#PIZZAGATE, CLINTON, & PODESTA: WHAT IS IT, AND IS IT CREDIBLE?

November 20., 2016 · by Ace of Swords · in #Pizzagate, Global Elite · 147 Comments

Some may have noticed the hashtag #Pizzagate around the Internet lately, and aren't sure what it's all about. So, what is #Pizzagate? In the post that follows I will provide a #Pizzagate summary to explain the movement's origin, outline which of its claims have been confirmed as verifiable facts, and offer my own conclusion as to whether or not you should be paying closer attention.

(Note: Was #Pizzagate debunked by the New York Times, Snopes, the Washington Post, and other major outlets? Learn more here.)

First off, forgive the length — quite a bit of context and explanation is required to do an explanation of the "#Pizzagate" phenomenon justice. Also, a disclaimer: In addition to being difficult to digest, much of the research into #Pizzagate was originally being conducted by web sleuths who supported Donald Trump for president. I only mention that because those with anti-Trump sentiments seem especially at risk for a knee-jerk rejection of the theories involved. However, keep in consideration that information gleaned by someone with a pro-Trump viewpoint does not necessarily invalidate the significance of the facts and connections uncovered. Forget their voting habits and other assumptions you may have about them for a moment, and just consider the following with an open mind so you're equipped to judge it on its own merits. The work of the researchers reflects a recognition that similar scandals have happened on both sides of the political aisle, and are completely bipartisan.

Now, some necessary background.

As you likely know, Wikileaks published emails that were hacked from Hillary Clinton's private email server, along with a huge series of email dumps from her campaign chairman John Podesta's account. Podesta isn't just a Clinton campaign chairman, he's a long-time political operative rated as one of Washington's most influential people.

Unsurprisingly, the majority of the contents from emails associated with the two leaks are mundane. But web sleuths on Reddit and 4Chan, two discussion board websites, found something strange buried within the email dumps: nonsensical references to pizza.

For a bit of context, Reddit is more "mainstream," so to speak, while 4Chan is rather infamous for its reputation for being a stronghold for, among other things, the sharing of depraved and illegal content.

Further digging into the emails found similarly strange references to pasta, along with some other words peppered strangely into nonsensical sentence constructions. Regardless of what they actually mean, the explanation that makes the most logical sense to many who have read the messages is this: they're speaking in code. About what, we can't be certain. But read the messages in question below to see for yourself:

In perhaps the strangest of the emails suspected of containing codewords, Podesta and another party are discussing a "handkerchief" he left at a house rented for a private event of some kind:

In another strange one, subject line "Cheese," someone emails Podesta expressing surprise at "changing strategies which have been long in place," then says he opened a box expecting to see "pasta and sauces" but instead saw "an assortment of cheeses" and he's looking forward "to demolish them." One could conceivably say that perhaps Podesta sends friends a yearly Christmas of pasta and sauces, but changed it up suddenly and began fancy cheeses instead.

However, he attaches a post script:

"Ps. Do you think I'll do better playing dominos on cheese than on pasta?"

It's indeed rather hard to make sense of his post script.

This email, from a STRATFOR email leak, discusses some kind of event where a single slice of pizza will be shared amongst a variety of people — odd, to say the least (odd part in bold):

There are plenty of references to food in the Podesta and other email leaks that don't appear so cryptic, contain normal syntax, and are easily comprehensible, but others, like the above, seem to clearly contain code words of some kind. Now to move on to the seemingly unbelievable explanation for the code.

A Code for What?

Remember how I mentioned 4Chan having a blemish on its history for being a platform where illegal depravity was being shared? Well, according to longtime 4Channers, the strangely-worded messages were chock full of very well-established early Internet and "Deep Web" codewords for child porn, pedophilia, and BDSM. Here's how they break it down:

Handkerchief — BDSM code, different colors have different meanings but black indicates sadomasochism in some circles (variable depending on community)

Pillows — Drugs (variable)

Cheese Pizza — Child pornography

Cheese — Child

Pasta — Boy

Hot Dog — Boy

Dominos — BDSM domination

Chicken — Young boy

For one example, here's a screengrab of an advert on the deep web from someone selling child pornography as "Cheese Pizza":

So the idea that Podesta is part of a powerful crew of global-level pedophiles, and that they're discussing it in their emails, is utterly outrageous — right? It may seem so at first glance, but the more you dig, the more the utterly bizarre connections and coincidences pile up. Bear with us, as some news outlets are already accusing "alt-right conspiracy theorists" and "white nationalists" (an absurd claim, unprovable on either side, and also an easy way to deflect attackers without addressing their claims directly) for #Pizzagate making something out of nothing. But a measured study of what has been discovered provides more than enough for any objective observer to at least raise an eyebrow.

Also note that since the independent investigation began, there has been active suppression of research on Reddit, 4Chan, and Twitter via mass post deletions and DDoS attacks, while "skeptical" articles deriding the theories and completely unrelated content have begun appearing, pushing search results pertaining to the actual #Pizzagate research down further and further in search engine results.

In addition, as a sidebar to the apparent outrageousness of the overall topic, there have been decades' worth of documentaries and scattered reports about pedophilia and ritual abuse in elite circles. Corey Feldman, Elijah Wood, et. al discussing it in Hollywood, the "Boy's Town" allegations in Nebraska outlined in the documentary Conspiracy of Silence, a Jerry Sandusky victim claiming Sandusky was only part of a much larger pedophile ring, rampant human trafficking and sex slavery in Saudi Arabia, a major US ally, through embassies and diplomatic centers in the US, a cover-up acknowledged in the mainstream media regarding pedophilia in the British Parliament, allegations Jimmy Savile was part of a larger Satanic child sex ring involving people in positions of power, US soldiers told to ignore violent pedophilia in the Afghani military ranks even when it occurred on US military bases, high-level Pentagon staffers buying child porn and the investigation seemingly swept under the rug, global-level pedophilia coverups from within the Catholic church, an alleged pedophilia ring going all the way to the top of UNICEF, also known as the United Nations Children's Fund ...the list goes on and on. Given that context, it seems reasonable to keep an open mind that some of these cases of "VIP pedophile rings" might be connected.

On to more emails. This next email feels pretty normal, until the cryptic final sentence of a particular paragraph (made bold for easy viewing). In it, Pew Charitable Trusts Senior Vice President Tamera Luzzatto makes an odd statement that a toddler was "rubbing my nose." While not explicit, it is odd, and the excessive dots for the ellipses seem to imply some kind of hidden meaning or in-joke. And in the wider pattern of strangeness that I contend exists, a nefarious meaning starts to feel even more plausible:

Hoping this gets to you from my close friend and fellow-hand-sufferer, Patrick Schmidt. We had a Luzzattopalooza yesterday, with Marisa-Paul-10 month Evie staying with us already while their house gets painted, and Ben-Alex sledding their 3 over to "help" us decorate the tree. When the parents got back to retrieve children, they threw in the towel (and about 19 pieces of winter clothing) to stay for tortellini and an overnight. So, 6 grownups with 2 toddlers and 2 infants spread throughout the house, and sure enough one of those toddlers was rubbing my nose at 5:45.....

This next one from Luzzatto describes three children as being present at a party "for entertainment."

There are conceivable contexts where this could be innocent — maybe these particular youngsters are famous for brightening parties with their cutesy hijinks — but bear with us, as there will be more to consider later.

Make what you will of the "entertainment," but at the very least, the wording is a bit strange. And according to the documentary "An Open Secret" about systematic pedophilia in Hollywood, Clinton Global Initiative member and former child actor Brock Pierce led Hollywood parties which would turn after hours into late-night "pool parties" where youngsters were abused as part of a pedo ring. But that's only where the pedophilia links to people in the Clinton camp begin. Cue Laura Silsby.

Who Is Laura Silsby?

Laura Silsby, Baptist missionary, was the head of an organization called the "New Life Children's Refuge." She had plans to open an orphanage in the Dominican Republic, but the government in the DR said no applications were ever submitted. Furthermore, her organization was never registered as an adoption agency or a non-profit charity.

Despite her organization lacking any of the required registrations to make it legitimate, in the wake of the Haitian earthquake several years back, Silsby and her group attempted to bring 40 Haitian children out of the country and was stopped at the border. She was warned that she would be arrested if she continued attempting to do so. Apparently undeterred, she made another attempt. This time she had 33 children she was trying to traffic out of the country illegally, and was arrested. In Clinton emails from the Wikileaks, Silsby's process for finding these orphans is described as — fundamentally — driving around in a bus and taking children off of the street who appeared to be orphans, a classification for which they appeared to present zero evidence for to authorities.

Indeed, it was discovered that none of these 33 children were orphans at all, and had families. Their parents were told the children would be educated and sheltered, and that parents and relatives would be able to visit them, even going so far as to claim that parents would get to stay in seaside villas during visitation periods. So not only did they lie, but lied quite elaborately in order to get the parents to hand over their kids.

Adding even more highly disturbing fuel to the Silsby fire is the fact that a lawyer allegedly materialized, offering bribes to officials to release Silsby and her cohorts out of jail. After that failed, Silsby's primary lawyer in the case was a man named Jorge Anibal Torres Puello. Bizarrely, Torres Puello was accused of leading a human trafficking ring in the Dominican Republic that allegedly posted pornographic images of underage girls on the web and sold them into forced prostitution. While Torres Puello claimed to be part of a large law firm with 45 members, investigations revealed a modest office which could not possibly support anywhere near that many staff members. An attorney for one of the faux-orphan's families claimed Torres Puello also lied about holding a law license in the state of Florida, a claim Torres Puello denied ever making.

Hacked Clinton emails show a history of interest in Silsby and her work, and the Clinton Foundation was active in Haitian orphan rescue operations after the earthquake there. And guess who swept in to help get Silsby off the hook? It was none other than Hillary Clinton herself.

Why did Silsby pretend that these kids were orphans when they had families? Why did she spin elaborate, brazen lies to the families to conceal the fact that the kids were actually going to be leaving forever, never to be seen by their families again? Why was Silsby, suspicious enough on her own to raise concern, being advised by an accused child sex trafficker? Lastly, why did Clinton take an interest in her unarguably sketchy legal case, and dedicate time and resources to reducing her charges?

After being cleared of her legal troubles, Silsby became associated with the company that provides the technology for the Amber Alert system — the infrastructure used to alert the American public about children who have recently gone missing.

In an interesting recent twist, a woman named Monica Petersen, who had spent years researching human trafficking in Haiti, was recently found dead. Her friends and family are being kept in the dark regarding the circumstances of her death. According to one of her friends, she had uncovered a Clinton connection regarding the child trafficking she had been investigating in Haiti.

Back to Haiti and Clinton

My friend Monica Peterson reports

I've been researching this since yesterday, albeit without the best access to sources/electricity/internet, so the hard facts for me are still in progress. Nevertheless, I can still critically read & crosscheck a fair number of facts.

Here's what else I've found out. Tony Rodham (via VCS Mining) bought Morne Bossa mine in the north of Haiti in 2012. The Clinton Foundation, alongside USAID, also established the Caracol Industrial Complex in 2012, not far from Morne Bossa. Caracol is a garment exporting zone, a field site I visited in August to check out the conditions of the workers. (conclusion: working conditions okay, working wages too low & below contracts & legal minimum wage in Haiti). Caracol's main buyers are Gap, Target, and Walmart... all of which are apparently linked to the Clintons. So.... family money, not local livelihoods is clearly the prerogative.

I don't know yet what the connection is between the mine & the Caracol Complex, but they're suspiciously close geographically. It may just be that they were both easy money & nothing more. But they were initiated the same year??

Mining was set to commence in 2012, but the Haitian Senate opposed it. President Michel Martelly did not, but has been unable to make progress in the Haitian Mining Conventions & laws in order for VCS Mining to move ahead, as they had hoped for before Martelly left office. Magically, 4 months before the elections last summer, a hand-picked Martelly successor appeared to take over as President. There is no social or environmental impact assessment to date and such a mining project will massively destroy scarce water resources for local farmers, while at the same time, literally, flattening the entire mountain the mine sits on.

Several articles have pointed out that the mining activity at Morne Bossa over the last two decades oddly corresponds to the first & second coups of former President Aristide. Haitian mining laws were revised during both coups when Aristide was ousted from office. Bill Clinton's administration backed those coups throwing Aristide out.

This article makes a great point: "It doesn't matter that there aren't many mineral resources left, the problem is that the land is believed to hold easy riches."

There may or may not be great wealth in the gold, silver, and supposed oil in Haiti. Haiti is just one more Third World dime piece for the Clintons & their multinational cronies. A couple billion here, there, everywhere adds up. And the crony connections are something straight out of a movie dramatization!

Now, for the last 6 months, Haiti is in the midst of new Presidential elections & the ensuing chaos appears that it could only be instigated from outside Haiti, albeit with plenty of willing allies in the Haitian elite (racism is so complex in this country). In her role as Secretary of State, Hillary Clinton ensured Martelly won the rigged elections in 2010. Though little attention has been given to her email scandal with huge gaps around correspondence in Haiti. Now, we are seeing the same thing with Martelly's successor. No one new who he was a year ago. The 2015 (now 2016) Haitian election appear to be fully orchestrated by the US, and presumably the Clintons are playing a big role.

But the real significance of this scandal for me, I know you feel me [redacted] is the link to contemporary slavery and trafficking. I can't say to what extent, but there is human trafficking happening through the Clinton's Caracol Complex. And mining has always been historically linked to trafficking, slavery, and labor exploitation. I'd like to go see for myself who's laboring at Morne Bossa, but I would hypothesize that the Dominicans are doing the contractual oversight of the mining, while marginalized Haitians are being exploited for low or no cost labor in dangerous mining conditions.

*That's two huge human trafficking scandals, an environmental degradation scandal, a social displacement scandal, a Presidential election scandal, a scandal with billions in unaccounted for earthquake aid.... all leading directly back to the Clintons racist cronyism in Haiti.

Hillary Clinton is just as bad as Donald Trump! Who knows what she'll do once she's in office?! #fucked

So the question is, just how many coincidences of this nature would have to be uncovered before those in question would qualify for further scrutiny? And the Haiti mysteries are just one element of this strange puzzle.

The Most Influential Pizza Joint Owner of All Time

Also in Hillary's immediate circle is a pizza joint owner named James Alefantis. Alefantis has been named one of the 50 most powerful people in Washington, DC. Let that sink in for a second. This is not some aging former senator who opened a pizza joint as a retirement gig, or a mega-lobbyist who plays restaurateur on the side to fulfill some childhood fantasy. This guy is just the owner of a pizza joint, that's it. And somehow he has leveraged the position to become one of the most powerful players in a city containing perhaps the highest concentration of influence anywhere on earth.

Shockingly, even a cursory delve into the details behind his pizza restaurant leave a web of connections to the DC elite along with cryptic references to "gay babies," children in general, bondage, and murder. All, remember, discovered after self-styled web sleuths combing through WikiLeaks discovered bizarre references to "pizza" in the Podesta emails.

Alefantis' restaurant, Comet Ping Pong, is a divey pizza joint with ping pong tables in the back. It is host to all kinds of democratic party events and fundraisers. Alefantis also happened to be the romantic partner of David Brock, influential head of Correct the Record, an organization that tackles alleged right wing media bias, and a close Clinton confidant.

Discovery of the first direct connection between Clinton and Comet Ping Pong emerged when researchers began searching the email leaks for other strange references to "pizza," and discovered many mentions of Comet Ping Pong hosting everything from Clinton for President fundraisers and Obama campaign phone banks to birthday parties for Tony Podesta. Oddly, records also show George Soros-funded PACs donating thousands of dollars to the restaurant, and Alefantis himself visiting the White House on several occasions:

Creepy Instagrams & Artwork

Soon after #Pizzagate researchers discovered Alefantis' Instagram account, it was set to "private" and can no longer be viewed. Thanks to screenshots, however, we can still see the bizarre posts and comments involving incomprehensible references to children, sex, and even murder. Please note — the following images are indeed strange, but are also potentially disturbing, given the context of the child trafficking theory.

This first shot is a barren walk-in freezer at Comet Ping Pong. Alefantis, under Instagram handle "jimmycomet," leaves the strange comments "Oh yeah this looks fun" and "#murder." One of his friends comments "#killroom." A third person says "Just rinse if off when you're done." If nothing else, there's clearly some kind of macabre "in-joke" that we're just not getting:

When researchers checked health inspection records for the restaurant, they indicated that there was no inspection of any walk-in freezer. Is this freezer at Comet Ping Pong? If so, why wasn't it inspected? If not, why is a freezer at another restaurant being discussed on the owner's Instagram? Upon inspecting the Instagram account of the "#killroom" commenter, researchers found it to be full of images of coffee tables he constructs to resemble baby coffins:

Melde dich an, um mit „Gefällt mir“ zu markieren oder zu kommentieren. ...

Another post shows Marina Abramovic, the woman who held the openly Satanic “Spirit Cooking” ritual referenced in emails to Tony Podesta. According to her statement from a 2013 Reddit “Ask Me Anything” event, this ritual is performance art when done publicly. But when performed in private, according to her, “it is not art,” but a ritual that represents something more. Exactly what, I’m not sure, but it involves self-mutilation along with painting Satanic symbols and cryptic sayings on the wall in a mixture of menstrual blood, semen, and breast milk. In this post she is carrying a bundle of sticks, or “faggot,” a term with further meaning according to occult beliefs:

Now many people rationalize that emails to Tony Podesta about Spirit Cooking events are nothing, just some kind of weird art. But according to media images of John Podesta’s office, he only has two pictures hanging on his office walls, and one of them depicts a Spirit Cooking ritual:

This tells us that Spirit Cooking, whatever it really is, is something that is very personally significant to John Podesta. Odd, to say the least. What’s more, both Tony and John Podesta’s homes are filled with art. While some of it is normal, as they are both avid collectors of art works, many are known to make many visitors to his house quite uncomfortable—as described in this article, archived from the Washington Post’s website. From photographic works depicting images of nude teenagers to paintings by an artist known for her paintings of abused children in submissive poses and varying stages of undress, their artistic tastes are odd at best, and appear to reflect a strong interest in artists who feature murder, abused children, and adolescent nudity as visual themes:

Oh, and remember Dennis Hastert, the former House Speaker exposed as a serial child molester? Emails show that the Podestas are not just longtime friends, but expressed sadness when he was put away, and it has been confirmed that both Tony and John Podesta were with him in Japan during a time when he was serially abusing children. Most people I know would disavow someone after discovering they spent most of their adult life molesting and raping children. For the Podestas, however, it apparently wasn't a deal breaker.

Now back to Alefantis' Instagram. This next post shows a man holding a toddler, wouldn't be so odd if it weren't for one detail. Alefantis comments "#chickenlovers," which is inexplicable given the total lack of anything chicken-related in the photo. However, referring back to the known web slang used by pedophiles, "chicken" is slang for "young boy."

Jokingly or not, in the next image, Alefantis and an associate appear to sexualize an infant with a "what what, in the butt" reference:

And then there's the following oddity, showing what appears to be a trio of adolescents, one female and two male, kneeling in esoteric garb and masks. Ignore the troll in the comments, who unfortunately took it upon themselves to post accusatory messages in response to the #Pizzagate allegations:

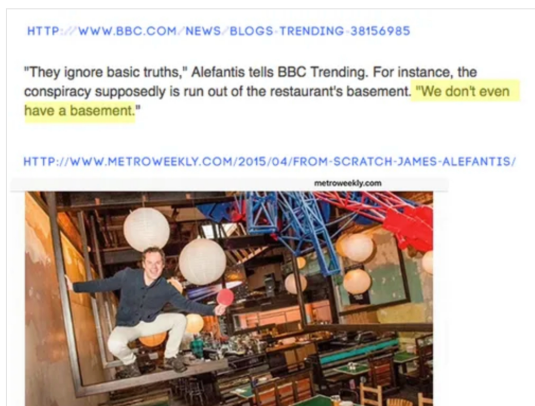

The next post is a close-up of a baby, with Alefantis commenting "#hotard," a slang term meaning a girl, or "ho," who is mentally disabled and slutty. Given the fact that the image shows an infant, at best, this seems extremely inappropriate. While some might not consider UrbanDictionary.com to be an authoritative source, their site has been cited successfully in multiple U.S. court cases to define slang terms.

Numerous other posts contain inexplicable references to children and explicit sex.

When speaking to the BBC recently about the theories that Comet Ping Pong's basement is somehow implicated in child trafficking, Alefantis told the reporter that Pizzagate researchers have been unable to get basic facts straight, as Comet Ping Pong has no basement. However, this directly contradicts a claim he made when interviewed for a 2015 article by Metro Weekly, in which he says Comet Ping Pong does indeed have a basement, used to store supplies. This would be normal for a restaurant, but what is abnormal is his self-contradiction about a basic feature of his own eatery:

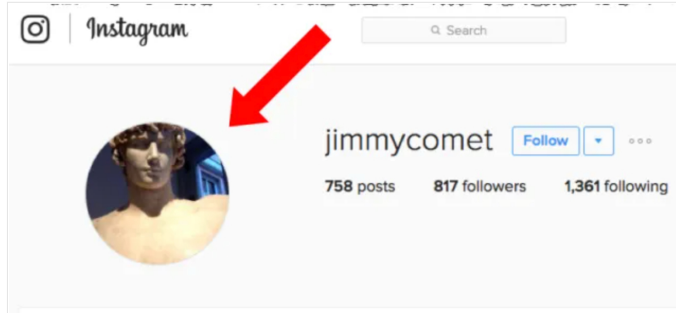

James Alefantis at Comet Ping Pong - Photography by Todd Franzen

MW: What was it they couldn't believe you had made?

ALEFANTIS: Well, we make everything from scratch. Other restaurants, even good restaurants, will, like, not roast their own peppers. You can just buy the roasted peppers in a can. Or you can buy garlic oil. Some products you can get, and they're consistent and they're easy. But I didn't even know that existed actually until they said that. I was like, "What do you mean? There's another way? You can just buy these things?" Because a lot of restaurants will open a can and put it on. Like our sauce — we harvest a whole crop of organic tomatoes — 10 tons of tomatoes every year. Can them all, store them in the basement, have like a harvest party when it gets loaded in.

Lastly, Alefantis displayed a curious choice for his Instagram profile picture given the other content he had been sharing: an image of the Bust of Antinous, from the Prado Museum in Madrid:

So just who was Antinous? He was the teenage lover of Hadrian, a Roman emperor, thought to be between 13-18 during his time as a sexual partner and servant to the emperor. Pederasty is known to historians to have been accepted and very common in ancient Rome, and the Wikipedia page for Antinous refers to historian and author Royston Lambert's claim that sculptures of him represent one of the ancient world's "most elevated and ideal monuments to pederastic love." He is also associated with cult worship of Osiris, the Egyptian god of death, the underworld, renewal, and other concepts involving death and rebirth. Furthermore, some historians believe Antinous died as part of a ritual human sacrifice, though this is not known for certain.

Why did Alefantis carry enough interest in this favored boy-lover of an ancient Roman emperor to use him as his Instagram profile picture? Is he merely a fan of the art, and if so, what about the busts of Antinous interested him over many other extremely aesthetically-similar sculptures from the era?

Pedophile Symbols and "Artistic" References

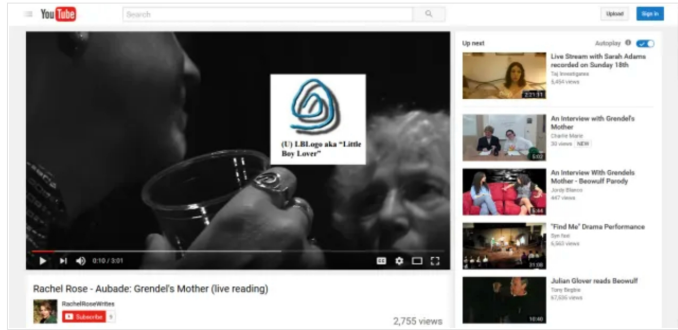

Next door to Comet Ping Pong is another pizza joint called Besta Pizza. And the Besta Pizza logo, which was quietly changed after the research began, is extremely similar to known symbols used in underground pedophilia communities. See the FBI's listing of pedophile symbols below, from an unclassified FBI document. Following the FBI's symbols are both Besta Pizza logos, including the new version that appeared after the #Pizzagate research began:

At Comet Ping Pong, researchers noted similarities with symbols on the menu as well (although this writer found the Comet Ping Pong logo's resemblance far less compelling):

However, in a distinctly creepy artistic performance at Comet Ping Pong, an audience member can be seen with a ring with a strong resemblance to the “Little Boy Lover” symbol:

So what was the creepy artistic performance in the video? We're not sure what the meaning of it was, but references to pedophilia have been uncovered in Comet Ping Pong's musical regulars' acts. Sex references are no rarity in music these days, but most would agree that pedophilia references takes it to an entirely different level. And with names like "Sex Stains" and "Heavy Breathing," Comet Ping Pong clearly carries an odd affinity for featuring artistic performers that favor dark and disturbing themes, especially for a kid-friendly pizza and ping pong joint. In an official music video for Sex Stains, a prominently-displayed symbol closely resembles the pedophilia symbol for "Boy Lover:"

One song by Heavy Breathing, the lead singer of which calls herself "Majestic Ape," even includes lyrics referencing orphans:

"My recurring role is puppet in the Broadway smash Orphans in Assholes."

(Note: Heavy Breathing has responded to the #Pizzagate investigation here.)

Indeed, orphans are a common target for sex traffickers, and are a focus of much of the work being done by the Clinton Foundation in the third world. Does the above qualify as proof? Far from it. But as the coincidences pile up, one must wonder if there is at least some aspect of truth to the allegations.

The following video of a performance at Comet Ping Pong isn't very good, but it's hard to find any others, as many videos have been set to "private" after the investigation began. Third-party uploaders have almost universally had their own versions removed and their accounts shut down soon after uploading. It shows "Majestic Ape" doing some kind of monologue. As part of the monologue, she says "Jared (pedophile Subway spokesman) is known to hang out down here. He likes (inaudible), tamales--"

After which point an audience member yells out, "And little boys!"

And another says, "And children!"

Majestic Ape replies, "I think that was his manager."

Audience member: "Noo."

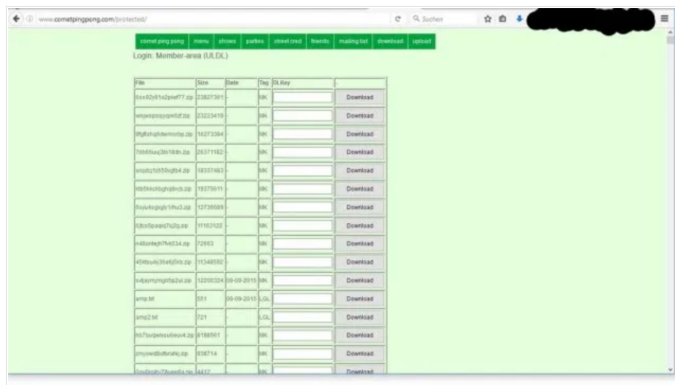

Majestic Ape: (Laughs) "We all have preferences!" (Laughs)

A more complete version, without the commentary, can be found below. This one shows some of the strange art on the walls of Comet Ping Pong, which depicts adults with their hands around the throat of a female child, and have since been scrubbed off.

We previously reported that Comet Ping Pong had a seemingly suspicious “protected” area of its website with an array of password-protected zip files, as shown below:

However, one of the researchers has debunked the claim that this is suspicious, as can be seen in this discussion. This development shows that confirmation bias has not taken over the research — participants are narrowing down aspects that are do seem genuinely suspicious or remarkable by discovering that some of the discoveries, after all, are not. In other words, they are fact-checking themselves as they learn and uncover more.

Onto more pedophilia symbols. Just down the street from Comet Ping Pong is a bistro and art gallery where researchers found pedophile symbols as well, along with boastful associations with Hillary Clinton:

Next door to Terasol are offices for Beyond Borders, a charity funded by the Clinton Foundation focusing on ending child exploitation in Haiti — the same country where Hillary Clinton inexplicably swept in to get accused child trafficker Laura Silsby off the hook.

The Epstein Connection

Now to discuss another known pedophile with major Clinton connections: Jeffrey Epstein. According to Epstein himself, he was a co-founder of the Clinton Foundation. Epstein was accused not only of having underage sex slaves, but of being part of an extensive underage sex slave ring, and was convicted of sex crimes involving minors (albeit with the most severe charges dropped, and extremely minor legal consequences as a result). The court case revealed accusers who claimed they were forced to have sex with everyone from politicians and businessmen to royals and academics.

Court papers also claim Epstein's mansion is outfitted with hidden cameras in order to capture people of power engaging in sex with minors for purposes of blackmail, and his "little black book" seized by authorities contains big-wig names from Tony Blair and Prince Andrew to Michael Bloomberg and even Hollywood star Dustin Hoffman. A highly secretive investor, the precise source of Epstein's vast riches is a mystery.

Bill and Hillary Clinton have taken trips on board Epstein's private plane, dubbed by the press as the "Lolita Express," at different times — both to Epstein's private island and to other locations around the world. In a rare rebuke to the 24/7 security provided to former presidents, Bill Clinton had the Secret Service stay behind for each of these forays. In addition, thanks to a whistleblower, we know that Epstein sent Bill Clinton $3.5 million from a Swiss bank account. For what, one can only imagine.

(Note: Donald Trump has a documented relationship with Epstein as well, lasting up until Epstein's legal trouble, with one confirmed ride on one of Epstein's private jets. He is not documented to have visited any of Epstein's private islands. Bill Clinton claimed to have disavowed Epstein after the legal trouble, but the $3.5 million bank transfer occurred after Epstein's conviction.)

Chislaine Maxwell, daughter of notorious news tycoon Robert Maxwell, is alleged to have been Epstein's central "Madam," obtaining underage girls for him and his cohorts to abuse. She is also alleged by one of the teenaged victims to have taken photographs of underage girls, which were posted around Epstein's property. The court case painted her as Epstein's "right hand woman," central to Epstein's alleged pedophilia sex ring. Here she is pictured at Chelsea Clinton's wedding:

Another frequent flier on the "Lolita Express" is a mysterious young socialite girl named Rachel Chandler. Here she is pictured with Bill Clinton as a teenager:

Chandler's Tumblr account uses CSS to hide what other accounts were sharing her content and vice-versa, but since this trick doesn't work on mobile phones, #Pizzagate researchers were able to find other accounts that frequently share her content. These accounts are consistently macabre. They're filled with images of BDSM, injuries associated with sadistic sex practices, prescription drugs, images of children in severe distress and/or states of injury, weapons, sexual imagery, and occult symbols.

It also contains many images of children receiving dental work, which is beyond bizarre — but seems to somehow connect to Epstein, whose Florida mansion was found to contain not only child's toys and explicit images of children, but fully functioning professional-grade dental chairs and equipment during a police raid.

Below are a few examples (out of many dozens) of strange images Rachel and her network of sharers have posted, with images of children modified for privacy (Warning: disturbing):

Someone Fights Back

I've mentioned a few cases above where Comet Ping Pong-related YouTube and Instagram accounts were set to private, and Reddit threads relating to the investigation were aggressively scrubbed. In addition, people associated with Comet Ping Pong began removing references to their employment there in their LinkedIn profiles.

Perhaps most interestingly, however, a DDoS (Distributed denial-of-service) attack was launched on 4Chan immediately after the Alefantis Instagram account led researchers to a guy name Arun Rao. DDoS attacks prevent users from accessing websites by overwhelming the servers. #Pizzagate researchers found he was "liking" all of the posts that featured young children, so they looked at his Instagram as well.

As soon as 4Chan users began investigating Rao, 4Chan.org began displaying all the signs of a website under DDoS attack. The likelihood of such an attack being unrelated to developments in the investigation is close to zero. So who is fighting back, and what are they trying to bury? Other than being an attorney with the Department of Justice — sometimes involved in prosecuting child pornography cases — there isn't much to be found on him. Predictably, his Instagram has since been set to private as well. Given the DDoS attacks' timing with the discovery of his Instagram, he may be worth investigating further.

Is interference with the #Pizzagate research evidence that there's something to the claims? It's worth mentioning that if the evidence was not truly incriminating, leaving it up would only discredit the investigators by revealing them as paranoid, tinfoil hat-wearing loons, and that scrubbing evidence (as has happened) would only increase suspicion. However, it is feasible that even an innocent party would scrub the supposed evidence to minimize inevitable abuse and threats from trolls drawing their own conclusions from the research.

But the DDoS attacks indicate bona fide attempts to shut down the research, indicating there really is something contained there to hide. Add in threads being deleted or archived overnight, social media accounts being shut down or set to private, videos being deleted from Youtube, LinkedIn pages being scrubbed or modified, and logos being changed in ways that seem to directly correspond to progress with the research, and one can only conclude that taken together, these all seem incredibly unlikely to be the result of innocent parties hiding from an unfair Internet witch hunt.

Reasonable Conclusions

The Clintons and Podestas have quite the number of pedophilia-connected people in their close network. I have one — a now-deceased scoutmaster from childhood who was discovered to have been raping boys. As an adult, I am aware of no one else involved in pedophilia or occult practices. I assume that goes for most readers of this as well. If I doubled the size of my network, and I suspect that the number would still be extremely low. Somehow, the Clintons have managed an extensive network of extremely close associates linked to or even convicted of pedophilia, sex slavery, occult practices, or all three.

(Side note: if there is truth to any of the theories, it would be safe to say the issue is not exclusive to the Democrats, who the research is not targeting in particular. It just happens to have been sparked by emails involving Clinton camp. See Dennis Hastert and the Franklin Scandal for a sampling of accusations on the Republican side.)

You often hear the argument that secrets involving this many people would be impossible to hide. If the allegations are even 50% true, however, sustaining total secrecy is actually quite plausible given that the outlandish, almost cliché nature of the allegations makes them difficult to believe even in the presence of compelling evidence. Also, more importantly, the players involved would have the ability to use blackmail to swiftly destroy anyone who stepped out of line. This point is supported by reports that Jeffrey Epstein had hidden cameras in his home meant for exactly this purpose.

But perhaps most important is this: So far I've only recounted a chunk of the #Pizzagate connections and coincidences involving pedophilia and child trafficking; you'll find if you check out the research for yourself that vastly more have been discovered than what has been summarized here. Even if the coincidences are this utterly bizarre, or hard to definitively connect, when the sheer number of them defies statistical probability, we have an obligation to at least dig a little deeper to see if clearer conclusions can be gleaned — especially when there are children involved. Cases have been tried on circumstantial evidence before, as long as there was enough of it and it was deemed strong enough.

Has enough been discovered to draw a definitive, fully objective conclusion? To be called "proof"? Absolutely not. But for moment, imagine discovering that a co-worker or a mutual friend had a similarly vast web of unlikely coincidences connecting them, even vaguely, with pedophilia or child trafficking. Would you talk to someone? Would you feel mildly concerned for children they come in contact with, and perhaps watch that person more carefully around them? My guess is that you would, and even though a concrete conclusion can't be made, I think the same attitude of careful suspicion and ongoing investigation is well-warranted in the case of #Pizzagate.

If the old adage holds true that "where there's smoke, there's fire," there seems to be a whole lot of smoke here. A smoke cloud so thick, in fact, that the discovery of fire doesn't feel too far off.

A Note On Comments:

We understand the controversial nature of this article, and welcome thoughtful criticisms, which as a matter of policy will not be censored. However: ad hominem attacks without substance will not be published, nor will any incitations to harass, abuse, "dox," or otherwise attack anyone.

As an additional note, we have labored to only include verified information in this piece. Many summaries on blogs, YouTube, and elsewhere contain mistakes, such as a popular claim that artist and ritual abuse survivor Kim Noble did the art in Comet Ping Pong's posters and on their walls when, in fact, her art is merely stylistically similar. Some mistakes are inevitable, as even major news outlets make them routinely, but if they are pointed out, we will endeavor to fix them so that misinformation is not included in this summary).

Hi, nice post.

However, two points that has been debunked previously, Ibrahima Diallo is a common name.

https://www.reddit.com/r/pizzagate/comments/5dxilb/new_info_regarding_besta_pizza_ibrahima_diallo/

Also there is more than one Andrew Kline:

https://www.reddit.com/r/pizzagate/comments/5dtveq/andrew_kline_owner_of_uptown_pizza_w_obama_and_a/

/u/RuPaulver:

<https://www.linkedin.com/in/andrewkline1> that Andrew Kline

<http://theveritaslawfirm.com/meet-the-team-andrew-j-kline/> the Andrew Kline listed under Besta's business info. They're different people.

Andrew Kline is listed as the agent, btw, not the owner. He likely only brokered the deal for the pizzeria to open in that building.

This is really well written and researched, really good work. I wonder if you could post the sources to your images?

Also, some more sources that you can link to in regards to the art and associates of the Podesta brothers.

Having as many sources as possible for the most skeptical minds.

Thanks for these notes! I will update the piece in the next week or so to reflect those very important points, and work on adding sources for the images, which would indeed be helpful to provide.

Good luck. Most of the things that are passed off as "evidence" here would be destroyed in a court of law by any half way decent defense attorney & I'm pretty sure that any of these people mentioned could afford better than half way decent defense council. The ties to the art world & Heavy Breathing videos are particularly laughable given the fact that art has always used disturbing imagery. Whether one agrees with that use is irrelevant because it's protected under free speech laws. The skeeziness of Bill Clinton isn't exactly news either. But what also isn't news is that the Clintons were the target of a political smear campaign orchestrated by the right wing, where people, including state troopers, were paid for testimony.

When you type statements like this: "The likelihood of such an attack (DDos) being unrelated to developments in the investigation is close to zero," this is you making shit up in your head. While it may not be unrelated, blaming the accused is a bit premature given the number of college kids that are having nightly "Hillary should be pres." demonstrations at the universities in my area alone. I'd say it's equally plausible that one or many of those ticked off liberals, who no doubt live on the Internet like most young folk do these days, took offense at 4Chan's Hillary Hate/Trump Love & decided to fuck with them.

This would be a lot more believable if 4Chan wasn't promoting a Trump presidency given Trump's equally suspicious ties to Epstein & this somewhat infamous quote:

"I've known Jeff for fifteen years. Terrific guy. He's a lot of fun to be with. It is even said that he likes beautiful women as much as I do, and many of them are on the younger side. No doubt about it — Jeffrey enjoys his social life."

I do wonder what Jessica Slaughter would say about the good intentions of 4Chan folk.

Also, given the fact that Conspiracy Of Silence, the suppressed video about the Franklin Sex Abuse scandal, said basically the same things about Republicans, yet Republicans seem suspiciously absent from all accusations, does make one wonder about hidden agendas.

Personally, I didn't vote for either one of these assholes. Choosing between the pile shit with a penis or the pile of shit with a vagina seemed like an exercise in extreme futility.

Like I said Good Luck. I suspect that a year from now this will all be a faded Internet memory as attention challenged computer nerds move on to other fresher hunting grounds.

Oh, I agree — I mention several times that none of this is particularly actionable, especially in a legal sense. I also acknowledge that extrapolations are being made, since the material doesn't yet allow for a definitive conclusion (again, I mention this several times in several different ways.)

On the Republicans being involved, if it's all real, I have no doubt that it has zilch to do with the Democrats in particular; they just happen to be the group whose emails got hacked. The Republicans will be included in the accusations when researchers find more linking them — what you call a targeted attack on Dems I think is just a lack of easy-to-find information for the other side. I'm also aware of Trump's relationship with Epstein, but couldn't find info regarding him flying on the Lolita Express or other specifics, as I could with the Clintons, which leads me to believe his ties are, although real, not "equally suspicious" as you claim.

I also go out of my way to mention that the people leading this research are basically universally Trump supporters. On the DDoS attack, the likelihood of it happening to coincide perfectly with the Arun Rao research beginning still seems incredibly unlikely to me to be from a totally unrelated source. So I stand behind that claim, at least for now.

In summary: the piece acknowledges the bulk of they criticisms you've offered, which doesn't make them unfair or incorrect, but seems a little silly to mention when they've already been noted in the piece. Either way, thanks for chiming in. A discussion of something like this demands that we acknowledge the weaknesses and holes and, as I say several times in the piece, right now there is no proof, no smoking gun, etc. That's why I say to just look at the coincidences so far and draw your own conclusions, until/unless more is uncovered. I think, in due time, more will be. Whether or not it becomes enough to be actionable in a legal sense is another question entirely.

Lastly, I would disagree about the computer nerds being attention challenged. A lot of them have rather obsessive personalities, and since many of them believe fully that this scandal is real, I don't think they'll ever stop digging. Time will tell if that's true, and if so, whether or not anything truly actionable can be found.

Many high ranking, wealthy & govt related people (including law enforcement) of all party affiliations, color, race, etc. are pedophiles & partake in these secretive pedophile, sexually deviate, some satanic based acts. pizzagate is one in a vast network of sickos that have been around for a vey long time. For anyone to poo-poo this by politicizing it, is blind & in serious denial &/or a shill for the pedos. Children are being harmed somewhere, somehow in a very sick manner & you nay sayers have to say is it's a right wing snear campaign? What a bunch of cowards you are. These are very serious allegations, children are at the center of it; they have no voice. The circumstantial evidence is what we (the sheep) are aware of - but the real truth is out there, fbi, law enforcement have it, it's damning evidence, for all political parties but they are being protected, and have for decades. justice has been politicized & seriously compromised, this is what these sickos count on; anyone chalking pizzagate up to some anti-hillary or right wing "conspiracy" is only helping these sickos get a way with their deviate crimes against children - try thinking outside your safe space box, use your brain, common sense screams: who is the child w a bloody mouth? How did that happen? Where is she now? Why does an infant have a busted tooth? Who's baby is it? Pedophilia is not a republican or democrat thing - it's just plain sick+abusive to children(& infants) - there's plebty of smoke surrounding pizzagate & I bet you'll find prominent people in BOTH sides of the political aisle involved!

You make a common intellectual mistake from the outset regarding what is legally actionable as a criminal matter versus what is worth investigating. If you listen to what Pizzagate folks say, they are asking for investigations to be undertaken by the media and where appropriate, by law enforcement.

I'm not convinced yet on this issue, but I am convinced that Podesta should be investigated, along with numerous others. If they are cleared, so be it. But the point is that nothing is being done with this evidence. And I don't care what you claim, the use of coded language is very suggestive. Many people have been investigated with far less evidence.

So yes, you are technically correct – this isn't a legal case yet. But that's a straw man as most people involved merely want a real investigation. Seems perfectly legit to me.

You've actually done a good job of summarizing what is pages & pages of sometimes irrelevant comments on reddit & 4chan. All a bit daunting if one is time challenged with work & family, so thanks.

Yes, the story is 'weak' if you are in a court of law. But not if you investigating in the early stages. And certainly there is plenty of raw meat for any investigative journalist to dig into.

You seem to feel you've taken the high ground but you haven't. You've offered a straw man argument that does no damage to the Pizzagate sage.

Appreciate the summary as I didn't have to suffer through 4chanspeak and insidious Reddit threads to get it. It's not written in inflammatory rhetoric but states the 'theory' in full. That's commendable. In efforts of full disclosure, I don't believe a bit of it. It's all sketchy correlations and flimsy threads drawn up by the same internet sleuths who went after the wrong Boston bomber and basement prankster who love to watch the media jump.

However the one thing I will agree with, or at least admit too. Jeffrey Epstein and his parties and his social circles is terrifying. Regardless of political affiliation. The fact that it seems there's no further investigation into his friendships and others involved (unless it's way discrete – which would make sense) is baffling. He had to have had a decent number of people knowledgeable and involved in all his illicit activities. He's not coordinating all the 'logistics' of that by himself. In that light:

"I'm also aware of Trump's relationship with Epstein, but couldn't find info regarding him flying on the Lolita Express or other specifics..."

Here you go:

<http://dailycaller.com/2016/10/09/the-friendship-between-trump-and-a-billionaire-pedophile-that-nobody-wants-to-talk-about/>

Quote:

"Trump rode on Jeffrey Epstein's private plane at least once, according to the deposition of Mark Epstein, Jeffrey's brother."

There's more in the article.

The probability of this being a pedo ring increases as each bit of information is factored in, and it starts with having a private email server, then destroying it ... The email pedo code, disgusting child artwork in Podesta's office, connections to known pedo's like Epstein, replacing of comet pizza logos, Clinton ties to Beyond Borders, etc. Anyone who isn't at least suspicious is not a thinking person.

Video evidence that I find inexplicably odd if not sinister:

The popular Secret Pizza Party children's book, still found on YouTube. It is full of references that once accustomed to the code words and subtle references (a racoon being a criminal etc.) is just laughing at regular people that don't get it. Despite many five star reviews on Amazon, the top reviewer gave it one star well before "pizzagate" started, citing that the overarching message of secrecy reminded them of what a pedophile might say to their victim. The author has also done books such as Dragons Love Tacos and Aliens Love Underpants. They have connotations as well; I am not as versed in all possible code words but I have read an alien may mean a little boy lover. On the jimmycomet instagram he is pictured wearing swirly glasses (the swirl being the symbol for a boy lover) and he captioned the image simply by saying "space alien" — which would frankly make no sense unless there is an underlying meaning.

Then there's the 4 or so Eli Sizemore YouTube reviews of places around DC including Comet Pizza — the slogan for all reviews is "where we spend our time so you can have a good time" (videos scrubbed from the internet) — they are plain strange. The reviews are all roughly 40 second clips done in very slited conversation and appear to use similar code words. Videos were initially posted 4 years ago. Another place reviewed was a comic shop, the information presented was odd (as all videos were) and the kid mentions that the shop has things other than comics, such as "Diary of a Wimpy Kid" specifically. In one video it ends with the kid that is on camera angry at the person filming him, his name was Chris.

Lastly I would delve further into Majestic Ape. Their birthday party video at Comet Pizza discussing nothing but coded speech is the most disturbing video evidence there is and includes mentions of euthanasia. Showing this to someone with zero frame of reference (making it 100% indecipherable), they still thought it was disgusting. Whatever they were talking about was simply not normal "inside jokes".

Between the major censoring and articles playing up the "poor innocent me" angle on some of the main suspects, now we have snopes.com listing pizzagate as "false". After opening a page to pizzagate as under investigation for less than 24 hours they have reached their conclusion. Seriously — they looked through all angles in that time when I have studied it for several weeks and am not fully versed...? I would say there is a pedophile ring, to what extent and if the occult is involved I cannot say for certain. They are covering their assess (what are they going to do, say they're guilty?!) and have plausible deniability on their side for now. They have constructed their online presence in such a way that they can scrape by on flimsy excuses and get away with it; that's what hiding in plain sight is all about. That does not mean the allegations deserve to be labeled false. Where there's smoke there's fire. Snopes.com, and other articles surfacing online, have presented few of our main points (or outright made up the information we are investigating), glossed over several other glaring issues, and came to a conclusion just like that? They mentioned none of the three above videos I have sited nor countless other potential connections. Everything addressing this spins it that we are all conspiracy nuts yet none of our concerns have been legitimately addressed. It reeks of a cover up.

Thanks for your comment. I do think it's interesting that the NYT "Fact Check" article didn't actually fact check any of the claims at all. At best it was extremely lazy, but one would think if this was all so absurd that debunking at least SOME of the actual research would be relatively easy for them. Instead they just sort of said "Oh poor Alefnatis, he's getting death threats now" without actually addressing any of the points covered in the research at all. I may include a reference to this in follow-ups. Rather striking for an article with "Fact Check" in the headline didn't bother to even try to check any facts.

Thank you for this very good summary!

yes you are right, we need to cool down and analyse the facts.

Of course the art collection of the Paedestas is a bit creepy, but it's not forbidden to collect creepy art. It's also not forbidden to make bad jokes like that ape-woman. And, yes, it's even not forbidden to take creepy pictures of your kids – although it's not a good idea to post them online.

I know people who like to do creepy stuff and have a dark sense of humour – but they never ever would do anybody any harm!

And you can be a fan of Marina Abramovic without being a perv or devil worshipper. There are many artists dealing with creepy topics. Some of them just like to shock the public or maybe also draw our attention to these things! Art also has something to do with telling us something about society. And artists are sometimes very sensitive people who are feeling the nastiness happening everywhere in that society – so they are more messengers than the business happening every week in that society, so they are most dangerous than wrongdoers.

I think there are other things, which are much more alarming – for example these “paedo”-symbols and also being close with people like Jeffrey Epstein – or that Haiti-“orphan”-scandal.

Now I see the danger, that there is “disinfo” popping up. But we need some serious research. Your article is a good way to start!

I believe #PizzaGate is part of a larger story of immense corruption, based on the #FBIAnon 4chan chat of July 3rd. He hinted at something as large as the pedo ring but also that it was all tied into corruption with the Clinton Foundation. It's more than just trafficking in people, there is information and weapons too. SAP documents were found on Hillary's server. Those had to have been manually transferred away from the State Dept's secure classified email system. WTF could she have needed that stuff for? Many suspect direct links between foreign donations to CGI and arms sales to Bahrain. The scope of the problem makes me dizzy.

One other thing to consider, is if these allegations are even partly true then the mysterious deaths that follow the Clintons seem to make more sense – instead of the theory that the killings were done by contract killers it's more plausible that they were done by "volunteers." The winner of the rock-scissors-paper game was the one who got to do the killing.

And it's not just the Democrats. Apparently Dennis Hastert had more problems than just the pedophilia charges.

I don't like to pimp my own writing on other people's blogs, but you may want to check out this story http://bondibox.newsvine.com/_news/2016/11/14/36347525-the-sum-of-all-conspiracies

Maybe there is more than just pedophilia at work...

The legend of Lilith derives from a theory that Genesis has two creation accounts (Genesis 1:27 and 2:7, 20–22). The two stories allow for two different women. Lilith does not appear in the Bible (apart from a debatable reference comparing her to a screech owl in the Hebrew text of Isaiah 34:14). Some rabbinic commentators, however, refer to Lilith as the first created woman, who refused to submit to Adam and fled from the garden. Eve was then created to be Adam's helper. After their expulsion from the garden, Adam reunited for a time with Lilith before finally returning to Eve. Lilith bore Adam a number of children, who became the demons of the Bible. According to kabbalistic legend, after Adam's reconciliation with Eve, Lilith took the title Queen of the Demons and became a murderer of infants and young boys, whom she turned into vampires.

The near First Lady... and the near First Woman...

Ok, that's a far-fetched idea, but I saw the comment about werewolves in the photograph you have of the creepy freezer that they had, and immediately thought about vampires and their notorious history with children abductions, and that triggered the story of Lilith to come to mind. The baby coffins, and the hole in the ground and other notable mentions just all made me think of vampires.

brian, the only thing it suggests to me is that I know that to purposely produce a break— that is multiple personalities— that this process is trauma based. Tor example it often involves making them eat disgusting things. I'm thinking of MK-ultra type things. In other words some of these kidnappings would serve a dual purpose— the abuse and also the uses to which multiple personality is put. Come to think of it if children are to be used when they are old enough to remember their abusers, trauma and especially becoming a multiple, would disrupt memory.

I can't really imagine a use for dentistry by a nondentist except trauma (torture). Small children wd probably have no dental records. But of course you're correct that older kids would. However the mindset of these people is such that I think they were not concerned about being caught.

I expect that Epstein's place was fully equipped w cameras & that the patrons knew this. Their willingness to put themselves into the power of TPTB, CIA, etc would be a confidence-builder for their superiors. In fact probably the act of putting oneself into the power of one's superiors is a condition for advancement. Sorry this isn't well-organized; it's late & my mind isn't with it.

Kris, I didn't think of that. Horrible. I've often thought that a prerequisite for getting a lot of people to join the whole power cult is the deformation of the seat of pleasure. The Jewish cabala is relevant here, in encouraging an absolute obsession with fulfilling one's every sexual sensation.

Then, too, there is the idea that by not accepting normal moral limits that one is setting oneself into a special godlike category. Much is made of the Biblical story of Adam & Eve & God's forbidding them to eat of the Tree of Knowledge. The "Illuminati" have made this quite central: Only they are illumined, fully rational cuz they reject morality, which according to them is not rational.

This is a good compilation of the research of #Pizzagate. I don't want to call this research evidence, though, because nearly all of it is speculation.

At best, this warrants a private investigation of the suspects, with emphasis on "private". What 4chan and certain Redditors are doing is a public witch hunt, which will not only damage the case should it ever come to pressing charges and go to trial, but it damages the reputation of innocent parties who are only remotely connected. It's a perversion of justice. In addition to law enforcement, we have a federal bureau that conducts these kinds of things, and they know how to operate without the help of "vigilant citizens" and conspiracy theorists. If your response is that these government agencies are all in on the operation as well, I can only surmise that you're just another loony conspiracy theorist, if not a partisan with an axe to grind against the Clintons.

If there is an underground sex trade happening (and that's a giant IF), then a proper criminal investigation needs to proceed. Posting tenuous and outright false leads from dubious sources (most of which you have failed to cite within this article. Was it 4chan?) is not the way to properly investigate a crime. WikiLeaks has revealed their bias against Hillary already, so I wouldn't take their Podesta leaks as proof of anything. They would be suspects in this investigation as well.

Look, I'm not a great fan of Trump or Hillary, but there is a big difference between allegations and real evidence and testimony. It's really easy to plant evidence on someone, or to make someone else look guilty of a crime by connecting two unrelated dots (such as a BDSM "hanky code" and an e-mail mentioning a handkerchief). It's easy to inject codewords into someone's hacked e-mails and then point to them as evidence. It is much more difficult to attain and examine actual proof of a crime. There is a reason for the term "burden of proof." Matching restaurant logos with supposed "pedophile symbols" (again, you failed to cite a source for these) as proof of a child pornography ring will not hold up in court.

Many of these posts can be considered public defamation, which is likely the real reason that these #Pizzagate posts are being pulled offline from Reddit, 4chan, etc: to avoid any potential legal liability. You can't just publicly accuse people of being secret pedophiles and not expect some blowback.

Ultimately, this feels like another operation to discredit certain politicians (and a couple of blameless artists whom the Podestas liked) in the name of justice, with a large helping of Satanic panic. So forgive me if I'm not fully on board with the #Pizzagate hysterics. Let a proper criminal investigation happen without an online brigade against these people.

FYI, the source for the symbols is an unclassified FBI document. Thanks for pointing out there was no source for that; I have now linked to the PDF. I also go out of my way to mention several times that the findings are absolutely not enough for any kind of legal case to be proceeded, so I agree with you on that — since I mention it in the piece more than once, nothing new there. Not sure why you mention that since it's clearly addressed in the piece. Also, the SubReddit was banned because people were posting things that contained contact info for people which is clearly against the site's TOC, which is a no brainer.

I cite a great many sources in the article; kindly let me know which other specifics I failed to cite and I would be thrilled to dig them up and update it. Thanks for your comment! No one blames you for not being "on board," as this article merely summarizes the phenomenon and, though this writer thinks further research is warranted, the purpose of any opinion piece is to provide an opinion and then let the reader make their own determination — and this is an opinion blog, filled with opinion articles. In fact, the only time I used the word "proof" in the entire article is to say "Proof? Far from it."

But we must keep shedding light on darkness, the Church is no longer asleep. We will be praying. We will do our part to stay informed. We are called to protect the children and others who cannot protect themselves. EVIL will NOT prevail in our country and the corruption will be emptied out.. The evil and vileness against our children will not prevail. just wait and see. if it is true, and my spiritual eyes tell me it is... it WILL be exposed. keep up the investigations and we will keep praying and will act when it is time. Praying for the children now that it will come to a screeching halt. We Must protect the children. RIP Monica who apparently gave her life in Haiti for this just cause!

Hmmmm... it is all good and well to point out that much of the evidence presented here would never hold up in court or possibly never be used to build a case, but the same can be said for the Westminster pedophile case in the UK. Twenty years ago there were people presenting evidence much like this research, and it was all tossed aside by those in the police and media at the time. Turns out later, that everything that came to light in the investigation was true, and the people who were presented with the case file were actually part of the whole sordid business, and buried it to prevent further investigation! The police and media protected those sick pedos right up to their deaths without any of them ever facing a court for their crimes against children. Even Lord Jenner got off by claiming he was too old and infirm to face trial, yet continued to hold his seat in the House of Lords. To this day, both the media and the authorities who should be digging into this with gusto, are protecting these criminals, because of the high profile people they are!

In Germany, Belgium and Norway, rumours of pedophilia and child trafficking among the political elite have also proven to be true, with some politicians facing jail time and being relieved of their jobs.

There is much information online that points to this all being connected, it is an international pedophile ring, involving very prominent and well known individuals across the globe. Brushing it off as hearsay and conspiracy is naive!

Where there's smoke, there's fire...and this smoke has set off a fire alarm!

Thanks for your comment, Rian. Indeed, there have been well-documented cover ups in the past. Unfortunately, the horrifying scope and nature of the crimes causes many to dismiss them outright, further empowering the alleged perpetrators in cases that turned out to be true. Thanks for pointing out the precedents in the UK and elsewhere; it's important to remember that we've all seen this movie before — and it turned out that massive cover-ups were instrumental in getting the cases ignored or tossed out, etc.

I'm not buying it, this is a classic case of casting an ever-widening net and cherry picking things that fit the narrative. Perhaps Tony Podesta has a perverted taste in art but I highlight doubt there's some child sex traffic ring here.

BTW That article from WaPo is was not scrubbed and it's adding the misinfo by saying so

Here is the article, page 1 – 3 of 3:

<http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/articles/A43480-2004Sep22.html>

http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/articles/A43480-2004Sep22_2.html

http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/articles/A43480-2004Sep22_3.html

Yet some "sluth" has added the conspiracy by archiving it here:

<https://archive.fo/vddrO>

and then claiming that it was scrubbed, hinting at a cover-up.

The article is 12 years old and since it was published the WaPo website has changed platforms and they clearly archived old material. That is the exact page that is archived, 404 error in the upper left corner included (because the widget doesn't work on the new platform).

speaking of scrubbing, of course the pizza owner scrubbed his Instagram of photos of grandkids and other kids when people started using them saying they were part of a child sex ring. He just said today that his granddaughter is the one with her arms taped to the table, that the photo was a cute photo snapped when the kids were goofing around, as kids do.

And of course the pizza shop down the street changed their logo, people are getting death threats for crying out loud. They were probably shocked to learn that something as simple as a triangle within a triangle would be similar to that symbol in the FBI doc and had no choice but to change it. There was once a toy manufacture who had to recall a toy because of hysteria started by a woman who was on the lookout for the heart within a heart symbol and brought it to the attention of the local news. Google it. I bet if you cast the net further and include the next street over you can find some weird satanic symbols or something in other logos just as conspiracy nuts have done for years.

I am also concerned that you may have included weirdest pieces of Biljana Djurdjevic's art in a way that makes it sound like it was at Tony's house. This article here:

washingtonlife.com/2015/06/05/inside-homes-private-viewing/ mentions the names of several artists featured in his home. If we look over all the pieces of work of dozens of artists that we know are featured in his home at the work of dozens of artists sure you are going to find some that have some racy pieces. Is it known these exact pieces are in his house or that he just has some of her work – she has lots of photos without children.

Perhaps her pieces featuring children tied up have a story behind them, such as highlighting human rights abuses known to be an issue for Serbian children. Actually ha, I just found something to back up my theory:

<http://www.kunstaspekte.de/biljana-djurdjevic-paradise-lost-2006-09/>

"The main theme explored by Biljana Djurdjevic in the new series of artworks is denied childhood. Exposed to the violence of images circulated by the media, children are portrayed with an extreme realism, caught in the moment in which they are unconsciously shaping a new identity.

In these artworks, the artist shows the inner nature of the children's personalities with a skilful attention to detail, concentrating on features such as their lost, questioning eyes or their clenched, tense hands. The scenes are depicted through an abstract environment and these settings go on to serve as a catalyst which transports the children into another realm of consciousness.

While Biljana Djurdjevic's earlier works reflected the expressions of violence tied to Balkan culture and drew inspiration from Socialist propaganda as well as from a variety of great artists – ranging from masters of the Italian Rinascimento and Barocco eras such as Michelangelo to more contemporary talents such as Francis Bacon – her new works show a transition in style and subject matter as well as drawing inspiration from Byzantine Icons. The images nonetheless maintain their characteristic still and stark form and the dialogue which results induces the viewer into being mesmerised into a feeling of eternal transfixion.

War, violence and the shocking images of our times are all hardships which the protagonists of Biljana Djurdjevic's works seem to have no direct contact with: the subjects seem to occupy a dimension which is at once unrelated and abstract from both our and their own existence. The adolescents of Biljana Djurdjevic works, their children, seem to have just awoken from a dream, caught in the passage between a hypnagogic state and reality – it remains an ambiguity: what is the real dimension, what is the oneiric one?"

Yes, he has Djurdjevic pieces in his home depicting abused children. And of course they have a story behind them! A story of abused children, their consciousness being split by abuse. Most people wouldn't love having paintings of abused children hanging in their living rooms, but sure — it's not proof that he himself is an abuser. I also already note in the article that he is an avid art collector, with many works by many artists, and the piece already addresses the death threats, etc. these businesses are receiving as a potential catalyst for the changes taking place. Thanks for your note regardless, though. I have added a picture of his living room to show as much, and have edited the language referencing the WaPo article, as you're correct that the previous wording made it look like manipulation was afoot. Thanks for your input!

I haven't read through all of the comments, but Dan's post explores what I think is a conveniently ignored line of research for pizzagate investigators. Lots of posts of artwork have been associated with Comet

Ping Pong and Tony Podesta that are indeed disturbing to view. Using Dan's example of Biljana Djurdjevic's work, her paintings might on a superficial level appear to be a glorification of child abuse or pornographic, or even pornographic. Most of the people pointing to her artwork as evidence seem to assume there is no other interpretation than that the work is a literal depiction of child abuse, that it is either promoting or celebrating it or that it reflects at best a callous attitude about pedophilia, and is an insight into the character of the artists or any person who might view or collect such work. The passage describing Djurdjevic's paintings that Dan shared suggest that literally illustrating children suffering pedophilia was not the artists intent. Her paintings utilize the imagery to depict the concept of denied childhood, children in exposed underwear and assuming vulnerable poses in an abstract environment is symbolic of the effect of real horrors of the world, war, poverty, suffering on children and their identity.

Everybody understandably wants these pictures explained since of course, most of us are not adept at recognizing and deciphering imagery that artists put into their work. But it often seems to me that the investigators stop at pasting this picture or that picture, and assume that it is reasonable to label them as sick or pornographic and shifting the burden of proof to others to prove they are not. I think any one of those who post these pictures, instead of stopping at demanding an explanation, could search for the explanation themselves. Dan found some information that demystifies Djurdjevic's paintings, and once you understand the artists purpose in the imagery selected, the assumption that this is art intended to cater to sexual depravity is no longer justified. Even imagery of figures engaging in sexual acts is not automatically just pornographic. I remember one thing from a college art class (no I am not an artist, I only took the class as a required general studies course every student took) sexuality in art is often used as symbolic of the creative force, and often the figures are not literal humans but symbolic of mythological concepts. I wonder if there couldn't be more attempts to contact the artist or to find reviews and critiques of the artists works. I'll bet in most cases, the purpose of the artist is a lot less sinister than assumed.

Also, I wish there were better documentation of what artwork was actually displayed at Comet Ping Pong and what are just other works of the artists.

Overall, I do want to thank you for the tone and measured, reasonable approach you have taken with this article. Particularly, I want to thank you for taking pains to recognize that the case for Pizzagate is hardly proof. I personally am inclined to believe that the case is built upon logical fallacies of confirmation bias and clustering illusion. I don't deny that pedophilia exists and that some elites in society engage in it. However, I am extremely skeptical that the Clintons and Podesta are operating some child trafficking network or that Comet Ping Pong is somehow a hub of a child sex trafficking ring whether the Clintons or Podesta are involved or not. While I acknowledge pedophilia is a real phenomenon, McCarthyism whether its communism or sexual depravity as the culprit, is also an extremely destructive phenomenon that hurts a lot of innocent people.

Thanks for your comment. A few notes — I think it's important to note that you're falling into the common misconception that Pizzagate is accusing Clinton/Podesta of operating a child trafficking network. This isn't true. Just as in the UK's VIP pedophilia scandals, involvement doesn't equate to leadership, if there is leadership of these networks at all. You also focus a great deal on the art, which is understandable, since it is pushed front and center as part of the "evidence," but this is merely because the research had to start somewhere, and in that circumstance it starts with the most immediate material. Art, and artists, should be able to convey any range of ideas. This is essential to a free society where expression, myth, thought, symbolism, and fantasy, even (or perhaps especially) in their darkest forms, should never be considered crimes. However, the overall argument is merely that the art adds to a larger picture of an abundance of smoke indicating the possibility of fire.

I will be releasing a new Pizzagate article on further developments that will contain some strange revelations that have nothing to do with strange or macabre tastes, which indeed are not crimes and should not, by themselves, be considered evidence of one. My hope is that after releasing it, folks that share your opinion will not focus so much on the idea of Pizzagate being based disproportionately and unfairly on "thought crimes" derived from the discovery of the strange or potentially disturbing-seeming artwork, and start to see that there is indeed bona fide evidence of a situation going on that, even if none of the disturbing artwork were taken into account at all, most definitely seem to indicate something illegal.

Thanks again for your comment, and regardless of your conclusion as my coverage continues, I do hope you stay tuned for our next piece outlining some of the strange new discoveries!

Do you remember the personal friend of the Clintons who was caught exiting Haiti w several dozen children? She was told by Haitian police that if she were to try again to spirit children out of Haiti that she would be arrested. She subsequently was detained w 35 "orphans" which she was spiriting out of the country in order to care for them, she said. Trouble was that all the children had parents, She had told them the children were going to a resort where the parents could come & visit them.

Doubtless when the Clintons personally intervened to spring her from jail it was because they dislike child theft. (sarcasm) For what purpose do you imagine they were being kidnapped?

What the citizen investigators of Pizzagate want is a real and professional investigation to be made. Obviously, w the degree of impunity which exists in our country that is unlikely—but still desirable.

For what purpose did B Clinton visit J Epstein's Orgy Island 11 times? He was a convicted sex offender, who was nevertheless a good friend of the Clintons. For what purpose did Epstein, who is not a dentist, have a dental chair and all the paraphernalia for extractions? One is generally safe from being bitten by willing partners— or even by adults who are being coerced. But children? What part of the body of a violator is being protected? And the Clintons were FRIENDS of this creep!

Thank you for this information. What y'all are doing is awesome and if true, May save so many innocent lives. It's disturbing to say the least to think of what the implications are. It seems to me if the children can be identified, this would be the catalyst for a criminal investigation. I wonder if wikileaks found pictures? Has anyone matched facial photos with NCMEC?

<https://www.facebook.com/harms2end/> That's a Facebook page where a (virtuous) pedophile comes out in the open and, using the vehicle of poetry and its symbols, talks about what it means to be a pedophile in today's society, where pedophilia comes from, and how to heal if you are one or have been abused by one. This link has been sent to many major mainstream news sites as well as alternative ones, all over the place, yet it's just ignored. Instead, people, like you and your followers perhaps, like the vile, the grotesque, the speculative, and I have to wonder if that disgust is, flipped, some kind of attraction. What to see the real world? Hopefully you'll feel it too.

Not sure what exactly you're accusing me of. This is about hardcore systemic abuse, not a pedophile tortured by his or her urges. Thanks for your input, though, that page sounds enlightening.

Also important to note that preference and fantasy are not crimes, but as soon as a pedophile victimizes someone, a clinical diagnosis does not exclude them from paying the legal price. Just as a clinical psychopath would be held accountable for fraud, assault, murder, or any other crime — even those rooted in their disorder — a pedophile who enacts their fantasies on real people cannot be given a pass merely because they are tortured sufferers of a psychological issue. I understand that many pedophiles were themselves abused as children, just as many psychopaths were either abused or neglected as youngsters, but all sane adults must be held responsible if others. Time may tell whether or not that's what we have in the #Pizzagate affair.

I have only now seen your replies, hence my late one. My original comment was not an accusation. it was more in response to some of the comments. On a page that sounds off about reality being what we are told it is, as if to say reality is different than what's generally believed, in this article and in your reply to me you are speaking from reality as we have been told reality is, that we are separate individuals connected only by outer contact, and some people are good, or are at least better, and some are bad, and to deal with the bad people we must root them out and hold them accountable, which is to punish them in some form, a revenge the state takes in the name of the victim. Here you are much like mainstream news media, which acts like an arm of the police, exposing bad people so the cops can get them. You aren't seeing outside the system.

I would bet, however, you don't much think such exposing and punishing actually stops the bad behavior in society, doesn't even generally stop the ones caught unless they're locked up for life or killed. It's just the way we do it isn't it, have always done it. It's not only we punish people who harm and kill, we hate them too, see them as not us, see them as something to rid ourselves of, not as someone to help and bring back to us, or back to the place they see us enough not to hurt us because they see themselves not only as individuals but also as us, a place we are not in ourselves, wanting to hurt them.

I encounter this all over alternative media, making bold statements about how different reality is from what we've been told but projecting the same reality we are told about, an experience of reality where the outer world is the almost exclusive focus, where several hours of experience of each day is a virtual blank, where there is no shared identity in the depths of us, where we are separate from everything else and everything is separate from us, living as it's believed we do in our own private bubble of consciousness that goes no further than our personal boundaries, does not mix and mingle with the consciousness of others, what adds up to a perpetual state of conflict between us and them, we the good or right people, they the bad or wrong ones, that fundamental division so characteristic of humanity. You employ it here in the article for example.

It's the animal way of confronting reality, or really, animal reality that does not see the larger field, only its feeding range, like a horse that would know its pasture but not that it sits in a world or that world is traveling through space. I imagine it's popped into your head a few times there must be more we're not seeing. You probably also feel we can make a better society than we have, and to do that it would have to be something more realistic than everyone just suddenly deciding to be good. it would take a change of consciousness like unto the one we experienced when we stepped enough out of the animal to see ourselves differently than them, unless you believe everything was just created at once as is, which would be a change towards a more holistic view of ourselves where it just might happen that bad people might decide to be good, using the distinctions common in our current reality construct. Bad people tend to get better when they're loved. When they're hated they tend to get worse.

To be honest, I'm having a difficult understanding your thesis here. You seem to be making a lot of assumptions/claims about how I and other writers on this site view the world and the human race, but I am not sure exactly what they are. Anyway, thanks for your contribution.

I think it's reasonable to assume of you (and this site in general) are a person of integrity, and you do not make wild speculations but base your investigations on reason and not emotion, as the most recent article on this site about Pizzagate, but it amounts to something else the public has to be afraid of, a public that isn't generally ruled by reason but by emotions. You reasonably demonstrate where you point out the what appears to be efforts by the mainstream press to cover it up, citing examples where that has been done in the past about other things.

In your reply, however, you use common terms we use when we want someone to feel they have used wrong argument technique, i.e. assumption/claim, without addressing my argument, and you simply say you don't understand me, and the suggestion is there however slight that I'm just not making sense. Then you more or less make it clear the dialogue is over.

You do not come from a holistic perspective. In that view, crimes that individuals commit is the surfacing of hidden unconscious process, like a secret poisonous river, taking place in the inner of a community or humanity in general. The criminal, due to nature and/or nurture, is a weak link in the chain, who manifests that hidden underground process. They become the scapegoat for the whole thing, who we focus on so as not to see the process in us. To only focus on them as if they are the whole problem, holding them accountable as you say, is like cutting off a head a hydra, more heads just keep growing back.

Your view, which is the current view of human reality in relation to crime, is to cut off the individual heads, and what you mean by holding someone accountable is to punish them for their crimes, harm them because they've caused harm, and you seem to believe the revenge taken on the part of the victim by the state or powers that be heals the victim or at least helps them heal. I don't think I'm wrong to assume these things of you, though you would not use the word revenge or harm I'd imagine.

In a holistic view, the criminal is to be healed not harmed, not held accountable for their actions in the sense of they're to be punished, but they are responsible for their actions, a responsibility that includes healing the victim.

In a society based on holism the impossibility I seem to be speaking would be possible. To base us on a view of the whole would also mean every moment of our experience has meaning and importance, and so the largely unconscious hours we spend in sleep, where the hidden processes show themselves, would be as meaningful to our life as outer experience in not even more so, speaking of things we might discover about ourselves becoming conscious of that experience.

A holistic perspective also makes it an aim to become conscious of higher or more integral human experience, i.e. what's been experienced by many people over our history and called by many names, but I might just call it here enlightenment to give some sense there is more to us in experiencing identity than the separate ego. I can continue with other things, but you may now understand what I'm saying.

In regards to pedophilia, I'm including a link to an article of mine that show the roots of the sexual disorder, as well as roots of others, and I'm also including a link to an example of a cover up that if it's true would help us understand human evil in a whole other light. It might even be that in Pizzagate something of this is present, not that Pizzagate in itself as it's being presented is real, but it hits close enough to something else as to be giving off all these warning signs.

You must understand, though, I can't reply to or really address an argument that I don't understand. It's not a cop out, it's an impossibility. I'm still finding your argument a little unclear, but I think I actually more or less agree with your conclusions on the roots of criminality, but I don't believe they can be cured if they don't want to be. They're working under the whims of the same non-holistic assessments and reactions to reality, and healing has to be a willful and conscious process.

I have to say, random commenters on the Internet implying that their experience or perspective has allowed them to become spiritually enlightened (even just compared to most people) generally turns people off, as it's just not an easy sell, even if there are great ideas being shared. I most definitely believe that the ego is little more than a tool to help our physical selves make sense of this physical world, and that our true selves exist completely beyond the physical and the "me" that we are trained to see as the be-all, end-all. I just don't see that belief healing pedophilia or other forms of antisocial criminality. I do appreciate your clarifications, input, and links!

donnyduke · January 30, 2017 - 2:40 am ·

There are more ways of continuing a discussion other than a comment section, where ideas can be made more clear, like the willingness of who's considered a criminal to undergo a holistic and integral healing process that includes healing the victim.

I'll mention here that there would be many who want healing, and it would certainly help those who don't want healing, who only want to harm or kill, to get goodwill from their community as opposed to ill will. If we were to become aware of our inner process, what Jung calls our collective subconscious and what I call our underlying shared identity, we might find that underground river of ill will to be more a determinant in crime than even the individual's own will to commit crime.

If people only get ill will in their inner from their community and world, that's more will to harm and kill, certainly not less. From what I see of news media, alternative as well as mainstream, if they don't always have an attitude of ill will towards criminals, they sure don't have goodwill.

As to the not yet generally or scientifically accepted egoless state of enlightenment, what's also called unitive consciousness as well as the opposite, emptiness, I didn't say or claim to be there (I'm not, but I've seen it a couple of times). I mentioned it as a higher mode of the organization of our awareness than ego, one that if we accepted as real, we'd, or the many of us, would begin to reach for it because it's the thing to do like to survive and thrive well is now.

It would be in the atmosphere of such a shift of human identity that the healing I'm speaking of would not only be much easier but the norm.

In my own healing, it's not a belief in it but a concrete reality I experience every single day and night. It comes from within and without, in the inner as very brief experiences out of ego, inner voice and vision, and dreams. On the outer it's the organization of circumstance itself, as if they conscious healing power in the inner were also arranging the outer too. It's to see and here these things that it becomes not a belief but an everyday lived reality. In that knowledge, which not only informs your will but unites with it, your nature can change enough to harmonize with and no longer harm your community and world.

Only knowledge can do that, not belief, though faith in the process is vital too, since, in today's world, if you are say a pedophile, then the amount of ill will you're getting is so much it's almost as much of an obstacle on your will to harm than your own, something you have to overcome constantly, hence I'm speaking openly about it.

The very sleeve of faith built in all, that's what I'm discussing.

★ Loading...

donnyduke · January 30, 2017 - 3:18 am ·

I would add that, to make it clear, I'm speaking about the aim of life most often put before us being the betterment of humanity and not survival, which we've abstracted to mean making money or getting a powerful position to live comfortably. That betterment is a further evolution of human identity, towards our true selves that exist beyond the physical and "me". Paradoxically, we won't survive as a species unless make such a change.

I'll also add, unless my stats on two different blogs are not recording it, you haven't gone to those links. I'll say too that I really appreciate your not only taking the time to reply and being so civil, but also your open-mindedness and your own obvious 'seeing' deeper. If the above article included that, was based on that sight more than on the surface of reality, the heads of the hydra, it wouldn't be just another call, however unintended, to cut off the its heads, leaving the hydra relatively unaffected.

Where is the evidence of this? I have read this elsewhere but seen no proof.

This is a crucial fact that requires a source. It's one of the more wild, bizarre connections.

+ If you could establish proof of a Freud Podesta friendship it is a HUGE circumstantial fact.

+ Find out where the Podestas were on May 3, 2007. If they happened to be in Portugal you have the most bizarre fact of the case. Possibly a smoking gun.

Thanks for your input, I'll look for the source. I avoided getting into the other potential McCann connections for a number of reasons, among them lack of verification and the far-fetched-ness of the Podesta brothers being "boots on the ground" for actual abductions, which seems like an incredible and unnecessary risk even if the overall allegations turn out true.

Totally understand that. It's too terrible, and almost too ridiculous to be believed. The Podesta Wikileaks start May 4, 2007. That in itself lends it ...self to more speculation. I agree that simply linking the Podestas to another known pedophile is pretty strong in its own right.

Yes, and although I'm not inclined to reject something just because it seems absurd on its face, it does seem odd that the Podesta brothers would be so reckless as to commit abductions themselves. However, arrogance/believing you are above the law can make think they can get away with remarkable things. Either way, if more of substance is discovered along those lines you can count on it being included in a follow-up.

I'd recommend rewording or nixing the part about "well established friendship of Freud and Podesta" if it can't be substantiated. Thanks so much for your comment, and for sharing the piece! I looked for the source I had used for that claim and was unable to find it, so I have removed that part from the article until I can find the source again or until new information comes out. The crowdsourced fact-checkers have helped make this piece as fact-based (vs speculation based) as it is, so thanks again for helping (and for your characterization of it as the "definitive summary"). I'm honored. Far too many claims from "anonymous sources" or no real source at all are being reported as fact, and then are then re-reported on a hundred other blogs and websites, despite the original source being shaky, unreliable, or non-existent, which is exactly what kills topics like this from being taken seriously.

Fact and fiction, fact and speculation become so muddled so quickly that folks have no choice but to assume it's all bunk, and I don't blame them. Thanks again!

While Majestic Ape is creepy, her(?) comments about "Jerry" are in reference to Jared Fogle the Subway spokesman who was arrested on charges of having sex with underage girls. The location of the event is stated to be beneath a Subway sandwich shop. It was a tasteless joke about current news. The audience members yelling out "and boys/children" were just trying to beat her to the punchline.

What are the accounts on Tumblr that are posting images of children in distress? I have done research for myself, stemming from Rachel's Tumblr, and have yet to find anything like this.

I'm particularly interested in the dental ones. I see you (or various people) have made the connection between Epstein's dental equipment and this type of "fetish", for lack of a better word. On Comet Ping Pong's Facebook, there is a poster that I think references this:

If we can figure out what this means, it might bring us somewhere.

Pizzagate · November 28, 2016 · 12:18 pm ·

Thank you, that will be helpful. I think, if anything, this dental concept might provide some additional insight.

In relation to the Comet Ping Pong poster I've linked above, it seems the artist was inspired by a comic called Paper Girls. Paper Girls has mentions of Satan in the summary, although I would have to dig into the story more to say it has actual significance. Also, this is confirmed on the artist's Instagram @sophiemcteardesign. Therefore, the artwork itself doesn't seem too suspicious, but like many of the bands that attend CPP, there still may be some hidden meaning behind the concept.

It should also be worth noting that a lot of the occult-type artwork Sophie designs for CPP is strangely left out of her Instagram portfolio. And yet there is an undeniably symbolic and occult-esque nature to many, many of the designs posted on the CPP Facebook? Why leave these out, all except a rare few? They are not bad designs by any means.

In all fairness, I am not extremely familiar with every aspect of progress in this investigation, yet I really hope some potentially prominent people are being researched or contacted, such as Sophie, and the same goes for Sasha Lord (booker for CPP who brings all these absurd bands to a kid-friendly environment). These people might have important info in regards to some of the strangest observations.

★ Loading...

Pizzagate · November 28, 2016 · 12:34 pm ·

Disregard the speculation about Sophie. It seems I've answered my own question, assuming maybe there was another designer. And there is one: Jourdan Betette AKA Magickbat. She does a good majority of the occult artwork.

As a designer myself, I understand it's appropriate for her to create designs for the right audience. Despite being an incredible artist, her exposure as a designer is almost nonexistent and her work entirely focuses on this type of Satanic symbolism (if that wasn't obvious according to her alias). So now my new question is, why would Comet Ping Pong hire someone like her? I highly doubt they just think her work is cool. Perhaps she can provide some insight as to why she feels this type of artwork and the bands that play at CPP are reaching the right audience.

I think it's worth noting that some of Biljana Djurdjevic's paintings have dental chairs and some of them are named the "Dentist Society." I just saw the pics below on your site with the children with bloody teeth. Apparently human teeth are used in occult magic as well. Go figure. I have provided the links below. Cheers and keep up the good work!

Could just be a coincidence, and I can imagine him having dentist work done at home. But just look at her paintings and the titles. The "Barber Shop" one is also very creepy. Has anyone seen anything related to this on instagram posts? Any photos of chairs that could be used for torture or god knows what?

I doubt this is a lead, but better to have too much information than not enough. Maybe we can find some links with dental equipment manufacturers in the same way that pizza parlors have been linked?

(If this has already been posted, I apologize and I'll delete this. Thanks.)

I'm really intrigued by your research. Initially when I caught wind of the #pizzagate scandal (and "spirit cooking by extension) I brushed it off as some sort of right-wing mass hysteria. I've covered the topic of Satanic Panic a lot in my own writing and exposed a lot of the media sensationalism behind it. Reading through the emails myself it's clear that in some instances they are definitely discussing food, while in other instances it seems as if they are using some sort of code in their discussion. Does it imply pedophilia? Not necessarily. I think there are plenty of good reasons for people to want to use code words, especially people in the political arena, but when you examine that combined with all this other circumstantial evidence it is certainly something that makes you go "hmm... maybe there is something to this?"

Unfortunately, my problem is that when I search for this topic it leads me in circles to these known conspiracy theorists. It doesn't make the accusations wrong, but it certainly makes me question the credibility of the information presented. I like that you were able to offer a summary of the facts (or the closest you can get to facts here) and what evidence exists to support these claims.

I look forward to reading your updates as this case evolves.

Thank you Heather. Unfortunately a lot of topics don't get the time of day because they're only covered by sensationalistic "conspiracy websites" which people have rejected categorically as pushers of paranoid nonsense, even when those topics have at least partial truth to them. As a result, they're ignored or shoved into the "tin foil hattery" pile by default, without further investigation, even when aspects are well-worth looking into deeper. Alex Jones' websites are probably the biggest example of this sort of thing.

I'm thrilled to be able to provide more balanced coverage and look forward to continuing to do so.

Cool, I'm a shill. I've always wanted to be a shill. Hopefully the pay is good. Still haven't seen anything that would hold up in a court of law. I'm sure Twitter & Google love it though. Every post about pizzagate makes them wealthier & wealthier. From their perspective it's irrelevant whether it's true or not, they keep getting free content for more advertiser's dollars. One does have to love the hypocrisy of Internet sleuths who live on computers & smartphones built by slave labor from raw materials taken from mines that are controlled by gangs that use rape as a tool of terror. We're all pretty much compromised these days. I think one could make a pretty damn good case that the rampant spread of kiddie porn is a direct result of the Internet & 21st century computer/smartphone addiction. A while back the FBI released a map of the US with a little red dot signifying every computer in America that they knew had downloaded kiddie porn. The entire map was red. Evidently rich & poor alike have a decidedly unnatural predilection for little kids. Also, given the fact that authorities just busted a pedo ring in Norway & one inside the British soccer league I'd say pizzagate, if true, is one little pebble in a sea of human fuckness. When you get down to it, males, as a rule, aren't very picky about where they'll stick their penises. They'll fuck anything from a dead deer to a toddler to a damn corpse. While 4chan's motivations are quite obviously political, in the end, proving pizzagate's truth will literally do nothing unless the underlying sexual sickness that pervades our society is addressed. Considering 4Chan's group predilection for disturbing pornographic imagery, I doubt that they'll be at the forefront of that debate.

I do wonder, given the fact that the humans who crow loudest about a perversion are usually neck deep in that perversion (ie hard core gay bashing Christian Republicans who turn out to be closeted gays) one does have to wonder what a good hack into these self styled sleuth's computers would uncover.

I understand your feeling defensive at being called a shill by other commenters (a characterization I do not endorse,) but wow — you've just crafted the most shockingly cynical statements I've ever read. If you honestly believe that normal/average men are fine, morally or otherwise, with "sticking their penises" into children, much less human and animal CORPSES, just to satisfy some kind of basic primal sexual urge, that's a shocking generalization to make about an entire gender making up roughly half the world's population. If you truly feel that way, that represents a highly dark and disturbing worldview and life must be extremely difficult and upsetting for you. I hope you find more balance in your perspective with time.

You mention pedophilia rings in your article, but there are more. Norway, recently, Belgium, quite prominently, as well as cover ups at the BBC, the Vatican, Penn State, etc. You might want to include a more comprehensive examination of all of these cases to see what they have in common and do not have in common. Code words? Psychologically, is the communal aspect part of the sexual gratification or just necessary to get what they want? Do these cases shed light on the frame of mind of the participants? And the NYT piece needs more careful deconstruction. The NYT only focuses on the site itself and emphasizes Hillary herself, strawmen, as the theory doesn't revolve around the site of the pizza joint itself but starts from Wikileaks and the odd comments. I also am horrified that the staff of the pizza place and owners are being harassed. There is no proof. The internet should not be a tool for mob justice. Leave people alone. Table outrage absent proof: there is no other ethical choice. I would hope you would make this point clearly sort of up front — you do a great job of hedging and explaining the extent or lack there of of the evidence — but a clear statement against harassment can't hurt in my opinion. Thank you.

Ace of Swords · December 1, 2016 · 1:01 am · Reply→

Thanks for your comment, I most certainly condemn the harassment personally and mention that it is unfortunate, but could go deeper in my condemnation to make the point extra clear. Part of the problem is there are so damn many examples of pedophilia rings being uncovered, and often subsequently covered up, that listing and discussing them all is would entail a whole 'nother long-form article.

I'm not condemning you or even looking to you for in depth coverage of pedophilia. I'm not even insulted by the "shill" comment. It's par for the course once a narrative is agreed upon. And it really doesn't take much digging through the stuff that's out there to see that a narrative has been agreed upon. Even though the evidence is, at best, flimsy. Without one victim to be found anywhere except in their fevered imaginations, people believe it's true. Belief will trump facts every single time. Now, anyone who dissents will be a "shill," and should anyone deeply embedded in the mob of "researchers" happen to find anything that contradicts the agreed upon narrative, I'd bet the farm they will not publish it for fear of exile & accusations of shilldom.

Actually I only came back here to see if there were any more pizzagate Cliff Notes so I wouldn't have to wind my way through those long turgid threads of mostly nonsense. Since I am, like everyone else on the Internut, a bloviating wind bag who will prattle on endlessly at the drop of a hat, i commented. Don't take it too seriously pal. Peace.

You think I'm cynical? Really? Then you must be awfully naive bud. Here's a 4Chan "devotee" busted for planning a mass shooting. While investigating that bit of sane male bonding, the authorities discovered kiddie porn images downloaded from...cue spooky music...4Chan.

<http://www.thesmokinggun.com/documents/internet/another-4chan-user-gets-busted-fbi>

& here's 63 pages of news articles, peppered with some commentary, that deal with men who are morally fine with sticking their penises in little kids.

<http://www.rigorousintuition.ca/board2/viewtopic.php?f=8&t=11608>

Also, I really have no idea what you mean by "normal/average." Normal is generally a term that has very little meaning outside of one's own head. Ask 50 people their definition of "normal" & I'd bet that you'd get 50 different answers. Average has little meaning outside of mathematics. When used outside of mathematics, it's a term, much like normal, that has little meaning outside of one's own head.

Ace of Swords · December 1, 2016 · 9:46 am · Reply→

I could dig up 63 pages' worth of news articles about men doing selfless, altruistic, and wonderful things. If you honestly think those articles represent normalcy, mathematical or not, again — I feel truly sorry for you. And if you read my article, you'll see that the entire discovery is partially based on 4Chan's depraved history, so I'm not sure what you believe you're proving here. Anyway, this isn't a place for absurd and off-topic debates on whether or not men are a race of drooling, animalistic rapists and necrophiliacs. Further comments along those lines will be considered off-topic, unhelpful, and hostile, and will not be approved for publication.

Maybe they could shine some light on this situation.

I read in her obituary that their Mother Mary adopted 25 children.

I would love to hear updates on how the men and women adopted by the Podesta family are doing.

Did they marry, go to school, or raise a family?

Or were these children tortured, sodomized, sacrificed, and eaten?

And their internal organs then sold to the highest bidder?

I really am interested to know.

I live mostly away from the mainstream, and have heard almost no details about Pizzagate before today. I was quickly referred to your page, to inform myself. I am not an enthusiastic performer of public debate. Anyway, after reading your page, I looked at Comet Ping Pong's page on Wikipedia, and read about the owner's conflicts with a gentleman from the local Advisory Neighborhood Commission (ANC) by the name of Frank Winstead. Nothing of significance, noise complaints and putting ping pong tables too close to the street. but then I googled Frank Winstead, and was led to an article where several years ago he accused Alefantis of "lying, cheating, stealing, spitting in a customers food, and encouraging both murderers and rapists." This is directly from Washington City Paper. "Murders and rapists." It seems to be understood, probably correctly, that Winstead was angry, emotional, exaggerating to the point of bizarre accusations... So I found this quote from Googling around within ten minutes of never even having read anything about Pizzagate. Perhaps Winstead's rant should have been included in your post, since you seem to be the most respected authority on the subject of this matter. Thank you for putting the time into what you have done here. I don't usually dig deep into things like this, and would go crazy if I put in the effort you did, for my own curiosity and of course, it is important what you have done, without question, as so many people are interested in the topic. so once again, thanks.

You're very welcome, thanks so much for your comment. I considered including the Frank Winstead quotes, as they were certainly interesting. However, I felt they were too easy to discount as hyperbole based on his frustration, particularly since he is rather vague about how he concluded that Alefantis spits in food. His "murderers and rapists" comment, to me, also seemed to be in the context of having children out in the street using the al fresco ping pong tables unsupervised in an urban setting with potential for crime, although it is certainly more interesting given the nature of more recent info being uncovered.

And he was was so ridiculed by his peers, (whether correctly or not), that they might distract from more of the immediate information coming out.

But thanks for sharing, I definitely considered including him in the piece, and it may be helpful for folks to know that part of the history.

Hi there,

Great post – as you yourself have said, it's a work in progress to establish actual facts, or at least very strong circumstantial evidence which links together in a strong enough manner so as to warrant further investigation.

Which brings me to a thought regarding the investigation of these matters by 'the authorities'. I think it's well understood in the world of criminal justice that a good proportion of the 'higher-ups' are in the pocket of persons or entities (corporate, not vampiric... although...?) which are, as one progresses higher & higher, all in each other's pockets vis kickbacks & blackmail, or wish fulfilment, or by combinations of such. If a group of persons who are involved in that world (law enforcement, espionage, justice), who are men & women of good standing, with solid ethics, who despise the evil which lurks beneath, could possibly get together in the pursuit of a take-down of evil satanic abusers, with such good Samaritans being (crucially) of sufficient joint authority to issue actions which can have an impact on the world stage, then what could we expect?

We could perhaps expect a strong symbolic message to the world, a message which invites the attention of citizen enquirers due to its huge significance – and the ‘coincidence’ factor which almost beggars belief, and in fact invites incredulity, puzzlement, and even disbelief in the time soon after its appearance. Bearing in mind that anyone who has investigated any of the details of the occult world within which such darkness as #PizzaGate can be found (as a manifestation of the ‘death cult/ systemic & ritual/ mind-control abusers’ faction, sadly lodged permanently in the homes & enterprises of many of the elite – by which token I intend to include both they & their servile underlings) – any investigation of such will reveal that SYMBOLS are their currency. I don’t claim to be an expert in ‘symbology’, but I think a pretty good symbol to fix the attention of citizen (& law enforcement/ espionage/ justice) investigators the world over, would be one that is unmistakably relevant to an unfolding investigation which pertains to the horrors of the network apparently behind #PizzaGate.

I refer to the Metropolitan Police of the UK releasing the identi-fit images of Tony & John Podesta as being among the perpetrators of the abduction of Madeline McCann. As it appears, from reading into the circumstances admirably expressed in the original blog post & subsequent comments on this page: any Wikileaks-prompted investigation of the Clintons, which thereafter leads to the matter of Podesta’s emails, which leads to the terrors of #PizzaGate – could well eventually end up stirring up such upheaval in the hidden world which exists behind the political soundbytes & media glamour (being linked as it is to various levels of law enforcement/ espionage/ justice) – that people & networks of good men & women, might be themselves stirred to action of a wholly positive nature, though they might have to link with other networks, perhaps even in other countries, necessarily obfuscating their direct involvement, in order to remain in positions of influence (and nor dead, either). A decision might be thereby be taken to release information in a famous ‘cold case’ of child abduction/ possible molestation or even murder, which evidence itself draws the attention sufficiently to stir up a viral awareness of what’s going on, paradoxically as the information bears relevance to an apparently unrelated ‘hot case’, albeit one which the mainstream politicos & media trumpeteers have decided to obfuscate completely, banning all mention of it as ‘fake news’....

Could it be that the Met Police release of the identi-fit imagery which so perfectly – PERFECTLY – matches the Podesta brothers – could it be that the a secretive society of committed men & women on both sides of the Atlantic, having influential members within the Metropolitan Police, determined & agreed amongst themselves that they would launch a massive prompt to the high importance of the continuation of citizen investigation (with covert law enforcement/ espionage/ justice support) into #PizzaGate & related issues, with an implied warning that we recognise that the hidden occult world of ritual abusers is very, very real, and requires perhaps nothing short of a revolution to conquer.

Until that revolution comes, and I personally believe it won’t come without divine assistance (due to the immeasurably corrupt underbelly of the planetray plutarchs, oligarchs, corporate fascists, and all the minions they have cultivated over the centuries, despite the bold activities of those who resist them), the word is out. The release of the identi-fit images shows us that there is covert sympathy & perhaps even the availability of assistance for those who were wondering if it was too dark to go on alone through the dank, foul, abhorrent & scum-filled rabbit hole – which by its labyrinthine, demonic design is inevitably something that we cannot handle individually, in my humble opinion.

Godspeed to those who drive the hidden & careful resistance against the powers of hell.

Mayor de Blasio reads 'Secret Pizza Party' to Queens kids — and the plot mirrors the fund-raising probe he's caught up in

Thanks for sharing! I remember reading about that. At the very least, a very bizarre choice of book for the mayor to read to children, and parents on Amazon reviews and elsewhere seem to agree. The general lesson seems to be that secrets are good, fun, and give you power over others. Even in the absence of a wider scandalous context, it definitely seems like a terrible message for De Blasio to promote.

One quick thing I noticed... When heavy breathers were preform in the basement and doing that monolog with the audience... She says they are below a subway shop.. And Jared (not Jerry) (from subway.. Who was arrested for child porn/underage sex stuff) is known to hang out down here... Then some in the audience says he likes little boys and children... And she says that, I think that was his manager. SHE was she's definitely talking about Jared the subway spokesperson... Jared's manager got caught up in the scandal along side Jared.

Hello???

To anyone who is still here, I'm not sure how I missed this whole thing, but I just found out about this whole pizzagate affair this past week. I am absolutely blown away by the level of depravity and filth that I've read about over the last few days.

I'm also equally disappointed that in every blog I read about pizzagate, all comments seem to have stop around Jan/ Feb of 2017 . Why has everyone stopped talking about this??? What about the children who are being victimized??? Do people really give up this easily because of smear campaigns by mass media?

Is anybody still here, and willing to pick up the research with me where other's have left off?

Thanks for your comment, Probity. The research continues on both Voat.co and, to some extent, image boards such as 4Chan. Breakthroughs have slowed to a trickle, but the researchers always appreciate newcomers, and are continuing to dig. Join the Pizzagate group at Voat.co to get involved.

Thank you for the response, Ace of Swords. And I want to thank you for taking the time and effort to write such a clear, concise piece of work.....a solid basis to pick up research on this. It's hysterical that Wikipedia claims that this entire investigation is a witch hunt. If you read the wiki, the first sentence reads " Pizzagate is a conspiracy that's been debunked".....2 of the mass media shills' favorite catchphrases, before even getting past the first sentence. And have you seen the "debunking facts" section? Pathetically laughable. Why has NO mass media outlet who claims this is debunked, ever mentioned the following:

- Alefantis' instagram account, filled with bizarre photos of children, with well known pedophilic code words in the captions?
- The very obviously coded language in Podesta's emails, using well established pedophilic terms?
- the fact that the people following Alefantis all seem to have an unusual affinity for the occult and images of prepubescent children?
- Alefantis is being portrayed as just a lowly pizza shop owner, when GQ magazine (the same GQ that you find in any supermarket or bookstore) called him one of the 50 most powerful people in Washington DC????
- What about the email claiming that Dennis Hastert, a convicted pedophile, should essentially go and hide somewhere????? So they feel empathy for the pedophile, but no signs of empathy for the victims????

Literally NONE of these things have been addressed in ANY mainstream media outlet, and that alone shows anyone with common sense that something is clearly being hidden.

After reading this, my first thought was of the soldiers who fight and those who have died, to defend what this great country is SUPPOSED to represent. Our military men and women who routinely go into harm's way, do not fight and give their lives so that a few degenerates can have the freedom to rape children and get away with it. The investigation will continue at all costs. It will not stop until these children are saved.

And we aren't staying the course alone. I came across a reddit page recently where someone in the FBI stated anonymously to the researchers that there are elements in the FBI who are supporting us, and they would soon be releasing information "from the other side" to help expose this. It's good to know that there are still good people left in this world, who want to help the vulnerable among us.

A few words from Helen Keller:

"...Although the world is full of suffering, it is also full of the overcoming of it..."

When all is said and done, the human race will not be defined by a few wretched, smiles degenerates among the rest of us. It will be defined by the fact that no matter the circumstances, there are always going to be good people, who will stop at nothing to make this world a better place.

Thanks for your kind words, and agreed on all fronts! For updates since that initial post, and analysis of the media coverage “debunking” the issue, check out my other posts in our Pizzagate series. There are definitely forces of good working on our side, emboldened by the public awakening to how big and genuine of an issue this is, and I believe in my heart that whether by earthly or cosmic means, those who are involved in this sort of thing will be brought to justice.

Thanks again for reading and commenting. Please share and spread!

There's a longer version of this video!!! Majestic ape says something to the effect of “ we are located here under a subway sandwich shop. Did you know Jared is one of us. He likes the “world sounds” then the crowd goes “and little boys” “and children” then MA says “I think that was his manager ” “oh well, we all have preferences! Then laughs” he is basically admitting Jared is a pedophile like him n the crowd. I have no idea why this is the one that is out in the public..I think that video appears in Joe Rogans podcast with Alex Jones. Either way it's a slam dunk. They have a baseman they admit they are pedophiles like Jared Fogle.

So grateful for this thread I found a clue with the podesta bros depicted in a kill room one of Bijanna's paintings. Cabaret in the Dentist society series. Right there on the artists website. I took screenshot and juxtaposed it with the wikileaks email about having fun last night at the torture chamber. Its on my feeds @HempSnackery twitter and @OMegaFatsAction Facebook ad INsta. It's an obvious indication that something is up. the Resemblance is uncanny. I'd like to talk to some other activists about what Rachel Chandlers latest tumblr and insta posts can tell us, as I am apprehensive to do more whistle blowing. i am a whistle blower tho! My email is OMegaFatsAction@gmail.com 😊
