Unless you’re the top chosen disciple of a ninthgrade clan, there’s no way you’re this skilled!”

Jackie finally understood why Gale had said so much.

Gale was just trying to save some of his dignity. After all, it was far too humiliating to lose to a wandering warrior.

Losing to a master who had a lower ultimate god rank technique would give a completely different impression. At least he would have lost with dignity, and would not be laughed at.

At that moment, the warriors on the eastern side started to get serious.

The label of a wandering warrior had been stuck on Jackie, but it did seem like Gale could be right. Jackie could have just been putting on an act and not been telling the truth.

Jackie's lips started to twitch helplessly. He held his head up high and turned to look at the warriors on the eastern side.

At that moment, all of them had their eyes wide open as they looked at Jackie inquisitively.

Jackie smirked meaningfully, "If you don't believe me, you can go look into it. There are quite a few warriors from Hestia Continent gathered here. If I'm from a high-grade clan, then surely some of them recognize me."

Chapter 3247

After saying that, Jackie walked right back to the eastern side. He did not want to keep on wasting time.

The moment Jackie stepped into the area, he saw a familiar figure speed past him.

Upon closer impression, was that not Lorien, who had been so prideful earlier?

Yet, Lorien looked like a street rat at that moment, not even daring to raise his head as he walked past Jackie.

Jackie smiled before he coldly said to Lorien, "What? You were so proud earlier, didn't you say I had something wrong with my head? "

When Lorien heard that, he sped up. He did not even dare to stop. It was as if those words were spoken by a demon that was chasing him. Stopping would mean that he would get caught.

Jackie scoffed, not continuing. Just like Lorien had said earlier, there were plenty of places without any restrictions on this level. If he had the chance, he would get his revenge.

After returning to Rudy's side, Rudy gave him an enthusiastic thumbs up.

Justin, who had thought that Jackie was crazy earlier, shot Jackie a look of admiration.

Jackie did not care how the others were looking at him.

After the match ended, Jackie was already starting to think about who he would face next. After all, he could only conduct three gambles a day.

Before he left, he wanted to at least walk away with thirty million spirit crystals worth of assets. Only then would he get closer to his goals.

At that moment, some people tried to get closer, but Jackie's eyes were already on the western side before they could speak.

He wanted to see if anything interesting was happening there. There were over a thousand people and over a thousand boards. There should definitely be some treasures that could improve his soul there.

Just as his eyes were earnestly looking around, a cheerful laugh was suddenly heard, "Alright, that's it then! The Enlightened Soul Root is something amazing. Even in our world, the value can go up to thirty million. In the Whirling World where things are lacking, it can go up another ten million!"

Those words successfully attracted Jackie's attention.

He turned to look at the person who was talking, and saw that it was a tall man in a deep green robe.

Jackie raised an eyebrow and asked, "Who is that?"

Justin was right next to Jackie and immediately answered, "That person is called Viktor Kroole. He's from the Flying Cloud Clan of Chaos Continent. He's the top chosen disciple, so he's incredibly strong!"

Jackie raised an eyebrow before he nodded at Justin.

Justin's lips curled up excitedly. Jackie had a rough personality. He had looked away the moment someone wanted to get close, ignoring others completely, but he had actually nodded at him.

Justin suddenly felt like he was incredibly lucky.

Jackie did not know how much Justin's thoughts raced in just a short moment. His mind was fixated on the words, "Enlightened Soul Root…"

A treasure like that was even recorded in the books of first-grade worlds.

Enlightened Soul Roots had a lot of soul energy that could increase the speed of comprehension of a soul attribute warrior. After absorbing it, it can even raise a warrior's talents. It was something amazing and happened to be something Jackie needed.

Viktor had a high standing and was the first place among chosen disciples of the Flying Cloud Clan.

The moment he said that he immediately earned a lot of compliments around him. Viktor really enjoyed the feeling and had a bright smile on his face.

Chapter 3248

However, someone voiced his own opinion, "Dan Summers won't be easy to deal with. He's a chosen disciple of the holy grade clan, the Azure Clan. Even though he's not one of the top disciples, he's still a chosen disciple. You can't compare him to inner disciples."

That person was immediately criticized after saying that. A man who had a sharp nose coldly sneered and said, "Why are you trying to praise others so much? Dan is a chosen disciple, but isn't Viktor one too?"

"What's so impressive about being a chosen disciple? Didn't Gale brag so much earlier? He still ended up losing so badly, not able to stand up against Jackie at all. Golden Continent had just bragged too much before this. All of you have been fooled!"

Those words earned a lot of looks of approval, but a lot of them shook their heads to disagree as well. Even if they were not willing to admit it, Golden Continent being stronger than them was the truth.

They could not deny their overall strength just because their warriors were arrogant and shameless.

The Flying Cloud Clan was an eighth-grade clan from Chaos Continent, but the Azure Clan was two grades higher than the Flying Cloud Clan. There would definitely be differences between their disciples as well.

A warrior from White Marsh Continent frowned and said, "We're not trying to praise them, but we're just pointing out the truth. We can't deny the strength of Golden Continent just because Jackie managed to win. A chosen disciple is still a chosen disciple, they're stronger than inner disciples. "

Those words were immediately rebuked by the Flying Cloud Clan's disciples, "What kind of nonsense are you saying? Don't you know that Viktor is in first place in the Flying Cloud Clan?"

"Of course, we acknowledge the Azure Clan is stronger than the Flying Cloud Clan, but Dan isn't that high up among the chosen disciples of the Azure Clan. Viktor is the first place. Just because of that, don't you think Viktor will be able to challenge him? I feel like Viktor has a good chance of winning!"

The person seemed to leave no room for debate, and the warrior from White Marsh Continent did not know what to say. He did not want to debate any longer, so be shut his mouth.

The warriors from the third-grade worlds were split into two when it came to this.

One part of them felt like Viktor could beat Dan, while the other part felt like Dan was quite a lot stronger than Viktor. The two sides started to quarrel.

Of course, those words fell into the ears of the warriors from Golden Continent as well. The anger that they had suppressed surged again. The warriors of the Golden Continent felt deeply insulted. Even if Viktor was a top-chosen disciple, they did not think much about it.

After all, the Flying Cloud Clan was an eighth-grade clan. In their eyes, it was just a hero among lessors. All of them felt like they were above that.

Thanks to what Gale had said earlier, all of the disciples from Golden Continent thought that there was no way Jackie was as he appeared. They did not look at Jackie through a normal lens, so their prejudices against third-grade worlds remained.

After hearing everything that was said, they were once again agitated.

Someone started to shout at Viktor, " Jackie is Jackie. His circumstances are special. We should talk about things in isolation. So what if Viktor is the top chosen disciple, he still can't beat Dan!"

Chapter 3249

"That's right. If all of you can use lower ultimate god rank techniques, then we have nothing to say about it, but you can't. I'll admit that there are some strong warriors among you, but that's just because you have the numbers. There are bound to be a few exceptional ones…"

"Don't think that you can beat the Golden Continent because of that. Not everyone can challenge a chosen disciple from a holy grade clan!"

The atmosphere that had just calmed down exploded once again. After all, none of them liked each other. On top of that, the two sides were incredibly harsh with their words.

Jackie once again rubbed his ears in annoyance. He did not want to participate in those arguments, because they were pointless.

However, just because he did not want to argue did not mean that others would not point the gun at him.

Some of them deliberately targeted Jackie for the sake of Golden Continent' s dignity, "Even if it's Jackie, he won't be able to beat Dan. Gale might have lost, but that was just because he had a moment of carelessness, and did not use his full abilities. Otherwise, there's no way he would have lost so quickly!

" Jackie did it, and Dan can do it as well. He can completely defeat Gale too! There's always been a gap between chosen and inner disciples anyway. The two of them are so far apart that Dan can deal Gale a complete loss even in Gale's best state, but Jackie can't! So, Dan is stronger than Jackie!"

Those words were completely biased, and rendered people speechless. However, the moment it was said, the other warriors from Golden Continent all agreed. They even made it worse and worse.

They were even starting to change the facts of Jackie's match against Gale. They did everything they could to argue that Gale only lost so quickly because he had not been prepared. it was the result of underestimating his opponent.

It did not mean that Gale was weaker than Jackie, but the gulf between Gale and Dan was evident.

Gale was the tenth place among the inner disciples, while Dan was a chosen disciple. Even though he was not among the top chosen disciples, his skills were still evident. If Dan faced Gale, Gale would lose badly.

All of them were sure that even Jackie would be no match for Dan, and that Jackie would lose even more horribly!

They had been mocked so much by the warriors from the third-grade worlds earlier, so they were using the chance to vent out their frustrations. They started to get louder and louder. Some of them deliberately raised their voices so everyone could hear them!

The arguments were getting more and more intense. They were even at the stage where they were about to fight each other!

Viktor loved being praised and hated it when others doubted his skills. When he heard all of that, he was furious.

His expression started to sour and he suddenly raised his voice, “What do you know?! You’re only good at bragging! Didn’t you praise yourselves so much earlier? Everyone saw what happened after that. it’s not even been that long, but you’ve somehow gotten worse!”

His words caused the fighting to stop quite a bit. After all, the main character had stepped up.

Due to what happened before, the warriors of Golden Continent did not dare to be too stubborn. However, not long after that, they heard a low voice from afar.

Chapter 3250

“We really can’t show you guys any mercy. You’ve only won one match, and you’re already so arrogant. Do you all think that you’re unbeatable now? How dare you challenge me? it looks like I’ve been sitting down here for too long. I haven’t been saying anything, so all of you have gotten too pleased with yourselves!”

The voice was getting closer.

Jackie turned to look and saw a muscular warrior from Hestia Continent walking over from the western side.

It seemed like that person was Dan. He had a threatening aura around him, and it was obvious that he was used to being in command.

When that person walked over, he deliberately stopped his gaze on Jackie. His sharp eyes coldly observed Jackie, like a lion looking at its prey.

His lips curled up into a strange smile, “Don’t be too happy with yourself, you just beat an inner disciple. In the eyes of chosen disciples, inner disciples are just ants. You just beat an ant. You are still trash in our eyes.”

When Dan said that, his smile was full of bloodlust.

He looked like a demon straight out of hell. He did not care if Jackie answered him or not. It was like Jackie really was an ant that could be killed at any moment, completely beneath his notice.

He walked steadily past Jackie and no longer spared Jackie a glance.

He stopped in front of Viktor. At that moment, Viktor was not exuding his earlier arrogance. His eyebrows were furrowed and he looked very serious, but he was full of fighting spirit as well.

Looking at him like that, Dan scoffed in disdain, “You really are a piece of trash that thinks too much of yourself. Do you think that you can increase your chances of winning by acting like this? Jackie’s just an ant that can be killed at any moment in my eyes, and you are too! You’re even smaller than he is.”

He reached out and a golden cyclone formed in his palm. The cyclone spun wildly, and with a hang, it exploded a meter away from Viktor’s face.

The energy dispersed outward, and the warriors that were closer to the explosion could feel how strong the pressure had been.

Quite a few of them took steps back, and some of the weaker warriors even paled and started to sweat. Dan smiled as his cold eyes looked at Viktor. He was incredibly threatening.

He was not attacking, and merely exerting some pressure, so he was naturally not punished for it.

Viktor took a deep breath, not backing off from that pressure at all. He could tell that Dan was incredibly talented, but he was as well. Even if Dan was a chosen disciple from the Azure Clan, he was not one of the top ones.

He might be from an eighth-grade clan, but he was the top-chosen disciple of the Flying Cloud Clan. In Viktor’s eyes, he was comparable to Dan.

Attribute gambles were uncertain, and he was very confident in himself. He never thought he would lose!

Viktor narrowed his eyes, looking right at Dan, “You have power, so what? Do you think you can scare me away like that? Do you think that anyone not from the Golden Continent is a coward? Did you really think we’d run away from some little tricks?”

Dan frowned as anger flashed in his eyes.

A surge of killing intent leaked out from his body. Dan had just disliked Viktor initially, but he was intent on killing Viktor after that. Since this kid was not willing to accept his kindness, he would not hold back.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3251 - 3260 -

Chapter 3251

Dan narrowed his eyes. “It looks like you’re really overestimating yourself. You shouldn’t have the right to challenge me, but I have a kind heart, you see. I pity you empty-headed trash bags. You’re just ignorant, not knowing how vast the world is!”

“I was just trying to expand your horizons. I have to be a little harsh and remind you though, don’t cry if you lose later.”

Viktor felt like he had been slapped listening to these words. His face turned red with anger as he glared at Dan.

Gritting his teeth, he growled, “To hell with your kind heart. Stop acting like you’re above everyone else! Aren’t you just scorning warriors from third-grade worlds because of your origin? Let me show you how ignorant you are!”

The tension between the two men was so palpable that it could be cut with a knife. They looked at each other with hatred, and it was evident a fight would easily break out.

Jackie merely crossed his arms as he quietly looked at the two of them talking.

Things had gone silent, and no one moved. They merely glared at each other, using their expressions to show how angered they were. Jackie felt like the two of them looked incredibly hilarious.

They stared at each for over ten seconds before Jackie could not stand it anymore and said, “Viktor, right? Do you have a moment to spare? I want to bet against him too after you go against him. Can you stop looking at each other? If I didn’t know any better, I would’ve thought you admire each other instead.”

The moment he said that, he attracted a lot of looks as they stared at Jackie in surprise.

If they had not seen Jackie’s skills, they would not have tolerated his words and attitude. After all, those words sounded too arrogant.

A warrior from the Hestia Continent said, “No wonder the warriors from the Golden Continent look at Jackie like they want to rip him apart. No wonder they’re so angry. He’s just infuriating when he talks.”

Jackie impatiently hurried Dan and Viktor, asking them not to waste any more of his time. It was like everyone else was just there to give him what they had.

How could anyone stand it?

Sure enough, Dan looked furious as he glared at Jackie heatedly.

He took a deep breath as he said to Jackie, “I was being nice to you, yet you took it for granted. You dare ask me not to waste your time? Who do you think you are? So what if you have a lower ultimate god rank? In the western area, at least ten percent of the people there have learned lower ultimate god rank techniques!”

Right after he said that, most of the warriors around him bit their tongues.

Indeed, comparing oneself to others was incredibly frustrating. There were over 1000 people in the western area, and 10 percent meant that there were over a hundred. Even among so many warriors in the eastern area, it would already be quite impressive if there were 20 who could use ultimate god rank techniques.

Yet, there were over a hundred in the western area.

Sure enough, there was a difference in skill, and it was impossible to ignore the difference in talent.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not really reacting to what he said.

Lower ultimate god rank techniques meant very little to him after all.

Chapter 3252
After all, Jackie used an upper ultimate god-rank technique, and he had already mastered it. After that, he would be trying to learn a storm god rank technique. Even though he had failed to get to the first stage, getting there would not be a problem as long as he had enough time.

Dan could not keep his composure when he noticed how calm Jackie’s expression was, unlike how surprised the warriors around him were after noticing the difference between themselves and their counterparts.

He frowned and got even more furious at how obstinate Jackie seemed to be. Had it not been for the restrictions, he would have taught this imprudent brat a lesson.

Jackie furrowed his eyebrows as a flash of unhappiness appeared on his face. He suddenly regretted what he had said earlier.

It was not because he was afraid of offending Dan but because he noticed that his words had the opposite effect of what he wanted. He had not managed to provoke Dan into going against Viktor right away.

Instead, Dan straightened himself and glared right at Jackie unmovingly. Just from looking at Dan, Jackie knew what Dan was thinking.

Dan loudly said, ”Why would I listen to you? Who do you think you are?! Do you think I’m obligated to start the attribute gamble immediately just because you asked? it looks like you really thought too highly of yourself…”

“You still want to bet against me after I go against him? What arrogance. I’ll have you realize the contrast between us soon enough. You’ll lose tragically!”

“I refuse to listen to you. In my eyes, you can’t even compare to an ant by the side of the road!”

Jackie’s lips twitched in exasperation.

It seemed like he could not provoke others like that, however he wanted to. After all, he did not know how others would react. The person right in front of him was acting completely differently than what he wanted.

Jackie frowned as he said coldly, “So you’re insisting on wasting my time? Aren’t you in a hurry to let me know how big the difference is between us? Hurry up and gamble against him, then. Otherwise, gamble against me!”

He could do three gambles in one day.

Jackie had already planned out his time before he went to the area, and he had other things he needed to get done. He did not have the time to waste there.

Dan scoffed, raising his head slightly and completely ignoring Jackie.

Jackie took a deep breath as his lips twitched. At that moment, he heard the comments whispered around him.

“What is going through Jackie’s mind? It looks like his previous victory got to his head and he’s starting to cross the line. it’s a good thing that attribute gambles don’t involve life and death. If he lost, he would just lose four million spirit crystals. Jackie’s quite lucky!”

“You think he’s lucky? I don’t think so. Jackie caused himself a lot of trouble this time. Do you think he’ll have good days ahead after being so rude to a chosen disciple of the Azure Clan?”

”Do you think the Azure Clan would let him off? Just watch! He may be safe for now, but there’s danger everywhere in the future. This will be his last peaceful day. The only way he can survive is if his skills are so extraordinary that no one from the Azure Clan can stand up to him.”

A warrior from White Marsh Continent was the one who said all that.

He naturally had a negative opinion of warriors from the Hestia Continent. Even though Jackie had won some glory for the third-grade worlds, some of the warriors from White Marsh Continent still did not approve of Jackie.

They even felt like Jackie had just been lucky enough to win.

Chapter 3253
The warriors from the Golden Continent could not stomach Jackie's words at all, thus they began shouting at him.

"Do you hear that?! You've offended the Azure Clan! You won't have good days ahead of you. You better kneel and beg us for mercy right now. Go and apologize to everyone, and we might forgive you. Otherwise, you'll be beaten around like a street rat in the future!"

Jackie let out a laugh when he heard all that.

He coldly looked at the ones who had spoken, and there was an underlying threat in his words as he spoke, "Just with your strength?"

Jackie scoffed, not regarding these people as worth his notice at all.

Unless they attacked him altogether, none of them would be a match for him in single combat. Even if a chosen disciple of the Azure Clan was in front of Jackie, he would not even blink an eye.

The noise around Jackie got even louder due to his words. A lot of them were talking among themselves excitedly, and a lot of them thought that Jackie was crazy.

They felt like Jackie did not know his place at all to insist on going against the Azure Clan. A tragic fate awaited him.

It took a really crazy person to want to stand up against an entire clan alone.

The warriors who approved of Jackie shook their heads silently. Those who did not approve of Jackie started to criticize Jackie constantly, believing that he was just digging a deeper hole for himself. There was only death waiting for him.

There were even those who started to wonder how horribly Jackie would end up dying. He heard it all but ignored them, despite how annoying they were to hear.

Rudy had taken it all to heart, though, and his face reddened in anger, wanting nothing more than to start arguing with all of them. However, he knew that he was not great with his words.

Jackie had not even spoken, so he might end up disrupting his plans if he did. Thus, he clenched his fists as he stared at all these blabbering fools.

Jackie scoffed as he coldly glanced at Dan, ignoring everyone else.

He turned around and started walking tight to the western area, earning frowns from onlookers in the eastern area.

The warriors in the western area were in no mood to continue resting either. All of them looked up at Jackie in confusion.

A warrior from the eastern area said, “Is he trying to challenge someone else?”

“That looks like the case, but who’s he going to challenge?”

“Even though I think that Jackie’s unbelievably arrogant, he definitely has some skills. Half of the warriors in the western area aren’t a match for him, at least.”

“Are you worried for the warriors in the western area? There’s nothing to worry about. They’re not idiots. Jackie already showed his skills earlier, so most of them know of his skills. If they don’t think they can beat Jackie, they can just reject the gamble. Attribute gambles need approval from both sides to start anyway.”

Jackie slowly walked to the western area.

At that moment, most of the warriors there had their eyes opened as they stared at Jackie alertly.

Jackie, however, was oblivious to those gazes. They could think whatever they wanted of him. He already had a plan in his mind.

He did not want to waste anymore time, and talking to Dan was a waste of effort.

Since Dan did not want to take up Viktor’s challenge immediately, Jackie would need to choose a new opponent. He did not even look at the warriors in the western area and merely looked at the boards in front of them.

Chapter 3254
“A Frost Flower? This thing isn’t cheap, but it’s not that useful to me.”

Frost Flowers were incredibly beneficial to female warriors, but all Jackie could do with one was to sell it.

There was no other use for it, so he looked at the next warrior. He continued walking forward, remembering all the treasures he was interested in and planning on making a final evaluation later.

No one could understand what Jackie was doing. Most of the warriors in the eastern area were dumbfounded.

They did not know what to say, “Does he think he’s shopping? He’s just walking around and choosing what he wants! That’s way too arrogant! Even a top-chosen disciple wouldn’t dare to do that!”

“I think it fits his personality quite well. Hasn’t he always been like that? He just does whatever he wants. His actions are probably angering all of the warriors in the western area. He’s offended everyone at this point!”

“ Jackie doesn’t seem to care at all; he looks like he’s just intent on saving time, even. I just want to open up his head to see what he’s thinking.”

The warriors of the western area glared at Jackie angrily. Even if he wanted to take up one of the bets, he should do it from far away.

Walking around among everyone, slowly deliberating, made it feel like he was not respecting them at all. They could not accept that.

All of them had dark looks on their faces as if they had just ingested some poison. The way they looked at Jackie was strangely united as their fury could barely be masked.

Meanwhile, Jackie did not seem to care about what anyone else was thinking.

There was a simple reason why all of them were so angered by Jackie’s actions. It was because all of them felt like he was not worthy of doing so. If it had been the top disciple of a holy grade clan doing so, they would have accepted it with no qualms, not even daring to say anything about it.

They looked at Jackie with such anger simply because they felt like he had no right to choose among them like that.

Jackie did not care at all. Those people would not dare to attack him no matter how much he angered them anyway, lest they incur the consequences of violating the laws.

Anyone who did that would get struck by lightning and turned to ash.

Jackie walked around for a long time before he finally stopped.

He raised an eyebrow and mumbled to himself, “There’s a Spirit Rose Fruit here. Not bad.”

A Spirit Rose Fruit was between seven to eight million in value, and it had the same effects as a soul gem. Should he absorb it, it would turn into pure soul energy to enhance his strength.

After looking around, the Spirit Rose Fruit was the only thing that caught Jackie's eyes while the rest were not that helpful to the soul.

After deliberating his choices, Jackie eventually chose the Spirit Rose Fruit. After all, there was also an Enlightened Soul Root waiting for him. Both of those treasures were incredibly useful to Jackie.

He had already condensed a fifth of a Divine Soul. After absorbing those two treasures, his Divine Soul would improve greatly. Thinking of this, his lips curled up into a rare smile. However, the owner of that board was incredibly unhappy.

Chapter 3255
Nevada Lloyd had a frown on his face as he stared at Jackie angrily.

When he saw the smile on Jackie's face, Nevada's rage soared even more.

He shot up from his mat, narrowed his eyes as he looked at Jackie, and gritted his teeth. "Are you planning on challenging me?"

He was practically hissing at this point, and it was obvious how angry Nevada was at Jackie.

Jackie looked like he was grocery shopping, making a huge round before stopping in front of Nevada. His behavior made Nevada feel insulted, even though he had been chosen. He felt like he was trampling all over his dignity!

The more Nevada thought about it, the angrier he got. His hands even started to shake slightly. He looked at Jackie as if he wanted to rip Jackie apart.

Meanwhile, Jackie looked right at Nevada.

Nevada's sleeves had golden patterns on them, meaning Nevada was from the Golden Continent. Yet another person who thought too highly of himself.

He snorted and said, "You're just sitting here, and you already set up a board. The bet setters are naturally the ones who would be sitting here…"

"As a bet-taker, shouldn't I be challenging you? If I'm not allowed to challenge you, why didn't you just write it down on the board that you won't accept challenges from anyone stronger than you?"

Those words infuriated Nevada even more. His lips twitched, and even his body started to quake. "You think too highly of yourself! Do you know who I am? I'm from the White Phoenix Clan, a holy-grade clan. I'm a chosen disciple!"

He had practically shouted out those words as if he wanted to prove how laughable Jackie's actions were. He wanted to scare Jackie as well, not wanting him to take things too far. Being chosen by Jackie like that insulted Nevada greatly.

Jackie did not even bother raising an eyebrow at those words. He looked at Nevada calmly as if he was spouting nonsense.

Noticing how passive Jackie was, Nevada nearly hyperventilated in anger and finally understood Dan's anger.

Nevada pointed right at Jackie's face. "You brat. You've already offended the Azure Clan! Are you going to offend the White Phoenix Clan too? Are you not worried that you're making so many enemies for yourself?"

Hearing that, Jackie said in disdain, "I think you're the one who thinks too highly of himself. Do you really think you're anyone impressive? Even if there are a lot of chances in the inner city, grouping up to attack still isn't allowed…"

"Unless you get your friends to attack me with you, you'll need to fight me alone. The White Phoenix Clan and the Azure Clan are both beneath my notice."

Jackie was merely honest with his words and was not exaggerating anything at all. When Nevada heard this, however, he was deeply angered. After all, Jackie had insulted both himself and his clan.

He took a deep breath and snarled, "You think you can face all of the disciples from the two holy-grade clans alone?!"

Nevada scoffed upon hearing Jackie's words. He felt like the man in front of him could no longer be described as just arrogant. Jackie was already at the level of being crazy.

Did he not know what he was saying?

One person going up against two holy-grade clans… He had said it so casually, too!

It was as if Jackie could easily do it!

Did he think that he was a chosen disciple of a major clan from a first-grade world?

Nevada sneered and said, "Do you even know what you're saying?!"

Of course, Jackie knew what he was saying and implying. Thus, not wanting to dwell on the problem, he chuckled and said, "Don't you want to show me my place just like Dan? Hurry up. I'm in a hurry to know!"

Chapter 3256
Rudy could not stop himself from laughing when he heard that.

He understood how exasperated Jackie felt. He truly did not want to waste any time and effort on those people.

It was obvious that Jackie had other plans in mind. Unfortunately, those people did not understand at all. They only felt like Jackie was being absurd.

Nevada was completely stunned. His lips twitched as he panted and shouted, “You’re sick!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, wanting to curse back at Nevada but decided against it after some thought.

There was no reason for him to talk back at all at that moment. No matter what he said, those people would only think he was crazy anyway. Even the warriors from third-grade worlds were already cursing him.

“Does he lmow what he’s saying? Isn’t he being too rough with his words here? You guys were right after all; his previous victory got to him so much that he’s forgotten his place. He talks as if he’s better than even chosen disciples!”

“That’s true, I really don’t know what he’ s thinking. He’s gone too far. Does he think Hestia is a second-grade world? Even if he’s strong in the Hestia Continent, he’s just strong among weaklings. He won’t amount to much in the Golden Continent, but he’s trying to challenge the warriors from two major clans in the Golden Continent. If I wasn’t hearing it myself right now, I wouldn’t believe it.”

“Don’t forget what kind of place Hestia is. It’s just stuck in its own corner after being trapped by some unknown barrier thousands of years ago. They were cut off from the other worlds. If it wasn’t for the Whirling World, they probably wouldn’t know what the warriors from the other worlds are like at all.”

“ Jackie’s skills stand at the top of the Whirling World. He’s already used to being the king and has turned ignorant because of it. He doesn’t understand how different the Hestia Continent is from the other worlds at all. He’s not confident but conceited!”

“He doesn’t know his place at all. He’ll know how absurd he’s been acting after he suffers defeat later.”

The Golden Continent’s warriors were all rendered speechless from anger.

They affirmed that Jackie was a complete madman, and everything he said infuriated them. Even though they knew that Jackie did not know what he was saying, they could still not stop their anger from boiling over.

Dan laughed in frustration and sneered, “It’s obvious how empty his head is if he can say these things. Even I wouldn’t dare to act that way, saying that I’d be able to beat all of the disciples from two holy-grade clans in duels. It’s crazy how arrogant he must be to be able to say that…”

Viktor shook his head silently, looking at Jackie with a sliver of pity. Even though Jackie’s words were incredibly absurd, Viktor did not want to mock Jackie like everyone else.

He agreed with how everyone was judging Jackie and assumed that he grew up sheltered. He did not know how large the world actually was, either. He probably never encountered any trouble, so he must have felt like he was unbeatable.

Dan could no longer stand it.

If he continued waiting, he would just hear more and more ridiculous things from Jackie. Even though Jackie was incredibly hilarious, they were infuriating as well.

He turned around to look at Viktor. “I won’t bother with that idiot for now. I’ll deal with you first!”

Viktor frowned, looking at Dan unhappily. Dan was really crossing the line.

He took a deep breath and said angrily, “You keep on saying that others are acting arrogantly, but aren’t you?”

Chapter 3257
Dan scoffed at Viktor’s words. “That’s because I can walk the talk. The two of you just somewhat excel in your own worlds, but you’d be nothing if you were in the Golden Continent. I’ll show both of you how different warriors from a second-grade world are from you.”

There was no point in talking after all that happened. Dan turned and walked towards the Projne Stones, and Viktor followed closely after.

Seeing the movements from the other end, Jackie started to get anxious.

He looked at Nevada, who was flushed red with anger, and could not help but frown. “Are you done being angry? Do you even have the right to be?”

Nevada widened his eyes and snapped, “What did you say? I have no right to be angry?!”

Nevada was already confused by the way Jackie thought about things. This guy was even trying to argue about him getting angry!

Jackie took a deep breath and said coldly, “If you think you can beat me, you’d obviously have the right to be angry, but you don’t. Don’t think I’ll believe anything you say. If you want to prove yourself, then quit wasting time talking. Hurry and accept my challenge!”

Nevada’s face darkened completely as his lips trembled. “Alright. Since you want to lose so badly, I’ll give you what you want!”

At that moment, Nevada was too furious to even be rational. He only had one thought in mind, which was to quickly end the battle. He wanted this idiot to know how much stronger he was!

There were a total of 33 Projne Stones, all set up in a row. At that moment, Dan and Viktor had already walked over, both reeking with hatred for each other. The atmosphere was incredibly tense.

Jackie did not want to waste any time. After Nevada agreed, he immediately walked over. Nevada was so angry that he stormed forward. Every step he took caused the ground to shake slightly.

The warriors in the eastern area looked on with great interest. Even though not everyone was interested in participating in the attribute gambles, they were keen on watching something interesting, and a show as interesting as this one was something that happened less than once a month.

All of them looked on with great interest, and discussions filled the eastern area again.

“Do you think that Jackie can win? Nevada is a chosen disciple. I wonder if he’ s stronger than Dan.”

“We’d have to ask the warriors of the Golden Continent about that. We’ve never been to the continent, so we wouldn’t know what it’s like there.”

The warriors of the Golden Continent were quite willing to explain it to everyone.

A disciple of the Azure Clan said loudly, “Dan is, of course, a bit stronger. The White Phoenix Clan is a holy-grade clan like the Azure Clan is, but its overall strength is weaker than the Azure Clan. In terms of standings, Dan is also quite a bit higher than Nevada…”

“The two of them had met at a friendly tournament two months before the Whirling World opened as well. The two of them faced each other, and Dan was the clear victor.”

After that person said that, everyone looked toward the disciples of the White Phoenix Clan. The disciples of the White Phoenix Clan did not look that happy, but no one actually voiced any objections. It seemed as though this statement was not a lie after all.

Dan's abilities were at a higher level. Even if Jackie managed to beat Nevada, it would not mean much.

At that moment, Nevada was facing Jackie. Jackie was toward the eastern side of the Projne Stone, while Nevada was toward the western side.

Chapter 3258
The two of them faced each other. Compared to how furious Nevada was, Jackie seemed incredibly calm as if everything that happened was within his control.

The caretaker walked forward and stood between the two of them. Just like before, he calmly announced the start of the gamble.

At that moment, Viktor and Dan were facing each other as well, and only a Projne Stone stood between them. They could see what the situation was on the other side with just a glance.

At that moment, Dan put his full focus on Viktor.

Viktor had his eyebrows raised as he looked at Dan seriously.

Dan narrowed his eyes. "I know you're very confident. Do you use a lower ultimate god-rank technique as well?"

Viktor did not bother hiding it as he nodded. The technique he used was called Flaming Skies and was a lower ultimate god-rank technique. The fact that he was the top-ranked chosen disciple in an eighth-grade clan meant that he was more talented than any ordinary warrior.

To many warriors, ultimate god-rank techniques were far from their reach, but to geniuses like them, it was just a stepping stone.

Dan sneered and said, "So what if you know a lower ultimate god-rank technique? You think you're the only one who could do that? I use a lower ultimate god-rank technique as well, and I can even tell you that I've already gotten my Golden Meteor Technique up to the second stage!"

Viktor's confident expression stiffened when he heard this. His eyes widened slightly as he gulped, and even his breathing got a bit faster.

Dan was already at the second stage of his technique and that was something Viktor did not expect.

Only those who could use lower ultimate god-rank techniques knew how difficult to master and understand ultimate god-rank techniques were.

He had gone through so many bottlenecks just to get where he was. He knew that he would be able to get to the second stage as well, but on Viktor's estimation, it would take at least one to two more years. He never expected that Dan would already be at the second stage with how young Dan was.

This explained why Dan was so arrogant; he had the skills to back his words!

Viktor's lips twitched, suddenly losing his confidence.

Jackie, however, remained calm when he heard all of that, as if everything Dan said was nonsense.

Nevada could clearly see Jackie's expression as he stood before him. When he saw that Jackie was still calm, he sneered, "What are you acting like that for? I refuse to believe you're not afraid to face such a strong opponent. Unless you're heartless, there's no way you can stay composed!"

When Jackie heard that, his lips twitched in exasperation. He snorted before he said, "Well, I would be scared if I were. There's nothing to be scared of since I'm not."

Nevada quivered furiously again as he stared right at Jackie. He looked at Jackie and gritted his teeth, having a lot to say. In the end, he held back.

With how Jackie was, Jackie would have a lot to counter him no matter what he said.

He was not as good as Jackie with his words, so he swallowed everything he wanted to say. He merely looked at Jackie hatefully.

Jackie's words were naturally heard by Dan as well. Dan frowned as he looked at Jackie with annoyance.

He sneered, "Keep showing off while you can, you brat. You don't have much time left to do that, anyway. In just a moment, you'll realize that you're just a clown to us no matter how much you Show off. In the future, you'll realize what the consequences of your actions today will bring you!"

Chapter 3259
After saying that, Dan sneered as he looked away.

Jackie sighed in exasperation. These people were a joke, so much so that he found himself unable to muster a word.

At that moment, a thought suddenly surfaced in his head.

If he performed too well, Dan might harbor suspicions about him and would refuse to accept his challenge. If that were to happen, he would just lose the Enlightened Soul Root. Compared to the Spirit Soul Fruit which was worth seven to eight million, the Enlightened Soul Root was worth more to Jackie.

He could not possibly lose the chance of getting the Enlightened Soul Root!

After making that clear, Jackie raised an eyebrow as his gaze darted around and made a decision; he could not win the attribute gamble by a landslide like before. It would only alert Dan.

Jackie scoffed, no longer hesitating as he summoned the soul energy in his body. A gray energy circulated in his palm. He no longer looked at anyone as the gray energy frantically shot into the Projne Stone. Seeing that Jackie had already started, Nevada wasted no time as well.

He closed his eyes slightly as green-colored energy circulated in his body. Nevada was a wind attribute warrior. The wind attribute in his body was brought out like a small cyclone with Nevada at the center.

Nevada took a long breath as he put his hand on the stone, and the green energy frantically entered the Projne Stone. Two waves of energy rapidly took shape. At that moment, everyone widened their eyes as they observed everything that happened.

Since Jackie acted first, both Dan and Viktor stopped talking and looked over. Both of them planned on starting their attribute battle after watching Jackie’s. The gray energy clashed with the green energy, and the two seemed evenly matched, much to Nevada’s surprise as his eyes widened.

He admitted that Jackie was somewhat skilled, but he did not expect Jackie to be able to match him!

Nevada did not hold back at all with the intention of winning the battle quickly and making himself look good.

The gray and green energy clashed, and both energy tried to overwhelm the other, even trying to absorb each other. However, their skills were close, and both were evenly matched. it was impossible to tell who was winning at that moment.

Dan raised an eyebrow, knowing where things stood at that moment. He scoffed as he looked at Jackie like he was looking at a dead person.

The eastern area was abuzz with noise again. A lot of them had thought that Jackie would be no match for Nevada, so they never expected that Jackie would be evenly matched with him!

Jackie was no weaker than Nevada. A lot of the warriors from the Golden Continent could not stay calm when they saw that. After all, Nevada was the chosen disciple of the White Phoenix Clan, a holy grade clan. The fact that Jackie was on par with him meant that Jackie had the skills of a chosen disciple of a holy grade clan.

A lot of them could not accept the fact. After all, the Hestia Continent was an insignificant place in their eyes.

A warrior from the White Marsh Continent sourly commented, “ Jackie’s probably the strongest person from the Hestia Continent. With his skills, he’s probably an incredibly powerful person in a small place like Hestia!”

The warriors from Hestia Continent were displeased by this remark, and a lot of them wanted to counter his words. However, they had to admit after thinking about it that the person’s words were reasonable, regardless of his tone.

Chapter 3260
A few people agreed with that thought, and they got deep into the conversation.

“I feel like you’re being a little extreme with your words, but you have to admit that it sounds pretty reasonable. Before coming to the Whirlng World, Jackie’s environment had been too stifling.”

“He doesn’t understand how the world actually is at all. He’s too conceited and doesn’t even know how to act more politely in the face of those stronger than him. It’d be strange if nothing bad happens to him.”

“You’re right! He’s just too crazy. We have to admit that he’s strong, but there’s always someone stronger. Just because he’s strong, it doesn’t mean he’s unbeatable!”

“If he understood that, he probably wouldn’t have acted like he did.”

As they said that, a few of them started to lament the fact that Jackie was just too ignorant because he was confined by his world. He did not know how vast the universe truly was, and because of that, he did whatever he wanted and offended many.

Some of them even started to discuss how Dan would deal with Jackie.

“Dan isn’t an idiot. Jackie is untouchable in the Projne Area, but the inner city isn’t just limited to the Projne Area. Can’t he attack near the Red Sun Monument?”

“With how Jackie is, he’ll definitely try out his hand there. Then, Dan can just make sure he has people there or even do it himself. No matter what, Jackie’s days are numbered.”

That person was incredibly confident as he said that as if he could read Dan’s mind.

Rudy merely looked at those people with a cold frown. Even though he did not know what the Red Sun Monument was, he knew very well that these people could only dream on if they thought Jackie would die.

Jackie would not let anyone who tried to attack him off the hook.

Compared to how noisy the western area was, it was much quieter around the Projne Stones. Dan and Viktor were both frowning as they observed Jackie. Neither of them expected the stalemate.

After all, Nevada was from a holy grade clan and was a chosen disciple at that. His skills could not be underestimated. Even if Jackie had shown exceptional skills before, he could not be compared to Nevada.

Yet, reality had proven that to be false.

The match was in a complete stalemate, and it seemed like their skills were on the same level. They even saw Nevada starting to sweat.

Nevada was starting to pant and he frantically circulated the power in his body.

Time slowly tickled, and Nevada got more anxious for every minute that passed.

His lips twitched slightly, no longer looking at Jackie with the same casual look from before. He was both shocked and serious.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he looked at Nevada. “What is it? Are you scared? It’s written all over your face.”

Nevada glared at Jackie hatefully. True enough, he was scared.

Nevada immediately stood on his toes and started to shout at Jackie.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3261 - 3270 -

Chapter 3261
“What would I be scared of?! The two of us are evenly matched. I am not at a disadvantage, why would I be scared? Weren’t you bragging that you’d definitely win before this? Open your eyes and look. The two of us are evenly matched. You’re not winning against me!”

“Don’t act like you’re so confident. You’re acting so calm just to trick me. Do you think I’ll fall for it?”

When Jackie heard that, his lips twitched in exasperation.

He laughed slightly and said, “Do you think I can’t win?”

Nevada scoffed and said, “Of course! Of course, you can’t win and you’ll lose terribly. No one can save you!”

When he said that, Nevada was furious. He looked like he wanted to rip Jackie apart.

Jackie coldly stared at him, suddenly revealing a meaningful smile.

At that moment, the evenly matched battle suddenly lost its balance. The gray energy swallowed up the green light.

Nevada started to panic. His eyes widened as he started to breathe erratically. He frantically poured the attributes in his body into the Projne Stone.

Yet, no matter how hard he tried, the green light kept on being swallowed up by the gray light. It hardly slowed it down, it seemed like the gray light was slowly eating up the green light.

The balance had been broken, and Nevada was in complete panic. He frantically clenched his teeth, and his veins popped. His expression started to look a bit crazed.

Everyone could see what was happening, and quite a few of them started to lament what was happening.

A warrior from the Golden Continent said, “Crap! This kid managed to turn things around. I actually thought that Nevada had a high chance of winning. After all, he comes from the White Phoenix Clan and is even a chosen disciple. Compared to a brat who came from somewhere no one knows about, he’s so much higher in status. I can’t believe this is the result. Did Nevada underestimate his opponent?”

The moment that was said, the warriors from Hestia Continent were furious.

They were being insulted at every end. Even when they had someone like Jackie, they were still constantly mocked. They could no longer contain their anger when they heard what was said.

Those people were going way too overboard.

A warrior from Hestia Continent said, loudly, “What do you mean by somewhere no one knows about?! Do you think you can call us that just because Golden Continent is a second-grade world? You’re nothing in the eyes of other second-grade worlds! You’re only capable of looking down on others, while you’re blind to your faults!”

After that was said, a lot of mocking laughter was heard. The laughter was obviously targeted at the warriors from Golden Continent.

The warriors from the third-grade worlds regarded the warriors from Golden Continent with complete disdain. Everything they said seemed to trample all over the third- grade world.

They constantly tried to show off who they were. The warriors from Golden Continent were flushed red with anger at those words. Their eyes threatened to pop out of their sockets.

The warriors from earlier glared at the warrior from Hestia Continent and shouted, “Very well! I’ll remember you. You actually dared to speak up against me. Who do you think you are?! Do you think you’re worthy?! You guys only have a golden egg which is Jackie. Everyone else is trash!”

After saying that, he did not have enough as he shouted, “Even Jackie’s just slightly better than others. For him to win this match doesn’t prove anything. I’ll only admit he’s good if he can win three gambles!”

“That’s impossible just because the third gamble will be against Dan! He’s no match for Dan at all, stop dreaming!”

Chapter 3262
The warrior from Hestia Continent narrowed his eyes as he twitched, feeling like he was about to spit out blood in frustration. The group from Golden Continent was insulting them way too much!

Before that, they would just accept it. However, Jackie’s Victory has sparked their pride. They would no longer just tolerate it.

A warrior from Hestia Continent shouted back, “Even if it’s Dan, he won’t be able to beat Jackie at all! Do you remember what you said earlier? All of you said that Gale would be able to beat Jackie easily! What happened in the end? Jackie managed to defeat him in an instant.”

“He was not able to fight back at all! Then you kept saying that Nevada would win. Just look! Does he look like he’s winning?!”

Those words were directly shouted at the warriors from Golden Continent. Reality trumped anything that was said. The warriors from Golden Continent were suddenly silent.

However, they still had not admitted defeat. They glared coldly at the warriors from Hestia Continent. In their eyes, those warriors were just like dogs on the street. They looked incredibly disgusted.

Right at that moment, an angry shout broke the momentary silence.

Everyone hurriedly looked over. The battle had already ended at that moment. Only a gray light remained in the air. The green light had been completely defeated by the gray.

Nevada roared angrily, and his face looked incredibly unhappy.

Sweat flowed down from his forehead, and his eyes were completely red. He looked incredibly furious.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he calmly retracted his hand, looking at Nevada go crazy quietly.

At that moment, Nevada was not willing to face his defeat as all as his heart was filled with hatred and anger. He went completely crazy.

Both Viktor and Dan looked at Jackie with complicated expressions, especially Dan. He seemed to look at Jackie inquisitively. His eyes were fixed on Jackie as if he was trying to figure something out from Jackie’s expressions.

Dan frowned and said angrily, “What are you going crazy for?! If you have lost then so be it. You’re looking like a sore loser at the moment. Stop embarrassing Golden Continent. Hurry up and shut your mouth!”

Nevada’s face was completely red, and he looked exceptionally angry. There was nothing he could do about it.

In truth, he was not that far beneath Dan, but since he had lost to Dan before, he had some apprehension toward Dan.

He took a deep breath and composed himself. He slowly straightened his posture and stopped screaming. Only, his eyes remained fixed on Jackie.

He looked like he wanted to rip Jackie apart while Jackie's expression remained calm. After all, he had never regarded Nevada as anyone worth his notice.

Dan took a deep breath and said meaningfully, "You're even harder to figure out than I thought, but its just a bit harder. I've already figured out your skills. You won't be happy for much longer!"

As he said that, Dan no longer looked at Jackie, but instead at Viktor. Dan decided that he needed to deal with what was in front of him first.

He looked at Viktor coldly, "It's your turn now. I'm in no mood to waste any time. I want to deal with that brat after dealing with this quickly!"

Chapter 3263
Those words ignited the anger in Viktor's heart.

Who was he looking down on?!

It was as if Viktor was a piece of trash that could be dealt with at any moment.

Viktor said furiously, "Stop trying to act like a hero here! If you want to deal with Jackie, you'd better beat me first!"

Both of their eyes looked incredibly confident in themselves. Dan no longer wasted any time as he started to circulate his attribute, pouring it into the Projne Stone.

Viktor immediately followed suit. The two of them refused to give in, and they had the determination to beat their enemy.

In a flash, those two rays of light rose slowly from the Projne Stone. Dan was a metal attribute warrior, while Viktor focused on the fire attribute. The red glow slowly rose, but it did not look weak at all. When the two energies clashed, the red energy started to shake immensely.

The golden light seemed like a golden python that suddenly attacked the red light.

After a loud boom was heard, half of the red light was seen being ripped apart by the golden light.

When everyone saw that, they took a deep breath.

Dan was actually that strong. They had thought that the match would be similar to Jackie and Nevada's, with the two attacks clashing in air for a long time before there was a result. Yet, it seemed like Viktor was no match for Dan at all.

It was not long before the red light could no longer hold on. The golden light attacked and gained Victory while the red light stood no chance at all. Slowly, the red light got smaller and smaller and completely disappeared from air.

Viktor was panting, completely stunned. After the match had started, he summoned up all the power he could and poured it into the Projne Stone. Unfortunately, no matter how hard he tried, he failed to change the results.

It was obvious that he was no match for Dan at all. Dan calmly stopped his attacks, not looking happy about the win at all. That was because everything had been within his expectations.

That warrior called Viktor was just a complete idiot, thinking he would be able to show off in front of Dan just because he was the strongest from his clan. Little did he know that he was no match for Dan.

Dan was actually a little unsatisfied with the result because he had beaten Viktor slower than how Jackie had beaten Gale.

Gale had not even lasted a few seconds against Jackie before Jackie had completely won the match. Yet, Viktor had lasted a few seconds longer than Gale, and it has caused Dan to be unhappy with his win.

At that moment, Viktor would have probably spat out blood if he knew what Dan was thinking. Even though he did not, his expression was still incredibly dark after the loss.

The warriors that had been rooting for Viktor were all completely ashen on their faces as well.

The warriors from Golden Continent celebrated happily, praising Dan, “Dan, you’re so amazing! Viktor was no match for you at all. Just look at him, he looks completely deflated. Jackie bragged so much earlier. Let’s see if he can continue!”

The person who said all of that had obviously wanted Viktor to hear it. He had intentionally raise his voice, and just like he wanted, Viktor had heard everything.

Viktor felt his chest tremble as blood flooded his throat. He had not been able to hold on for all that long before he spat out a mouthful of blood.

Chapter 3264
His whole body started to shudder, and his expression looked defeated. He had climbed too far earlier to only fall from a greater height. He had only managed to survive a few seconds before he completely lost to Dan.

He did not want to admit defeat, but there was nothing he could do.

Dan sneered and said, “Do you still think you’re at the same level as I am? I told you out of the kindness of my heart earlier that you’re not even qualified to wipe my shoes with your meager skills, but you refused to listen. Have you accepted the truth now?”

Hearing that, Viktor was absolutely furious. His breathing became erratic as he clenched his fists tightly. He stared at Dan with hatred. Yet, a loss was a loss. He would just get laughed at if he refused to accept his defeat. However, Viktor was not someone who could just accept all those insults.

After taking a few deep breaths, he said coldly, “I’ve definitely underestimated you, but don’t think that you won’t ever lose just because of that. I’m just a small part of the Chaos Continent. There are plenty of geniuses other than me. One of them will defeat you! I only lost to you once. There’s still a lot of time. I’ll win eventually!”

After he said that, he took out four million spirit crystals and handed them to Dan before turning around and walking out of the Projne area. He did not even glance at the eastern area, probably because he felt like he betrayed their hopes, or maybe because he felt like it was incredibly humiliating.

He left without any hesitation. Jackie looked at his retreating back, and could not help but sigh internally, understanding how he felt.

At that moment, Jackie suddenly heard an incredibly unpleasant voice, “What? Are you scared? If you’re scared, you can beg me for mercy. You can decide against this gamble.”

Jackie immediately understood what Dan was trying to do.

He smiled and turned to face Dan, “Are you worried that I won’t keep my word and run away from the bet?”

Dan merely raised an eyebrow and smiled, remaining silent. However, anyone could still understand what he was thinking.

Jackie raised an eyebrow and walked over to the Projne Stone in front of Dan. The two of them faced each other.

Dan raised an eyebrow in surprise. He did not expect Jackie to be so bold. Jackie had clearly seen how strong he was but was still standing in front of him. He could even feel how calm Jackie seemed to be.

Dan’s lips twitched, and he could not help but say, “You’re really good at keeping up an act!”

Dan meant what he said. He felt like Jackie was too good of an actor. After witnessing his skills, Jackie should have been completely terrified.

He actually dared to stand in front of Dan like that. Dan did not feel like Jackie was being bold, but that he was incredibly good at acting. Jackie was just holding on for the sake of his dignity.

Dan sneered as he looked at Jackie mockingly. He wanted to rip off Jackie's mask to see what Jackie felt.

Dan took a deep breath before he nodded earnestly, "I was worried that you wouldn't gamble against me anymore. Compared to the four million spirit crystals, I would be even happier after I get to see your masked being ripped off!

"I hate people like you who refuse to accept reality. You're clearly terrified, but you insist on being stubborn, acting like you're not scared at all. Do you think we're all idiots that would be tricked by you here?"

Jackie's lips twitched in exasperation. He had to say that Dan had a very rich imagination.

At that moment, the eastern area was once again deep in discussion. The warriors from Hestia Continent were all fighting for Jackie's name.

Chapter 3265
" Jackie has never been afraid! He's always been like this and has never put on an act. Dan's just assuming things!"

"Stop trying to make yourselves look good. Open your eyes and see. Can't you tell that you have it wrong? Do you really think that Jackie's not putting up an act? Even Viktor has lost to Dan, how could he win?!"

"Even though he won earlier, he just beat someone Dan has already defeated before. If Dan was facing Nevada, he wouldn't have taken long to win in the first place. Don't forget how long Jackie took against Nevada!"

"That's right. The truth is clearly displayed in front of all of you. You warriors from Hestia Continent are just acting like you didn't see it to put Jackie on a pedestal. You're speaking all sorts of nonsense!"

The eastern area was boisterous. Even though the warriors of Hestia Continent were only a few, they had finally found the chance to speak up after being pushed down for so long.

They naturally seized the chance, not holding back as they argued against the warriors of Golden Continent. They shouted until their throats were sore, but they were quite excited.

Even though they did not actually think that Jackie could win, they just did not want to listen to the warriors from Golden Continent constantly slander and insult Jackie like he was not worth anything at all. They were insulting Hestia Continent as well, which the warriors could not accept.

Jackie raised his eyebrow in mild surprise when he saw that some were speaking up for him. It was not like the warriors from Hestia Continent had never been on his side, but it was usually after he had already won.

It was the first time they were defending him before the results were even out. Even though that would not make Jackie feel touched, he was still a little enlightened nevertheless.

Dan took a deep breath and sneered at Jackie, “Do you enjoy having others protect you? The more they do so, the worse your defeat will look. You’ll definitely lose later. You’ll know in just a moment. Those protecting you will end up using harsh words to insult you later. Don’t cry when that happens.”

Jackie could not help but frown when he heard that, getting more and more displeased with Dan.

That guy was incredibly frustrating and kept on acting as if he stood above everyone else.

If it was not for the restrictions, he would have punched Dan right in the face to wake Dan up.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, discarding all those stray thoughts. It was because he knew very well that the best way to shut Dan up was to hurry and start the gamble.

“The Enlightened Soul Root is something good. It’s a waste that it’s in your hands,” as he said that, Jackie revealed no emotions.

It was like he was talking about something incredibly simple.

He suddenly looked up and stared right at Dan, “I should be thanking you for giving me what I need the most.”

When he heard that, Dan was stunned. After that, the anger shot right to his head.

Jackie was too arrogant. He had basically declared that he would win and that he would get the Enlightened Soul Root.

After the brief surge of anger, he was speechless.

Chapter 3266
He suddenly laughed, “There really are all sorts of people around. I’ve never seen someone as blind as you!”

He still had a lot to say, but Jackie was obviously not going to listen.

Jackie raised a hand to stop him, “Okay, stop wasting our time. Since you want to prove yourself so much, hurry up and start the attribute gamble!”

A warrior from Golden Continent shouted, “He’s so arrogant! This guy’s ego is out of control. He’s talking as if no one is a match for him.”

Another warrior from Golden Continent said in exasperation, “I’ve never seen a warrior from a third-grade world as arrogant as he is. He’s acting as if he is from Golden Continent, while Dan’s the one from Hestia Continent!”

“It’s alright, let him show off for a bit longer. Reality will slap him in the face soon. He’ll realize who’s actually the strong one!”

Rudy stood by the side, quietly listening to all those discussions. Before, he would have been angry and might even try to fight on behalf of Jackie, but he was completely calm at that moment.

They could say what they wanted, and he would just ignore everything.

Jackie did not waste any time as he circulated the soul attribute in his body again. He summoned up all the soul attributes he had mastered. He was not only at perfection for Destroying the Void at that moment but had also started to learn the storm god rank technique, Soul Sky.

With those two techniques, Jackie’s mastery of the soul attribute was at new heights.

In truth, Dan had been right. Jackie had been putting on an act, but it was different from what he thought. He could only take part in three attribute gambles in one day, and this was the last one.

He did not plan on continuing to stay in the Projne Area, so there was no longer a need to continue acting.

Jackie laughed as his dense soul energy was shot right into the Projne Stone. Standing on the other end, Dan did not know what was going through Jackie’ s mind.

At that moment, Dan only had one thought in mind, which was to completely defeat Jackie. He wanted that guy to know his place, and realize how absurd his thoughts were. He wanted Jackie to realize how large the gap between them was.

Dan’s technique was called Golden Meteor. It was a lower ultimate god rank technique. He was already at the second stage of the technique, and his mastery of the metal attribute was already incredibly strong. Thats was why Dan was so confident.

A golden glow circulated his hands then he let out a shout, and the metal energy circulated wildly around his body.

After a few moments, the black and golden energies clashed in the air. A cyclone formed as the energies faced each other, wanting to swallow the other at any moment.

“You’ve lost!” Dan shouted at Jackie.

Jackie raised an eyebrow. He did not want to bother Dan. The victor would be determined very soon.

Right at that moment, the two energies clashed with a boom. The golden energy let out a vibrant glow. Yet, it still failed to stand up to the gray energy.

The gray energy started to frantically swallow up the golden energy after they clashed. Even though they were a distance away, cracks could be heard.

Chapter 3267
The Golden energy was being broken down and absorbed in a blink of an eye. In just a few moments, it was gone. The loss happened so quickly that Dan did not have the time to react at all. In just half a second, the golden energy was completely swallowed up by the gray energy.

Only the gray energy was left in the air. Everyone had seen the whole thing unfold before their eyes, but other than Jackie and Rudy, no one could accept it. Even the warriors from Hestia Continent were too shocked to say anything. After all, it was too crazy.

It was completely different from what they had expected. Dan had actually lost! He had lost so quickly. Even Gale had lasted longer against Jackie. Yet, when Jackie was going against Nevada, it had clearly lasted for a long time.

Everyone was sure that Jackie’s strength was about Nevada’s level at that moment. Dan was stronger than Nevada, that was something everyone knew. That was why they were sure that Dan was stronger than Jackie. However, that idea did not last that long before it was completely overturned by Jackie’s show of strength!

They could not accept it. Dan was completely stunned. His eyes widened as he stared at the gray energy in the air. His whole body was frozen.

The caretaker finally broke the silence, “The bet-taker, Jackie, has won. Bet setter, Dan, please prepare your payment.”

Those words woke Dan up from his stunned state. He finally moved his eyes before he violently shuddered. Even his breathing started to get erratic.

He suddenly raised his head as he glared at Jackie, “Impossible! This is an illusion! There’s no way it’s real! You’re clearly just Nevada’s equal, so how did you beat me?! I lost so quickly! That’s completely impossible, it’s not real! You must have cheated, right?!”

Jackie looked at him speechlessly. He could feel how mad Dan was.

Dan had been certain that Jackie would lose, and had seen Jackie’s true skills. Yet, the final results were completely different than expected. He could not accept it and did not want to either.

Jackie laughed and said calmly, “You said I was putting on an act. I didn’t want to correct you because you were right. In truth, you were worried I wouldn’t bet against you, and I was worried about the same thing. That’s why I pulled a little trick to make you feel like I wasn’t skilled enough to beat you.”

The moment he said that there was a ton of clamor. Dan’s face became incredibly pale as he froze. Even his eyes stopped moving around.

“What did you say?! Did you trick me earlier? The only reason you matched up evenly against Nevada was that you didn’t want me to know your true skills, so you put on an act! No wonder you looked so calm. You never thought you’d lose! What a complete joke!”

As he said that, Dan’s eyes started to water. He was already on the brink of crying. After all, he had been smacked in the face by reality. He had looked down on Jackie and thought Jackie was beneath him, but all of his words that targeted Jackie should actually have been aimed at himself.

It was just too much of a joke. He could not accept it at that moment. After a moment of silence in the eastern area, they broke out into discussions again after the conversation between Jackie and Dan.

The warriors from Hestia Continent said excitedly, “See! I told you Jackie won’t lose, but all of you tried to say otherwise. You even said that there’s something wrong with Jackie’s head. Who’s the stupid one now?”

“You were all the ignorant ones, feeling like being from Hestia Continent means he’s worse than all of you. The one you looked down on just beat Dan whom you were all so proud of! Don’t you feel embarrassed?”

Chapter 3268
The hardest thing to accept was, when an opponent you looked down on completely defeats you. It was hard to even uphold your dignity at that point. After all, Dan had lost completely and so quickly. He had been defeated in just a few seconds. There was nothing much to talk about.

The warriors from Hestia Continent were all incredibly excited, happily venting their frustrations.

“Aren’t you all very strong? You said that we weren’t even worthy of wiping your shoes. You acted like you were unbeatable. Can you please explain to me how Dan lost so badly? He didn’t even manage to last that long before Jackie wiped the floor with him. I’m just very curious. Since you’re all so knowledgeable, can you explain things to me?!”

“That’s right. All of you are so smart. You spoke like you knew everything before this. You acted like Jackie’ s not worth anything at all. Why are all of you so quiet now? I really want to hear the explanation for everything that happened earlier. I can’t understand it. Did Dan purposely lose to trick Jackie?”

When he said that, he could not stop himself from laughing.

The other warriors from Hestia Continent laughed as well. Jackie’s Victory had not only won Hestia Continent some pride, but the other third-grade world warriors all also took the chance to fight back as well.

A warrior from Chaos Continent scoffed and said, “The warriors from Golden Continent are just so used to claiming that they’ll win before the battle even starts. They always try to insult the warriors from other worlds, speaking like we’re not worth noticing. “They’re just happy to praise themselves, but reality’s smacked them in the face this time. After being praised so much, Dan still lost so thoroughly. What a joke!”

Another warrior next to him said with a laugh, “The warriors of Golden Continent kept on claiming that they’re just born better. They didn’t even let us talk back to them. If they see anyone wanting to challenge Golden Continent, they jump out to mock them…”

“They don’t seem to care how strong the other side is. They think they‘re stronger anyway! Now it seems like bragging is all they know. Even after bragging so much, they still lost so badly!”

Lorien hid in a corner at that point, not even daring to show himself. He was even glad that he returned earlier. If he had still been standing among the third-grade world’s warriors, he’d ended up being the target. Everyone who had not liked him would start to mock him frantically. He would lose all his dignity at that point.

Yet, even though he was hidden, he still felt incredibly embarrassed. Just as he frowned and tried to shrink into the crowd, a familiar voice was heard.

“Lorien? Why aren’t you defending Dan? Didn’t you mock Jackie and say that he had no right to challenge Dan at all earlier? You even said that I didn’t even have the right to think about it because none of the warriors from the third- grade worlds are worth it!”

“Why are you being a coward right now?” Justin walked right over to where the warriors from Golden Continent were and shouted.

He had been mocked quite a lot by Lorien, but he was forced to grit his teeth and accept it. Since he had the chance, he would not let Lorien off easily. Everyone immediately remembered Lorien after he was mentioned.

Chapter 3269
They still remembered how full of himself he had been, speaking as if the warriors from third-grade worlds were all just trash in the sewers.

He did not hold back with his words at all and frustrated a lot of people. Even Rudy, who had just been standing by the side, could no longer take it.

He walked over and stood behind Justin, “Didn’t you say that you were amazing? Why are you hiding behind? If you have the skills, come out and repeat what you said. If you have forgotten, I can repeat everything for you!”

Lorien shrunk back, not daring to reveal himself. He tried his best to squeeze backward, not wanting to pull out at that moment. However, the warriors from the third- grade worlds would not let him off easily.

Rudy sneered and said, “Why haven’t you come out yet?!”

Suddenly, Lorien shouts back angrily, “I refuse to come out, so what can you do about it? Why do I have to come out?!”

Rudy laughed coldly, “So you’re just planning on staying at the back like a coward?”

Lorien had nothing to say at that.

The warriors from Golden Continent all had looks of defeat on their faces at that moment. No one dared to say anything to defend Lorien. They were already thoroughly humiliated by what happened.

Some were starting to curse Dan for losing so quickly. They did not even have any excuses. it was far too embarrassing. They felt like they had never been so embarrassed in their lives.

At that moment, Dan was as pale as a sheet of paper. Even his lips had lost their color, making him look like he was ill.

Jackie sighed in exasperation. He did not want to keep looking at Dan acting like that.

He reached out and said to Dan, “Have you forgotten that you need to pay up after losing a bet? Are you planning on going against the bet? I would love to see that. I would get to see you get struck by lightning.”

Dan’s lips twitched as he looked at Jackie hatefully. It was as if Jackie was his mortal enemy.

Jackie was already used to being looked at like that. Dan could look at Jackie however he wants to.

Dan took a deep breath, and his hands trembled. He reluctantly pulled out the spirit crystals and Enlightened Soul Root from his storage space. The Enlightened Soul Root was placed in a box about the size of half a person.

Jackie’s lips curled up, not even looking at Dan as he kept the spirit crystals and Enlightened Soul Root.

He said very happily, “Thanks!”

That felt like a stab right into Dan’s chest. Dan felt his chest heat up then proceed to spit out a mouthful of blood.

Jackie’s lips twitched in exasperation. Dan was weaker than he thought. He had just said a few words, but Dan looked like he was about to die.

How could he amount to anything if he acted like that?

Even if he was talented, he was so easily affected. It would definitely stop him from climbing to greater heights. However, Jackie would not voice out those thoughts. He just coldly looked at Dan before walking away, leaving Dan behind.

Chapter 3270
Jackie waved at Rudy, and Rudy immediately followed behind Jackie. Since all three chances have been used, there was no longer any reason to stay there. Jackie had already gotten everything he could and he was contented.

Everyone looked at Jackie as he leave and remained silent for a long time. Jackie’s appearance had left a deep impression on them.

Jackie and Rudy went back to the inn instead of going anywhere else.

Jackie rented the room for another five days. After the two of them entered the room, Jackie eagerly took out the Enlightened Soul Root.

The Whirling World was filled with challenges everywhere. There was danger and opportunity in every corner. He needed to constantly improve himself. He eagerly wanted to see how powerful the Broken Soul Blade could be. The more Jackie thought about it, the more excited he got.

Rudy saw Jackie opening his eyes and immediately wanted to ask how much Jackie had trained. However, Jackie was in no mood to answer that as he pulled Rudy away and left the inn, not even settling the rest of the fees before that.

The two of them headed toward the north. After walking for a whole day, they saw a massive conical tower in the distance.

Jackie raised an eyebrow and pointed at the tower, “That’s the Red Sun Monument.”

After Rudy heard that, he said in shock, “The Red Sun Monument? It looks like a massive tower with four sides. Each side is a massive slope, and they all look the same. Why is it called a monument?”

Jackie laughed.

The shape of the monument really was unique. It looked like a pyramid from Cathysia. In Rudy’s eyes, it was just a large pointed tower.

Jackie patiently explained, “It’s because its surfaces are smooth. Our task is to climb it.”

Rudy was stunned, “Climb it? We’re supposed to climb the Red Sun Monument?”

Jackie nodded, explaining the rules to Rudy.

After Rudy heard that, his eyes widened as he failed to suppress his shock, “So that’s the case! You can only get the gold medal by climbing five hundred meters up the Red Sun Monument!”

The Red Sun Monument was five hundred meters tall. Every thirty meters was separated into an area, with five hundred meters being its peak. It was incredibly difficult to pull off, and most people would stop at the final stage, unable to advance.

Rudy sighed and said, “Is it really that amazing? I want to try to climb it too!”

Jackie smiled and said, “Everyone is free to climb. You can try it out, and come down if you think you can’t make it.”

Rudy was incredibly excited when he heard that he could try. The whole journey, he had just been like a follower to Jackie. He had witnessed Jackie’s achievements, but never had the chance to try anything. The further they went, the more difficult the challenges would be.

With his skills, he was forced to just hide behind Jackie. Since he had the chance, he was naturally happy to try it.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3271 - 3280 -

Chapter 3271
Jackie reached out and patted his shoulder, “Don’t force it. If you feel like you can’t advance anymore, then hurry on down. Don’t have any regrets. Even though I still haven’t experienced the Red Sun Storm, it can’t be underestimated. If you refuse to retreat down, your body may suffer something that you can’t recover from…”

“Then you’d need to spend a lot of spirit crystals to buy pills to recover. Even if you don’t buy pills, you’ll have to spend spirit crystals to get the materials to refine your own pills. Then wouldn’t you just be wasting time and effort?”

Rudy nodded, slapping his chest in guarantee, ”Don‘t worry, I won’t be stupidly stubborn.”

The Red Sun Monument was so hard to climb because of the Red Sun Storm. There was a dense storm around the monument, and the storm constantly poured from the top to the bottom. The higher people climbed, the more intense the storm would be. It would be harder to climb as well. True energy would need to be used, and techniques as well.

The Red Sun Monument truly tested a person’s skills. The higher one could climb, the more their skills were proven. The inner city was mostly filled with strong warriors.

Anyone who had a bit of skill would gather at the Red Sun Monument to prove themselves by climbing. Certain positions in the Red Sun Monument would gain rewards. From the one thousand four hundred meters mark, every thirty meters climbed would yield an additional reward.

That was why so many people choose to climb, putting their lives on the line. It was also to gain fame for themselves and their own worlds. The two of them walked as they chatted. When they were a few hundred meters away from the monument, they started to hear a lot of noise.

Looking up, it was filled with people. Just from a glance, Jackie estimated at least ten thousand warriors. With so many gathered there, it was as noisy as a market.

Jackie frowned at the noise, rubbing his ears. He hated noisy environments. The more people there were, the more annoying it was.

Jackie hated talking to others.

Looking at Jackie’s expression, Rudy immediately knew what Jackie was thinking.

He smiled and said, “Climbing the Red Sun Monument is a personal accomplishment anyway. The two of us won’t go looking for any trouble, and they shouldn’t have any conflicts with us.”

Jackie frowned, not answering Rudy immediately. Instead, he looked at the Red sun Monument.

On the monument were countless minuscule words. The Monument took up a vast palace. From a distance, all he could see were the words carved at the very bottom. It was actually the names of the four continents.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, muttering under his breath. Even though Jackie knew that climbing the monument involved no one else, he immediately understood that there was no way there would not be any conflict when he saw what was carved on the Red Sun Monument.

He did not know what they were thinking. All of them had actually carved their own continents on the monument. Naturally, they did so because they wanted to gain some honor for their continent, but it would stir up competitive spirits as well. They would end up constantly fighting.

As long as there was competition, there would be conflicts.

Rudy naturally realized that as well. He walked forward and looked up with widened eyes. The higher one went on the monument, the less Hestia Continent appeared, and Golden Continent appeared more and more.

From that, it was evident that Hestia Continent’s abilities were the weakest among all the worlds gathered.

Chapter 3272
At that moment, an unfriendly voice was heard, “Why are you here? This is the Golden Continent’s place. You‘re not from Golden Continent, so get lost!”

The warriors of Golden Continent all had gold patterns on their sleeves. Just by looking at the sleeves. It was clear if someone was from Golden Continent.

Rudy’s lips twitched as he looked around and noticed that they were surrounded by warriors from Golden Continent. He hurriedly retreated, returning to Jackie’s side before he observed his surroundings. He noticed that the crowd was separated into four parts.

The center positions were occupied by the warriors from Golden Continent. To the left were the warriors from Chaos Continent, while on the right were the warriors from White Marsh Continent. The warriors from Hestia Continent were mostly gathered in the westernmost area. They took up the least space and looked pitiful.

Rudy sighed, “It really is survival of the fittest in this world, but that’s so rough. We have been pushed to a corner no one wants.”

Jackie did not say anything as he turned around and walked toward the warriors from Hestia Continent.

Rudy sighed before he followed behind Jackie. The two of them had just reached where the warriors from Hestia Continent were when they heard some people arguing.

“How could we just leave that be?! They’re just trying to bully us. The warriors from Chaos Continent are clearly right beside them, but they walked past them and came straight for us. Are we just going to let that be?”

“Those two culprits are still at the one hundred and eighty meters mark, looking like they had already won. They don’t seem intent on leaving! They even said that any warriors from Hestia Continent can challenge them if we think we have the skills. It’s crossing the line!”

“Darien, you should make the decision! You’re the strongest, and you’re a chosen disciple of the Scarlet Pavilion. We’ll listen to anything you say!”

The Scarlet Pavilion was the only ninth-grade clan on Hestia Continent. They were naturally the strongest.

Jackie frowned as he slowly walked over, seeing the two corpses on the ground.

Those corpses had robes of the Scarlet Pavilion on. They died quite tragically. One had large holes in his chest, and the blood had already dried up.

The other one had both legs snapped, and all his tendons had been severed. He looked incredibly pitiful.

The warrior called Darien frowned as he looked at the two corpses sadly. From his expression. It was obvious that the two that had died were close to Darien when they were still alive.

Darien took a deep breath as his lips trembled slightly, “Do you think I don’t want revenge? I want to kill those dogs, but if we do that, we’d be challenging the Golden Continent.”

Chapter 3273
“Then there’ d be even more of them targeting us. There’ll be even more of our men dying at the one hundred and eighty meters area. Unless Hestia Continent’s warriors stop climbing the Red Sun Monument, this will keep happening.”

Quite a few of them fell silent when that was said. There was a trace of sadness in their eyes.

All of the warriors gathered there stood at the peak of Hestia Continent. They had power and were incredibly talented. Yet, they could do nothing about their situation.

They had been suppressed immensely during this period, but there was nothing they could do. It was because they knew very well that there would be severe consequences if they pushed back too far.

There were already fewer warriors from Hestia Continent, to begin with, and even fewer of them entered the inner city. Hence, they were forced to just bear with it.

A warrior from the Compass Pavilion shook his head and said, “Even if we wanted revenge, there’s still the question of who would get it. Both Wilde and Lester are from the White Phoenix Clan. The White Phoenix Clan is a holy grade clan. They’re not people I can touch. I’ve heard that the two of them are chosen disciples. None of us would be able to beat them!”

Those words caused the warriors from Hestia Continent to be even more miserable.

The reality was too cruel. Even if they wanted to revenge, they could not get it.

It was possible that Darien would be able to face one of them, but Darien was the only one at that level among the warriors gathered there.

Other than Darien, who would deal with the other one?

There was suddenly a heavy silence. Everyone looked incredibly defeated.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he listened to their conversation. He completely understood what had happened.

Climbing the Red Sun Monument was not just a contest against the Red Sun Storm. At one hundred and eighty meters and three hundred and sixty meters, they would need to participate in fights. Of course, both sides would have to agree.

Only after beating a warrior would you be allowed to continue climbing. At the one hundred and eighty meters point were two warriors from Golden Continent, Wilde, and Lester. They had deliberately hidden their identities, acting like they were weak. They had gone to the two warriors from Scarlet Pavilion and challenged them.

The two warriors had been fooled by their disguise, and they ended up fighting. By the time they realized they had been fooled, they had been completely beaten and killed. They had been tortured as well.

Wilde and Lester were clearly very strong. They could have defeated their opponents quickly, but they had deliberately dragged it on, injuring their opponents everywhere before they killed them.

At the time, everyone had seen everything clearly. It did not involve the other third-grade worlds, so they merely shook their heads in silence and uttered a few words. The Golden Continent had been incredibly excited. They had even mocked the warriors from Hestia Continent.

The warriors from Hestia Continent were furious. They wanted Wilde and Lester to stop the torture, but the two of them ignored it. They slowly tortured the two warriors from the Scarlet Pavilion in front of everyone.

The warriors from Hestia Continent were so angry because they had witnessed all of that.

After Jackie sighed, he shook his head silently.

The warrior from the Compass Pavilion had been right. Even if they wanted to revenge, they had no one who was able to do it. They would just be sending in more people to die. After all, Hestia Continent was too weak. They were forced to lower their heads at times.

An inner disciple from the Scarlet Pavilion said miserably, “Hestia Continent wouldn’t be in this state if not for that unknown barrier. At the very least, we’d be as strong as White Marsh Continent!”

Chapter 3274
Everyone else naturally agreed with that, but there were no hypotheticals in the world. The reality was right in front of their faces.

Rudy had a dark look on his face. At some point, his eyes had reddened. His hands were clenched tightly as he looked at the corpses on the ground.

He turned to look at Jackie. He knew that there were some things he could not say. However, he could not hold it in as he was just too infuriated.

He whispered to Jackie, “These warriors from Golden Continent should die! They should all just die!”

It was obvious how furious the warriors from Hestia Continent were, but there was nothing they could do.

There were quite a few warriors who entered the Whirling World from Hestia Continent. The strongest one was not there, and Darien was in second place. However, even if that person was there, it would not change much. After all, the situation was not looking good.

A disciple from the Unbreaking Pavilion sighed and said, “There’s nothing we can do at the moment. The rules are there after all. As long as we don’t agree, they can’t fight us. We just have to be careful. After all, we can’t just leave like this. It would be even more humiliating if we did.”

Those words might be hard to listen to, but it was the truth.

Rudy sighed as he looked up at the one hundred and eighty meters area.

Two people were sitting there. They looked quite average, but the arrogance on their faces could not be hidden. The two of them seemed to be waiting for something.

Rudy clenched his teeth as he looked at them. He took a deep breath. It was a pity he did not have the skills, or he would not hesitate to rush over and fight the two of them.

Rudy sighed and said calmly, “The two of them are a bit pitiful. If only they had been a bit smarter.”

Fighting was allowed at the one hundred and eighty meters area, but there were rules.

First of all, both sides needed to be willing to fight. The moment they start, no one could interfere, which was how the situation happened.

If the two warriors from the Scarlet Pavilion had known that Wilde and Lester were from the White Phoenix Clan, they would not have fought. They would probably not have accepted the challenge if they knew that their opponents were from Golden Continent in general. They would have thought about it before doing anything, and would not have fought.

However, those cunning and sinister men had hidden the golden patterns on their sleeves, acting like normal warriors.

Jackie raised an eyebrow and said, “All we can say is that the two of them were naive. They never expected that warriors from Golden Continent would be so despicable and shameless…”

“They might’ve thought that those who were strong would not do anything like that. It was obvious that they thought too highly of these people. As long as it makes them happy, these people will do anything!”

Rudy was even more furious at that moment.

He turned around and wondered, “If they wanted to show off, wouldn’t killing warriors from Chaos Continent or White Marsh Continent be more notable?”

“Isn’t it a bit beneath them to target Hestia Continent? Don’t they know that the more they act like this, the more disgusted others would be at them? Are the warriors from Golden Continent all so despicable?”

Jackie scoffed and narrowed his eyes slightly, saying coldly, “They don’t care about that. As long as they get to show off and trample over their opponents, they won’t care about anything else. The weaker their opponents, the happier they are…”

“They are clearly twisted in the head. After all, worlds are usually separated. Before entering the Whirling World, Golden Continent was probably always among other second-grade worlds.”

Chapter 3275
“When they’re with those worlds, Golden Continent stands at the very bottom. They’ve always been bullied, so their hearts are already twisted. Since they have the chance right now, they would naturally want to show off. The weaker their opponents are, the happier they are.”

Rudy’s lips twitched as he reddened in anger. He started to feel disgusted at all the warriors from Golden Continent.

He looked at them like nasty bugs in the sewers.

Jackie turned around and smiled before he said, “I know what you want to say after this. You don’t even have to mention it and I’ll do it. If those two guys that died were from the Unbreaking Pavilion or the Compass Pavilion, I might not have done anything, but they were from the Scarlet Pavilion. Even though there’s some conflict between us, it’s not too bad. There’s nothing wrong with helping them. ”

With Jackie’s words, Rudy’s lips trembled emotionally.

Darien frowned, and he was incredibly conflicted inside. At the moment, he had a lot of responsibility for himself, but he had the impulse to forget about everything and kill those two.

However, he knew very well that he did not have the skills. He got frustrated just thinking about it.

At that moment, he happened to spot someone.

That person had green robes on and an aura that seemed to separate him from everyone else. When he saw who it was, Darien’s lips twitched, “ Jackie?”

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he looked at Darien with some surprise. He could not believe Darien actually recognized him.

Darien took a deep breath. He seemed to be deliberating something. After thinking about it, he walked forward.

He walked right to Jackie, “I knew I’d see you here, but I’m a bit at a loss after seeing you myself.”

Darien looked at Jackie with sincerity and seriousness.

Jackie was surprised at his enthusiasm. Everyone else noticed Jackie as well. All of them looked over, and other than a small portion of the warriors, they looked at Jackie incredibly eagerly. It was like they were welcoming a hero.

Jackie did not know what to say when faced with those unfamiliar faces.

Rudy shrank behind Jackie as he was already used to being insulted. It was the first time they were welcomed so warmly. Even though those looks were aimed at Jackie, Rudy still felt awkward.

Darien gulped and composed himself.

“You don’t have to be surprised. We’ve already heard about you. We’ve talked about your skills as well. You showed your true skills in the slaughter gambit. You killed them all. You’re a hero for Hestia Continent!”

Jackie was caught off guard by that. In truth, he expected something similar, but just never expected it to have spread so widely. Every warrior from Hestia Continent seemed to know him.

The slaughter Gambit saw him beating everyone from the Chaos Continent and White Continent, winning in the end. After Jackie left, the news spread like wildfire.

Jackie’s strength slowly spread to everyone.

Chapter 3276
Darien became desperate. “I know you’ve had conflicts with certain people. More accurately, it’s with certain clans. However, you don’t need to care about that; it’s not an issue anymore. Those who offended you won’t trouble you no longer.”

Hearing those, Jackie felt even more bewildered.

Darien sounded very confident and firm. Jackie could hear from his words that, as long as Jackie could help the Hestia Continent, all those past conflicts would not matter.

The Scarlet Pavilion would help sort everything out and would make sure Jackie was happy. That was how the strong were treated. As long as a person was powerful enough, even eighth-grade clans would not dare challenge him or her.

Jackie let out a slight smile.

He did not really care about that. After all, if these people dared to come after him, Jackie would spare no effort in taking revenge, and they would pay dearly for their transgression.

Though, if he did not accept it, it would still not look great. Revenge was served when it was deserved, but he still had to do the things he needed to.

Jackie's lips curled up into a faint smile. "I don't really care about smoothing things out. After all, those small fries are nothing to me."

When he said that, the disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion and the Compass Pavilion glowered, looking as though they had tasted something terrible. Still, Jackie could care less about what they thought.

He let out a laugh before he added, "If I don't like those people, I can just kill them. After all, we can fight at the hundred and eighty meter range as long as both sides agree, right?"

Darien nodded vigorously as he looked at Jackie anticipatingly.

Jackie let out a laugh before he turned to look at the 180-meter area. At that moment, those two had their eyes shut while they rested, looking like they were not afraid of anything at all.

Jackie scoffed as a cold glint flashed in his eyes. He turned around and nodded to Darien. "Don't worry, just leave this to me."

With that, Jackie pulled Rudy into the crowd. "Just help me take care of him."

Jackie thus headed to the Red Sun Monument without even turning. He would not hold back against these shameless, despicable men.

Watching Jackie's back, Darien frowned as was riddled with slight worry. He had never seen Jackie in action before. All he knew was that Jackie's skills were comparable to chosen disciples from holy-grade clans.

Sending Jackie over, Darien was not hoping he would kill them at all. All he wanted was for Jackie to scare off the Golden Continent's warriors so they would realize that Hestia had no pushover.

A disciple from the Unbreaking Pavilion said anxiously, “Didn’t we say that we wouldn’t do anything for the moment? Wouldn’t having Jackie go there just show that we’re challenging the Golden Continent? They won’t just let it rest like that!”

They had talked about doing that, and Darien had planned on doing that as well. However, the moment Jackie appeared, Darien forgot about everything other than the hatred in his heart.

The corpses of his fellow disciples-all covered with wounds, and one, in particular, physically gutted-flashed across his mind. During the match, he was already on the ground and was barely holding on, but Wilde still did not relent.

The memory of how Wilde still resumed his attacks was forever etched in Darien’s mind. How could Darien not be filled with hatred? These despicable guys should be sent straight to hell!

However, he was not skilled enough and had responsibilities that stopped him from doing what he wanted. He was forced to swallow that anger in consideration of the bigger picture.

Chapter 3277
Darien suddenly turned around. His fists were clenched tightly, and his eyes were reddened as he stared at the disciple from the Unbreaking Pavilion who just spoke.

“I’ve given it a thought. Try as we might, these shameless guys won’t let us off, and backing off will only keep them coming back. We should fight back whenever possible. We have to make them realize that offending us comes with a price!”

With a frown, the Unbreaking Pavilion disciple sneered, “Do you think that Jackie can win? Alright, he’s stronger than me, but Wilde and Lester aren’t weaklings! Those two are chosen disciples from a holy-grade clan. I think Jackie won’t be able to shock them at all. Instead, he’ll end up drawing even more hate.”

The moment he said that, everyone around him started to frown.

Rudy could not stand it.

This man was clearly not happy that Jackie was heroically trying to help them out, hence his pessimistic words.

If it was before, Rudy might not have said anything, but Jackie had stepped up to help them get revenge, only to receive such a crude comment.

Rudy could not stand that at all!

He stepped forward and looked at that guy coldly. “Those two despicable men are appalling, but you’re not far off from them. You’re just saying that because you don’t want everyone else to have a good impression on Jackie. After all, you’re from the Unbreaking Pavilion, and we don’t get along that well!”

“I’ll remember you, brat. You’ll take responsibility for what you said!”

The moment that was said, the disciple from the Unbreaking Pavilion immediately shrunk back. After all, he knew very well that Rudy was close to Jackie and was always with him.

If Jackie really ended up targeting that man, he would not be able to fight back. His lips twitched, unable to say anything back.

Rudy took a deep breath as he held his head high and said to everyone, ”You don’t know him at all. I’ve known him for so long, and I know what he’s like. He never does anything he’s not sure of, so since he agreed to this, it means he’s confident. You can keep those petty words of yours!”

No one dared to say anything at that point.

Darien hurriedly stepped up and said, “Don’t be too angry, they’re all like this. They never watch what they say. We all believe in Jackie, don’t worry.”

As he said that, Rudy suddenly raised his hand to stop Darien. “There’s no need for flattery. I know very well what’s happening. Everyone just shut up and watch.”

At that moment, Jackie was already climbing the Red Sun Monument.

The moment his feet landed on the monument, a violent energy came from above, causing Jackie’s body to sway. However, he quickly stabilized himself.

He was at the lowest part of the monument and was only dealing with the weakest of the Red Sun Storm. He took a deep breath and started to climb toward the 180-meter area.

He looked around and made estimations. There were about a few thousand people climbing the monument, but most of them would probably stop before the 300-meter mark, unable to continue. However, Jackie was not really affected by the Red Sun Storm at all.

The area that would have Jackie using his techniques to protect himself would probably be above the 360-meter area.

He steadily continued to walk up.

Most of the warriors around him were from the Golden Continent and Chaos Continent. There were relatively fewer people from White Marsh Continent.

Warriors from the Golden Continent only talked to others from the same world.

When they looked at warriors from other worlds, disdain would flash in their eyes. It was as if these people were not worthy of sharing the platform they were on.

The warriors from White Marsh Continent who used to enjoy showing off were quiet as sheep, probably because they had been constantly embarrassed. After all, the Golden Continent was there.

Chapter 3278
“Those people are crossing the line. They’ve driven them to desperation! I was looking at the Hestia Continent earlier, and oh, were they pissed. Thank goodness they haven’t been causing us any trouble, or we won’t be able to do anything about them. We’d only be able to hold it in.”

“I really don’t know what they’re thinking. Why do they have to be so irksome?” A warrior from White March Continent lamented as he climbed.

The one climbing, his fellow disciple, shook his head and said helplessly, “Warriors from the Golden Continent are like mad dogs that’d try to bite anyone who they think is inferior to them.”

“Hestia can’t do anything, but watch what happens when they’re forced into this situation. Nobody knows if they’ll end up going for us later on. Even though I, too, look down on the warriors from Hestia, I won’t harass them randomly. After all, no sense of accomplishment comes from bullying those weaker than you.”

The other man nodded vigorously. “You’re right. The warriors from the Hestia Continent are recognized as the weakest by everyone. They’re at the bottom of the four worlds. It’s nothing much to mock them a bit, but why would the Golden Continent be so fixated on confronting them? Where’s the sense of accomplishment in that?”

“I really don’t know what’s going through their minds. You’re right, they’re just a bunch of mad dogs!”

Jackie nodded when he heard all of that.

They were right, the warriors from the Golden Continent were indeed mad dogs that lacked even a sliver of honor.

Even though the warriors from the White Marsh Continent look down on Hestia too, they would not go looking for trouble randomly. As long as the warriors from the Hestia Continent avoided them, they would just suffer some ridicule. No one would behave like the Golden Continent's warriors.

The other man snorted and lowered his voice. "They don't act like the strong at all. As long as it makes them happy, they can do anything. What do you call that apart from crazy?"

"Even though we look down on Hestia, I look down on how the Golden Continent is acting as well."

"There's no moral character in how they act at all. The Golden Continent is stronger than the White Marsh Continent, sure, but we don't target the weak to bully like they do. Just look at Wilde and Lester. They're sitting at the hundred and eighty meter area and aren't making a fuss. They even announced that any warriors from Hestia could come to challenge them!"

"What's the point in fighting till the end with the Hestia Continent? What's the point in suppressing those inferior? If they have the skills, they should go challenge the strong. They should be challenging other second-grade worlds, but they chose the lowest among the third-grade worlds. There's nothing worth showing off about that at all!"

The area Jackie was climbing in was not isolated.

There were no warriors from the Golden Continent at all, which was why these two men could talk so brazenly. Even if they lowered their voices, it was just for a few specific words. Everyone else could hear the rest of the conversation.

A noble-looking warrior from the Chaos Continent, donning the robes of the Purple Cloud Pavilion that only chosen disciples could wear, joined the discussion as well.

That person raised an eyebrow and said coldly, "How would they dare challenge other second-grade worlds? All they can do is parade themselves. Do they think others don't know about them? The Golden Continent stands at the bottom rung of second-grade rules and is regularly mocked and targeted when standing with them."

"That's why they're this twisted. They do everything they can to show off to those they believe are inferior. The weaker their opponents, the more they'll bully them. They don't have a moral character at all!"

Chapter 3279
The moment he said that, everyone around them laughed. Even though they did not dare to say anything out loud, everyone was aggravated with how those from the Golden Continent behaved, believing they were nothing but mad dogs.

When Jackie heard that, he smiled and shook his head.

They were only at a level six city, and there were still five other levels ahead. They would meet stronger worlds, and the Golden Continent would not be able to show off for much longer.

The higher they climbed, the stronger the Red Sun Storm was. Waves of energy crashed into all the warriors there, so much so that those who were not strong enough slowed down in scaling upward.

At the 150-meter area, a few of them stopped to rest.

Jackie, on the other hand, was barely worn-out as he walked leisurely even with the Red Sun Storm. It was as if the storm did nothing to him at all, and in the end, he finally arrived at the 18o-meter area.

A few warriors were already there, and a lot of them were fighting. Energies of various colors clashed in the air.

Some warriors were on the ground with severe injuries while some had bloodied mouths. Though there were corpses, there were not many. After all, there was not much of a reason to kill anyone, this was just a match of strength.

The 180-meter area was very large, but Jackie did not bother looking around him. His sharp gaze had locked onto Wilde and Lester.

At that moment, Wilde and Lester were still acting the same. They still had their eyes shut as they rested. Their surroundings were empty as none dared to get close to them.

Jackie smirked as he walked toward them.

Below the Red Sun Monument, a lot of people were looking up to see what was happening at the monument except for the warriors from Hestia. The first person to notice Jackie was a warrior from the Chaos Continent.

“Look at that guy, he’s walking toward Wilde. It seems like he wants to challenge him. What’s he doing? Who is he? What continent is he from?”

The moment that person said that, a few people looked toward Jackie.

When they saw Jackie walking over so confidently, some of them were stunned.

Jackie did not have golden patterns on his sleeves, so he was not from the Golden Continent.

After asking around, they found out that Jackie was not from the Chaos Continent or the White Marsh Continent. That left only one thing…

Jackie was from Hestia!

After confirming the answer, they were even more surprised. A warrior from Hestia was walking right to Wilde and Lester…

Was he trying to challenge them both?

Everyone shook their heads at that possibility, thinking that Jackie did not know his place.

The warriors from Hestia frowned anxiously. They stared at Jackie's figure and constantly prayed that Jackie would win. He had to reclaim even a fraction of dignity for Hestia and take revenge for the two dead warriors.

Chapter 3280
At that moment, Jackie merely had a simple thought, he just wanted these two arrogant warriors to die. He was used to offending people anyway, and there was no harm in offending a few more.

Wilde, seated cross-legged with his hands on his knees in a casual manner, could make out the sound of steady footsteps. When he opened his eyes, he saw Jackie's calm face.

Wilde raised an eyebrow as a sneer appeared on his face.

What was this guy doing?

Did he not see that everyone avoided him and Lester out of fear?

Lester opened his eyes as well, looking Jackie over with disdain as though Jackie was insubstantial.

Jackie was amused by their expressions, and he stopped when he was 90 meters away from them. He coldly looked at the two of them, and the two of them looked at Jackie as well. Their gazes met, and it looked like they would start fighting at any moment.

Wilde raised an eyebrow and said, "Are you here to fight, brat? Where are you from?"

Jackie's lips curled up into a small yet calm smile.

"My name is Jackie," he answered truthfully, "And I come from Hestia."

The moment they heard that Jackie was from Hestia, their smile widened.

Wilde chuckled. “I thought that the warriors from Hestia won’t dare step close to me. What are you here for? Don’t tell me you’re here to challenge us.”

Jackie snorted as he looked at them in complete disdain, “You’re not worthy of challenging me. I’m here to kill you.”

Everyone was flabbergasted upon hearing Jackie’s reply.

Did Jackie know what he was saying?

He dared to say something so brazen to the warriors from the Golden Continent?

Did he not know how those guys acted?!

Those from the Golden Continent would always torture their offenders to the point of insanity of even death!

Was there something wrong with Jackie?

Did he not know fear?

He had the gall to be so bold!

Wilde was taken aback. He rubbed his ears, not believing what he heard.

Was this guy crazy?

He dared to act so arrogantly toward them!

He did not know his place and seemed to be unaware of the concept of death!

Lester laughed. “Do you know what you’re saying right now? You said that you’re here to kill us? You? Do you know who we are? Do you know what a holy-grade clan is, and what a chosen disciple is?”

Jackie looked at Lester as though he had a second head growing out of him. “Do you think we’re all as ignorant as you are? How could I not know that? Are you trying to say that you’re a chosen disciple from the White Phoenix Clan, a holy-grade clan from the second-grade world, the Golden Continent? What of it, then?”

Everyone was stunned when they heard that. A few of them stared at Jackie wide-eyed in shock

Jackie was way too daring to have said that. He did not even spare the Golden Continent any form of respect!

The warriors from Hestia looked visibly conflicted. They were happy that the warriors from the Golden Continent were being insulted, yes, but they worried that challenging them too much would cause even more trouble.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3281 - 3290 -

Chapter 3281

The demeaning disciple from the Unbreaking Pavilion that tried to stop them earlier frowned and said, “ Jackie’s a little crass with his words right now. Isn’t he worried that it’ll backfire on him? With how the warriors from the Golden Continent are, they won’t ever forgive him. He might even drag us down with him!”

“Can you just shut up?” Darien immediately shot back at him after hearing that.

“Stop trying to praise others at our own expense. Even if we gave in, would the warriors from the Golden Continent let us breathe? Don’t you see how desperate of a situation they’ve forced us into?”

“If we don’t fight back, they’ll just get worse. Those warriors from the Golden Continent don’t have any grace at all. They’ll just keep on trying to prove themselves to us!”

The disciple from the Unbreaking Pavilion pursed his lips, not daring to say anymore.

The Golden Continent’s warriors were in an uproar after what Jackie said.

An inner disciple from the Azure Clan said loudly, “How dare you talk back to the warriors from the Golden Continent like, you brat?! You have guts, alright. Even being stabbed a thousand times won’t be enough. Death awaits you, just you wait!”

If this guy was not just all talk and wanted to challenge Wilde or Lester, then he was done for.

When the warriors from the Chaos Continent gathered, all of them shook their heads, lamenting the fact that Jackie was far too arrogant. He was practically playing around with his own life for a moment of fun, and seemingly did not care about the consequences at all.

A warrior from the Chaos Continent said, “Even though this guy is crazy, I won’t deny his words were satisfying to hear. Wilde’s nose looks like it’s going to go crooked!”

The moment he said that, a warrior from the Chaos Continent immediately stopped him. “You should keep quiet. Those guys have sharp ears. If they hear that you’re insulting them, they’ll come for you. You forgot how they are. Since we can’t offend them, we should avoid them. Don’t talk so loudly!”

At that moment, everyone knew that they could not treat the warriors from the Golden Continent normally.

All of them were far too despicable and only thought about themselves. They were a group that could not be crossed whatsoever lest it invited endless trouble.

Hence, everyone swallowed their words. Despite their grievance, they would just lower their voices, not letting anyone else hear them. Everyone had been tortured too much by the Golden Continent, and their anger toward the continent only accumulated.

At that moment, Wilde was enraged.

He looked at Jackie murderously, already wanting to kill Jackie. He was even already thinking about how he would torture Jackie later.

Unfortunately, Jackie was unfazed by his expression. Instead, he laughed and said, “I don’t know why the Golden Continent thinks so well of themselves. Do you think you’re better just because you’re from a second-grade world? From what I know, you’re among the worst of the second-grade worlds.”

“Your sense of superiority hinges on you facing weaker worlds, and that’s not true superiority at all. With enough time, third-grade worlds will be promoted to second-grade worlds while second-grade worlds will fall to being third-grade worlds. You won’t last long on your high horse.”

Jackie said all of that incredibly calmly as if it was something that would definitely happen.

The moment he mentioned that the Golden Continent was the worst among second-grade worlds, the disciples were enraged. It was their secret that they could not accept.

Chapter 3282
Wilde opened his eyes wide as he looked at Jackie, gritting his teeth. “Insolence! How dare you? It seems you’re looking forward to dying, so I’ll grant your wish. Didn’t you want to challenge me?! Come at me right now!”

Jackie raised an eyebrow, not even looking at Wilde. “I don’t have much time, and I don’t want any surprises. As long as both sides are fine, then any kind of battle is okay. A one-on-one battle isn’t interesting at all. If we’re going to fight, both of you should come at me. I have no problems going one against two at all.‘’

The moment he said that, everyone was shocked by Jackie again.

As his lower jaw hung wide open, Wilde, thinking that he misheard things, said, “You want to fight against us, one-on-two? You, alone?”

This whole situation felt absurd to Wilde.

Jackie nodded and said honestly, “Yes, I want to fight against the two of you on my own. You both should be happy and agree. After all, with how the Golden Continent acts, you don’t seem to care about how absurd or dishonorable it is at all. You just care that you’re happy.”

Wilde and Lester were both infuriated.

Lester looked at Jackie speechlessly as though this man had lost his mind. “Who do you think you are? Even the top disciple from my clan won’t dare to speak like that. You’re just a warrior from Hestia, yet you’re talking like you’re a hotshot! A little baffling, don’t you think?”

Lester felt like Jackie’s words were a joke. His arrogance was unwarranted!

Jackie sighed, already expecting that reaction.

He pursed his lips and let out a calm smile, ignoring the misunderstandings and mockery of others. “No one can change how you want to think, but you just have to remember one thing: I still want to climb the Red Sun Monument, and I don’t have time to waste on you both. If you want to fight, then do it quickly. If you don’t have the guts to, then shut up.”

No one expected that Jackie would go further with his words.

He looked like he did not have a care in the world! It was like he truly did not regard the two chosen disciples from the White Phoenix Clan as worth his notice at all.

The Hestia Continent exploded at that.

With Jackie asking to fight both of them at once, their discussions were suddenly split into two.

One half felt like Jackie was too arrogant and that he had to be crazy to do something like that. It was one thing to insult their opponents, but he dared to face them both at once!

They spoke as if Jackie was completely reckless.

The other group supported Jackie and heralded him as their flame of hope. From what they had heard from others, they knew that Jackie was not reckless. Everything he did was always very logical, and he had never miscalculated things before. This was no different.

A lot of them were like Rudy and believed in Jackie somewhat blindly, regardless of what everyone else was saying. Even before the outcome was produced, they felt like Jackie would win and would not do anything stupid.

Darien was one of those people.

As a chosen disciple from the Scarlet Pavilion, he was the leader among the warriors from Hestia who were gathered there. At that moment, he was surprised at Jackie's actions but did not doubt Jackie. He still trusted Jackie.

Darien had been greatly interested in Jackie when he heard of Jackie's accomplishments. He had his fellow disciples look into everything about Jackie.

When he found out everything Jackie had done, his confidence in Jackie became unwavering.

The disciples from the Unbreaking Pavilion started to move again.

One of them said loudly, " Jackie is insane, I called it. Does he know what he's doing? Does he think he's the top disciple of a holy-grade clan? He dared to challenge both Wilde and Lester alone… Does he think they're useless? He might not even have been able to win two against one, but he's offering to fight them both. He doesn't know his place at all. Just look at how everyone's laughing at him!"

Chapter 3283
A chosen disciple from the Unbreaking Pavilion scoffed and said, "They were already looking down on Hestia to begin with, and this will just make it worse. They'll keep on insulting us!"

"I just heard someone say that the Hestia Continent only has fools. Our situation was precarious before this, and now it's going to be worse. This guy is…"

He had worse to say, but seeing that Rudy was still there, he was worried Rudy would remember him for his choice of words.

He thus swallowed his words, but everyone knew what he wanted to say. The situation was an awkward one.

Rudy was initially silent, but when everyone's looks were focused on him, he could no longer stay silent. He sighed helplessly as he turned to look at everyone behind him.

After a few seconds of silence, he said, "I never wished for you to trust in him, but you could at least try to stop dampening the mood. I've said this before, Jackie never does anything he's not confident in. Since he's said it, he'll see it through. Everyone should just shut up, or you might have to suffer the consequences later."

As he said that, Rudy straightened his body and planted himself firmly on the ground. In the end, they only dared to talk about Jackie when he was not around. After all, all of them already knew how strong he was.

Even those who made snide remarks acknowledged that Jackie was a powerful character. However, they did not think that Jackie was able to stand up one against two.

They felt like Jackie had a death wish instead.

That disciple from the Unbreaking Pavilion pursed his lips and said unhappily, “You just have too much blind faith. He might just be hot-headed at the moment and didn’t think this through at all. He’s just thinking…”

Rudy frowned and, glaring at him sharply, declared coldly, “I know what you’re thinking, but don’t worry, things won’t go south like what you’re expecting. If Jackie loses, well, your words will be great to hear. If he loses, you’re going to be the unlucky one.”

All of the discussions from earlier were suppressed from then on, and no one dared to speak ill of Jackie anymore. That person had been scared silent from Jackie as well. He shrunk back, losing all his confidence.

At that moment, Jackie stood before Wilde and Lester. He had an easygoing expression on his face as though his opponents were nothing worth fretting about.

Wilde was so angry he did not know what to say.

Ever since he entered the Whirling World, this was the craziest thing he had encountered.

This brat, who came out of nowhere, was not just challenging the two of them but saying such arrogant words as well.

He truly did have a death wish!

Wilde’s sneer deepened. “Do you know the consequences of bragging in such a manner, brat?”

Jackie’s lips curled into a sneer as well. “Of course I know. Can you stop wasting time? If you’re not happy about it, just attack. As long as both sides are willing, even one against three is allowed.”

Lester could no longer tolerate Jackie’s attitude. “Can you stop acting like you’re the strongest warrior? I really don’t know if you’re crazy or just stupid. You asked us to stop wasting time? The nerve.”

Wilde took a deep breath and pulled out a meter-long sword. “Since you’re so eager to die, I’ll grant you your wish!”

Chapter 3284
All Wilde wanted was for Jackie to die a horrifying death. He could imagine how he would torture him in a moment. However, just as he was about to raise his sword, Jackie suddenly reached out and stopped him. “Wait!”

Wilde raised an eyebrow and snorted, “What? Are you afraid? It’s too late to regret. You already agreed to fight us both altogether. The moment you do, the rules no longer restrict us. I can attack whenever I want!”

Wilde’s lips curled up slightly as his face twisted in excitement.

He did not blame Jackie for raising his hand to stop them. After all, in his eyes, Jackie’s actions were just absolutely crazy.

In the end, he felt like Jackie had just been trying to act like he was better than he actually was.

How could a warrior from the Hestia Continent face them both at once?

Jackie would be no match even for one of them, let alone two!

Jackie raised an eyebrow and said, “No, I’m not scared. I just want to make a final check. Both of you are going to fight, right? Both you and Lester agreed to fight me, right?”

Hearing that, Wilde frowned again, looking at Jackie in confusion. He never expected that to be what Jackie wanted to say.

Jackie actually wanted to check to see if they both agreed to fight him as though worried he would miss out on such an opportunity.

At that moment, Wilde was certain that Jackie was deranged. He would never have said such things otherwise.

Lester shrugged. “You really opened my eyes. You said that to make sure that the rules won’t stop you from fighting the two of us?”

The situation felt so surreal to Lester. It was so hilarious that he did not know what to say.

Jackie was actually very straightforward. He nodded honestly after hearing that. It had been precisely what he thought.

Based on how the two of them were, it was not entirely possible that they would attack him together. Even though the warriors from the Golden Continent always did things as they pleased, he was still a madman in their eyes, an ant they could kill at any moment.

It was rather embarrassing for them to attack him together.

If he revealed his true skills and the other got intimidated, wanting to retreat, it would be a waste. To prevent that from happening, Jackie emphasized it again for the rules that those two had agreed to fight him altogether.

Then, no matter what happened, he could fight without any reservation.

Lester, on the other hand, felt like Jackie was brain-dead, and he was not the only person who had such a sentiment.

Everyone who heard what Jackie said thought so as well. They felt like he was seriously ill. The Golden Continent's warriors did not know what to say.

An inner disciple from the White Phoenix Clan raised an eyebrow and said, "Is he drunk? Just listen to what he' s saying. It's crazy. Listen to his tone. It's like both of them won't be able to beat him!"

"Even if he's drunk, any sane person wouldn't brag like that. This guy must be crazy-only demented people would say something like this."

A warrior from the Golden Continent next to him nodded vigorously. "I think this guy must be crazy, too. No functional person would do what he's doing."

Chapter 3285
Hestia Continent's side visibly soured as doubt clouded them, not understanding what Jackie was thinking.

At that moment, their common sense told them that just one was hard enough to deal with.

Fighting the two of them together left Jackie at a huge disadvantage. However, Rudy was still around, and they did not dare to be reckless with their words.

They were forced to suppress their doubts as they quietly looked toward the Red Sun Monument. The Red Sun Storm constantly flowed downward, and wave after wave of energy hid Jackie, Wilde, and Lester.

Jackie's expression was calm. Neither the Red Sun Storm nor the two before him were able to shake his tranquility.

Wilde could no longer stand it, he could not stomach anything from Jackie any longer. He would use his skills to prove to him how crazy he was with his words and behavior.

Wilde let out an angry roar as he held his sword with his left hand. He formed seal after seal with his right hand, and countless seals materialized with a vibrant glow, condensing behind Wilde. Three blurry figures solidified, standing behind Wilde.

Three stern-looking white-haired deities with massive wings appeared behind Wilde. They appeared like deities that mastered life and death. Jackie looked at everything interestedly, still maintaining his calm.

A massive force exuded from those three deities. It was as if the person standing before them was a weak madman that would be suppressed by the force and would be forced to his knees. However, Jackie did not even raise an eyebrow at the power. It did not affect him at all.

Wilde was already deep in his rage at that moment and did not care about such a small detail. He only had one thought in mind, which was to incapacitate Jackie before slowly torturing him.

“Die!” roared Wilde.

He held his sword with both hands and swung toward Jackie.

The three deities behind him looked like they were summoned as they suddenly leaped forward, fused into that technique, and charged at Jackie.

Jackie sneered as he quickly formed seals. 60 Soul Swords were immediately formed and merged into one.

He snorted as he pushed his hands forward, sending the massive Soul Sword right at Wilde.

The two of them were not that far away, and the techniques were executed quickly. The two techniques clashed against each other, and with an explosion, the white glow clashed with the gray one, forming blinding streaks of light.

At that moment, no one could see what was happening. Everyone widened their eyes, ignoring the bright light as they tried to see what was happening.

A cry of agony came after the glow was gone that shocked the warriors from the Golden Continent.

The voice was horrifyingly familiar to them.

Not another second later, the light dispersed, and they were surprised to see Wilde collapse on the ground. His body twitched, and his mouth was wide open. It was like he had been poisoned.

Lester reacted the quickest. When he saw what happened, he immediately rushed over, helping Wilde up from the ground. However, the moment he helped Wilde up, Wilde merely fell to the ground, unable to control his body as he spasmed violently.

Chapter 3286
Lester suddenly panicked.

He was the closest to Wilde, and he could clearly see that even though Wilde's eyes were open, but his pupils were distant.

It was obvious that he had lost his senses. His mouth was wide opened as incomprehensible groans came out of it. His body twitched uncontrollably as if he was in extreme pain. Lester's face was pale in fright, not believing what was happening. He pinched himself and felt the pain, so he knew that he was not dreaming or hallucinating.

His breathing slowly got more erratic as his hands constantly shook. He tried to help Wilde up again but failed after trying for a while.

Unless he held onto Wilde, Wilde would just fall on the ground. However, he was in danger at that moment and to prevent Wilde from getting injured, he lay Wilde on the ground.

Lester slowly looked up at Jackie, who was still standing in the same spot. He had lost the disdain on his face as it had turned into fear.

Jackie's expression was calm as if he had not done anything. The more Jackie acted like that, the more scared Lester was.

"What are you?!" Lester asked loudly.

He knew Wilde. Even though Wilde looked down on Jackie, he did not hold back. Even so, Wilde was still no match for Jackie. He had been dealt with in one attack and had been heavily injured to the point of losing his mind.

How could Lester not be afraid?

He even doubted where Jackie came from.

Every warrior who saw what happened was filled with horror and shock. It had completely shattered their expectations. Wilde, who they thought would definitely win, was no match for Jackie at all.

Jackie had heavily injured Wilde in just one strike, and his whole body even started to twitch.

The warriors from Golden Continent all had their eyes widened as they looked at everything in disbelief. It was too crazy.

A warrior from Golden Continent breathed erratically as he said, "What happened? How is this guy so strong? Wilde was using a lower ultimate god rank technique, but he was no match for this kid at all. What kind of technique is this guy using? Could it be a lower ultimate god rank technique too?”

That person spoke incredibly loudly, and everyone heard it.

A warrior from Chaos Continent shouted at him in disdain, “How are you so clueless? Do you really need to ask that? Isn’t it obvious?! If Leslie is using a lower ultimate god rank technique, then the technique that beat him won’t be of a low rank!”

A warrior from White Marsh Continent suddenly pushed back the shock in his heart when he heard that conversation, adding on to the warrior from Chaos Continent, “Are the warriors from Golden Continent only good at being proud of themselves?”

“Are you the only ones allowed to learn lower ultimate god rank techniques? Are other warriors not qualified to? Even if Jackie’s from Hestia Continent, there are strong warriors everywhere. You are so short-sighted. You only see yourself, but no one else!”

The warriors from the third- grade worlds all agreed with that statement, ”That’s right! All they care about is themselves. They think that everyone else is trash, but they ended up being no match for trash, losing in just one attack. They can’t see their own flaws. What a joke!”

“Do they think they’re stronger than us in every way just because they’ re from a second-grade world? It’s such a joke hearing that. Just their mindset alone is far behind other worlds.”

“They’re all just so stubborn, thinking that all their warriors are unbeatably strong. They think that the warriors from third-grade worlds can’t beat them at all. Let’s see if they’ll keep showing off after this.”

Chapter 3287
The warriors from Golden Continent were furious from being mocked, but there was nothing they could say.

They had no way to retort, but it was just temporary. Very quickly after, they began to throw insults again.

A wandering warrior from Golden Continent said, “You were always just trash anyway! They’re always some standouts among the trash, but it doesn’t mean that you’re no longer trash. Even all of you warriors from third-grade worlds added together wouldn’t be as strong as Golden Continent…”

“There’s no point saying these useless things. Just look at the Red Sun Monument. Who left the most names on the monument?”

Most warriors could not even reach the four hundred and eighty meter mark at all.

When they were at the end of their strength, they would carve the name of their continent where they stopped.

Looking at it, the monument was filled with names from various worlds, but Golden Continent had the most.

From the lowest to the highest level, the other worlds had a lot fewer names. Hestia Continent had the fewest, especially at the higher points. There were only a few at the four hundred and twenty meter mark area. The overall strengths of the continents were obvious from that.

The moment that person said that, the other warriors from Golden Continent agreed.

A disciple from the Azure Clan loudly told the warriors from the other worlds, ”Stop trying to show off in front of us. If you can, try to show us your skills and leave your names on areas that are higher up. Otherwise, stop with your mockery… Like another guy had said, Jackie’s victory means you have one outstanding figure among you. There’s always someone good among trash!”

When Rudy heard that, he found that the warriors from Golden Continent were really annoying.

He raised an eyebrow and suddenly shouted, “You should stop talking about all of this. Wilde lost, and he’s just barely alive. There’s still Lesley. Very quickly, you’ll see what ends up happening to those two that were mocking Hestia Continent so much earlier!”

At that moment, the warriors from Hestia Continent were high in spirits.

No matter what anyone else said, they finally got their revenge. Darien was particularly happy. He clenched his fists together and his eyes reddened, too emotional to say anything. Hestia Continent had been too humiliated earlier.

They had been tricked and were challenged by the person who tricked them. Their whole world was being trampled over. Darien had suffered from being humiliated like that. He still remembered how arrogant Wilde was toward them.

An inner disciple from Scarlet Pavilion said, “Serves him right! He spoke like we are not worth anything at all before this. He even said that we are not worthy of standing next to them. Let’s he how he can show off now. He can’t even stand up!”

“That’s right! Wilde is only good at being arrogant and ignorant. He thought that no one from Hestia Continent would be a match for him, and now he’s done for. Jackie would never let him off easily!”

Chapter 3288
Lesley could no longer hear any of the discussions coming from below because he was just filled with fear at that moment as he looked at Jackie's calm face.

His hands started to shake, along with his entire body. He looked like he was about to faint at any moment. He slowly stood up and stared at Jackie.

He coughed a few times before he summoned up the courage to say, " Jackie! You were just pretending earlier to get us?"

Jackie immediately laughed when he heard that.

He had heard that argument very often. Clearly, Lesley was short-sighted, thinking that he would definitely be weak.

When reality had proven otherwise, those people said he was acting.

Jackie said in exasperation, "Have I ever said I was weak? Have I ever said I wouldn't be able to beat you two? I made everything so clear, but you thought I was bragging. You're the one who can't use your brains properly, and now you're saying I was pretending…"

"Don't you think it's hilarious?"

Hearing that, Jackie's expression had a piercing mockery to it, "Who do you think you are? Why do I have to put on an act in front of you? Do you think I would be as shameless as you two? Ignoring your status to accomplish your goals?"

Lesley's face reddened at those words, unable to say anything back.

The warriors from below felt like Lesley's words were very stupid as well.

Just like Jackie said, he had never hidden who he was and even said that he would be able to stand up to both of them. However, Lesley and Wilde did not believe that Jackie was capable of doing that. They even felt like there was something wrong with Jackie's head. Yet, Lesley could still say things like that. It felt like a joke.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he looked at Lesley, "Don't think too highly of yourself. The two of you are just ants in front of me. You were the ones who thought that you were exceptional…"

"Now, you're going to suffer the consequences of your actions. Don't blame anyone else!"

Lesley took a deep breath as he took a few steps back. He wanted to escape the one hundred and eighty meter area so Jackie would not be able to attack him, but he knew very well that Jackie was no idiot.

Jackie could see everything he was doing. The moment he ran, Jackie would definitely attack without any hesitation.

If Wilde still had any ability to fight, he might have been able to run, but Wilde was not in a good state himself that the only thing he could do was twitch in pain. He could not even stand up, let alone work with him against Jackie.

Lesley was starting to regret not attacking Jackie together with Wilde.

If the two of them worked together, they might have been able to overpower Jackie. Even if they could not kill Jackie, they would at least be able to escape. The situation at that moment was the worst-case scenario for them.

Lesley took a deep breath as he started to try to threaten Jackie, “You can’t touch me. If you stop, this matter can be dropped here. If you kill both of us, the Golden Continent won’t just take it…”

“They definitely won’t let you off! You’ll be targeted everywhere. Then, you’d just be like a rat, having to hide everywhere you go!”

Jackie laughed after he heard that which left Lesley stunned again.

He had thought long and hard before he said that. In his mind, even if he could not cause Jackie to reconsider immediately, he could at least make Jackie worry a bit. However, Jackie had actually laughed so casually. It was like he did not care about what Lesley had said at all, and even felt like it was a joke.

Lesley’s lips twitched as he roared, “What are you laughing at? Do you think it’s that funny?”

Chapter 3289
Jackie scoffed, ”You really do think too highly of yourself. Do you think I didn’t consider that before this? Since I’ve attacked the two of you, I’ve naturally already thought about this. Let me tell you honestly, Golden Continent is nothing to me. Where do you think this is?”

“Even if you want to kill me, you’d need the skills to do so. With the rules in place, you can’t just rush at me. You’d only be able to fight me alone, which leaves me with no worries. Alone, none of you are a match for me.”

The moment he said that everyone took a deep breath.

If Jackie had not revealed his skills, the other warriors would have thought that Jackie was crazy to say that. However, there was nothing they could say after seeing Jackie's actual skills. He did have the right to act so arrogantly.

The warriors from Golden Continent could not help but say, "He's only won once, and he's already forgotten his place? He says that no one can stand up against him from Golden Continent. He's too arrogant. Lesley is only ranked thirty-two in the White Phoenix Clan."

"There are a total of thirty-three chosen disciples in the White Phoenix Clan. Lesley is behind Wilde. They are the weakest chosen disciples in the clan. There are still the other thirty- one disciples and none of them are weak."

"Any of the top twenty disciples would be able to beat Jackie easily! Don't think that a small victory like that means can do whatever he wants!"

"You're right, he has only beaten Wilde. There are plenty of warriors stronger than Wilde in Golden Continent. Even in other second-grade worlds, those warriors would be able to make a name for themselves. This guy is too arrogant! He doesn't know his place at all!"

Nevada looked over from afar, hearing the noise from a distance.

After the loss a few days ago, he had been deeply affected. He had just gotten out of his misery when he arrived at the Red Sun Monument, planning on using the monument to prove himself.

The arguments were getting louder and louder. He made out the name Jackie from everything he had heard.

The moment he heard that name, it felt like a nail violently rammed into his heart, making him feel incredibly bad.

He suddenly opened his eyes and rushed into the crowd. He found a fellow disciple that he knew and asked about what had happened. He asked why people were talking about Jackie, and the disciple told him everything.

When Nevada heard that, his face was incredibly pale. He suddenly looked up to see that familiar figure. When he saw Jackie, he looked like he was suffering a great deal

He could not help but say, "Lesley isn't a match for him. Even I lost to this guy. Didn't I already send the news to not casually offend anyone? You insisted on causing trouble for Hestia Continent, and now look, he's going to suffer!"

Nevada had a very sour look on his face.

When someone heard that even Nevada, who was ranked in the twenties in the clan, had lost to Jackie, they were shocked. They never expected that Jackie really was that capable.

Lesley was probably filled with regret at that moment. It was because he had trampled over Hestia Continent that Jackie took action.

Chapter 3290
Lesley took a deep breath and retreated again, “Are you really planning on offending Golden Continent? As long as you stop now, everything can still be discussed. We can still smooth things out, and you won’t have any trouble thrown at you.”

Jackie laughed, not caring about that at all.

Lesley refused to give up. Things had ended too badly for Wilde. There was a bloody lesson right in front of him.

Lesley did not want to die and did not want to be tortured. As long as there was a sliver of hope, he would not give up on it. However, Jackie’s various responses caused Lesley to lose hope. At that moment, the White Phoenix Clan disciples could not bear to look on.

The moment Jackie attacked, Lesley would definitely die. Even though they had been the ones to cause this, they could still not bear to watch as their fellow disciple dies.

An inner disciple from the White Phoenix Clan shouted at Hestia Continent, “You’d better talk to Jackie. He should know when to stop. Otherwise, the White Phoenix Clan won’t let him off! Not only that, we won’t let all of you off either!”

Darien was furious when he heard that.

Those people were too despicable. They had been the shameless ones that trampled on Hestia Continent’s dignity, but they tried to threaten others when they could not win.

Darien would not relent. However, he’s not relenting did not mean that everyone else was not worried.

A disciple from the Company Pavilion said, “Why don’t we talk to Jackie? If he goes too far, then we won’t be able to salvage the situation. The warriors from Golden Continent are shameless, but they’re powerful. It would be easy for them to go against us, and we would not be able to fight back.”

Lesley’s gaze shot right over, staring at that disciple from the Company Pavilion.

His rage burned, but he did not say anything. It was because that person had voiced his own concerns. After all, Hestia Continent was far behind Golden Continent in strength.

If Golden Continent targets them, they would not be able to do anything. However, there was no way Darien could ask Jackie to stop. He had been too furious about things earlier.

When the warrior from Golden Continent saw that Hestia Continent was not reacting, he immediately went on, “You’d better be smarter about things. There’s still room to pull things back right now. You’ve already heavily injured Wilde. It’s already revenge. If you cross the line, we won’t let you off!”

Jackie could hear everything that was being said. He turned to look at the person who was talking, and the sneer on his lips intensified.

Jackie said, “It’s already too late for threats. Let me make things clear. If any of you dare to target Hestia Continent, then I’ll target all of you. If you have the skills, then we can face each other head-on. We’ll see who suffers greater losses.”

The moment he said that the expressions of the warriors from the Golden Continent changed.

They never expected that Jackie would be so stubborn to even say something like that.

Jackie refused to budge.

When Nevada heard that, he sighed and said helplessly, “You shouldn’t waste your time. If this guy would listen to you, then I wouldn’t have lost to him. He’s not afraid of anything, and he is a man of his word. If we target Hestia Continent, we’ll definitely suffer his wrath.”

Darien clenched his fists tightly. Jackie’s words gave him a lot of support.

He turned to look at the warriors from Hestia Continent and said, “If we take a step back, they’ll just want even more from us, don’t you understand that? We weren’t the ones who started this. It was Golden Continent who forced us into a corner. Even if we take a step back, do you think they would let us off easily?”

“If Jackie let Wilde and Lesley off, they would see it as a sign of weakness. With how these guys are, they’ll just continue bullying us and forcing us into desperation!”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3291 - 3300 -

Chapter 3291
Darien was incredibly emotional as he said that.

He took deep breaths, and when everyone heard that, they could not help but nod in agreement. Facing Golden Continent, taking a step back would only make them think that Hestia Continent was afraid.

Golden Continent would definitely seek revenge.

Things would then be much harder for them in the future. However, if they stayed resolute and let Jackie lead the charge, things would be better. At the very least, the warriors from Golden Continent would think about the consequences before trying to put them down.

At that moment, Lesley was going crazy.

He realized that everything he said was useless. He could not sway Jackie at all.

Jackie did not want to waste any more time. He looked at Lesley coldly as he formed seals with his hands again.

Sixty soul swords formed in a flash, floating in front of Jackie. Those swords did not have any energy fluctuations at all. They were like an ancient well, but no one dared to look down on them. The power he had shown just now had even beaten Wilde.

Wilde and Lesley both practiced the Nine Cloud Annihilation technique, and the technique was well regarded in the White Phoenix Clan.

Quite a few chosen disciples used that technique, and Nevada was one of them. Nevada was stronger than them, ranking the twenty-seventh place. However, he was still not strong enough to face Jackie either.

Nevada shook his head helplessly.

When he saw that Jackie was about to attack again, he already knew what was waiting for Lesley.

Lesley’s whole face froze. At that moment, there was nothing he could say. After a short silence, he suddenly turned around to run. He only had one thought in mind at that moment, which was to try to run!

He would die if he stayed behind.

There was a howling wind next to him.

His speed greatly decreased thanks to the Red Sun Storm, but he did not care about that. Right at that moment, he felt the space behind him become unstable, like someone had distorted it.

He looked back and widened his eyes. He was shocked to notice that Jackie was already right behind him.

The sword in Jackie's hand aimed right for his back. Before he could even cry out, the sword had already pierced into his back. The pain of his soul being ripped apart was felt in his mind. It shattered all his sanity. He could not even circulate the true energy in his body as he collapsed on the ground.

With a bang, he slammed right on the Red Sun Monument, spitting out blood and was in a bad state.

Jackie slowly descended, looking at Lesley coldly, "Did you think you could run?"

He had no intentions of attacking again because the pain of one's soul being ripped apart was already the most painful punishment anyone could suffer from.

Jackie deliberately slowed down Destroying the Void, using the energy to slowly eat away at their souls.

Lesley started to roll on the ground, crying out in agony.

When everyone saw that, they felt chills on their backs. Even though they did not know what Lesley was going through, it looked like excruciating pain. Otherwise, there was no way Lesley would be rolling mindlessly on the ground like that.

Jackie's lips curled up into a faint smile, "I won't kill you immediately. Just like how you tortured the warriors from Hestia Continent earlier. There's still plenty of time. You can slowly enjoy it."

After saying that, he turned around and continued to climb up the monument, ignoring Wilde and Lesley.

Chapter 3292
At that moment, everyone had fascinating looks on their faces.

They stared with widened eyes as Lester constantly rolled on the ground. They also looked at Wilde, who was just twitching on the ground. Both of them were unable to utter a single word. However, the warriors below could all imagine what they were experiencing. It was definitely pain that pierced right into their bones. Otherwise, there was no way they would be tortured until they were acting like that.

The more cowardly warriors were all so scared that their faces turned pale. They covered their mouths with their hands, unable to say anything.

It was far too cruel. Even though Wilde and Lester would do anything for the sake of their enjoyment, the two of them still had some pride.

If they could control their own bodies or even had a sliver of sanity left, they would not allow themselves to be embarrassed like that.

A warrior from Golden Continent had his eyes wide open as he pointed at Jackie and said, “He’s just going to leave like that? I thought that the guy would cut those two apart. I can’t believe he’s just leaving them behind to die.”

After that person said that, Nevada’s lips twitched helplessly.

He turned to stare at that person, saying in a low voice, “Right now, the two of them are in far more pain than just dying. Since that’s the case, why would he waste his time on the two of them? Did you not hear what Jackie was saying? He kept on repeating that he wanted to use his time effectively.”

“It means that Jackie feels like his time is far more important than torturing the two of them. The two of them are in far more pain than any regular torture anyway…”

As he said that, Nevada’s voice trembled a little.

He was even thankful that he had only fought against Jackie in terms of their attributes during the attribute gamble, and that it had not been a real fight. In the end, he only embarrassed himself, but did not have to go through any actual injuries.

Nevada looked up at Jackie’s back, thankful for his luck. If he had been on the Red Sun Monument instead, he would not be in a much better situation than Wilde.

Just thinking about it caused Nevada to take a deep breath. However, the warriors around him were in an uproar.

Jackie had left without hesitation after accomplishing his goal, not even looking at the two of them on the ground.

What kind of person would be able to do something so cruel?

A warrior from Chaos Continent pursed his lips and said, “I’m nowhere near as strong as Jackie. No wonder he spoke like that earlier. We thought that he was crazy, but we were the ignorant ones. He always had a plan.”

“Honestly, Wilde and Lester were just far too confident. They did not even bother to think about why someone who knew their skills would dare to challenge them. They had been far too arrogant and did not regard anyone well at all. That's how they ended up like this. They can't really blame anyone else."

After that person said that, the other disciples agreed, "That's right! In the end, they were just blind. They thought that they were unbeatable just because they were from Golden Continent. That's why they ended up in such state. If the two of them had been careful enough, they would not have suffered such a horrible fate."

"There's nothing that can be changed about it. They would not have bullied Hestia Continent like that if they knew such a fate was in store for them. Regrets do nothing though. You can't change what has happened."

Chapter 3293
Just as everyone was discussing, a warrior from Golden Continent brought a valuable recovery pill to Wilde and Lester. After all, they were from the White Phoenix Clan and were very notable chosen disciples. There was no way they could be allowed to just roll on the ground so pathetically.

The person checked their injuries first, and after checking on them, the person was shocked to realize that the two of them had heavy injuries to their souls.

Wilde's soul was already ripped apart by a third, and the remaining two-thirds of his soul were holding on bitterly, but not for much longer.

Injuries to the soul were the most troublesome, and Wilde was already heavily injured. Even if he took the recovery pills, it would just be a waste.

Lester was in a slightly better situation than Wilde, but not by much.

Their injuries were already at the level where nothing could save them. Only death awaited them. The warrior that tried to treat Wilde looked down helplessly.

Someone shouted out loud, "What are you waiting for? Why aren't you treating them?"

That person shook his head helplessly, explaining the situation.

When everyone heard that Wilde's soul was already ripped apart, and by how much, the Golden Continent's warriors all paled.

They widened their eyes, and they lost all their earlier arrogance. They were filled with fear. They were scared.

Only then did they find out that Jackie trained in soul attribute skill. He specialized in attacking the soul. No wonder the two of them were in so much pain.

It was because their soul had been ripped apart. Injuries to the soul were the hardest to treat, especially at their stage. Other than death, there was no other result. No matter how many pills they took, it would do nothing to help.

A disciple from the Azure Clan said with trembling lips, “That guy actually uses the soul attribute. No wonder this happened. I can’t believe such a genius appeared in such a desolate corner!”

As he said that, he was even feeling thankful that he did not offend Jackie. After all, Wilde and Lester’s situation was just too bad. They were forced to bear the pain, slowly feeling their souls being ripped apart.

Death was not far away, and no one could save them. It was truly agonizing.

The warriors from Golden Continent became a lot quieter. Even though they were still angry at Jackie, no one dared to say anything. They shut their mouths, but it did not mean that the warriors from the other worlds would.

A warrior from White Marsh Continent could not help but say loudly, ”Why do you keep putting down other worlds? No matter how bad Hestia Continent is, they are still a true third-grade world. Third-grade worlds have so many geniuses. Any one of them would be able to cause Golden Continent problems. Jackie is just one of them.”

“It’s because Golden Continent was far too arrogant that this happened to you. Things are already at this stage, but you aren’t even thinking of changing. You still feel like there’s no way other worlds could have strong geniuses.”

The more that person spoke, the angrier he got.

White Marsh Continent had been thoroughly suppressed by Golden Continent and had been infuriated by them constantly. They wanted to prove themselves as well but never had the chance.

Jackie had finally stood up for all of them.

Chapter 3294
Yet, the warriors from Golden Continent did not seem to even regret anything.

They were talking just like before, feeling like Jackie was just an exception, and the warriors from the third- grade worlds were still trash.

How could that warrior from Golden Continent stand it?

It was not just the White Marsh Continent, even Chaos Continent’s warriors could not tolerate it.

Quite a few of them started to shout at the warriors from Golden Continent, “As Jackie said, you’re regarding yourselves too highly. Golden Continent isn’t even a first-grade world. You’re an insignificant existence in second-grade worlds. If you give us another hundred years, Chaos Continent will be a second- grade world as well.”

“You’re just slightly stronger than us. It’s not like you’re that much stronger. Yet, you speak so arrogantly. It looks like you haven’t learned your lessons. Just you guys wait! Even more strong warriors will tell you how laughable you’re acting!”

“That’s right! Jackie had clearly trampled all over them with his skills, but they refuse to acknowledge that other worlds have countless geniuses. Just hearing their arrogance sounds like such a joke.”

“It’s as if they think that the strong can only exist in Golden Continent, and other worlds can be bullied as they please. Just open your eyes. Jackie from Hestia Continent. Hestia Continent is at the bottom of third-grade worlds, but someone as strong as Jackie still exists.”

“There’s no way White Marsh Continent and Chaos Continent’s geniuses would be any less than Hestia Continent. Even chosen disciples from holy grade clans are no match for our geniuses!”

The warriors from Golden Continent had incredibly dark looks on their faces. They were not willing to admit that the other worlds had geniuses that could compete with their own.

They would be greatly impacted by that. They were incredibly prideful, so they would not be able to accept it.

However, even if they could not accept it, they could not voice out their arguments that loudly as well. After all, Wilde and Lester were still bitterly struggling on the Red Sun Monument, waiting for death.

They would not be convincing at all.

Nevada sighed and said helplessly, “The Red Sun Monument has both the hundred-and-eighty-meter area and the three-hundred-and-sixty-meter area to fight in. If we want to gain back our dignity, we’ll have to wait until Jackie gets to the three-hundred-and-sixty-meter area to challenge him. We’ll only be able to shut everyone up by winning there.”

Nevada’s words served as a reminder to the warriors from Golden Continent.

They thought about things and agreed with what Nevada said. The situation in front of them would yield no results even if they continued arguing with the third- grade world.

They were forced to wait for the next chance to fight Jackie. They had to win convincingly if they wanted their dignity back.

When Hestia Continent heard what Golden Continent was saying, they suddenly lost their earlier happiness.

A warrior from Compass Pavilion said helplessly, “Even though Jackie’s too strong for any normal person to challenge him, our earlier worries were not wrong either. These warriors from Golden Continent are like flies you can’t chase away…”

“As long as they have their eyes on you, it’d be incredibly difficult to get rid of them. They lost in the hundred-and-eighty-meter area, but there is still the three-hundred-and -sixty-meter area. As long as Jackie reaches that place, the warriors of Golden Continent will definitely challenge him.”

When he said that, he could not help but lament in his heart. He did not know what to do with the situation at all.

Darien sighed as he looked around behind him. He noticed that most of them had worried looks on their faces.

The clans that had a grudge against Jackie had temporarily put aside their hatred. They knew very well that Jackie was their shield and their support. If Jackie lost or fell, it would be disastrous for them.

Chapter 3295
At that moment, everyone with a brain knew that they could not let things drag on like that.

Darien took a deep breath and looked at everyone with resolve.

His voice was steady and powerful, “Everyone, don’t worry. We have to trust Jackie. He has always been someone who does what he says he will. He’s definitely thought about what you’re worried about.”

“He’s not worried at all, so why should we be? What we can do right now is to cheer him on as much as we can. No matter what anyone else says, we can’t falter.”

When the warriors from Hestia Continent heard that, they looked at each other and were silent for a long time. After a while, they all nodded.

That was the only thing they could do at that moment. Other than cheering for Jackie, there was nothing else any of them could do.

Jackie looked at Darien appreciatively. He did not expect Darien to have so much faith in him.

Rudy trusted Jackie so much because he knew of Jackie's skill and attitude after following Jackie for so long. He did not expect Darien to trust Jackie so much even though he had only heard of Jackie.

He laughed and patted Darien's shoulder, telling Darien firmly, "You really are the heart of Hestia Continent. You always make the right choice."

Darien let out a light smile and shook his head, " Jackie's very strong, and he always does what he sets out to do. It's not that I'm making the right choice, it's just that Jackie's given me a lot of confidence."

Jackie was clueless about what was being talked about below. Even if he did, it would not sway him. To him, the Golden continent was not a threat at all. The worlds that would threaten him were at least first-grade worlds. His future challenges would come from first-grade worlds.

To Jackie, what was happening was only an incredibly small annoyance. As long as he wanted to, he could cross it at any moment. Nothing would be threatening at all.

He slowly walked up the Red Sun Monument.

Possibly because the battle earlier had left a deep impression on everyone, no one dared to walk around Jackie. Hence, he got an incredibly large open space around him.

He was not like those warriors who loved to show off. They would try to climb Red Sun Mountain as fast as possible to prove their skills.

Jackie walked very slowly, and every step was firm. It was like he was climbing up a mountain.

Finally, Jackie arrived at the three-hundred-and-sixty meter mark.

The moment he stepped into the place, he attracted a lot of looks. Some crossed their arms as they looked at Jackie in amusement. That was because they knew that Jackie had deeply offended every warrior from Golden Continent.

With how Golden Continent acted, they would definitely not let it off easily. As long as there was a chance to gain back what they lost, they would seize it.

Chapter 3296
Of course, Jackie knew that very well, but he did not care whatsoever. He did not bother what everyone was talking about nor if anyone else saw him. As long as no one obstructed him, he would continue moving forward.

Finally, when Jackie arrived at the area, a black-clothed man blocked his path.

Jackie looked up and saw a resolute face. He raised an eyebrow with not much expression on his face.

The man looked at Jackie coldly. He looked like he wanted to stab Jackie a thousand times.

A few moments passed and Jackie still refused to speak.

In the end, the man could not help but say, “ Jackie, right? Let me introduce myself since you’re about to die in my hands. It would be disrespectful if I let you die without doing anything. I’m called Intet Kayn. I’m a chosen disciple from the White Phoenix Clan.”

“Those two pieces of trash are lost to you because they’re just complete trash. Don’t think that you can show off in front of Golden Continent just because of that insignificant victory.”

Jackie raised an eyebrow.

Intet was obviously someone with ill intentions. He had directly labeled Wilde and Lester as trash. At the very least, they were chosen disciples too.

Jackie had probably been too obvious with his blank expression, and Intet immediately understood what Jackie was thinking.

He snorted and said, “The two of them were just trash. It means nothing that you get rid of them so easily. They were at the last two places among chosen disciples. In my eyes, they were no different from inner disciples. I’m in fifteenth place. I’m more than enough to deal with you!”

“Don’t think that you’re unbeatable just because you beat the last-placed chosen disciples. The difference between chosen disciples is huge. Other than the last two pieces of trash, each place is drastically stronger.”

When Jackie heard that, he merely thought that Intet talked too much.

He just wanted to prove how much stronger he was compared to Lester and Wilde by saying all of that. He wanted Jackie to not look down on him which made Jackie roll his eyes in exasperation.

He laughed and said, “You’re so interesting. I haven’t even said anything, and you’ve spouted so much nonsense. Do you think I can’t tell what you’re trying to say? You’re worried I’ll look down on you, so use your skills to prove it. There’s no point saying all of that.”

“In my eyes, you’re no different from Wilde. Even though you’re ranked in the fifteenth place, you’re still from Golden Continent. Unless you’re from a first-grade world, your words are worth nothing.”

The moment Jackie said that Intet’s expression changed.

He was so furious that his hands trembled slightly. He could not believe that he had been insulted like that even after revealing his background. Intet panted roughly as he stared at Jackie viciously.

Jackie was far too used to looking like that. Sometimes, he would see them a few times in a single day.

Unless Intet could not hold back and rushed at him, it was no different for Jackie. The warriors below were shocked by Jackie’s words again.

Everyone was paying attention to everything he said.

Everyone was completely stunned by Jackie’s words. In their hearts, they wondered how Jackie kept on sounding more and more arrogant.

Chapter 3297
This time, even Nevada could not stand it anymore, “This Jackie. Did he let his earlier win get to him? He’s actually looking down on the whole of Golden Continent. It’s like the whole continent is beneath him. How arrogant!”

“That’s right. This guy is crossing the line. Every time I hear him speak, I want to rip his mouth apart. He keeps saying that others were thinking too highly of themselves, but he doesn’t look himself in the mirror!”

“He’s even saying that he only cares about warriors from first-grade worlds. He’s just a warrior from a third-grade world, but he’s acting so arrogantly. If I told anyone what I heard, they’d think that I was making things up. After all, it’s hard to find someone like him.”

Jackie did not care about what was being said below at all. Even if he heard them, he would still ignore them.

At that moment, Jackie was coldly looking at Intet who was in front of him. He saw Intet breathing roughly.

He scoffed as he said in a calm tone, “I’ll say the same thing. If you want to fight, I’ll do it at any time, but I’m very short of time. I don’t want you to waste any of it. I’ve always been someone who acts as I please. You’ll end up just like Wilde. You were the one who asked for it. It has nothing to do with anyone else.‘’

Intet's face twisted in anger at those words. Jackie was crossing the line.

He clenched his teeth and said, "Brat, I was being nice to you. Do you really think I'll lose to you like those two pieces of trash? You should be glad that the two of them underestimated you and didn't attack you together. Otherwise, you would have been ripped to shreds in that area!"

As he said that, his face was completely red. He wanted to rip Jackie apart.

Jackie's lips twitched helplessly, feeling like Intet would not listen to anything he said.

He was actually no different from Wilde. Even after witnessing Jackie's skills, they still thought that Jackie was not that strong. They thought that Jackie had just won out of luck.

If Jackie had faced both of them together, Jackie would not have won. Jackie was speechless at that thought. He did not care what they thought either. In Jackie's eyes, all of them just refused to listen.

He sighed as he did not know what to say to Intet. While Intet felt like he had been greatly insulted, and really wanted to kill Jackie at that moment.

He glared at Jackie, "Brat, you'll pay for what you said. You'll be crying and begging for mercy for just a moment! I won't give you any mercy even if you kneel down and beg!"

Jackie laughed as he said in exasperation, "I'll remember what you said. Let's see who'll be the one begging for mercy."

Intet's lips twitched, feeling like he no longer wanted to argue with Jackie. He would probably die from anger if they continued!

Chapter 3298
In Intet's heart, he was no match for Jackie when it came to words, but Jackie was definitely no match for him when it came to actual skills.

Jackie had easily killed Wilde and Lester, but he could do it as well. That was why Intet felt like Jackie was just a little stronger than Wilde.

He took a deep breath, already eager to see Jackie begging for mercy. He formed seals with his hands, and four long-haired deities condensed behind him. He was using the Nine Cloud Annihilation as well.

Nine Cloud Annihilation was a specialty of the White Phoenix Clan. Anyone who's strong would fight to learn the technique.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he looked at the four deities behind Intet.

Just from the number of deities, Inter had managed one more than Wilde. However, it was still nothing to Jackie, because the Nine

Cloud Annihilation was still just a lower ultimate god rank technique in the en while Destroying the Void was truly an upper ultimate god rank technique.

Unless Intet was using a storm god rank technique, he would be no match for Jackie.

Intet let out an angry roar as he clasped his hands together. A shocking power poured into the sword in his hand. Intet widened his eyes, veins evident in them, and shouted, “Die!”

As he slashed his sword, the white slash turned a meter long, flying right at Jackie.

Jackie let out a laugh, judging that Intet was already at the second stage of the technique.

No wonder he spoke so arrogantly. There were probably less than ten disciples at that stage in the whole White Phoenix Clan. In truth, the chosen disciple rankings were no longer that accurate. After all, the whirling World had been open for almost half a year.

They were geniuses from their respective worlds, frantically growing after entering the Whirling World. If another ranking battle happened, there would definitely be changes. Intet might even be in the top ten spots.

Fighting Jackie, Intet was incredibly proud, but he did not dare to look down on Jackie. After all, he knew that Jackie had not shown his full strength earlier. So, Intet did not hold back.

The warriors from Golden Continent widened their eyes when they saw Intet’s true skills.

Someone said loudly, “Oh my! Intet’s already mastered Nine Cloud Annihilation to the second stage! We‘re definitely going to win!”

Even if he had mastered it completely, it would still be no match for Sixty Soul Swords.

Bang!

There was a massive bang, and two slashes clashed in the air. The incredibly bright light obscured their sight once again.

No one could tell what was happening, but they could vaguely hear someone cry out in agony.

Everyone's hearts almost jumped out of their throats. They did not even blink, worried they would miss something. The radiant light only lasted for a few seconds before it dispersed. Everyone could see everything in front of them.

Intet clutched his chest, and his eyes were wide open. His eyes were full of disbelief as his limbs twitched slightly. He was still conscious, but it was too painful.

All he could do was scream.

Chapter 3299
Everyone saw what was happening, and the place fell into a strange silence. Every warrior from Golden Continent was stunned. It was the same result. Even Intet had lost!

There were those of them who had said confidently that Jackie would only be able to beat the chosen disciples lower than the top twenty places, but they had been slapped in the face. Even the fifteenth-placed Intet had been no match for Jackie. Furthermore, Inter had shown off his full skills earlier.

He had clearly improved a lot. All of them believed that Intet was already in the top ten, but he was still no match for Jackie. He had still been killed by Jackie in one strike and they could not accept the fact.

They could still somewhat accept the last placed chosen disciples losing, but even Intet had lost. They could not believe it at all. Some of them felt like they had been slapped in the face several times.

Jackie smirked as he raised an eyebrow to look at Intet, who was twitching on the ground.

He controlled Destroying the Void's power, not destroying Intet's body, allowing him to remain conscious.

He slowly walked toward Intet.

At that moment, Intet had his eyes wide. His body twitched constantly. When he saw Jackie, he shook even harder. Fear enveloped the consciousness he still had, "Don't kill me! Don't torture me! I'm begging you! Don't torture me!"

Even though Jackie was controlling Destroying the Void to not engulf Intet's soul, it was still slowly eating away at it.

The deep, bone-piercing pain filled Intet with fear. He was even hoping for Jackie to kill him with one blow!

At that moment, dignity was nothing. He only wished that Jackie would let him off and not rip apart his soul.

Hearing Intet's begging, Jackie could not help but laugh, "Don't you remember what you said earlier? You told me that I would be the one begging and that you wouldn't forgive me…"

The moment he said that Intet's face paled. He had not believed that Jackie would be able to beat him at all. He felt like Jackie was no match for him whatsoever.

At that moment, Intet wanted to slap himself in the face.

Looking at Jackie's cold eyes, he shuddered. He regretted trying to challenge Jackie in the first place. When he saw what Jackie did, he only thought that Jackie was incredibly despicable.

He had also been very confident in his skills. Ever since he entered the Whirling World, he had made breakthrough after breakthrough. He did not think much of Jackie as well. It was not like Intet' s confidence was unreasonable either.

With Intet's skills, he would have definitely been able to rank within the top five in the White Phoenix Clan, but he did not know that even the top five would not be a match for Jackie.

Jackie looked at Intet and sighed, "Will you be like Lester? Thinking that I was putting on an act and that was the only reason you lost?"

Intet's face stiffened, unable to say anything. He felt like everything Jackie said was like a slap on the face.

Jackie had not been putting on an act at all. He had just been fooling himself the whole time.

Chapter 3300
Only, they were warriors from Golden Continent and kept on thinking that Jackie was just someone unbelievably arrogant. They never expected Jackie to actually have the skills to back it up.

At that moment, the warriors from Golden Continent were acting incredibly strangely. They had constantly been pushed back by Jackie. They were completely mute at that moment, unable to say anything.

They were able to forcibly regain their pride after the first loss, but after a second one, there was nothing they could say.

A warrior from Chaos Continent laughed out loud, shouting at the Golden Continent, "Come on, don't you all love to talk? You were casting so much judgment on Jackie, saying we're all trash? Why aren't you talking anymore? Can you finally tell who the real trash is?"

The warriors from Golden Continent all had sour looks on their faces. Even though they wanted to shout back, they were unable to say anything at all. After all, Jackie had kept on winning. Even Intet had been no match for him. Nothing they said would be convincing.

What caused them to lose all hope was the fact that Jackie had dealt with Intet just like how he dealt with Wilde. It looked like it had not taken much effort at all.

He had defeated Intet with one blow. They were no idiots. They had seen everything clearly. Intet had not held back at all. Even with his full might, he had still been no match for Jackie.

That caused them to despair. They were forced to lower their heads and admit defeat.

Nevada sighed as shock showed in his eyes, “Is Golden Continent really nothing to him?”

The moment he said that, Golden Continent turned even quieter. They thought that Jackie had just been speaking arrogantly because Jackie had never seen how strong the warriors from Golden Continent were, but they had nothing more to say.

Jackie’s strength had exceeded their imaginations.

It was as if Jackie could deal with anyone incredibly easily. They were unable to see how strong Jackie was at all. Darien’s fists were tightly clenched as he looked incredibly emotional. The stronger Jackie was, the safer the rest of them would be.

It was just like Jackie had said, if the warriors from Golden Continent wanted to take revenge on the warriors from Hestia Continent, they would need to consider Jackie’s anger first.

A disciple from Unbreaking Pavilion said, “I thought that I had a good idea of how strong Jackie was, but he’s actually even stronger than I thought. The fact that Hestia Continent managed to produce someone so strong is a blessing!”

At that moment, the warriors from Hestia Continent started to be thankful. They had thought that Golden Continent had forced them into a corner, but Jackie’s strength had appeared to save them.

They knew very well that they would not be bullied anymore as long as Jackie was still around. Every single warrior from Golden Continent would be fearful of Jackie.

The pain was slowly eroding Intet’s sanity. At that moment, he was already on the verge of no longer being able to say anything. He merely shouted out in agony. He was in too much of a pathetic state.

Quite a few people looked away. Intet used the last of his strength to plead to Jackie, “Let me go! As long as you let me off, I’m willing to do anything for you. Even if you’re not willing to let me go, please just kill me!”

Intet was already resigned to his fate.

Jackie might not let him go, but at least he might not have to die so painfully. His soul was being eroded constantly. His whole body was twitching at the pain of his soul being ripped apart.

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3301 - 3310 -

Chapter 3301
Intet would accept anything, so long as Jackie ended this face-off quickly.

Jackie let out a laugh as he calmly said, “Let me ask you this… If the person on the ground was me right now, would you spare me a sliver of mercy? Answer me truthfully.”

Jackie’s tone was calm, but Intet could tell how apathetic was. If the positions were switched and it was Jackie on the ground instead of him, he surely would not grant him mercy.

He would not, for sure.

Jackie had constantly challenged and embarrassed the Golden Continent before this, and it was something no warrior from the continent could accept. Furthermore, they were proud and aloof. As long as they got the chance, they would not spare Jackie easily.

They would make sure he suffered the cruelest punishment in the world, to the point he would beg for death. Just thinking of this, Intet lost all hope.

Jackie’s intentions were clear; he would treat everyone how they treated him.

Intet’ s breathing sped up as hopelessness dulled his eyes. After a brief silence, he suddenly raised his hand to hit his head, wanting to end himself.

Jackie wanted to torture him, so it would be better for him to end himself so this torment would all end. However, Jackie seemed to have seen through his intention as he swiftly swung his sword and cut Intet’s arm from slamming against his head.

Intet no longer had any way of killing himself.

Intet looked up hopelessly. “You’re far too cruel! I can’t even kill myself? I’ll make sure to haunt you even when I die, Jackie!”

To this, Jackie merely smirked aloofly. “I hear this very often. If these curses actually work, I’d be dead by now. ”

After Jackie said that, he slowly got up.

Just like before, he no longer looked at Intet as he continued to advance, his steps firm and resolute.

Everyone swiftly made way for him as they gazed at him as though he was a god that could not be toppled. In their eyes, they looked at Jackie in a different light and would agree with everything he said. Even if Jackie said he was from a first-grade world, they would probably believe it.

A warrior from the Golden Continent said, " Jackie's just too cruel. I thought he'd show some mercy. Since those three are already dead, I thought he wouldn't continue torturing them, yet he didn't even give them a chance to end their own lives, just torturing them like this. Jackie's a demon!"

The moment this was said, the other worlds immediately fought back.

A warrior from the Hestia Continent retorted, "You truly are pigs. All you know is to look down on others. If Jackie was the one on the ground, would you guys from the Golden Continent let him off easily? You guys are the crueler ones and he's just behaving like you, yet he's the demon?"

Chapter 3302
A few among the crowd agreed with what the warrior from the Hestia Continent said.

A warrior from the Chaos Continent sneered as he said, "The warriors from the Golden Continent sure love their double standards. Only they're allowed to have prodigies and not other worlds. Only they're allowed to be cruel, and no other worlds can. Jackie did exactly what they did, but they see it as some heinous crime. It's like Jackie's a demon straight out of hell. What a joke!"

A verbal riot broke out in the area near the Red Sun Monument as they jeered at the Golden Continent. Even wandering warriors from Hestia raised their voices and cursed at the Golden Continent's warriors, calling them shameless and despicable, to which those from the Golden Continent heard it all.

The warriors from the Golden Continent were forced to lower their heads and accept everything. After all, they would just get laughed at if they tried to be stubborn at that moment.

Jackie did not care about the arguments that were happening below at all.

He only had one thought in mind at that moment, which was to climb the Red Sun Monument and get the golden badge.

He already had the black iron badge and the bronze badge. If he got the golden badge, he would have gathered all three. Even though the rules did not say what he would achieve if he managed to get all three badges, he had a feeling it would be something noteworthy. Jackie would even manage to get other valuable items in each area he crossed.

After half an hour, he arrived at the 420-meter mark when he suddenly felt the ground beneath him heating up before a ray of light shot up in front of him.

Jackie looked down and noticed that five million spirit crystals had suddenly appeared in front of him. He let out a smile.

Warriors who arrived at the 420-meter mark would receive five million spirit crystals. If he continued for another 30 meters, the Red Sun Monument would award him with five million spirit crystals and an eighth-grade pill.

Jackie took a deep breath and placed the spirit crystals into Mustard Seed.

He had accumulated quite a bit of wealth as he had about 40 million spirit crystals in total. Even chosen disciples of ninth-grade clans did not have as much as him!

However, it was still far from enough. If he wanted ninth-grade crystals, he would need even more.

He sighed as he continued upward.

Back at the foot of the monument, the discussions about Jackie's skills slowly dwindled.

They started to talk about how far Jackie would be able to climb. To regain a fraction of their dignity, the Golden Continent's warriors started to demean and belittle him.

"I admit he's very strong. He's probably able to place in the top ten of a holy-grade clan. Even so, he'll only be able to get to four hundred and eighty meters at most, no higher. After so long, only three people have managed to climb to the peak and obtain the golden badge."

"No matter how strong Jackie is, he'll never be able to face someone at the top three of a holy- grade clan. It's not like I'm trying to insult him, but he came from a meager place. He's a warrior from Hestia, and all of us know what Hestia's overall strength is like. They're at the bottom of third-grade worlds. Jackie being able to have those skills is already a miracle…"

These opinions were agreed on by all the warriors from the Golden Continent.

They started to add oil to the flames and said that Jackie would never be able to reach the peak. Even being able to reach the 480-meter mark would be a huge accomplishment.

A warrior from the Azure Clan said loudly, "Don't think that we're trying to insult Jackie. We're just saying things as it is. Just look at the four-hundred-and-twenty meter area. Only ten people from the Hestia Continent have managed to reach there…"

“Two hundred people from White Marsh Continent managed it, and three hundred and twenty-five from Chaos Continent got in. The Golden Continent already has over six hundred, so the overall strength of each continent is obvious here. That’s why we say that Jackie has a limit to how strong he can be. There’s no way he’s stronger than every warrior in the Golden Continent!”

Chapter 3303
After saying that, a warrior from the Golden Continent behind him said, “The four-hundred-and-twenty meter mark is just the start. Just look at the four-hundred -and-fifty meter mark. not a single warrior from Hestia got there. Only ninety-one warriors from White Marsh Continent entered…”

“The Chaos Continent only had a hundred-and-twenty-one, while three-hundred-and-nineteen people from the Golden Continent got through! There are fewer and fewer the more you look up.”

“At the four-hundred-and-eighty-meter mark, no one from Hestia entered, two from White Marsh Continent entered, and five from Chaos Continent got through. There were twenty-one from the Golden Continent! If you’re talking about the five-hundred-and-ten meter mark, there are only three. Not a single person from the third grade worlds reached it. Only three warriors from the Golden Continent managed to get there!”

Numbers and the truth were the most convincing, and the arrogance of the Golden Continent that was once suppressed only grew from then on. Even though Jackie had stunted their sharpness, the Golden Continent’s overall power was plain for all to see. They were strong, and there was nothing that could change this.

Only three people had been able to climb to the peak of the Red Sun Monument, and all of them came from the Golden Continent.

The warriors from the third-grade worlds had all stopped within the 480-meter area, and they had nothing to say about it. There was no way they could argue.

Darien sighed at the truth. He raised his head and said, “Even if he can’t get to the peak, Jackie’s results are inspiring enough. Being able to get to the four-hundred-and-eighty meter mark is something warriors from Hestia haven’t been able to do. We’re all proud of him!”

The warriors from Hestia all agreed with him when he said that. To them, the 480-meter area was something they could only look at. There was no way they could ever get there.

No warriors from Hestia even got to the 450-area mark. Rudy merely watched on quietly. No matter what anyone else said, Rudy still believed in Jackie. He knew Jackie would be able to reach the peak, and his faith in Jackie would not waver no matter what anyone else said.

Time slowly ticked away, and Jackie finally stepped into the 480-meter area, and the Red Sun Storm was incredibly intense there. It raged so forcefully that Jackie could barely steady his footing.

The frantic energy rained down on the participants' bodies. It was not something ordinary warriors were able to handle.

Jackie took a deep breath before he started to circulate his true energy to shield himself against the storm.

The tempest truly was intense, but it did not affect Jackie that much. After all, Jackie did not just have Destroying the Void, an upper-ultimate god rank technique, but the storm-god rank technique, Soul Sky as well. These two techniques meant that the storm could not harm Jackie at all.

Jackie did not stop as he continued onward, neither slowing down nor hastening his steps. Even other warriors that were climbing the monument stopped to look at Jackie wide-eyed.

Everyone wanted to see Jackie's final results. They wanted to see where Jackie would stop.

Since Jackie had not slowed down at all, the warriors from the Golden Continent could not take it.

A warrior from the White Phoenix Clan, with a sour look on his face, said, "How is this guy putting up such a good act? Is he not affected that badly? His footsteps never seemed to slow down. He's been advancing at the same pace as though the Red Sun Storm isn't affecting him at all."

Nevada felt a chill shoot down his back when he heard that. The longer it went on, the less willing he could accept the truth.

Jackie never seemed to be one for exaggeration.

Was he really that strong that only warriors from first-grade worlds were comparable to him?

Did he not care about the Golden Continent's warriors at all?

Chapter 3304
It was the scariest thing for them. Jackie never slowed down at all as he climbed the Red Sun Monument, and he barely reacted as well. It was as if the Red Sun Storm did not affect him at all.

Other than Jackie, everyone else would adjust their pace or slow down as they climbed the Red Sun Monument due to the strength of the Red Sun Storm. They would stop midway to regain their strength to continue climbing.

Jackie, however, never once stopped except when he would fight others. When they fought, not only did they need to use their true energy to fight each other but to withstand the Red Sun Storm as well.

His earlier battle had left a deep impression on everyone, causing them not to notice that the Red Sun Storm did not seem to affect Jackie at all.

A warrior from the Golden Continent sneered, his lips twitching as he did, “He’s just crazy. This guy is never normal in anything he does; he never ceases to shock us. Do you think he’s doing this to show off?”

After he said that, a warrior from the Golden Continent beside him immediately agreed. It was because Jackie had greatly impacted them.

Jackie had completely embarrassed them, so praising him would just be pouring cold water onto themselves. As long as they had the chance to insult Jackie, they would not let it slip.

“You’ re right. Jackie’s just not normal at all. I admit that he’s strong, but he loves showing off, too. I’m not trying to insult him or anything, but just think about what he’s said before this. No matter who he’s fighting against, he loves to irk his opponent, asking the other person to not waste his time.”

“Normally, anyone who says something like that is just trying to show off. He wants others to think that no one is worth his time. I acknowledge his skills, but I can’t say anything about his character. There’s nothing to be proud of for being strong. Being strong and being respected is what’s amazing. I won’t respect someone like this.”

As that person spoke, he rolled his eyes at Jackie’s back, but his words were met with angry retorts from warriors from third-grade worlds.

A warrior from the White Marsh Continent shouted at the warriors from the Golden Continent, “Do you have nuts for brains or something? It’s like you’re just saying anything that comes to your mind. You’re even saying that you’re not trying to insult him! Is Jackie wrong at all?! He told them not to waste his time because he never regarded them as worth his notice at all.”

“To Jackie, all three of them were just ants and barely posed a threat. There was nothing to say to them. Those three refused to back down and insisted on arguing against Jackie, spouting nonsense as they did. Even I felt annoyed listening to them!”

”That’s right! They don’t care about what they’re saying at all as long as they’re insulting Jackie. You warriors from the Golden Continent have no right to talk about respect at all. Before you speak, can you think about what you’ve done before this? Is it worth any respect?”

“If you hadn’t challenged Hestia and forced them into the corner, how could all of this have happened? Those three wouldn’t have been tortured so badly, watching as their lives slowly slip away. Those three had it coming!”

Chapter 3305
The warriors from Hestia Continent could no longer stomach such unjust treatment.

They wanted to keep a low profile, knowing they were supposed to be the weakest among all the worlds there, but there were times they had to stand up for themselves.

An inner disciple from the Scarlet Pavilion walked forward, his posture straight, as he looked at the warriors from the Golden Continent.

He shouted out, ”Are you really such sore losers? Fine, the Golden Continent’s overall strength is noteworthy, and you’re the strongest out of the four worlds here, but don’t forget that this is a level six city. There are still level five and four cities after this, and you’ll meet even stronger worlds. Will the Golden Continent still be able to act like this without any fear?”

“Don’t do unto others what you don’t want to be done unto you. You should show more restraint!”

The warriors of the Golden Continent glowered at these words that evidently struck a nerve.

A bulky warrior from the Golden Continent immediately looked over and glared at that inner disciple from Scarlet Pavilion fiercely.

“Who do you think you are, you brat? How dare you try and lecture us? We’ll allow Jackie to act arrogantly because he has the skills to, but this doesn’t mean just anyone can piss all over us! You should be happy that we can’t attack you right now, or you’d already be a corpse!”

After he said that, the other warriors from the Golden Continent looked at that warrior with the same cold gaze.

That person’s lips twitched as he took a step back.

Darien sighed helplessly as he pulled that person behind him, glared at that inner disciple, and whispered, “The Golden Continent’s warriors are all incredibly narrow-minded. They’ll remember you if you say something like that.”

Rudy walked over to Darien's side.

He looked at the warriors of the Golden Continent with a cold gaze as he sneered, "He's right, though. You were a bit too anxious. After all, this is probably the only place you'll be able to show off. If you continue forward, you'll meet even stronger second-grade worlds. If you compete against them, you'll end up in the same difficult situation."

Rudy did not know them, but they remembered that he was always after Jackie. They would not stomach any harsh words from anyone else, but they were silent when it was Rudy, ignoring it.

Rudy let out a laugh as he felt thankful that he could show off, all because of Jackie. He never doubted his decision to be by Jackie's side.

At that moment, Jackie was already at the 480-meter mark. His speed had not changed at all.

He took a deep breath as he frowned slightly. The moment he reached the area, the power of the Red Sun Storm seemed to be several times stronger.

Truth be told, Jackie already felt the Red Sun Storm growing stronger at the 450-meter mark, but he could still handle it. This time, it was far less bearable.

He was forced to use the true energy in his body, forming seals to condense Soul Swords to shield himself from the storm.

Chapter 3306
There were 60 Soul Swords in front of Jackie' s body, serving to reduce the power of the Red Sun Storm.

Jackie's actions elicited gasps of surprise.

A warrior from the Golden Continent could not help but lament, "He's finally using his techniques to stop the Red Sun Storm. If he didn't do that, I'd start wondering if the storm was avoiding him."

"In the end, he's not a god. No matter how strong he is, there's a limit. How strong do you all think his technique is?"

The moment that was said, everyone started to get curious. They could not resist discussing it. Most of them felt like Jackie should be using a lower ultimate god rank technique, which was why he was too strong even for Intet.

It was simple, Jackie had already reached the third stage of the technique. However, there were those of them who did not agree.

A warrior from the Chaos Continent said, “I think Jackie’s using a middle ultimate god rank technique. If you want to master a lower ultimate god rank technique, you won’t just need talent but a lot of time. Ultimate god rank techniques aren’t that simple.”

“If you want to master a technique, you’d need a lot of enlightening. Even if Jackie’s talents are monstrous, he’s still young. Unless he learned the ultimate god rank technique at an incredibly young age, there’s no way he’d be able to reach perfection!”

The man seemed incredibly sure of what he was saying, and it caused the others to ponder his words.

Slowly, about a third of them believed. They felt like Jackie was using a middle ultimate god rank technique. However, there were those who thought that the idea was far too absurd.

A chosen disciple from the Azure Clan frowned and said, “Aren’t you putting that guy on too high of a pedestal? Don’t you know what a middle ultimate god rank technique means? Only a genius at the very peak would be able to use one. Your reasoning seems a bit logical, but it’s still very absurd.”

“Mastering a lower ultimate god rank technique does need a lot of time and effort, but there are exceptions. Jackie might just be incredibly lucky and had a sudden moment of enlightenment, but a middle ultimate god rank technique is different.”

”Most geniuses of our age won’t be able to use one at all. Don’t think that a lower ultimate god rank technique is just one level lower than a middle ultimate god rank technique. Mastering a middle ultimate god rank technique needs you to have a deep understanding of the workings of heaven and earth. Without a certain realm, you can’t even begin to attempt it!”

“You’re right. All of them have just been blinded by the skills Jackie has shown, thinking that he’s unbeatable. All I can say is that you’re all ignorant. He’s not the only strong person in town. Third-grade worlds might not have many who are as strong as Jackie, but they’re all over the place in the Golden Continent.”

Chapter 3307
“We’ve seen so much more than all of you, and we can make better judgments. Don’t think that your meager bits of knowledge will be enough for you to be so sure about anything!”

“They don’t know how difficult middle ultimate god rank techniques are. One of my seniors tried to learn it before but was unable to do anything. His talents are among the top of the Golden Continent. If Jackie could do it, he’d be able to do it too. Alas, he was completely out of ideas when it came to a middle ultimate god rank technique.”

“There’s nothing that can be done about it. Third-grade worlds and second- grade worlds have an evident gap between them. If not for the Whirling World, they’d never be able to interact with us. These fools keep insulting us by saying we’re at the bottom of second-grade worlds, but even if we’re not highly ranked, we’re still one. What we’ve seen and what we know isn’t something any of you can compare to.”

When the warriors from third-grade worlds heard that, their expressions soured. They were once again angered by the warriors from the Golden Continent.

A warrior from the Chaos Continent growled, “You say that you know more than us, but why do you keep making the wrong judgments? Didn’t you repeatedly say Jackie would lose? You kept on saying that Jackie was no match for even the likes of Wilde.”

“Yet, what’s the outcome? Is Jackie the one on the ground? Stop trying to suppress us with those words. Just think about what you’ve said before this compared to the truth.”

No matter how many arguments there were, it did not affect Jackie at all as he zoned out from listening to the unnecessary commotion. He only had one thought in mind, which was to reach the peak of the Red Sun Monument and obtain the golden badge.

The further he went, the more intense the Red Sun Storm got.

At the last 10 meters, Jackie’s clothes were rustling from the Red Sun Storm. However, he never slowed down and never even stopped to rest.

At that moment, the arguments below the Red Sun Monument reached their peak. The warriors from the Golden Continent were adamant that Jackie could not be using a middle ultimate god rank technique. No matter what anyone else said, they stubbornly refused to listen, all while warriors from the other worlds frantically tried to defend Jackie.

They were sure that Jackie was using a middle ultimate god rank technique and pulled out various forms of proof.

They were getting exhausted talking, but the warriors from the Golden Continent refused to accept it. Right as arguments were reaching a boiling point, a clear voice interrupted all of them.

“ Jackie is at the peak!”

Those words completely silenced the crowd. Even their breathing slowed down.

Everyone looked up toward the peak and saw a resolute figure standing atop with a straightened back, akin to an unyielding tree. They held their breaths, realizing that their arguments meant nothing at all.

Jackie had once again used his skills to prove everything, regardless if he was using a lower or middle ultimate god rank technique. He was someone none of them could beat. Ever since the Red Sun Monument was started, only three people had reached the peak, and Jackie was the fourth.

Just that alone was enough to prove Jackie's talents and skills. He was a genius that stood out amongst geniuses. Even the warriors from the Golden Continent, who wanted nothing more than to put him down, all fell silent.

Jackie's eyes were sharp, and all he heard was the howling wind. He could not hear what anyone was saying at all.

Chapter 3308
At that moment, Jackie stood at the highest point where the Red Sun Storm was the most intense, having condensed 90 Soul Swords to endure the storm.

After a few moments, the peak of the Red Sun Monument started to glow in a reddish-golden light. Right after that, a small badge started to condense in the air, and a glint of excitement flashed in his eyes.

Reaching out and opening his palm, the golden badge fell into his hand. He pursed his lips excitedly as he grasped the badge.

Another light shone through as 20 million spirit crystals condensed in front of Fame. There was a small smile of excitement on his face as he put all those spirit crystals into Mustard Seed.

When he got to 420 meters, the Red Sun Monument awarded him with five million spirit crystals, and at the 450-meter area, he was given another five million and an eighth-grade pill. At 480 meters, he was given a million spirit crystals and a treasure worth 10 million.

When he got to the peak, he got the golden badge, 20 million spirit crystals, and a treasure with an indeterminate price.

Jackie had received a bounty this time. Just from spirit crystals alone, he had gotten 31 million. It had basically doubled his fortune, and he was getting closer to his goal.

He took a deep breath as he patiently waited for the last reward.

After a few moments, another golden glow appeared around him. It was so bright that Jackie had to shut his eyes. Once the light dispersed, a spirited grass appeared in front of Jackie.

When it materialized, the discussions below erupted again.

”Goodness! Is that a Seven Bone Soul Herb? That’s ninth-grade spirited grass worth at least thirty million spirit crystals, and it’s so rare that it’s almost impossible to find in the market!”

”I remember that Jackie’s a soul attribute warrior. With that Seven Bone Soul Herb, Jackie will level up a lot. Sure enough, it’s so frustrating comparing ourselves to others. Those who can get even more resources will only get stronger, while we only get what remains. We’ll never reach their heights.”

“He’s so lucky. The Seven Bone Soul Herb is incredibly valuable. My master tried to get one in an auction years ago but wasn’t able to get it, and he regretted it for a long time. I can’t believe he managed to get something so valuable.”

Everyone was incredibly jealous. Not only had Jackie gotten 31 million spirit crystals, but he even got a soul gem and a Seven Star Soul Herb. The soul gem was what Jackie got when he arrived at the 480-meter mark.

Those treasures were both treasures that were able to improve soul attribute warriors, which Jackie happened to be.

When Jackie walked down the monument, everyone looked at him with different expressions. Before, they had looked at Jackie as though he was a lunatic, but no longer did they look at him in such light. Instead, he garnered looks of respect and fear.

Jackie was already used to it.

After he went down, he exchanged a few pleasantries with Darien, addressing a few matters before he left with Rudy.

Jackie was in no hurry to head to a level five city. He brought Rudy to the inn they were in before. Even though his skills were still exceptional, they would be meeting more geniuses.

Jackie understood that the further they went, the more worlds would be gathered, thus he was in no hurry to leave. He wanted to improve his skills before he thought about anything else. He planned on absorbing the soul gem and the Seven Bone Soul Herb in the inn.

It took Jackie 10 days to fully absorb it all.

With the soul gem and the Seven Bone Soul Herb’s power, Jackie finally managed to condense a Divine Soul. He managed to reach the first stage of the storm god rank technique, Soul Sky.

Jackie happily clenched his fists. If he was somewhere that would allow it, he would have tested out the destructive capabilities of his technique.

Chapter 3309
Every stage of Soul Sky had its name, and the first stage was called the Broken Soul Blade.

Jackie was very eager to see its capabilities.

Rudy sipped his tea as he looked at Jackie's excited expression. He smiled and mused, "I suppose it went smoothly?"

Jackie nodded and smiled, not saying a word.

Rudy straightened his body and looked at Jackie as he said, "Where are we headed next? Will we be going to a level five city?"

Jackie looked up at Rudy before shaking his head seriously, to which Rudy pursed his lips. Even though Rudy had asked, he had been sure that they were headed to a level five city next. However, he never expected Jackie to shake his head in denial.

It surprised him, to be frank. "Are we not going to a level five city? Where are we going, then?"

Jackie did not bother answering Rudy and instead pulled out the three badges from Mustard Seed and placed them together.

The badges suddenly emitted a radiant glow as they surprisingly merged with a crack and turned into a single crystal badge.

Stunned, Ruddy took a deep breath, and his eyes bulged so much that they looked like they could pop out of their sockets.

The badges could be merged?

He stood up and walked over to Jackie, looking at the badge in Jackie's hand with widened eyes.

He pointed at it excitedly and said, "What is this?"

Jackie smirked. Even though he rarely revealed his emotions, he could not help but feel a sense of excitement this time. "This crystal badge can let us go anywhere. It can even send us to a level two city right away."

The moment he said that, Rudy covered his mouth in shock. This meant that they could go wherever they wanted to!

Jackie took a deep breath before he added, "Not only can it go to a level one city, but it can even take to other second and third-grade worlds."

Hearing that, Rudy was so shocked that he was momentarily speechless. “We can go to other worlds? We…We won’t have to return to Hestia? We can go anywhere?!”

Jackie nodded resolutely, his hands trembling from the excitement.

He said as he clutched the badge tightly, ”Based on the normal rules, every warrior that’s still alive when the Whirling World closes will be sent to their original worlds. However, with this badge, we don’t have to do that. We can choose any second or third-grade world we want. We don’t have to return to Hestia.”

Jackie was already tired of Hestia anyway. His goal had been the Valley of Enlightenment, but from what he knew, the valley was not in Hestia but somewhere outside of it.

The entrance to the Valley of Enlightenment was not just in Hestia, other worlds had entrances too. Thus, Jackie did not have any reason to stay in Hestia.

He wanted to see a new horizon, and he knew staying in Hestia would serve him no good.

Chapter 3310
Rudy excitedly walked around in circles. He looked at Jackie before looking at his own hand.

Jackie raised an eyebrow, immediately guessing what Rudy was thinking. Thus, he smiled and said, “If you’re willing to follow me still, I’ll take you along. You just have to make sure you don’t betray me.”

Rudy’s hand quivered, his face reddened a little, and he was shaking from excitement.

His lips moved, wanting to say something, but he could not figure out the words to say.

Jackie laughed and continued, “Are you worried that you might not get used to other worlds, and that Hestia might be safer for you? Yet you still want to see the wider world.”

Rudy lowered his head. Jackie had guessed exactly what was in his mind. He stood still, not knowing what to do or say.

Jackie stood up and patted Rudy’s shoulder, “Just say what you’re thinking and do what you want to do.”

Rudy looked at Jackie emotionally.

After a moment, he finally said, “I’m just worried about my future. I know that you’ll protect me as long as I’m with you, but I’m worried you’ll think I’m useless…”

Saying that, Rudy looked down again, not daring to meet Jackie's eyes.

Jackie smiled as he turned to look into the Whirling World's clear skies.

There was no night and day here, only blue skies above them. However, Jackie knew that everything was just part of a formation. The Whirling World was a massive formation that could only last for two years. After two years, they needed to choose somewhere else to go to.

Jackie sighed as he said seriously, "As long as you don't betray me, you can keep following me. People will always be useful, so you don't have to think too much about it. However, I have to tell you one thing: you're already linked to me. If you go back, you might get taken away if anyone sees you…"

Rudy's expression stiffened.

He pursed his lips, unable to say anything. It was what he was most worried about.

After going through so much, he was a completely changed man. He had put aside all the pride he used to have. After seeing so many strong warriors, he finally realized how vast the world was, and his talents were nothing compared to theirs.

He should have chosen to stay in a small place and live his life peacefully, but if he chose to return, he would lose Jackie's protection. He would also be taken away by larger clans because he was always with him and would, one way or another, make him spill Jackie' s secrets.

He could never go back on his own.

After thinking about it, Rudy finally said, "I'll follow you. I can't go back anymore, anyway."

The more enemies they made, the more Rudy realized that he could no longer go back.

Jackie nodded, patting Rudy on the shoulder wordlessly.

Three days later, Jackie and Rudy stood in front of a massive city gate and quietly looked at the massive sign on the gates.

"So this is Weinhord City!" said Rudy excitedly.

Weinhord City was a level four city. To save time, Jackie chose a level four city over a level five city.

The moment the crystal badge formed, the rules of the whole Whirling World went into his mind, and Jackie had a clear idea of the path forward.

There were a lot of people within Weinhord City at that moment as a few warriors had come from afar. Just the city gates had over a thousand people gathered there.

Rudy looked at the crowd and pointed at it. “I thought that there would be fewer people the further we went, but it’s actually the opposite.”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3311 - 3320 -

Chapter 3311
Jackie smiled and said, “That’s because there were only warriors from Hestia Continent at the start. The warriors from the other worlds only came in later on. Slowly, we’ll start to see more and more warriors from other worlds. The Whirling World intersects with a lot of other worlds…”

“I don’t know how many different worlds we’ll interact with. We might even end up seeing warriors from first-grade worlds.”

When he said that, Jackie’s voice trembled slightly in excitement.

The crystal badge had instilled the Whirling World’s structure and rules into Jackie’s mind. He already knew what was waiting in Weinhord City.

After Jackie and Rudy spoke outside the city, Jackie brought Rudy inside.

A massive one-hundred-and-fifty-meter wide array was seen there. There were a few thousand people gathered around it. Two masked caretakers stood in front of the array. They had a pen and paper in hand, as well as many badges.

Jackie and Rudy saw the caretakers recording something when they arrived.

Rudy wanted to ask Jackie what they were doing when they heard an argument in front of them.

A tall, large man with a beard said emotionally, “Aren’t you belittling me too much? A hundred can survive. How are you so sure that I’ll die in there? I’m capable of protecting myself!”

The man next to the bearded man seemed to be his senior. His senior had small eyes and was wearing a green robe.

He said emotionally, “I’m not looking down on you, I’m just worried! Do you know what a slaughter game is? Anyone who takes part is confident in their own skills. Even our chosen disciples might not dare to participate, so what more an inner disciple like you?!”

When the small-eyed man said that, he looked incredibly exasperated. He looked at his junior like he was looking at an idiot.

Rudy raised an eyebrow, whispering, “Slaughter games? What does it have to do with the slaughter gambit?”

Jackie smiled as he patiently explained, “The slaughter gambit is slightly different from the slaughter game. They’re similar in some points. As long as you participate, you’ll go through a slaughter where many will die.”

After saying that, Jackie said in exasperation, “I feel like that hero who created the Whirling World is pretty bad at naming. Can’t he name things a bit better?”

Rudy was in no mood to care about that. He was incredibly excited when he heard that a lot would die.

He pulled at Jackie and asked, “Quickly tell me the rules, I’m so curious.”

Jackie nodded, simply explaining the rules. The slaughter game was different from the slaughter gambit. The slaughter gambit needed ten participants, but the slaughter game needed two hundred and twenty.

After two hundred and twenty participants registered, the slaughter game would start. All of the participants would start killing each other, and the game would stop when the numbers were reduced to a hundred.

Chapter 3312
After hearing the rules, Rudy widened his mouth in surprise, “So you mean a hundred and twenty warriors will die in one go?”

Jackie nodded. Compared to only one being left alive out of ten in the slaughter gambit, the slaughter game had a much lower percentage of dying. Only about half would die. However, the slaughter game would kill off about a hundred in one go. Looking at the numbers was enough to stun anyone.

Rudy took a deep breath as his expression froze, “Isn’t that way too many deaths? Even though only half of them would die, it’s still a hundred people. No wonder that guy spoke like that earlier.”

The bearded man was already getting impatient.

He turned over and faced the small-eyed man, “Hey, you should just relax. Even though my skills aren’t that amazing, I’m quite good at running away and protecting myself. As long as I’m careful, I’ll be able to survive.”

The small-eyed man’s lips twitched as he said with a resigned tone, “Why do you insist on taking the risk?! Honestly, even if your skills were as good as Chaplin, I would still try to stop you! The slaughter game isn’t something you can just fool around with. The moment you enter, no one knows who will die. A lot of it is luck!”

The bearded man scratched his head in frustration, clearly not listening to the small-eyed man. He felt like he was just being nagged and looked down on by the other guy.

The bearded man was feeling more and more frustrated when he suddenly turned around and said, “Hey, let’s not talk about what I’ll encounter when I enter. Let’s just talk about my abilities to escape. It’s the strongest among all of us. Even those weaker than me have dared to enter, why shouldn’t I?”

“For every person I kill, I’d get five million spirit crystals. It’s a whole five million. I worked so hard taking part in other gambles before this, and only managed to get three million in a month. It’s a big chance for us right now. I just need to kill one person to get five million. It would be as much as a whole month worth of work. Why wouldn’t I participate?”

It would have been fine if he did not say that, but the small-eyed man got even angrier when he did.

He no longer bothered to hold back. For the sake of his junior, he had held back some of his words, but his junior was far too stubborn and even doubted his intentions.

The small-eyed man sneered, his voice got colder and replied, “There are so many who have the same thoughts as you. A total of two hundred and twenty people are participating in the slaughter game, and it will only end when a hundred and twenty warriors die. Do you think you won’t be part of the one hundred and twenty?”

“Don’t forget, no matter how good you are at running away, there’s no way you can anticipate who you’re going to meet! Do you think the three other second-grade worlds are weak? What if you meet someone strong from one of them? Do you think your escaping capabilities would still be of any use?!”

The bearded man’s lips trembled, and his expression soured. He had nothing to say to that.

After Rudy heard that, he looked up curiously and whispered into Jackie’s ears, “Weinhord City has warriors from three second-grade worlds?”

Jackie nodded and explained, “There are a total of three different second-grade worlds and ten different third-grade worlds involved in this city. When you first enter the Whirling World, there are countless level nine and ten cities, but the lower number you go, the fewer there are. There is only one level five city.

“Weinhord City is a level four city, and there is only one as well. Of course, that’s because Weinhord City is the only one we can see. The Whirling World encompasses all third-grade and second-grade worlds. The other worlds must be in their own individual Weinhord Cities.”

Chapter 3313
Hearing Jackie’s explanation, Rudy was even more stunned.

He said in confusion, “What do you mean by the only Weinhord City? Other Weinhord Cities?”

Jackie smiled as he explained, “To us, there is only one Weinhord City, but there are actually countless ones. The warriors of these worlds gathered together and can only see one Weinhord City, but there are actually countless others that are open to the other worlds. Do you understand me?‘’

Rudy coughed as he rubbed his nose. In truth, he did not really understand, but he did not know where to start.

He shrugged and explained it in his own way, “So you’re telling me that there are countless Weinhord Cities. All of them are in different places in space and time. They face warriors from different worlds.”

Jackie looked at Rudy with some praise, nodding and saying, “Yes, that’s right.”

Rudy’s lips stiffened not expecting to get the right answer so easily. However, he did not really understand what he was saying either.

After thinking about it, he shook his head and decided to forget about it. He would figure out the answer eventually anyway. As he thought about it, the bearded man and the small-eyed man quarreled again.

After a long time, the beaded man finally said, “I know you’re worried, but that worry is unnecessary in my eyes. Danger and opportunity go hand in hand. If I keep trying to make sure I am safe, I’ll never improve.”

“You‘re right. If I’m unlucky and face someone strong immediately, I’ll just resign myself to my own fate. However, if I’m lucky and careful enough, only acting when I’m sure of the situation, then I have a high chance of succeeding.”

The small-eyed man was even more exasperated when he heard that. He felt like everything he said earlier had just been completely ignored.

He was preaching to the choir, but he could not stop himself from continuing, “The slaughter game is in an isolated space. Everyone will be sent in at random. You don’t know who you’ll meet. You’re right, you will have much higher chances if you’re careful and don’t take any chances, but I don’t think you are this time. If you were careful, you wouldn’t be participating in a slaughter game where you have a fifty percent chance of dying.”

The small-eyed man had known the bearded man for many years and understood him very well. He was just saying that he would be careful.

The moment any profits appeared in front of him, he would forget about anything else. He would not be able to survive if he lost control.

The small-eyed man took a deep breath and said helplessly, “You think I’m looking down on you because I’m stopping you, but I’m doing this for your sake. Once you meet anything dangerous, you’ll realize how sincere I’m being.”

The bearded man wanted to say something else, but the small-eyed man stopped him.

The small-eyed man walked over and said sincerely, “There are three second-grade and ten third-grade worlds in Weinhord City. Both of us are from a third- grade world, and we’re only around the middle of the ten third- grade worlds. There are so many warriors from different worlds here.”

Chapter 3314
“You have no way of telling who’s weak or who’s strong at all. The warriors from second-grade worlds will definitely try to kill as much as they can. After so many slaughter games, the warriors from second-grade worlds always take up the first three spots.”

“If you just look at the warriors from the third-grade worlds, we don’t just have a fifty percent chance to die. It’s as high as sixty or seventy. That’s because the chances of warriors from second-grade worlds dying is much lower than us. Most of the ones who die are from third- grade worlds.”

As he said that, the small-eyed man got emotional.

He frowned tightly, “I know you think you’re very skilled, but everyone who participates in the slaughter game thinks they’ll survive as well…”

“Entering the slaughter game doesn’t just require luck and skill, but smarts as well. If you are to survive, you at least need to excel in one of the three, but I don’t think you do.”

The bearded man’s expression darkened when he heard that.

His lips trembled as he stared with widened eyes, saying angrily, “You’re just looking down on me now! I’m good in all three aspects. You just want to say that I’m trash on every front and that I shouldn’t take the risk.”

The small-eyed man raised an eyebrow, not answering, but that counted as silent acknowledgment.

The bearded man was furious when he saw the response, feeling like he was being underestimated.

He scoffed and turned around, saying emotionally, “Stop looking down on me. I’ll prove myself with my skills! You’re just looking at everything through biased eyes.”

After that, he ignored the small-eyed man and made the decision to participate in the slaughter game. If he managed just to kill two others in the slaughter game, he would be able to get ten million spirit crystals.

It was no small number to him. It would be able to get him a lot of skills and materials. His skills would soar even more. Then, he’d be able to beat his seniors.

With that in mind, the bearded man tuned out everything else. He no longer listened to anyone and was determined to take part.

Rudy looked at the bearded man before he whispered a question after a while, “What are those rankings?”

Jackie turned to look at the transfer array, pointing above it and saying, ”After the slaughter game ends, the space above the transfer array will show a massive scroll. The scroll will show all of the warriors that are still alive, and the names will be listed in accordance with their results. The top three will be able to get even more rewards.”

Rudy took a deep breath, getting excited when he heard, “There are even more rewards?! No wonder so many warriors are so eager to take part even with the fifty percent chance of death.”

Jackie smiled and said meaningfully, “The fifty percent chance of dying is if you count all the warriors together. If you’re just talking about third-grade worlds, the death rate is as high as seventy percent. The slaughter games are a playground for the strong from the second-grade worlds.”

Rudy pursed his lips and shuddered.

He thought about how the warriors from second-grade worlds would constantly attack the third- grade world warriors with their weapons with proud looks on their faces.

Warriors constantly fell to them, and the ground would be full of blood. That was the true allure of the slaughter game.

Chapter 3315
Rudy raised an eyebrow as he pressed his forehead, no longer daring to think any further.

The more he thought, the crueler he felt the world was. He had always said that the world was a place of survival of the fittest before this, but he never truly felt the meaning of the phrase until that moment.

Rudy took a deep breath, “In the eyes of the strong, you’ll feel like all of this is right. However, in our eyes, we just feel like it’s crazy. The world is just too crazy. “Death doesn’t seem to matter in this world at all. No wonder I was too scared to try and survive in a large clan before…”

“The competition is too fierce. It comes with so many corpses, and so many people lose their lives so easily. I don’t want to be one of them, I just wanted to live my life carefully.”

Jackie smiled, not expecting that Rudy would have thought about it so much.

Jackie had felt like Rudy used to just do whatever he pleased using his position, but he learned humility after going through so much. He never expected that Rudy was already so humble that he was content with living a careful life.

The discussions around them caused the place to sound like a market. Everyone was discussing whether they should participate in the slaughter game.

A lot of people were tempted to try it out but were worried that they would be unlucky enough to meet someone strong. However, a lot of them still felt like they should try their luck.

They felt like they would not be so unlucky that they would become cannon fodder the moment they entered, but practically everyone seemed to think like that.

Everyone had the same idea that they were the special ones that would not die. However, Jackie felt that that way of thinking would push them right into their deaths.

Slaughter games were the playground of the strong. The weaklings were only there to be killed.

Weinhord City had warriors from three second- grade worlds. Those warriors would forget about their dignity for the sake of spirit crystals, slaughtering everyone they saw in sight.

For the sake of getting a high ranking in the slaughter game, they would not care about the lives of the weaklings. Their lives were just stepping stones.

Just as Jackie was deep in thought, the caretaker knocked on the desk, “The time is up. Registration is starting!”

The moment the caretaker said that the place became much quieter. Most of them wanted to try it out, but they were too scared to just jump in.

Jackie reached out and patted Rudy on the shoulder, smiling as he said, “Take part in this with me…”

The moment Jackie said that Rudy shook his head vigorously, “Absolutely not! What’s the point of me entering? I’ll just drag you down. I’m not useful at all anyway. I would be too much of a piece of trash if I even dragged you down.”

Jackie smiled, saying nonchalantly, “Don’t worry. Since you agreed to leave with me, I don’t mind if you know some secrets. Just think about you entering as a chance to widen your horizons. The moment you’re in any danger, I’ll pull you into an isolated space.”

By isolated space, he was referring to the Mustard Seed.

Before this, he still had some doubts about Rudy, and Mustard Seed was his greatest secret. His family was stored inside. To prevent any mishaps, he had kept the secret incredibly strictly.

Rudy never realized anything. However, since he had already dragged Rudy into the Whirling World with him, he felt obligated to bring Rudy with him when he left the Whirling World.

Hence, he was forced into figuring out a way to leave. The crystal badge did not show how many people he could bring, but Jackie guessed that he was only allowed to go alone.

Chapter 3316
If that was the case, then Rudy would still need to return to Hestia Continent. However, if he could place Rudy in Mustard Seed, then Jackie would not have to worry about that.

Mustard Seed was a treasure from the Divine Void World. It was an isolated space. If Rudy was placed in Mustard Seed, Jackie would not have to worry about bringing him away.

When Rudy heard what Jackie said, he gaped in surprise.

He was no idiot. He naturally knew that Jackie had some secrets as he excelled at everything. He was much better than everyone else no matter if it was in alchemy or in martial arts. Jackie could no longer be described as just a genius.

He was a monster!

Even geniuses from first-grade worlds were probably only just comparable to Jackie’s level. There was no way a genius like Jackie was someone who grew up in Hestia Continent.

Jackie definitely had an immense secret behind him. However, Rudy never tried to look into that secret, acting like he did not know anything.

It was precisely because of that, that Jackie's trust in Rudy grew. Rudy took a deep breath and nodded vigorously. Since he would not drag Jackie down, expanding his horizons was a good thing.

After an hour, Jackie and Rudy stood on the transfer array with the other participants of the slaughter game.

The moment the array was activated, Jackie placed Rudy in the Mustard Seed to stop Rudy from being sent to a random position like the other warriors.

The transfer did not take that long. The moment it was completed, Jackie was dropped into a forest. The forest was quite sparse, and would not obscure himself. It was easy to look far ahead.

Jackie was not worried to take out the Mustard Seed. Instead, he looked around to see if there was any potential threat. Just as he was looking around, he suddenly heard footsteps.

He looked toward the sound of the footsteps and saw a man in green robes walking over slowly. He had a smile on his face as he stared right at Jackie as if Jackie was easy prey that could be killed at any moment.

The man smiled and raised an eyebrow, "I am Guzman Gomez from the second-grade world, Sacred Water Continent. You're my first prey. As a reward, I'll let you die knowing how you did."

Guzman had a smile on his face. The excitement on his face was incredibly evident. He felt like he was incredibly lucky to be sent right next to a prey.

To most of the warriors from second-grade worlds, the warriors from third-grade worlds were just prey they could kill at any moment.

They needed to kill a lot of warriors from third-grade worlds to place highly on the leaderboards. That way, they would be able to gain a lot of spirit crystals and gain some honor for their own worlds.

Jackie sighed, not having much to say to someone like that.

Since the other party felt like he was prey, then Jackie had nothing much to say about it. Jackie took out his sword from Mustard Seed. He looked incredibly calm, revealing no emotions.

Guzman frowned, not happy with Jackie's reaction at all.

Jackie should have been constantly trembling when Jackie saw him, completely filled with fear, but why was Jackie not reacting at all?

Jackie even slowly took out his own weapon. Guzman was both curious and angered. To him, it was an insult that Jackie was not trembling in fear. He narrowed his eyes and took out his own weapon.

It was a golden chakram. There was a dragon and a phoenix engraved on it, and it emitted strange energy.

It was obvious that the weapon was not cheap at all. However, no matter how strong the weapon was, skills were needed to back it up.

Chapter 3317
Jackie was not the slightest bit threatened. He merely stood in place with a calm expression, waiting for Guzman to make a move.

Jackie's actions infuriated Guzman. He felt like he was being challenged.

Guzman snorted, "Brat, what are you pretending for? Do you think I'll think you're better than you are just because you're acting like this? Stop trying to put on an act. It's useless against me. No matter how calm you act, I'll still kill you in the end."

Jackie' s lips twitched helplessly.

He thought that Guzman would attack faster if he acted like that. He did not want to waste any time with nonsense, but it seemed like he had to. Sure enough, those warriors who thought too highly of themselves never liked to see his calm expression. They felt like he was challenging them.

Jackie sighed in exasperation as he raised an eyebrow and looked at Guzman, "You're just like the rest of them. You just love annoying me with your nonsense. How do you know if I'm putting on an act? Do you think I can't kill you just because you think you're capable of killing me? Aren't you just a warrior from a second-grade world? There's no difference in my eyes."

Jackie was not there to broaden his horizons.

He had the same plan as the warriors from the second-grade worlds. He wanted to get to the top three placings in the slaughter game. Then, he would be able to get additional treasures.

Upon hearing Jackie's words, Guzman widened his mouth in surprise, wondering if he had misheard things. Otherwise, he would not have heard something so absurd.

In Guzman's eyes, warriors from third-grade worlds would never dare to challenge him like that. All of the warriors from third-grade worlds should be self-aware enough to lower their heads to him. Yet, he met such an arrogant one.

His lips twitched as a cold glint flashed in his eyes.

Jackie laughed as he was already used to seeing those looks.

He continued, “You warriors from second-grade worlds sure love to leave marks on your clothes to show off how special you are. Golden Continent’s warriors leave a dark gold pattern, while warriors from the Sacred Water Continent always leave blue clouds. That’ s how you recognized that I’m from a third-grade world.”

“You try your best to show that you’re special. You think that warriors from third-grade worlds are just livestock you can kill as you please, but that’s a hilarious thought in my eyes. Every world has its strong warriors. You feel so pleased with yourselves just because you haven’t met someone truly strong from a third-grade world.”

Guzman’s hands were trembling from anger. That brat was actually lecturing him and humiliating him.

To him Jackie needed to die!

He snorted and said, “Brat, do you know what kind of consequences you will suffer because of this? I planned on giving you a quick death because you’re my first prey.”

“I’ve changed my mind now. Giving you a quick death would be a reward, and I’m taking it back. I will teach you the consequences of offending me!”

Guzman thought that Jackie would pull back after he said that. At the very least, he felt like Jackie would not dare to clash against him. Yet, Jackie actually laughed after hearing that, and the laughter was full of mockery.

Jackie laughed as he said, “I hear these things so regularly. Everyone wants to torture me until I die and have me begging for mercy, but the one suffering, in the end, is always them. I’ll admit that second-grade worlds are a bit stronger than third-grade worlds overall, but the warriors at the peak of third-grade worlds can still get rid of you easily.”

After saying, that Jackie no longer wanted to waste any more time. He did not have a good impression of second-grade worlds after interacting with Golden Continent.

They have always looked down on warriors from third-grade worlds and even felt like third- grade worlds were just full of trash. Even though Jackie did not think of Hestia Continent as his home, he still came into the Whirling World from Hestia Continent.

He needed to help Hestia Continent gain a bit of honor.

Chapter 3318
Guzman never expected that he would be so infuriated by someone from a third-grade world.

He kept on thinking about what Jackie had said just now. It seemed like everything Jackie had said had trampled all over his dignity.

Guzman would not be able to take it even if a warrior from a second-grade world said that, let alone someone from a third-grade world. His hands trembled as he sentenced Jackie to death in his mind.

Jackie was amused by how angry Guzman looked.

He did not continue wasting time. He formed seal after seal with his hands, and ninety Soul Swords condensed in front of him. The gray Soul Swords were neatly lined in front of Jackie, emitting a dim energy.

When Guzman saw that, he was surprised.

He scoffed, “So you’re a soul attribute warrior. Do you think you’re worthy of using it?”

After saying that, Guzman formed seals as well. A radiant glow shone from the golden chakram, and blood-red runes started to surface around it, slowly covering the glow in red. It was as if he had dipped the chakram into a pool of blood.

Jackie raised an eyebrow at that, suddenly understanding why Guzman said that earlier.

He said that Jackie was not worthy of using soul attribute techniques because Guzman was using one too. In Guzman’s eyes, Jackie was not worthy of using soul attribute techniques.

The soul attribute was a noble one, and Jackie was only from a third-grade world, not worthy of being associated with it.

Guzman smiled and said, “Brat, you’ll find out soon what being tortured is like. You’ll regret everything you said earlier!”

The moment he said that, an incredibly monstrous energy came out from the blood-red chakrams.

Red locusts began to condense in the air, and those locusts seemed to constantly distort in the air. It was so dense that it looked terrifying. They seemed to be mutually absorbing each others’ energies.

Jackie could feel dense soul energy coming from those locusts. His expression did not change as he looked at everything coldly.

Guzman was even furious when he saw Jackie's calm expression. He hated people who liked to put on an act.

He swore to himself that he would have Jackie reveal his true feelings. He wanted to make Jackie experience the greatest fear in the world. He wanted to rip Jackie's soul apart to teach Jackie the consequences of offending him.

Guzman shouted out angrily, "Die!"

He pushed forward, and those locusts frantically charged at Jackie. Those locusts were even faster than Jackie thought.

Jackie stood in place with his head held high with no plans of avoiding the locust. He stared right at those locusts charging at him.

Guzman laughed loudly, "You're actually not avoiding it! I guess you really do want to die! Since you want to be tortured, I'll fulfill your wish!"

Chapter 3319
Guzman's hands quickly moved, and countless seals formed between his fingers. The seals quickly fused into the locusts.

The moment they fused with the seals, the locusts let out a radiant red glow. It caused the whole place to be enveloped in that red light, looking like they were in hell.

The red locusts quickly charged right at Jackie.

Guzman coldly looked on as everything unfold. There was a smirk on his lips as he thought about Jackie's demise. In the next second, countless locusts surrounded Jackie, who still stood in place.

Seeing that, Guzman scoffed and said, "I've never seen someone who wants to die as much as you do. The technique I'm using, the Blood Curse is a lower ultimate god rank technique. There's no way useless trash like you have ever touched a technique of this level."

"How would you know how strong it is? Brat, when you're in hell, don't blame me. Blame yourself for being ignorant of how strong second-grade worlds are!"

The moment he said that, he heard a crack in front.

Guzman widened his eyes as a dark light appeared where the locusts were. After that, a stinging sound was heard coming from where the locusts were, sounding like red-hot steel being thrown into cold water.

The next second, he was shocked as his locusts suddenly turned into water after being touched by the black light. They quickly disappeared after that.

In just a few moments, the locusts had completely been extinguished.

Only a few of them managed to stay around, but it was no longer any threat. The locusts all turned into blood-red vapor, causing a mist to form around the area that obstructed Guzman's sight.

He could not see what was happening with Jackie, but there was no need to see anything at that moment. He was just full of disbelief. He could not believe that someone from a third-grade world had broken through his technique.

The next second, Guzman heard a gust of wind. In his years of experience, he dodged immediately and quickly retreated.

A slash was heard, and when Guzman looked over, he saw a gray slash go past where he had just been. It was incredibly quick, and all he saw was an afterimage before the place he had been earlier turned into a deep crater after a boom.

The deep crater sounded like it was being bathed in poison. Guzman broke out in cold sweat when he saw what happened. His heart constantly pounded.

At that moment, he realized that Jackie had been the one hunting him.

After a breeze blew past, most of the red vapor had been blown away. He could see more clearly, and a familiar figure stood not too far away.

Jackie still had his back straight as he held the sword in his hand.

Jackie had not moved at all and merely looked at him quietly, waiting for Guzman to make his move.

Guzman held his chakram tightly as his legs shook from the nerves. However, he did not move at all, looking at Jackie the same way.

Jackie smirked as he said, "It looks like I have underestimated you. I can't believe you reacted so quickly. I thought you would have died after that strike."

Chapter 3320
Those words caused Guzman to pale. He took a deep breath, realizing that he was in a serious situation. He had underestimated Jackie's strength and overestimated his own.

Guzman frowned and said, “You were hiding your skills!”

Jackie felt incredulous when he heard that.

He had just met this person, and they had just fought once, so how did he conceal his skills?

However, Jackie did not want to bother with it.

It was a common problem with all the warriors from the second-grade worlds. As long as their opponents were not pushovers, they would blame their opponents for putting on an act or concealing their skills. It was an attempt to hide the fact that they had made a bad judgment.

Jackie scoffed as he said in disdain, “The fact that you said that just proves your stupidity.”

Guzman’s lips stiffened, unable to say anything back.

Jackie continued, “You said that your Blood Curse was a lower ultimate god rank technique and that someone like me would never have seen it before.”

The moment Jackie said that Guzman’s face darkened. It was like a slap on the face.

The fact that Jackie had managed to break Blood Curse meant that his technique was no lower than a lower ultimate god rank technique. Jackie was not weaker than Guzman either. After all, he had not held back earlier.

He knew very well that Jackie’s skills exceeded his expectations. There was a good chance that he would end up falling there.

Jackie walked forward and got closer to Guzman.

Guzman’s face paled again as he started to retreat.

Jackie smiled coldly when he saw that, “What are you so afraid of? Actually, I was quite happy when you walked forward earlier. I just got here and someone already came to die. You’re just five million spirit crystals in my eyes, so I was quite lucky.”

The more Guzman heard that the more offended he felt. He had been the one who thought that way, but he was actually the ignorant one.

Guzman’s face soured. He was forced to try and escape the situation. He had no confidence that he would beat Jackie. After all, he joined the slaughter game to kill others and earn a high rank, not to be killed and become someone else’s reward.

Guzman tried his best to compose himself, calming himself down.

He looked up at Jackie and raised his voice, “Even though we’ve clashed, it won’t be an easy win for either of us. The slaughter game is filled with danger. You’ll be at a huge disadvantage if you sustain heavy injuries to kill me.”

“With your skills, you can deal with anyone else easily. We should just stop here. You and I can go find weaker opponents. It would be better for both of us.”

It sounded quite reasonable.

If Jackie’s skills were around Guzman’s level as Guzman guessed, then Jackie would really have considered that. A hard-fought victory would be dangerous. However, Jackie’s skills far exceeded his imagination.

Those words failed to sway Jackie’s decision.

He smiled and said calmly, “I’m sorry, I’m not interested in that suggestion at all. Don’t put your own standards on others. I already told you, you’re nothing in my eyes.”

No. 1 Supreme Warrior Chapter 3321 - 3330 -

Chapter 3321
Guzman could not hold his anger back after hearing that.

He clenched his teeth and looked at Jackie, raising his voice, “Brat, don’t try to overestimate yourself. I know you’re skilled, but you won’t be able to deal with me that easily at my full strength. Even if I die, I’ll drag you down with me!”

Jackie could not help but laugh when he heard that.

He looked at Guzman with an expression full of mockery, like Guzman was an idiot. He did not want to continue talking to the man.

Jackie wanted to use Guzman to train himself too.

He then took a deep breath before he shut his eyes. His hands constantly moved as he formed seal after seal. This time, his seals were different. They looked much more complicated than before.

A meter-long blade slowly condensed in front of Jackie. It was the storm god rank technique, Soul Sky’s first level, the Broken Soul Blade.

To learn the Broken Soul Blade, Jackie had absorbed countless treasures. They were worth at least seventy or eighty million spirit crystals. Just thinking about it could make hurt someone. However, Jackie felt like it was all worth it when he saw the Broken Soul Blade successfully condensing.

He narrowed his eyes and pushed forward. The Broken Soul Blade flew right at Guzman.

Guzman broke out in cold sweat. Even though his heart told him he could not be afraid, and that he might not lose in a head-on battle, he did not have the courage in the end.

The moment the Broken Soul Blade flew over, he abruptly turned around and fled toward the east.

He no longer cared about his dignity at that moment. Even if news got out and ruined his reputation, he still did not mind as surviving was more important. He did not want to turn into five million spirit crystals in Jackie’s hands. However, the reality was different from the imagination.

He frantically ran away, but he was still a step slow in the end. The Broken Soul Blade was right behind him, and Guzman felt a crazy power right behind him, constantly emanating.

At that moment, he did not even dare to turn around. He focused on running away, but he was not able to at all.

As a piercing sound was heard, a massive pain was felt in his chest. He was shocked to realize that the blade had pierced through his heart from his back. The pain of his soul being ripped apart started to come from his chest.

He was in so much pain that he cried out in agony, unable to control his true energy. He fell to the ground with a slam.

Jackie slowly walked over to Guzman. When he arrived in front of Guzman, he took Rudy out of Mustard Seed.

Rudy had seen everything that had happened through Mustard Seed.

He shook his head in exasperation, “You warriors from second-grade worlds sure love to show that you’re strong than others. You’re always so certain that warriors from third-grade worlds are just stepping stones for you. In my eyes, those thoughts are what kills you.”

At that moment, Guzman no longer had his earlier temperament. He could not tell what was happening around him at all thanks to the pain in his soul. He could only roll around on the ground, trying to relieve the pain.

Guzman had completely lost all his rationality from the torture. He just rolled around on the ground mindlessly.

Rudy shook his head helplessly, feeling like Guzman was actually a bit pitiful.

Meeting Jackie was the unluckiest thing that had ever happened to Guzman.

Chapter 3322
Jackie raised an eyebrow and turned to look at Rudy, “Normally, I’d torture him with the exact method that he threatened to do to me. It’s just a pity that I’m short on time. I don’t really know how much I can earn. Every second I waste might be five million spirit crystals less.”

Right after he said that, he pointed forward, and the blade pushed forward.

Guzman let out a final cry of agony before his body stopped moving.

Jackie said, ”You’re lucky…”

He did not bother sparing the corpse another glance as he brought Rudy forward.

The two of them had walked for some time when Rudy finally broke the silence. “Do you have any plans? I feel like you’re definitely going to aim for the top three standings, but the top three standings don’t care about your skill. It’s down to how many people you kill. Should we figure out a plan to find even more targets?”

Jackie turned to look at Rudy.

He took a deep breath as he looked into the distance, “I did have a plan before this, but the plan has been shelved. I have a new plan now. I won’t kill everyone I see, it’s too cruel. I’ll just keep moving like this, killing whoever tries to do anything to me.”

Jackie said it in a carefree manner, but it was exactly something Jackie would do.

Rudy sighed, really wanting to see who the next unlucky person would be.

Jackie’s skills were enough to beat any participant in the slaughter game. Only tragedy awaited anyone who would dare to challenge Jackie.

Just as he was thinking about it, they heard some commotion in the distance.

Jackie and Rudy both looked toward the source of the sound. They saw two figures charging right at them.

The closer the two of them got, the more Jackie could make out what they looked like. The person in front was a handsome man in dark red robes. However, no matter how good he looked, he was definitely in a bad state at that moment. There were many injuries on his body, and blood constantly flowed.

His pale expression showed pain.

It was obvious that he was being tortured by the injuries. Even so, he still clenched his teeth and rushed forward.

Behind him was someone in blue robes. The person behind him had blue robes with clouds embroidered on the neckline. Looking at that, Jackie knew that the person was from Sacred Water Continent.

The warrior from Sacred Water Continent had a pleased smile on his face as his hands constantly moved, sending slashes at the person who was running away.

Even though the person in front was in a bad state, he still managed to constantly dodge and avoid most of the strikes. However, a few strikes still landed on him.

The blood-red slashes easily cut open his skin, causing the blood to flow out.

The warrior from Sacred Water Continent did not look like he was in a hurry at all. Even though most of his attacks were being avoided, he did not seem to care and seemed to find joy within.

Rudy looked at the scene and grabbed Jackie's arm tightly.

There was a sharp glint in his eyes, "The person behind is doing it on purpose! He's treating the person behind as prey and just playing around. This is too much!"

Rudy's hands shook. He looked incredibly angry at that moment. Even his breathing had sped up.

As the two of them got closer and closer, Jackie was surprised to find that the person in front was wearing robes from Phoenix Valley.

Chapter 3323
After the constant attacks from the warrior from Sacred Water Continent, his robes were incredibly ripped. Hence, Jackie and Rudy had no way to see it from a distance.

Rudy furiously said, "It's actually Alfred Long! I can't believe we're seeing him here! He's a chosen disciple from Phoenix Valley!"

Back when both of them were in Phoenix Valley, the alchemists and martial artists had been separated.

Rudy had never interacted with the warriors before, even though Jackie had. However, at the Hestia Continent's area under the Red Sun Monument, Rudy had seen quite a few chosen disciples from Phoenix Valley.

Those chosen disciples did not recognize Jackie and Rudy and did not know who they were. Jackie had entered and left in a hurry, so he did not recognize any of them even though he had earned their respect.

Rudy was different. When Jackie was climbing the Red Sun, he had gotten to know quite a few of the warriors there since he had been around. So, he immediately recognized Alfred. He still remembered how proud and proper Alfred looked when he first met the man.

Rudy could not believe the state Alfred was in. He was completely covered in cuts and bruises. He looked like he was about to collapse at any moment. However, he still held firm.

He clenched his teeth and refused to give up on running away.

Rudy's hands trembled as his anger burned. Even though he did not really care about Phoenix Valley, he could still not stand it.

He could not stand a chosen disciple from Phoenix Valley being treated like that, and could not bear warriors from Hestia Continent being treated like that either.

The world was cruel, that was something he was acutely aware of. However, he could not bear it when he saw that cruelty in action.

He turned around and grabbed Jackie's arm, "Let's save him. It's too pitiful!"

Jackie raised an eyebrow, saying calmly, "It does look pitiful, but it really isn't. Since he agreed to participate in the slaughter game, then he needs to bear with this. It's not a game for children. He'll meet various different kinds of people, and death is unavoidable."

Rudy nodded.

He looked at Jackie earnestly as he said anxiously, "You're right. This place is full of death. The slaughter game is somewhere you need to be prepared to die. I wouldn't have anything to say if he had just been killed."

"But just look at that. He's being tortured and humiliated. I know that he's probably already prepared mentally since he agreed to participate, but he probably never expected these people to be so evil, chasing him around like a cat toying with a mouse, constantly torturing him."

Jackie sighed. In truth, he would have interfered even if Rudy did not say anything. He patted Rudy on the shoulder before shooting forward.

It was only when he felt the gust of wind did Alfred realize that there was someone in front of him.

He widened his eyes. When he saw the person that was in front of him, Alfred's eyes suddenly lit up. He could not help but shout, " Jackie!"

The tone of that shout stunned Jackie. After all, he might have already cut ties with Phoenix Valley, but he was still someone who entered the Whirling World as an alchemist from Phoenix Valley.

Technically, he could be considered a part of Phoenix Valley too.

Chapter 3324
Could that guy know who he was?

That thought was quickly discarded from Jackie's mind.

Rudy and he were not in the main group. Other than a very small number of alchemists, no one would know the two of them. Furthermore, any warriors who managed to enter a level four city would definitely be a chosen disciple of Phoenix Valley. They would never have had the chance to interact.

That person probably shouted that way because Jackie was the shield of Hestia Continent.

With that in mind, Jackie was already next to Alfred, shielding Alfred behind him.

He looked at the warrior from Sacred Water Continent coldly.

That warrior smirked at Jackie. “You know him? He’s a warrior from Hestia Continent too? That’s great then. I’ll deal with you two together. If not for the slaughter game, you wouldn’t be worth ten million spirit crystals. You should thank the slaughter game for your value!”

The warrior was basically calling Jackie and Alfred trash.

Alfred was already used to it. He had been chased by that person the whole time and had heard various things that person said.

When Jackie heard it, he looked at that person, “I just need one strike to deal with someone like you. I didn’t need to waste my time, but I changed my mind. I can’t just let you die so quickly after what you said.”

Jackie’s eyes were cold. Even Rudy shuddered when he saw that expression.

He could tell that Jackie was angry. They had encountered a lot in the Whirling World, but Jackie rarely got angry.

Each time, the person who angered Jackie would pay a heavy price. However, he did not bother wondering how Jackie would deal with that man.

Rudy rushed over to Alfred and took out a robe from his storage space before putting it around Alfred.

Alfred looked at Rudy tearfully. It was like he found his family. He sniffed and wiped away his tears, “Thank you both! I’ll definitely repay you!”

Rudy stopped him, “That’s not the time for this. Who is that guy? What’s his name?”

Alfred sniffed and turned to look at that warrior hatefully, “That person is called Raul Ochoa. He’s an inner disciple from a holy grade clan. I’m no match for him. I was unlucky enough to meet him the moment we entered.”

“He told me where he was from and attacked me right away. If he just killed me immediately, I would have nothing to say. After all, fifty percent of warriors die in the slaughter game, and it’s even higher for us from third- grade worlds…”

“I came here knowing that I might die, but I can’t believe Raul decided to humiliate me before engaging in this game of cat and mouse. I was chased by him all the way here before I met you two.”

Saying that Alfred looked at Raul with deep hatred.

Jackie sighed as he patted Alfred on the shoulder, “Treat your injuries. Leave everything else to me.”

Chapter 3325
Alfred looked at Jackie full of hope. To him, Jackie was a hero of Hestia Continent.

He was someone unbeatable, so what if he was facing a disciple of a holy grade clan?

Even chosen disciples from holy grade clans were no match for Jackie, let alone an inner disciple.

Rudy helped Alfred to sit up, producing a pill from his storage ring for him. Raul looked at everything with interest. He did not even react when Alfred recovered, allowing them to do so.

He looked incredibly confident as if he was telling the three of them that he was in control no matter what they did. They would not be able to escape him.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he looked at Raul with some interest.

Raul walked forward, looking at Jackie, “It looks like you’re quite a bit stronger than that guy.”

Jackie merely smiled, not bothering to respond.

Raul was not annoyed by it and merely said to himself, “Three of you would be worth fifteen million and I’ll be able to get fifteen million in one go. I haven’t even been here for that long, I’m so lucky. As long as I keep up with this luck, I’ll be able to finish in the top ten rankings.”

Jackie sneered as he said, “Sacred Water Continent is a second-grade world. Each warrior from your world looks down on warriors from third-grade worlds just because you have a bit of skill. You always face everyone with that attitude, but it will lead to your death…”

Raul laughed at Jackie’s words, looking at Jackie like an idiot.

He pointed at Jackie and said, “Don’t you think you’re being hilarious? If you came from Chaos Continent, I might agree. After all, Chaos Continent is going to be promoted to a second-grade world soon, but how dare someone from Hestia Continent speak like this?!”

“Where did you get your courage from? It’s not like you don’t know what sort of place Hestia Continent is. Hestia Continent is at the bottom of third-grade worlds. Even if you’re the strongest in the continent, you’re no stronger than a wandering warrior from Scared Water Continent.”

Alfred widened his eyes when he heard that.

He looked at Raul and angrily shouted, “You called me ignorant just now, but it looks like you’re the ignorant one. Don’t beg for mercy later!”

He had been in too much of a rush to speak and ended up coughing intensely. He had been tortured quite a lot while Raul insulted Hestia Continent the whole time.

He said that anyone from Sacred Water Continent would be unbeatable in Hestia Continent.

Alfred was someone who would not allow Hestia Continent to be insulted. He was going to retort, but he had been beaten down by Raul. Yet, he still refused to admit defeat.

He admitted that he was weaker than Raul, but he still had his pride. He refused to lower his head. Jackie’s expression was calm, but a cold glint flashed in his eyes.

Raul laughed even harder as he pointed at Alfred, “You just refuse to admit that the warriors of Hestia Continent are all ants that can be killed easily. I know you’re proud, but so what? Pride is useless to me. Pride is only useful when you’re strong. Otherwise, you’d just look like an idiot!”

Jackie raised his hand to interrupt Raul.

He coldly looked at Raul, “I’ll remember everything you’ve said. Don’t cry later on, and don’t beg for mercy…”

Chapter 3326
Raul pursed his lips in exasperation.

This kid was truly something else…

He initially thought that Jackie was just a brainless fool with how Jackie looked down on him. Surprisingly, Jackie proved to be much worse over time.

Raul narrowed his eyes. “I had planned on torturing both you and Alfred slowly to death, but I’ve changed my mind now. Punishing you as gently as I did with Alfred would be too kind for you, so I have a hundred crueler ways to deal with you. It’s the price you pay for being arrogant.”

Jackie calmly listened to everything he said.

A thought flashed in his head, and he suddenly smirked and said, “I saw you attacking earlier. You were using a soul attribute technique. Are you a soul attribute warrior?”

Guzman had been from Sacred Water Continent and had used the soul attribute as well.

The man in front of him also used the soul attribute, so Jackie could not help but wonder if the Sacred Water Continent had a lot of soul attribute techniques and soul attribute warriors.

Raul raised an eyebrow as he looked at Jackie with interest, wanting to see what he would say.

Smiling, Jackie said calmly, “What a coincidence; I’m a soul attribute warrior as well and use a soul attribute technique. Since that’s the case, why don’t we compete? If I lose, I’ll give you something. If I win, you’ll give me your treasure.”

Raul did not expect that Jackie would dare to challenge him, and moreover, he could not believe that he was a soul attribute warrior as well. In Raul’s eyes, the soul attribute was sacred.

Warriors that were not talented were not worthy of the soul attribute at all, and all soul attribute warriors were incredibly talented. However, he was forced to revise that opinion.

To him, Jackie was from Hestia and thus had no right to use the soul attribute. However, there was no way Jackie was lying at that moment.

When he realized that, Raul stared at Jackie unhappily, “Even you can learn the soul attribute?”

Upon hearing this, Jackie could not help but chuckle.

Not too long ago, a warrior from the Sacred Water Continent had said the same thing. Jackie had spoken back at that moment, but when facing Raul, he only felt amused.

After all, that warrior was going through excruciating torture as his soul was being ripped apart at that moment, and it would not be long until he perished.

With that thought in mind, a message suddenly flashed in Jackie‘s head.

The message indicated that Jackie had obtained five million spirit crystals. His eyes lit up as he understood what happened.

It seemed that Guzman was dead, and five million was given to him as a reward for that. Once he left the isolated space, the spirit crystals would appear before him.

Jackie took a deep breath as he stared at Raul with interest. “You’ll know whether or not I’m worthy of the soul attribute soon enough. However, it would be meaningless if we just fight over it.”

“A spatial ring is someone’s personal space. Other than the owner, no one else can open it. The moment that person dies, the spatial ring’s space will collapse. All the treasure inside will turn to dust as the space collapses, leaving nothing behind. However, if we take it out beforehand, it won’t disappear from that. Why don’t we make a bet?”

“I’ll take out a treasure, and you need to take out one of equal value. We’ll treat it as a bet. If you win, you won’t just get to kill me, but you’ ll get my treasure as well. If you die, the same will apply for me. What do you think?”

Chapter 3327
Jackie felt that his funds were far less than forgivable.

Time was slipping away, and a few months had already passed in the Whirling World. The Whirling World was only open for two years, and he would need to return to the real world afterward. Thus, he wanted to gain as much wealth as he could before he was forced to leave.

Even though challenges lurked at every corner of the Whirling World, Jackie felt like it was comparatively safe because of the age restriction.

There was not a single warrior in the Whirling World that could kill him. However, without those restrictions in the outside world, Jackie would truly be in danger. That was why he decided to accumulate as much wealth as he could before he had to leave.

Raul’s lips twitched in exasperation as he truly believed Jackie was incomprehensible. This man did not seem to show any emotion at all when he spoke!

Yet, Raul could still feel the pride behind Jackie’s words. It was as if no one in the Whirling World was worth his notice, much to his chagrin.

Raul wanted to personally shatter that very pride so he would know how the world truly worked.

With his meager skills, Jackie would not be able to even challenge him, let alone all of the warriors in the Whirling World.

Raul nodded and said, “Since you want to offer me your treasure that badly, I’ll agree to it. How about this, whatever the value of the treasures you take out, I’ll take out treasures worth twice as much.”

When Jackie heard that, he smirked as he looked at Raul.

He knew that Raul decided on this because he wanted to show off his wealth, but Jackie did not mind. He would let Raul show off as much as he wanted to. After all, the more Raul showed off, the better.

This way, Jackie would be able to get better things.

Jackie raised an eyebrow as he looked at the treasures he had accumulated in Mustard Seed. After looking for a long time, Jackie realized in exasperation that he could not find anything noteworthy at all.

He had used up most of his treasures to practice Soul Sky, thus having used up everything of value he had.

What remained were just spirit crystals and treasures that did not amount to much. He would naturally not be able to take those things out.

Thinking about it, Jackie pursed his lips and took out thirty million spirit crystals, placing them in front of him. Everyone except for Rudy was stunned by the sight.

Raul raised an eyebrow as he looked at Jackie exasperatedly, proudly remarking, “These are your treasures? Thirty million spirit crystals?”

Jackie coughed awkwardly. He had shown it anyway, so they could think what they wanted to.

Jackie cleared his throat and said, “I’ve sold all my treasures recently, and the most valuable thing I have are these spirit crystals. It’s a handsome sum nonetheless, and it’ s easier to make a judgment. Didn’t you say you’ll put in double the value of whatever I take out? I’ve taken out thirty million spirit crystals, so you need to put out at least sixty million.”

Chapter 3328
Raul cackled as he cast Jackie a disdainful look.

Jackie, on the other hand, merely inhaled deeply and ignored his blatant mockery.

Alfred and Rudy were actually not too surprised at what was happening. The two of them knew who Jackie was.

In Alfred's eyes, Jackie was not from any clan either. He was a wandering warrior that relied on his skills and talents. Rudy, of course, knew Jackie better, and he knew that the most valuable things in Jackie's storage were those spirit crystals. He had used up everything else that was valuable.

Raul took a good few seconds before he could compose himself after his laughter.

When he finally stopped, he looked at Jackie tauntingly before he retrieved a box from his storage ring. He slowly opened the box, and the dense smell emanated.

Everyone's eyes widened at the sight.

Alfred stiffened and said somewhat excitedly, "Is this… An Azure Soul Fruit?"

Raul nodded proudly. "The Azure Soul Fruit is a holy-grade fruit worth at least seventy million on the market. It's a treasure my master gave me. It's not something I'd show to just anyone, but I wanted to let you take a look today."

The Azure Soul Fruit was worth even more than the Enlightened Soul Root, and it was something difficult to come by, even with the spirit crystals in hand.

Compared to spirit crystals, Jackie needed things that could boost his soul attribute even more.

Jackie inhaled deeply as he suppressed the excitement he felt. "I'm impressed. You truly are a warrior from the Sacred Water Continent. You definitely have the assets!"

Jackie would not praise just anyone, so Rudy raised his eyebrow curiously when he heard his remark.

He could not help but smirk, knowing that it was solely because of the Fruit.

Jackie could barely wait to start, and the same went for Raul as well. The two of them had talked for so long and even brought out something good to gamble on with.

He took a deep breath as his hands constantly moved to form seal after seal.

Storm god rank techniques no longer relied on weapons to be used. The higher grade the technique was, the more redundant weapons were.

Multiple seals formed before Jackie, and they glowed in a faint dark color the moment they were formed.

They quickly merged with the other seals around them, forming stronger ones. In just a few moments, a blade appeared in front of everyone.

It was the Broken Soul Sword!

If anyone was to look at it closer, they would see that seals were floating around the Broken Soul Blade.

Raising an eyebrow, Raul used his divine senses to look into the blade, and he was shocked to notice that immense energy was circulating the blade. It was obviously not going to be easy to deal with.

He raised an eyebrow as he felt the early signs of nervousness creeping into his mind. However, he quickly squashed the feeling and told himself that he was just being too careful.

Even if Jackie was somewhat talented, he was, at the end of the day, just a man from Hestia. Hestia sat at the bottom of third-grade worlds, and their people could never compare to those in the Sacred Water Continent.

With that very thought, Raul snorted and formed seals with his hands.

Seconds later, a bountiful energy was condensing behind him.

Chapter 3329
With Raul as the center, his surroundings started to dim as though night was falling.

A blood-red moon slowly rose behind him, staining the darkness in red.

Raul scoffed. “I plan on ending this quickly so you’ll know what being truly strong means!”

Raul had planned on going easy instead of showing his full strength, but he changed his mind the moment he sensed the dense energy in the Broken Soul Blade.

He was worried that something unexpected would happen. Even though it was incredibly unlikely, it was better to be safe and merciless than sorry.

Raul let out a shout as his hands moved again. The sun behind him started to turn into a blood-red blade. Like an arrow, it shot right at Jackie.

Jackie raised an eyebrow before he slowly pushed forward, sending the Broken Soul Blade toward Raul at an imperceptible speed.

The two techniques clashed in the air, and as a result of the collision between the black light and the strange red hue, their surroundings darkened. Even though the lights were not bright, this still obscured their sight.

Everyone merely watched as it cracked.

A second later, a pitch-black blade shot right at Raul's chest at blinding speed.

To end the battle quickly, Jackie used the laws of space on the Broken Soul Blade, speeding it up even more.

Raul never expected that the Blood Moon Slash, the technique he harbored great pride in, would lose to Jackie's technique, and so quickly at that. He did not have the chance to react at all as The Blood Moon Slash failed to mitigate the Broken Soul Blade for even half a second before it shattered and disappeared into the air.

"Argh!" An intense cry of agony was heard as the Broken Soul Blade pierced Raul's chest.

After that, the pain of his soul being ripped apart spread from his chest to his whole body.

As a soul attribute warrior, Raul knew what he was experiencing, and he used whatever senses he still had left to activate his through energy to try to stop it.

Alas, no matter how strong his true energy was, it was nothing against the Broken Soul Blade. It disappeared in an instant, and he was powerless.

Very quickly, the pain eroded all his sanity. He fell to the ground and writhed in pain as cries of agony were ripped out from him. It did not even sound like something humans could make.

Rudy was already used to the sight. After all, no one was able to stand the pain of their soul being ripped apart.

Raul's reaction was only warranted, but Alfred did not feel that way.

Raul had been so proud, yet there he was, writhing on the floor like a worm. It was obvious how much pain he was in.

Alfred could feel a chill behind his neck, and he thanked his luck that he was from Hestia as well.

If he had been Jackie's enemy, he would have suffered the same fate as Raul did, twitching on the floor and crying out without any dignity.

Alfred pursed his lips and looked at Jackie in a different light. His earlier worship had turned into fear and respect, and he finally realized how strong Jackie was.

Jackie walked over to Raul and merely watched as he spasmed without restraint.

He slowly knelt and stopped the Broken Soul Blade's energy with a wave.

Chapter 3330
A large percentage of the pain Raul felt disappeared that very moment, and he slowly recovered bits of his rationality.

He trembled as his eyes widened, and what he saw was Jackie reaching toward his sleeves, taking out the box with the Azure Soul Fruit.

The scene greatly affected Raul, and he started to twitch again.

His lips were pale as he gritted his teeth and glared at Jackie, wanting nothing more than to rip Jackie to shreds.

He was angry beyond relief, but there was nothing he could do to turn the tables, and he acknowledged this with despair.

Looking into himself, he realized that his soul was already ripped apart and a third of his soul was gone. Unless he had a sort of divine medicine, he would never survive this. He would just be in even more pain after that.

When he realized this, Raul was filled with pain and hopelessness. His whole body was twitching tightly, and his eyes widened. He looked like someone suffering from dementia.

Jackie could tell that Raul had resigned himself to his fate, and he scoffed. "Didn't you say I wasn't worthy of soul attribute techniques? Where's all that talk now?"

Raul rested his gaze on Jackie for a long while before all of a sudden, his body started to tremble.

At that moment, he remembered everything he had said to Jackie, and he knew even begging Jackie would never grant him mercy.

Jackie had said that he would be the end of him, but Raul thought it was all crap talk, if anything.

He had been the ignorant one, but he acted so arrogantly in front of the stronger one. Only then did he realize how ignorant he was.

He had underestimated Jackie and judged him poorly. No matter what Jackie said, he never realized something was wrong.

This was how he ended up in his predicament.

Raul's breathing got quicker as his face paled. He looked like someone at death's door.

Jackie snorted before he slowly stood up. Reaching out, he activated the Broken Soul Blade again, and pain completely took over Raul's senses, sending him into a frenzy of pain once more.

He could not even think of anything else as he convulsed in a worm-like manner.

Jackie stared at Raul aloofly. After stopping for a few moments, he turned to look at Rudy and Alfred, shooting them a look before he turned around and walked into the distance.

Rudy and Alfred exchanged complicated glances. However, neither of them said anything as they followed closely after him.

Jackie did not actually know where he was going either.
