THE REAL ESTATE WEEKLY

By Carolyn Sideman, Monument Properties

PRICING YOUR HOME

Setting a fair price is a crucial first step in putting your home on the market, and it begins with a professional market analysis of the property. You might start by looking around the neighborhood at other houses for sale. Then contact a realtor familiar with your area to get information about the asking prices of these homes and the length of time each one has been on the market. Your realtor will also be able to provide you with information from official records about the actual sale prices of homes similar to your own, as well as the features of each property that might have affected its value, such as the number of rooms, the overall condition and the extras - fireplaces, roof decks, garages or hardwood floors. By putting all of this information together, you can establish a market value for your home, or a price range in which it is likely to sell. If you set your price too high, it could take months, even years, to sell your home. But if it's priced within about five percent of the established market value, your house should sell.

To arrange for a free professional market analysis of your home, call Monument Properties at 241-5900 or visit our office at 85 Warren St., Charlestown. There's no obligation at all. Our agents can also suggest some inexpensive fix-ups to help you get top dollar for your property.

The bus stop was removed in coordination with the MBTA reportedly to alleviate the vandalism and disruption which was occurring at local businesses by students waiting for the bus.

Questions or comments on the bus stop should be directed to Mansfield at 635-4810.

The hearing will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Edward. J. Winter chambers at the School Committee Headquarters, 26 Court St.

Recommended by Parks last month, the proposal was triggered by soaring crimes committed by youths and by Parks' perception that too many parents are abdicating their responsibility to both teach and discipline their children.

★ Warning To Parents Of School Children . . . A warning on a form of tattoo called "Blue Star," which is being sold or given to school children, has been issued by Judy Evers, community liaison from the Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Services.

The tattoo is a small piece of paper containing a blue star. It is the size of a pencil eraser, and each star is soaked with LSD. The drug is absorbed through the skin by handling the paper. This method of appealing to young children is a new way of selling acid. Ingestion of the drug by mouth is not necessary.

There are also brightly colored paper tattoos resembling postage stamps that have a picture of Superman, Mickey Mouse, butterflies, Disney characters, Bart Simpson or clowns. Each one is wrapped in foil. Parents and children are cautioned not to handle the pictures or the paper as they are laced with drugs. These are known to react quickly and some are laced with strychnine.

The symptoms are: hallucinations, severe vomiting, uncontrolled laughter, mood changes and a change in body temperature.

Persons finding these tattoos should report it immediately to the police.

★ Public Safety Committee . . . The Charlestown Neighborhood Council Public Safety/Police Community Relations Committee meeting was held on Nov. 9. Officer Jim McNamara of Area A of the Boston Police Department (BPD) and Chairman Mel Stillman conducted the meeting.

Two residents brought up concerns about a rash of robberies in Charlestown Navy Yard businesses. They questioned the safety of the area and the frequency of police patrols. McNamara stated that police do patrol the area on a regular basis. He suggested that they seek information from the BPD Crime Watch office in setting up a Crime Watch in the area. The lack of lighting in several areas of the Navy Yard was also brought up and Judy Evers, community liaison from the Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Services, will look into securing more lighting from the city and the Boston Redevelopment Authority, particularly on undeveloped buildings.

It was suggested that an upcoming meeting of the Public Safety/Police Community Relations Committee meeting be held at a site in the Navy Yard.

Another concern was the illegal parking many nights at the Devens, Prescott and Main streets intersection. McNamara advised the resident to call the police when that occurs and ask for a car to be sent out, particularly when access for emergency vehicles is blocked.

It was noted that the Police Line would not be in the Patriot this week as officers from the Community Service Office are on vacation. Several residents asked McNamara to request that a more complete account of incidents that happen in the community be included.

The committee meets on the second Tuesday of the month, and the next meeting will be on Dec. 14.

★ Street Reconstruction Update . . . Mario Susi & Son's construction force has just about completed the punchlist work on the project. They have had multiple crews going for a couple of weeks and the majority of the work will be done by Thanksgiving.

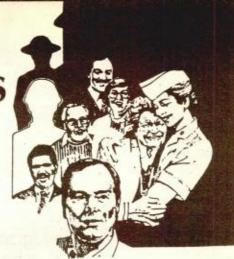

The landscape subcontractor, Schumacher, has been on-site these past two weeks completing the fall planting. They are now concentrating on the tree pits for both the existing and new trees, and fixing any settled tree pits from the spring planting.

Traffic signs are also being installed by L&C Barricade. They have been on-site since late last week and have completed sign installations on about half of the 26 streets in the project.

The fencing contractor is due in anytime to finish the guardrail and railing work at the end of Washington Street, and Susi is expecting the remaining gas light heads by Dec. 1. The lights will be put up as soon as they arrive. The Boston Water and Sewer Commission inspections of all the water and drainage work has been rescheduled for this week.

Questions, concerns or complaints are still being handled by Community Liaison Peter Looney at 722-4300, ext. 5674.

Rose . .

by Charlie McGonagle

When I think of Rose, I think of beauty, for when I was very young she was as beautiful as any starlet who ever graced the silver screen. She was my cousin, my father's sister's daughter, but because she was several years my senior, I looked upon her as an aunt. When I was born, she was chosen to be my godmother, and she filled the role nobly.

Rose loved the Red Sox of the late forties, and often I was her companion at the games. I can remember the pride I felt when walking with her. I was only a kid, but I was with the prettiest girl at Fenway Park. Heads turned as we walked to our seats, and in the eyes of many a man, the game became secondary to my beautiful companion.

I do not remember my exact age when

I received First Holy Communion, maybe eight or nine, but I vividly remember Rose's gift to me on that day, a blue baseball jacket with a red and white Red Sox emblem sewn on the left breast. I am sure I received other gifts that day, but isn't it strange that I can remember only the jacket?

To her I was "Cha," and although other family members referred to me that way, they did so only occasionally. To Rose, "Cha" was an exclusive.

The place I first remember visiting with Rose was on Decatur Street before the Tobin Bridge (then the Mystic River Bridge). She was living with her mother, Etta, and in the parlor of that apartment was a player piano. On a stool and pedaling away, I was transformed into a master. Upon my completing a tune, Rose would change the roll, and I would pump the pedals while watching the keys move magically to create the sounds of another song.

Rose was truly blessed with rare beauty, but the weight of tragedy so cruelly placed upon her was as ugly as she was beautiful.

Back around the time this country was becoming involved in World War II, Rose married Al. They were young, they were enormously happy, and he was as handsome as she was beautiful. Together they seemed the perfect couple. The war beckoned, however, and Al answered the call. Tragically, on some distant battlefield, the hopes and dreams of Rose and Al were ended by enemy fire. Rose suffered greatly from her loss, and although she was able to hide that suffering from many, (perhaps I was too young to recognize it) I have been told more recently of how devastating it was for her.

Rose lived with an aching heart for two decades until she met Paul. Finally, it seemed, she was able to look forward toward happiness rather than backward toward tragedy.

Her marriage to Paul produced first one son, Paul, and then another, Mark. It all appeared to be a certain panacea to a long-time aching heart, and just when the clouds seemed to be parting to allow a ray of bright sunshine into Rose's life, tragedy reared its ugly head and visited one more time. Paul, her husband, died quite unexpectedly, and once again Rose was forced to carry the cross of widowhood. Without any warning, the hurt that she had so long ago experienced returned, and once again she was forced to live with it.

Rose was a relatively young woman when Paul passed away, and if there was any consolation at all, she still had young Paul and Mark.

Through the two boys, she was able to hide her enormous grief and even look to the future. The look, however, would be brief as both boys were taken from her in separate, tragic accidents. Rose had buried two husbands, and now she would twice suffer the greatest loss of all, the loss of a child.

If there is a certain amount of tragedy to be passed around in this world, Rose was given enough so that at least one hundred others would not have to suffer at all. The pain had a devastating effect on her, but she carried on until a couple of weeks ago when the hurting finally reached a merciful ending.

Yes, Rose was my cousin and she was my godmother. In earlier years we spent happy times together, but later, when she might have appreciated my company, I was not there. There were no notes, there were no visits, and there were no kind words. For certain, there were silent promises made, but there was always tomorrow. Unfortunately, tomorrow never did come. I was reminded of all of this while sitting in a pew at St. Catherine's Church a couple of weeks ago paying my last respects, and to each thought of neglect, I plead guilty.

The guilt, however, is not mine alone. Most, if not all of us, have somebody, be it a relative or a friend, who has touched our lives in a special way. There is a time to offer our thanks, and there is a time when it is too late to do so.

Pick up a phone, pick up a pen, or get in your car and drive. Just do not wait until you have to tell yourself "I should have."

It is not a very nice feeling.

Wide Range Of Community Issues Brought Before The CNC

The Charlestown Neighborhood Council (CNC) got off to a slow start at its monthly meeting on Nov. 8 as members arrived at the K. of C. Hall only to find every available space filled with meetings of various sorts. It was then a move to the American Legion Hall and a few minutes delay as members found their way to Adams Street.

Chairman Peter Looney presided at the meeting, welcoming newly elected precinct representatives. The new member of the CNC, Pat McClellan, representing Precinct 4, was introduced. A round of applause was offered to former Precinct 4 representative Tom Pitts, in absentia, for his service to the CNC. Pitts chose not to run for re-election.

Members presented included Tom Cunha, Mel Stillman, Jim Mansfield, Nancy Keyes, Bob Scalli, John Dillon, Marty O'Brien, Jim Conway, Judy Brennan, John Iacoi, Kate Mc-Donough, Bill McCabe, Edna Kelly, Moe Gillen, Bill Galvin, Kay Whelan

and McClellan.

Looney called on Dorothy Steele, community liaison from Massport, who requested to speak on two

The first involved the lead paint removal and painting of the Tobin Bridge. Steele reiterated that all work on the bridge has been halted and Dynamic Painting has been discharged from the project. She requested that a community meeting be set up, possibly under the CNC Environmental Committee. Steele stated that Massport would like to give residents an opportunity to air their concerns and frustrations. Massport asks to be allowed to present its information on the project including the results of soil and air samples, concerns from the OSHA report and what plans are being made to resume the project in the Looney told Steele that his concern is what will be done in the future on the bridge-painting project and he didn't want to hear excuses. Conway asked Steele to arrange for the experts to come to the community to address the issues and bring a timetable, Looney asked that Brennan, as chairman of the Environmental Committee, arrange for a meeting on the bridge painting.

The second issue Steele brought before the CNC was that Massport is preparing a Request For Proposal (RFP) for the development of the former Revere Sugar refinery site with the exception of that portion leased by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority. She said that persons interested in obtaining a copy of the RFP could contact her.

Looney reported on Basic Services Committee action during October. The committee met with Paul Harvey, executive director of the Armed Services YMCA in the Charlestown Navy Yard. According to Looney, the meeting focused on three points - the occupancy of the third floor of the building by residents under the state's welfare system, complaints by the elderly of lack of affordable programs and a request by the Townies Color Guard to use the gym for practice on Sunday mornings.

Looney said that the occupancy by the welfare residents was never brought before the council. He went on to say that Harvey told the committee that the housing of welfare residents was accepted at the Y to help defray opening costs. He added that the occupancy of the building was beginning to stabilize and this aspect of the housing would probably be phased out over the next year.

Galvin said that 80 percent of the revenue for housing at the Y is currently state-generated. He asked that the program not be expanded and that the council be given a timetable as to when the program will be terminated.

Conway, who is a newly elected member of the Y's Board of Trustees, related that it has not been brought before the trustees to expand the Department of Social Services housing at the Y. He added that some of the trustees were not happy with this type of housing there and his sense from some members is that they wish to see it phased out.

Conway added that the Y had been assured prior to its opening that military personnel would be housed there while ships were undergoing repair. However, with the cutbacks in the military, this population was not to be. He went on to say that the Y has done marketing and outreach and the occupancy rate has been increasing. He did note that the Y has been a good neighbor in the fact that a large portion of its staff are Charlestown residents.

Looney asked that discussion on this aspect of the Y concerns be deferred for 90 days. At that time he would request that Harvey come before the CNC with an update and the members would vote on it.

McDonough stated that since the meeting with the Y, arrangements have been made for Charlestown senior citizens to use the pool and gym facilities at no charge during specified times during the week.

She said that concerns had been expressed by Y staff that damage to the gym floor might occur by use with improper footwear and thus the hesitation in allowing use by the color guard. Conway added that there is a problem with the gym floor presently and discussions are ongoing with the contractor for repairs. He noted that this condition might preclude use of the gym until repairs are made.

Looney also reported on a meeting with representatives from Charlestown High School, including the principal, Boston and School police, the Department of Justice, residents and business persons relative to CHS students going to and coming from school. He said that there are serious concerns that must be addressed but admitted that previous meetings have left residents frustrated. It was suggested that a meeting be set up with Mayor Tom Menino, School Superintendent Lois Harrison-Jones and Police Commissioner William Bratton relative to these concerns.

Cunha reported on the Development Committee meeting with the city's Public Facilities Department relative to the proposed construction of 40 units of elderly housing on the site of the former municipal building at Lexington and Bunker Hill streets. He said the last permit is in place and some foundation work should get underway in about two weeks and will continue until January. Construction will then resume in the spring.

Cunha said that since this will be HUD-assisted hous-

St. John's To Hold Fall Church Fair, A 154-Year Charlestown Tradition

by Lawrence Henry

St. John's Episcopal Church, 27 Devens St., will hold its 154th annual Church Fair on Saturday, Nov. 13 from 10 a.m. to 4

This year's fair, say cochairs Marie Hubbard and Oren McCleary, will feature a turkey dinner prepared by Jack and Stephen Spinetto, including fresh apple pies made by the congregation, under the direction of Alice Krapf. Upstairs in the hall, parish members will offer attic treasures, baked goods, books, Christmas ornaments, gift ideas, a special exhibit from the Episcopal Church Women, and toys.

The fair "is a way of inviting the community into the church," says Hubbard. The tables upstairs will have "some good bargains, because people have been very generous with their donations."

In addition to the sales tables, "we are going to have some music this year, which we haven't had for a while," Hubbard adds. Charlestown resident Michael D'Ambrosio is going to play the piano in the parish

The fair continues to be the highlight of St. John's year. "The fair brings together all the people of the parish to work on one event," says Father Franklin Mars, priest in charge at St. John's.

McCleary says that he and co-chair Hubbard "have been working like Pharaoh's slaves" on the fair exhibits and on the fair's official publication, The Fair Journal, which will be offered free to all comers. McCleary especially wants to thank all the local merchants for their generosity in sponsoring the Fair Journal.

Hubbard, who has attended St. John's since she was a child, remembers the fair as "a happy time, a fun time when the whole church gets together. Everybody does their share, and that's what makes it a success. In my childhood memories of it, it was the highlight of the year for the children and for most adults too. And we still try to hold on to that tradition today."

Proceeds from the fair benefit the St. John's Church general fund. Everyone is welcome.

Birmingham To Keep Charlestown Under New District Plan

State Sen. Thomas F. Birmingham is pleased to announce that under a new redistricting plan, all of Charlestown will remain in the district he represents, the Suffolk, Essex and Middlesex District. The Senate passed the plan this past weekend.

"I am happy to report that the new plan will keep Charlestown in one senate district, the one I now represent," said Birmingham. "I will continue to do my best to fight for the interests of the hard-working people of Charlestown, just as I fought hard to retain Charlestown in the Suffolk-Essex-Middlesex District.

"The district will no longer, however, include the North and West Ends, nor most of Revere, which I have been honored to have served over the last three years. During that time, I have had the opportunity to develop friendships in those areas which will last a lifetime, and I feel a sense of personal loss about the changing lines. At the same time, I am excited at the prospect of representing an area as rich in politics and history as Cambridge and look forward with enthusiasm to the inclusion of Cambridge in the Suffolk-Essex-Middlesex District."

The re-drawn district includes Charlestown, Chelsea, Everett and parts of Saugus, as it does currently, and includes parts of Cambridge, Somerville and Allston-Brighton. Under the plan, the district represented by Sen. Robert E.

Travaglini, will include most of Revere, which Birmingham now represents, and all of the North End, which is currently represented by both Birmingham and Travaglini. Birmingham will retain Ward 6 in Revere. The Suffolk-Essex-Middlesex District will include a large portion of Cambridge, currently represented by Travaglini and Sen. Michael J. Barrett. The new district lines are proposed to take effect for the 1994 elections.

This plan has passed the House of Representatives and is now before the gover-

Expansion Of Biotech Firm Means New Jobs For Charlestown Navy Yard

BioLease Inc. an affiliate of the Raymond Company, announced the expansion of BioTransplant Inc. on Oct. 21. The new site will be within the Charlestown Navy Yard as the firm relocates to a 35,000-squarefoot building from its present 15,000-square-foot facility. The $6.5 million new facility is due to be completed in June 1994, and will bring 90 construction jobs and 50 new permanent biotech jobs to the site.

"My company is honored to be involved in helping to make Boston a center for biotech in the world. We believe the efforts of the numerous scientists and techicians working in this facility and the others in the Navy Yard will ultimately do much to reduce the costs of medical care and, most importantly, save lives," said Neil St. John Raymond, developer.

'Old Ironsides' To Be In Drydock Until 1996

The Commanding Officer of USS Constitution, Commander Richard Amirault, USN, announced that "Old Ironsides" will remain in drydock through 1995. The ship will be fully rigged and back at Pier 1 by March of 1996. Amirault says: "The scope of the current overhaul has been broadened to include the reinstallation of key structural supports. Performing the work now rather than during a post-bicentennial overhaul will enable us to realize a significant cost savings." The two-year continuation will cost $5 mil-

The additional savings can be attributed to the improved methods used in determining what repairs must be done to the ship. Charles Deans, the director of the Naval Historical Center Maintenance and Repair Detachment, which is responsible for performing the work, says: "These innovative methods, including ultrasonic testing, and xrays, have taken the hit-ormiss out of our work. In fact, it allows us to be more accurate than at any time in the history of ship repair This saves time and money." Sixty-five civilian employees working for the Navy will complete this

The absence of the structural supports was discovered during the inspection phase of the current drydocking. Research revealed that some of the original structural supports were removed during previous repair periods. Restoring the supports will renew the strength of the ship's hull. Amirault notes: "When

Charlestown Catholic Second Graders Plant Daffodils

DAFFODIL PLANTING: "And when you see clouds upon the hills, there's soon to be crowds of daffodils." These lines from a familiar song may seem more fitting quoted in April; however, for second grade students at Charlestown Catholic Elementary, October was a perfect time to discuss daffodils. Due to a generous donation to Charlestown Catholic by the Boston Parks and Recreation Department, children in Miss Fopiano's and Mr. Fraine's second grades were able to be part of a hands-on lesson in ecology and science. The donation of daffodil bulbs was accompanied by a visit to the school by representatives of the Park department. Shown above is General Superintendent of Horticulture Mike Taylor instructing the students in the procedures for planting and caring for the daffodils. Shown below, James Walsh, regional administrator of the Parks Department, spoke to the students. Just as the Apostle Paul planted, Apollis watered, and God gave the increase (Corinthians 3:6); and the students planted, the students will water and God will give the increase - an increase that will result in daffodils, one of the first flowers of spring.

completed, this work will ensure the integrity of a ship that has played a great role in our nation's history. It would be irresponsible not to preserve the ship for future generations of Americans." USS Constitution is not a replica and approximately 20 percent of the ship is original dating back

The planned work will not interfere with the daily on-board tours of the ship. In addition, the story of USS Constitution comes alive at the USS Constitution Museum, which fills the role of the ship's interpretive voice. Through artifacts and displays, the museum, located next to the drydock, is able to detail the rich history of the ship. The Boston National Historical Park will continue to supplement the public's "Old Ironsides" experience with special exhibits and programs at the Charlestown Navy Yard. The combination of USS Constitution, the USS Constitution Museum and the World War II destroyer USS Cassin Young, makes the Charlestown Navy Yard unit of the Boston National Historical Park one of the most popular attraction along Boston's Freedom Trail.

Cunha said "Stoney Beach" will be constructed on the side of the building with the original granite, and the original granite posts will be used in the fencing.

The request by Store 24 at Thompson Square for a variance on its occupancy to include 36-A, for take-out food, was brought to the Development Committee last week. Cunha stated that representatives from Store 24 brought with them plans to change their parking lot and landscape the area. He said they told the committee the 10-yard dumpster currently in use will be replaced with a three-vard dumpster enclosed by a fence. He added that trash pick up will be three times a week during the day so as not to disturb abutters.

The council voted to endorse the variance for take out requested by Store 24 with the provision that they work cooperatively with the Thompson Square Park Committee and the Charlestown Preservation Society on plans for the area.

Cunha stated that much to his "chagrin" he read that the "Whydah project is back on the Boston Redevelopment Authority's table." He said that he had sat down with Barrett five days before the announcement on the Whydah came out in the Boston newspapers, ad-

Dillon said the CNC should look at the project as jobs for the community. Looney noted that they came before the community and "they walked out on us - maybe we should up the ante." Looney added that it is not known if the Whydah group has plans to come to Charlestown, and Scalli added that in any event, the council should be prepared.

Gillen reported on a poorly attended Mitigation Committee meeting on Oct. 26 at which Massport presented information on the proposed buffer zone along Medford Street, to be constructed at a cost of approximately $175,000. He proposed that a meeting be held at the end of November when Massport would present plans, charts and schemes to the community.

Cunha brought to the attention of the CNC the need by the Townie Color Guard to secure a full gym in which to practice its routines. Some members of the council pledged to assist the color guard organization in securing a practice facility.

The next monthly meeting of the CNC will be on Tuesday, Dec. 7 at 7 p.m. at the K. of C. Hall, 75 West School St.

There is one thing that is an absolute must for a person running a pet-grooming establishment and that is a love of animals.

Catherine Burke's love of animals is evident in any conversation, and this attribute, combined with her almost lifelong experience in working with animals, has led her to where she is today - the very capable and caring owner of Breed's Hill Pet Grooming at 269 Main St.

Burke grew up in N.H., and has raised a variety of animals - from collies to a Persian cat, to chickens, rabbits, a calf, a goat, finches, parakeets and gerbils.

During high school, she earned a N.H. educational scholarship for her outstanding leadership and accomplishments in the 4-H Club dog care program. In 1968 she represented N.H. at the 47th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago where she was presented a national scholarship award sponsored by the Ralston Purina Co. for her work with the 4-H guide dog program.

While attending the University of N.H. for Animal Science, Burke was in a work-study program for a veterinarian in North Hampton, N.H. During high school and college vacations she was employed as a kennel attendant and groomer, and acted as manager while the owners were on the dog show circuit for the summer.

Burke has been grooming for 27 years and was owner/ manager of Shear Perfection Dog Grooming Salon in Everett from 1979 to 1984. In 1989 she won third place in grooming with an American cocker spaniel at the New England Professional Pet Crooming Contest. She hones her skills by attending dog-grooming sem-for an appointment to come and visit.

She states that her specialty is de-matting and scissor cuts on long-haired dogs that avoids a shaved-down look. The shop also does "puppy cuts," a shorter style that is easy to manage.

Although the professionals at the shop will bathe and clip the animal's nails, self-service bathing is available at a reduced rate. Burke said this is particularly important for hard to handle or one-person dogs. She also does Persian cats, angora rabbits and longhaired guinea pigs. She does ask, for the safety of the pet, that all dogs be leashed when entering and leaving the shop, and that cats be in a carrier or box.

Other services for pets offered at the shop include a flea treatment, a hot-oil treatment for dry skin, medicated and iodine baths for skin problems, hypo-allergenic shampoos for dogs allergic to soap or sprays and botanical and chemical flea sprays and dips.

At the present, Burke says, there is a limited retail stock of collars, leashes and grooming supplies. Her plans are to carry Science Diet, a premium cat and dog food, hopefully by December.

the doctor should call the shop at 241-7070 for an appointment.

Currently, Burke has a full-time job with the shop open Tuesday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. But she does have plans for the future which includes a puppy kindergarten, a pick-up and delivery service for pets and lines of premium pet food.

In her spare time, Burke grooms cockers for adoption through the Cocker Spaniel Rescue of Greater Boston, located in Charlestown. Also, she, along with her husband, Charlestown native Kevin Burke, are avid gardeners involved with the Charlestown Community Gardens at Sullivan Square.

Professionally Burke is where she wants to be with her own shop, taking care of the animals she

She states: "The art of grooming is a light touch and learning how to read the animal. There is a special respect and deep trust between a good groomer and their animals. The feeling I have for my dogs isn't just in my head or wallet, it is in my heart. Grooming gives me an emotional boost. It's the same feeling a sculptor achieves when he creates something, only I work with living art and fur," said Burke.

I was recently stopped on the street by a long-time Charlestown resident who was concerned about the quality of life in her neighborhood. Together, us - she and I/the coalition - we, could do Healthy Charlestown is about speaking up and being heard. Healthy Charlestown is a community coalition that is a chain only as strong as its weakest link. From what I know of this community, our weakest link still makes us a pretty strong chain.

The Healthy Charlestown Coalition will be making an important step into its next phase of growth and development. Our next meeting, which will be from 5:30 to 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 16 at the MGH Bunker Hill Health Center, 73 High St., will include the finalization of our community assessment report. This report has been several months in the making and is the product of many hard-working concerned people who live and work in Charlestown. Tuesday's meeting is an excellent opportunity for you to become involved in the future and growth of your community. We need your voice and ideas regarding the information we have gathered.

"Let us assist you in your financial planning"

PRIVATE 'DEPOSIT INSURANCE' PROTECTS AMOUNTS NOT COVERED BY THE FDIC

Many depositors automatically assume that each account they have in a bank is insured up to $100,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). Such an assumption can be costly.

In many cases, the FDIC will provide deposit insurance for only the first $100,000 of all deposit accounts having the same ownership at your bank. When a bank goes under, the FDIC adds up all accounts in each person's name and treats them as one account.

To keep your accounts fully protected, you have a couple of alternatives. First, you can restructure your accounts to avoid any potential loss in the event your bank fails. Or, if you, your company or other organization have deposit accounts at a bank in any state except Alaska which total more than the FDIC will repay should the bank fail, that extra amount can be insured by private insurance.

Anyone who has accounts on deposit totalling more than the FDIC's insurance limit at any one bank may want to consider the private insurance. Whether you are a retired person who needs to protect nest eggs over $100,000, have a business which must insure the safety of operating accounts (e.g., payroll) or are a professional who has fiduciary responsibility for the administration of funds and organizations maintaining reserve accounts, pensions, trusts, escrows or other accounts from which funds could be lost if a bank failed, you should at least be aware that such coverage is available.

DEPOSITSURE, sold through Centrex Underwriters Inc., is private deposit insurance created to supplement your FDIC coverage. Premiums are 0.25 percent of the insured amount, plus a $100 initial fee and $50 every six months. For more information, including an application, write: Centrex Underwriters Inc., P.O. Box 171176, Memphis, TN 38183; or call, (901) 767-4754.

tigious tournaments in the world: the Esso Cup to be held in Toronto in December, and the Quebec International Tournament to be held in February.

Segal is a forward and also plays right wing for the Boston Junior Terriers. The Terriers ended up in first place with a record of 7-0-4, and the opportunity to compete in the two Canadian tournaments.

Teams from all over the world vie for a chance to compete. A good portion of NHL players have played in this tournament, and this is where Wayne Gretzky broke all records.

seconds, the Warriors scored two fast goals, allowing O'Neil a single goal as the game ended.

O'Neil Club Loses Another Classic 8-4

Coach Hart must now think the gods are against him as he suffered another defeat at the hands of the NECDL Classics on Friday night, before a warm crowd of boosters at the rink in Canton.

Before the crowd of hockey buffs could settle in their seats, the O'Neil Club had compiled a solid 3-0 score as the first period came to an end.

As the second period started, it looked as though the Classics were playing for the Stanley Cup, as they put the O'Neil Club on the defense and scored four goals in eight minutes and one more to bring the second period to a 5-3 close.

The Classics added three goals while the O'Neil Club could only muster one goal in this feisty, hard-hitting third meeting between these two teams, final score 8-4, Classics.

Games this week are Friday, Nov. 12 versus the Granite State Stars, and Saturday, Nov. 13 versus the Springfield Pics. Both games are at 8 p.m. at the Emmons-Horrigan-O'Neil MDC Rink in Charlestown.

There Is A Lot To Be Said Positively About Charlestown Youth

The Boston Herald One Herald Square Boston, MA 02106

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing in response to an article printed in the November 3, 1993 issue of The Boston Herald entitled "Charlestown Youth Kicks Cat To Death." As I read into the story, I came to find out that the youth actually got on a bus on Bunker Hill Street in Charlestown heading toward Haymarket. It seems to me that the true title should have read "Youth In Charlestown" so as not to give the impression that the youth was actually a Charlestown resident.

Reading the Boston Herald today, (November 4, 1993) I came to realize "The Charlestown Youth" was actually a black male who was NOT a resident of Charlestown. I was also glad to hear that I am not the only Townie who responded to this misinterpretation. It seems to me that The Boston Herald took advantage of what has been going on in Charlestown and used that title to attract the reader's attention.

I am 21 years old and was born and raised in Charlestown. Although, like every neighborhood, Charlestown has its bad times, there is a lot to be said positively about Charlestown youth. Why not try that approach on your readers instead?

A Concerned Townie, Robin M. Gochakowski

We Must Speak Up

Dear Gloria:

In reference to the Boston Herald's article of Nov. 3 on the killing of the cat at the bus stop outside Jopa's on Bunker Hill Street, all I can say is what a horrible thing to have happened.

What is wrong when we don't start speaking up in this town? It's about time something is done with that bus stop anyhow. Margie and her husband Jopa, have put up with

We Are A Voice In The Wilderness

Congratulations to Mrs. Settipani on her letter of Oct. 28. We have listened to and read all the slanted pieces that the media has done, the so-called cross burning and the molotov cocktail. The feds and police brass were tripping all over themselves, hollering racism, civil rights violators. But strangely enough, nothing was said about the stabbing by a gang who arrived in our town in cars with knives and baseball bats. But we're used to it by now, we don't expect

Hats off to our so-called friends, the politicians whose voices we could have appreciated in our support, who deafened us by their silence. Except for a few toadies, we Townies won't hear from them until its "handshaking promise you anything time" a few years down the road. That's the problem here, we have no local representative to fight for us, we are a voice in the wilderness.

Look at Mattapan, Roxbury, Dorchester, Jamaica Plain and West Roxbury, the Gestapo wouldn't dare go in there with half-proven accusations, not unless they had a Panzer Division with them.

I would be willing to bet that if anything negative comes of this latest fiasco, it will be the Townies who end up on the short end.

Evers Asks That Bus Stop Be Restored

Commissioner Rina Cutler Transportation Department Boston City Hall

Dear Commissioner Cutler:

The M.B.T.A. and the Transportation Department have removed a designated bus stop at 220 Bunker Hill St. in Charlestown. This has created a problem for many residents on School, Elm, Mystic and Pearl streets. A great number of elderly live in the area and find the walk to another location very difficult. Many residents use this bus stop to go to work every day and find the change inconvenient.

The change was made because of ongoing concerns with the students from Charlestown High School. We must resolve these other issues; changing the bus stop is not the answer.

I am requesting that the bus stop be restored as soon as possible.

Sincerely, Judy Evers, coordinator Neighborhood Services an awful lot all these months. Why isn't anybody listening to her?

Try to get on the bus going in town from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Forget it! It isn't fair to the residents of this town. The same thing in the morning from 6:30 a.m. to 8 a.m. People have to walk two stops to Polk Street if they are going to Sullivan Square after the students from Charlestown High depart from the bus. These residents are trying to go to work. Is that fair?

Never mind doing away with the bus stop at 220 Bunker Hill St. either. There again you are depriving our fellow residents the right to get on a bus. That isn't fair either.

The solution to this problem is to find money in somebody's budget to put the Charlestown High students back on their own buses coming and going from our town, and we won't have any problems.

To the person who killed that poor cat, you desperately need help, not that it's going to matter to you. I want you to know that it was someone's pet. Again, as if you care. I'm glad to know that no one in our town was responsible for that cowardly act, as the headline would lead you to believe.

There again, it brings to mind the 15 individuals who came into this town and did what they did to three of our residents. Those kids didn't deserve that either, and Charlestown was brought down because of it. Towns all over have good and bad, just remember that.

To all the elected officials and the organizations representing us, try to help us so we as residents can get on a bus, no matter what time of the day, in peace, and be able to get a seat.

One last favor. Please help Jopa's establishment. They are hard-working people as all our businesses are on Bunker Hill Street, trying to make a living. No one should have to put up with this nonsense. What is happening is that the kids keep moving down the street.

Hopefully something good comes from my letter. I thank you for publishing this.

Sincerely,

Margie O'Halloran
