CPWD Rejig

A recent study commissioned by the Central government has recommended gradual outsourcing of maintenance functions of the construction major Central Public Works Department (CPWD) to reputed private agencies for improving user services, establishing benchmarks and image improvement. This significant recommendation was among a set of measures suggested by Ernst & Young, one of the largest professional services firm in the world and is one of the 'Big Four' accounting firms, in its report on 'Working and reorganisation of CPWD for improved efficiency and effectiveness', presented to the Union Minister for Housing & Urban Affairs, Narendra Singh Tomar. The report stressed on the need to redefine the focus of CPWD so as to promote its competency in the core area of construction, for which maintenance of residential properties need to be outsourced. It was noted that more than 50 per cent of the total strength of CPWD of 21,806 personnel are currently engaged in maintenance works, which account for only 20 per cent of its turnover by value. While suggesting that CPWD could continue as an attached office of the Ministry of Housing & Urban Affairs, the report advocated radical reorganisation of business processes and decision-making systems for ensuring completion of projects in time, transparency, accountability, ease of working, better co-ordination etc. In place of the present eight levels of processing and decision making, two to three layers have been suggested by categorising projects into small, medium and large. As against present mode of selection of director general of CPWD based on seniority, it has been recommended that the director general be chosen from a panel of senior officers. Extensive use of technology in the form of integrated IT-based 'Enterprise Resource Planning' system has been recommended for effective monitoring and resource utilisation. Since a large component of projects undertaken by CPWD are commissioned by various ministries and other agencies of the government, the report has suggested clear definition of obligation of such agencies like ensuring encumbrance free land, approvals etc. Proper integration of different wings of CPWD like civil, electrical, horticultural and architecture cadres under common command is among the other recommendations. Durga Shanker Mishra, Secretary, Ministry of Housing & Urban Affairs discussed the recommendations with Mr Tomar. It was decided that CPWD will initiate action to outsource maintenance functions in select areas of Delhi to begin with and a roadmap will be evolved to implement other recommendations after detailed examination. These recommendations have been made in the context of over 50 per cent of works being implemented by CPWD getting delayed, lower levels of satisfaction over maintenance services, and 70 per cent of projects being less than ₹ 5-crore value each.

Atal Pension Yojana surges ahead with 62L enrolment

AAT News Service

THE Pension Fund Regulatory and Development Authority (PFRDA) through its 'One Nation One Pension' Mobilization Campaign has sourced approximately 3.07-lakh Atal Pension Yojana (APY) accounts, which led to a total of 62-lakh enrolments under the APY as on date.

This campaign was organised all over the country by PFRDA in association with the APY service provider banks. Increasing enrolment is attributed to financialisation of assets and driving the people to pension products, which has Indian government implicit guarantee to give an assured pension to the subscriber, spouse and return of corpus to the nominee.

Under the campaign some of the largest banks in the country namely, State Bank of India helped source 51,000 APY accounts, in RRB's category, Allahabad UP Gramin Bank at 28,609 accounts followed by Madhya Bihar Gramin Bank at 5,056 APY accounts, Baroda Uttar Pradesh Gramin Bank at 3,013 APY accounts, Kashi Gomti Samyut Gramin Bank at 2,847 APY accounts and Punjab Gramin Bank at 2,194 APY accounts.

At a time when the interest rate on various financial instruments including savings bank is declining, the APY as a pension scheme offers a guaranteed rate of 8 per cent assured return for the subscribers and also the opportunity of higher earnings in case the rate of return is higher than 8 per cent at the time of maturity, after staying invested in the scheme for 20-42 years.

The Department of Financial Services in association with PFRDA has been organising various APY campaigns to give thrust, through which the population not covered by any pension scheme is approached by APY service provider banks and Department of Posts to inform about the salient features and benefits of the APY scheme and are encouraged to get enrolled in the scheme.

The objective of PFRDA is to cover the maximum possible population uncovered by any pension scheme under the APY scheme, so that India as a nation can move from a pensionless to a pensioned society and the citizens can live a life of dignity in their vulnerable years.
