

The National Latina Institute for Reproductive Health is seeking 2-3 young parents under the age of 25 who live in New York City to meet with City Council staff and share their expertise during a briefing designed to learn about the issues impacting young families.

For the last three years, NLIRH has been working to shift the negative ways young families are talked about, and instead re-frame the conversation into one about access to health care, education opportunities, employment, housing, childcare and dignity for young families. As part of the reproductive justice community, we advocate with all people to be able to make the reproductive decisions that they feel are best for them, including young people who choose to parent.

To that end we are partnering up with friends and organizational allies to host a NYC Briefing in which young parents are at the forefront sharing their stories and experiences and advocating for the needs of their community.

NLIRH will provide food, child care, training and transportation at no cost to each participant. Each participant will receive a small honorarium. Below is an outline of the commitments needed from participants to be a part of this briefing.

1. Participate in a Sunday Training with NLIRH staff and activists from the NY chapter

Latinas Organizing for Leadership and Advocacy Mini Training, Sun 8/16/15

Time: 11:30am-4pm, Place: 353 West 48th St. NYC

2. Participate in a media and storytelling workshop with NLIRH staff

Time & Date TBD. Will likely occur over the phone.

3. Participate in the NYC briefing

Time & Date TBD. Will likely occur during a weekday in the morning. Save October 6th.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q: What if I can only commit to one of the three asks?

A: We only have a limited number of slots for the briefing and we want to make sure that everyone who is selected can participate. Unfortunately, we will not be able to accommodate activists who cannot fully commit to participate in the entire process. However, all applicants are encouraged to continue to be part of the New York chapter.

Q: I have never been active on reproductive rights issues; can I still apply?

A: This briefing is for parents of all backgrounds and experiences. During the training we will devote an entire session to the history of the reproductive rights movement as well as provide participants with reading material and resources.

Q: How much does everything cost?

A: There is no charge for participating in this briefing or our trainings. In addition, NLIRH will cover food, child care, training and transportation.

Q: Is there any higher education requirements or titles needed to participate?

A: No, all parents are encouraged to apply.

Q: I am having difficulty completing my application what can I do?

A: Please contact the coordinator, the information is below, with any questions or concerns.

Q: What is the application process?

A: Applications are now available! Make sure you submit your paper form or PDF version by August 9, 2015. After we review your application we will schedule a short interview with the candidates.
