

Writing Personal Statement - A Beginner's Guide

Personal statements are an important part of the university admission process. Most of the students, when they are applying for their desired university, are required to write a personal statement. This guide will help you when you sit to write your satire essay and enable you to become a pro in no time. A personal statement is a limited-word statement that is used to reflect your personality traits and achievements. It is observed that most of the students who have the potential to get admission in their desired universities, however, miss the opportunity because of a poorly constructed Personal statement.

There is no universal method to writing a perfect personal statement, however, there are certain tips that can help you as a beginner. First of all, devise a first draft for your personal statement. While writing the first draft, make sure that you do not care for the word limit, or the time limit. Write a long first draft that will contain all of the information that you think can be included in the personal statement.

Another important tip a beginner should consider is to write honestly. Honesty in personal statements means not exaggerating any information. Essays are not the most popular type of writing project assigned by teachers and professors, many students are unfamiliar with the concept. Many people do this exercise of exaggerating their personal qualities and achievements. It is highly condemnable to do that because those people who will evaluate your personal statement are experts and have a lot of experience in this field. They instantly catch dishonesty. For instance, if you were part of the basketball team but you were the last reserve, and you mention in your personal statement that you are an extraordinary player of basketball, it is dishonesty. Do not mention this if you have to exaggerate to look it better.

Similarly, another important tip for writing a perfect personal statement is to devise a hook statement. A hook statement is very important to gather attention. It is like an essay writer who starts an essay with a hook statement to gather the attention of the readers. A hook statement is important in a personal statement as well. However, make sure that you design the hook statement carefully and avoid exaggeration in this regard.

When the first draft is written and the hook statement is ready to seek the attention of the readers, now is the time to go for the final draft. However, it is important to consider a few things before the final draft. The first thing is to find some perfect words and phrases for your personal statement.

With perfect words, I mean words that are stronger and persuasive. It is important to use stronger and persuasive words to convince the reader that you are a perfect applicant. However, if you are facing difficulties to find good strong words and persuasive phrases, you can also take help from a professional paper writing service, and have your job done instantly.

Similarly, now is the time to eliminate irrelevant information from the personal statement and consider the hurdle of word limit in mind. If you want to become a competent essay writer, you need to consider distinct selection criteria for various types of essays. It is equally important to include the strong points of your personality and not the weak points.

The weak points can be considered irrelevant because you are kind of selling yourself with the help of a personal statement. It is similar to any other paper where you avoid irrelevant information. When I write my paper, I make sure I do not use any irrelevant information as it will only produce a negative image. For instance, you might write that I always wanted to be a debtor but could not become one. This is a catastrophic sentence that might close the gates of your desired university on you. Instead, you should focus on goals that you have successfully achieved.

It is important to focus on achievements and not on failure. Experts have advised many students to show their best in their personal statements. It is observed that students show how they desired to achieve a certain goal but failed to achieve that goal because of these reasons. It is you who might find sympathy for yourself, but the people who are going to evaluate your personal statement will not feel sympathy for you.

Rather, it is their job to evaluate the personal statements based on competencies. Therefore, instead of writing, 'I wanted to learn chess, but never got the chance to do so.' You should write things like, 'I wanted to learn chess, that is why I devoted two hours daily to chess, and now I am a good player.' Such sentences will create the sense that you are actually serious about your goals.

To sum it all, the personal statement is one of the most important parts of your university application. Even if you are a beginner essay writer, you need to ensure to follow this basic rule of eliminating all grammatical and spelling mistakes from your essay before its submission. A good personal statement can land you in your desired university. Although there is no universal rule for writing a perfect personal statement, there are several tested tips that can be used to write the perfect personal statement.

The first and most important thing to remember is, to be honest in your personal statement and not exaggerate your qualities. Similarly, create a hook statement that you will use in your personal statement as a first sentence. A good hook statement can catch the attention. Lastly, focus on your strengths and not weaknesses.

Useful Resources:

<https://bit.ly/32uLmL6>

<https://bit.ly/3ssUsTH>

<https://bit.ly/3pryE8M>

<https://bit.ly/3z45BeY>

<https://bit.ly/3FpKeak>