Award-Winning Restaurant

by Kathy Giordano

When Olives restaurant on Main Street was granted a license to open in January 1989, residents living in the surrounding homes resigned themselves and reluctantly decided to be as good neighbors as they could be. This meant putting aside the hard feelings that came as the result of a long fight to keep the establishment from opening in an already busy and heavily congested

It was Jan. 4, 1989 when Todd and Olivia English first appeared before the city of Boston Licensing Board to request a sevenday malt and wine license for the restaurant they hoped to open at 67 Main St. After hearing over two hours of heated testimony from proponents and opponents on the application, Board Chairman Andrea Garguilo suggested that opposing parties try to settle their differences on issues such as traffic, parking, rodent control and trash disposal before returning to the Board for a decision.

At the hearing, to the abutter's dismay, community residents presented a petition with 450 signatures in support of the restaurant. Additional injury to the abutter's case came from testimony by Rev. Brian Murdoch, then rector of St. John's Church, and City Councillor Robert Travaglini, both supporting the proposal. Both men were duly criticized for their stand on the issue by opponents.

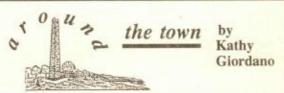

Travaglini stated at the time: "I was indeed impressed with their (English's) presentation, credentials and willingness to work with those directly impacted by their restaurant." He continued: "I considered

Voke Secures Additional Bus Service For St. Clement's

Rep. Richard Voke has again come to the aid of St. Clement's students and their parents. Complimenting last year's effort to establish MBTA bus service for Charlestown students of St. Clement's returning home after school. Voke has announced his success in securing a morning run to transport those same children to school.

"Caring parents like the Cunhas, Dows and Giordanos first came to me with the idea of rerouting a single bus each day to take the local St. Clement's students home from school. Wanting very much to help relieve local parents of the burdens involved in getting their children to and from school, I am glad we have been successful in first getting after-school service, and now morning service to provide for the transportation needs of our St. Clement's schools kids," said

Beginning Monday, two buses from the T's 89 route will make short detours to pick up local students. While the normal 89 route calls for the bus to travel between Sullivan Square, St. Clement's and other Somerville points, thanks to Voke's advocacy, one morning and afternoon trip will be scheduled to allow local children to take public transportation. This arrangement should prove to be a big relief for local families who have had to juggle work and other schedules in the past to make accommodations to bring and pick up their kids.

"Richie's done it again," exclaimed local St. Clement's parent Tom Cunha. "All we had to do was ask him once, and then we just sat back and watched him and there can be no question that Charlestown will benefit enormously from his election," announced House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Richard Voke.

"There will be real battles in the legislature the next few years. More than ever, Charlestown will need a strong team in the legislature. Tom Birmingham has the skills, the qualifications, and the background to make sure that our district gets the attention it deserves from the state Senate. I hope everyone in Charlestown votes for Tom Birmingham on Primary Day, Sept. 18th."

Thanking Voke for his support, Birmingham commented, "I look forward to working with Chairman Voke to serve the people of Charlestown. Considering Richard Voke's exceptional record of serving the needs of his constituents in Charlestown. I am particularly proud to receive his support. I am confident that together we will provide the most effective representation Charlestown has ever received."

St. Clement's Parents Meeting

Parents of Charlestown students attending St. Clement's Grammar and High School, Somerville, are requested to attend a meeting on Monday, Sept. 10 at 7 p.m. at St. Mary's Parish Hall, Winthrop Street, Charlestown.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the student bus service, mornings and afternoons, for the 1990-91 school year. A family representative for each student planning to use the bus service is urged to attend.

School bus service will resume on Monday, Sept. 10. The morning bus, a new service, will leave Sullivan Square at 7:20 a.m. and proceed along Bunker Hill Street stopping to pick up students at all regular "T" bus stops. The bus, which will bear a sign indicating

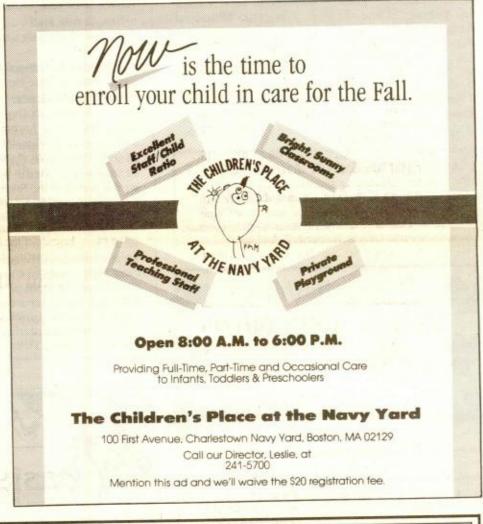

St. Clement's School, will continue along Warren Street onto Main Street toward Sullivan Square. The bus will stop at the upper level of the Sullivan Square Station and then proceed along Broadway, Somerville to the corner of Warner Avenue where it will let off the students.

The afternoon bus service will resume the same day, picking the students up at the corner of Broadway and Warner Avenue and bringing them to Charlestown by the same route.

Parents must make transportation arrangements for their children this week.

A total count of students using the bus services will be taken at the meeting.

For more information, call Kathy Giordano at 241-9511, days, or Tom Cunha at 242-3922, evenings.

By Joetta Silva Silva Realty Associates

WE'RE MATCHMAKERS

Sometimes a good Realtor will remind you of that favorite aunt many of us have who is always trying to fix up single nieces and nephews with the single sons and daughters of her friends, especially when one of her blind dates results in a great marriage. We match prospective buyers with the sellers who have the perfect home for their family, and when it really works, we feel terrific. Even more important, our buyers and sellers feel terrific.

More often than not, sellers have a strong attachment to their home and the memories it holds. It's important for them to know that the new buyers will love it like they do. While any sale can become complicated, and we can face difficulties on the road to settlement, if we've started out on a positive note, problems seem to work themselves out more easily. This is one important reason why we work hard to maintain a good rapport between the parties to our sales transactions.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate professionals at Silva Realty are ready to serve you. Call us at 242-7470 or drop by our office at 371 Somerville Ave. in Somerville.

A State Senator to be proud of.
In the tough days ahead, we'll need a State Senator to win.

That's Tom Birmingham. A local boy

with the guts to fight

for us and the skills

who went on to Harvard, a Rhodes Scholarship and Harvard Law School. Then he brought it all back home as a labor lawyer protecting the rights of working people.

Tom Birmingham's intelligence and hard work will make us proud he's our State Senator.

Vote for a guy who stands up for working people. Vote for Tom Birmingham.

As a professional law enforcement officer, I've heard a lot of politicians talk about public safety. Tom Birmingham acts. He negotiated an unprecedented agreement with the local cable company to bring our police department high powered surveillance cameras that we use against the drug dealers.

Now when the dealers are on our streets, we can watch them. And we can catch them.

Tom Birmingham is fighting to ensure that our neighborhoods belong to our families."

That's why police from all over the district and so many police organizations support Tom Birmingham:

Beverly Richards' Dance Center

The Beverly Richards'
Dancers had a very successful and exciting year performing and competing throughout the state and outside the country. Locally, they have been featured at the Boston Common for the Festival of Hope, East
Boston Star Search, Eastie Pride Day and many local competitions and pageants.
Their biggest and most exciting performances were held aboard the Disney premier cruiseship "Atlantis" this past February and at the Montreal Canada Festival this past May.

Among the center's dance students are Charlestown residents Catherine (Katie) Bennett, Lisa Rollins and Elizabeth Stangel, who successfully completed one year of dance.

This coming season promises to be just as exciting and rewarding as the staff and students look forward to another great year of dance, competitions and pageants. Registrations for the fall season are now being accepted at the Beverly Richards' Dance Center, 1007 Saratoga St., Orient Heights, East Boston. For further information, call 567-1660.

(continued from page one) originally requested and no accommodation for customer parking was made as a requirement under the licensing agreement. On Jan. 20, 1989, a license was granted and the Englishes were ready to go ahead with their plans.

Abutters were now faced with the reality that they lost their fight to maintain the quality of life they enjoyed and fear set in, according to another abutter, that Main Street would become another North End.

Unknown and unthinkable to the abutters at the time of the hearing were problems that have occured since the restaurant opened. Conditions have been reportedly so unbearable to some abutters that they have sold their property and moved away.

As early as February 1989 complaints started to surface regarding obnoxious odors filling the air from the restaurant's woodburning cooking stove. Abutters met with the owners and were told that it would be taken care of. Months went by and more meetings were held and Judy Evers, liaison for the Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Services became involved, but there was still no relief. In fact, according to residents, the problem got worse.

Evers reported that she contacted the owners with complaints of the obnoxious odors several times after continuous petitions for help came from abutters. She stated, "Complaints from the residents were heard throughout the summer. The Neighborhood Council meeting of Sept. 5, 1989 heard the neighborhood complaints and referred the matter to the Basic Services Committee for a resolution."

Peter Looney, Basic Services Committee chairman, held a meeting on Sept. 11

calling together both sides of the issue. "The abutters," explained Looney, "outlined to Olivia English the difficulties they had experienced throughout the summer due to the odors from the wood-burning stove that the restaurant used for cooking." Looney stated that the residents told English that the odors filled their homes, forcing them to keep their windows closed and making it impossible to use their roof decks and porches.

Pam Brodie, a Warren Street resident, told English that the exhaust had given her headaches and made her sick. She also said that she had to move guests inside from her outside deck during the summer when the odor became too obnoxious.

Linda Cataldo, another Warren Street resident, informed English at this same meeting that her experiences with the odor was much "like sitting outside at a barbecue." Closing her windows didn't help, Cataldo stated, neither did turning on an air conditioner. "After eight o'clock I can't go outside," she stated.

English informed those gathered at the Sept. 11 meeting that she was unaware of the problem until recently. She stated that her contractor had done wind studies and explored filteration techniques, and oven-burnings in the restaurant were being condensed to help reduce the emissions.

English told the committee and the residents that "everything meets code, but in the same vein as our opening, we want to be proactive."

Looney commented:
"They (the restaurant) can reduce the smoke odor, but I don't think there's anything they can do to eliminate it." English informed the residents that she would install a devise to cut down the odor.

In December 1989, now after 11 months of complaints and discussions, the Fire Department responded to a fire at a home located behind the restaurant. Burning embers from the wood-burning stove vent had reportedly stuck to the house, setting it on fire. Damage was minimal, but new concerns gripped the neighborhood.

As an onslaught of complaints and fears were heard from abutters, Evers and Looney met twice at the restaurant with the Englishes in January 1990 to discuss the problems. Travaglini's aide Charlie Clabaugh and Denice Breiteneicher from the city's Air Control Unit were also present to witness firsthand the source of the complaints and discuss options to correct the situation.

It was suggested to the owners at these meetings that an air scrubber and filter-type fan unit could be installed to help alleviate the problem.

Looking back at those meetings, Evers said: "Although the restaurant owners were congenial and cooperative, complaints continued to be heard from the abutters in June 1990 as a second summer approached." She added: "On June 4, I again talked to the owners who told me that they would close for three days in the middle of the month to install the unit."

Evers continued to receive calls from the neighborhood through June and July. "No action had been taken," she stated. On Aug. 2 another abutters' meeting took place. Evers reported that "all agreed that the problem was unbearable and must be resolved immediately. Evers told the gathering that the city's Environmental Department had received paperwork from Olives on June 23, and sent a return letter informing the owner to rectify the problem as soon as possible.

Evers contacted the Inspectional Services Department for assistance. Health Division Assistant Commissioner Frank Frattaroli, accompanied by two inspectors, visited the restaurant twice in August. Evers noted at that time: "The restaurant has won national awards for its fine cuisine. We're proud to have this establishment as part of the Charlestown community. However, serious public safety concerns have not been addressed after many, many requests for compliance, affecting the quality of life issues (of the neighborhood).

"In the past we have asked the owners to install an air purification system to eliminate the emission of food odors and a flue trap to keep flying embers from sticking to abutters' homes causing serious public safety problems.

"We're sorry it had to come to this point, but we (continued on page 9)

Anatomy of deception

Strahan wastes energies on demeaning his opponents

By Kristen Reese/News Staff

EVERETT — For the past two weeks, Everett citizens have been writing letters to this paper in regard to the Birmingham/Strahan Senate race. Being a news gathering organization, we have the unique opportunity to obtain a larger view of the issue because of the information we receive and because of our investigative work.

A case in point is the series of political ads that the Strahan campaign has been running. First in the series was, "Is this Senate district for sale?" The ad maintains that Birmingham had received monetary contributions from as far away as California, Texas, Missouri and Washington, D.C. What the ad neglected to say was that these contributions were from Harvard College graduates, Rhodes scholars and Harvard Law School graduates, all of whom were fellow classmates of Tom Birmingham. Has Mr. Strahan received the same monies from alliances forged during his years at Merrimack College?

The second ad entitled "Tom Birmingham and the Mass. Gay and Lesbian Alliance have one thing in common . . . They both support gay foster parenting," is insulting to the intelligent reader. The quote used in this ad was taken from the July 21, 1988 edition of Bay Windows and it was taken out of context. Moreover, Joe Hayes, author of the article, "Candidate's remark provokes questions," points out that most of the fifty gay and lesbian activists in attendance at the political forum, where the infamous Birmingham remarks were made, had mixed feelings. Some were upset that Birmingham did not want their endorsement, others admired his honesty, and still others felt having a Senator who was in tune to their needs was ultimately more important than their endorsement. Birmingham, according to the article, told those in attendance that his was "a working class district, with the highest priority being economic issues, affordable housing, the environment, jobs, auto insurance reforms and the like. For that reason, we're not seeking endorsements from groups concerned primarily with social issues." This last statement was also reprinted in a Chelsea newspaper.

For the record, Birming-ham's stand on gay foster parenting is in line with Senator Francis Doris' current stand in the House. In a vote taken on Friday, June 29, 1990 in the Senate, Senator Doris voted affirmatively to add the following amendment to Senate Bill 1991 Section 2:

"... the department of Social Services shall not knowingly place or continue the placement of any child ... in the care of person or persons whose sexual orientation is an obstacle to the psychological or physical wellbeing of the child except where it is a biological child or where there are biological relatives willing to take care of the child ... This restriction shall include but not be limited to adoption, guardianship and foster care."

Lastly in this series of ads was, "Come out, come out, wherever you are!" This ad listed where Strahan stands on various issues. Conveniently placed under the Birmingham picture were question marks. The ad said that Birmingham "was acting like a typical politician" because "He is afraid his views are not in tune with the voters." Ironically there were also question marks next to residency and education for Birmingham. It is not a secret that Birmingham resides in Chelsea, in the vicinity of Our Lady of Grace Church, Everett, and as a graduate of Harvard and Harvard Law School it appears that Birmingham places a high value on education.

In the August 22nd edition of the Revere Journal, it was mentioned that Birmingham is supported by the Massachusetts Teachers Association [which represents teachers from Everett, Revere and Saugus] and the Massachusetts Federation of Teachers [representing teachers of Charlestown, Boston and Chelsea]. Mary Garrity of the Saugus Teachers Association commented that "Birmingham will fight to make sure that all of the children in our schools receive the very highest quality of education."

Like any news gathering organization, a well run campaign should be aware of news releases, references or political stands taken by an opposing candidate. Campaigns, like good papers, should also know all the facts and check all available sources before printing an ad or making a political statement, so they do not grossly mislead or deceive the public. Citizens of this city need to be informed of ALL the facts, not just selective pieces of information. On a local level, this political mudslinging is insulting and should not be tolerated by voters of this district. Every politician should stand on his own merits without demeaning their opponents for politi-

Butt Pirates Win Bunker Hill Hockey Championship

by Bob DeCristoforo

"Wait and see" was the phrase often used by Butt Pirate Captain Ken Giordano as his team entered the 'second season' of the 1990 Bunker Hill Summer Ball Hockey League.

The Butt Pirates entered the playoffs with a 5-5-0 record for a fourth place regular season finish, six points behind the league

Task number one was to defeat the gutsy Eden Street crew led by high-scoring Kevin Feeney and the team's unsung hero Clifton Agri. Eden Street had only two regular season wins, but they did stun the Maulers in overtime in the early part of the year.

Task number one was handled in a big way by Jamie McLaughlin's threegoal performance, with a goal in each period. Derek O'Brien and Jamie Mastro had two goals each to give goaltender Bill McKillop the cushion he needed in the 9-5 Butt Pirate win.

In the other quarter final game, the third-place Nationals just overpowered Petrefeski. Roger Britton's hat trick was the highlight for Petrefeski, but the Newtown Nationals got multiple goals from Mike Flamini, Ron Poole, Anthony Matson and Tom Carroll. Mike Bassett even had a goal for the victors.

JAFT and the Maulers were anxiously awaiting the outcome of these two games. Both teams had finished the season in a 16point deadlock and both expected to break the tie in the league championship game.

The Butt Pirates stopped the high power JAFT attack early and often. Bill Mc-Killop was the star in the nets and seven different goalscorers put the ball past the stunned JAFT netmin-

Jamie McLaughlin put Butt Pirates up 1-0 in the first period. Peter Ennis and Tom O'Leary increased the lead to 3-0. Al Titcomb and Todd Fisher put JAFT on the scoreboard, but the celebration would be short lived.

Shortly after the Fisher goal, Butt Pirates' Steven Smith quickly silenced the highly partisan JAFT crowd scoring the gamebreaker to give the Butt Pirates a comfortable two-goal second period lead.

Smith's goal also silenced JAFT. Dan Tucker, Scott Sheehan and Jamie Mastro scored the three unanswered Butt Pirates goals. The fourth-place team would now advance to the championship game.

The Mauler/Newtown Nationals semifinal game had many remarkable similarities. Newtown goaltender Dickie Centola was spectacular and five different players accounted for the six National goals.

Dave Matson and Poole gave the third-place team a 2-0 first period lead. Bassett (game winner) and Bobby Yandle added to the lead well before Danny Sullivan put the Maulers on the scoreboard.

Mike Flamini added the final two Nationals' tallies. Score: Newtown Nationals 6, Maulers 1.

The Butt Pirates/Newtown Nationals Bunker Hill Ball Hockey Championship game was a classic confrontation decided in the final 24 seconds. Up and down, back and forth they would go. It was a crowd pleaser with no comfortable leads.

Captain Ken Giordano and Tommy Goggin put the Pirates ahead early. Sean Scales cut the deficit to one early in the second period for the Nationals, but Butt Pirates' Stephen Smith answered that one back. Not to be out done, Newtown's Bill Wadman brought his team back to within one. In the closing minutes, Dan Tucker of the Pirates closed out the second period scoring and gave Butt Pirates a 4-2 edge.

Mike Flamini's third period goal closed the gap again and got the Newtown fans back into the game. Butt Pirate Jamie Mastro's goal tried to silence the Newtown crowd, but it didn't work. Tommy Carroll got the second Newtown goal of the period. After a timeout, Newtown hero Mike Flamini blasted home the tying goal with a little over a minute to go.

At the 30-second mark the game was still tied and just about everyone had visions of a sudden death overtime. But, just about everyone didn't include Derek O'Brien of the Butt Pirates. O'Brien had a vision of his own, somehow he got in front of the Nationals defense and with just 24-seconds to go he found an open right corner and scored the gamewinner.

The Butt Pirates defeated Newtown 6-5 to take the championship and in so doing defeated a team they had lost to twice in regular season play.

The championship trophy was presented to a highly elated Captain Giordano and each member of the victorious team received championship shirts.

They say anything can happen in a playoff, and it

My thanks to all those who helped make the first season of Bunker Hill Ball Hockey a success.

(continued from page 6) have been working diligently for 18 months to address these problems with the owner but have met with little success," concluded

Inspectors visited the restaurant on Aug. 3 and 16 to look into complaints of the grease exhaust causing a nuisance. Both inspections found valid reasons for the complaints. Frattaroli stated: "These neighbors have a definite problem. There is evidence of burn marks on one home that is a severe concern."

The Aug. 16 inspection took place not only in the restaurant, but also in the homes, roof decks and back yards of the abutters. According to Frattaroli's written report, "a strong odor was noticed approximately 80 to 100 yards from the restaurant."

Frattaroli continued, "In a Main Street apartment we observed a strong obnoxious odor. Upon exiting the rear of the apartment we observed a large, dark and odorous smoke emitting from two vent units at Olives restaurant." He also noticed that "a wooden fence located less than three feet from this mushroomtype vent was coated with a dark, sooty type of residue. It appeared to be a fire ha-

Frattaroli said that he spoke to the Englishes on Aug. 16 and said: "He (Todd English) agreed that an odorous emission was occuring and stated that he wanted to correct the problem. He informed us that he will be closing his establishment on Aug. 26 for one week to correct the ventilation problem."

According to Frattaroli, a nuisance notice was issued to Todd English at this meeting to abate the situa-

Evers stated: "Residents wanted to bring him back to the Licensing Board as a public nuisance. At no time did they want him to close down," she continued, "they just want the owners to do what they were supposed to do."

Travaglini stated on Aug. 7: "I originally supported them (Todd and Olivia English) contingent on their being sensitive to their immediate abutters and I am deeply disappointed in their lack of effort to live up to that commitment. I am taking an active role in assuring that the violations are corrected entirely and am ready to take whatever actions are necessary to close them down if violations are not corrected to the abutters' satisfaction." Travaglini noted that he "went out on a limb for them," and "I am not happy with their lack of being a good neighbor to Charlestown, especially to their immediate neighbors.'

On Sept. 4, Olivia English was contacted for a comment. She stated: "We closed for the week of Aug. 26, at great expense to us, to do the work. The price tag for this work was prohibitive. That is what delayed the work being done before now." She continued, "We were ready to do it in June, but were stuck in red tape between the EPA and the Health Department."

English continued: "The work has been done. We installed a double stack that reaches above the roof line. We cannot eliminate the smoke all together, but feel we have reduced the problem considerably."

She stated that there is always a problem when residential and commercial needs have to be met. She said: "I found their complaints to be valid and want to continue to work to alleviate their concerns."

English said that she has received many compliments from neighborhood residents, including the community's "pride in having our restaurant in Charlestown." She stated that she and her husband have tried to be good neighbors to the community by contributing to such worthy causes as Camp Bunker Hill, the Boys & Girls Club Road Race, local schools and the food pantry in Hayes Square.

"Hopefully, we have provided good food for our neighbors at reasonable prices," she added. "We even offer a special service to Charlestown residents," she stated. "We will call them at their homes when their reserved table is ready so that they will not have to wait in the long lines outside the restaurant."

Frattaroli stated on Sept. 5 that he personally inspected the work that was completed on Sept. 3. "The old vent system has been removed and replaced by a new system that reaches higher above the building," he stated, "and they added a device that will prevent the smoke from blowing down (onto the houses)."

He said that the noise created by this new vent system is being worked on by the contractor. "The RPM noise level can have the capacity of up to an 18.50 level," he stated. "Olives is now down to a 12.50 level. The contractor will cover the outside system to adjust the noise level. It looks like we're approaching compliance," he stated.

Frattaroli said that he will return to the site within the next two weeks to check the new system after the owners have had a chance to "fine tune" it. In the meantime, he said: "I will be in constant touch with Judy Evers to monitor residential complaints."

After hearing Frattaroli's inspectional report, Evers stated: "The fight to make Olives a good neighbor was a cooperative effort of the Mayor's Office, Frank Frattaroli of Inspectional Services, City Councillor Robert Travaglini and the residents of Charlestown.

"It's a wonderful example of people working together to preserve their quality of life," she concluded.

Residents, especially the immediate abutters of the restaurant, are anxious to see this issue closed. One Main Street resident stated that she is looking forward to a more harmonious lifestyle. Wishing to remain anonymous, she stated: "We've always wanted to be good neighbors to Olives. We hope that now those sentiments will be reciprocated."

White Announces Candidacy For Representative In Third Suffolk District

Lester "Tom" White, 45, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for state Representative in the Third Suffolk District, which includes Precinct 1 in Charlestown.

White's candidacy announcement was delayed, he said, by three unsuccessful attempts to keep his name off the ballot, engineered by a political operative of the current representative, Salvatore DiMasi.

Said White: "The chronology of events leads me to believe that his was nothing more than a delay tactic to rob me of valuable time needed to campaign throughout the district.'

white stated that he has reviewed the Central Artery/North Area, the depression of the Central Artery and the Third Harbor Tunnel projects. He questioned whether excessive amounts of money are being wasted by the state via overuse of the 03 Consultant Account, hiring out-ofstate consultants rather than utilizing the talents of state employees, and whether funding is available to complete the project.

In his statement, Whitesuggested that the size and salaries of state government be trimmed, and he was critical of the recent pay raises of MWRA and Massport officials.

White is also opposed to his opponent's stand on abortion, particularly Di-

LESTER "TOM" WHITE Masi's support of House Bill 4001.

White, who resides on Beacon Street, is an active member of many pro-life organizations. As a 20-year Eastern Airlines employee and with past involvement in transportation including truck, bus and cab driving, White hopes to get on the Transportation Committee if elected.

IS MORALITY SALVATION?

Many people believe that because they have not committed terrible acts of sin they will go to heaven. Moral man compares himself to society's murderers, rapists, homosexuals, abortionists, drunkards and thieves, and concludes that he is not really that bad to deserve hell. The Bible says of such moral men. "Therefore thou are inexcusable, O man, whosoever thou art that judgest: for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself; for thou that judgest doest the same" (Romans 2:1). Moral man may not sin the same way as others, but he sins nevertheless. With God, even the secret sins of the heart will condemn the moral man in the judgment day (Romans 2:16). To be a moral person is not the same as being a Christian. All have sinned and need a Savior. That Savior is Jesus. Will you admit your sinful condition and trust the crucified and risen Savior Jesus Christ for everlasting life?

Annual Harborpark Day Celebration Set For Sunday, Sept. 23

Sunday, Sept. 23 is Harborpark Day in the Charlestown Navy Yard. From noon to 6 p.m. join in celebrating the city of Boston's annual Harborpark Day waterfront festival.

Children's events will be held continuously in Shipyard Park from noon, sponsored by The Raymond Group. Highlights will include free balloons, clowns, face painters, the Strawberry Jam Band, magic and puppet shows.

Horizons for Youth's Chowdafest will return this year for visitors who want to sample the chowder of 20 Boston restaurants. Adults for $6, and children and senior citizens for $3 can participate in the taste test and cast a ballot for Boston's best chowder. The Chowdafest includes continuous live music, and all proceeds benefit outdoor programs through Horizons for Youth.

Through the Boston National Historic Park, events on Pier 1 will include an 18th-century encampment, the 47th Regiment of Foot. The USS Constitution and the USS Cassin Young will be open for visitors.

The Department of the Navy has tentatively scheduled the visit of a rescue, salvage and towing ship that will be open for tours on Harborpark Day. (The Na-
