Mr. Speaker, Sir, Point of Order!¹

Oppositions in Russia but no oppositions in Great Britain...? H'mmm!☹

An opening recognition:

The Speaker of the House of Commons recognised in the UK, and indeed all over the world, to be an independent authority at work in parliament presiding over questions and debates among members (between “government” “official oppositions” and “back benchers”) in the chamber. So can you imagine the uproar by and the fury of members of parliament (and the media and public), if a Speaker generally objected to content in members' questions and speeches based on her/his own personal/political outlooks and said so openly or refused to explain her/his reasoning. Such would be the anger in parliament, it is unlikely that such a Speaker would last long in office.

Mr. Speaker, it is with this admirable principled spirit in mind, which has been maintained for 764 years since the Prolocutor Peter de Montford in the Parliament at Oxford in 1258. This principled spirit to duty and to tradition—to independence, allows parliament to conduct its businesses orderly, and legally, and while many in parliament and the public outside of parliament might not like the outcomes to certain votes and laws passed and, revile at the attitudes and utterances of some members to the world, they recognise and respect the legitimacy of these outcomes and the very institution of the House of Commons (Parliament) itself—as do most overseas. Thank you Mr. Speaker!

Unfortunately, my experience in communicating with the two men who run the BBC

1. I am sure that most correspondents to you will start this way—just a little recognition of Parliament and your role and a friendly start. The issue I raise while not a Point of Order in parliamentary terms (I am not a member) is very much an issue in the proceedings of society to which the House of Commons plays a prominent role. As an independent on this issue I seek the support of a recognised independent authority.

(another organisation billed as independent), Tory Government appointees—friends of the party(?)—might suggest that they do not hold to your admirable principled spirit of independence as both have failed to respond positively on behalf of the BBC to me for my role as a neutral observer in the USA-RUSSIA-UKRAINE contention (and on the matter of wider access in general for opinions on other topics outside the narrow and uninteresting mainstream) and curiously so on Ukraine when no impartial input is visible on this publicly paid-for forum on this serious global issue and which would question the Tory Government and parliamentary position and strategy toward this contention. ☹²

Mr. Speaker, I can confidently predict that should a UK general election produce members as MPs from parties such as: The For Britain Movement, Reform UK, Sinn Féin Socialist Workers Party The Socialist Party of Great Britain, then you would broaden your horizon (from the mainstream) and be neutral towards them. However, the BBC and other British TV media who purport to be independent would not—and with their narrow mindset this extends to members of the public such as myself and other outside of the mainstream political positions. Thus your admirable principled spirit of independence—your high standards are not practiced by them, and so far, Dame Melanie Dawes of Ofcom, although fairly new in the role, sees no failure here in regards to open and free discussion and the contribution of alternative ideas for the advancement of our world and for resolution to problems here and global. ☹

When I was 20 years age I worked closely with the managing director of the firm which employed me. He said beware for the world is a difficult place for the thinking person.³ Unfortunately so! ☹ These wise words have come to be true for me as I get ignored blocked and blacklisted by media politicians production companies agents and so prevented from earning a living in what I want to do for merely holding opposite views on issues and neutral views on other issues. This punishment has prevented others in the media from openly engaging with me for fear of losing their careers. A climate of fear enforcing censorship in Great Britain! ☹

As an independent mind on this issue: the USA-RUSSIA-UKRAINE contention, I watched the Ukrainian President Zelenskyy's address to The House of Commons and found the moment profoundly moving—but perhaps not in the way you might have expected! Of course I am saddened and angry at the plight of the Ukrainians and the Russian actions and feel that it was negligent and irresponsible of world leaders (Presidents Putin and Biden principally and others too, West and East) to allow the USA-RUSSIA-UKRAINE contention to drift into violence and destruction in Ukraine with all the upset which we see on our screens nightly. Mr. Speaker, had it been the case that with this contention the theatres of military conflict with violence

2. Richard Sharp Chairman and Tim Davie Director-General. Sharp gave a substantial financial donation to an organisation promoting suppression of discussions beyond the uninteresting and narrow mainstream. Is he an appropriate person to lead the BBC and, especially with his refusal to assist me for wider discussion and seems to be more concerned with his personal beliefs? ☹

3. Should this be so in a country which presents itself to the world as democratic and a lover of free speech? ☹ destruction and deaths were the actual territories of these two Big-States squabbling—on the soils of America and Russia, I believe the dispute would be over by now. Instead what we see all too frequently is that these Big-States never fight each other directly on their own territories, but cynically use and abuse the territories of others with devastating consequence for social infrastructures and the lives of mostly innocent people—they sometimes use their own soldiers and other times by proxy with mercenaries.⁴ The leaders and establishments of these Big-States are heartless, cruel and thoroughly reprehensible in their self-interested pursuits of power economic interest and social influences to see the world as a chess board to be fought-over mercilessly.☹ I hold Presidents Biden and Putin in contempt in equal measure and jointly responsible for the death destruction and mess in Ukraine! We have all witnessed these battles with horrific destructions in recent times on the territories of Iraq Afghanistan Libya Syria before and Yemen and Ukraine now where the Big States care nothing for the lives of others and the destructions of social and economic infrastructures which make life almost impossible for those who survive. Then like in Afghanistan recently (Iraq before) the USA walk away and leave a mess and Russia the same with Syria—will likely do so with Ukraine. And while not a big state Great Britain made a mess in Libya as a client state of USA—by proxy, and walked away and left a mess.⁵ While I found Zelensky's input pitiable and a salient lesson to other states who border both the USA and Russia (and perhaps soon states which border China and India), not to get involved in Big-State-Squabbles, the response by MPs seemed strange frightening and somewhat macabre...like watching a political thriller drama for the Cinema or TV involving forms of hypnotic psychosis.⁶ And both gave me the shivers! And this unsurprisingly was not noticed by other British commentators and mainstream media, even by journalists who describe themselves as independent who suffer the same affliction—other actors in the drama.

4. Russia looking for foreign fighters for Ukraine battle, as have America in this and other battles in the past—the locals in whose country is the latest battle field, and the official forces of Britain, France, the Iraqi and Afghan armies Saudi Arabia Kurdish KPP etc., the forces of States for political cover.

5. That the West supply of weapons to Ukraine is testament to this as the West (—USA) has enlisted the suffering Ukrainians to fight a proxy war—while condemning military war and the destruction of Ukrainian lives and infrastructures by Russia. With the West quick to actively engage in military war supplying weapons of war to Ukrainians and economic sanctions on their enemy Russia to effect their war effort, this suggests that the efforts to settle the contention before war were disingenuous. The same in Yemen as the West supply Saudi Arabia with devastating weapons with horrific consequences for innocent people there, but not featured on the Western news much!☹ Also so far (perhaps more to come) Biden has promised $3.5 billion dollars of weapons to Ukraine which funds the avarice USA military industrial complex—which, might surprise you Mr. Speaker. Current USA Annual Defence Budget (2019: $731.75 billions) but currently standing at $1.5 trillion as a one-off amount. A Nation that cannot do without manufacturing weapons of war!. See:www.globaltimes.cn/page/202109/1234813.shtml & www.politico.com/news/2022/03/22/pentagon-scrambles-to-replenish-weapons-stocks-sent-to-ukraine-0001933

6. The evidence for this state of the unreal is collaborated by the reality that atrocities and accusations of “war crimes”—which are being made against Russia for its actions in Ukraine—are also made against Saudi Arabia for its war in Yemen, the former is verbally attacked and has sanctions imposed on it, while the latter has political and weapons support from NATO countries, principally the USA and Britain, and given without the slightest sense of hypocrisy.

Mr. Speaker, I worry that when in a few years when the dust all settles looking back Zelenskyy, if he makes it through alive, he will reflect on this time and be annoyed at himself for being used by the West as a pawn in their global strategic battle games—and this might crush him. That it will make most Ukrainians angry at their error in involvement with Big States, I shouldn't wonder. 😊 hypnotic psychosis.⁷ And both gave me the shivers! And this unsurprisingly was not noticed by other British commentators and mainstream media, even by journalists who describe themselves as independent who suffer the same affliction—other actors in the drama.

Mr. Speaker, I worry that when in a few years when the dust all settles looking back Zelenskyy, if he makes it through alive, he will reflect on this time and be annoyed at himself for being used by the West as a pawn in their global strategic battle games—and this might crush him. That it will make most Ukrainians angry at their error in involvement with Big States, I shouldn't wonder. 😊

Mr. Speaker, day after day we see all three (approved politicians commentators and journalists) nodding and agreeing with each other with no contention discernible between them other than perhaps on the limits or levels of negative actions—with nothing positive in sight. And when I write to the journalists (tweet email or in paper-post) words with alternative discussion points from a neutral position—and most definitely not in a manner aggressive offensive abusive or with swear-words or with threats—they ignore my requests for wider discussion and one or two look down the camera at me in a manner that perhaps I have come from Mars and outside of the hypnotic psychosis. And not just frightening for me but for the safety and wellbeing of humanity!

This closed mindset almost a brainwashed state of existence is a product of a closed media where opposition and balance and truth—neutral analysis are banned typical of what we see in China North Korea Iran and recently in Washington and attempts to achieve in Russia. And when journalists here cite censorship in Russia and immediately in the next breath they do the same to me and others that it is extraordinary indeed and again like a Cinema or TV political thriller drama where all sense of reality is not the script. 😊

And although Russia is doing the same where it can, opposition is still visible—even extraordinary so highlighted on the networks of the 3 main providers of news on British TV: BBC ITN Sky News—plus of course Good Morning Britain, while opposition and neutral analysis in Great Britain is missing! 😊 Mr. Speaker, it is indeed becoming a well-worn phrase today in a Western world more than ever before spiralling out of control socially politically and economically—in the absence of open and free discussions—that we finish an observation with the words: You could not make it up! Or that reality is stranger than

7. The evidence for this state of the unreal is collaborated by the reality that atrocities and accusations of “war crimes”—which are being made against Russia for its actions in Ukraine—are also made against Saudi Arabia for its war in Yemen, the former is verbally attacked and has sanctions imposed on it, while the latter has political and weapons support from NATO countries, principally the USA and Britain, and given without the slightest sense of hypocrisy.

fiction, is another phrase. 😊

And this censorship is the reason for this letter to enlist your assistance, the assistance of a universally recognised independent office as described above and to help convince Dame Melanie Dawes of Ofcom that action is needed to restore balance from journalists before we sleepwalk into a wider and more dangerous conflict under the momentum of a psychotic stupefaction (zombism) where participants are impossible to reach and prevent their wild actions triggering a global crisis which might spin out of control and a world in peril.

I am neutral on the issue of the USA-RUSSIA-UKRAINE contention and I am eager that a discussion get underway to resolve this contention and that more than hate and further division by premature sanctions talk of “war crimes” and hate towards President Putin of the Russian Federation will ever achieve. We are told that President Putin has lost all sight of reality where his small team of advisers of a close bunch of yes-men who fail to criticise him directly so his decisions and actions we are told are quixotic. Well the same could be said of President Biden. Please see link to my letter to President Joe Biden in October 2021 Why Fight with Russia? with fresh advice on the matter of USA-Russia relations outwith his small team of advisors of a close bunch—and well, we have a war. I have not even as much as had an acknowledgement from President Biden for my positive efforts of 34 pages and concern for the world and to promote a peaceful outcome—and subsequently the President and Western friends have acted negatively in so certainly prolonging the agony on the Ukrainians and perhaps in endangering the whole of Europe and the world by aggravating the crisis. Biden did say in his Inaugural Speech that we should respect other prospectives on all issues—so is not my efforts worthy of an acknowledgement? You tell me. This speaks to us clearly of the crummy mentality of Biden who presently is touring the world talking up tensions and divisions making resolutions harder to achieve!⁸

Mr Speaker, being neutral in the matter of the USA-RUSSIA-UKRAINE contention, does

8. Mr. Speaker, this is not the first time in which I offered a world leader advice which was rejected then a mess followed. See my Brexit Proposal to Prime Minister May. I was not in favour of Brexit but put together the best proposal. I offered the same advice to Corbyn and Starmer which they rejected and lost an election. Brexit still not settled! In writing a comedy script to ignite discussion on talking to top terror group Daesh I sought to bring the much needed discussion to the world, I was blacklisted by all British TV networks and the newspapers (even by the Guardian) and the violence of terrorism continues to haunt humanity unresolved and the murder of your Parliamentary colleague Sir David Amess MP, Manchester Arena terrorism too and more... 😊 As a professional writer who cannot get an Agent due to blacklisting (of issues certainly, if not people) I submitted what might be called a synopsis for a documentary to properly explore the issues around the problems classed as “racism”, and cannot get a reply from Panorama or BBC DG Tim Davie after a year of trying. See “Naga on Racism” via link below. And the issues termed “racism” remains to blight the lives for many people. I have recently given advice to the Prime Minister of Finland Sanna Marin (on Twitter via @OComedie) not to entertain any Big-States (and NATO) who are squabbling internationally and who will bring their power games to their lands upsetting the lives of innocent people and putting them at risk of death: the USA and Russian now and perhaps China and India coming soon, and to look to the Non-Aligned Movement instead and keep her people safe. No answer in 4 weeks. We shall see what happens. 😊

not mean one is cold on or has an indifference to war—on the contrary, if one is urging attentions to end a conflict in the only way possible for this conflict (and with Daesh Al Qaida etc. in a separate contention) through understanding and dialogue and with mutual respect for positions (but not violence), then perhaps one is more inimical to this war as a means to resolve conflicts than those who resist dialogue? ☹️⁹

Unfortunately, there are not many independent offices left to where I can write and, I wait with trepidation in the hope that I can include Ofcom—I hope Mr. Speaker you will join me and keep your fingers crossed that Ofcom will not be lost in this other war of information of dialogue and of peaceful resolutions to conflicts. As I write the 3 main providers of news on British TV: BBC ITN Sky News which include in their ranks the much vaunted Today on Radio 4 and the wow wow wow Channel 4 News are engaging in biased reporting and spreading hate on President Putin and the assertion that every official word from Russia is lies with the constant referencing to a chemical weapon attack with no evidence is another sign of unprofessional conduct stirring up hate and further division. Another provider Good Morning Britain was never considered neutral by most observers and are allowed to exist beyond the Broadcasting Standards/Rules with their presenters with opinions on issues wider than one's favourite colours or favourite foods and the return of ABBA. Finally, The Prince of Wales was merely expressing a genuine disgust on war and its violence destruction and bloody murder to which was spun mercilessly by the above media for their one-track-cause to be an attack on the President of the Russian Federation—for a war on information of dialogue and of peaceful resolutions to conflicts.

Mr. Speaker, I am sure there are many other independent offices globally—perhaps some actual members of the House of Commons, to which I will come back to—but for now only Yourself, Her Majesty to Queen and Abdulla Shahid President of the United Nations General Assembly, the latter will get a copy of this letter to hopefully assist me in my efforts to have a balanced discussion on global issues. Perhaps a global discussion channel for independent minds to contribute positive input as most media, West and East, cannot be trusted today.☹️ Her Majesty to Queen will receive a copy as will The Prince of Wales. I will also send a copy to Dame Melanie Dawes in the hope that she and her Ofcom are still with us.¹⁰☹️ How you can help I will come to later.

Recently I have brought this to the attention of the whole Digital, Culture, Media and Sport Committee House of Commons with a copy of a letter to BBC Chairman Richard Sharp (see attached) and to Chairman Julian Knight with a follow-up and have been told that my

9. I do not claim to be an expert on Russian politics, therefore my letter is to ignite discussion onto a wider plain covering deeper issues in the West-Russia relationship. However as a non-expert some investigations by me found...well, read it for yourself, Mr. Speaker.

10. Dame Melanie Dawes at the instruction of the government who appointed her and can sack her has suspended the licence to broadcast of Russia's RT when it was fine before the conflict. RT put the Russian case before a British audience. There was no need to suspend the licence of Russia's RT as it is off the air due to EU sanctions and censorship. So question mark at Dame Melanie Dawes and her commitment to free and open debate. ☹️

correspondences will be kept on file just in case censorship in Great Britain is of interest someday.☺ In the midst of one of the most dangerous conflicts in 80 years in Europe with serious global potential and obstructions to alternative discussion inputs are clear—thus no one is talking publicly on how to settle this conflict, just when might be a better time Mr. Speaker? ☺ Also a copy to the Communication and Digital Committee House of Lords, of the latter no reply.☺

I will ask Abdulla Shahid President of the United Nations General Assembly, to publish this letter together with my letter directly to him (see attached) on the General Assembly page under “correspondence and comments received”. If you can provide, Mr Speaker, a positive reply to go along beside it—well, that would be great a tremendous boost for free and open discussion global.☺ In the event, I continue to get ignored or receive negative or “not interested” replies from authorities, I will seek publication of his letter in a global journal or post online somewhere.¹¹ As a neutral, it will not be my intention to place this correspondence in front of the eyes of Russia, but well, this might happen if published and to the considerable embarrassment to the British establishment.

We have heard lots of talk of attempts at suppression of oppositions in Russia—which I do not question or deny is in progress—but while the rotten progress in Russia is underway, has the suppression of opposition and neutral analysis in Great Britain already been achieved? I rather think so, Mr. Speaker...☺

Opposition in Russia

In Russia there are two points of discussion with is contention: 1. the actual military war in Ukraine—called an incursion by the Russian government not an invasion, and 2. the government's contention that NATO is coming too close to Russia. We see that NATO is seen as an enemy by most politicians and in a recent opinion poll Russians believe NATO is to blame. See here: according to Russia Matters¹² pointing to a Russia research organisation called “Levada Centre” cited by Western polling experts as reliable, reported 60% of Russians support the Kremlin's war and blame USA and NATO for heightened tensions in eastern Ukraine. Mr. Putin has a poll rating of 71%. It seems that the debate in Russia comprises of both 1 and 2 and is less restricted than in the West. Embarrassing, Mr. Speaker...? I'll say so...☺

On 1. there is certainly opposition on the Russian street from people, and opposition from celebrities sports people and journalism as well as from business people (some who have been sanctioned by the West, suggesting an amateurish approach and a desperate operation by the West to cobble together a negative response to Russia's invasion.) Also some minuscule opposition in the Russian Duma or parliament.

11. The reason for a possible publication of this letter is not with the intension to make life difficult for you Mr. Speaker, no, only that in this correspondence, I have brought my concerns all together.

12. Russia Matters launched in 2016 by Harvard Kennedy School's Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs supported by the Carnegie Corporation in New York USA. The aim is to improve understanding of Russia and US-Russian relationship for America's policymakers.

www.russiamatters.org/blog/new-polls-what-do-russians-think-war-ukraine

In Russia parliamentarians (Vyacheslav Markhaev and Oleg Smolin and Mikhail Matveyev Communist members of the upper and lower Houses of Parliament¹³). Journalists Nobel Peace Prize winner Dmitry Muratov turned journalist at business daily and reporter Elena Chermenko from Kommersant daily newspaper in Moscow. Also employee journalists in RBC, Novaya Gazeta Dozhd, Ekho Moskv, Snob, The Bell as well as in state run TASS and RT.¹⁴ On Marina Ovsyannikova, the journalist from Russia's Channel 1 who held up a No War card live on TV and was given a fine. Now, some Ukrainians and Western media perhaps annoyed she was dealt with so lightly claim all her actions and protest were a State stunt. The fog of war: claim and counter claim and propaganda galore! ☹ Socialite and former presidential candidate Ksenia Sobchak, also in Moscow Times. Also celebrities and sports people Pop star: Svetlana Loboda, late-night television hosts: Maxim Galkin and film director Yelena Kovalskaya, world number one chess player: Yan Nepominachtchi, figure skater Evgenia Medvedeva and footballer Andriy Shevchenko.¹⁵ And business men (Mikhail Fridman who grew up in Lviv, Oleg Deripaska who while against the war has been sanctioned by the West, Evgeny Lebedev owner of the Evening Standard: criticised by some MPs and Oleg Tinkov of the Tinkoff Bank also sanctioned by the West¹⁶).

Opposition in Great Britain

Mr. Speaker, let us contrast this with Great Britain and we restrict ourselves to discussion or contention 2 above, only as the likelihood of 1. being an issues here is slim—however, as an independent mind, I, and I am sure you too, would want to hear any British input in favour of the war and to be justified as part of the whole discussion on the USA-RUSSIA-UKRAINE contention. That media bosses and journalists do not rebel against managements and be neutral is disappointing to say the least! ☹

Mr. Speaker, polls in the West have a similar number supporting reverse positions to the Russia poll above, to the Russian people. I make the point: what can we expect when independent comment is difficult to find in both the West and the East—brainwashing is suspected. What hope is there that we can settle global disputes when the use or practice of delivering a hypnotic psychosis to populations is getting in the way of them being able to see the real world? ☹ Both West and East telling their public no opposition and no neutral analysis are allowed as a united front to the enemy is required, thus suspending free speech democracy and ideas to end the dispute. Frightening for the world, and cruel and irresponsible to the Ukrainian people! ☹

Unlike in Russia, where opposition is present and in sight for the whole world to see, opposition there—and comprising of both 1 and 2 of the points of discussion or contention as above, we in Britain are confined to the actual bloody war which would scunner any person and so is an easy campaign to garner followers for the USA cause. Here no 2 of the points of discussion or contention is banned—indeed, journalists recklessly and irresponsibly banned this topic before a shot was fired.¹⁷ In parliament too discussion is all but banned! Well, I do not hear any, Mr Speaker?

Why is this, Mr. Speaker? Is there opposition and neutral analysis in other Western countries—it seems that we are not allowed to know that either. And despite the fact that British media show us Russian opposition every day, all day, they continue to assert that no opposition or neutral analysis in Russia is allowed, but opposition or neutral analysis is allowed here—but do not show it here. Mr. Speaker, all approved journalists, commentators and politicians who we see on the TV say more or less the same thing: all journalists and their guests claim that they are anti-war, but support sending weapons of war to Ukraine, they support the sanctions imposed on Russia by one side of the war, their side, the USA and Western friends.¹⁸ These approved journalists, commentators and politicians all badmouth President Putin with claims that could be equally said of their own leaders, if truth were allowed to be spoken, for allowing this USA-RUSSIA-UKRAINE contention to go to violence and destruction in the year 2022 and willingly sustaining similar honorific war in Yemen and withholding aid from Afghanistan with such horrific consequences for the people there (—thuggery, cheater, gangster liar and deranged and despicable) and with hate and “war crimes” accusations then saying investigations are need to find the evidence for “war crimes” after they have made up their minds ahead of any evidence being produced.☹ Mr. Speaker, periodically these approved journalists, commentators and politicians are joined on the TV by celebrities and sports people who like business people are obliged to say the same thing, if brainwashing has escaped them, or run the risk of persecution by MPs and media and lose their careers.

We know only that in the United States of American where we hear that some around former President Donald Trump are at best lukewarm to economic and verbal attacks on Russia and assisting Ukrainians based on the very much growing mood in the USA that home is neglected and too much time and money is spent on foreign adventures which cost an arm and a leg, to put it mildly—see my letter to Biden Why Fight with Russia? Page 27 on America's astronomical $6.4 Trillion debt fighting foreign wars. Mr. Speaker, the channelling of public money which was meant for the good of the wider society of America, a positive endeavour, siphoned off for the negative projects: the making of weapons to kill and the profits of the socially perverse producers. In Britain, Mr. Speaker, where are the oppositions in regards to celebrities, sports people, journalists TV hosts the business elites—and where are the members of the House of Commons and House of Lords (Parliament)? Where are the

17. Please see my letter to BBC Chairman Richard Sharp, who, and quite extraordinarily so, never thought it necessary to reply to me a British citizen and BBC Licence fee payer.

18. It is really only the West who have imposed sanctions on Russia most of South America, most of Africa most of the Far East India Pakistan and China do not support sanctions. Indeed, lots of Western businesses wanted to remain but were hounded out by parliamentarians and media. Samsung the giant conglomerate based in South Korea best known for phones and tablets pulled out of selling to Russians, but only to protect their Western markers where they are in a tight global competition and contest—a fight to the bloody death—with Apple and Huawei for phones. Indian software giant Infosys the same.

oppositions and neutrals from other walks of life in society? Have you also asked this question?

I have read Hansard of Tuesday 22 February 2022 and found no opposition and no neutral analysis in the British House of Commons to the British (Western or USA) approach to Russia in response to Russia's recognition of two independent pro-Russian Republics or Russia's objections to NATO advancement to the Russia borders (“near abroad”).¹⁹ Where was the opposition and neutral analysis to the governments approach Mr. Speaker? We need to know, especially when on the same day after we heard of opposition in the Russian Duma as stated above. I know of several members of the House of Commons, while not supporting Russia's recognition of two independent pro-Russian Republics termed as an invasion, would likely question the USA approach of sanctions and hate attacks. The few who would likely have objected to the Western approach were either not in the chamber or were and not called by yourself, thus not in Hansard. If they were in the chamber Mr. Speaker, and you did not call them to speak...then why not call them? I might guess that were they not in the chamber this perhaps they expected harassment from MPs and certainly from media and even expulsion from the Labour Party for holding alternative positions in a democracy—thus, Mr. Speaker, the House of Commons appears inferior to the Russian Duma, the latter where members felt safe to voice their opinions inside or outside the chamber. I request of you Mr. Speaker to investigate the possibility that some House of Commons members felt intimidated to make their opinions known on this serious global issue to the public either due to other members or media or both, thus the debate is less and inferior to what it might been.☹ . Where might you start? I suggest: J. Corbyn and his fellows on the left. In the event that no opposition and neutral analysis exists in the House of Commons this is undoubtedly a serious matter indeed—and to be addressed by the voters. The voters need to know from you, Mr. Speaker. 1. does opposition and neutral analysis exist, and 2. opposition and neutral analysis does indeed exist and was suppressed.

When being neutral one is also seen as the enemy.

Mr. Speaker on British TV and on the streets as protests opposition—to the Western (USA) approach even from neutrals like myself, is also absent whereas in Russia democracy with alternative opinions is flourishing. How embarrassing, Mr. Speaker, how embarrassing indeed! A politically well ordered society is the West...Oh, how worrying!☹ There is no shortage of opposition for I hear it on the street in private conversations. What might oppositions say that would annoy MPs and the independent media? See below and in letter to

19. Tuesday 22 February 2022 Prime Minister Johnson's Statement to House of Commons at precisely 12:30 pm On Ukraine: Hansard page 173 announcing the first sanctions on Russia (“first tranche”...PM) following Russia's recognition of two independent pro-Russian states inside Ukraine at 22:35 UTC +3 (Republics of Donbas and Luhansk) Sanctions: “Today the UK is sanctioning the following five Russian banks: Rossiya, IS Bank, Genbank, Promsvyazbank and the Black Sea bank. And we are sanctioning three very high net worth individuals: Gennady Timchenko, Boris Rotenberg and Igor Rotenberg.”

BBC Sharp.

Mr. Speaker, I am ashamed and disgust—and terrified at the coverage of the USA-RUSSI-UKRAINE contention by the 3 main providers of news on British TV: BBC ITN Sky News—plus of course Good Morning Britain, and in sharp contrast to Al Jazeera which presents balanced and neutral coverage not supporting the West (—USA) or Russia—if I should pay money for news I want to give money to Al Jazeera and not the BBC! I ask that you join me and ask Dame Melanie Dawes of Ofcom to explain the pro-American coverage. The hate is spreading and Facebook is allowing hate attacks on Mr. Putin and the Russian State and military to be posted so resolving our disputes becomes more difficult. Are you annoyed to Mr. Speaker...? Wimbledon too joining in the anti-Russian theme. I would guess that you are! So help me rectify the matter...give oppositions and neutral analysis a chance for only they can give the world a chance to live in peace, the former (opposition) allows debate and the latter (neutral analysis) brings grounding and reality to bear on a crisis—and without oppositions and neutral analysis we have no discussions only brainwashing and zombism as now.

Finally what might Western oppositions and neutral analysts say that would make the blood boil at the the BBC's with Messrs Richard Sharp Tim Dave and new from ITN recruit: Deborah Turness as CEO of content? As well as other media above.

Points to add to issues raised in letter to BBC Richard Sharp:

1. Is it acceptable that journalists under Ofcom rules and guidelines should support any side in global conflicts and so not be neutral?☹ With the result the news and information content is suspect unbelievable and a danger to this society being able to first understanding events and then being able to contribute to the world discussion with positive and peaceful solutions. Mr. Speaker, British politicians journalists and selected approved commentators have not offered one positive practice and input to first elucidate issues around this contention and then be a constructive force to work towards peaceful outcomes.
2. Considering the fallouts of the war in Ukraine—which are not trivial: the destruction of Ukrainian infrastructure; the death of many humans on all sides; the huge numbers of refugees flooding into mainly Europe with all the upset and expense, plus that cost of sanctions and the purchasing of military weapons to the economies of all including on the Russian people, are global leaders responsible even indeed competent for the responsibilities placed on them by an innocent public?
3. Mr. Speaker, does such a ruinous outcome mean the whole world can no longer afford —no longer permit any more Big-State-Squabblers and for these belligerents to be left to their own devices and to put the world in danger when they are incapable of resolutions between them.
4. Should the United Nations General Assemble now play a much more active role—a bigger role in preventing and resolving disputes and to enforce agreement on squabbling Big-States? This especially so as the world more than any time in our existence as a species has never been so economically integrated and interdependent.

5. Should this fact of economically integration and interdependency foil the work of Big-State and their negative self-interested mindsets and supremacies and cast their negative mentalities into history?
6. Is the fact that parliamentarians, commentators and journalists (all in West and the most in the East) who have all gone along with this unquestioned loyalty to their warring Big-State masters and its squabbling with another Big-State not merely an error and a disappointment, but a dereliction of their duties and responsibilities to their societies and the human race.

How can you help, Mr. Speaker?

1. Investigate whether parliamentary oppositions and neutral analysis has been suppressed in the House of Commons.
2. Write to Dame Melanie Dawes Chief Executive of Ofcom requesting a meeting in your office to discuss censorship and the blacklisting of ideas/opinions and political participants and neutral analysts in the UK. Also, at that meeting must be Nadine Dorries MP Secretary of State for Digital Culture Media and Sport, Julian Knight MP Chairman of Digital Culture Media and Sport Committee of the House of Commons, Tim Davie Director General BBC and their equivalents at ITN ITV Channel 4 Sky News and Good Morning Britain and finally, myself.
3. Consider a course of disruption for selected high-profile journalists from the BBC ITN Sky News and Good Morning Britain on a daily ad hoc bases by withdrawing journalists passes to the House of Commons Gallery—and the wider parliament if in your gift. This to highlight their suppression of oppositions and neutral analysis. The pass for Tim Davie should be permanently withdrawn banning him from the chamber and further if you can. Your actions on passes will make the news and thus we can have a discussion on censorship and the blacklisting of ideas/opinions and political participants and neutral analysts in the UK.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that world leaders acted irresponsibly in allowing the conflict to turn violent, and when started Western leaders employing sanctions and sending more weapons into a battlefield with all the subsequent upheavals, death and destruction resulting in pushing the warring groups further apart prolonging the agony and increasing the numbers of deaths and destruction. This view banned by the BBC ITN ITV Sky News and Good Morning Britain. Is this acceptable, Mr. Speaker? I believe the United Nations General Assembly should have been called on to work on the issue of the build up of forces from both sides in the region.

I leave you with one thought. When a news story breaks revelling scandals in parliament or other public and private institutions/organisations, the media go all out and do not rest until heads role or charges are levelled and even businesses go bust—so why do they ignore their own profession when pointed out to them by myself and others? 😊

I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours sincerely

William Dunn

. I am sure that most correspondents to you will start this way—just a little recognition of Parliament and your role and a friendly start. The issue I raise while not a Point of Order in parliamentary terms (I am not a member) is very much an issue in the proceedings of society to which the House of Common plays a prominent role. As an independent on this issue I seek the support of a recognised independent authority.
