OUR DRAIN CLEANING OPTIONS

There are various methods used for drain snaking and pipe cleaning, and the best results are often gained by combining various procedures. These methods include:

- Main Line Cleaning. This type of pipe cleaning is mechanical and removes roots, debris, and other foreign objects that are preventing the normal flow of sewer lines.
- Branch Line Cleaning. Branch line cleaning is a type of mechanical cleaning for smaller clogs that are interfering with the interior drain lines, including the bathroom, laundry room, and kitchen drains.
- Root X Treatment. Root X Treatment uses an aquatic herbicide Dichlobenil to kill roots that are growing in the sewer and drain pipelines. This herbicide will not harm water lines, septic systems, or above-ground vegetation.
- BioClean Treatment. BioClean Treatment offers a unique combination of natural bacteria and enzymes that digest organic waste throughout the plumbing system. It will not harm water or sewer pipes.
- Video Camera Inspection. An initial inspection of the drain and sewer system of the home allows skilled technicians to analyze the current problem while looking for future problems. This process uses a high-resolution video camera on a flexible pole that is inserted into an open drain to perform a visual inspection throughout the home. A final video camera inspection is often done to ensure that drains have been properly cleaned out.
- Hydro Jetting. Hydro Jetting allows highly-pressurized water to be flushed through the sewer and drain lines via an inserted hose clearing clogs and restoring pipes to their original condition.
