You are not alone on the question of whether toddlers are better off in childcare in Macquarie Park or at home. Many parents often grapple with the dilemma. For those who have to go back to work too early to maintain their income, it often comes as a tough choice leaving their children under someone else's care.

You will be relieved to know that regardless of your child's age, and your reason for seeking childcare, daycare centres have the best effect on your child's growth and development. The trick here is to find the best childcare in Macquarie Park and your child will have a lot to gain

To clear any doubts you may have, here are several reasons why your toddler is better off in childcare.

Adequate Attention

Staying at home with your child is a great way to bond but this option has its own shortcomings. You will still have to attend to a few things here and there. The same case happens if you are using relative care or even a nanny. Home chores will steal some of the time set aside for your baby, leaving them unattended.

Providers of childcare in Macquarie Park take care of this by hiring full-time caregivers who are highly trained, experienced and passionate. They know just the amount of attention your child needs and will provide it from the moment you drop your child off to when you pick them up.

Being with others of their age also puts your child in a comfortable environment than if they were on their own at home.

Preparation For School

It benefits your child when they join school and find similarities between its programs and what they learnt in childcare in the curriculum. They do not feel disoriented by the schedules at school like early reporting and programmed days.

Unlike those who come straight from home to school, your child is used to being away from family members and easily adjusts to the new faces faster.

Quality early childhood education offered in childcare centres familiarises your child with basic words and calculations which would rather be hard to achieve at home. Skills earned at an early age like responsibility and adaptability also help your baby settle fast in school without causing you much worry.

Physical Growth

We cannot underestimate the roles play in your child's growth and development. The best childcares in Macquarie Park are constructed with adequate space to encourage healthy play for your child.

Activities like water and sand play and other outdoor games keep your child active. This boosts physical development. Through playing with their peers, your child acquires stronger bones, healthier skin and even gains better motor skills. This is a plus since you can hardly achieve this level of play at home, especially if your child has no siblings.

Inexhaustible Skills

A child needs an all-round approach into many things if they are to grow into independent, respectable and responsible teens and adults.

Being with your child at all times is good for your family bond, but it denies them an opportunity to mingle with others. This makes it hard for them in future when they have to work as a team or even make tough decisions.

Well-structured childcare on the other hand prepares your child for adulthood by arming them with essential lessons and skills such as responsibility, communication, empathy, just to name a few.

Intellectual Growth

Your child's brain develops more rapidly in their early years (up to to 5 years). This is why should have them spend their childhood in an environment where they can learn, grow and gain essential skills.

Being at home limits the kind of activities your child can engage in. Watching TV, playing with family members or toys, taking part in board games and maybe helping with the pet might sound like enough, but this list is too narrow compared to the many brain empowering activities your child is exposed to while attending childcare in Macquarie Park.

From rhymes that teach them basic things to learning about their culture and discovering their hobbies, you support your child's brain development in many ways when you enrol them in a facility with all these activities and more.

In response to your question, your child is way better off attending childcare in Macquarie Park. If you are still in doubt, set aside time and visit a good childcare centre near you.
