

The

MONSTER BOOK

Of

MONSTERS

Edwardus Lima

Certified by the London Marlock Society of Magicology Registered with the Ministry of Magic, 1992 A.D.

The MONSTER BOOK OF MONSTERS

From across the world, to your very back yard, monsters and creatures can be found.

In this comprehensive book, both Monster, Beast, and Creature are described.

While not every creature described is the ideal "Monster" all must remember that every creature,

when caged,

when muzzled,

when backed into a corner at wand-point,

when cursed to reveal it's powers,

or corked in a potion bottle to ferment,

can,

become,

Monstrous.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

Please Note, that due to the nature of this book,

some pages may be devoured and lost.

The Monster Book of Monsters

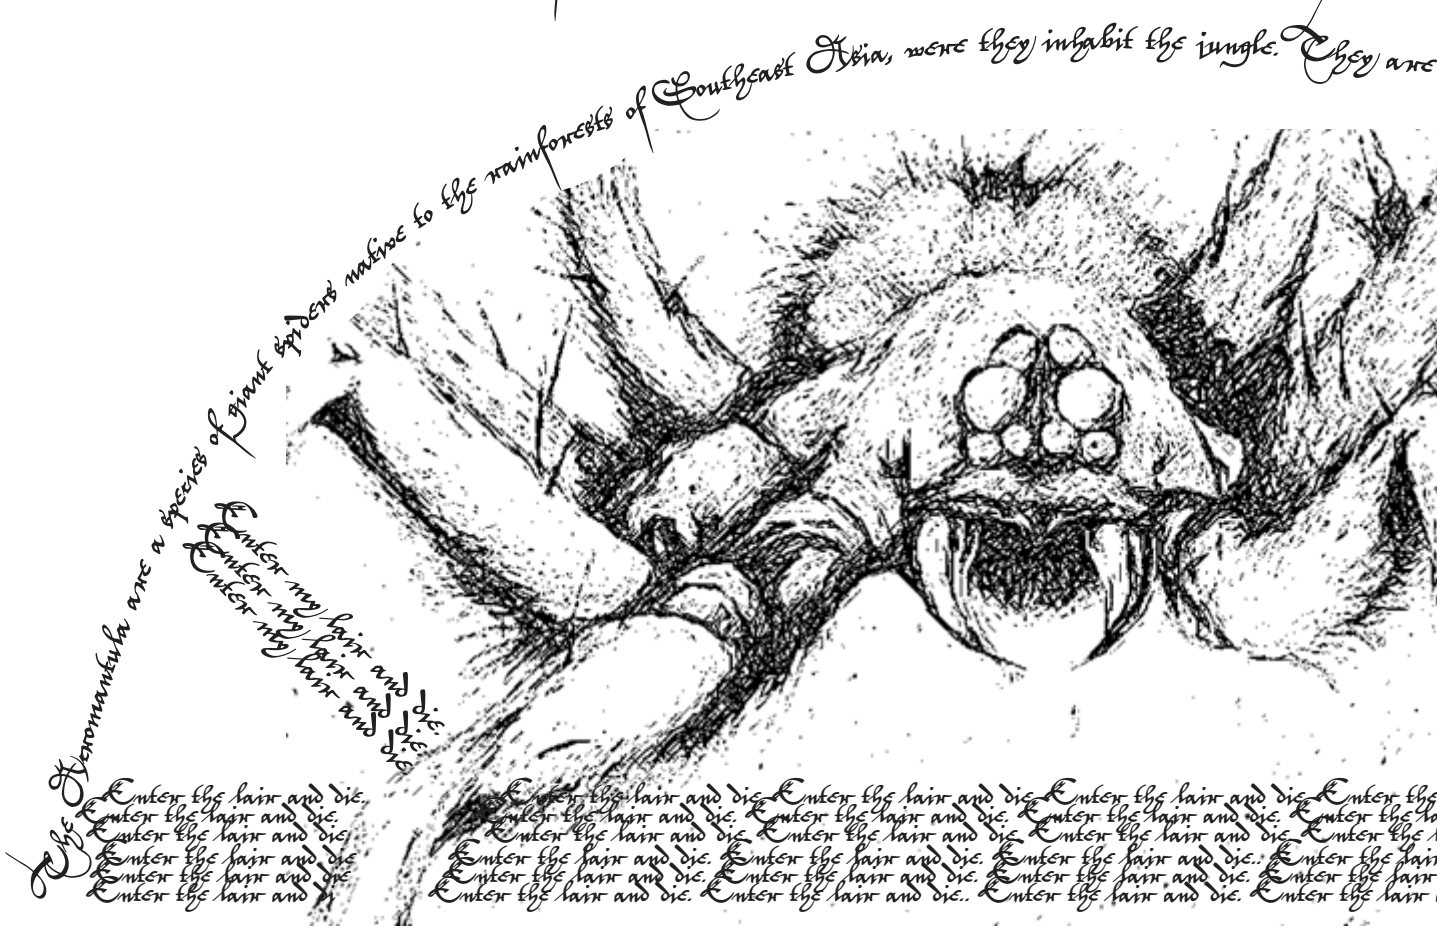

Acromantula

The Acromantula are a species of giant spider, native to the rainforests of Southeast Asia, particularly in the highlands of Borneo where it inhabits dense jungle. Acromantulas are believed to be a wizard species, designed to guard dwellings or treasure. Acromantulas have eight eyes.

Acromantulas are highly intelligent and capable of human speech. They are typically covered in thick black hair, with a leg span that can reach up to fifteen feet. They are known for their voracious appetite for mammals, and they are known to eat live prey.

The Acromantula's bite is extremely painful and produces a ringing sound when the beast is agitated or excited. The Acromantula's bite is highly venomous and is highly valued at the Calceon's a time after death.

Acromantulas are massive creatures that live in tree tops. They are known for their ability to climb trees and are often found in the highlands of Borneo. They are known for their voracious appetite for mammals, and they are known to eat live prey. The Acromantula's bite is extremely painful and produces a ringing sound when the beast is agitated or excited. The Acromantula's bite is highly venomous and is highly valued at the Calceon's a time after death.

The Acromantula are a species of giant spiders native to the rainforests of Southeast Asia, where they inhabit the jungle. They are known for their voracious appetite for mammals, and they are known to eat live prey. The Acromantula's bite is extremely painful and produces a ringing sound when the beast is agitated or excited. The Acromantula's bite is highly venomous and is highly valued at the Calceon's a time after death.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

The Ashwinder is a serpent that is created from the remains of any magical fire that is allowed to burn. The man who has seen the Ashwinder can tell you that it is a very dangerous creature. The Ashwinder is a serpent that is created from the remains of any magical fire that is allowed to burn. The man who has seen the Ashwinder can tell you that it is a very dangerous creature. The Ashwinder is a serpent that is created from the remains of any magical fire that is allowed to burn. The man who has seen the Ashwinder can tell you that it is a very dangerous creature.

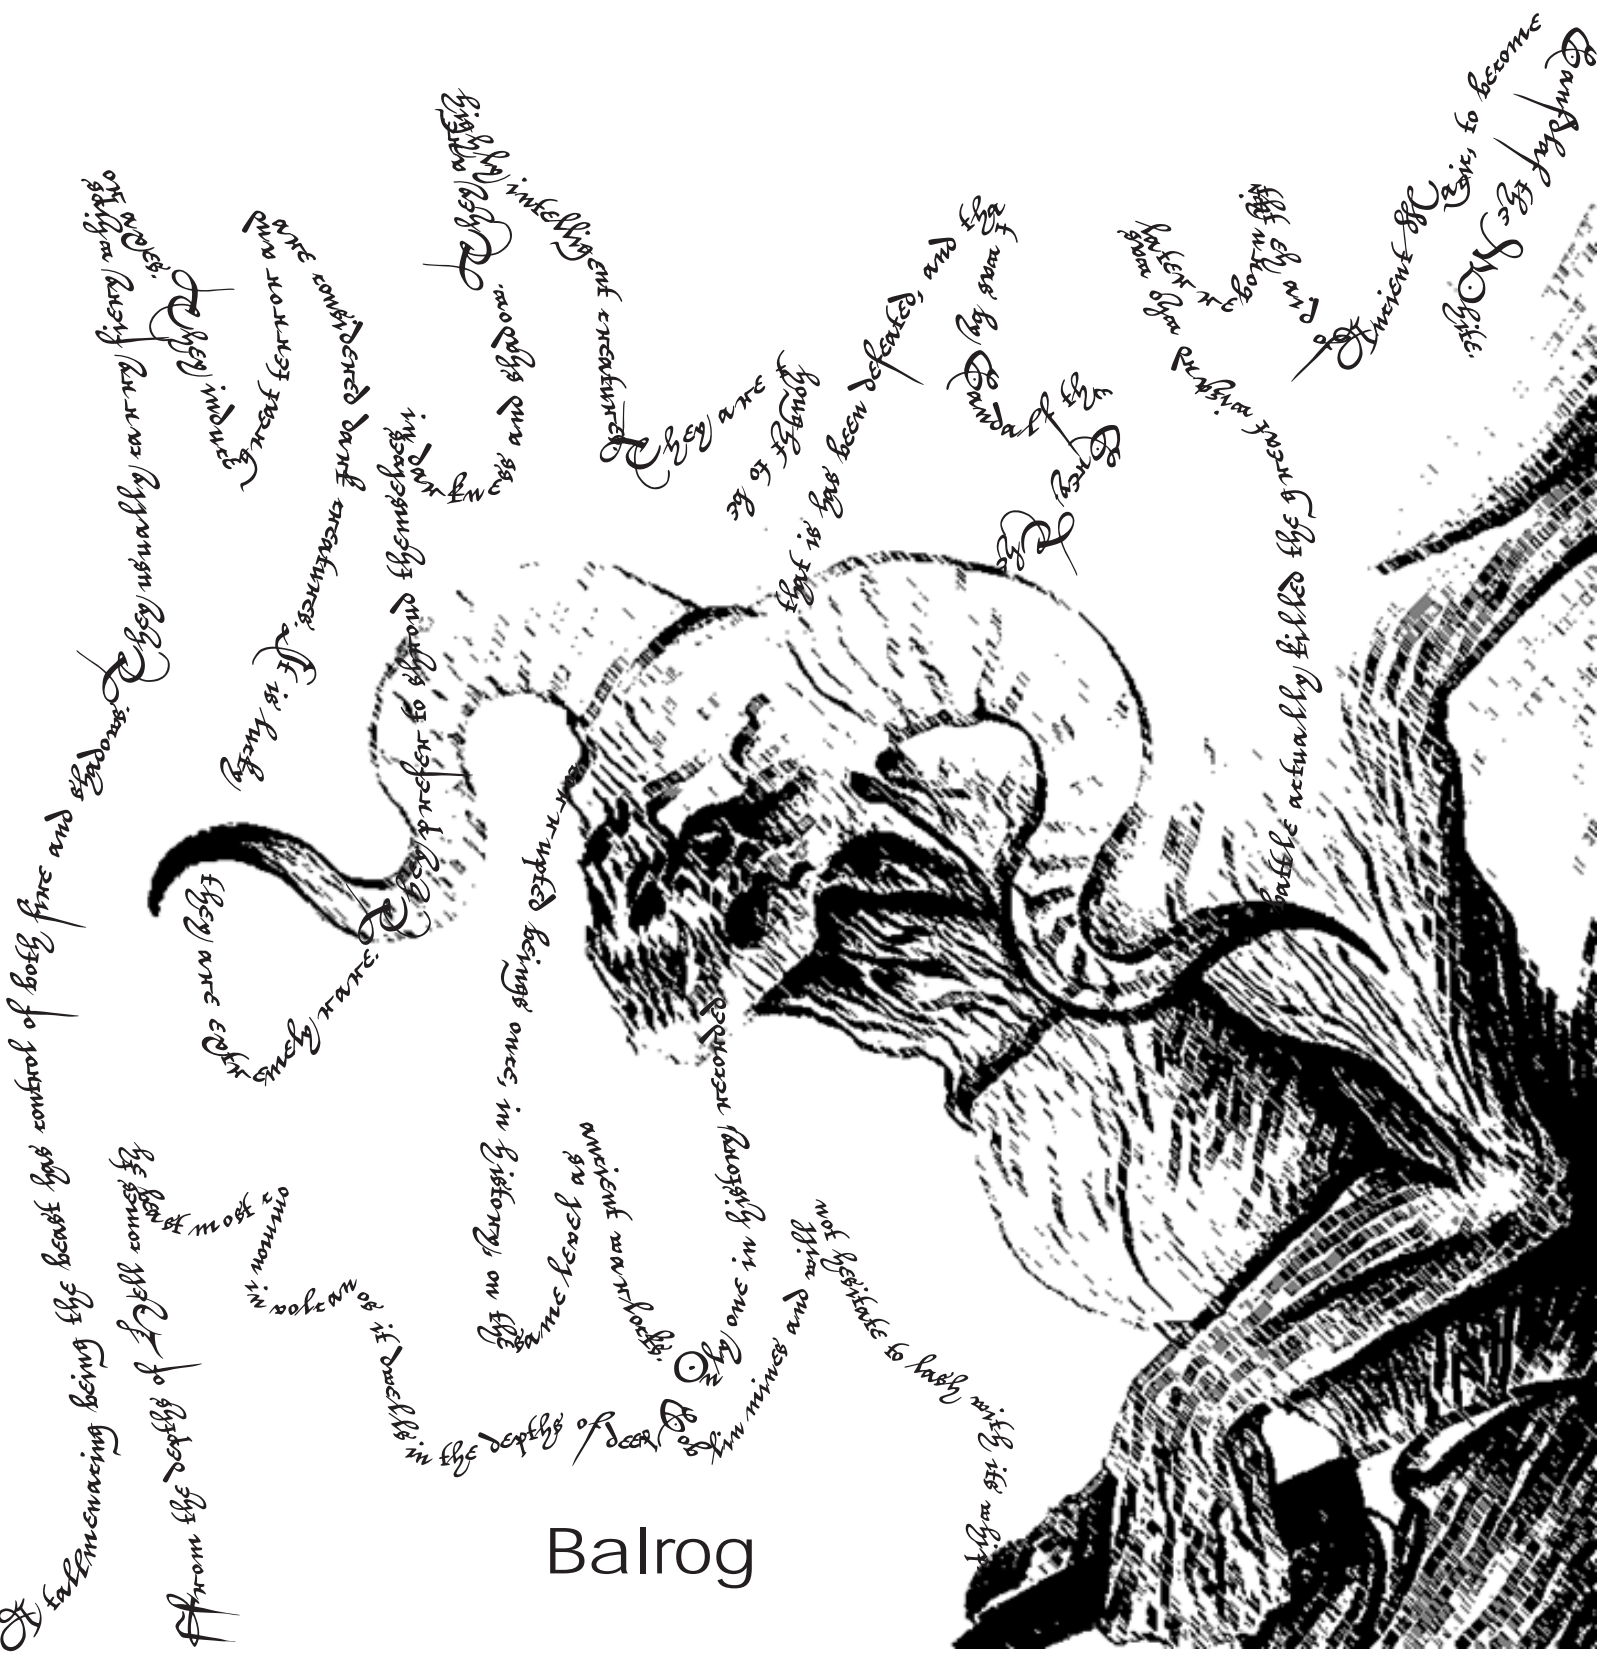

magical fires, can produce up to 200,000 Ashwinders in a single fire. When the fire is extinguished, the Ashwinder is only in name events. When the fire is extinguished, the Ashwinder is only in name events. When the fire is extinguished, the Ashwinder is only in name events.

It is the case with many of the world's volcanoes, which have been disguised by wizards for single protection.

Ashwinder

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

Balrog

Demanded the souls of men to become his slaves.

He was the most powerful of the Balrogs.

He was actually killed by Gandalf the White.

He was by far the most powerful of the Balrogs.

He was the most powerful of the Balrogs.

He was the most powerful of the Balrogs.

He was the most powerful of the Balrogs.

He was the most powerful of the Balrogs.

He was the most powerful of the Balrogs.

He was the most powerful of the Balrogs.

He was the most powerful of the Balrogs.

He was the most powerful of the Balrogs.

He was the most powerful of the Balrogs.

He was the most powerful of the Balrogs.

He was the most powerful of the Balrogs.

He was the most powerful of the Balrogs.

Banshee

The Banshee is a Dark creature with the appearance of a woman with long hair and a pale green tinged face. The only known way to stop a banshee is to break its neck when it closes its eyes to scream, because every other part of its body is as tough as steel. It notable power is a high pitched supersonic scream that can kill any one.

every other part of its body is as tough as steel. It notable power is a high pitched supersonic scream that can kill any one.

It is likely that if you have truly seen a Banshee you would not be able to find this page.

Blast-Ended Skrewt

The Blast-Ended Skrewt is a hybrid creature crossing of Anticones and Fire crabs. Stingers and the females have suckers on their body to suck blood. They grow grey over their backs. Their shiny armour deflects most spells, and they use

The males have stingers which propel them forward a few inches. The males have highly dangerous and repulsive. They resembled giant scorpions with stingers curled their blasts to propel themselves at a foe. Its single undefended spot is its armour

Early-Stage Skrewts looked like pale, shiny deformed shell-less lobsters. They have legs sticking out at odd angles. About six inches long and smell strongly of rotten fish. Carapace is its undefended spot and elongated crabs. The males hold their stingers over their backs, and are

Boggart

Because of their shape-shifting ability, no one knows what a boggart looks like when it is alone, as if it instantly changes into your worst fears when you first see it. The charm that combats a boggart inside, there's something waiting for you. So you dare to open the wizard's wardrobe... (It's important that you know the form of the wizard's wardrobe...)

When facing a boggart, it is best to have someone else along, to try to find comical, inspiring laughter, which will defeat a boggart. The charm does not in fact, repel a Boggart, it just forces it to assume a shape that the wizard takes on the form of the wizard's wardrobe... (It's important that you know the form of the wizard's wardrobe...)

When in another form the power can be reduced. The charm requires a strong mind and a suitable wizard. The charm is a shape-shifting creature that takes on the form of the wizard's wardrobe... (It's important that you know the form of the wizard's wardrobe...)

When you give someone a warning and warn your companion, you can feel a great sense of relief and safety. The charm does not in fact, repel a Boggart, it just forces it to assume a shape that the wizard takes on the form of the wizard's wardrobe... (It's important that you know the form of the wizard's wardrobe...)

When you give someone a warning and warn your companion, you can feel a great sense of relief and safety. The charm does not in fact, repel a Boggart, it just forces it to assume a shape that the wizard takes on the form of the wizard's wardrobe... (It's important that you know the form of the wizard's wardrobe...)

Bowtruckle

The Bowtruckle, known as the guardians of the tree, are often overlooked by wizards and witches alike. Found in every species of tree, they'll attack any foe of the forest. Wand makers are often tend to them, for they protect the valuable wand wood. A tree dwelling being often found in western England, and the Black forests of Germany they appear to be made of wood and twigs, blending to the wood.

When threatened they often attack by gouging out the eyes of the attacker. Their sharp fingers making easy work.

Enter the forest, and take the Bowtruckle is immensely difficult to... being a hand-sized, insect eating tree dweller with long sharp fingers, brown eyes, and a general appearance of a flat faced little stickman made of bark and twigs, which serves well as camouflage in its natural habitat. It can be found in certain forests... of Scandinavia as well as England and Germany. It serves as a guardian to its home tree, whose wood makes wands. The twig-like fingers are well adapted for digging out woodlice and can be used as a weapon against foe when aimed at the eye. Generally peaceful, it will become violent if threatened. To take wood of leaves, offer lice.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

Bugbear

Bugbear can cause bleeding of the valley, the night during the morning in the mountains. Bugbear can cause bleeding of the valley, the night during the morning in the mountains.

Standing 7 feet tall, the Bugbear is the largest of goblinoid races. It is a lumbering brute that is taller... and heavier than most humans. Solitary creatures, they live and kill on their own. They are most often extremely dangerous and have a taste for human flesh. Living in temperate mountain regions they are perfect hunters and possess intense skills of perceptions and stealth. To be avoided at all costs due to murderous nature.

Bundimun

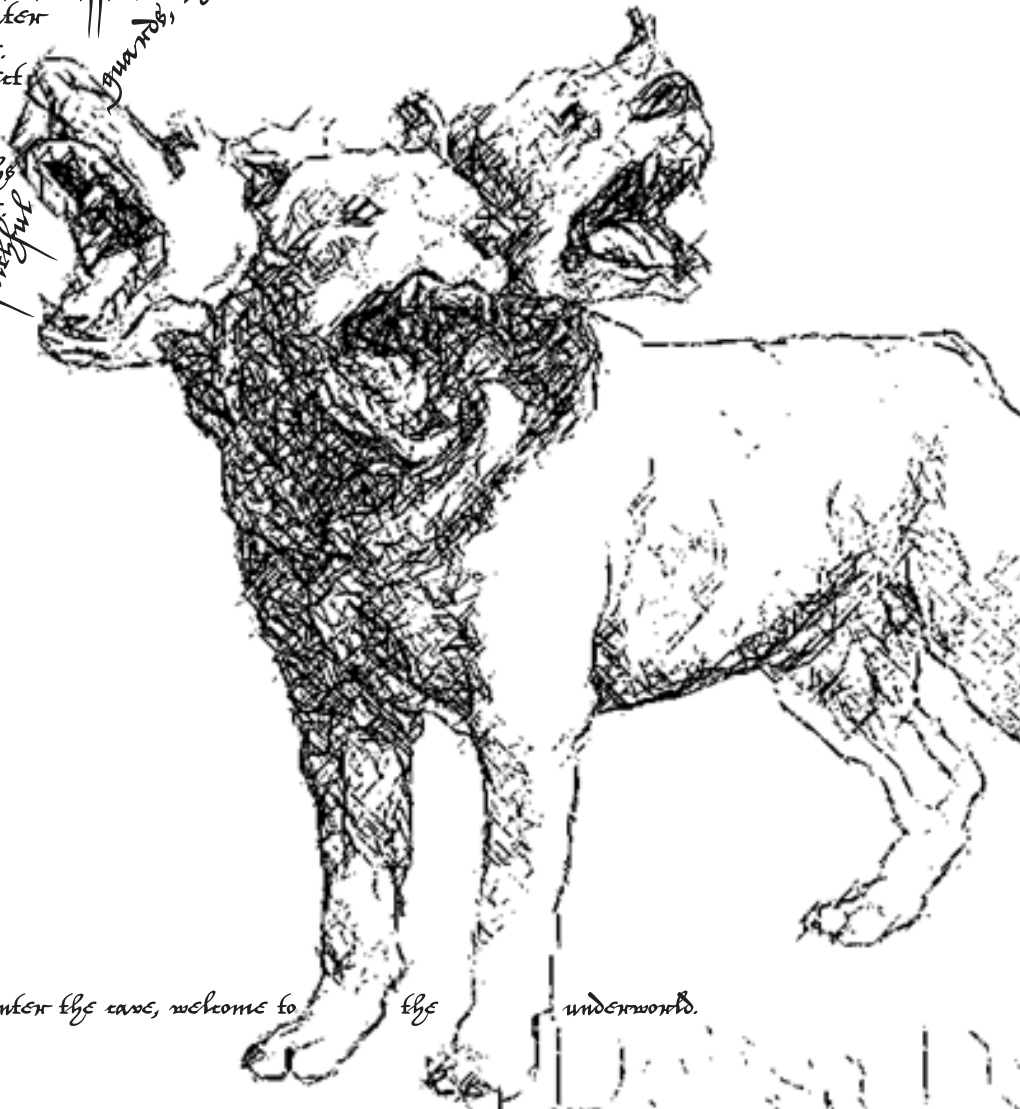

Bundimun is a magical creature found worldwide. It is a greenish fungus with many eyes, that can destroy a whole house. The secretions of the Bundimun rot building structure, and if a house gets a large enough infestation it can collapse. Scouring Charms can clear out small infestations, but large colonies should be dealt with by the Department for the Regulation and Control of Magical Creatures (Pest Sub-Division). Bundimuns are known to spit out acid that can seriously harm anyone who bothers it. Bundimun Secretions, when diluted, are used in some magical cleaning solutions.

Cerberus

They are very rare creatures. Perhaps under a population of 7 worldwide. It is unknown, like the Lutespoon, if each head serves a different purpose. Their great weakness comes in the inability to resist falling asleep to music. The mythic Cerberus described in Greek myths was also easily put to sleep with music played on harps. This dog of the myths is the first recorded three-headed dog on record and is most likely the creation, perhaps accidental, of early Greek Alchemists. No while it is difficult to say how these creatures are born, with later lineages lost, it is clear breeding takes place. One unique quality of this beast is the respect it holds for not only the decesses of its own kind, but its fondness and respect for all creatures. Perhaps this is where the myths of the Guardian of the Underworld arise.

Known for being extremely loyal, intelligent and faithful guards.

Three heads of this dog are often menacing, ready to kill.

Enter the cave, welcome to the underworld.

It is a creature of many extremes all in one.

Chimaera

The beast from Greek mythology is possibly one of only a few mythical creatures known to exist. It is not sure how these beings come to exist. However, it is known that many ancient people of magical abilities have perished when faced with a Chimaera. They have been known to perch on cliff edges, silently waiting and will stalk their prey until they have killed it. Using its powerful jaws and whip-like tail can lash out with great power and has no obvious weaknesses. Some believe that the due to being part dragon even potions of the body that are furred hold dragon hide-like strengths, but this has not been proven to be true.

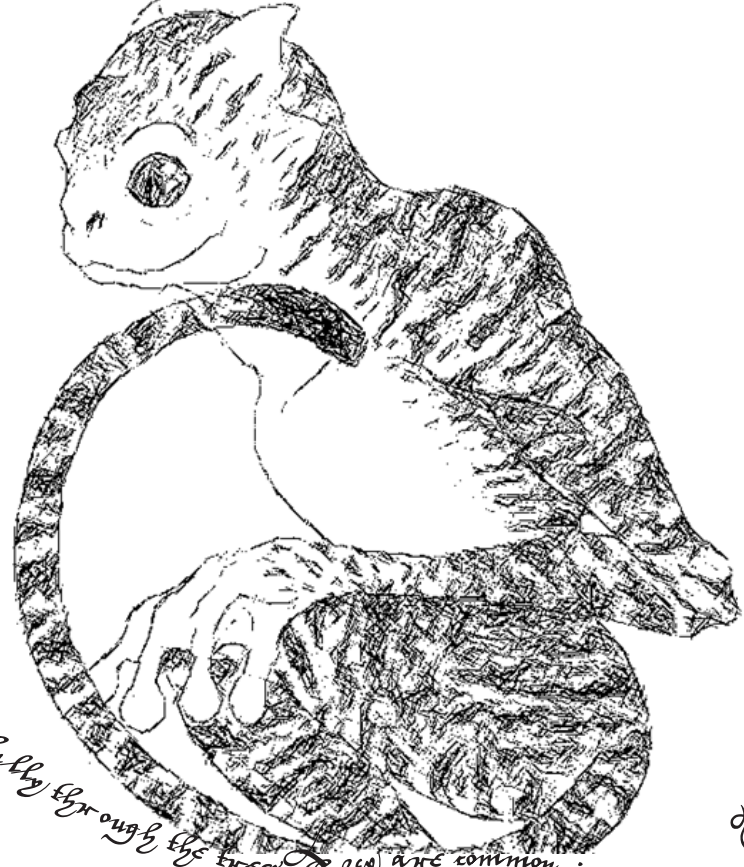

The Chimaera is a type of hybrid animal creature known to exist in various parts of Greece. It is a creature of hybrid nature to Greece.

It is a creature of hybrid nature to Greece. It is a creature of hybrid nature to Greece. It is a creature of hybrid nature to Greece.

It is a creature of hybrid nature to Greece. It is a creature of hybrid nature to Greece. It is a creature of hybrid nature to Greece.

It is a creature of hybrid nature to Greece. It is a creature of hybrid nature to Greece. It is a creature of hybrid nature to Greece.

It is a creature of hybrid nature to Greece. It is a creature of hybrid nature to Greece. It is a creature of hybrid nature to Greece.

Clabbert

American witches and wizards used to keep Clabberts to give them a night's warning about approaching evil forces. Clabbert purrles and purrs like a cat.

Its long and thin tail and feet allow it to move gracefully among trees. Its long and thin tail and feet allow it to move gracefully among trees. Its long and thin tail and feet allow it to move gracefully among trees.

and it has short horns and a wide grin. Its smooth skin is mottled green and it has short horns and a wide grin.

Clabbert is an arboreal creature that resembles a cross between a monkey and a cat. Clabbert is an arboreal creature that resembles a cross between a monkey and a cat.

Clabbert is an arboreal creature that resembles a cross between a monkey and a cat.

Clabbert is an arboreal creature that resembles a cross between a monkey and a cat.

Clabbert is an arboreal creature that resembles a cross between a monkey and a cat.

Clabbert is an arboreal creature that resembles a cross between a monkey and a cat.

Clabbert is an arboreal creature that resembles a cross between a monkey and a cat.

Clabbert is an arboreal creature that resembles a cross between a monkey and a cat.

Clabbert is an arboreal creature that resembles a cross between a monkey and a cat.

Clabbert is an arboreal creature that resembles a cross between a monkey and a cat.

Clabbert is an arboreal creature that resembles a cross between a monkey and a cat.

Clabbert is an arboreal creature that resembles a cross between a monkey and a cat.

Dementor

Dementors are dark, shapeless creatures that feed on the happiness and emotions of their victims. They are often found in dark, isolated places, and their presence is usually indicated by a cold, numbing feeling.

Dementors are known for their ability to drain the happiness from their victims, leaving them in a state of despair and hopelessness. They are also capable of inflicting physical pain, and their victims often describe the experience as being "sucked out" or "drained" of their life force.

Dementors are a type of magical creature that can be found in the wizarding world. They are often used as a form of punishment, and their presence is a sign of a dark and dangerous environment.

Dementors are known for their ability to drain the happiness from their victims, leaving them in a state of despair and hopelessness. They are also capable of inflicting physical pain, and their victims often describe the experience as being "sucked out" or "drained" of their life force.

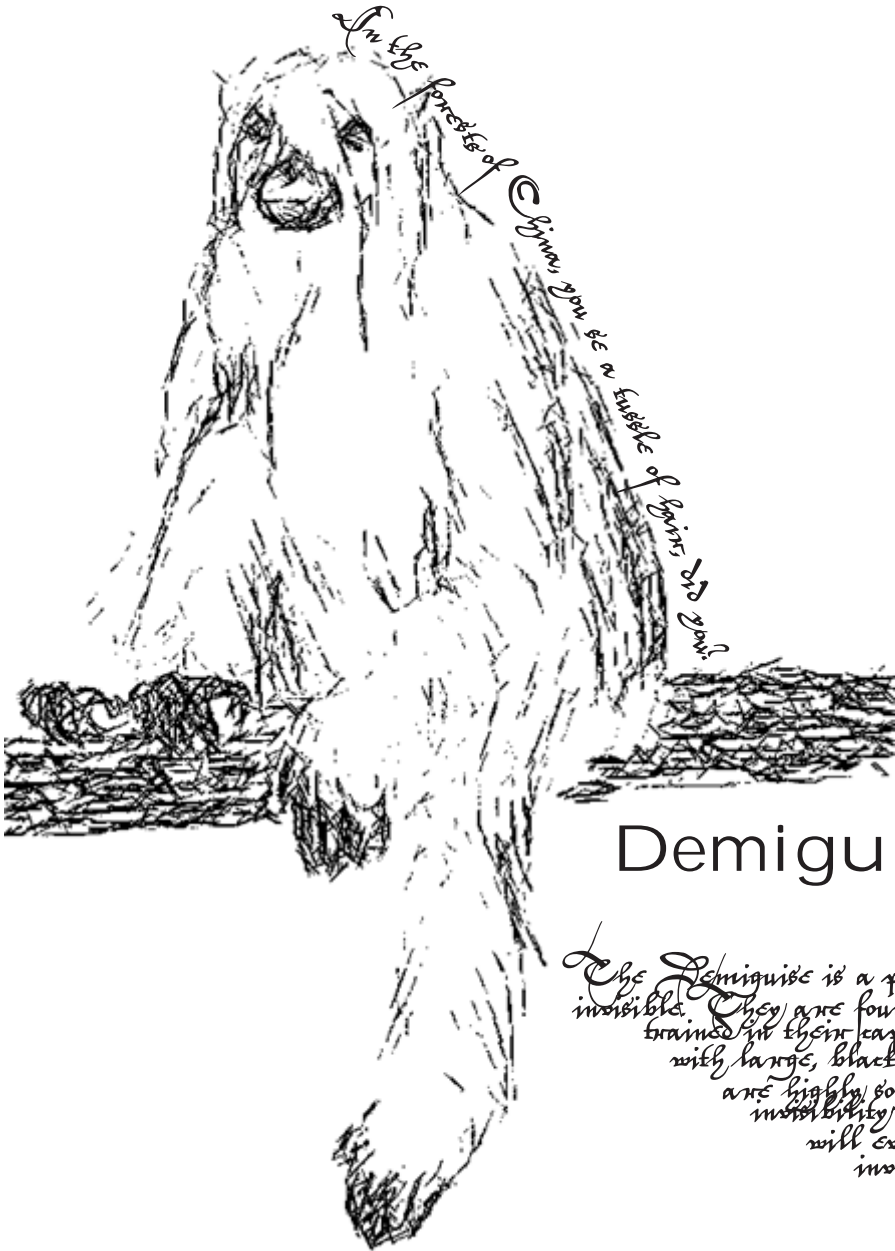

Dementor's face has nothing but a large hole, where the mouth should be. It is used for the Dementor's kiss, which sucks the soul from a person's body. It is a fate worse than death. They can communicate but rely on their emotions...

Dementors are known for their ability to drain the happiness from their victims, leaving them in a state of despair and hopelessness. They are also capable of inflicting physical pain, and their victims often describe the experience as being "sucked out" or "drained" of their life force.

Dementor's face has nothing but a large hole, where the mouth should be. It is used for the Dementor's kiss, which sucks the soul from a person's body. It is a fate worse than death. They can communicate but rely on their emotions...

Dementors are known for their ability to drain the happiness from their victims, leaving them in a state of despair and hopelessness. They are also capable of inflicting physical pain, and their victims often describe the experience as being "sucked out" or "drained" of their life force.

Demiguise

The Demiguise is a peaceful, herbivorous creature that can make itself invisible. They are found in the far East, but only wizards and witched trained in their capture can even see them. They resemble an ape with large, black eyes and long, silky hair. Demiguise pelts are highly sought after as the hair can be woven into invisibility cloaks. Cloaks made from their hair will eventually turn opaque, losing their invisibility effects as time passes.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

Diricawl

The Diricawl is a plump, fluffy creature and flightless bird. The Diricawl has egg-shaped wings and appears in another area as a means of escaping danger. It is not aware of its ability to swim. It is also not aware of its ability to fly. It is also not aware of its ability to walk. It is also not aware of its ability to see. It is also not aware of its ability to hear. It is also not aware of its ability to smell. It is also not aware of its ability to taste. It is also not aware of its ability to feel. It is also not aware of its ability to think. It is also not aware of its ability to love. It is also not aware of its ability to hate. It is also not aware of its ability to live. It is also not aware of its ability to die.

DOXY

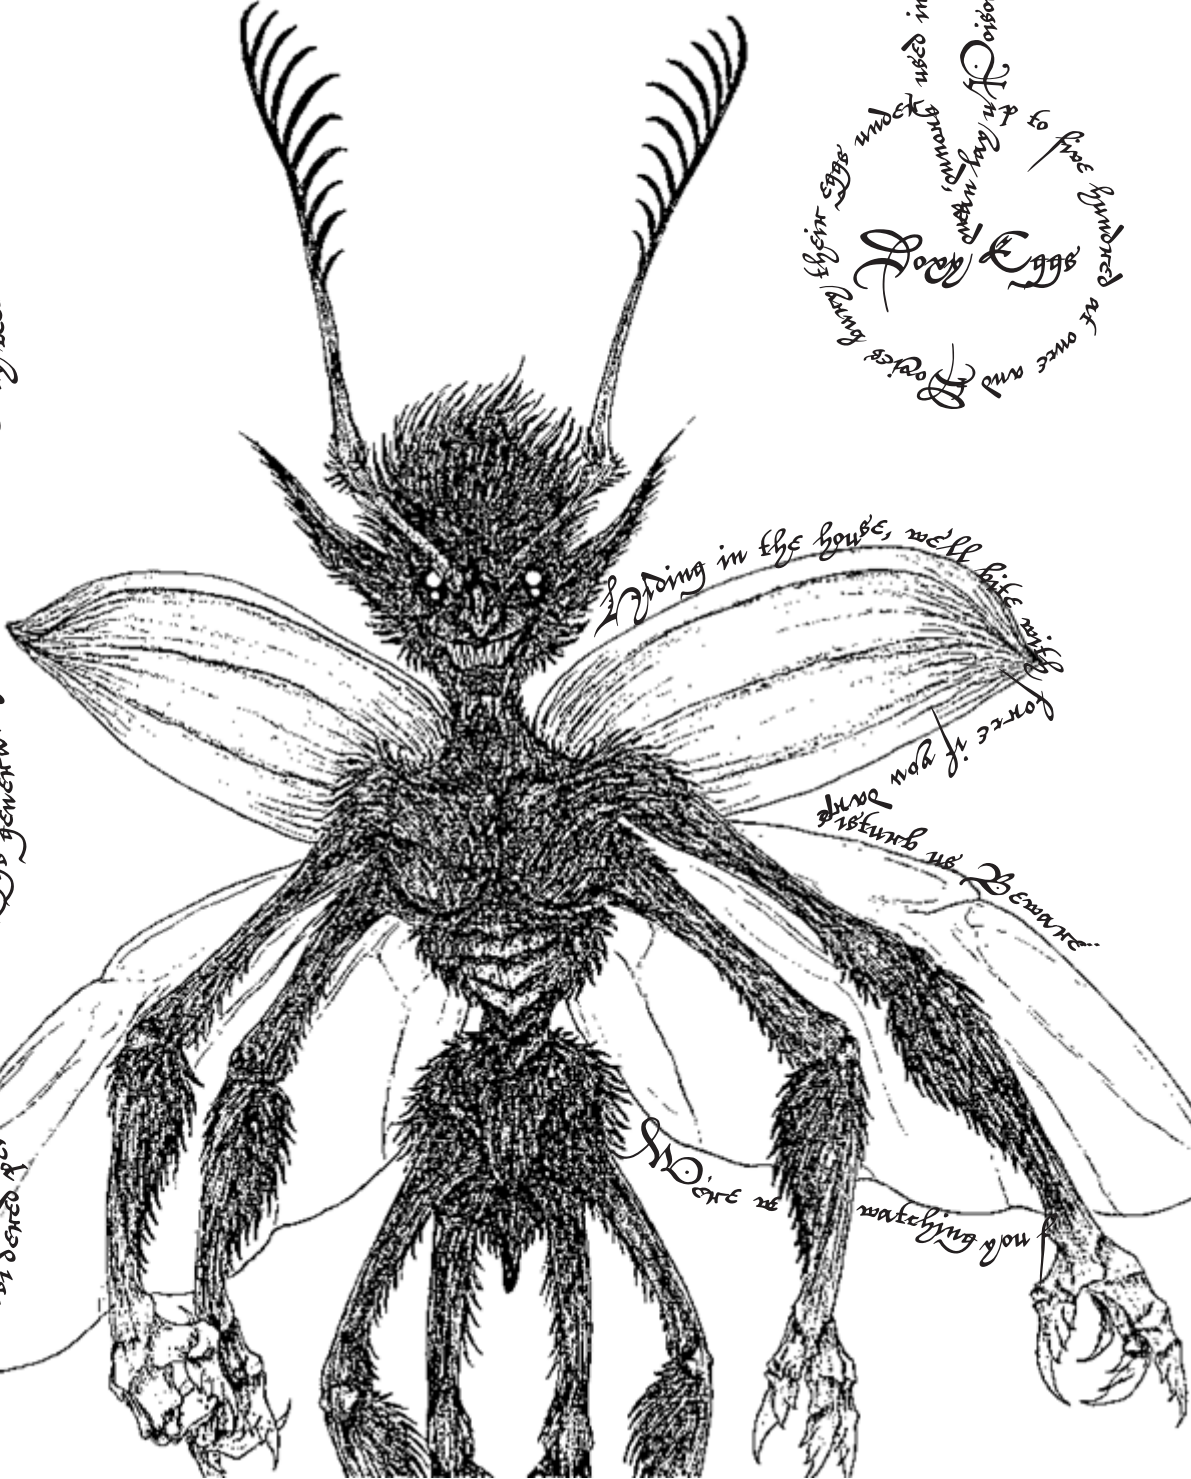

They will often be mistaken for a Fairy. Doxy is a small fly-like creature, sometimes mistaken for a Fairy. Doxy is a small fly-like creature, sometimes mistaken for a Fairy.

Doxy has a row of eight legs, two of which are black hairs, and a pair of wings. Doxy has a row of eight legs, two of which are black hairs, and a pair of wings.

Doxy is generally found in a few places, and is very common. Doxy is generally found in a few places, and is very common.

Doxy is found in America, and is very common. Doxy is found in America, and is very common.

Doxy is found in America, and is very common. Doxy is found in America, and is very common.

When in the house, well bite with force if you disturb us.

Doxy is found in America, and is very common.

Doxy is found in America, and is very common.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

It feeds on children, and prefers adults.

Dugbog

Dugbog is a magical creature found in the North and South American countries. It is a small, round, brown creature with a long, thin tail. It is found in marshy areas and feeds on small animals and occasionally on children. It is a very dangerous creature and should be avoided.

Dugbog is a magical creature found in the North and South American countries. It is a small, round, brown creature with a long, thin tail. It is found in marshy areas and feeds on small animals and occasionally on children. It is a very dangerous creature and should be avoided.

Dugbog is a magical creature found in the North and South American countries. It is a small, round, brown creature with a long, thin tail. It is found in marshy areas and feeds on small animals and occasionally on children. It is a very dangerous creature and should be avoided.

Dugbog is a magical creature found in the North and South American countries. It is a small, round, brown creature with a long, thin tail. It is found in marshy areas and feeds on small animals and occasionally on children. It is a very dangerous creature and should be avoided.

Elf

the Elf

most common however is the Elf

Elves are curious creatures, found in many parts of the world and are forced into loyalty. They can appear within and outside of their own world and are forced into loyalty. They are for the most part devoted to crossbreed and hybrids are not known. They are for the most part devoted to crossbreed and hybrids are not known.

There are many parts of the world. There are many parts of the world. There are many parts of the world. There are many parts of the world. There are many parts of the world.

It is impossible to describe them all in one book. The species world wide and it is impossible to describe them all in one book. The species world wide and it is impossible to describe them all in one book.

There are many

Erkling

The Erkling is an elfish creature, which has a particularly affinity for the table of children. Its high pitched cackle is disturbing to children, and it uses this to lure them away from their guardians to eat them. Professor Steinreich of the Ministry of Magic has greatly reduced the number of Erklings active in the wizarding world by the use of a special charm. The charm causes the Erklings to shoot at unsuspecting wizards and witches. The Ministry of Magic has also since then reduced the number of Erklings active in the wizarding world by the use of a special charm. The charm causes the Erklings to shoot at unsuspecting wizards and witches.

The Monster Book of Monsters

Erumpent will not attack if you can please skin and hide it in a dark place at night, the eye reveals itself.

Erumpent is a large
creature and its skin is used in many ways.

Erumpent is a large
creature and its
skin is used in many ways. It is a powerful
creature and its
skin is used in many ways. It is a powerful
creature and its
skin is used in many ways.

Erumpent

Erumpent is a large
creature and its
skin is used in many ways. It is a powerful
creature and its
skin is used in many ways. It is a powerful
creature and its
skin is used in many ways.

Fachen

It can destroy an orchard with a chain in its strong, singular, withered arm, in a single night. The Fachen is a creature with only half a body and found only in Scotland and Ireland. It is said due to its appearance which includes a mane of black feathers tufted at the top of its head with a very wide mouth, can actually cause heart attacks and in turn, death. It is unknown if a special creature magic aids in this. It stated it can destroy acres and acres of orchards in a single night. It only destroys orchards.

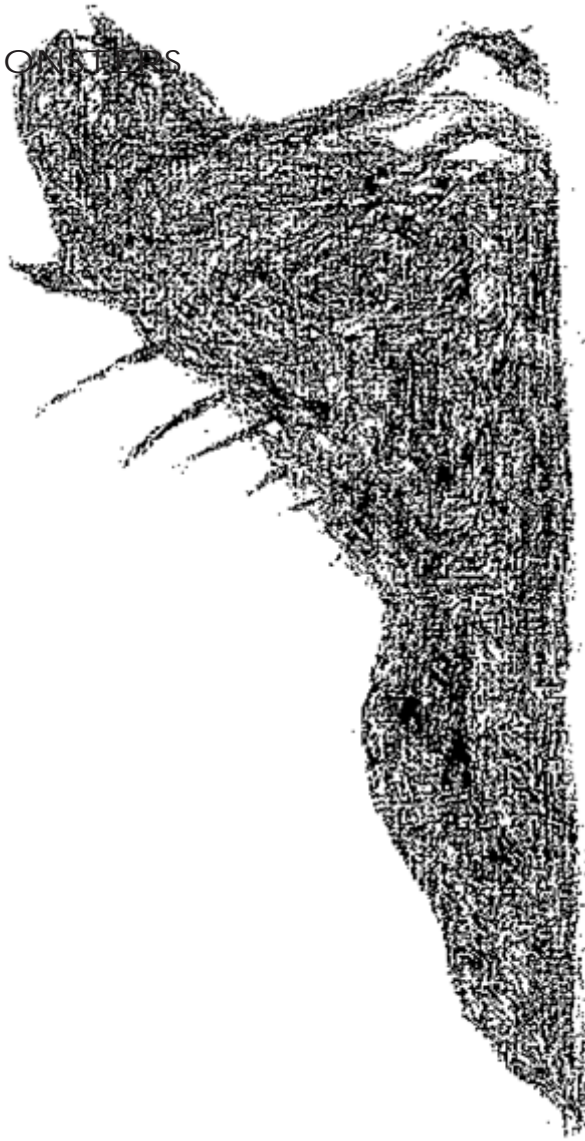

Fairy

Their wings are used as an ingredient in certain potions.
To capture and acquire wings one must stun and knock down the creature. You must then freeze the fairy and rip off its wings. Do not worry though if the wings are lost or taken they will be regrown every 2000 years.

They have a limited intelligence, and are used as decoration by the fairies. They are found in woods and glades. They possess a great power and will often allow themselves to be used as decoration by the fairies. They are found in woods and glades. They possess a great power and will often
allow themselves to be used as decoration by the fairies.

Their wings are used as an ingredient in certain potions.
To capture and acquire wings one must stun and knock down the creature. You must then freeze the fairy and rip off its wings. Do not worry though if the wings are lost or taken
they will be regrown every 2000 years.

Flesh-Eating Slug

The Flesh-Eating Slug is a magical creature that is common in gardens.

It is a garden pest that feeds on plants.

It is a common pest that can be found in gardens.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

The Flobberworm is a few-inch, footless brown worm which eats vegetation by lettuce and cabbage. It is a fairly boring creature, with a Ministry of Agriculture

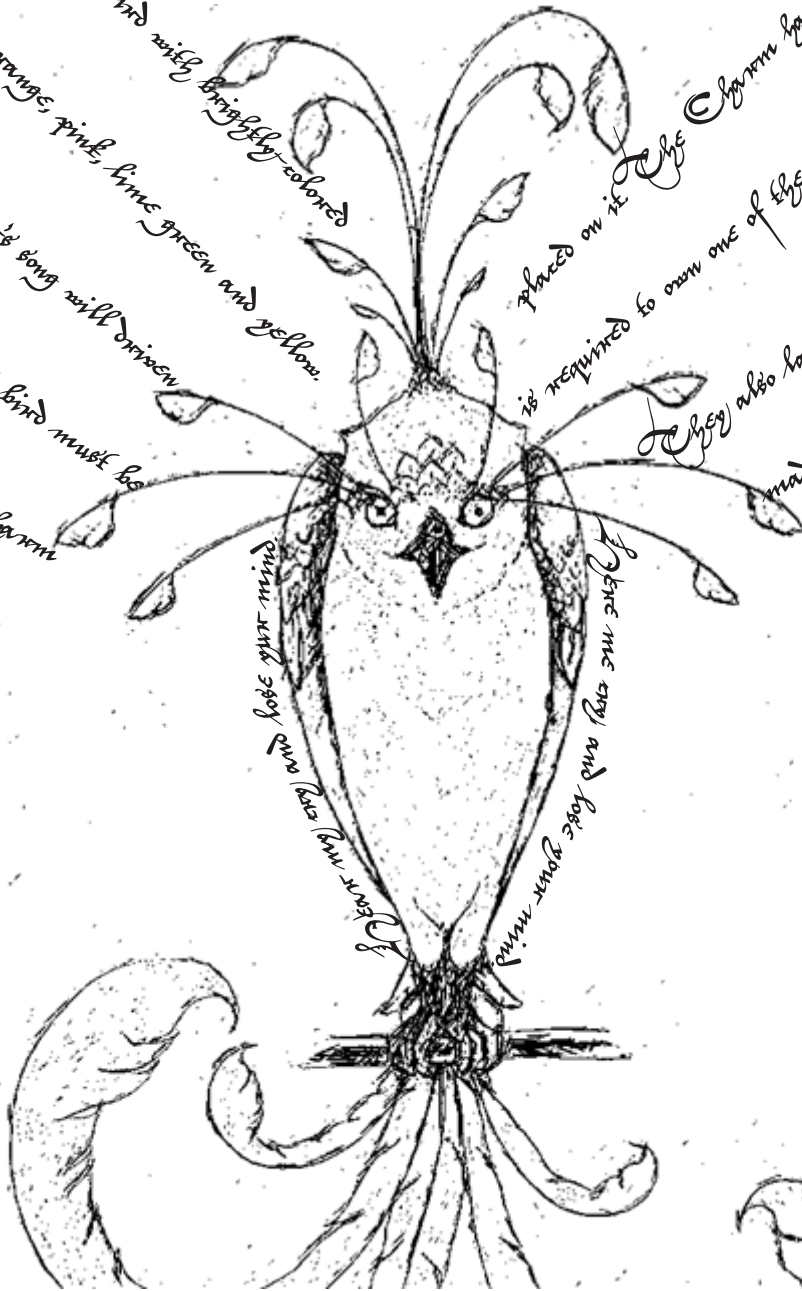

Flobberworm

Each end is identical to the others and from both it sends mucus which sometimes used to thicken potions. It moves very little and prefers to live in damp & vegetative areas

It lives in incredibly loose and fine textured soils and it is impossible to remove them

It burrows without ripping them in the mud, in turn filling them with tiny mucus

Fwooper

The Fwooper is a magical African bird with brightly-colored feathers which can include orange, pink, lime green and yellow.

Listening to the Fwooper's song will drive away the sickness demons, so each bird must be sold with a Silencing Charm.

The Charm has to be reinforced monthly and a license is required to own one of the birds.

They also had brightly patterned eggs in large nests made of invisible plum since they eat insect larvae and prefer fruits.

They look like you but they are not you.

They are not you and look your mind.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

The grant you wishes, but you'll be wishing for days

Genies are supernatural creatures that occupy a parallel world to that of mankind. They are often seen as being connected with the lamp by an evil spirit. The reason given is that they have been trapped inside the lamp by an evil spirit. They can also be good, evil, or neutral, and often causing misfortune and havoc.

Genies often grant wishes as well to the person that frees them from the lamp, commonly known as the "genie's master".

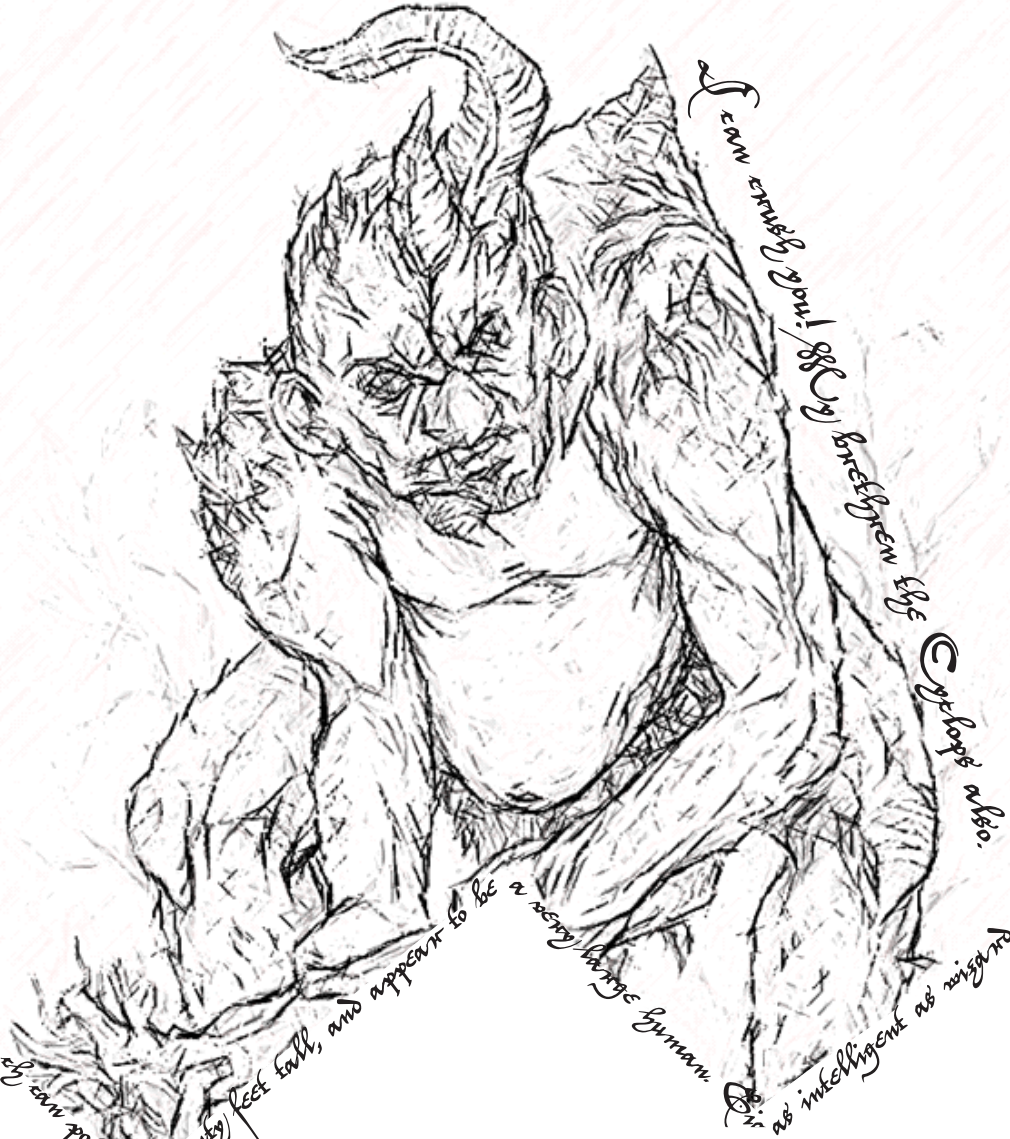

Genies are often seen as being connected with the lamp by an evil spirit. The reason given is that they have been trapped inside the lamp by an evil spirit. They can also be good, evil, or neutral, and often causing misfortune and havoc.

Genie

They are often seen as being connected with the lamp by an evil spirit. The reason given is that they have been trapped inside the lamp by an evil spirit. They can also be good, evil, or neutral, and often causing misfortune and havoc.

The Monster Book of Monsters

Giant

I can crush you! off by brethren the Cyclops is also.

Twenty feet tall, and appear to be a very large human.

as intelligent as wizards of wizards, but they have their own language, culture and societal structure. They are quite capable of learning English and presumably other languages as well. The Giant tribe is ... led by the strongest Giant, with the most fearsome appearance, known as a Gurg.

They are most often found in the mountains and can be found on every continent.
They should be considered very dangerous and can easily rip apart any human.

All save your life if you find you can't make it a bone.

The Giant Squid is a very real creature that is huge living in the deep seas and lakes of the world. It is semi-sentient and not very dangerous.

Due to their immense power and strength they have been known to crush ships but this is only very rough play behavior.

With eyes the size of dinner plates they can see in all levels of light and with huge beaks they can crush even all Antelope hide.

Hooks on the suckers provide excellent grip and they have been known to save drowning victims.

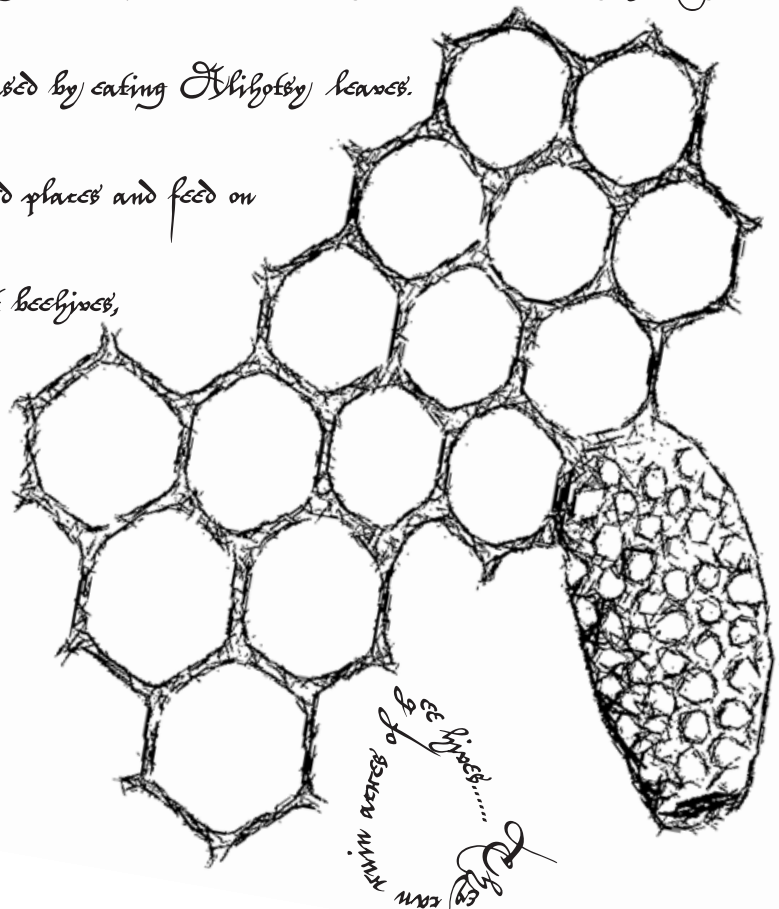

Giant Squid

Glumbumble

The Glumbumble, a grey, furry, flying insect, produces treacle that induces melancholy. The treacle is used as an antidote to the hysteria caused by eating Allyhotsy leaves.

Glumbumbles nest in dark and secluded places and feed on nettles. They have been known to infest beehives, which has a disastrous effect the honey produced.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

Their feet are usually brown in color boney. Gnomes live in burrows dig up and eat roots of plants, creating feed. This causes considerable damage such they are considered pests. Co popular way consists of spinning and then tossing them beyond exist but they are too cruel to and have disproportionately large head are hard and where they dig up and heap of soil where they many gardens and as a garden the most until they are diggy. Other methods mention.

Gnome saliva is beneficial to many species although the bite hurts severely. Joy molly

Gnome

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

Death awaits you if you find me.

Gnoph-Keh

They have been known to kill those who disturb them with an arrow for cold, ice and snow and are therefore found in mountain and northern regions. They are similar to a large, six-legged polar bear with a narwhal horn. The horn contains a poison that kill upon touch, piercing them with the horn, causing immediate death.

Gnoph-Keh are humanoid cannibals described as being covered in coarse matted hair with a large protruding nose. They are violent disturbing creatures and should be avoided at all costs. They are violent, dangerous creatures with an affinity for cold, ice and snow and are therefore found in mountain and northern regions. They are similar to a large, six-legged polar bear with a narwhal horn. The horn contains a poison that kill upon touch,

Goblin

Least fust

Goblin, Shell head, manipulate and bill for eye best mark

Goblin are a very intelligent and cunning race. They are very small and have long, pointed ears and feet that consist of many small toes. They have very long fingers and feet, and some have pointed ears. Some have dark, slanted eyes, and some have small horns. They have very long fingers and feet, and some have pointed ears. Some have dark, slanted eyes, and some have small horns. They have very long fingers and feet, and some have pointed ears. Some have dark, slanted eyes, and some have small horns.

713

Their diet consists of meat, roots and fungi. Goblins converse in a language of grunts and whistles. They are very cunning and have a great deal of knowledge. They are very small and have long, pointed ears and feet that consist of many small toes. They have very long fingers and feet, and some have pointed ears. Some have dark, slanted eyes, and some have small horns. They have very long fingers and feet, and some have pointed ears. Some have dark, slanted eyes, and some have small horns.

Graphorn

They'll charge and kill without a care. Still, even trolls w/rope them

They appear as terribly large beasts with a fearsome purple skin and fur. It is impossible to say how many have died because of this beast of course, knights, mages, the mountains of Europe. The Graphorn is a dangerous and aggressive magical creature, from tales taken in the mountains of Europe. It can heal wounds, cure ailments, and ward off evil spirits. It is a highly intelligent creature, and can be tamed. The Graphorn is a highly intelligent creature, and can be tamed. The Graphorn is a highly intelligent creature, and can be tamed. The Graphorn is a highly intelligent creature, and can be tamed.

considered part of the Great Britain and Ireland. It has green scaly skin, horns and long fangs, which are used to strangle victims, which are used to strangle victims as well. Grindylows are mostly buried on the banks of rivers and streams. They are usually not a threat but have been known to sometimes harm and keep people from crossing them and keep them from crossing them.

Grindylow

Grindylow is a small, horned creature that lives in the beds at the bottom of lakes in Great Britain and Ireland. It has green scaly skin, horns and long fangs, which are used to strangle victims, which are used to strangle victims as well. Grindylows are mostly buried on the banks of rivers and streams. They are usually not a threat but have been known to sometimes harm and keep people from crossing them and keep them from crossing them.

The Grindylow is a small, horned creature that lives in the beds at the bottom of lakes in Great Britain and Ireland. It has green scaly skin, horns and long fangs, which are used to strangle victims, which are used to strangle victims as well. Grindylows are mostly buried on the banks of rivers and streams. They are usually not a threat but have been known to sometimes harm and keep people from crossing them and keep them from crossing them.

Hinkypunk

Big hinkypunks known to lure victims into legged creatures which appear to be made of wings and into a to be made of wings. It rises to land slowly but

Jim Fink

Native to Greece, the Hippocampus is a beast with the head and forequarters of a horse, and the tail and hindquarters of a giant fish, making it somewhat similar in appearance to an eel.

Hippocampus

Known as a Cadoak, can be seen in the Mediterranean, a blue roan specimen was captured in the year 1800. Although it is generally considered mythical, it is generally believed that the Hippocampus may have been a small, eel-like creature that lived in the sea. It is generally believed that the Hippocampus may have been a small, eel-like creature that lived in the sea.

Hippogriff

to stay back, for you will be killed.

Do not touch the wings, for they are made of steel.

They are fiercely loyal and protective of their young. They are also very intelligent and can be trained to do many things. They are often found in the mountains and forests of the North.

It is very similar to another mythical creature, the Griffin, with the horse rear replacing the lion rear. Hippogriffs have cruel, steel-coloured beaks and large, brilliantly orange eyes. The talons on their front legs are half a foot long and appear deadly, in which they can be. When approaching use... Extreme caution for proper etiquette must be used. They are intensely proud creatures, and a human must show proper respect by bowing to them and waiting for a bow in return. Eye Contact should be maintained at all times without a single blink. The beast should then be allowed to make the first move. If offended it may attack and a common iron may be used to knock back the creature. They are tameable but only by experts. It

Hippogriff is a magical creature that has the front legs, wings, and head of a giant eagle and the body, hind legs and tail of a horse. It is very similar to another mythical creature, the Griffin, with the horse rear replacing the lion rear. Hippogriffs have cruel, steel-coloured beaks and large, brilliantly orange eyes. The talons on their front legs are half a foot long and appear deadly, in which they can be. When approaching use... Extreme caution for proper etiquette must be used. They are intensely proud creatures, and a human must show proper respect by bowing to them and waiting for a bow in return. Eye Contact should be maintained at all times without a single blink. The beast should then be allowed to make the first move. If offended it may attack and a common iron may be used to knock back the creature. They are tameable but only by experts. It

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

The Horklump resembles a fleshy pink mushroom covered in black bristles. Originally native to Scandinavia, the Horklump is now found throughout northern Europe. Horklumps spread sinewy tentacles rather than roots into the ground to look for their desired food of earthworms. They are fast breeders, and can cover an average garden in a matter of days. Greener venom is one of the few known substances that can kill Horklumps. Even though they were once common in many gardens within days and attract problem species, Horklumps are likely viewed as pests by M. D. S. and I. If it is true then it may explain why some are so common in the first place, biologically speaking.

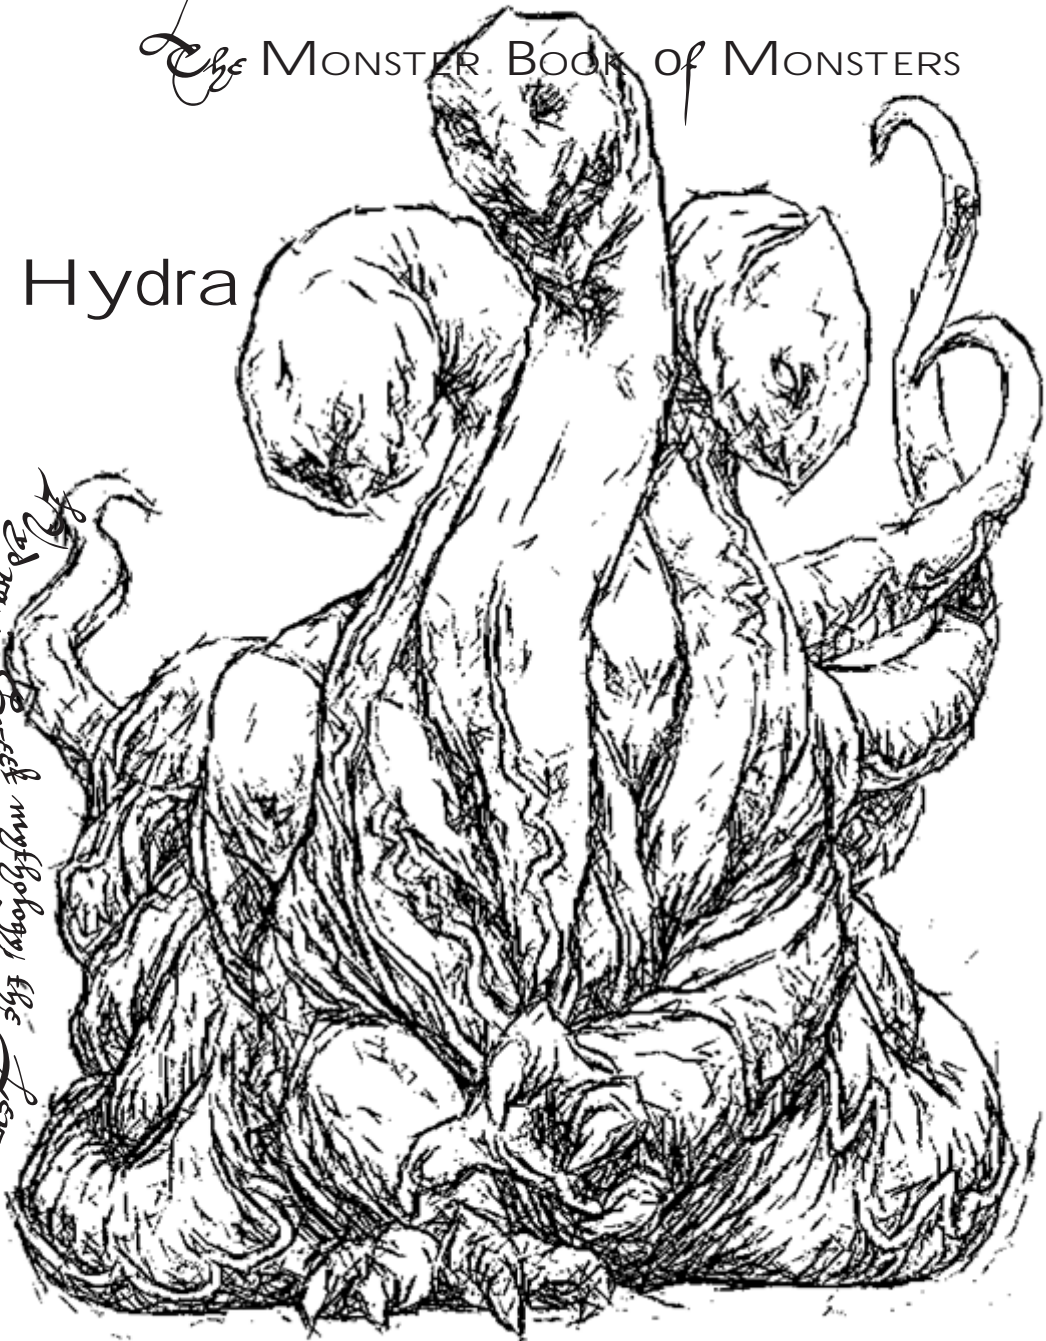

Horklump

During the appropriate procedure on a massive and so on, Horklumps may have been introduced by missionaries and witches to the gardens.

Hydra

Hydra in Greek mythology the Lernaean Hydra

as an ancient serpent-like chthonic water beast that possessed numerous heads. The Hydra had the reputation of regenerating a new head for every one cut off. The number of heads deviates from five up to one hundred but generally nine is attested. It totally terrorized the vicinity of Argolis, devouring them with its numerous heads.

It was slain by Heracles. The myth that the sacred site was older even than the Argolid, though archaeology has borne out the myth of the Argolid, for Lerna was the site of the myth of the Argolid. Lerna was an entrance to the Underworld, and the Hydra was its guardian.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

Imp

Imps are found in many parts of the world, but they are most numerous in the mountains of the Alps and the Pyrenees. They are said to be the work of the Evil Spirit, and are often seen in the shape of a small, horned, winged creature. They are very mischievous and are known to be very fond of playing tricks on the good people of the country. They are also said to be very fond of eating the flesh of the dead.

Found only in Britain and Ireland, the Imp is a magical creature often confused with the Pooka. They are of similar height, but that is where the resemblance ends. The Imp cannot fly like the Pooka, nor is it as brightly coloured. Imps make their home in man's land, where they indulge their satirical sense of humour by playing tricks on the good people of the country. They are very mischievous and are known to be very fond of playing tricks on the good people of the country. They are also said to be very fond of eating the flesh of the dead.

Inferi

In Inferius is a dead body reanimated by a Dark Lord. It has no mind, and cannot think for themselves; their purpose is to kill, and to bring pain to a victim.

The most effective way to destroy Inferi is to burn them. Inferi are weak to fire and are also weak to lightning. Inferi are also weak to fire and are also weak to lightning.

Therefore a fire-breathing dragon is most effective against them.

Inferi are also weak to fire and are also weak to lightning.

Other spells might work but might not be used.

but might not be used.

but might not be used.

but might not be used.

but might not be used.

but might not be used.

but might not be used.

The Monster Book of Monsters

Jarvey

found in Britain, Ireland, and North America
... Jarvey is a small, mischievous creature that is often found in the forests of the British Isles.

... Jarvey is a small, mischievous creature that is often found in the forests of the British Isles.
... Jarvey is a small, mischievous creature that is often found in the forests of the British Isles.

... Jarvey is a small, mischievous creature that is often found in the forests of the British Isles.
... Jarvey is a small, mischievous creature that is often found in the forests of the British Isles.

... Jarvey is a small, mischievous creature that is often found in the forests of the British Isles.
... Jarvey is a small, mischievous creature that is often found in the forests of the British Isles.

The MONSTER BOOK OF MONSTERS

The Kappa is a Japanese water demon. It resembles a scale-coated monkey with webbed hands and a water-filled depression on top of its head.

It can also be tricked into bowing, so that the water spills out of the hollow on its head, rendering it powerless. The water in this hollow is the source of the creature's strength.

However, a person confronted with a Kappa can do something to protect themselves, either by appearing the creature or out-matching it. It will not attack a person if it is frightened enough to make it into their ponds and rivers.

It can also be tricked into bowing, so that the water spills out of the hollow on its head, rendering it powerless. However, a person confronted with a Kappa can do something to protect themselves, either by appearing the creature or out-matching it. It will not attack a person if it is frightened enough to make it into their ponds and rivers.

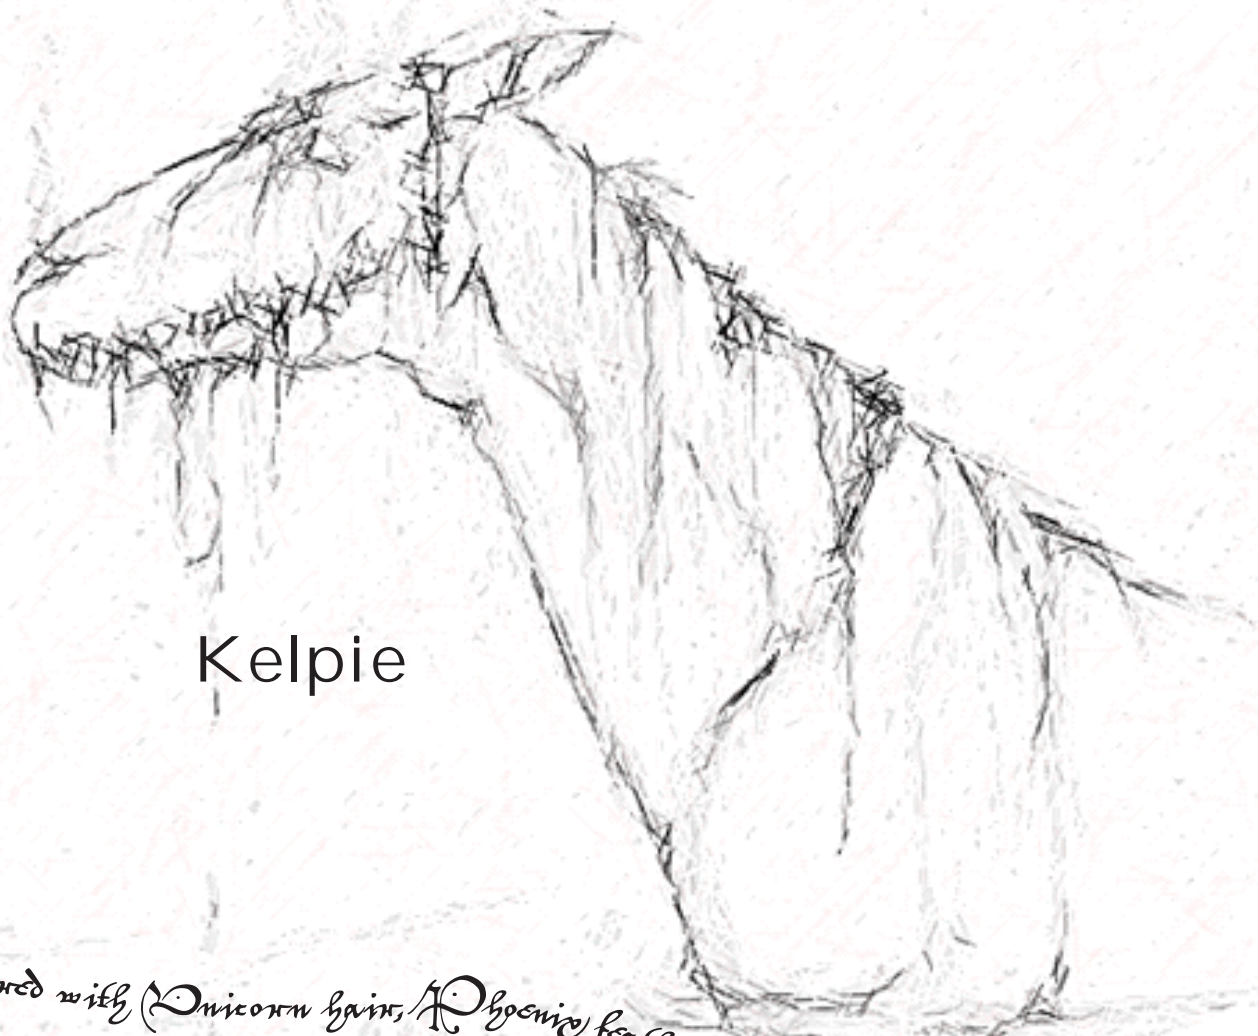

Kappa

The Monster Book of Monsters

It is a fire-breathing dragon-like creature with a long tongue that can detect wind direction, and a pouch containing ice from the mountains. It is a fire-breathing dragon-like creature with a long tongue that can detect wind direction, and a pouch containing ice from the mountains. It is a fire-breathing dragon-like creature with a long tongue that can detect wind direction, and a pouch containing ice from the mountains.

Kasha

Kelpie

ance when compared with Unicorn hair, Phoenix feather and Dragon heartstring.
they drag them under water and eat them, although it is said to be an inferior substance as a wand core, using a Kelpie hair can be used to make a Charm that will cause a bird to be treated as if it were a Kelpie.
of Kelpie is a water demon native to Britain and Ireland. Able to take any form, they usually take the form of a horse with a bushy mane. Of their name, the origin is uncertain, but they are said to be kind and gentle creatures.
of Kelpie is a water demon native to Britain and Ireland. Able to take any form, they usually take the form of a horse with a bushy mane. Of their name, the origin is uncertain, but they are said to be kind and gentle creatures.

Knarl

for damage committed by a Knarl.

The garden of the householder who left the food, all night the Knarl have often been blamed and enjoy the gift, a Knarl will see it as an attempt to lure it into a trap and hence savage only one known difference between them: when food is left out for a Knarl, it will appreciate

The Knarl is a creature that greatly resembles a Knarl, so much so that they are a Leagle is a magical feline creature related to and similar too, a cat.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

They have spotted, speckled or flecked fur, large ears and a lightly plumed tail, like a lion. They are thought to have separate breeds, like cats and therefore vary in appearance.

They make excellent pets if they like a witch or wizard. They have very high levels of intelligence, are independent, and occasionally aggressive.

They also have an uncanny ability to detect suspicious and distrustful people. They can also safely guide their owner home. Because of their aggression, they have an MM classification when pure bred.

Leagles can interbreed with normal cats, and generally have up to eight kittens in every litter. Their whistles can be used in wand cores although they are said to make inferior wands to those made with Unicorn hair, Phoenix feather Dragon heartstring.

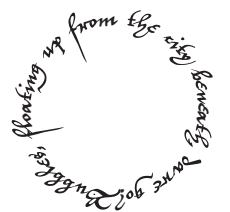

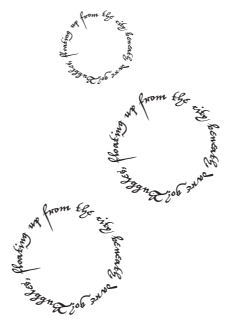

Kneazle

Lethifold

The Lethifold, also known as a Living Shroud is a carnivorous and highly dangerous magical creature. Its appearance resembles that of a black cloak roughly half an inch thick, although it gets thicker if the beast has recently digested a victim. It glides along the ground and other surfaces in an unknown form of locomotion in search of its prey, humans. It attacks its prey at night, when the target is asleep and suffocates and digests it in its bed. The only form of protection against the Lethifold is a Patronus. Other spells such as the Stunning Spell will not work. The Lethifold is a very rare species and can only be found in the tropics where moist weather dominates.

Mermaid

With magical voices they kill.

Merpeople are sentient beings, that live under water. They are found all over the world and are mysterious creatures.

Like Centaurs, they refused "Being" status in favor of "Beast". Merpeople can breathe above water for a short time, but it is unknown if they can even truly leave their habitat. Most likely, they remain where born.

They are often found in Greece history as with the Sirens. Many magical voices they kill.

The society of the Merpeople is based around organized communities. They have a great love of music and language known as Merminish. They speak a very few words above water it sounds like human speech and can only properly be heard under water, unfortunately.

Many wizards fell in love with the mermaids of the sea. Some say they were wizards of the sea.

Some say they are from the sea.

The Merpeople of the Black Lake at the bottom of the North Sea and the North Sea have green hair. Their eyes are yellow as are their broken teeth, and they wear thick robes of pebbles around their necks. Their powerful fish tails allow them to swim expertly, while the upper parts of their bodies resemble that of humans. They have been known to reach heights of two and one-half meters.

Some say you'll never miss, some say you'll miss. Some say you'll miss, some say you'll miss.

There are several species of Merpeople around the world. One species the Umagyo of Japan is described as a mouth like a monkey, small fish-like teeth, with shiny golden scales and a quiet voice like that of a flute. Their flesh is pleasant tasting and those who eat it will attain great longevity. However, catching one will result in the onslaught of violent storms. When the body of a Umagyo washes up on beaches, a war is coming. Not all mermaids however have such magical prop. Those in England and much of Europe often from civilizations.

Minotaur

The beast has the body of a man and the head of a Bull. They are all but extinct with only one remaining animal in the known world. The one left has been deemed so dangerous that it has been captured and placed into a labyrinth in an undisclosed location by the Ministry of Magic and an unplotable charm placed on the maze. Ancient Greek and Roman wizards and witches would often tempt the beast, which often resulted in mutilation.

Minotaur is a monster, half-man, half-bull, that devoured sacrificial victims thrown into a labyrinth.

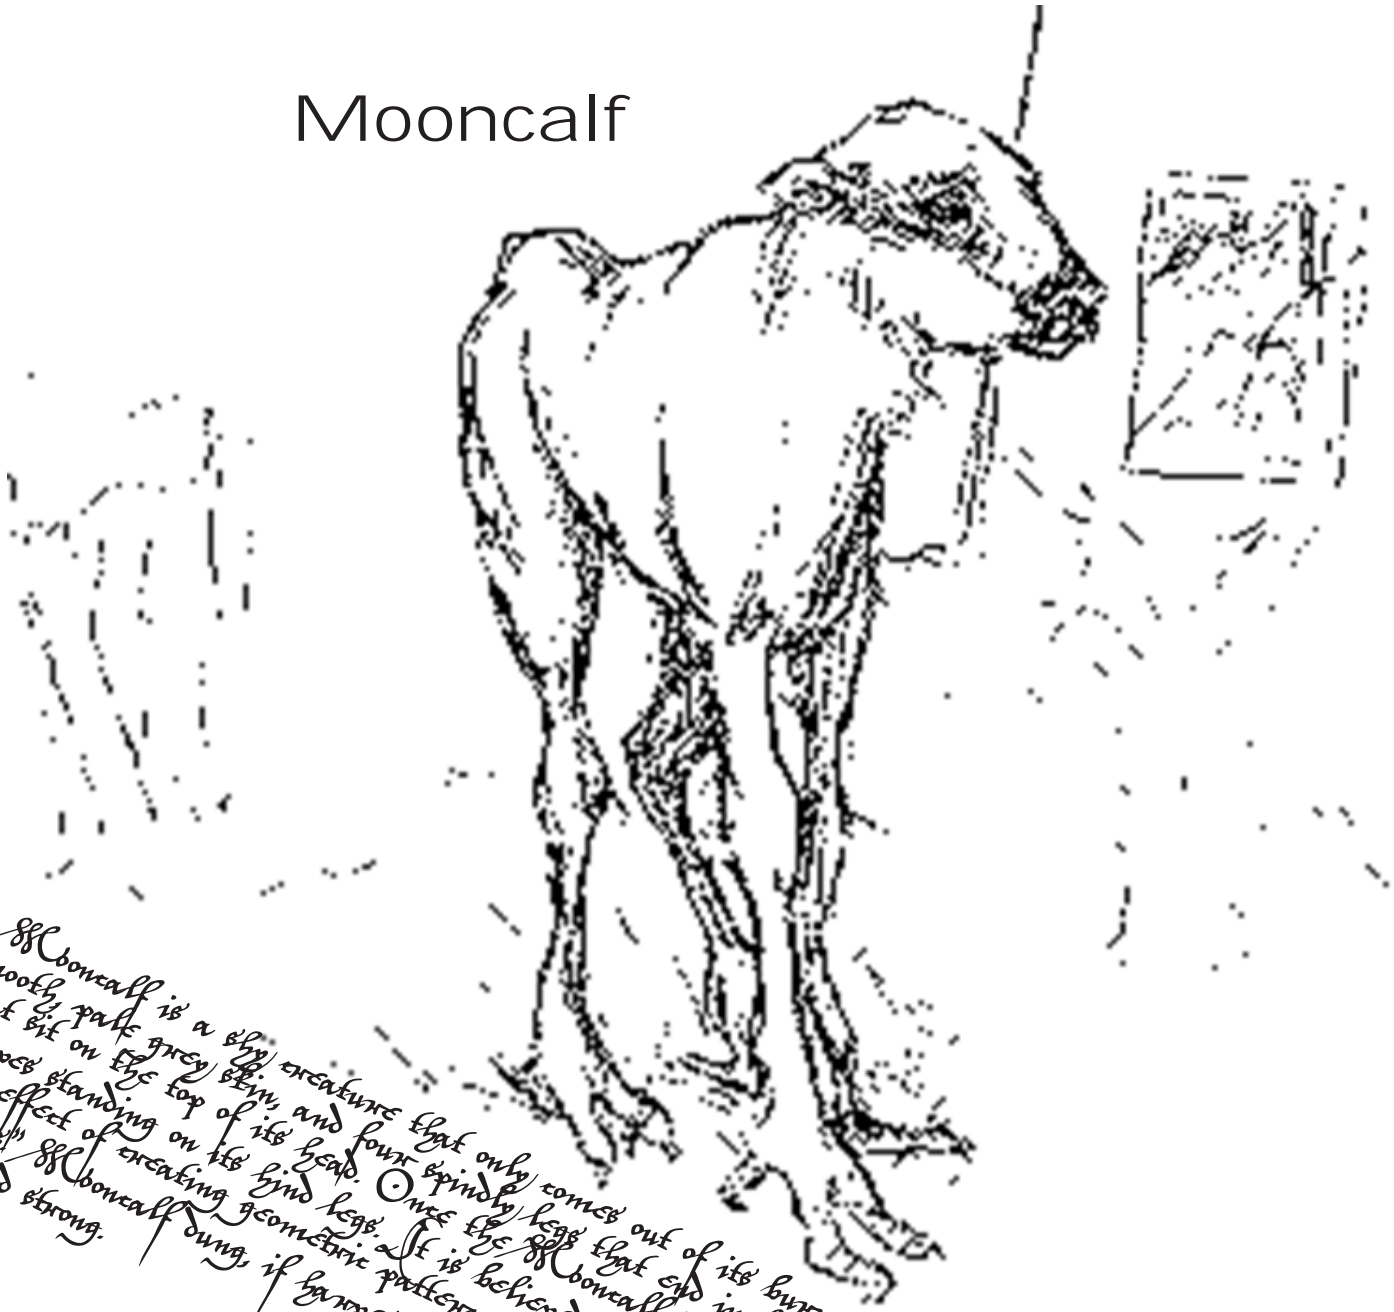

Enter the maze and never return. The maze is a labyrinth. Enter the maze and never return. The maze is a labyrinth. Enter the maze and never return. The maze is a labyrinth.

Moon Beast

The Moon Beast is a unique creature that only lives on comets and meteors. Little is known about the creature and it is not known how many are living. Several fossils have been found but recent knowledge reasons that these fossils are simply hibernating. No known magic can wake them and only heavy meteor showers wake the beasts who then vanish before allowing further study.

Mooncalf

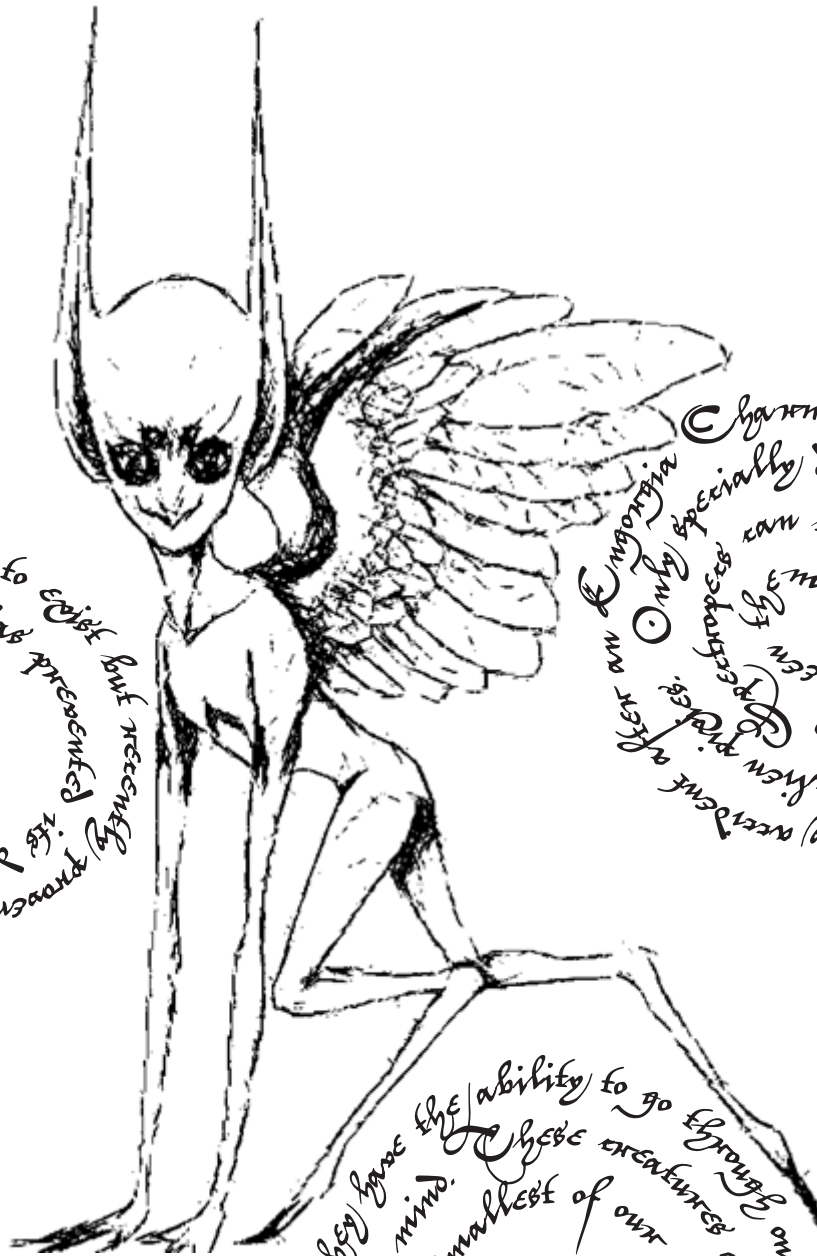

The Mooncalf is a shy creature that only comes out of its burrow during a full moon. The Mooncalf has smooth, pale grey skin and four spindly legs that end in large flat feet. The beast also has bulging eyes that sit on the top of its head. Once the Mooncalf is in the moonlight it performs complicated dance moves standing on its hind legs. It is believed that this is part of the creature's mating ritual. "The side effect of creating geometric patterns in wheat fields confuses the Mooncalf. They call them crop circles!" Mooncalf dung, if harvested before the sun rises, will make magical plants grow fast and strong.

Murtlap

The Murtlap is a marine beast with a growth on its back resembling a sea anemone, found on the coastal areas of Britain. The favoured prey of the Murtlap are crustaceans, though they will also go for the feet of any human foolish enough to step on them. The growth on the Murtlap's back may be pickled and eaten to improve one's resistance to jinxes, although eating an excess of pickled murtlap may cause one to grow unsightly purple ear hair. Murtlap Essence is a home remedy for cuts and abrasions.

Nargle

The creature thought of you though atomic size is what has prevented its discovery. It recently proven real!

Only discovered by accident after an experiment in England. Charm went wrong when they were using specially designed glasses, called 'Nargles', to see if they resemble alien probes.

They have the ability to go through our ears and cause confusion and cloudiness of the mind. These creatures are possibly the most abundant and smallest of our world.

Niffler

A Niffler is a treasure-hunting creature with a long narrow snout. They are very attracted to shiny things, which make them wonderful for locating anything metallic or shiny, but they might bite if a person is wearing any jewelry. Nifflers are gentle creatures, and can be affectionate to its owners but will also destroy belongings and property looking for things that sparkle. Nifflers have twenty feet below the ground in hairs, and can produce six to eight young in a single litter.

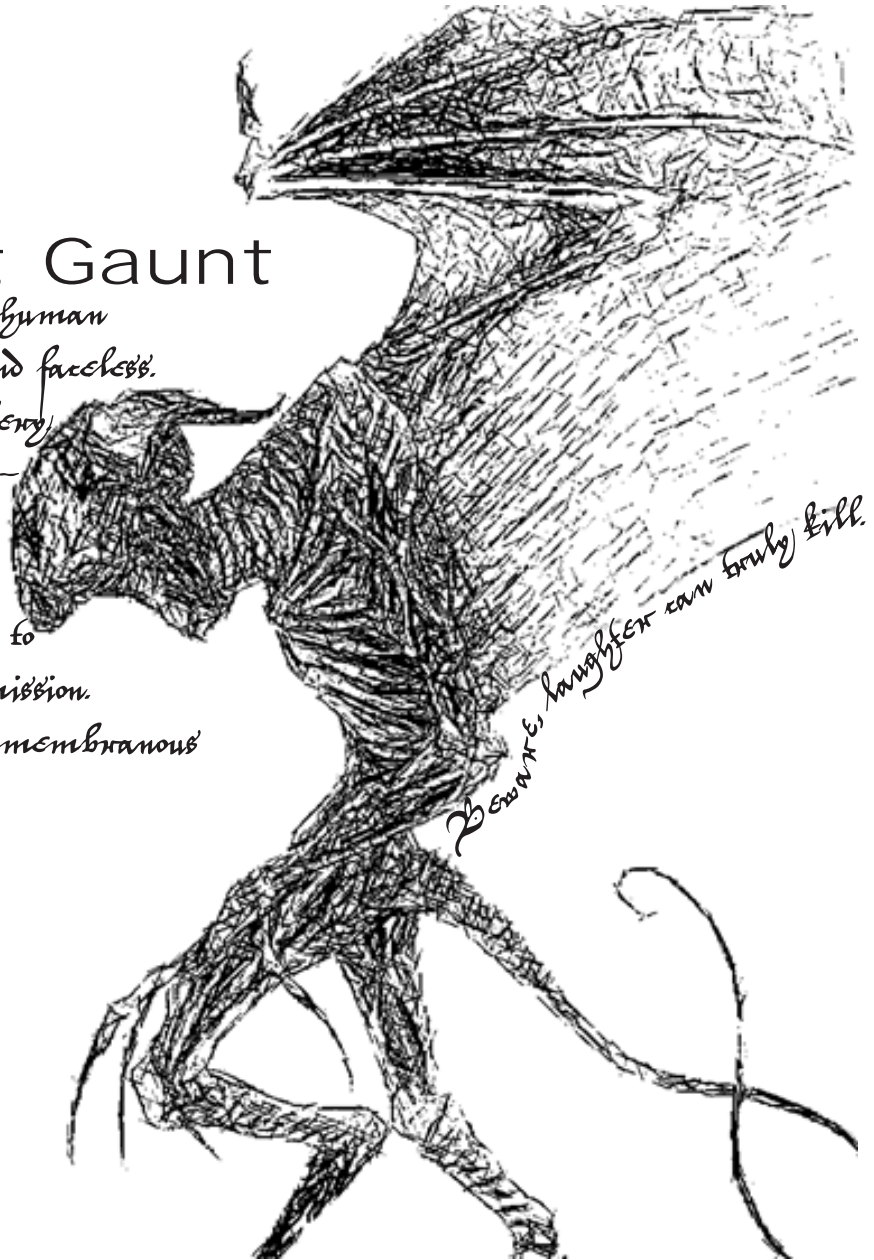

Night Gaunt

Nightgaunts have a vaguely human shape, but are thin, black, and faceless.

Their skin is slick and rubbery.

They sport a pair of inward-facing horns on their heads, and have clawed hands and a long barbed tail which is used to "tickle" their victims into submission.

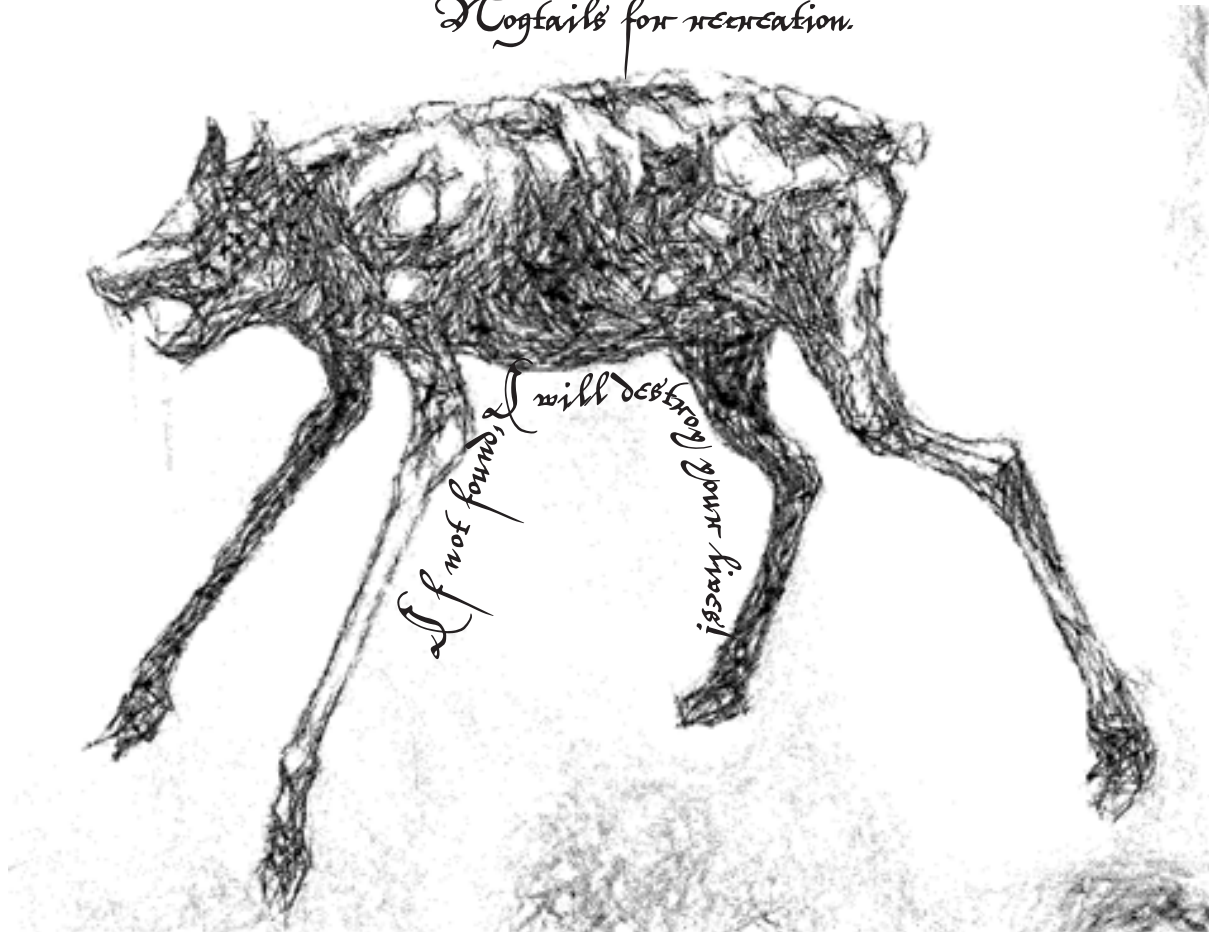

They can fly using a set of membranous wings. They make no sound.

Beware, laughter can truly kill.

Nogtail

The Nogtail is a demon-like creature resembling a piglet, but stunted by narrow black eyes, a thick stubby tail, and long legs. It is mainly found across rural areas in Europe, America and Russia. Nogtails sneak into a pigsty, and suckle on an ordinary pig which curses the farm. The longer the Nogtail goes undetected, the longer the blight will stay on the farm. Fast and hard to catch, the only way to make sure the Nogtail will not come back is to chase it away with a pure white dog. Some people also hunt Nogtails for recreation.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

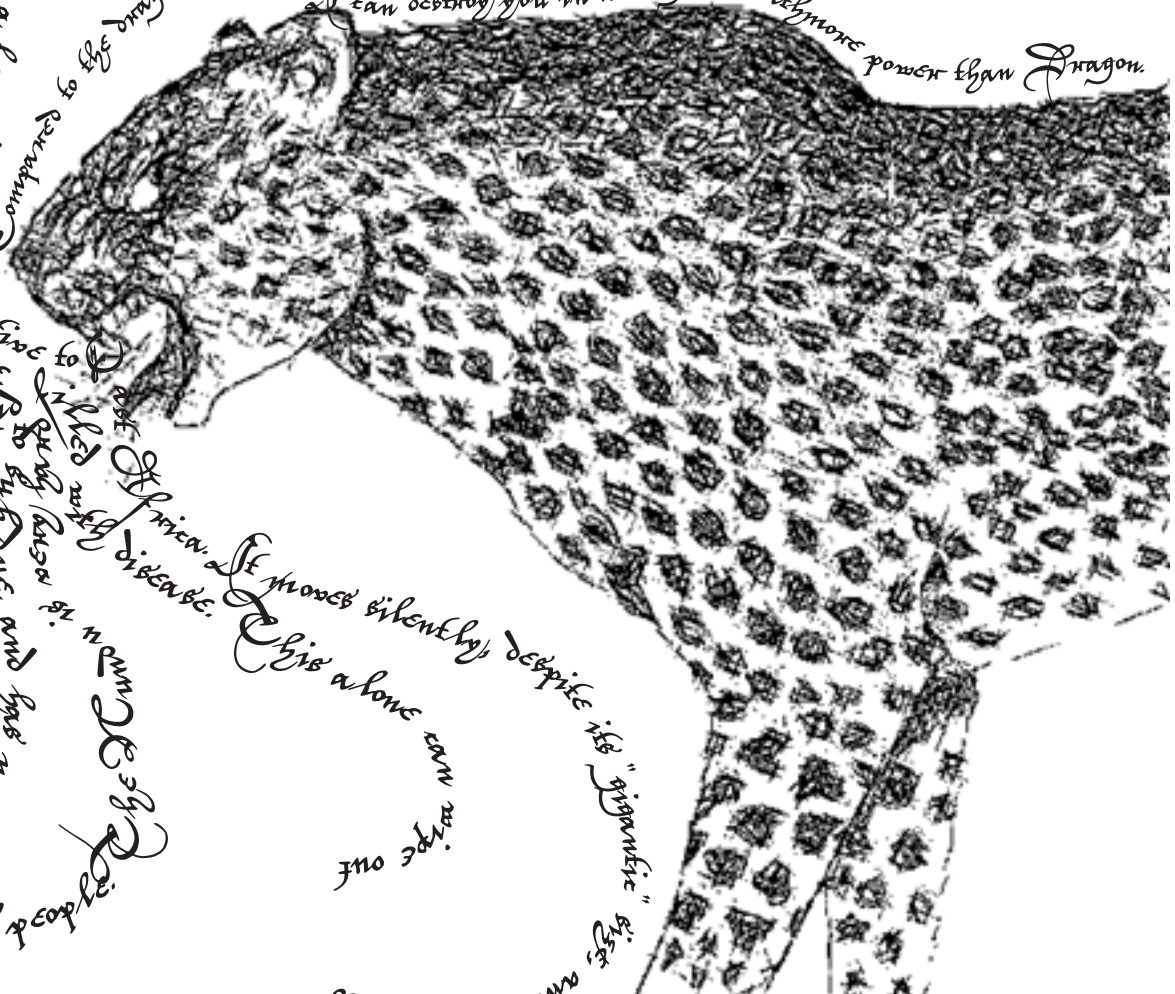

By the beast become terrifying

Nundu

The Nundu is a giant mammal similar to a leopard by some to be the most dangerous creature into submission by around ten warriors can be

I can destroy you in a single breath more power than a dragon

The breath of the Nundu to quickly one around one of the most dangerous creatures to be the most dangerous creature
to be the most dangerous creature
to be the most dangerous creature

It moves silently, despite its "giantlike" size and is considered
This alone can wipe out despite its "giantlike" size and is considered

Ogre

Ogres are large humanoid creature who feed on human flesh. An ogre is a large, mean and hideous humanoid monster, larger and broader than a man but somewhat shorter than a giant. In art, ogres are often depicted with a large head, abundant hair and beard, a huge belly, and a strong body. Many species exist around the world. While strong brutes, magic is usually enough to wound them or even kill them if the proper spell is used. .

The Monster Book of Monsters

Stoyle magic can defeat an Orc, they just may be hard to land combat.

Orc

The Orc is one race of human-like creatures, generally being fierce and combative with sharp features and often black, grey or greenish skin. They are often wide boars, wolves and pigs. Orcs are of human shape of varying sizes, but always smaller than men. They are ugly, filthy with a taste for human flesh. They are fanged, bow-legged and long-armed with burnt skin.

The Monster Book of Monsters

The phoenix is a large swan-sized scarlet bird with red and gold plumage, along with a golden beak and talons, black eyes, and a tail as long as a peacock's. Its scarlet feathers glow faintly in darkness, while its golden tail feathers are hot to the touch. Phoenixes are known for nesting on mountain peaks.

They are gentle herbivores and are not known for fighting. As phoenixes approach their burning day, they resemble a half-plucked turkey. Also, their eyes become dull, their feathers start to fall out, and it begins to make gagging noises. Then the bird suddenly bursts into flames only to rise from the ashes shortly after. In a number of days, they grow back to full size, hence, phoenixes are immortal.

The most startling of the phoenix's abilities is its ability to regenerate itself. It periodically bursts into flames when its body becomes old, and rises from the ashes as a newborn chick. This event is called burning day, and gives these birds a great life span (if not forever), to the point of virtual immortality, as well as the ability to take the full force of a Killing Curse and still be reborn.

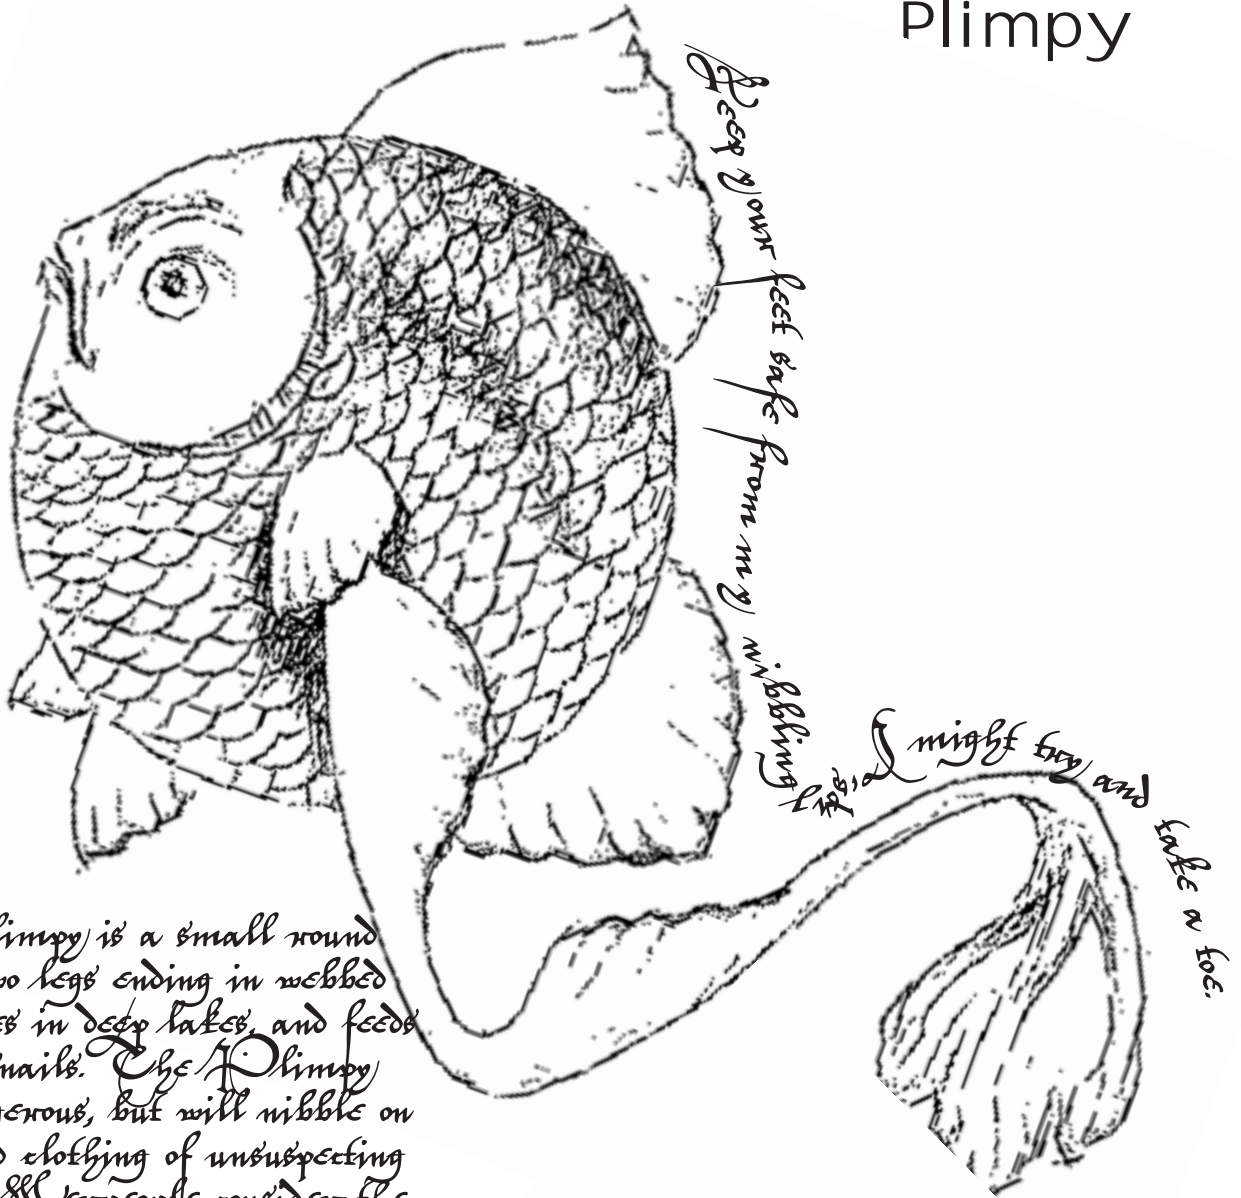

Phoenixes are capable of lifting a great weight with their tails, such as being able to effortlessly fly up a distance with four people holding on to its tail. They can also leave messages by bursting into flame to reappear elsewhere, leaving behind a single golden tail feather.

Phoenixes are immune to the gaze of a Basilisk which would normally kill anyone who has direct eye to eye contact, or petrify through indirect eye contact. It boasts magical tears and song. Their tears have potent healing capabilities. For instance, the tears are the only known antidote of Basilisk Venom. Their tears are also able to bring a person back even from the brink of death, while the Phoenix song will increase the courage of the good and strike fear into the hearts of the evil.

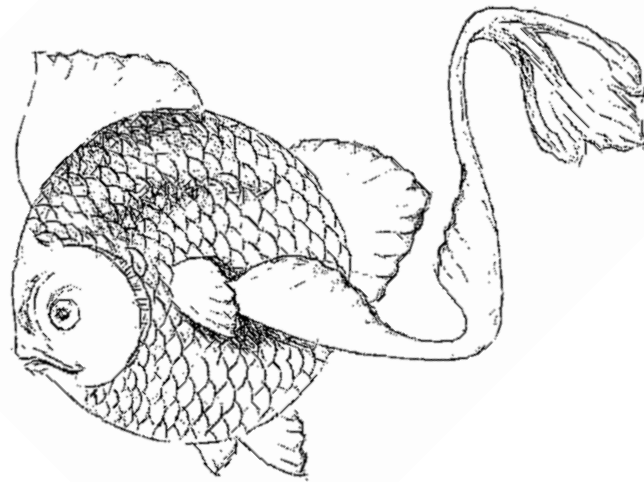

Phoenix

Plimpy

The Plimpy is a small round fish with two legs ending in webbed feet. It lives in deep lakes, and feeds on water snails. The Plimpy is not dangerous, but will nibble on the feet and clothing of unsuspecting swimmers. All people consider the Plimpy to be a pest, and they deal with it by tying its legs into a knot and letting it drift away.

Pogrebin

The Pogrebin is a foot-tall Russian demon with a hairy body and an oversized grey head. The Pogrebin is attracted to Humans, and enjoys trailing them. When the Human turns around, the Pogrebin crouches down, and, because of its large head, resembles a rock. If the creature manages to tail a Human for a few hours, a sense of despair and futility will wash over the Human. When the victim sits or sinks to its knees to weep, the Pogrebin attacks and attempts to devour them. Fortunately, the Pogrebin can be fought off with simple herbs, Stunning Spells, or kicking.

The Porlock Is a horse guardian native to England and Southern Ireland. They are small, reaching a height of two feet on average when they are fully grown and covered in a large amount of rough, shaggy hair.

Porlock

It has a large nose, small arms ending in four stubby fingers, and it walks on two cloven hooves. The Porlock guards horses, and lives on grass. It can either be found nesting in the straw of a stable, or in the middle of the herd it is protecting. Porlocks are mistrustful of humans and hide at their approach.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

A Puffskein is covered in soft, fur and spherical in shape.

Puffskein

It is a popular pet that does not object to being cuddled or thrown about.

The Puffskein is a scavenger, eating anything from leftovers to spiders, but it particularly likes to use its long thin tongue to eat wizards' bogeys while they sleep.

The Puffskein is easy to care for, and they emit a humming sound when they are content.

Quintaped

The Quintaped, also known as the Quintaped, is a dangerous magical beast with five legs, each ending in a clubfoot, and is covered with thick, red-brown hair. Quintapedes are found of the Isle of Sarnia, which has been made (because of the danger. The quintaped is carnivorous, with particular taste for humans and as such are extremely hostile towards them.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

The Re'em is native to the wilds of North America

and the Far East.

The Re'em is extremely rare,

resembling giant oxen with a golden hide.

Re'em

Re'em blood gives immense strength to the drinker for a limited time.

However,
since demand far exceeds supply, and obtaining the blood in the first place is extremely difficult, it can rarely be found on the open market.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

Runespoor

The Runespoor has long been associated with Saint Moizards, and what is known of their habits is due in large part to the Panselmouths that have conversed with the creatures.

Each of the Runespoor's head serves a different function. The left head is the planner, it decides when the Runespoor is to go and what it is to do next.

Because of this, the Runespoor rarely lives to a great age. The Runespoor bears its young in eggs that it produces through its mouth, and is the only magical beast known to do so. Runespoor eggs are very valuable in making potions to stimulate mental agility and have flourished on the black market for several centuries.

The Runespoor is a three-headed snake native to Burkina Faso in Africa. Runespoors are six to seven feet long, with orange and black stripes. Since they are very easy to spot, the Burkina Faso

Ministry of Magic has had to make several forests unplottable for the Runespoor's use.

The middle head is the dreamer (it is common for a Runespoor to remain stationary for days lost in glorious visions and imaginations) and the right head is the critic whose fangs are highly venomous. It evaluates the efforts of the left and middle heads with a continual irritable hissing. It is common to see the far right head missing, as the other two heads often band together to bite it off when it criticises the other two heads too much.

Sagari

An encounter with this spectre is believed to occasionally be an omen or cause of illness for anyone who comes across it. Appearing as a horse's head hanging from the branches of a nettle tree, its haunting whinnies are known to announce the presence of the Sagari. The Sagari hangs from this tree via a flap of skin attached to its head. It uses a decayed human arm. The Sagari is a spirit created when a horse dies beneath a tree and is not known to be dangerous to humans.

The salamander is a small fire dwelling lizard that feeds on flames.

They are born out of flames, and appear to be blue or red depending on the heat of the flames. They live as long as the flames that spawned them. The salamander can survive outside out of the flames that birthed

it for up to six hours if fed on pepper.

Salamander blood has powerful regenerative and curative properties.

Uggle words salamanders are amphibians, not lizards, and have no affinity for fire. It's unknown if Salamanders can shed their skin like Uggles words salamanders.

There are different types of salamanders, such as the blue and the scarlet variety. The maximum number of hours a salamander can survive out of fire is used in the runic alphabet to represent the number six. Scale not is an illness that can affect both salamanders and dragons, it can cause a salamander's tail to detach,

Salamander

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

The sea serpent is an aquatic creature found in several oceans around the world including the Atlantic, Pacific, and Mediterranean Sea. Reaching over a hundred feet long with a horse-like head and snake-like body, the sea serpent is a fearsome looking creature. Despite this, no Sea Serpent has ever been known to hurt a human, despite old legends of encounters with the beasts. It rises in humps out of the water as it swims. Curiously, the world's best known sea serpent, the Loch Ness Monster, is not actually a sea serpent. It is a Salpisc whose favorite form is that of a Sea Serpent.

Sea Serpent

The MONSTER BOOK OF MONSTERS

The Sandworm is a form of desert dwelling creature, also called Shai-Hulud, are cylindrical creatures with no significant appendages, equipped with a fearsome array of crystalline teeth, used primarily for rasping rocks and sand, and more than capable of eating anything imaginable. Sandworms grow to hundreds of meters in length, with specimens observed over 700 meters long. Sandworms live beneath the sand. Attracted to rhythmic vibrations on the surface, they would breach in pursuit of the origin of such vibrations. Due to the difficulty of studying these creatures, not much was originally known about the wild sandworms. The longevity of the sandworm was supposedly extreme, estimated in the thousands of years. Their skin is thick, rough, and orange colored. It served the simple function of armor and was comprised of many scales, each a few feet in size. These scales overlap and interlock to form the armor that protect it against internal sand invasion.

Shai-Hulud

Shrake

The Shrake, by

of the sea

Thousands of magical and species of fish found in the Atlantic Ocean
 However they cost
 Shrake is a magically-created human-magical creature
 The creature is covered in spines and deliberately seeks out and destroys the shrake fishing nets.
 The first Shrakes were supposedly created in the early 1840's by a group of wizards five years ago had been insulks by the fish they end up saving
 The creature is covered in spines and deliberately seeks out and destroys the shrake fishing nets.
 The first Shrakes were supposedly created in the early 1840's by a group of wizards five years ago had been insulks by the fish they end up saving
 The creature is covered in spines and deliberately seeks out and destroys the shrake fishing nets.
 The first Shrakes were supposedly created in the early 1840's by a group of wizards five years ago had been insulks by the fish they end up saving

Snidget

If you catch me you're sure to win, but be light

Don't squeeze too tight.

Snidget is common round, covered in golden feathers, and has a long, thin beak. Its wings are great for speed and agility. The feathers are very fragile and the wings allow the bird to move in any direction with great speed and agility.

...highly prized, just as its feathers are.

So much in fact that at one time it was in danger of being hunted to extinction by wizards. The Snidgets are very fragile birds, as a human's grip is enough to crush them to death.

The Golden Snidget is a small golden bird with fully feathered wings, best known for carrying messages in the game of Snidget.

Quidditch, eventually being replaced by the Golden Snitch, the bird to move in any direction with great speed and agility.

The feathers are very fragile and the wings allow the bird to move in any direction with great speed and agility.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

First think of the person who lives in disguise,
Who deals in secrets and tells naught but lies.
Next, tell me what's always the last thing to mend,
The middle of middle and end of the end?
And finally give me the sound often heard,
During the search for a hard-to-find word.
Now string them together and answer me this,
Which creature would you be unwilling to kiss?

Sphinx

The Sphinx is a mythical creature native to Egypt. It has the head of human and the body of lion. It has the eyes of an eagle, the ears of an ox, and the tail of a serpent. It is often used as a guardian of tombs and is a symbol of mystery and riddles. The Sphinx is a creature of puzzles, riddles, and enigmas. It is being due to their violent tendencies. Sphinxes are capable of human intelligence and have been used for centuries to guard treasures. Sphinxes are categorising mythical creatures.

Tebo

The Tebo is an ash-coloured warthog. It is found in the African countries of Congo and Zaire. The Tebo is very dangerous and can make itself invisible, rendering it virtually impossible to capture or send. Tebo hide is strong as it is used by wizards and witches to make protective shields and clothing.

Trenti

The Trenti comes from the folklore of Cantabria, Spain. It is an imp-like creature that is annoying but not malicious. It is very difficult to see because it lives deep in the forest and resembles mushrooms, leaves, and moss. Its most distinguishing features are a completely black face with green eyes. This creature tends to stay away from humans but it does like to jump out of the bushes and scare innocent walkers. Its favorite prank is to pull women's skirts.

The Trenti moving mushrooms may get you!

The Monster Book of Monsters

The Unicorn is a white, equine creature with a single horn on its forehead. Unicorn foals are pure gold, and turn silver when they are about two years old. They grow their horn at around four. At about seven years old, they are fully grown and turn a shade of white that is so bright it makes snow look grey in comparison.

Unicorn

Their hooves are golden, and their blood is silver-blue in color and shines under moonlight. Unicorns inhabit the forests of Europe including the Forbidden Forest by Hogwarts. Unicorns prefer a woman's touch, but the young are more trusting and do not mind men as much. Unicorns are also so fleet of hoof that they can rarely be caught by humans.

Darious parts of the Unicorn - the horn and tail hair in particular - are used in potions and for the cores of wands, respectively. The tail hair can also be used as binding in bandages due to its incredible strength. The blood of a Unicorn can be used to keep a person who is near death alive, but "you will have but a half-life, a cursed life, from the moment the blood touches your lips."

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

Veela are a race of semi-human, semi-magical hominids reminiscent of the Sirens of Greek mythology. Little is known about their biology; they appear to be young, beautiful human female caucasians.

Their appearance and especially their dance are magically seductive to almost all male beings. Veela are thought to have their own type of magic which does not require a wand. When Veela are angry, however, they transform into something more like Harpies — their faces turn into cruel-beaked bird heads and long scaly wings burst from their shoulders, and they can launch balls of fire from their hands.

Veela

The Monster Book of Monsters

There is no known cure for either the bite of a werewolf in his wolf form or the bite of a werewolf in his human form, though the Wolfsbane potion is the only known potion that can in any way make a werewolf less dangerous by allowing him/her to keep his/her human mind during transformation.

Lycanthropy is a magical illness known to be spread by saliva-blood contact, thus, a human bitten by a werewolf in wolf form will become a werewolf him or herself.

However, if a human is bitten by a werewolf in human form, the victim will only acquire some lupine tendencies, when seems that werewolves, pose the danger of biting the nearest human being.

Werewolf

A werewolf is a human being who, upon the complete rising of the full moon, turns into a ferocious and deadly beast. The transformation can be easily distinguished from regular moon phases by several distinguishing characteristics, such as the pupils of the eyes, the snout shape, and the tufted tail. At all other times, they appear as normal humans, though will often seem to be ill as the full moon approaches. Lycanthropy is caused by infection with lycanthropy, which occurs when a human is bitten by a transformed werewolf. The werewolf differs from an vampire in the fact that he or she does not transform by choice. No, the full moon the person transforms and no longer remembers why he or she is, and would kill even their best friend given the opportunity.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

It is a malevolent cannibalistic spirit into which humans could transform, or which could possess humans.

Those creatures who indulged in cannibalism were at particular risk, and the legend appears to have reinforced this practice as a taboo. It has enhanced strength and speed. It can imitate human voices to lure in its victims, which it traps and keeps alive for long periods so that it can feed from them.

It lives in the Mountain ranges and the forests of the northern United States and Canada. The Wendigo is a man-like beast. Common features of this creature include a skeleton-like body with the bones pushing out on its dried out ash gray skin, much like that of a corpse. It is said to have sunken eyes, if not glowing hollow sockets, and its dried lips are bloody. They have sharp yellowish fangs and long slimy tongues.

Wendigo

Winged Horse

The Winged Horse is found worldwide and there are many different breeds, including Abrayan, Aethonan, Granian and Chestral. Owners of winged horses are required by law to cast Disillusionment Charms on them on a regular basis. Owners may also compete in a winged horse race. An Abrayan is a breed of Winged horse. It is a gigantic, extremely powerful Palomino. An Aethonan is a breed of winged horse. They are chestnut in colour and popular in Great Britain and Ireland, but they have been seen elsewhere. The Granian is a breed of Winged horse. They are grey and very fast.

The MONSTER BOOK of MONSTERS

If you have made it to this page, and still contain all of your appendages, consider yourself lucky!
Remember, that every living, and more disturbingly, sometimes the non-living creature that walks, glides, flies, or appears in our world is special.

Whether it be a terrible Monster that rips apart human flesh, at any chance or a small, tamed furry beast, every creature has the terrible potential to become a true Monster.

As with Humans, so are Creatures:
We all have light and the dark within us.
Some, fear the light and thrive in darkness.
Others, cannot stand the shade and chase the sun.
Monsters are inside every being...
Either waiting to be unleashed,
Currently running rampant,
Or more tragically,
forced to be unchained.

Editor: Garrett C. Langiss, 2011 G.C.