The July 2008 tip has become released to the public:

Everything you Don't See is Whatever you Get

Sporting clays is the last word examination, pitting ourselves from targets down gullies and through trees at countless unknown speeds, angles and distances. We shell out 1000s of bucks on equipment, guides, films and instruction all to master simple, rudimentary techniques. Some shooters do, and they've the abilities to show for it. But why is it that techniques don't usually match scores?.....
