The Braveheart Report

Trade Better, Profit More, and Build a Sustainable Trading Career

Hey ☐ - Braveheart here.

Thank you for subscribing to The Braveheart Report.

I am grateful for your readership and hope that you stay here for many future issues.

This is the issue #2 of The Braveheart Report.

Every week, I send out one tip on how to improve your trading skills and performance.

Enjoy.

How to find a High Probability trade that pays a 5:1 Reward to Risk.

To find trades that pay out 5:1, you must trade aligned with the banks and financial institutions.

We want to generate a 5:1 RR Trade from a market that will expand higher with large-range candles.

We are NOT generating a 5:1 RR Trade from trying to force a tight stop loss for a higher Risk to Reward trade.

Big moves occur from Higher Time Frame levels because that is where Banks & Financial Institutions operate.

Therefore, if we want to find a 5:1 RR trade setup, we frame that trade around a Higher Time Frame level.

Once we have found a Higher Time Frame level to frame our trade based on...

We want to look for details from an Intermediate-term Perspective.

From here we can start classifying swing highs and lows to look for a trade framework.

We can also see valid market structure breaks and imbalances due to the more detail.

Once we have an Intermediate-term Swing Point, we can start looking for an entry on the Short-term Perspective.

Once we are in the Short-term Perspective, we can start looking for a Trade Setup.

Our goal is to align our Trade Setup with the framework formulated from the intermediate-term perspective.

Also, that trade setup must be within a Kill Zone to be aligned with the Banks and Financial Institutions.

Evidence of participation from the Banks and Financial Institutions can be seen with SMT.

You can see how we get multiple 5:1 Trade Setups after we have reacted to a Higher Time Frame Level

The goal is to align our trades with the Banks and Financial Institutions.

We can do that when we frame our Trades based on a Higher Time Frame level.
