Interviewing for Your Podcast

Podcasts are enjoying a growing popularity all over the world. Its unique delivery system (podcast tracks in MP3 format that are automatically downloaded into computers on a regular basis after the subscription) and the fact that you can bring it and listen to it wherever you go using portable music players has contributed to its ever-growing listener base. Of of course, the fact that it's completely free is a major draw for everyone, and add to that the easy process of using this wonderful new software. All one needs is an internet connection and a PC - the portable player itself is an optional device and not needed to really listen to podcasts.
There are many podcasts on the web that cater to a variety of genres. Actually, the types of content offered by podcasts are more diverse than the genres offered by regular radio programs. The most well-known podcast genres are the comedy podcasts. These kinds of podcasts consistently rate at the very highest of every podcast countdowns on the web. This is evidence of its huge popularity.

There are many possible reasons why comedy podcasts are gaining the interest and attention of a lot of computer users and podcast listeners across the globe. The light hearted nature of the podcasts as well as the silly subjects that are discussed are just right for this medium. There are also comedy podcasts that use the traditional interview format of celebrities and give it a hilarious twist. Imagine having a very stressful day at work, or perhaps you are stuck in traffic during rush hour and the long wait is making you mad. Nothing could alleviate those negative feelings more than hearing hilarious comments or banter on your portable player. The laughter could take you away from stress or the boredom. Comedy podcasts are also a good genre to mix with the music you have on any portable music player. After listening to your favorite albums , you are able to relax and let your hair down by listening to those zany comedy podcasts.

The number of comedy podcasts to pick from that you would be difficult to narrow down one. Below are a few of the most popular comedy podcasts that are available online:

A podcast featuring Ricky Gervais podcast - The funny star of The Office, the British comedy The Office has began making podcasts. Gervais is hilarious as ever. This is British comedy at its best.

"The Presidential Address" Weekly Radio Address - This is the official parody of the US president's weekly radio message. President. Bush's weekly address is lampooned every week by these hilarious writers

Gay Fun Show - called the "Love Boat" of podcasts, hear political comedy given an unmistakable gay twist by the two hosts. They also talk to celebrities with their gay aplomb.

Comedy 365 - another outstanding British-based comedy podcast. check it out is among the most well-known Brit comedy podcasts online and is definitely worth a look.

The Infected series by Martin Sargent - TechTV host Martin Sargent brings his zany and hilarious wit on his travels through the most cutting edge humorous, hilarious and weird content available on the web.