Residents Applaud Concept Of Affordable Housing In The Navy Yard

by Marianne Martin

"People would not be in this room tonight if there wasn't a need for affordable housing here in Charlestown," resident Kathy Giordano told Jim English, the Boston Redevelopment Authority (BRA) Charlestown Project Director at a community meeting held Tuesday night, May 27th, to present a plan to construct approximately 39 units of affordable housing in the Charlestown Navy Yard.

Over 150 residents attended the meeting to hear the proposal by the joint venture team of Immobiliare New England and the Bricklayers and Laborers Non-Profit Housing Corporation to build these units on the waterfront land parcel 4A, to be sold at 40% below current market rate, in the mid-$70,000 price range. Thirty residents toured the actual parcel before the meeting.

Immobiliare New England is the designated residential developer in the Navy Yard and under the 1978 Land Disposition Agreement between the development team and the BRA, Immobiliare New England has the exclusive development rights to Parcel 4. Originally, as part of this agreement, Immobiliare was to set aside 10% of the total number of residential units they constructed as subsidized elderly housing. English told the gathering that in the master plan for the Navy Yard, Immobiliare has the right to construct 1,200 residential units. To date, they have completed approximately 500 units with another 220 under construction. In the Anchorage Apartments, Immobiliare developed 111 units of elderly housing. On Parcel 4, the developer has the right to construct 400 housing units.

Paul Davis, the Immobiliare Charlestown Navy Yard Project Director, said his development team was not obligated to construct affordable housing, but that this proposal was "fairly timely" in meeting some of Charles-

Chris Carroll Joins G/R Public Relations Firm

Resulting from the acquisition of five new clients over the past five months, Giardini/Russell Public Relations has bolstered its staff by four to accommodate the increase in business, announced Vice President/Public Relations John Brodeur. One of the new members is Chris Carroll, son of Jack and Eileen Carroll of Charlestown.

The new employees bring considerable direct experience to their new account assignments and, according to Brodeur, "contribute to making G/R Public Relations a stronger and more diversified agency. Getting the accounts is very gratifying, but serving and keeping them is why our growth has occurred," he said.

The newest account to the agency is Alpha Software Corporation, a leading manufacturer of IBM PC and compatible software. Also among G/R Public Relations' most recently added clients are Spectrum Training Corporation, Computer Systems Engineering, the Ivy Fund and Christian Science Monitor.

"For some time, G/R Public Relations has been known for its strength in high tech," he noted. "Our ever-broadening account roster presents a brand new set of challenges, and in order to meet client needs, we must continue to develop our staff, skills, resources and services. Our goal is to provide the best service possible, and the addition of these four professionals will help us achieve it."

Joining G/R Public Relations are account executives Chris Carroll and Donald Frazier, account coordinator Amy Westebbe and account administrator Nancy Papi-neau.

Carroll brings to the agency five years of non-profit and corporate public relations experience. Most recently, Carroll held a variety of responsibilities in the public relations department at McCormack & Dodge, a mainframe software vendor based in Natick. Previously, he served as director of public relations for the Boys and Girls Clubs of Boston and as public affairs assistant at GTE Laboratories in Waltham.

Carroll received an M.S. degree in public relations from Boston University's College of Communication.

HOUSE HUNTING COMPROMISES

Every home purchase involves a certain amount of compromise. When you and your Realtor are looking at property, it's important that you give the agent a pretty clear idea of which criteria are flexible and what you really must have in your new home.

If, for example, you prefer a specific location, discuss why you want that neighborhood. Your agent might be able to suggest alternatives that you hadn't considered that offer the same amenities or convenience to your office. How important is size? Do you really need four bedrooms, or would three bedrooms work if there was an extra den for your home office? Some people want to do some customizing work after they move in, and other's can't face even the prospect of painting a single room. How much are you willing to expand your price range by using an adjustable rate mortgage to increase your buying power?

When we ask prospective buyers a lot of questions, we're trying to use your house hunting time most efficiently, and to show you houses that really do have possibilities for you and your family.

If there's a move in your future, call the professionals at Century 21, Silva Realty Associates. Our number is 242-7470 or just stop by our offices at 142 Main Street. We are happy to serve all of your real estate needs.

Each office is independently owned and operated.

Public Meeting On Establishment Of Interim Planning Overlay District

The Harborpark Advisory Committee (HPAC) has been asked by the Boston Redevelopment Authority (BRA) to comment on the proposed establishment of an Interim Planning Overlay District to rezone a portion of several neighborhoods, including Charlestown, which abut the Boston Harbor. The BRA intends to take up this matter at a public hearing at 2:00 p.m. on Thursday, June 12, 1986.

On Wednesday, June 4, 1986 between 7:00 and 9:00 p.m., HPAC will hold a public meeting in the Piemonte Room at the Boston City Hall for comment from any and all groups and individuals on this proposal.

HPAC requests that community representatives focus on:

1. If rezoning of your waterfront should be undertaken, what factors or impacts should be addressed?
2. How can effective community participation be achieved?
3. What benefits is your community seeking from your waterfront area — jobs, public access, water transportation, etc.?

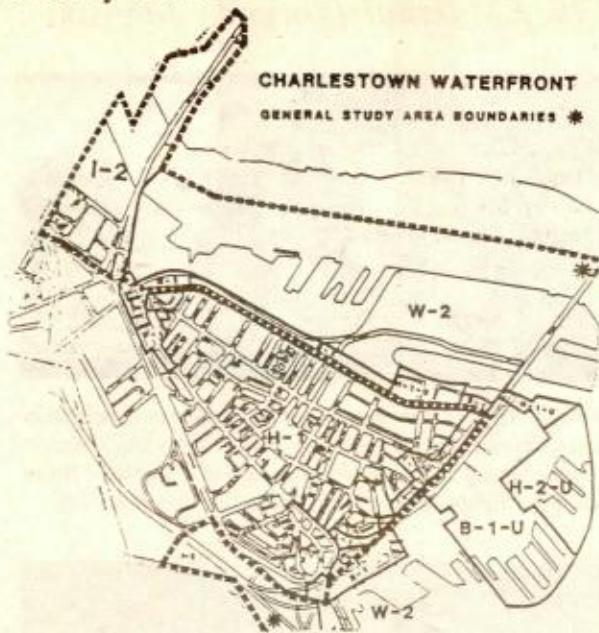

With the institution of an Interim Planning Overlay District (IPOD), the regulations would establish guidelines and controls for reviewing development proposals during the period the IPOD is in effect, and for conducting planning and rezoning studies with community participation.

Harborpark has been divided into five planning areas: Inner Harbor Waterfront, South Boston Piers, Dorchester Bay Beaches and Neponset River, Charlestown Waterfront, and East Boston Waterfront. Any proposed rezoning of these areas would be done with the community.

The IPOD has several objectives concerning the Charlestown Waterfront which includes providing for continuous public access along, to, and from the water even through construction of various project along the water's edge; to promote mixed-use residential and commercial activities in the Charlestown Navy Yard, as well as, ensure that mixed-use commercial and water-dependent manufacturing activities and residential uses are not only compatible but do not conflict with each other; to regulate building height and massing of structures along the waterfront as to not obstruct sea breezes and air flow, or obstruct views and access to the waterfront; and to protect the rights of the public in present and former tidal flow lands.

The Harborpark Advisory Committee will also conduct a special study of any development within the Navy Yard to ensure that all construction is in accordance with the provisions of the Charlestown Urban Renewal Plan in addition to the provisions of the IPOD.

For further information on the IPOD, contact the BRA at 722-4300.

Charlestown Ecumenical Council Addresses Housing Issues

by Kathy Giordano
The Charlestown Ecumenical Council held an open meeting on Wednesday, May 21st, at Saint John's Episcopal Church. The purpose of this initial public meeting of the Council was an attempt to reach a better understanding of the role of the church concerning the housing issues in Charlestown and establish a network within the churches to help address the difficult social and spiritual issues involved. A wide spectrum of housing issues were discussed, such as the lack of affordable housing in the community and the variety of reasons that lead to the creation of this problem. "Who are the bad guys?" Brian Murdoch of Saint John's Church asked. Has it been speculators, developers, or homeowners after the biggest price, that has forced many an area resident out of their community?

Rental units for families are especially difficult to find within the price range an average family can afford. The elderly have also been hard hit when apartment buildings have been sold and the apartment they rented for years turned into a condo. Sister Mary Reardon, SND, expressed "a sense of loss of community" when such problems arise. Where do these people go? Who can they contact for help?

The Ecumenical Council discussed the possibility of finding the resources available within the community in order that the many questions on housing could be answered and some attempt could be made to help solve the problems of residents with housing difficulties. Duncan Gillespie, a local real estate agent, stated that "a lot of tenants do not know their rights" and "a lot of people in buildings being purchased don't know where to turn for help and it's getting more difficult for them."

Father John Surratte of the Jesuit Center stated that it was "important that the churches have a seamless garment approach to things," noting that the Catholic Church is "strong on the abortion issue but weak on housing" and felt the Church "has to be more consistent in its approach to all justice issues."

Brian Murdoch felt there might be a "rift that's moving very fast toward the end of the twentieth century in which only the rich and the poor live within the cities" of our nation, "creating a class system."

The meeting closed with a discussion on bringing the people of Charlestown together to better understand each other and their needs. To this end, a possible "get together" sponsored by the six churches of Charlestown and the Jesuit Center was considered, in order to express a sense of "hospitality" toward newcomers and "townsfolk" alike. Father Surratte stated that "Charlestown, being only one square mile, has so many groups of people. The churches can be an important factor in bringing these people together." One resident stated that although "we cannot do much about the changes in our community, we can make the best out of it and make things better for all the people who are here." Plans for such a gathering will be discussed at the next Charlestown Ecumenical Council.

Graduation At Boston College High School

Commencement Exercises for the Boston College High School Class of 1986 took place at the school on Sunday afternoon, May 25th. The 289 graduates received their diplomas from B.C. High President, Reverend Raymond J. Callahan, S.J.

Among the graduates were Patrick McGonagle and Sean P. Whelan of Charlestown.

Reverend J. Donald Monan, S.J., President of Boston College was the main speaker at graduation. In his remarks to the graduates he stressed the common legacy which binds them together: The patrimony they share with other Jesuit high schools, colleges and universities throughout the world. Jesuit schools, he pointed out, educate well over a half a million students each year throughout the world. These Jesuit schools exist to point out that human culture is always incomplete without the dimension of faith. Nobility of intellect and faith in God is a gift they have received from their Jesuit education. Quoting Saint Bonaventure, he urged the graduates to "love your own mind mightily" and reach out to one another so as to make a real difference in this world and become "men for others".

In his address to the class, Lawrence D. Blake, Principal, praised the class for many accomplishments, particularly for their recently completed community projects. He noted that most of the graduates will be going on to higher education, enrolling in some 75 different colleges and universities throughout the country.

Boston City Council Questions Why No Spring Clean-up

The Boston City Council has voted to ask Mayor Raymond Flynn to explain why no spring clean up campaign has been instituted this year in Boston's neighborhoods.

In approving an official inquiry sponsored by Councilor Joseph M. Tierney, the city legislative body called for a detailed schedule of clean-up efforts area by area.

"It's almost June and nothing appears to be underway," said Tierney, the chairman of the Council's Committee on Post Audit/Oversight. "We've been getting questions from residents, many who have bulky items they can't get taken in the regular weekly collections."

He asked, "Could it be, the neighborhood-oriented mayor, worried about where to dispose of solid waste, doesn't want his problem intensified by a clean-up campaign?"

The official inquiry, promulgated under City Charter provision 17-F, asked specifically "why no program has been established as of this date (May 22) for a spring clean up in Boston's neighborhoods?"

Traditionally, it was noted, the annual event has received support from property owners, community and business groups "who have pulled together in an effort to beautify their neighborhoods."

Thanks For The Immediate Action On Clean-up Of Memorial

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Boston Parks Deputy Commissioner Joe Barnes for his immediate action in cleaning up the Lieutenant Michael Quinn Athletic Complex. Commissioner Barnes told me that the facility is not the responsibility of his department.

The facility is a memorial and should be treated as such. I have contacted city officials regarding the condition of the complex and received nothing but the "ole runaround". Apparently, the elected officials of Boston stand with us at election time and they are invincible; after the election, when we need them, they are invisible.

The question is: What department of the city has allowed this memorial to become such a disgrace?

A special thanks to Jim Fitzgerald and the Halligan Club for their 100% support with this endeavor.

Residents Applaud Concept Of Affordable Housing In The Navy Yard

(continued from page one) town's needs. Davis added that the agreement to construct 10% of units for elderly was contingent upon the developer's ability to secure subsidies, which are difficult to obtain. He noted the 2½ year application process the team endured to obtain a UDAG grant for the Anchorage Apartments. The proposal to construct the affordable housing units, he added, is "in the same spirit" as the original agreement.

The Bricklayers and Laborers Non-Profit Housing Corporation, who have already constructed similar affordable housing units in South Boston's Andrew Square, would essentially receive the land from Immobiliare at no cost, and sell the units at construction cost. The units, which would range in price from $72,000 for a one bedroom to $78,000 for a three bedroom unit, would be sold to first time home owners who met certain income eligibility guidelines. Tom McIntyre of the non-profit group told the residents that 70% of the units would be set aside for Charlestown residents and the remaining 30% of the units would be set aside for other city residents.

Two weeks ago, the non-profit group presented a proposal to the community for affordable townhouse units on the P-2 Parcel in Charlestown, located at the corner of Bunker Hill and Main Streets. While the community opinion expressed at that meeting also favored affordable housing, many were opposed to the idea of designating a land parcel owned by the BRA without advertising for additional development proposals. At Tuesday night's meeting, however, there was not such controversy expressed in that Immobiliare, who already owns this parcel, would donate a portion of their land to the non-profit group to build the housing units, thus there would be no competition. Also, Immobiliare plans to construct approximately 380 additional market-rate condominium units on the remainder of Parcel 4 and Davis stressed that the non-profit and the market-rate units would be compatible.

English called Parcel 4, which is bounded by 13th Street and 1st Avenue, "one of the most attractive residential sites in the City." Since Immobiliare has yet to design the proposed market-rate condominiums, the affordable units were only designed "in concept", architect William Rawn told the gathering, but he said the building would be of brick and granite, built in such a way that all units would have "angled" vision of the water from both the front and back of the units.

Tentatively, the design calls for the construction of 15 one-bedroom units; 18 two-bedroom units; five three-bedroom units and one four-bedroom unit in a three story structure with an elevated fourth story on the waterfront side. "Almost every unit would have access to a private backyard and a parking space which would be in view of their unit," Rawn added.

Davis stated that this proposal would "achieve some of our goals and the city's goals to build moderately priced housing in the near future. We (at Immobiliare) looked at what McIntyre's group has done in South Boston and the design concepts worked very well." Davis said that before the final designs are completed, Immobiliare will have also completed the design for the market-rate condominiums.

"The BRA is quite pleased to hear about this proposal," English added, "It is different from what Immobiliare has been doing, and the folks in Charlestown are asking for affordable housing whether it is in Charlestown (proper) or the Navy Yard."

McIntyre said that the non-profit would like to build this type of housing throughout the city and asked the residents for their support. One resident asked McIntyre if the non-profit goes ahead with the construction of affordable housing in the Navy Yard would they abandon their proposal for the P-2 parcel. "We would do both if we could," he answered. "I hope the people of Charlestown share our enthusiasm."

According to McIntyre, after interested persons apply for the units, a lottery will be held to determine who actually will be able to purchase the units. McIntyre said that individuals will submit their names for either one, two, three or four bedroom unit lottery. "It's the only fair way to do it," he added. Resident Jim Conway asked about the possibility of eliminating the one bedroom units in order to create more two or three bedroom ones. Conway called the one bedroom units "a waste" since most of the people who would be looking to purchase these homes are young families.

Many questioned how long people had to be a resident of Charlestown before they could qualify for the Charlestown lottery. Conway answered he felt 15 years was appropriate.

English said that the eligibility requirements have yet to be finalized and this task may be left to the newly formed Charlestown Neighborhood Council. He stressed, however, that the BRA did have a responsibility to relocate those Charlestown families who were displaced by the BRA by eminent domain.

In South Boston, the Andrew Square Civic Association selected three of its members to form a committee to determine who from those who applied actually qualified for the lottery. McIntyre said the small committee protected the privacy of those applying. "By not going broad scale on the committee," he explained, "We don't make people's income common knowledge."

Many present asked McIntyre if they could submit their names now. McIntyre said he would love to start taking applications but had to wait "until everything is in apple pie order." Once the applications are available, all of the guidelines would be spelled out, McIntyre said. "There will be a whole host of people applying, and we want to make sure everyone has the same chance."

When asked if former Charlestown residents who were forced to move out of the city because of the high rental costs would be eligible to enter the 30% non-Charlestown resident lottery, McIntyre said he would leave that decision to the community group, but added, "You try to reach as many people as you can before the elastic breaks."

THE SITE PLAN of Parcel 4A in the Charlestown Navy Yard indicates the location (shaded area) at the corner of First Avenue and Thirteenth Street of the thirty-nine units of affordable housing, proposed in a joint venture between Immobiliare New England, the designated developer of the parcel, and the Bricklayers and Laborers Non-Profit Housing Corporation.

Conway asked that the Neighborhood Council be utilized to determine the eligibility requirements, but that the BRA not wait for the Neighborhood Council to give initial approval of this housing plan. "We here in Charlestown would be stupid to make this go through another process. If the BRA says its okay to do this, let's not hold it up by having to go through the Neighborhood Council," he stressed.

Since this proposal was only in the "concept" stage, specific questions such as the type of heat could not be answered. Resident Sonny Tucker said he did not approve of electric heat. McIntyre said electric heat could be a possible choice, but added, "We haven't got to that point yet."

One man asked about the management, but added the fees would be "minimal."

After the presentation, a request for a show of hands of those in favor of the concept was made, to which a nearly unanimous gathering responded favorably.

Several times during the meeting, the developers and English said that if the community was in favor of this proposal, to let the BRA know. Mrs. Giordano told English that it should be obvious to the BRA that Charlestown residents want affordable housing. Giordano noted that 50 residents went to the South Boston townhouses after being invited by the BRA, and that at the last community meeting, Peter Drier of the BRA said "he never had seen so many people at a community meeting before."

Giordano continued, "Rather than have us call or write, you see us. But if we have to call or write, do we send out letters to you, Jim English?"

English said he would bring the message of the community support back to the BRA, but encouraged residents to call or write him with their comments. His address is c/o the Boston Redevelopment Authority, One City Hall, 9th Floor, Boston, MA 02201; telephone 722-4300.

Should this proposal receive the approval of the BRA Board, English said the BRA staff would then conduct a four to five month design review, after which the actual construction of the units would take eight to ten months.

Boys and Girls Club Road Race To Include Navy Yard

The annual Charlestown Boys and Girls Club 10K road race will have a few new turns when runners will go through the newly revitalized Navy Yard this year. The race will be on Sunday, June 15th, before the start of the Bunker Hill Day Parade.

The route has been certified by The Athletic Congress. Using a highly calibrated surveyor's measuring wheel, the race course has been precisely measured at 6.2 miles. The T.A.C. course certification was recently conducted and the measuring wheel is accurate to one-tenth of one percent.

For those who want to start training now for the race, the new course will begin on Austin Street at the Newworld Bank. The first leg will take runners on a relatively easy run along Rutherford Avenue to Sullivan Square, followed by a tough run over the summit of Bunker Hill Street to Hayes Square. Then it's right on Lowney to the Training Field, down Winthrop and

Some historic landmarks passed along the route include the newly-renovated Austin House, an 1822 building of fieldstone from Outer Brewster Island in Boston Harbor and once the home of the Bunker Hill Aurora, one of the first newspapers in Charlestown; the Warren Tavern, believed to be the first building erected after the British burned the town in 1775; and the Bunker Hill Monument, an imposing 221 foot obelisk of Egyptian Revival architecture designed by Solomon Willard and dedicated by Daniel Webster in 1843.

Some of the organizations who have made this race possible through their generosity and support are Reebok, McNeil & Associates, Inc., Nautilus 53, The Flatley Company, Boston Police, WMEX, Cataldo Ambulance, Hood's and Rosey Dairy.

Runners of modest athletic ability have the chance to compete in the two mile novice run starting at 9:00 a.m. Registration for the novice race is $5.00 and entrants will assemble at the Clubhouse, 15 Green Street, at 8:30 a.m.

The 10K race will begin at 10:00 a.m. and runners will assemble at the Clubhouse at 9:30 a.m. The Battle of Bunker Hill 10K race course has been designated by running professionals as THE TOUGHEST 10K IN BOSTON, because of the physically challenging course. Registration is $8.00 per runner. Registrants in both races will receive a T-shirt. There is no limit to the number of entrants and race organizers hope to top last year's record turnout.

All runners will be cheered across the finish line by spectators and radio personalities Quentin Migliori and Bob Bronson of WMEX, located at 1150 on the AM dial, a full service station providing listeners with news, sports results, weather and traffic reports and the music you love to remember. Migliori is heard Monday through Friday from 5:30 to 9:00 a.m. and Bronson hosts the Monday through Friday 3:00 to 7:00 p.m. show. WMEX will broadcast live updates from the finish line of the race.

Proceeds from both races will support the programs and activities at the Charlestown Clubhouse which provides over one thousand boys and girls with educational, physical and social development through a variety of programs and activities.

Entry forms are available at major sporting goods outlets, health clubs and at the Clubhouse, 15 Green Street, Charlestown. For information, call the Clubhouse Director Tom King at 242-1775.

Learn To Sail On The Charles

You don't have to own a boat to learn to sail — at least not in Boston. For the Hub is blessed with having the oldest and largest non-profit sailing program in the country.

It's called Community Boating, Inc. and last year more than 5,000 persons sailed from Community's Boathouse on the Charles River. Most of them had never been in a boat before, but after a few lessons, there they were, doing the impossible, sailing all by themselves.

Community Boating, has its origin in the late Depression years when Mrs. James Jackson Storrow bequeathed more than $1 million for the Esplanade and related projects and in 1936 the Metropolitan District Commission used money from Mrs. Storrow's estate to build the boathouse. Community Boating, under the auspices of the MDC, has run the program on a non-profit basis since 1950.

Instruction for newcomers is the foundation of the program and all classes are included in the minimal membership fees. One secret to the enduring popularity of the Community Boating sailing program is its diversity. Whether young or old, beginner or expert, Sunday sailor or ardent racer, there is a boat and program to fit just about every need. Community maintains 117 sailboats from the basic Cape Cod Mercury of the Olympic class 470, so there's almost never a wait for boats.

The real success of Community Boating is most likely based on its minimal cost — $140 for a full season (now until November 1) membership. A 30 Day membership is $50 and can be applied toward a full membership. Youth (16 to 20 years old), student, and senior citizen memberships (65 or older) are available for about half-price. This fee includes instruction and use of boats, so there's nothing more to pay beyond the initial fee. Community Boating is located on the Esplanade near the Hatch Shell. More information can be obtained by calling 523-1038.

The program is open from 1:00 p.m. to sunset on weekdays and from 9:00 a.m. to sunset on weekends and holidays. In addition to the sailing program, Community Boating offers many other activities such as Boston Harbor sailing and overnight camping trips, cookouts, parties, square dances, and winter social events.

$12,000 Raised In Mystic Valley Unit For Cancer Control

A record total of $12,000 has been raised in the American Cancer Society's Mystic Valley Unit, which includes Charlestown. The money was raised during the American Cancer Society's House-to-House campaign on April 29th, according to Valerie Maggiacomo, Mystic Valley Unit Crusade Chairperson.

"The credit for the success of this campaign goes to the citizens of Mystic Valley Unit communities, who responded generously to our requests for contributions," Valerie Maggiacomo said. "This means that next year, even more cancer education programs and patient services can be provided in the Mystic Valley Unit area."

In addition to making contributions, people living in Mystic Valley Unit received information on how to lower their cancer risk by eating a low fat, high fiber diet that includes vitamin A foods and cabbage family vegetables.

Maggiacomo said that House-to-House Night is one of several Crusade educational and fundraising events that support the American Cancer Society's cancer control activities in Massachusetts. "Our 1986 state goal is to raise $5.25 million to support researchers working on new methods of cancer treatment, as well as educational programs that will help protect the people of Mystic Valley Unit from the disease," she said. "The money will also provide vital materials and services to cancer patients who are being treated."

Maggiacomo, expressing appreciation to the thousands of volunteers in Mystic Valley Unit who participated in the House-to-House campaign, noted that although the Society's fundraising activity peaks in April — Cancer Control Month — it is actually a year-round effort. "Anyone who hasn't had the opportunity to make a contribution can still do so by calling their local American Cancer Society at 321-8533," she said.

On May 26, the schooner Spirit of Massachusetts returned to Boston from a seven-month goodwill tour in the Gulf of Mexico, Caribbean and East Coast. A full summer schedule awaits the vessel, which includes representing the Commonwealth of Massachusetts at the "Salute to Liberty" festivities in New York.

Berthed at the Charlestown Navy Yard, Spirit is owned and operated by New England Historic Seaport. Cruising out to welcome Spirit home to Boston was the lightship Nantucket II, also owned by New England Historic Seaport. Recently restored to working order and making her own return to the active waterfront, Nantucket II was a frequent sight in Boston Harbor until 1984 when she was retired from service. One of the last lightships in service at Nantucket Shoals, she was moved to the Navy Yard in August 1985.

Since March, Spirit has been visiting major coastal cities along the East Coast, including Miami, Jacksonville, Charleston, Baltimore, Washington DC, Philadelphia and New York. In each port-of-call, Spirit brought together key officials, businesses and media representatives for sails and receptions hosted by the Commonwealth and New England Historic Seaport. More than 10,000 visitors explored Spirit's deck during her free-of-charge open houses.

In each port she visited, Spirit generates goodwill and carries the message of Governor Michael Dukakis. "Welcome to the good ship, Spirit of Massachusetts, our ambassador of good will for the Commonwealth. This proud schooner is a symbol of the enduring spirit that made our Country and State great. By taking pride in America's past, we inherit the spirit that enables us to mold today into a promising future."

Triumphant Homecoming For State's Sailing Ambassador

The busy summer begins in New York at the July 3rd and 4th "Salute to Liberty" for both Spirit and Nantucket II. Spirit will have a place of rare honor sailing just behind the United States Coast Guard bark Eagle. Eagle will lead the spectacular fleet of 200 sailing ships up the Hudson River on July 4th.

At the conclusion of the Op Sail events, Spirit will return to Boston for a summer of educational programs and community festivals. New England Historic Seaport will be conducting a variety of educational programs aboard Spirit this summer. In collaboration with the Lloyd Center for Environmental Studies in South Dartmouth, Spirit will take students "In the Wake of Gosnold." Bartholemew Gosnold explored this region, and particularly Buzzards Bay, in 1602.

The Seaport is sponsoring two ten-day sea education programs aboard Spirit. Highlights include taking students to the wilderness of the coast of Maine, to historic Nantucket to study Massachusetts' whaling history, and sail to the feeding grounds of the many varieties of whales which summer in New England waters, including the rare and endangered Atlantic Right whale. A fifth program is scheduled for students from Newburyport, in conjunction with Yankee Homecoming Days.

Interested students can contact the Seaport at Building 10, Charlestown Navy Yard, Charlestown, MA 02129 for more information.

Spirit will also be participating in several community festivals during the summer, including Yankee Homecoming Days in Newburyport and Falmouth's 350th Anniversary.

Free Soil pH Test

The Suffolk County Cooperative Extension offers free soil testing for residents of Suffolk County. Lead contaminated soil is hazardous for children to play in and it is extremely important to have your soil tested.

For information about testing soil for pH (lime requirements), nutrients, and lead, call the Urban Horticulture Program of the Suffolk County Cooperative Extension at 727-4107.

Remember, the only way to know the lead content of your soil is to test it! Call for your free factsheet entitled, "Lead In The Soil . . . What You Can Do"! That number again is 727-4107.

Participate In "Project Grow"

Six youngsters from the Hawthorn Youth and Community Center in Roxbury and six from Mrs. Bee's Gardens in Charlestown were greeted by Christine Cooper at Jamaica Pond on their first session of "Project Grow" on Saturday, May 17th. They enjoyed a guided tour around Jamaica Pond, played games, sang songs, took pictures and shared lunch.

"Project Grow" is an eight session pilot program designed to improve relations between two communities often deemed hostile towards each other. The eight to 12 year old participants are involved in an inter-neighborhood site improvement in Charlestown and Roxbury which is aimed at fostering friendship among children of diverse ethnic backgrounds as well as instilling positive work ethics.

The participants from Charlestown are Melinda Morrissey, Melissa Morrissey, Deedee Arroya, Shawn Porter, Michael Erardi, and Jay Crowley.

The program has been partially funded with grants from the Foley, Hoag & Eliot Foundation and the Hyams Trust and cameras and film have been provided by the Polaroid Foundation.
