Finding clients manually among friends in incentive, on thematic forums or in social networks is the oldest and most controversial way. When using this method, the time / force ratio and the final result are questionable.

Yes, working in manual mode, a trader can set his own price for an item and bargain with the buyer until the last. But this process takes too much time. Plus, by this time for the initial search of the buyer, placement of ads, as well as empty conversations and so on. In the end we get a huge amount of man / hours, which could be spent with great sense.

But even this is not the main problem. Essential trouble will result in the fact that a long-awaited buyer may turn out to be a common swindler who will entice a thing and disappear in the Internet. In the final analysis, we have: time spent, lost skin, zero income. It is clear that such an approach is ineffective.
