PREFACE

The constitution of the Fraternity provides for the issuance of a General Register every ten years. The edition of 1910 was a long advance over the semi-centennial book of 1900, which was the first issue which attempted to give detailed biographical data. The work on this present volume was greatly simplified not only because of the data available from the 1910 Register but also because of the collection during the intervening ten years of biographical material from members whose data was incomplete or missing in the former book. On the other hand over two thousand new members joined the Fraternity in the last decade. Information blanks were again sent out to all living members and all material taken from the former book has been carefully edited and revised.

Over twenty-four hundred members of the Fraternity were in the service of the country during the Great War, and it is peculiarly appropriate that this book should contain a permanent record of such service.

A general catalog of the membership of any organization is useful in proportion to the thoroughness of its preparation and the accuracy of its information. This book is offered to the Fraternity in the hope that it meets such test, although it is practically impossible to avoid all errors. Where the biographical data is incomplete or lacking the cause is the failure of some members to respond or, in the case of deceased members, the failure of repeated efforts to locate descendants or others who might give the desired information.

BOYD LEE SPAHR, Epsilon, '00,
Grand Upsilon.

NOTE.

The fact that a member is deceased is denoted by a star (*).

Members who have been transferred from one chapter to another are recorded only in their original chapter, the initial of the transferee chapter being placed in parentheses after the name of the member.

Academic degrees are given only when known to be correct.

The name of the institution conferring the degree is not given where it is the same as that of the chapter of the member. Otherwise it is given, in brackets. Degrees separated by a semicolon were given by different institutions.

Mention of relationship has been limited to fathers and sons and to brothers. The names of children not members of the Fraternity have been omitted, as their inclusion would needlessly enlarge the book.

A History of the Government of the Fraternity, 1850-1920.

In the archives of the Grand Chapter of the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity, in the possession of the Executive Board, is the original Constitution of the Fraternity, written in the hand of Samuel Brown Wylie Mitchell, the founder, and dated October 19, 1850. Many of the general expressions of this Constitution are to be found in the Constitution of the present day in the same words, although most of the particular provisions have been amended at various times. The details of the origin of the Alpha Chapter and, ipso facto, of the origin of the Fraternity, will be found in the history of Alpha Chapter elsewhere in this volume, the purpose of this sketch being to give a running survey of the history of the Fraternity as a national organization, and of its growth and government during the seventy years of its existence.

That it was intended from the beginning by Dr. Mitchell and his co-founders that the Fraternity should become a national one is evident from the fact that one of the articles of the original Constitution is entitled, "Branch Societies or Chapters," in which it is provided that such chapters may be created in other institutions of learning upon application being made to the Alpha Chapter and approval by a majority of the whole number of the members of that chapter. It was not until two and a half years later, namely, on April 23, 1853, that the Beta Chapter was established at Princeton University. This was followed in quick succession by the establishment of the Gamma Chapter at Lafayette College, instituted December 20, 1853; the Delta Chapter at Jefferson (now Washington and Jefferson) College, instituted June 5, 1854; the Epsilon Chapter at Dickinson College, instituted September 5, 1854, and the Zeta Chapter at Franklin and Marshall College, instituted October 13, 1854. All of this first group of new chapters were located in territory contiguous to the University of Pennsylvania. There was at this time in the University a large percentage of students from the Southern States, especially in the Medical School, from which many of the early members of Alpha Chapter were drawn, and it was therefore but natural that further expansion should be in that region, and so we find the next chapter erected to be Eta Chapter at the University of Virginia, instituted on December 31, 1854, and followed by the Theta Chapter at Centenary College of Louisiana on June 1, 1855. In fact, with the exception of Iota Chapter, founded at Columbia College on November 10, 1855, all of the remaining chapters instituted prior to the Civil War were in the South. These were the Kappa Chapter at Emory and Henry College on July 1, 1856; Lambda Chapter at the University of North Carolina on November 12, 1856; Mu Chapter at the University of Louisiana (now Tulane University) on January 14, 1858; Nu Chapter at Cumberland University on March 18, 1859; Xi Chapter at the University of Mississippi on December 2, 1859; and Omicron Chapter at Centre College (now Central University of Kentucky) in January, 1860.

The original Constitution provided that whenever it should be deemed necessary by a majority of the whole number of chapters, the Alpha Chapter should call a convention to be held in Philadelphia to be attended by three delegates from each chapter. This was the only provision for many years concerning the national government of the Fraternity. Under it conventions were held until the breaking out of the Civil War. The powers of this convention, however, were not clearly defined, and there was no permanent organization such as now exists in the shape of the Executive Board, which is the executive of the Fraternity between the sessions of the Grand Chapter. The conventions met from time to time and organized by the election of a President and Secretary and a list of Vice-Presidents, one from each chapter. These officers performed the usual clerical duties during the meeting, but ceased to exist upon adjournment. The power of a permanent executive, if such it can be called, was lodged in the Alpha Chapter, which, through correspondence with the other chapters, performed such functions as were necessary between the conventions.

The first convention of the Fraternity was held on August 9, 1854, at Philadelphia. Although Alpha, Beta, Gamma and Delta were then in existence, delegates from the first two only were present. Dr. Morris J. Asch, of Alpha, presided, with William M. McKeen, of Alpha, as Secretary. The minutes of this meeting are very brief and disclose little of importance. Indeed, the second convention, held a year and a half later, was for many years regarded as the first convention. The fact, however, that one was held in 1854 has been established by the discovery in 1909 of the original minutes.

The second convention assembled at the call of the Alpha Chapter on January 10 and 11, 1856, at the United States Hotel in Philadelphia. There were then nine chapters in existence, of which five were present and four absent. Dr. Asch was elected President and Dr. Mitchell, Secretary. The most interesting feature connected with this convention was the amendment to the Constitution requiring that in the creation of new chapters the unanimous consent of all the chapters must be given. While there is no positive evidence, it is probable that prior to this time new chapters were created by the action of Alpha Chapter alone. It was further provided that the charters of new chapters should be issued by the Alpha Chapter in the name of the Fraternity. At this convention originated the custom of the annual delivery of an oration and a poem. The orator was Stacy Gardner Potts, Jr., of Beta, and the poem was prepared by Henry Hudnall, of Eta, and read in his absence. This convention also directed the publication of a Phi Kappa Sigma Song Book, which never materialized. The reports given by the chapters in this and the succeeding conventions show that most of the chapters were existing sub rosa, due to faculty opposition, which in some institutions took the aggressive form of requiring upon entrance an oath directed against joining Greek Letter Societies. Apparently no Phi Kap of that day had the slightest compunction in breaking this oath, for the more stringent the opposition the more the chapters flourished. An example of this is on record at Epsilon Chapter, where the faculty, learning the names of the members, called upon them to disband under penalty of expulsion. The latter, seeing a loophole through which to escape, readily agreed, but as nothing was said against reorganization, as readily reorganized.

The third convention was held on December 22-23, 1856, at the rooms of the Alpha Chapter in Philadelphia. There were then eleven chapters, of which all were represented except Lambda. Frank S. Findlay, of Epsilon, was elected President and Edmund C. Pechin, of Alpha, Secretary. Stacy Gardner Potts, Jr., of Beta, delivered a poem and Dr. Mitchell was the orator. Concerning his oration, the minutes state: "Dr. Samuel Brown Wylie Mitchell was then introduced by the President and proceeded to deliver his oration, which was vigorous, beautiful and eloquent, and while it riveted the attention of his hearers throughout, did not fail to elicit frequent remarks of approbation." At this convention a sinking fund was originated, which in a small way was the forerunner of the present Endowment Fund. It was doomed, however, to early failure and two years later, only a small amount having been collected, it was directed that the fund be disbanded and the money returned to the donors.

It should be here noted that in 1857 the idea of a publication was conceived and resulted in the appearance in March of that year of the PHI KAPPA SIGMA MAGAZINE, edited by Edmund C. Pechin, Samuel Dickson and J. Leighton McKim, all of Alpha Chapter. It was not printed, but written in long hand and read at the chapter meetings. At least seven different issues appeared. Truly prophetic was the editorial of the original issue, written by Brother Pechin, which stated, "Those who have originated this MAGAZINE have sought to look beyond the future, and hopefully believe that the day will come when a paper edited and published by Phi Kaps shall be furnished to every member of the Fraternity. We may run the risk of being visionary, but it is quite within the range of possibility."

Forty-four years later this dream has realized in the shape of the Phi Kappa Sigma News Letter.

The fourth convention assembled at Gautier's Hotel, Washington, D. C., on December 28-29, 1858, having been postponed for one year on account of the then prevailing financial depression. Eight of the twelve chapters were represented. William J. Stevenson, of Epsilon, presided, and Dr. Mitchell again acted as secretary. The evident need of a stronger central government produced at this convention a body known as the "Supreme Consistory," which was to exercise the executive and judicial functions of the Fraternity. Its membership consisted of all Alphas and ex-Alphas of the several chapters. The officers of the Consistory were an Alpha, a Beta, a Pi, an Upsilon, a Sigma, a Tau and an Iota, the unmistakable ancestors of the present Grand Officers. These officers together formed a board called the "Grand Arch Tribunal." The Supreme Consistory was divided into seven departments, the duties of which covered every conceivable phase of fraternity activity. It was further provided that the Consistory should meet semi-annually in Philadelphia, while the Grand Arch Tribunal and each of the seven departments should hold quarterly meetings at the same place. To divert a moment from the chronological history of the Fraternity, it may be noted that the first, last and only meeting of the Supreme Consistory was held in Philadelphia on December 28-29, 1859. Seventeen members were present, but as twenty-two were necessary to constitute a quorum, the Consistory adjourned, although numerous committees were appointed to carry on the work of the various departments. At the convention of the following year, the Consistory was abolished, only to be reorganized, so as to consist of three delegates from each chapter instead of the Alphas and past Alphas, and Dr. Mitchell was created its head for a term of two years. It does not appear, however, that anything further was done by this cumbersome and high-sounding body.

The Washington Convention of 1858 is further interesting in that the minutes show that Attorney-General Black, whose son, Chauncey F. Black, of Delta, was a delegate to the convention, had arranged to present the members to President Buchanan. The minutes of the convention state: "The Fraternity headed by the officers of the convention proceeded to the office of the Attorney-General, by whom they were cordially received and escorted to the White House. Each one by name was presented to the President, after which Mr. Stevenson made a short but exceedingly appropriate address, informing the President of the object of their call, to pay that tribute of respect to which he, as a man, and as the Chief Magistrate of the nation was so eminently entitled, and, in referring to the Fraternity, mentioned that every portion of the Union was there represented. The President, after alluding in flattering terms to the visit, spoke of the influence of such conventions, composed as they were of the best educated young men of the country, facetiously remarking 'that an old man like himself might stand in dread of being blown "sky high,"' and in relation to the responsibility resting upon them, expressed the earnest hope that they would all prove devoted to the interests, and use their influence in maintaining the integrity and preserving the glory of the Union." The convention closed with an oration by Samuel Dickson, of Alpha, and a poem by William Baillie Ritter, of Eta.

The Convention of December 27-28, 1860, held in New York, was a memorable one in the annals of the Fraternity. Of the fifteen chapters, twelve were present. "The integrity of the Union" referred to by President Buchanan two years before was then seriously threatened. The election of President Lincoln had taken place the preceding month, and it is easy to imagine that the state of excitement in the country was reflected among the delegates. Prior to the assemblage of the convention, Mu Chapter had, on December 18, addressed a circular letter to all the chapters, calling attention to the political condition of the country and emphasizing the claims of the state as "paramount to all other considerations." It submitted to the chapters a series of questions, inquiring whether the Fraternity could continue as a united body in case of a dissolution of the Union; what steps could be taken to meet the new relations arising from such dissolution; and whether an amendment should not be inserted in the ritual of initiation obliging each member

“to still sectional interference and agitation.” In accordance with the purport of this letter, William P. Grivot, of Mu, offered at the convention a resolution recommending that “an obligation be placed in the ceremony of initiation which shall recognize the social distinction between the white and black races.” The slavery question thus injected into the Fraternity consumed the entire attention of the convention. Theta Chapter, following the example of Mu, offered a resolution calling for the same constitutional amendment, prefaced by various preambles reciting the condition of the country. Strange to say, Xi Chapter from the neighboring State of Mississippi presented a motion that no resolution of a political nature should be admitted before the convention. To this the Theta Chapter retorted that its resolution was not a political sentiment, but “a just demand of a necessary recognition of principle within the Fraternity.” After a long debate, it was decided that “in view of the present distracted and eminently critical condition of our country, deeply affecting all classes of citizens, a committee of one from every chapter should be appointed to prepare an address to the chapters and members of the Fraternity, and that all addresses, resolutions and communications of a political nature should be referred to that committee.” The committee was accordingly appointed and on the following day presented both a majority and a minority report. The majority, composed of the committeemen from Beta, Epsilon, Zeta and all of the Southern chapters, except Xi, reported that an address alone would be inadequate to meet the difficulties of the occasion, and they therefore proposed a resolution stating that the Fraternity recognize the social distinction between white and black races, and they further proposed a constitutional amendment to carry into effect the resolution. The minority report, submitted by the remaining Northern committeemen, together with Xi, reported that in their opinion an address would be amply sufficient. After an animated discussion the whole matter was referred back to the committee, with the result that the committee unanimously reported that an address be sent out, and that the initiation ritual include a pledge “to still all political and religious interference and agitation whenever and wherever it may arise in the Fraternity." An address was accordingly prepared and dispatched to all the chapters, signed by the entire thirty-four delegates. In a dignified style it proclaimed the stability and union of the Fraternity irrespective of political dissolution and urged fraternal harmony among the members. This brief sketch of the slavery agitation at this convention, recounting it only as disclosed by the minutes, necessarily leaves to the imagination the heated political arguments which must have taken place among the delegates.

The convention closed with a dinner at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, at which an oration was delivered by William Godley, of Beta, and a poem by Albert H. Slape, of Epsilon. The minutes note that at the same time and place the Delta Kappa Epsilon was holding a banquet and that an interchange of sentiments was had between the banquets. To the Delta Kappa Epsilon was sent the following:

"Phi Kappa Sigma to Delta Kappa Epsilon: The secret societies of America — may an honorable rivalry ever incite them and harmony characterize their intercourse." The reply: "Six cheers for the Phi Kappa Sigma. The Delta Kappa Epsilon to the Phi Kappa Sigma returns her most cordial salutation with the following sentiment: The secret societies of American colleges, planets of the same educational system, may their movement rival the harmony of the spheres."

The New York Convention adjourned to meet at Richmond, Va., in 1862. Owing to the Civil War this convention did not meet, and it was not until December 28-29, 1864, that the Fraternity again gathered as a national body. This convention was held at Philadelphia in the famous Parlor C of the Continental Hotel. The seven Northern chapters were all present, the eight from the South all absent. All of the chapter reports refer to the havoc wrought by the war. No reference is made to the condition of any of the Southern chapters, except that of Omicron. As to that chapter, the convention was in receipt of a letter from Newton William, of Delta, stating that he was then at Centre College, but that no member of Omicron was to be found. Apparently no oration or poem was delivered.

Avenue Hotel, New York City. Eight Northern chapters were represented, Pi at Harvard having been founded since the last convention. The non-existence of the eight Southern chapters was by this time undoubted, and the convention directed that active steps be taken to reorganize them wherever possible. At the same time the convention chartered a new chapter, Rho, at Austin College, Huntsville, Texas, an ill-starred attempt which lasted but a year. This convention was presided over by Dr. Mitchell. Neither the orator, Daniel S. Tuttle, of Iota, nor the poet, Clay MacCauley, of Epsilon, was present. The Convention of 1866 met on December 27-28 of that year in Philadelphia. The eight Northern chapters were all present and the Southern chapters, which were still carried on the rolls, all absent, including the Rho Chapter. Henry L. Bunstein, of Gamma, presided, with Robert N. Clark, of Alpha, as secretary. It was reported that efforts were being made to revive the Nu Chapter at Cumberland University and the Omicron Chapter at Centre College, but apparently nothing was doing. Resolutions were again adopted calling for the reorganization of the Southern chapters and the convention adjourned.

A year later the convention met at Harrisburg, Pa., on December 31, 1867, and January 1, 1868, under the presidency of Louis E. McComas, of Epsilon, with John C. Sims, of Alpha, as secretary. The convention, while attended by only six chapters, is of importance in that it directed a revision of the Constitution, which, when adopted the following year, became the basis of the present government of the Fraternity. The usual oration was delivered by Henry L. Bunstein, of Gamma, and a poem prepared by Henry F. King, of Epsilon, was read by Horace Bonham, of Gamma.

The Conventions of May 15, 1869, and December 22, 1869, both held at Philadelphia, mark the beginning of the general Fraternity as it now exists as a national body. At these conventions the Constitution which, with revisions, is still in force, was adopted. There was created by it the body now known as the Grand Chapter, which has met each year since then and which exercises general legislative power over the Fraternity. There was created at the same time the Executive Board, which, as its name implies, is the executive body of the Fraternity between the sessions of the Grand Chapter. The second of these two conventions marked the erection of the Sigma Chapter at Lehigh University. The Fraternity at this time, geographically speaking, was a sectional body, consisting of five chapters in Pennsylvania, one in New Jersey and one in New York. Both the Pi and Rho chapters had passed away and the ante-bellum chapters in the South were all out of existence. Iota, at Columbia, had but one man in college and became dormant in 1870. National fraternity spirit was at low ebb and a desire to remedy this was doubtless the reason for the calling of a general convocation, the first of several which have been since held, which met at Philadelphia on December 31, 1871. Judge James D. Watters, of Epsilon, presided, and the historic oration and poem were revived, the former being delivered by Henry Kyd Douglas, of Zeta, and the latter by Horatio C. King, of Epsilon.

At the convention held at Philadelphia, January 9-10, 1873, called the "fifth" under the new Constitution, but in reality the fourteenth actually held, Leroy S. Edwards appeared from Eta Chapter, the first Southern delegate since the war. Brother Edwards was the moving spirit in the reorganization of Eta on September 26, 1872, and he was also largely instrumental in establishing the Tau Chapter at Randolph-Macon College, in January, 1872, and the Phi Chapter at Richmond College, in January, 1873. As a further evidence of the revived interest in the Fraternity there had been established on July 8, 1872, the first chapter in the Middle West, namely, Upsilon Chapter at Northwestern University, which was fathered by James C. Ernst, of Beta. The organization of the first Alumni Association, located in New York City, had occurred in 1869. In order to encourage such organizations, they were in 1870 given representation in the Grand Chapter, but this was repealed in 1871, and from that time until 1901 alumni chapters were not officially recognized. Following upon the institution of Upsilon, the Chi Chapter was established at Racine College, Wisconsin, in March, 1873, mainly through the efforts of Arch B. Eldridge, of Beta, and John M. Dandy, of Upsilon. It lived, however, but a few years, owing to faculty oppression.

The Second General Convocation, which was held at Horticultural Hall, in Philadelphia, June 30, 1876, was by far the largest gathering in the history of the Fraternity up to that time. Col. James L. Clark, of Eta, acted as salutatorian. Henry L. Bunstein, of Gamma, delivered a history of the Fraternity. Col. Horatio C. King, of Epsilon, read a poem, and the oration was delivered by Hon. E. John Ellis, of Theta. In the evening an elaborate banquet was held at which Dr. Mitchell, the founder of the Fraternity, acted as toastmaster. The Grand Chapter met at the same time. A few months before, Psi Chapter had been established at the Long Island Medical College, Brooklyn, through the efforts of Gamma Chapter. This entrance into a purely professional school was a mistake, and the chapter did not long survive. In fact the recent energy of the Fraternity was soon expended, for 1877 recorded the extinction of both Beta and Epsilon, the former because of the wholesale abolition of fraternities at Princeton, and the latter from lack of available material. The only encouraging sign was that Lambda Chapter at North Carolina had arisen from the ruins of the war and was again in a flourishing condition, although existing sub rosa, the chapter sending special warning to the other chapters never to address communications in such a way as to indicate the existence of the chapter.

During the latter '70's, Alpha, Lambda and Upsilon were the most flourishing chapters; the others then active, Gamma, Delta, Zeta, Eta, Sigma, Tau, Phi and Psi, having but two or three men each in their respective colleges. The falling off of interest since the Convocation of 1876 was apparent in the next one, held in 1879, when the number present was less than half at that of 1876. So general was the discouraging outlook for the Fraternity nationally that no convention was again held until January 20, 1882, when it was reported that Gamma and Psi were each reduced to one member in college. The Grand Chapter accordingly withdrew the charter of Psi that year and that of Gamma the following year. Zeta Chapter, which had had a long and prosperous existence, was also in dire straits, so much so that at the Convention of January, 1882, it was voted to disband the chapter. However, local brethren in Lancaster came to its relief, and the Executive Board, in March of 1882, by what was apparently a stretch of its constitutional powers, decided to hold in abeyance the order disbanding Zeta, with the result that at the convention held on December 29, 1882, the dissolution of Zeta was repealed.

Despite these adverse circumstances felt so generally throughout the chapters, a high standard of membership was maintained by all. Several struggled along with but two or three members, preferring the risk of extinction to a lowering of the standard of membership. Epsilon indeed surrendered its charter for this reason, and Sigma and Phi were without men in college for a few years.

The Conventions of 1882 mark the first discussions looking toward the establishment of a Fraternity magazine, but nothing seems to have been done in the matter until 1890, as will be noted later.

The Omega Chapter at Haverford College was founded in 1884, the Executive Board reporting to the Grand Chapter that its establishment was "the crowning effort of the year." Spasmodic efforts to revive dormant chapters came to a head at this convention, and it was resolved that Beta and Iota should be reorganized by the Alpha, Gamma by Sigma, Epsilon by Zeta and Phi by Tau. The only result was the revival of Phi in the following year.

In 1886, the need of a Fraternity magazine was again discussed, and the Tau Chapter was authorized to publish a paper in the interest of the Fraternity. Nothing, however, was done until the session of the Grand Chapter held at Norfolk, Virginia, January 3, 1890. This convention, while small in numbers, was in many respects a turning point in the Fraternity's career as a national organization. Delegates were present from but five chapters, Alpha, Eta, Lambda, Phi and Omega, but it authorized the inauguration of the Phi Kappa Sigma Quarterly and elected Stuart McGuire, of Eta, editor-in-chief. Dr. McGuire subsequently declined, and George Gordon Battle, of Lambda, was substituted in his place. The first number was published in New York, in February, 1891. Subsequent issues were published in Philadelphia regularly until 1901, when it was discontinued and superseded by the Phi Kappa Sigma News Letter, the official organ at the present time.

At this convention Lambda Chapter reported that it had the honor to possess the first chapter house in the Fraternity. The delegates reported the house as a "beautiful and convenient chapter house which was built, furnished and presented to the chapter by our generous alumni." It is described as "a building about thirty by forty feet and is painted in our colors, but the outside appearance gives but a slight idea of the convenience and beauty of its interior. Our Assembly Hall is a large room, which, thanks to the kindness of Frank B. Dancy, is most handsomely and appropriately decorated. On the rostrum we have three handsome mahogany chairs with old gold cushions; a handsome Brussels carpet is on the floor. Our windows have lace curtains and shades with Lambda and the skull and cross bones painted on them. All of the globes of the lamps have the same thing painted on them; all of us are constantly stimulated to still greater action on account of our neat hall."

The Convention of 1891 met in Philadelphia on January 1st, with nine chapters represented, the largest since 1860. The loss of Omega Chapter, caused by prohibitive faculty legislation, was offset by the institution of Psi at Pennsylvania State College, which was accomplished by the absorption of the local chapter of the Q. T. V. Society. In 1892 Rho Chapter was founded at the University of Illinois.

In 1893, Anthony Sambola, of Theta, revived the Mu Chapter at Tulane, and the Kappa Chapter at Lake Forest was founded, but both, together with the youthful Rho Chapter, soon succumbed, chiefly because of the financial panic at that time. The Fraternity did not seem to realize the importance of establishing chapters only upon a firm basis so as to assure their permanency. In 1894 the Alpha Alpha Chapter was founded at Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Va., and the Epsilon Chapter at Dickinson was revived by the absorption of a local society known as Alpha Zeta Phi, which had existed successfully at that institution for a number of years.

In the following year the Alpha Beta Chapter at Toronto University, the only chapter organized outside the territory of the United States, came into existence. Practically all of its members, however, failed to return the next year and the chapter's career was abortive. The charter of Lambda was finally withdrawn with great regret in 1896, after it had led a struggling existence for three or four years. Mu, which had succumbed temporarily, was revived in 1901, and has since continued active. Rho also was revived in 1902 and Iota in 1904 under favorable conditions and they have since attained high rank in their respective universities.

It will thus be seen that from 1860 to the middle of the last decade of the century the Fraternity suffered from a lack of cohesion nationally, occasional periods of enthusiasm and expansion being succeeded by a recurrence of apathy. The effect of the beginning of civil war in the country in 1861 was to deprive the Fraternity at one blow of half its active life. From such a calamity recovery was necessarily prolonged. The wonder is, not that a long period of national inactivity followed, but that the Fraternity survived it all. It is a powerful testimonial to the loyalty of its members that it succeeded eventually in restoring its organic unity. The national lethargy was not, however, reflected in the several chapters individually. During this whole period Alpha Chapter maintained its historic position as the leading fraternity at the University of Pennsylvania. Eta Chapter at Virginia, following its revival after the war, together with the Tau and Phi chapters in the same date, obtained members of the highest personnel, as did Lambda at North Carolina. In the West the Upsilon Chapter for many years maintained an isolated existence with marked success. It was not, however, until 1896 that the Fraternity began to assume its present commanding position as a national organization. Since that time several chapters have been added in the leading institutions of the country under conditions which have assured permanent organizations. The result has been a marvelous development in the Fraternity as a national body. It now numbers thirty-one active chapters, all of which are strong in their respective colleges and are united as one general society.

The Executive Board, which for many years after its creation in 1869 met at irregular intervals, has for the last twenty-five years held regular monthly meetings and carries on an enormous amount of executive business and detail throughout the year.

No better testimony of the Fraternity's strength can be found than in the enthusiastic manner with which its Semi-Centennial was celebrated in Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, on October 17, 18 and 19, 1900. Delegates from all the active chapters and several hundred alumni assembled from all parts of the country. In addition to the routine business sessions of the Grand Chapter a general convocation was held during the convention. This was presided over by Grand Alpha J. Hartley Merrick, with Charles Hare Hutchinson, of Alpha, one of the two then surviving founders of the Fraternity, as honorary president: Thomas Lynch Montgomery, of Alpha, past Grand Alpha, delivered an historical address; Russell Duane, of Alpha, was the orator, and General Horatio C. King, of Epsilon, read a poem. On the 18th a memorial service was held at St. Stephen's Church, in the porch of which edifice are buried the remains of Dr. Mitchell, the founder. The service was conducted with great impressiveness, all of the officiating clergy being members of the Fraternity. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. George Woolsey Hodge, of Alpha Chapter. On the evening of the 19th the Semi-Centennial was brought to a close with an elaborate banquet, at which between two hundred and fifty and three hundred Phi Kaps were present, the Hon. William U. Hensel, of Zeta, acting as toastmaster. Toasts were responded to by Samuel Dickson, Esq. (Alpha), of the Philadelphia Bar; Hon. George Glover Crocker (Pi), chairman of the Boston Subway Commission; Randal Morgan, Esq. (Alpha), vice-president of the United Gas Improvement Company; Dr. William Draper Lewis (Omega), dean of the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania, and others.

In 1901 the Executive Board found that the Phi Kappa Sigma Quarterly was not fulfilling its proper function as a Fraternity magazine and accordingly suspended it, and instituted in its stead the publication known as the Phi Kappa Sigma News Letter, which has since continued as the official organ of the Fraternity. The News Letter aims to present a succinct record of the current progress of the Fraternity, without any attempt to pose as a literary magazine. Its circulation, free of cost among all living members, has proved to be the means of awakening and solidifying fraternal loyalty to a remarkable degree.

At its Convention at Baltimore in 1904, the Grand Chapter instituted the officers known as "Chapters Visitors" who are appointed by the Executive Board, one from each chapter, as overseers of their chapters. These officers are selected from among the alumni of the Fraternity and are required to make stated visits to the chapters and to report to the Executive Board upon the conditions found existing. By this means the Executive Board is put in possession of accurate information concerning each chapter from the point of view of the graduate.

The convention of 1907 held in New York authorized the creation of the Phi Kappa Sigma Endowment Fund for the purpose of raising money to buy or build chapter houses to be owned by the General Fraternity for the benefit of the chapters. Haseltine Smith, Alpha '95, was made chairman of the fund and subsequently elected to the newly created office of Grand Epsilon. This position he continued to hold until his election as Grand Alpha in December, 1916. He continued practically in charge of the fund until the spring of 1919 for the reason that his immediate successor as Grand Epsilon, Benjamin Lee, 2nd, enlisted in the Naval Aviation service shortly after his election and was killed while flying off the coast of England in the fall of 1918. During his management of the office, Brother Smith raised $22 586 in cash, together with considerable additional sums in installment subscriptions. The first house erected with endowment fund money was that of Eta Chapter at the University of Virginia, which was occupied in the summer of 1911. Subsequently the fund took over the equity of the Alpha Xi Chapter in its house at Purdue University and in the fall of 1917 purchased a home for Alpha Pi Chapter at the University of Chicago. The title to all three houses stands in the names of the trustees of the Phi Kappa Sigma Endowment Fund. The trustees originally appointed were General Horatio C. King, Epsilon '58; Effingham B. Morris, Alpha '75, President of the Girard Trust Company of Philadelphia; and Claude A. Swanson, Tau '85, United States Senator from Virginia. Upon the death of General King in 1918, Judge Wells M. Cook, Upsilon '95, became his successor. In addition to these three houses, seventeen houses are owned by various chapters, the money having been raised by the chapter alumni. All of the remaining chapters have rented houses and in practically all cases have building funds. A fair valuation of all houses owned is $625,750, in which the Fraternity's equity amounts to $412,350.

From the early '80's until 1914, the Grand Chapter met every year, usually in December. The convention in the year last named was held under the auspices of Alpha Iota Chapter at Nashville, Tenn. This was the first convention held in the far South. This session passed an amendment to the constitution, providing that the Grand Chapter should meet "annually or otherwise" as might be determined from time to time. Accordingly the following year the convention was held on August 26th and 27th, 1915, in San Francisco, during the Panama-Pacific Exhibition. Notwithstanding the long distance from the geographical center of the Fraternity, the convention was attended by a large number of delegates and alumni from the East and South. Up to this time the various officers of the Executive Board had conducted the Fraternity's business from their private offices. The volume of business had increased to such an extent that in the case of three or four of the officers it was no longer practicable to continue in this manner. The Grand Chapter therefore authorized the established of a Fraternity office, located in Philadelphia, with the employment of such clerical help as would be necessary to maintain the office properly. This has proven of great practical benefit. All of the business records of the Fraternity are now located in this office and most of the correspondence is carried on from there.

The next convention was held at Chicago, Ill., on December 30th and 31st, 1916, and in attendance surpassed all previous sessions. As the United States entered the world war in April, 1917, it was determined to hold no convention until after the war. The Executive Board, anticipating the effect of the war upon the undergraduate chapters, took steps in the spring of 1917 to collect data concerning the exact status of the real estate and general business condition of each of the chapters and where necessary saw to it that no chapter suffered by reason of the reduction in its membership. During the winter of 1917 and 1918 all of the chapters continued in operation, none, however, with more than fifty per cent. of normal membership and many with but two or three members in attendance, although many of the undergraduates were under the original draft age. From the records which the Fraternity has gathered and which are believed to be as nearly correct as possible, twenty-four hundred and eighty-six members entered the military or naval service or enlisted in one of the auxiliary organizations, such as the Red Cross or the "Y," while many others worked as civilians at some form of war activity. As far as is known, forty-two members gave up their lives in the service of their country. The Fraternity is justly proud of the record of its members in the war.

The fall of 1918 saw the colleges operating under the regulations of the Student Army Training Corps. Dormitories and fraternity houses were converted into barracks or used for other purposes in connection with the military occupation. The question at once arose as to the situation of the fraternities. The original instructions issued from the War Department at Washington were somewhat ambiguous and led to the impression in many places that the fraternities were not to be allowed to continue their existence by the initiation of new members. The general officers of the Fraternity promptly took up the matter with the authorities in Washington, as was also done by officers of other fraternities, and a supplemental order was issued showing that while the usual social activities of the fraternities would not be permitted there was no objection to the maintenance of the organizations by the initiation of new members. The cessation of hostilities in November, 1918, and the abandonment of the Student Army Training Corps shortly thereafter removed the question as to the status of the fraternities, although in many instances the return to normal conditions was not brought about until the fall of 1919.

During the last week of June, 1919, the Grand Chapter again met at Atlantic City, N. J. Elaborate plans were laid to make this convention a grand rally of undergraduates and alumni alike in order to restore the morale interrupted by the war and to start the chapters enthusiastically upon the opening of colleges in the fall. The convention was largely attended, was addressed by various alumni, including members who had seen service overseas and in all respects was most successful.

In conclusion, the present activities of the Fraternity as a national organization may be summarized as follows:

I. The Grand Chapter, consisting of three delegates from each chapter and one delegate from each alumni chapter, under the presidency of the Grand Alpha. The Executive Board and the Chapter Visitors collectively constitute additional voting units on votes which are taken by chapters. The Grand Chapter has general legislative power over the Fraternity subject to the provisions of the Constitution. The Constitution, By-Laws and Acts of the Grand Chapter are collected in printed form and are in the possession of each chapter.

II. The Executive Board, which consists of the Grand Officers of the Grand Chapter, is the working executive of the Grand Chapter between the sessions. The Board is presided over by the Grand Alpha and meets monthly, carrying into execution an enormous amount of governmental detail.

III. The offices of the Grand Beta and the Grand Pi, who supervise the chapter visitor system. The chapters are divided into two groups, over one of which the Grand Beta and over the other the Grand Pi has charge, directing the work of the respective Chapter Visitors.

IV. The office of the Grand Sigma, who is the secretary of the Executive Board and of the Grand Chapter, performing the varied duties which customarily belong to such an office.

V. The office of the Grand Tau, who collects and disburses the finances of the Fraternity. These finances are raised by a stated per capita tax upon all of the chapters. The funds are used in paying the expenses of the Grand Officers and of one delegate from each chapter to the Grand Chapter; for the publication of the Phi Kappa Sigma News Letter, which is sent free to all living members; for the publication of a pocket directory of living members, which is issued in every alternate year, and for various current miscellaneous expenses.

VI. The office of the Grand Upsilon, who is the editor of the Phi Kappa Sigma News Letter, of the pocket directory and of the general Register. The duties of the Grand Upsilon entail the keeping of an accurate card catalogue of the names and addresses of all living members of the Fraternity.

VII. The office of the Grand Epsilon, who is the head of the Endowment Fund through which money is raised to finance the erection of houses for the chapters, to be owned by the chapters or by the general Fraternity for their use.

History of Alpha Chapter

A complete history of Alpha Chapter must of necessity include, to a certain extent, a history of the Fraternity itself, but as that appears elsewhere in this REGISTER only a brief summary can be here given of Alpha's part in the building up of our national organization.

The early papers left by Dr. Mitchell in his handwriting indicate that he first conceived the idea of establishing a fraternity at the University of Pennsylvania on the 16th of August, 1850, a date that is memorable in the annals of Alpha Chapter, not only from this fact, but because August 16th was, by a strange coincidence, the date both of the birth and death of the founder.

It was with the idea of a rivalry with Delta Phi, then the only college fraternity established at Pennsylvania, when Dr. Mitchell, with that energy and enthusiasm which some of us still remember, took into his confidence a few intimate classmates, and as the result of a conversation held in Professor Vethake's room at the University, then located in Ninth Street, Phi Kappa Sigma, the only fraternity founded at the University of Pennsylvania, was organized on the 19th day of October, 1850. The founders were Samuel Brown Wylie Mitchell, James Bayard Hodge, Alfred Victor Du Pont, Charles Hare Hutchinson, John Thorn Stone, Duane Williams and Andrew Adams Ripka. These seven met at the house of James Bayard Hodge, at the northwest corner of Ninth and Walnut Streets, and organized by calling him to the chair. A constitution and by-laws were then presented and adopted, having been previously drafted by a committee which met at Duane Williams' house, on the north side of Walnut Street, between Eighth and Ninth Streets, next door to what is now the Casino. An order of initiation was then framed, the badge adopted, and the life of the Fraternity begun.

The greater part of the work, and the design of the badge, was Dr. Mitchell's; he was the soul and spirit of the movement and had a natural ability for organization; and, although there were other societies of which he was founder, he never allowed any of them to interfere with his love for the Fraternity. The early development of the order is largely attributable to his fostering care and effort in its behalf. His charm of manner and great earnestness of purpose made him always desired and conspicuous.

The Fraternity began at once to flourish, when shortly after, in December, Hodge died of scarlet fever, and this sad event cast a gloom over the others. Notwithstanding this, the Fraternity grew rapidly. From accounts, for the records say nothing about it, they had no regular place for meetings for some time, but held them either at each other's houses or at some convenient hotel or restaurant. They finally secured rooms in a house on the east side of Tenth Street below South. This was not a convenient locality, and the premises were shortly vacated on account of a dispute between the landlord and the tenant, as the members of the Fraternity, being subtenants of the latter, became disagreeably connected as witnesses in a lawsuit.

From here rooms were rented in a house which stood on the northeast corner of Eighth and Walnut Streets. While here the faculty suddenly became aware of the existence of the organization and were alarmed lest the nefarious schemes and practices, which they supposed were being carried on under cover of secrecy, should injure the reputation of the University. Threats of expulsion were made and the parents and guardians of the students were written to and the members summoned to attend in the faculty room and answer for themselves. When Dr. Mitchell was summoned, the Provost asked him, on pointing to his badge, "Why do you wear that piratical ensign?" As one of the members of that period has said, "So far as concerned the treatment of undergraduates, the order of the day was repression, restriction of liberty and enforced obedience to cast-iron rules. The faculty seemed to have set their faces against everything desired by the students. Too much afraid of innovations, they fought against changes at a time when any departure from the old habit would have been an advance in the right direction. The trustees followed in the same ruts."

A printed circular was sent to all the parents and guardians of the students by the faculty and trustees, warning them against the pernicious influence and the dire results that would ensue from allowing their sons to join secret societies.

This opposition only further inspired the efforts of the members to add to their number. Dr. Mitchell was a man of indomitable will and energy, and opposition on the part of the college authorities only had the effect of giving greater impetus to the cause.

In 1852 the last member of the academic department had graduated and the only connection that was left with the University was three members of the medical department. For nearly a year the existence of the order was precarious. Only medical students composed the membership, and many of them ceased to give much of their attention to the interests of the society. But here again Dr. Mitchell came to the rescue, and he, with a few of those who remained steadfast to the cause, initiated the next year, on the 23d of April, 1853, Henry Boyd McKeen, for the purpose of founding the Beta Chapter at Princeton College, which took root immediately and soon grew into a large and flourishing branch of the parent stem; and on the 20th of December following, the Gamma Chapter at Lafayette College was founded by Stacy G. Potts, of the Beta Chapter. Dr. Mitchell's connection with the medical profession brought him almost solely at this time in contact with students of the Medical Department of the University, and by reason of this the members were wholly initiated from that department. On the appointment of Dr. Mitchell to the staff of the Philadelphia Hospital many meetings of the Fraternity were held in his rooms at that institution, for now no hall was rented for the use of the chapter. During the year following, on the 5th of June, the Delta Chapter at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Pa., was enrolled among the list of chapters.

Thus affairs ran on until the 17th of January, 1855, when six members of the college department were initiated at Druids

Hall, on Fifth Street, corner of Adelphi. These were Robert H. McGrath, Charles E. Hackley, James Devercux, Samuel Dickson, J. M. McGrath and Alexander W. Mitchell. This initiation was conducted by Dr. Mitchell, William Cook, Morris J. Asch and William McCalla McKeen with great ceremony.

From this the Fraternity took on a new existence with these six members of the collegiate department, and with the careful nursing of the founder, Dr. Mitchell, it began to grow rapidly. Its previous precarious life was now a thing of the past, and it started with renewed vigor on its career. The first four meetings after this reorganization were held in Phoenix Hall, Zane Street above Seventh Street. On the 10th of April, when the lodge of the chapter was located in the two front rooms, fourth story, of No. 42 South Eighth Street, four members were initiated — Henry A. du Pont, C. E. Lamotte, William D. Stuart and Edward S. Whelen. These rooms were leased to Brother R. M. McGrath by Victor Reboul, a shoemaker, with the proviso “that the premises should not be used in any other manner than as a quiet society.”

The first minutes of which there is any record began 25th of June, 1855, and are recorded in a book mostly in Dr. Mitchell's handwriting. On the 10th of January, 1856, the rooms on the third story of the same building were taken, where a few meetings were held. First of March, 1856, the chapter moved into two large rooms with large middle doors on the ground floor of No. 57 George (now Sanson) Street above Eleventh Street, next to Ashmead's Printing House. These rooms were handsomely fitted up.

It was during March of 1857 that the Phi Kappa Sigma Magazine was started, and an unusually full attendance was had at the meeting when the first production of that paper was read by Brother Pechin, “causing an amount of satisfaction not expected.” It was issued monthly. The front covers were embellished in pen and ink and water color drawings of various designs, with the symbols of the Fraternity. This was the work either of C. A. McCall or James Harrison Lambdin, the latter being an artist of no mean ability, and who painted a skull and bones resting on a book which he presented to the chapter and which now hangs in the chapter house and is one of the most cherished treasures. The magazine always had an editorial, a summary of the news of the different chapters condensed from the correspondence of the preceding month, one or two articles and a poem or two. It was all in manuscript.

On May 16, 1859, the chapter moved from this locality to the second floor back of the building at the northeast corner of Tenth and Walnut Streets, which was reported by the Alpha of the chapter in his report to be inconvenient and the stay only intended to be temporary. In the fall of 1859 it removed to the southwest corner of Eighth and Sansom Streets, third floor, into very pleasant and commodious rooms, in which the chapter was better situated than ever before. It was here that, on the 19th of October, 1860, the tenth anniversary of the founding of the Fraternity was celebrated. The Alpha in his report congratulated the chapter upon the results achieved by the indefatigable efforts of that valuable officer — the Tau. “The comforts we are now enjoying, the adornments and conveniences of our hall, the quiet conscience (as we find ourselves almost relieved from debt) are all due to his alchemical powers of converting promises into ready cash.”

At the outbreak of the war from the early part of 1861 the chapter was seriously broken up by reason of her members going to the front; thirty members of Alpha Chapter entered the service. No minutes of the chapter appear between the 16th of April, 1861, to 16th of November, 1863. They had no hall until 1862, when a few members attended meetings at 207 South Sixth Street, and for a time all interest was given up and the prospects were indeed gloomy. In October of this year the chapter had only one member with whom to begin the session, with the popular notion that the Fraternity was entirely defunct. During this exciting period a correspondence was, however, kept up by Brother R. H. McGrath, the Upsilon, with a number of the chapters, and the Fraternity was kept alive by him, the only effective officer left to carry on the work of the Fraternity. Many letters were written and received by him to and from the field of battle, and from both sides in the conflict. Many acts of kindness and brotherly affection towards each other demonstrated the efficacy of the strong ties that bound together the members of Phi Kappa Sigma.

Those of the chapter who remained in Philadelphia during this period hearing that one or more of the Southern members were prisoners at Fort Delaware and in very destitute circumstances, made up a box of clothing, eatables, etc., and sent them forward. Months afterward there were received through the mails on a piece of common brown wrapping paper a few lines (signed by Brother Anthony Sambola) stating that some of the Southern brethren in the Confederate Army had heard of this action, and that if they knew of any Phi Kaps in Southern prisons and would advise them, every effort would be made to render their situation as tolerable as their scanty means would permit. This little incident spoke volumes in behalf of Fraternity combination and work.

Subsequently rooms were rented at 207 South Sixth Street, and in the early part of 1864 the meeting rooms of the chapter were located at Sixth and Walnut Streets (southeast corner, third-story front room). At this time the chapter was in the flush of success, having taken in seven men from the Department of Arts in the different classes. Meetings were now held after the time-honored custom.

It was here that a notable entertainment was given to the "Orphan Chapter," a curious abnormal growth of our Fraternity. This chapter was composed of a few men who had casually found themselves in Baltimore together at the end of the war, and no two of them from the same chapter. The badge brought them together, however, and the "Orphans" did us great credit during their brief career.

From Sixth and Walnut Streets the chapter again moved in January, 1867, to the third floor of 926 Chestnut Street, located directly opposite to the abode of the Delta Psi Fraternity. These rooms were rented from Fonteneau & Salles, but were given up in June, 1868. No minutes appear to have been kept between December, 1867, and March, 1868. During this period initiations were held mostly at the house of Brother John Mercer McCall in DeLancey Place. The chapter appears to have been at low ebb at this period, but a room was rented on the fourth floor of 1017 Walnut Street about December 1, 1870. This hall was quite large, being 18 by 60 feet. From 1867 to the latter part of 1874 the chapter was domiciled in the third floor of the southeast corner of Tenth and Chestnut Streets.

In November of 1874 the chapter again moved to the third floor of 1343 Chestnut Street, next door to a then famous saloon known as "Finelli's," and where the Liberty building now stands.

In those days the Phi Kaps dominated all the organizations of the classes from 1873 to 1879, and as a consequence the College Boat Club and the Athletic Association may be said to have had their origin in Alpha Chapter, because for several years in the early struggles of those helps to college life the officers and directors were mainly from our Fraternity. We worked well together for the common good of the University, and the result has shown the foundations to have been well laid. In 1877 the chapter moved to the third floor southeast corner of Chestnut and Juniper Streets, where the uptown office of the Pennsylvania Company now stands. In 1879 Dr. Mitchell, the founder, died and left us the heavy oak chairs and sofa now in the present house, with other mementoes. A memorial meeting was held upon the occasion of the doctor's death in these rooms, the proceedings of which were printed and are among our archives.

It is a pleasure to record that the first official recognition of a college fraternity at Pennsylvania was the acceptance by the trustees in 1887 of a fund raised by the Alpha Chapter to establish a prize to be known as "Prize established by the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity in honor of its founder, Samuel Brown Wylie Mitchell."

In the autumn of 1893, the rooms were on the second floor of the southwest corner of 13th and Walnut Streets, which rooms were occupied until 1896 when the Chapter purchased a property at 3537 Locust Street.

This moving of the chapter's quarters to West Philadelphia, opposite the University Campus, is significant of the closer alliance of chapter and University interests which has grown steadily.

Though the moving to 3537 Locust Street was a long step in advance from the rooms at 13th and Walnut, by 1905 it had become evident that larger quarters must be obtained.

With this end in view and due to the untiring energy and unflagging enthusiasm of the committee in charge a fund was raised for the purchase of the two small properties between 3537 Locust and the corner of 36th and Locust Streets. This gave the chapter a building site at least the equal of any other chapter on the campus and on this site the present chapter house was built.

The raising of the funds for the erection of the present chapter house on the corner of 36th and Locust was remarkable in that it made a record not only for the total amount of subscriptions but also the number of new subscriptions.

The present chapter house was completed in May, 1911, and celebrated with a dinner that will be vividly remembered by all that were fortunate enough to be able to attend.

The history of the Alpha Chapter has been closely bound with that of the history of the University. It seems fitting to mention that it was under the leadership of members of Alpha Chapter that plans for an inter-fraternity agreement were completed.

There is comparatively little to note in the history of the chapter from the time of occupancy in the new chapter house until the entrance of the United States in the World War in 1917. The new chapter house was of course a great assistance in enabling the chapter to maintain its strong position as a leader at the University.

In a portion of this register will be found a complete record of the activities of the members of the Alpha Chapter in the World War. In this place, it seems appropriate to give a short résumé of the difficulties that the chapter encountered and the way these difficulties were surmounted. By the fall of 1917, the membership of the chapter was seriously depleted by enlistments in various branches of the service. The same was true of most of the chapters at the University. In spite of the depletion in members, the chapter was able to maintain its high standard due principally to an unusual degree of support from the Alumni. At the end of the college year, in June, 1918, the active Alpha Chapter consisted of three men, all of whom were in the Medical School.

Prior to the time that the college would have opened in September, 1918, the University was taken over by the War Department for the establishment of a Students' Army Training Corps Unit. The Chapter House was also taken over as a barracks, and as high as 135 men were quartered therein during the continuation of the Students' Army Training Corps.

After the signing of the armistice and the demobilization of the Students' Army Training Corps, the house was returned to the chapter.

If it had not been for the interest and the support of the alumni, the chapter would have been in serious difficulty. As it was, with the aid of the men who had been discharged from the service, and the aid and interest of the alumni, the chapter was able to double its membership between January and June, 1919.

During the World War, five of Alpha Chapter members gave their lives. In memory of this, a fund has been raised, known as the Alpha Chapter Memorial Fund, for the purpose of paying off the mortgage. Response to this fund, just as in the case of the response to the other for the building of the house, was again characterized by the large number of new subscriptions.

*Alfred Victor du Pont, A.B., A.M., Louisville, Ky.

Founder. Born near Wilmington, Del., April 18, 1833. Son of Alfred and Margaretta Elizabeth (La Motte) du Pont. He was engaged in the street railroad business, obtaining a controlling interest in the lines in Louisville, St. Louis and New Orleans. He was the founder of the Louisville Manual Training School, and only ten days before his death gave the city a deed to the property. Relative in Fraternity, brother, Bidermann du Pont, Alpha, '56. He died at Louisville, Ky., May 16, 1893.

*Samuel Brown Wylie Mitchell, A.B., A.M., M.D., Philadelphia.

Originator and Founder of the Fraternity. Born in Philadelphia, August 16, 1828. Only son of Archibald Mitchell and Jane Eliza Matthews. His father was born in Greencastle, Derry County, Ireland, and for many years was teacher of mathematics in the Academy at the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Mitchell graduated from the Central High School of Philadelphia in 1849 with the degree of A.B., then entered the Sophomore Class of the University of Pennsylvania and was graduated, with the degree of A.B., in 1852. Previous to this he had matriculated in the Medical Department of the University and was graduated with the degree of M.D. in 1854. He received the degree of A.M. from the University in 1855. Was Assistant Physician, Philadelphia Hospital, 1854-55. He practiced until the outbreak of the Civil War, when he was commissioned Major and Surgeon of the Eighteenth Pennsylvania U. S. Volunteers, April 17, 1861. Mustered out August 7, 1861, he was commissioned Major and Surgeon of the Eighty-ninth Pennsylvania (Eighth Cavalry), U. S. V., August 17, 1861, and served with distinction until the expiration of the term of service, January 24, 1865. Was breveted Lieutenant-Colonel U. S. V., March 13, 1865, for "gallant and meritorious service."

He organized the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States and was first on its roll of membership; drafted its constitution, designed its seal and badge, and was elected Recorder of the Commandery of the State of Pennsylvania the first year of its existence, and continued in that office each successive year until his death.

He was Commander of Post 2, G. A. R., for five years; a member of Federal Lodge, A. Y. M., Washington, D. C., and of Franklin Lodge, A. Y. M., Philadelphia; also of Philadelphia Commandery, No. 2, Knights Templar, and of Philadelphia Royal Arch Chapter, No. 169. He was also a member of the American Medical Association and the Historical Society of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Mitchell was the originator of the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity, having been the first to suggest its organization, and its prosperity was largely due to his active, untiring and efficient services. His memory will long be cherished and revered by the Fraternity and by the community in which he lived. He died at Spring Hill, Delaware County, Pa., Saturday, August 16, 1879, his birthday, and is buried beneath the pavement in the porch of St. Stephen's Church, Philadelphia.

PRINCETON, NEW JERSEY

INSTITUTED APRIL 23, A.D. 1853

HENRY BOYD McKEEN

History of Beta Chapter

The details of the history of the Beta Chapter are involved in the utmost obscurity, owing to the fact that at the time of the creation of the chapter at Princeton its affairs had to be conducted with the greatest secrecy and care in order to keep the existence of the chapter unknown to the college authorities on account of the antagonistic attitude of the faculty to such organizations. The chapter was organized through the efforts of Dr. Mitchell, the founder, who took the first step towards the expansion of the Fraternity by initiating Henry Boyd McKeen for the purpose of founding the Beta Chapter at Princeton College, which was accordingly done on the 23d of April, 1853.

In the early part of 1856 the chapter had rooms located about a mile distant from the town, but this fact soon became known, and in June, 1857, the president made the proposition to the members that if they would surrender the names of those composing the chapter, and assure him of their having disbanded, he would allow them to return to the college at the next session.

This they did most piously and were afterwards at ease in full enjoyment of their privileges as members of the Beta. Great secrecy was enjoined on the other chapters as to their existence. In 1864 Dr. McLean, the president, procured a list of all fraternities at Princeton and threatened to expel all who did not before a given time give up all connections with them. A committee was appointed by Beta to confer with the Alpha Chapter as to the best course to pursue under these circumstances. They committed their charters and papers to the Alpha's care until the storm should blow over. The other chapters were requested not to correspond. Individual connection could not be broken, but as an organized chapter they could not exist.

No records of this chapter appear to be in existence, and it is doubtful if any were kept in permanent form. Their meetings were held clandestinely, and many of the initiations were held in Philadelphia at the rooms of the Alpha Chapter. The students at Princeton college were not supposed to be members of any fraternity, so the proceedings were conducted sub rosa.

On account of the limited membership, the meetings were very informal, but at the same time were no less enjoyable.

The meeting room was in a two-story-and-a-half frame house, situated on a road leading down the hill toward the old railroad station, since moved away. The room was about 10 x 12 feet in size, with a square pine table and half a dozen chairs and a wooden settee for the accommodation of the members. On the wall, in two or three places, the skull and cross-bones reposed on a black background, in size about 15 x 12 inches. There were some sort of black hangings about the doors and windows, to give the room a sombre effect and to prevent the light from being noticed by passers-by on the outside, as it was reported that the members were being watched. Plenty of pipes and tobacco, but it was unanimously voted there should be no stimulants. Occasionally there were essays read and the regular proceedings of a society meeting.

The opposition of the faculty continued so unrelentingly that all the fraternities which had chapters at Princeton were compelled to withdraw. Phi Kappa Sigma was among the last to relinquish its hold, no one being initiated after the Class of 1881 was matriculated.

History of Gamma Chapter

Gamma, the third chapter to be founded, was established at Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., on December 20, 1853, eight months after the foundation of Beta at Princeton. The short distance from Princeton to Easton, and the intimate relations existing between the two colleges, for the reason that both were under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church, naturally led Beta to look toward Lafayette as the site of another chapter, and, upon assent of the Alpha Chapter, the chapter was duly founded. Stacy Gardner Potts, Jr., who had been initiated as a student at Princeton, entered Lafayette and gathered together the nucleus of the chapter.

Gamma was the first chapter of any fraternity to enter Lafayette, and upon her fell the entire concentrated opposition of faculty and trustees. The official opposition in 1857 took the form of compelling every new student to take an oath at matriculation that he was not and would not become a member of a secret Greek letter society. Despite this, the chapter reported to the Convention of 1860 that it "continued to prosper and from time to time initiated some of the first men in the institution." Prior to 1860 the trustees had withdrawn this oath, so that the delegate was able to report that "the dark clouds of the displeasure of the powers that be which hung over us have been dispelled, and the sunshine has broken through to light and cheer our pathway. . . . This odious, unjust and tyrannical act has been repealed and we stand to-day recognized and endorsed by faculty and students."

For over twenty years Gamma pursued a career of great prosperity, numbering among her members many brethren who have since become well known in professional and business life. About 1880, however, the attendance at Lafayette had fallen off and the number of students considered available for membership were very small. This fact, coupled with the failure of several undergraduates to return to college, reduced the chapter in 1882 to one active man. In the following year the Grand Chapter formally withdrew the charter. The men of Gamma, however, all continue to display great interest and loyalty to the Fraternity. A number of them, located in New York, are among the most active members of the New York Alumni Chapter.

WASHINGTON AND JEFFERSON COLLEGE

WASHINGTON, PENNSYLVANIA

INSTITUTED JUNE 5, A. D. 1854 *

JOHN WOOLFORD POLK

HENRY WHITELY PATTERSON

ROBERT ST. CLAIR GRAHAM

GEORGE M. HOUTZ

JOHN T. KYLE

WILLIAM H. PRETLOW

* Instituted at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Pa. That college was combined with Washington College, Washington, Pa., in 1865, under the title Washington and Jefferson College.

History of Delta Chapter

On June 5, 1854, Delta Chapter was instituted at Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Pa., the oldest college in the United States west of the Allegheny Mountains. The installation was conducted by Samuel Smith, of Gamma Chapter, acting under a dispensation of the Alpha Chapter. The founders were J. W. Polk of Maryland; W. H. Pretlow, of Virginia, and H. W. Patterson, R. S. Graham, G. M. Houtz and J. T. Kyle, of Pennsylvania. At this time there were chapters at Jefferson of Beta Theta Pi, Phi Gamma Delta and Phi Kappa Psi, the last two fraternities being founded at Jefferson.

On account of the rivalries and jealousies of these earlier fraternities there was serious faculty opposition to any further organizations of a similar character, so the chapter existed for a time sub rosa. But in 1855, soon after the beginning of the first college year of its life, there was a spirited contest on for orator in one of the college literary societies, which before it ended almost wrecked the chapter. For in the heat of the campaign one of its members so far forgot himself as to be guilty of unfraternal conduct of such a serious nature that the Alpha Chapter intervened and took action in the matter. After careful consideration of the case the chapter was dissolved and four of its members expelled from the Fraternity.

But the old spirit still lived and on March 3, 1855, the chapter was reorganized and a fresh start made. The rebirth made the members keenly alive to the honor and dignity of the Fraternity as well as to its associations and pleasures, and a quiet conservatism took hold of the young chapter, which began to increase with a steady and careful growth. It soon became the leading society at Jefferson and it has been the constant aim of its members in later years to preserve the pride of position it has always possessed.

Canonsburg was a quaint old country village in those days and chapter houses were unknown possessions. Most of the men roomed at a house about half a mile from the college on the road to Washington, and thus were associated together in bonds of closest comradeship. At the same time a chapter hall for meetings was maintained with great secrecy, as the fraternities of that day were wont to enhance the mystery of their fellowship as much as possible. Of the chapter in those days, Stephen C. McCandless, later a prominent attorney in Pittsburgh, said: "While a freshman in the year 1858, it was my privilege to join the Fraternity. It had its representatives then in every college class, and, it seemed to me, there were more natural-born and thoroughbred gentlemen among them than any other body of students there similarly associated."

One of the leading spirits of the chapter at this time was Chauncey Forward Black, who later became Lieutenant-Governor of Pennsylvania and Democratic leader of that state. His father was Chief Justice of Pennsylvania and afterwards a member of President Buchanan's Cabinet, first as Attorney-General and then as Secretary of State. At the convention of the Fraternity held in Washington in December, 1858, Judge Black dined the delegates at his home and afterwards presented them to President Buchanan at the White House.

The Civil War was a severe blow to Delta. Old Jefferson had drawn almost as largely from the South as from the North, and at the outbreak of the war more than half of the students left college, some to enroll themselves under the flag of the Union and some to fight under the Stars and Bars. During the war nearly every man in the chapter fought on one side or the other, Delta furnishing nine officers to the Northern forces and eleven to the Confederacy.

In 1865 Jefferson College was united with Washington College at Washington, Pa., only seven miles away, and the two colleges then took the name of "Washington and Jefferson," the principal seat of the college being at Washington. For several years after the consolidation, however, the buildings at both Canonsburg and Washington continued to be used. Accordingly the chapter initiated men from both institutions and maintained in reality a double organization.

Delta recuperated quicker from the effects of the war than did the other fraternities, and as faculty recognition had been secured, it at once took front rank in the fraternity world. Since that time five other fraternities have established chapters at Old Washington and Jefferson, but the men of Delta still hold the place that is theirs by right of inheritance and present worth, the foremost representative of the local Greek Letter World.

The World War almost wiped Delta out of existence for out of an active membership of twenty-three at the entrance of the United States in the Great War but three were left to pull old Delta through. But being true Phi Kaps they did pull her through and now with many old men coming back and fine prospects in pledges Delta is prepared to take her old stand at the head of fraternities at Washington and Jefferson. A plan is under way whereby with the loyal cooperation of her alumni Delta will own her own chapter house soon and with her increased membership be stronger than ever.

History of Epsilon Chapter

On the 9th of November, 1854, a charter authorizing the establishment of the Epsilon Chapter of the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity was granted to Emanuel H. Reigart, who together with John S. Tucker, Charles F. Himes and James D. Watters founded the chapter soon after the granting of the charter. Reigart had been previously initiated at his home, Williamsport, Pa., on September 5, by William L. Neff of Gamma Chapter.

No exact records seem to have been kept of the Fraternity's existence during its first two or three years, since its life was a very precarious one and it had no regular meeting place. Its early history was similar to that of all the earlier fraternities at Dickinson College and perhaps most other colleges where they were introduced fifty or sixty years ago. A few years previous to the entrance of the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity into Dickinson College the Zeta Psi Fraternity established a chapter there and for more than two years it had a vigorous existence, numbering at one time thirty-two members, some of them the leading men of the college; but so great was the hostility of the faculty to all organizations of this kind that they succeeded in so effectually squelching this one that it was never revived and Epsilon Chapter came near having the same experience. Notwithstanding the efforts of the members to maintain secrecy concerning the organization, the existence of the Fraternity was discovered by the faculty of the college and all of its members, under penalty of expulsion, were ordered to disband the chapter and cease all further activity in this direction. Foresceing that something of this kind was likely to happen, they initiated Clayton C. Pennel who had not been before the faculty and therefore had not made any promise such as was exacted of the others, and he kept the organization alive until the storm had blown over. How well these promises were kept by the others is a matter of conjecture, since they probably made them with certain "mental reservations," a proceeding that is not unknown among college students even in this "enlightened age."

It is a matter of record that the chapter held a meeting on the 21st of September, 1858, in a cornfield near Carlisle, since even then it was not deemed advisable to have any regular place of meeting. This meeting, however, did not pass off undisturbed, for hearing some noise in the vicinity they feared discovery and unceremoniously scattered in all directions, not, however, before they had initiated Zebulon Dyer of the Class of 1859. Brother Dyer has the distinction of being the first graduate member of the chapter to die, being killed in battle in December, 1861. At this same meeting it was agreed to disband after adjournment, subject to the call of the Alpha, so that if any of the members should be questioned they might say that they had belonged to a fraternity but that it was now disbanded. In November of this year a hall was procured for the meetings of the chapter and it is not likely that since that time the Fraternity has ever been without a "local habitation," certainly not for any considerable length of time.

About this time the Fraternity seems to have been in a very flourishing condition, since among its members were ten members of the Class of 1857, eleven of 1858 and nine of 1859. Of these thirty men, eight still survive. It is perhaps worthy of mention that at this time the Fraternity's only rival was the Phi Kappa Psi, established here in 1859, and this rivalry, not to say enmity, has been kept up as a sort of tradition to the present day. One man who was initiated in 1859 had a distinction probably unique in the history of fraternities here, in as much as he belonged to both of these fraternities at the same time. When this fact was discovered he was promptly expelled from the Phi Kappa Sigma.

Since a large number of the members of Epilson were Southerners, the chapter was almost broken up by the Civil War. A special meeting of the chapter was held on the 21st of April, 1861, for the purpose of bidding a formal farewell to the brethren from the South who felt compelled to withdraw from the college.

On the morning of the 21st, at ten minutes past midnight, the members gathered in Room 50, West College, and held a sort of love feast and experience meeting. All business was laid aside for the brethren to bid their last adieu to each other, perhaps never to meet again. The occasion was a most solemn one and sad thoughts filled the breasts of all at parting with each other who were so strongly bound together by fraternal ties. The Alpha addressed the meeting in a most solemn and impressive manner, and many an eye filled with tears at the thought of parting. The meeting adjourned in silence and each went to his own room. Afterward some enlisted in the Northern and some in the Confederate service, and never met again.

From this time forward the history of the Fraternity shows nothing remarkable. That the faculty of the college now began to look upon the evil as ineradicable seems probable from the fact that at least as early as 1863 the Fraternity publicly celebrated its "anniversary," which would not have been risked a few years earlier. About 1865 the Fraternity was again exceptionally strong. There were five men from the Class of 1864, five from 1865 and seven from 1866. These figures will seem all the more remarkable when the additional fact is mentioned that the Class of 1866 graduated only sixteen men. At this time, too, there were three other fraternities in the college, the Sigma Chi having entered in 1859 and the Theta Delta Chi in 1861.

About 1873 the college began to decline in numbers so that the catalogue of 1877-78 contains only fifty-one names and in the meantime another fraternity, the Beta Theta Pi, had entered the field. Under these circumstances it became so difficult to keep up the chapter in accordance with its traditions that it was thought best to surrender the charter, which was accordingly done in 1877. Apparently no attempt was made to revive it until the spring of 1895. A few years previous to this time, a strong local fraternity, known as the Alpha Zeta Phi, had been organized in the college and when it became known that this organization was looking around for an opportunity to enter some national fraternity, the "psychological moment" seemed to have arrived and negotiations were at once begun which terminated in the re-establishment of the Fraternity by taking in all of the members of the local organization except perhaps one or two who did not care to belong to any fraternity. On the evening of June 3, 1895, were initiated about fifteen splendid fellows and the Fraternity has maintained a high rank ever since and is now second to no other in the college either in numbers or influence, "our enemies themselves being judges."

The only other event that needs special attention is the erection of a chapter house. The movement for the erection of fraternity houses had become so powerful that it was felt that our Fraternity could not afford to hold aloof and in the fall of 1906 the beautiful and commodious house of the Epsilon Chapter was formally opened.

In more recent years classes have come and gone as of old. But the traditions of Phi Kappa Sigma have been maintained, and many are the illustrious names that have been added to our roll.

When the test of the Great War came, the sons of Epsilon played their part valiantly and sixty-five of them wore the khaki. Four of our number, Brothers John Zug Steese, '04, Earl E. Rahn, '12, John T. Richards, '18, and Kenneth L. Steck, '19, made the supreme sacrifice. All of the sixty-five served with distinction in the great struggle, and one, Colonel James G. Steese, '02, of the General Staff, was especially honored by being awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. Epsilon is proud of her veterans and will ever honor the memories of those who sleep across the seas.

With the signing of the armistice, the undergraduates who had been in the service rapidly returned, and in the year 1918 by action of the Executive Board Epsilon was placed at the head of the chapter roll. She is still advancing and has every reason to look forward to a future as brilliant as her past.

History of Zeta Chapter

Zeta Chapter was organized by William Lewis Neff, of the Gamma Chapter, while a student at law in the office of Colonel Reah Frazer at Lancaster. By a previous arrangement, Van Lear Perry, who had been at Lafayette College with Neff, met him there and entered Franklin and Marshall College, and they jointly instituted the chapter on the 13th of October, 1854, a charter having been previously granted by the Alpha Chapter.

Although the majority of the first initiates died in the prime of their manhood, their lives bear the mark of distinguished service, not only within the narrow confines of their particular homes, but service to the country at large. Their ardent devotion to life and learning, to duty and country, their manly virtues and unflinching courage remind us of our solemn pledge to the high and lofty ideals which these founders baptized with their life's blood for our guidance and imitation.

For fully twenty years Zeta Chapter enjoyed a prosperous and uninterrupted career. Although the college fraternity as such was in those days ingrata persona with the faculties everywhere, and Zeta Chapter was no exception to the rule, but very little friction is reported in the minutes between the members and the higher powers. It is but natural that a secret organization of young men, by common consent, subject to stringent rules and regulations, should arouse the suspicion and criticism of many an honest and well meaning college professor. Those were the years of the first storm and stress of fraternity life, and many a chapter perished in the struggle. Those were the years in which the American college boy awakened to a sense of his own individual co-operation in his educational career; they mark an epoch in the history of our whole educational system. Crude, infantile and infrequent as the chapter meetings were in those years, primitive and unofficial as their meeting places seem to have been, there is no indication of lack of interest and enthusiasm. And when we read in the minutes of an October session of 1869 that the faculty had increased its rigid surveillance over the fraternities, we find this followed by the resolution henceforth to hold fewer business meetings and more social gatherings to make the secrecy appear less conspicuous. Poverty was the lot of the men of that time, and the chapter had hardly ventured upon the renting of a hall. During the war year of 1864 its chairs were confiscated and the carpet was sold for the payment of the rent, and the meeting had again to be held in some young lawyer's lonely office or perchance in the cellar of the Literary Society halls. But not daunted in the least, the boys went on somewhat in Plato's fashion to cultivate "eros" and "Dialegethai" friendship and thirst for knowledge, and to hold anniversaries with great pomp, graced by the usual poem, the valedictory and the response.

The interregnum of 1873-74, of which no minutes are extant, was followed by a second period of twenty years, with intervals between 1885 and 1887, 1891 and 1895. This is the period of the rise of the American university, with its accompanying disturbances of college life and college learning. The old primitive conditions of fraternity methods and meetings had been outgrown, students became more choice in dress and manners and in the selection of men on the basis of new judgments; the meetings were suspended for months and years, because of the lack of men, but the spirit lingered on. Brothers Hager and Keller with singular loyalty satisfied the requirements of the charter, until a better day dawned, and the opportunity of a more vigorous life had arrived. During the larger portion of this second period the chapter succeeded in renting and paying for a hall, in which they regularly met once a week, while in the first period meetings took place at long intervals of a month — rarely every two weeks. This period is, therefore, the period of closer fellowship, of solidification, of effort towards permanency on the basis of real estate. It was also the period when the relation between faculty and fraternity grew more friendly, when the authorities began to see the educational value of fraternal life, and in the new universities fraternities spring up like mushrooms. It is, however, not until 1896, the beginning of the “modern period,” that the chapter becomes fully and permanently established as a prominent factor in the college community. The names of the sainted Glase Gerhard, of Pilgram and Dieffenbach are pre-eminent in those days of reconstruction. We read in a minute of September 30, 1896: “A house was rented on West James Street, in close proximity to the college. Already fraternity life has advanced tenfold. All the boys voice the one sentiment that it is the only ideal college life. This evening was a notable one for Zeta Chapter.” For the last twenty-four years the number of active members has been greater than ever before, the Fraternity has become a disciplinary power in the college, it has become a great benevolent institution. In 1886 the chapter contributed one hundred dollars towards the observatory; in 1900 the same amount to the Science building, while individual members gave many thousands towards the building and its equipment, furnishing a professor’s room. The Fraternity revived and intensified the alumni’s interest for the college.

Except for the dislocation caused by the Great War, the continuing record of the chapter has been uneventful until recently. As nearly as can be ascertained, Zeta furnished sixty men for the army, navy and aviation corps of the United States during the war. Most of these saw service in the American Expeditionary Force, Major Frederick A. Rupp, of the Medical Corps being doubtless of the earliest class, 1897, to enter the service. Lieut. Henry C. Welker, 1902, who died at the Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C., having been invalided home from France, was the only one of the chapter to lose his life in defense of democracy. After the establishment of the Students Army Training Corps, the active members lived in the barracks with the rest of the students, and the house was practically disused from September, 1918, to January, 1919. It was a difficult period for the chapter, but it was decided to keep up the chapter house as long as possible. A portion of the interest of the Zeta Chapter House Fund was of great help at this time, in tiding over the financial difficulty. The fifteen members in the S. A. T. C. kept the spirit alive, and even initiated new men. At last, in September, 1919, the long-awaited consummation was accomplished of securing as its own the house which had been rented by the chapter for eight years. The alumni and officers of the House Fund agreed to purchase the house at 558 West James Street for $7,500.00, and paid about $1,000.00 for improvements. A mortgage was executed for a portion of the purchase price. Zeta now rejoices in the possession of its own house, after nearly twenty-five years of endeavor; and it was fortunate that the house was taken, as the chapter would otherwise have been homeless, since another college organization was about to buy it. So Zeta can welcome to its house as well as to its heart every Phi Kapp who may visit Lancaster.

Eta Chapter

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA.

INSTITUTED DECEMBER 31, A. D. 1854

TAYLOR BEATTIE

History of Eta Chapter

Eta Chapter was organized through the efforts of Robert H. Stirling, of the Beta Chapter at Princeton, who entered the University of Virginia, with authority to constitute a chapter. He, with Taylor Beattie, organized the chapter December 31, 1854. Phi Kappa Sigma was the first college fraternity to enter the university, then the most influential in the South. The chapter was well established and has maintained a leading position ever since its institution. The original charter, though yellow with age, is still well preserved among the archives.

During the years 1854-61 the university was very prosperous and each year brought an increase in the number of students, and the chapter prospered with the university. The records for the first three years are not in existence, and the places where the early meetings were held are unknown. It is supposed they were held in the rooms of the members.

In 1855 the membership increased to such an extent that a committee was appointed to procure a meeting place and to draft a set of by-laws; the latter provided for entertainment of a literary character, debates and original essays. Fines were imposed for neglect of duty. The members seemed to have taken a great interest in their literary efforts, as the reading of the essays occupied over an hour, and there were very few excuses or fines.

The hall had not as yet been secured, and the meetings were first held in Brother Beattie's rooms, which was No. 1 Blue Cottage, and just across from the university.

In November, 1856; the efforts to secure a permanent meeting place were successful and a room was obtained in the Monticello House in Charlottesville, about a mile from the university. The chapter now prospered more than ever before, and by December they were compelled to procure two rooms and have them made into one large apartment in order to accommodate their members. From 1857 the records were kept in a large journal, which is still in possession of the chapter. In 1858 new quarters were procured. This hall was on a cross street about one hundred yards from the Charlottesville post office. It was neatly and comfortably fitted up. The meetings were held weekly and generally lasted about four hours. Five or six associates from Delta, Epsilon, Kappa, Lambda and Mu chapters affiliated with the Eta, and in the following year several additions were made to the roll.

The approach of the Civil War disintegrated the chapter entirely, and the members entered the army, many of whom became prominent in that memorable struggle. Many brethren met face to face on the field of battle, Union and Confederate, but loyalty to Phi Kappa Sigma never faltered, as the following incident, one of many, indicates: Brother King, of Eta, wrote that he was made a prisoner in September of 1864 and met a brother Phi Kap (Dr. William F. Goodwin, of Epsilon, then a surgeon in the Union Army), who was as kind as he could be in relieving his wants and in making him comfortable. He wrote. "I have never lost sight for a moment the principles of our old Fraternity, and though I was a rebel in the fullest acceptation of that term, I have never been any the less a Phi Kap." It was not until the autumn of 1872, through the untiring efforts of Brother Leroy S. Edwards, that on Thursday, the 26th day of September, the chapter was reorganized. In June, 1866, Brother Edwards had been informed by a member of another fraternity that an unsuccessful effort had been made by one or two Phi Kaps who had returned to the university, after four years' service in the Confederate Army, to revive Eta, and further that a number of the best men then at the university had joined in this move. However, nothing came of it, and in 1870 Brother Edwards met Brother Woolsey Johnson, of Beta, in New York. They had not met each other since 1860, but this lapse of time had not lessened their interest in Phi Kappa Sigma. Brother Johnson urged the reorganization of Eta, and soon after Brother Ferriere, then Grand Alpha, wrote to inquire if Eta could be revived. The opportunity offered and by authority of the Grand Chapter, Brother Edwards initiated in Richmond, D'Arcy Paul Morton, then a student at the university, and on his return to Charlottesville he, assisted by Brothers Jacob Michaux, of Powhatan County, Va., and Benjamin Whiteley, Jr., of Baltimore, soon placed Eta upon a firm foundation. The fortunes of the Fraternity could not have been placed in the keeping of worthier men. For a number of years the members held their meetings in a building outside the college grounds and later the chapter moved to a cottage in the immediate vicinity of the lawn of the university campus.

In 1908 a gradual expansion forced the chapter to seek more commodious quarters, and it rented a brick house on Dawson's Row where it remained until 1911, when its present home was occupied. The Eta chapter house is the first fruit of the national Endorsement Fund, and represents contributions from all chapters of the Fraternity, those from the old Dominion predominating in their subscriptions. The house is most commodious, thoroughly equipped and in architectural harmony with the colonial buildings of the University.

Old Eta has produced many distinguished alumni, among them a United States Senator from Louisiana, a Brigadier-General of the United States Army, a United States Judge in Alabama, a Chief Justice of California, a Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, a Solicitor General of the United States, jurists of various state courts, and many others well known in the different professions. With a home the best at the university, her future is bright with promise of renewed prosperity.

History of Theta Chapter

This chapter was founded the 1st of June, 1855, through the instrumentality of Charles W. Ross, of the Beta Chapter. At the time the charter for Centenary College was granted an epidemic of yellow fever was raging in Jackson, La., where the college was located, which caused a general dispersion of the students and prevented a complete organization of the chapter. But through the nursing care of Johnson F. McKneely, of the Eta, it soon became prosperous. In December, 1856, there were eighteen members. Their place of meeting was reported to be most suitable and secret. They subsequently had a fine hall, for which they paid $30.00 rent each session of the college year. Their badges were made in New Orleans and had silver skulls. In 1858 they had no hall. During this year several of the members who left college and resided in East Baton Rouge Parish, La., made an effort to form what they called a "Vagabond" chapter. They sent forward a petition to the Alpha Chapter for a charter, setting forth in glowing terms the prospects of forming such an organization, but the permission was not granted.

The advent of several new fraternities, about this time, seriously affected the prosperity of the chapter, and this, coupled with an outbreak of smallpox in December of 1860, caused a stampede among the students, which almost annihilated the chapter. The faculty had to suspend college exercises before the termination of the session. Upon the resumption of duties in the autumn, only three members comprised the chapter.

In 1860 they held meetings every two weeks on Friday and had two essays and an oration delivered by members elected for that purpose. They had their hall in a two-story brick house over the Roman Catholic Church.

The chapter upon the approach of the war became disintegrated and adopted resolutions to the effect that "this Fraternity shall be one of white men and white men only," and sent them to the convention with the threat, that if they did not pass, the Theta would secede.

It was from this chapter, through the efforts of Brother James W. Barrow, that the Phi Kappa Sigma College was brought into existence. In 1859 Brother Barrow moved to Monticello, Ark., and agitated the idea of founding a school at that place. He first obtained a charter from the State Legislature, and the act of incorporation was passed at the Twelfth Session of the General Assembly at Little Rock, entitled: "An Act to incorporate the Phi Kappa Sigma Male College." This act was approved February 21, 1859. (See page 249, Act No. 194. Acts passed at the Twelfth Session of the General Assembly of the State of Arkansas, Little Rock, Ark.) The "college" was a two-story frame building, with the characters Φ κ Σ inscribed on the walls, and was designed to accommodate two hundred students. It was the first institution in the State of Arkansas to offer collegiate education. While the charter describes the incorporators as "fratres of the Phi Kappa Sigma College" none of them was a member of the Fraternity. Brother Barrow was not an incorporator, although the moving spirit in the foundation of the institution and its only president. After being in operation about two years, the building was used by the Confederate government as a storehouse for supplies, and was destroyed by fire during the raid of the Federal troops through that section in 1864.

History of Iota Chapter

In 1853 several students at Columbia College (now University) feeling that there were no fraternities in the college that they would willingly join, concluded to form a local society of their own on a more select principle. There were many resident members of the Alpha Delta Phi in New York, who urged them to apply for a charter from their society. They did so, and nearly two years having elapsed before any action was taken in the matter, they became disgusted at the delay, and just as an offer of initiation was proffered by that fraternity, they became acquainted with Dr. S. B. Wylie Mitchell, the founder of Phi Kappa Sigma, and, already knowing several members of the Alpha Chapter, they resolved to become Phi Kaps. On the 10th of November, 1855, the Iota Chapter was instituted by Dr. Mitchell and Joseph Kay Caldwell, of the Alpha Chapter, in the fifth story of the New York Hotel.

The lodge rooms were subsequently located in Room No. 20, 483 Broadway, and were large, commodious and handsomely furnished. Most of the fraternities at Columbia had their rooms on this street, and while an attempt was made to keep the locality secret, it soon became known to the lady friends of the members, who took a great interest in the chapter and presented to it several fine oil paintings.

In October, 1857, they held meetings in Florence's Hotel, but subsequently moved to new rooms, and ones that gave general satisfaction, in the third story of No. 763 Broadway, which were said to be worthy of the increasing dignity of the Iota Chapter. In April of the following year these quarters were given up for the reason that they were not permitted to sing their songs as enthusiastically as they wished and were frequently desired to restrain their applause. This they could not do and outlined plans to occupy rooms on Madison Square on the corner of Broadway and Twenty-third Street. This plan fell through and the chapter became domiciled in a small but extremely cosy and convenient apartment at No. 54 Twelfth Stret, two doors from Broadway, third story left hand door at the head of the stairs. The directions for the approach to those rooms to members, other than those belonging to the Iota Chapter, were very explicit, owing to the fact that the Delta Phis had their rooms just overhead, though they entered their room from Broadway and by a separate staircase.

The chapter always celebrated the 19th of October, the anniversary of the founding of the Fraternity, with becoming dignity. Speeches were made, songs were sung, and toasts drunk to "Our Fraternity" and "The Day We Celebrate." In 1859 the chapter adopted a regalia which was reported to be very simple, "merely a royal purple velvet ribbon."

A Bible presented to the chapter did duty as a support to the Skull, being always opened at the 133d Psalm, which begins, "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

In March, 1860, a fire broke out in the building occupied by the chapter in the room adjoining the lodge. The brethren stood ready to take out the big box of archives with the other "Lares and Penates." The Delta Phis came pelting down the stairs with their big box full of "mysteries," over which they posted a strong guard. The fire was soon put out, with a trifling damage.

In May, 1860, the chapter moved to the top story, Room 26, southwest corner Broadway and Twenty-first street, where they remained until 1866. The chapter was exceedingly prosperous and the membership in the different fraternities in Columbia College stood in January, 1862, as follows: Delta Phi, 13; Delta Psi, 8; Psi Epsilon, 10; Phi Kappa Sigma, 17. The contest between the several fraternities in 1863 for commencement honors was very keen. The oration on the occasion was delivered by a Phi Kap with great success "amid thunders of applause and showers of roses."

In May, 1863, the chapter again moved their quarters to new rooms on the south corner of Washington Place and Broadway, and the situation was the best they could wish for.

In 1864 a "Gazette" was published, Addison W. Champney being its editor. The hall of the chapter in December, 1865, was in Room 26, northwest corner of Broadway and Twenty-first street. During the years 1868 and 1869, the chapter dwindled in membership, and initiated only one man in the Class of 1870. The chapter no longer occupied rooms, held no meetings, and came to an inglorious end by the graduation of its members.

The chapter was re-established in 1905 through the efforts of Brothers Waldemar Eric Metzenthin, of Zeta, and Charles D. Tomkies, of Mu (who were at that time graduate students at Columbia), with the very able assistance of the New York Alumni Chapter, of which Brother William McClure, Epsilon, '66, was then president. The charter members were initiated at a meeting held at the Hotel Marie Antoinette on April 9, 1905. The ceremony was conducted by Brother Stevenson H. Walsh, Past Grand Alpha, assisted by the Grand Beta, Brother John P. Baer. Large delegations from the New York Alumni Chapter, and from Philadelphia and Baltimore attended, and it will probably be conceded that the meeting lacked nothing of the hilarity of the ancient chapter.

Re-established Iota's existence has been reasonably prosperous from the beginning. Meetings were held at the rooms of various members until September, 1905, when the chapter rented the five-story house, 544 West One Hundred and Thirteenth Street.

It was not long before the Chapter found that rented quarters were not so desirable as quarters owned in fee. Thereupon a committee of which Oscar R. Houston, Iota, '04, was Chairman and Carl Amend, Iota, '08, was Secretary, investigated the situation. It was found that the plans for the development of the Columbia University campus provided for the erection of buildings on the south side of South Field in such a manner that there would be an open space between affording a clear vista from the center of the block on One Hundred and fourteenth Street between Amsterdam Avenue and Broadway through to the imposing library donated by Seth Low and the statue of Alma Mater. Negotiations were then commenced which terminated in the purchase by the New York Chapter House Committee of the present Chapter House at No. 536 West 114th Street for $33,000., of which $28,000. remained on mortgage.

The Chapter was handicapped seriously by the lack of a strong alumni membership caused by the non-existence of the Chapter for some thirty years prior to 1905 and it had to compete with many fraternities, which, though younger in point of years, had existed continuously and thus had strong graduate bodies. Handicaps, however, never daunted the Iota spirit. The Chapter was strongly represented on the campus in athletics and in literary and musical activities. Detailed reference to such would be out of place but those Brothers who follow the News Letters will be familiar with the important part the men of Iota Chapter have played in the student life at Columbia. Financially, though it seemed always to be in difficulty, the Chapter nevertheless paid its bills; carrying charges on the house were paid when due until the United States took part in the World War in 1917.

When a state of war was declared to exist, the men of Iota Chapter, every last one of them, responded to a call superior to that of fraternity, and offered themselves in various capacities to their Country. Many of the Brothers served on the field of battle. Some served in various branches of the Navy and a few were kept on this side of the Atlantic, but all served and gave their best. It is with heartfelt sorrow that we here record the loss of our Brother, Lieutenant Chester B. Winans, Iota, '17, killed while raiding a Boche machine gun nest.

During the trying times following our entry into the War, a few of the Alumni for a while maintained the house, but soon these too responded to the call to arms and the house was left vacant save for the presence of a few outsiders who boarded there. Naturally the Chapter fell into arrears in its rent to the New York Chapter House Committee and the latter in turn was compelled to default on its interest and tax payments. Several other fraternities were confronted with similar difficulties and some of them closed their doors. Iota held on in the hope that it would be able to pull through, but finally the holder of the mortgage, a trustee representing several charitable institutions, was compelled to foreclose and the house was decreed to be sold.

When it was seen that it was no longer possible for the New York Chapter House Committee to retain title to the property, a committee was formed consisting of Brothers Joseph Stier, Gamma, '80, George W. Tucker, Iota, '05, Ellsworth H. Mish, Epsilon, '09, Charles A. J. Gachot, Jr., Iota, '16, Walter P. Pfeiffer, Iota, '16, and Welles L. Allen, Iota, '10. This committee with the loyal cooperation of the New York Alumni Chapter and of numerous alumni of other chapters as well as those of Iota, secured subscriptions to the extent of nearly $10,000., against which were issued certificates of pro rata ownership in the equity of the house which was to be purchased at the foreclosure sale by a new corporation known as the 536 West 114th Street Corporation. The house was repurchased at the sale for $26,750, and a plan for increasing the equity therein has been devised which insures to the Fraternity at large the permanence of a chapter house in the world's largest city.

During the early morning of November 20, 1919, the house was badly damaged in the living room, dining room and hall on the first floor by a fire of unknown origin. Exit from the house by the stairs and front door was cut off by the flames and the brothers were compelled to make good their escape by means of the roof. The prompt arrival of the fire department, summoned by one of the brothers, who ran to the fire house in his pajamas, saved the house from becoming a total loss. The lower floor which had just recently been renovated was badly damaged and some of the floor timbers had to be replaced. The insurance, however, was sufficient to offset the damage, and since the repairs the house is in fine condition.

History of Kappa Chapter

Kappa Chapter was founded on July 1, 1856. Emory and Henry College, situated in Southwestern Virginia, gave promise at that time of becoming one of the leading institutions of the South. From its location it drew students both from the Atlantic States and from those west of the Alleghenies. Frank S. Findlay, of the Epsilon Chapter, visited the college, and it was through his efforts that the Epsilon Chapter was authorized to form the new chapter. Accordingly, the Alpha of that chapter initiated by letter George V. Litchfield, who, on the above date, signed and returned the obligation. He then associated with himself the others who became the chapter founders, and who were initiated in the latter part of November. Brother Litchfield subsequently became president of the Virginia and Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, and one of the foremost men of the South.

Writing in 1910, Judge Patrick Rose Taliaferro, of Georgia, one of the founders, said of the chapter:

“The rules adopted for membership were very exclusive, which rendered the order quite unpopular with the student body as well as with some of the professors. Family connection and good character were closely scrutinized and, under severe tests, many were ineligible; still there were many who never made application, being unfriendly to a secret order. We were constantly under surveillance by the faculty and were only permitted to live as a matter of grace.”

As the chapter existence was necessarily sub rosa, its correspondence with the other chapters was carried on by the device of having its mail addressed to Samuel Snooks, Esq., a supposititious person, at Glade Springs, Va., the next station to Emory. As the postmaster at Glade Springs was a Phi Kap, the plan was easily carried out.

Under the conditions described by Judge Taliaferro the chapter lived until 1861, when, in common with all the Southern chapters, it disappeared in the vortex of Civil War. Practically all of its members saw service in the army and nearly all of these were commissioned officers. The great majority were on the Southern side, but one of the chapter, James P. Brownlow, a member of the well-known Unionist family of Eastern Tennessee, became Colonel of the First Tennessee Cavalry, U. S. Volunteers, and subsequently Brigadier-General, U. S. Volunteers.

The termination of the war found the chapter extinct and the college in straitened circumstances, so that a revival of the chapter was not attempted. The surviving members, however, continued their loyalty to the Fraternity and exchanged numerous letters. Their stationery and cards contained a cut of the badge, and it so happened in reconstruction days that several of such letters and cards, falling into the hands of reconstruction officials, were the cause of the arrest of the writers and recipients as alleged members of the Ku Klux Klan. It was not until the matter was brought to the attention of more intelligent officers that the matter was satisfactorily adjusted.

History of Kappa Chapter

The Kappa Chapter, Lake Forest College, saw its inception and brief history during the year 1893.

Its short life permits little chronicling beyond sketching the fact of its birth and the cause of its early demise.

During the early spring of 1893, following preliminary negotiations, six Lake Forest men were initiated into the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity by the Upsilon Chapter, and became the charter members of Kappa, the charter being issued shortly afterward. The initiation was held in the rooms of the Northwestern chapter at Evanston. Regular meetings were held and an already existing close fellowship among the chapter's members was strengthened in unity of interest and action. Several joint meetings were held with the Northwestern chapter, and at least one alumni dinner was attended in Chicago during the short time the chapter existed.

Four men were graduated with the Class of '93 and others left college on account of the prevailing financial conditions; the decreased attendance of students occasioned by the panic caused the few members who remained to conclude that it was inopportune to undertake the upbuilding of the Fraternity in Lake Forest at that time, and the charter was surrendered.

The men who formed the Kappa Chapter were the most representative and progressive students in Lake Forest at that time and were the dominant factor in all the college activities. They have taken honorable and successful positions in their several fields since graduation, and while their life as a chapter was so brief as to preclude marked affiliation with the great body of the Fraternity, they have always cherished the benefits of its fellowship and held its teachings in high esteem.

No lack of loyalty, but rather the adversity of disjointed times, caused the early passing into history of an enthusiastic and promising chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma.

History of Lambda Chapter

The Lambda Chapter was instituted in the University of North Carolina on the 12th of November, A. D. 1856. Owing to the loss of the records incident to the Civil War, it is not known what circumstances led to the creation of the chapter, other than that application had been made on November 4, 1856, to the Beta Chapter. The founders were Louis Meredith Jiggitts, Jr., Eustace Hunt, Nicholas Biddle Shannon, Augustine Burket Washington, David Short Goodloe, Edward Turner Sykes. Of these Hunt was endeared to all by his kind, generous disposition and moral usefulness. Jiggitts, like Goodloe, lost an arm in the Civil War, and both died early from their wounds. Shannon, a giant in intellect, as well as stature, died soon after graduation. Washington was killed at the battle of Missionary Ridge. Sykes, a brilliant, successful lawyer, surviving the vicissitudes of war, full of honors, alone remains, a fine sample of the founders of the old Lambda, those skilful architects who "buildded better than they knew." He was a lifelong law partner with the lamented Humphries and instrumental in founding the Xi Chapter. Humphries and Goodloe founded the Nu Chapter at Lebanon, Tenn. It is impossible to describe how the little Spartan band that first unfurled Lamba's banner at the University of North Carolina in its golden age defended with heroic courage the noble cause of Phi Kappa Sigma during her fierce struggle for existence there. With seven fraternities established at the university before the Lambda was organized, the young chapter encountered much opposition, and being very exclusive in selection, her numbers were never large. When there were over four hundred and fifty students on the college rolls it never numbered over twenty-five. The men were always high-toned gentlemen and took high rank in the university. Thus the chapter was uniformly prosperous until the advent of the Civil War, when practically every student went into the army, and with the graduating class of sixty-one Lambda's chapter organization was broken up and her star that rose at first, "obscurely bright, set * * * one unclouded blaze of living light!"

The chapter was reinstated on April 26, 1877. To Joseph Clay Powell the Fraternity is indebted for the revival. Although the chapter was revived sub rosa, it was done under most auspicious circumstances, as there were no other fraternities there. It had the selection of the most desirable material from the whole student body as her own, as the subsequent history of the membership in the varied walks of life well shows. Thus for several years the chapter was very prosperous. Then untoward conditions forced the necessity of applying for recognition from the trustees of the university; the ban against fraternities was then removed; others rushed in, with consequent strong rivalry in opposition. Lambda, however, always maintained the personnel of her membership on a high plane to the end. Nevertheless, the presence of so many other fraternities, combined with a decrease in the number of eligible men at the university in the early nineties, and the unfortunate failure of most of the chapter to return to college, reduced the active membership to a few men for several years. To these troubles was added a rule preventing men joining a fraternity until the middle of Sophomore year. Finally but one man remained in college, and the unequal struggle terminated in the regrettable loss of the chapter.

In the "History of the University of North Carolina," Vol. 2, page 781, by Kemp P. Battle, A.M., LL.D., it is stated:

"The Lambda Chapter was flourishing from 1856 to 1862. It had a very honorable career. In the Confederate service it had two Colonels, two Majors, twelve Captains, three Surgeons, eight Lieutenants, two Sergeants, and ten Privates. Of its members nine were killed in battle. Four others died in service. One was a member of Congress, three were State Senators, three Judges of the Federal or State Superior Courts, one was a Probate Judge, and two were Professors of colleges.

After the reopening in 1875, this Fraternity was the first to be reinstated, but the local Chapter has not been in existence now for many years. Its members of the seventies and eighties were, most of them, leaders then and are leaders now."

Lambda has the distinction of having the first chapter house in the Fraternity, it being a small wooden building erected in 1887 and used by the chapter until its disintegration, when the property reverted to the university.

Among Lambda's alumni are men prominent in all phases of activity. She has given to the country many soldiers, lawyers, physicians and educators, among them the President of the University of Virginia, the Protestant Episcopal Bishop of East Carolina, a Judge of the United States Court in California, a Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, and of the Superior Court of Washington.

NOTE.—The name of the University of Louisiana, at which Mu Chapter was founded in 1858, was changed to Tulane University of Louisiana in 1884.

History of Mu Chapter

Through the combined efforts of our late Brothers Anthony Sambola and Peter C. James, of Theta, and William S. Vaughan and Johnson F. McNeely, Mu Chapter was established at the old University of Louisiana (now Tulane University) on January 14, 1858, and the initiations were held in the office of W. S. Vaughan on the evening of the same day the charter was received. Six members were initiated.

During the life of this original chapter twenty-six men were initiated and twelve others affiliated. The chapter held weekly meetings and had many interesting features. Most of the old records are in the possession of the present chapter and furnish an interesting history of fraternal interest over sixty years back. The regular order of business included the reading of essays, poems, addresses, debates and contributions to an oracle. The oracle was a tin box in which anonymous literature was deposited at any time and was consulted at meetings. So many contributions were received that they had to be classified before the meetings. One member contributed his "monthly wit," another his "weekly oracle by George Dime-worth," and others contributed by the "Quarterly Poet" appeared.

It is to be remembered that the above all happened between the years 1858 and 1860. The Civil War came and on December 14, 1860, a resolution was adopted to appoint a committee to frame an address to the chapters concerning the course to be pursued in case of a dissolution of the Union and to send a copy to each chapter and several copies to the convention then about to be held in New York City. The war put an end to the activities of the Southern chapters, and Mu shared the fate with the others.

The university buildings were seized upon by the United States troops and converted into a school and all the furniture, ornaments and most of the papers and records of the chapter were plundered and confiscated. Fortunately, just when the city was captured, the tin box containing a few valuable papers was rescued and placed in the house of A. J. Lewis for safe keeping.

Today there remains out of the thirty men who guided the destinies of early Mu but one survivor, Brother Alfred Joshua Lewis, class of 1860.

On February 16, 1867, an informal meeting (records show five members present) was held in an effort to reorganize Mu Chapter, but it was not until November 23, 1893, that a reorganization of the chapter was effected, and this was brought about through the efforts of Anthony Sambola. The life of this chapter was short and few records of its work are on hand. Some fifteen men from the Law and Medical Departments of Tulane University were initiated during the two years during which it existed.

Fortunately, however, both during the period of inactivity from the Civil War to 1893 and following the disintegration of the second chapter, the charter was not withdrawn, but remaining outstanding in the custody of Brother Sambola. In 1900 he saw the opportunity of again raising the standard, and accordingly, on December 3, 1900, accomplished the revival by the initiation of Louis C. Datz, Philip W. Bohne, Frank E. Powell, Jr., and Marcel Garsaud, and thus Mu Chapter began her third and, it is to be believed, permanent career of activity.

In 1908 the semi-centennial of the chapter was celebrated. Let us hope that another fifty years will see a record without the interruptions which have characterized the first half century.

History of Nu Chapter

Nu Chapter was founded by William Washington Humphries, Jr., and David Short Goodloe, of the Lambda Chapter, on May 10, 1859. They wrote to the Alpha Chapter just after organization that their expenses procuring and furnishing a hall for the sum of $100 per annum, getting pins, etc., had fallen pretty heavily upon them.

The membership was confined almost exclusively to the students in the Law Department, owing to the fact that Humphries and Goodloe were law students. They, however, did take in some men from the College Department.

Their badges were of gold with white enameled letters. The chapter was short-lived, and in March, 1861, they were forced to suspend, so few students being in attendance upon college duties owing to the troublous times just setting in. "The whole South was in a perfect blaze," writes one of their members, and he says, "If ever I meet a Phi Kap on the field of battle, or anywhere else, I shall always extend to him the hand of a brother."

Efforts were made to revive the chapter in December, 1866, but they were futile. The charter and papers were lost during the war.

History of Xi Chapter

Xi, the last but one of the ante-bellum Southern chapters, was founded at the University of Mississippi by Edward Turner Sykes, of Lambda, who entered the Law Department of the University of Mississippi in the fall of 1858, and at once gathered together the nucleus of a proposed chapter, to whom a charter was granted in the following year, and the chapter instituted on December 2, 1859. The chapter had a commodious and suitable hall in the second story of a then new building in the town of Jackson, adjacent to the university, and was the only fraternity that had permanent quarters. The charter was framed and hung in the hall. Four fraternities were already there: Delta Kappa Epsilon, Delta Psi, Sigma Chi and Phi Kappa Psi. Despite this fact and also notwithstanding the customary faculty opposition of the time, men of high personnel were obtained for the chapter. Its active career, however, was short, on account of the war. Its delegates appeared at but one convention, that of 1860 in New York, and by 1862 its members had all left college. Of the sixteen men initiated at Xi all entered the Confederate service.

The campaigns of 1862 and 1863 raged throughout Mississippi, the university was closed and the archives of Xi were secreted for safety and later burned, so that nothing is known of its records. Later the turbulent political conditions in Mississippi during the years succeeding the war rendered it impossible to revive the chapter at that time, and no effort was made subsequently.

History of Omicron Chapter

This chapter was established by the Delta Chapter through their members, Joseph Venable Morton, Winchester Hall Stuart and William Francis Singleton, all of whom were residents of Kentucky. Brothers Stuart and George C. Thompson, also of Delta, presented the application November 8, 1859, from Centre College, Danville, Ky., for a charter, and the chapter was instituted in January, 1860. The charter and seal were sent them from Philadelphia, but were burned while lying in the express office in a general conflagration of the town.

The students composing the chapter were reported by one of the professors to be "the flower of the college."

This chapter had a short life, being disintegrated by the coming on of the war, and a letter written on the 19th of April, 1861, reports that they are "all leaving on account of the war."

During the war the college property was in the alternate possession of both armies, and after its close was the subject of dispute between the separated synods of the Presbyterian Church of Kentucky. At this time efforts were made by some of the former members to revive the chapter, but without any result.

History of Pi Chapter

In 1863 Henry Franklin King entered Dickinson College, where he joined Epsilon Chapter, following in the footsteps of his brother, General Horatio C. King, Epsilon, '58.

In 1864 he left Dickinson and entered Harvard, where he found fraternities under the ban of the college authorities. Nothing daunted, however, in 1865, with Henry Levan Bunstein, of Easton, Pa., and Samuel McKee, of Danville, Ky., who were respectively members of Gamma and Omicron chapters, he founded Pi Chapter, for what he hoped would be a long life, but congenial spirits were not many and the growth was slow. Nine members were admitted in 1865-66 and three having affiliated from the other chapters, as noted above, composed the chapter of twelve members. They held the usual meetings, but the ban was too much for them, and subsequent events recall only the returning of the charter, constitution and other records to the Grand Chapter soon after 1868.

History of Rho Chapter

This chapter was instituted in 1865, at Austin College, Huntsville, Texas, through the efforts of William F. Perrie, of Epsilon, who became a professor in the college at the close of the Civil War. It was thought that a new college in the new State of Texas would be little affected by the prostration generally existing in the South, and that the chapter would grow with the college. Accordingly it was founded with four initiates and the affiliation of John Nicholas Galleher from Eta Chapter. Scarcely had the chapter's existence begun when an epidemic of yellow fever swept over the college and caused its closing for an indefinite period. Despite its almost abortive career the few men initiated rose to positions of prominence, one of them, Charles F. Tucker, becoming one of the foremost jurists of the state. Brother Galleher entered the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church and became Bishop of Louisiana.

History of Rho Chapter

Rho Chapter was founded twenty-eight years ago at the University of Illinois.

John William Arnold, Jr., who was chiefly instrumental in the establishment of the chapter, was initiated into Phi Kappa Sigma at Upsilon. He came to the University of Illinois in his sophomore year with a keen appreciation of the fraternal comradeship to be enjoyed from membership in the fraternity, and undertook to organize and secure a charter for a chapter in his new alma mater. His efforts were crowned with success when on October 29, 1892, under charter from the Grand Chapter, Charles Sougthard Burdsall, Frederick Gage Brown, Frank Arthur Miller and Luther Edward Roby were initiated into Phi Kappa Sigma as the charter members of Rho Chapter. Upsilon Chapter sent a committee which assisted Brother Arnold in the initiation and organization of Rho.

The chapter began its existence at a difficult time. The absolute ban against Greek letter fraternities had been removed by the Board of Trustees of the University in 1901, but prejudice against and opposition to them still moved many of the faculty to discourage their growth. The university at that time had less than eight hundred students, of whom all the upper-classmen had entered college with a signed pledge to join no fraternities. Despite the fact that they had been released from that pledge, faculty opposition and the fact that their college career had run more than half its course rendered inadvisable any attempt to interest them in fraternity life. Therefore, of necessity, the charter members as well as the next year's initiates were under-classmen who lacked in a great measure the experience necessary to carry the chapter through the trying times to follow.

The panic of 1893, together with increased faculty opposition to fraternities, and the departure from school in the first year of its existence, of the majority of the members, all combined to crush for the time being the infant chapter. Three years later when the last of the early members left school, what is known as the "old chapter" went out of existence, and Rho temporarily became inactive.

In its brief span of life this chapter of the nineties enjoyed to its fullest extent the social life and fraternal friendship afforded in Phi Kappa Sigma. While the chapter was too small in membership to support a house, fraternity rooms were secured and furnished in the K. P. Building in Champaign. In this small circle of brothers was born a love, and loyalty for their chapter which has known no limit, for she today counts those brothers among her best loved and most loyal alumni.

Despite the fact that for a period of seven or eight years no member of Phi Kappa Sigma was in attendance at the University of Illinois, the charter was not withdrawn, thereby making the later re-organization of the chapter easier.

This re-organization of Rho was first conceived of by Brother Charles Ralph Rounds of Alpha Theta. Brother Rounds, as a member of the faculty in the Department of Oratory and Public Speaking, came to the University of Illinois in the fall of 1901, before he himself had become a member of the Fraternity. He had theretofore, however, attended the University of Wisconsin, where as the chief lieutenant of Brother Arthur R. Crathorne, he had assisted in the organization of a group that later received a charter as Alpha Theta Chapter, and his work there under the tutelage of Brother Crathorne aroused a deep enthusiasm for Phi Kappa Sigma which he carried with him to Illinois. Brother Rounds was initiated into Alpha Theta Chapter as one of its charter members in December, 1901, and immediately began active steps toward the re-establishment of Rho.

Brothers F. Stanley Boggs and Ross L. Trevett, two of the earlier members of Rho, loyally aided and encouraged this enterprise. After considerable correspondence with the Executive Board, Brother Rounds was advised that as the charter was not withdrawn, no vote of the several chapters would be necessary for Rho's re-establishment. The Executive Board looked with favor on its re-establishment and Brothers Rounds, Boggs, and Trevett were entrusted with the re-organization.

The University by 1902 had grown from the few hundred students of 1892 to an excess of two thousand, and the prospects for a rapidly growing university both in size and prestige were excellent. Despite this number of students, but half a dozen chapters of national fraternities were then in existence at Illinois.

The work of re-organization proceeded slowly, but surely. Some half a dozen men who by reason of their character, ability and personality were leaders in the university, were selected from the student body to constitute a working organization. The revival of the chapter was effected on December 6, 1902, when at the home of Brother Boggs, with ceremonies under the direction of Brother L. S. Rice of Upsilon, six men were initiated.

For the next year meetings were held at the homes of various of the members, sometimes with Brother Boggs, and more often at the home of Brother Clyde E. Stone on Springfield Avenue. New men were gradually attracted by the good fellowship of this small band of Phi Kaps, and as the chapter grew in size, it became more and more a force in college affairs. The members soon felt the need of a home of their own, and the aid of Brother Frederick G. Brown, a charter member of Rho, then an architect at Danville, Illinois, was enlisted. Plans for the construction of the fraternity house were drawn, which in 1903 a local contractor erected at 401 East Green Street and leased to the chapter. The chapter lived in this house until 1913, when the present beautiful and commodious home at 313 East Chalmers Street was erected.

The entrance of the United States in the world of war in 1917 did not find Rho lacking in honor and patriotism. Over fifty per cent of the living members engaged in the conflict and were to be found in all arms of the service, in rank from private to field officer, and in the armies of England, Canada and France, as well as of the United States. The active chapter almost ceased to exist, for at one time but four men were left to carry on the chapter affairs. With the establishment of an

S. A. T. C. unit at the university, the house was turned over to the Government for use as a barracks. Rooms in which chapter meetings could be held were secured at 400 East Chalmers Street, and the chapter, although at times with difficulty, was kept in existence.

On the honored list of those who died in the service of their country, are to be found three members of Rho: John Edward Burroughs, '08; James Burr Hickman, '15, and Bruce Nutter Culmer, '16. They went forth with the same high spirit of loyalty that had distinguished their fraternity careers, and their names are forever graven in the hearts of their brothers.

In the long list of the members of Rho there are many who have been honored in their several professions and in their communities. Of these the record of their achievements tells its own tale. Many brothers of Rho are noted for their exceptional loyalty to the chapter, for their wise counsel, earnest support and unselfish labors in her behalf. The enumeration of their names here could add nothing to the love, respect and honor which they now receive as their just due.

The present day finds Rho firmly established as a leader in her college world. She has emerged triumphant from the difficulties which in the course of her early career beset her, and the future holds forth prospects of even greater achievements.

History of Sigma Chapter

Sigma Chapter of the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity was established at Lehigh University, January 20, 1870, by the following brethren: William W. Curtin, son of ex-Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania; Russell Hancock, son of General Winfield S. Hancock; Henry W. Morgan; Allen K. Rham; Henry Bidlack Reed; Francis F. Drinkhouse, and Charles G. Weaver.

The institution was conducted at Easton, Pa., under the auspices of the Gamma Chapter at Lafayette by Brothers H. L. Bunstein, Lucian W. Doty and J. S. Gantz, the committee appointed by the Grand Chapter. It had a flourishing condition up to 1880, when the university being in not a very prosperous condition, it was thought advisable to withdraw. In the fall of 1882 an endeavor to re-establish it was made, but it lasted only a short time. The members have been thought well of by their Alma Mater. Two, Brother Henry R. Price, C.E., M.D., of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Brother Charles L. Taylor, M.E., of Pittsburgh, Pa., are members of the Board of Trustees.

Brother Taylor is also the chairman of the Carnegie Hero Relief Fund; and Andrew Carnegie, who built the dormitory at Lehigh University, named it Taylor Hall, after him.

Brothers W. H. Baker, R. W. Mahon, H. F. J. Porter, H. B. Reed, W. M. Scudder, C. L. Taylor have been presidents of the Alumni Association. Brothers W. H. Baker, A. A. Herr, H. F. J. Porter, H. R. Price, H. B. Reed, W. M. Scudder and C. L. Taylor have been on the Board of Trustees representing the alumni.

History of Tau Chapter

On January 26, 1872, Tau Chapter came officially into being. We continue to speak with reverence and respect for the memory of those whose efforts made possible our priceless heritage of the influence of the high-minded purposes and lofty ideals of Phi Kappa Sigma. They were men of sterling worth. Their metal had but just been tested by the adversities of the darkest days of our country's history. They had met poverty and distress, disappointment and defeat, and had emerged like men, with determination in their hearts, and their faces to the future. The chapter's foundation could not have come at a time when broader or better men could have been found to shape its destiny, and endow its inception. We feel that their spirit and their ideals have been faithfully transmitted from chapter to chapter, and we can hope that they will forever live and flourish.

Brother Frank Follansbee, the last surviving charter member, is quoted in the previous issue of the Register with reference to the founding and early history of the chapter. To Brother Leroy S. Edwards, of Eta chapter, he gives credit for the conception of the idea of a chapter at Randolph-Macon. He relates that Brother Edwards inquired of Brother Westwood S. Armistead as to the possibility of securing a sufficient number of men of the necessary standard, for the establishment of the new chapter. Brother Edwards thought the material could be found, and as the result of their efforts Brothers Armistead, Follansbee, Angus R. B. Hartsook, John C. Rosser, William Henry Edwards, Paul Bradley and William Fulton, Jr., organized and were granted a charter.

As Randolph-Macon is one of the smallest schools that boasts a chapter of our Fraternity, the membership has been measured by quality rather than quantity. In 1885, the records show, there were only four active men in the chapter. By reason of the increased supply of material incident to the natural growth of the college, the chapter's membership has increased in recent years, until at the present time there are as many as twenty-one "of the nation's finest."

At the outset, Brother Follansbee tells us, "two little rooms, in the new and yet uncompleted Literary Society Building were shared by all the secret societies of the college." This plan was naturally unsatisfactory, and the chapter moved from time to time, to various rooms here and there, in an effort to maintain private quarters. Finally, in 1909, the college agreed to lease one of its cottages, on College Avenue, just opposite the campus, which was renovated and furnished by the chapter. This accomplishment was achieved largely through the efforts of Brother W. I. Pritchard, at that time Alpha of the chapter. This cottage continues to be the home of the chapter, but all eyes are turned and hearts set towards the day when Tau will own her own home.

As this is being written the chapter has just emerged from what will probably be remembered as the most trying time of its history. Our entry into the great World War was looked upon as a menace to the very existence of fraternities at Randolph-Macon. And the fall of 1917 seemed to prove that our fears were well founded. In the memorable spring of that year there were seventeen active men in the chapter and the fall witnessed the return of only four. The rest had gone, they knew not where, to answer their country's call, and do their bit in the cause of humanity. But the four who remained to await their turn (Brothers Hatcher, Smoot, Davis and T. H. Birdsong) proved equal to the task confronting them, and saved the day by securing six "goats."

In the fall of 1919, with the world again at peace, fourteen veterans of the great war returned to the campus, to further equip themselves for the battle of life, and to reflect further credit upon our fraternity. They extended seven invitations to freshmen, and all promptly accepted, and were initiated. And now, as this is written, our chapter stands far in the foreground of the fraternity world at Randolph-Macon. May they and their successors be ever alert to keep her there, and forever true to the traditions of the chapter's birth, and the ideals of Phi Kappa Sigma.

History of Upsilon Chapter

Forty-eight years ago, July 8, 1872, Upsilon Chapter was founded. Brother James Clarence Ernst, then of the class of 1873 in Princeton University and at that time an active and enthusiastic member of Beta Chapter, installed Upsilon. The real credit of founding Upsilon Chapter must be given to John Milton Dandy, 1873, who is now deceased. Brother Dandy learned early in 1870 of Phi Kap's existence and standing and he determined that the Fraternity he knew and regarded so highly must have a chapter at Northwestern. There was then but one other fraternity in existence at the university, Sigma Chi. Phi Delta Theta and Phi Kappa Psi had had chapters but they ceased to exist during the war and were not reorganized until a number of years later.

A most interesting story is that of the founding and early days in the chapter. Brother Dandy was a natural organizer and, through his untiring efforts, gleaned from the university a group of men who were all imbued with the thought that closer personal relations would foster good fellowship and promote their mutual interest. These men, the charter members, secured a plain but comfortable meeting place. At first it was only one room but later they had the owner of the building divide into two rooms a large space that had been used for storage purposes. These quarters were occupied until 1876 when the parlors and reading rooms of the Masonic Fraternity were rented. Throughout the forty-eight years of her existence Upsilon has occupied many different chapter houses, always renting them and never having the right to say, "This is our House." But such is not the case now. In April, 1919, the chapter purchased the present house which is located at the corner of Orrington Avenue and University Place. It is a large comfortable home with ample room for twenty-five men. Thanks to the loyal support of the alumni, Upsilon can now feel justly proud because her house compares most favorably with others at Northwestern. As to location, it could not be more advantageously situated, one block from the campus and three blocks from Davis Street which is the business center of Evanston. It should be noticed that the new house was acquired during the stress of the World War, when the great majority of the active men, as well as many of the alumni, were in military service. Many of the fraternities at Northwestern had trouble keeping the wheels turning during the war but Phi Kappa Sigma did more than keep the wheels turning. She took enormous strides ahead.

Right from the start did Upsilon Chapter demonstrate its worth. It was well born. Its members were all prominent in university activities, and continue so to be down to this day. Though never large, the personnel of its members has always been such as enabled the chapter to proceed along broad and generous lines. Now, a policy of conservative expansion having been followed for the past few years, it is intended to maintain the active chapter at approximately its present strength of thirty-five men. Upsilon men are measured for what they are — what they have in heart and head. Upsilon Chapter has never sought the leadership of the Greek world at Northwestern, but time after time, it has been the leader without seeking. In all that counts in real fraternity spirit, personal liberty, democracy, and the good fellowship of good men Upsilon Chapter has always been an acknowledged leader at Northwestern.

For years the chapter was miles away from its nearest brother chapter. Upsilon is the parent of the chapters of the Fraternity in the Middle West States. Many are the names on its roster who in life occupied commanding positions in the world's work. Today in all the professions, in private business life and in public affairs are numbered Upsilon men — men who are proud, first, that they are Phi Kaps; second, that Upsilon Chapter brought them into the Fraternity. The history of Upsilon is to a great degree the history of its members. It is impossible to say too much for the loyal, good, and true fellows who have gone into the world's activities through the medium of Upsilon Chapter. The reason is patent enough. The men are true to the ideals of Phi Kappa Sigma.

Phi Chapter

UNIVERSITY OF RICHMOND

RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

INSTITUTED JANUARY 15, A. D. 1873.

ADDISON L. HOLLADAY

GEORGE SWANN

THOMAS MARSHALL ALDERSON

PATRICK HENRY EAGER

History of Phi Chapter

The 15th of January, 1873, was the natal day of Phi Chapter. The esteemed Leroy Summerfield Edwards, Eta, '58, was its father.

Prior to the war only two chapters of the Fraternity existed in Virginia, and they were Eta, at the University of Virginia, and Kappa, at Emory and Henry College. These chapters became dormant because of the terrible war, and Kappa never again became active. In 1872 Phi Kappa Sigma in Virginia was revived. Tau Chapter was established in January, Eta was reinstated the following September and Phi was chartered four months later. In this reawakening the ardent Brother Leroy S. Edwards was the moving spirit. Stories of his zeal and generosity are yet told with our traditions. However lustrous the dream that actuated him in his work of reviving Eta and establishing Tau and Phi, he could not have foreknown the full meaning of what he did. The institution which he transplanted is as yet only in its childhood. Its life should be as eternal as the spirit of brotherliness in the bosom of man. It should become increasingly exalted as the opportunities widen for the manifestation of this spirit.

In the fall of 1872 a friend of Brother Edwards enrolled in law at Richmond College. To him he presented Phi Kappa Sigma with the purpose of establishing a chapter. Through this friend another law student was enlisted, as also were two academic students, and in January of the following year application for a charter was presented to the Grand Chapter. They were fellows of sterling worth and are to-day respectively as referred to above — Judge Addison L. Holladay, of Richmond; Judge Thomas M. Alderson, of Abingdon, Va.; Professor George Swann, of Danville, Va., and Professor Patrick Henry Eager, of Clinton, Miss.

The first year the chapter consisted of eight men. It prospered through three sessions, but, for reasons not altogether plain, then suffered a suspension. The circumstances as obtained are these: All the charter year men left college the second year afterwards. The men that were left the third year were medical students and entirely outside of Richmond College. Eight years later, 1884, through a committee from Tau Chapter, the chairman of which was General C. C. Vaughan, of Franklin, Va., Phi was revived. At this time Brother Nelson S. Groome, a most intimate friend of Brother Vaughan, was a matriculate at this college. By these two old Phi was again started on her course of prosperity. She is now in the waters of her fortieth voyage, manned by a crew of fourteen men.

Phi has always been noted for her "all-around" characteristics. In college, her men are leaders in scholarship, in athletics, in social life and in all other branches of collegiate activity. As alumni, her sons have maintained the same excellent standards in the pursuits of business and professional life.

When the world war burst upon us, Phi's sons took their places promptly in the nation's front line of defense, and the older alumni were very devoted and active in the various lines of patriotic work at home. Phi was well represented in all branches of the armed forces of the United States, and a great many served with utmost distinction and received high honors.

Since 1914, Phi has been located at the magnificent new campus of the College, located at Westhampton, which is about five miles from the heart of the City of Richmond. The change has been very beneficial. During the war, the boys at college made the best shift possible in temporary quarters, because the campus had been volunteered to the government as a war hospital and was used for that purpose. The institution has grown so rapidly and added to its range of schools until it has outgrown the college class, and from now on it is the "University of Richmond."

Never was the chapter recognized more absolutely as the par excellence Greek letter society here than at present. But outside of the immediate Chapter, Phi has a tower of strength in her loyal alumni, and especially those in Richmond.

The alumni chapter at Richmond is very active, and as the days of war recede, the interest of the alumni is greatly increasing. They meet monthly at luncheon and semi-annually they stage a banquet to which brethren come from all over Virginia.

Phi is particularly fortunate in having the constant benefit of the advice and counsel of Thomas B. McAdams, Phi, '97, whose deep interest in the Fraternity is of the greatest assistance. After many years of faithful, excellent service as Chapter Visitor, Herbert B. Gilliam, Phi, '11, felt compelled to resign on account of residing at a distance. John J. Wicker, Jr., Phi, '13, has been appointed to this office, and has some very encouraging plans for the Chapter's future.

History of Chi Chapter

The institution of Upsilon Chapter at Northwestern University in 1872, marked the entrance of the Fraternity into the middle west. Naturally its early members wished for neighboring chapters, and in looking for a suitable college their attention was directed to Racine College, located at Racine, Wisconsin, an institution founded by the Protestant Episcopal Church in 1852. Negotiations with students there led to an application which was favorably acted upon by the Fraternity and a chapter granted on March 10, 1873. The chapter, christened Chi, was instituted by Arch B. Eldridge, of Beta, and John M. Dandy, of Upsilon. The Fraternity was the first to enter the college, and from the beginning its existence was sub rosa, owing to faculty prohibition. Nevertheless, the chapter flourished for a brief period and initiated in all eighteen members. In a few years, however, its presence was discovered and its life terminated by the rigorous enforcement of anti-fraternity legislation.

History of Psi Chapter

This chapter was started through the instrumentality of Edward F. Mordough, of Gamma, who, acting under authority of the Grand Chapter, installed the chapter on May 19, 1876, assisted by several other members of Gamma. The entrance of the Fraternity into a purely professional school, not connected with any academic institution, was a mistake. The absence of a proper scholastic atmosphere was an insurmountable handicap. The location of the college in a large city and the lack of any student life destined the chapter to speedy extinction. It maintained a struggling existence for several years, until at the session of the Grand Chapter in 1882, its charter was formally withdrawn. In all it initiated but seven men.

History of Psi Chapter

Thirty years have swiftly rolled by since that day in April, 1890, when Psi chapter of the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity was installed at the Pennsylvania State College. Thirty years! And yet how crowded has been that time with progress and prosperity for Psi. How imposing the list of men whose character she has helped to form in the formative period of their lives. What could better prove the value of Phi Kappa Sigma?

The conditions surrounding the foundation of Psi were particularly auspicious for a strong chapter. She was established on the foundation of the Keystone chapter of the Q. T. V., a Latin letter fraternity that had been in operation several years previous to the installation of any Greek letter fraternity at State. Thus Psi was given a leadership among the fraternities at State which she has successfully maintained down to the present day.

In glancing back over our history it would seem that the chapter has always been seriously confronted with the question of a chapter house. The first meeting place was in a suite of rooms in the Foster block. The need for a permanent house was early felt and the first step in this direction was the appointment of a building committee, followed by a five dollar assessment used to make first payment on certain lots then under consideration. From the spring of 1892 until September of 1893 the chapter occupied a rented house on Beaver Avenue. In September of 1893 the chapter was moved to the present location on Beaver Avenue. This house was later remodeled in 1910 by the joint action of the alumni and the active members.

Now again has the need for a new house been felt by Psi for some years but many things have worked to prevent the carrying out of any plans in this direction. A building committee has been standing for some years and has worked over a number of plans in all of which some serious defect has been found. At the present time the plan is to extend the property already held by purchasing the adjoining Harter property. We hope to carry out this part of the plan during the coming year. Following this it is hoped to be able to build a new house on the site of the present house, but owing to a large number of difficulties to be overcome it will probably be four or five years before this is accomplished.

In common with all of her sister chapters of Phi Kappa Sigma, Psi had rather a rough time of it during the war but has succeeded in weathering the storm and now hopes to open a new era of prosperity. In this period most of the active members left school to go into the service and Psi's very existence was threatened. So great was the loss of men in this way that only three members returned to college in the fall of 1918. However, since the close of the war the return of her old men to college has been most gratifying and a large chapter is now included on the roll. One brother we are sorry to say will never return to us. Brother Duncan Hugh Cameron, class of 1918, Lieutenant of Marine Aviation, made the supreme sacrifice in the service of his country when he was killed in an airplane accident at Miami, Florida. Several other brothers were severely wounded in action but were spared to return to us.

During the last ten years the largest experience through which the chapter has passed has been the war. In all branches of the service Psi was well represented, both by alumni and the active chapter. We have come through that trying period in good shape and now look ahead hopefully to years of progress and prosperity. Once during the last ten years has there been a reunion of the alumni of the chapter and among the forty alumni present plans for a new house were enthusiastically discussed. It is our earnest hope now to make our dream of a new house come true during the next few years, to see Psi established in a house entirely befitting her station in the college.

History of Omega Chapter

Omega Chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity existed at Haverford College from November 18, 1884, to November 20, 1890. The original or charter members were: William Samuel Hilles, Samuel Bettle, William Townsend Wright, Frederick Newbold Trotter, Harold Ellis Yarnall.

The close proximity of Haverford College to the University of Pennsylvania, Haverford being only nine miles from Philadelphia, and the exceptionally high standard of the students of Haverford, many of whom were known socially to the members of Alpha, led to the establishment of Omega. Haverford is controlled by the Society of Friends.

From the beginning the life of Omega was sub rosa, as the regulations of the college forbade secret societies. This was a great handicap, as will later be seen. Troubles began early and continued during its entire career, the first blow coming in 1885. It seems that part of the initiation of Brother William E. Hacker was witnessed by an employee of the college. The matter was immediately reported to the Dean and in a public college meeting this officer of the college denounced fraternities in no uncertain terms. Not daunted by this manifestation of unfriendly spirit, the members set to work to make the chapter even more powerful, hoping some day to be able to go to the faculty and demand recognition. After a second warning by the Dean it became necessary to move the meeting place from the college, and early in 1886 the chapter moved to a room in the home of Brother H. E. Yarnall. As Brother Yarnall's home was on the college campus, it was a very satisfactory change. All went well and the chapter was growing, but soon the effect of the Dean's speeches was felt in another way. Many of the most desirable men were kept from joining in the fear of instant dismissal should they be discovered.

In October, 1887, the chapter moved into larger quarters.

It was deemed advisable to get a little further away from the college, and two rooms on the second floor of a dwelling house in Preston, a nearby village, were rented. Here it was felt that the men could meet with less restraint and in less fear of detection. It was here also that the men really felt what was necessary to feel to be good Phi Kaps. The meetings held in Preston were enthusiastic ones. The chapter was self-supporting in every sense and a feeling of security, independence and pride became manifest. Here the members could meet and smoke and plan to their hearts' content and no fear of being caught. But an end was to come to all this. Haverford was then even smaller than it now is, and the idea of allowing a smaller body to grow up within its borders, which fosters any other interest save that of the college proper, was frowned upon. This sentiment begets a feeling of unity in the hearts of all those who attend the college and this, in turn, welds the men into a harmonious body, filled with love for their Alma-Mater. The members of Omega were probably actuated by that impulse of love to their college when, in November, 1890, they decided to give up. These men were good Phi Kaps, but the odds against them were too great. Their sense of duty to their college seemed incompatible with the fraternity idea, and they voluntarily disbanded. During the life of the chapter there were admitted thirty-five members. After Omega disbanded provision was made by the Grand Chapter, whereby Haverford College students could be admitted to membership in Alpha Chapter. To date fifteen Haverford men have cast their lot with Phi Kappa Sigma in this manner.

History of Alpha Alpha Chapter

The designation of this Chapter — indicating the first of a second series — is particularly appropriate since its institution in 1894 marked the beginning of the second well defined period in the history of Phi Kappa Sigma. It represented the transition point between the older tradition under which but two permanent additions had been made to the roll of chapters since the founding of two other Virginia chapters, Tau and Phi, twenty odd years before and the later policy which more than doubled the roll of active chapters within the decade following the inauguration of Alpha Alpha.

“An institution is but the lengthened shadow of one man.”

If the entire membership of this chapter, active and alumni, were canvassed and asked to name the man who bears that relationship to Alpha Alpha, the reply would come with promptness, fervor and unanimity, “Dan Brown.” Not only is this homage due for the more than twenty-five years of almost daily effective effort for the advancement of this chapter but history records that it was in the mind of Daniel Edward Brown that there originated the idea of bringing Phi Kappa Sigma to Washington and Lee. Realizing that the field was suitable to the introduction of another high class fraternity both from the standpoint of material actually available and an anticipated rejuvenation of the old University, Brother Brown commenced an investigation into the national fraternities not already represented in this institution. He soon became interested in the high standing of Phi Kappa Sigma and, firmly imbued as always with the doctrine of the best or nothing, he was not deterred by her reputation for a somewhat marked exclusiveness. His idea having been favorably received by the six associates who afterwards became the other charter members, formal application was made to the Executive Board. After the due consideration and a favorable report by Brother

Nelson S. Groome, Phi '87, who represented the Board upon the customary visit of inspection, a charter was granted and, on Oct. 13, 1894, the new Chapter was installed by Brothers Thomas L. Montgomery, Alpha '84, and Edward K. Rowland, Alpha '91. The charter members were:

Daniel Edward Brown, Lexington, Va.
Sidney Green Clay, Paris, Ky.
Giles Burneston Cook, Front Royal, Va.
William Jackson Elgin, Leesburg, Va.
Charles Augustus Macatee, Jr., Front Royal, Va.
Frank Moore, Lexington, Va.
Robert Hite Turner, Front Royal, Va.

The Chapter thus founded has experienced the usual range of trials and triumphs during the twenty-six years which have followed but, except upon one occasion, the latter have considerably outweighed the former. During the later nineties the light registration at Washington and Lee permitted only very small chapters. While, in the writer's belief, it is precisely in the intimacy of such chapters that there flowers in its most perfect form that fraternal spirit which is the life of our organization, there exists likewise the constantly menacing possibility which became a reality with Alpha Alpha in September 1897 when, through graduation or otherwise, not a single member of the preceding year's chapter returned to the campus. But the alumni of that early day, more than making up in enthusiastic loyalty that which they certainly lacked in numbers, were equal to the occasion. Through their efforts four undergraduates were initiated during the next two sessions. Not many that, to be sure — if one overlooks the fact that one among them was Charles See McNulty. Without discounting in the least the splendid work done by his associates during the six years when as a student of arts and then of laws McNulty occupied a position of leadership in all branches of college activities, the historian would do less than justice did he fail to mark the influence of this man upon the firm establishment of the chapter. The period was that one of University expansion which Brother Brown has foreseen in 1894. Delayed for a few years longer than he had anticipated it now came about as the result of a change in administration and a more aggressive policy. Alpha Alpha received her full share of the resulting benefits in the form of larger and stronger chapters whose membership included many men who both as students and later on as alumni have conspicuously justified their election to Phi Kappa Sigma.

But each era brings its own problems and, the possibility of sudden extinction through having too small chapters having been once and for all obviated at Washington and Lee, it was inevitable that with the larger chapters should come the question of chapter houses. Though one of the youngest chapters in the University, Alpha Alpha of Phi Kappa Sigma was the first to effectively attempt a permanent solution and is today the only chapter occupying its own house. In 1906, the somewhat vague plans of the active members were crystallized by the practical suggestions of Sidney Green Clay, '94, and a campaign inaugurated for the establishment of a chapter house fund through alumni subscriptions and notes signed by undergraduates. In 1909 the Chapter was incorporated under the laws of the State of Virginia in order that it might hold title to the house which it purchased from Washington and Lee — the former residence of Judge McLaughlin, sometimes Rector of the University. The location of this house, opposite the most frequented entrance to the campus, renders it especially well suited for fraternity purposes and while the house itself is not entirely adequate it will serve very well, local conditions being what they are, until such a time as a return of building costs to a reasonable basis may render it feasible to discuss plans for remodeling. As is perhaps the rule in such cases, the Chapter House Fund has grown less rapidly than its original sponsors confidently hoped. Nevertheless it does continue to grow, thanks again to the Brothers already mentioned and particularly to Frank Moore, '94, local alumnus, resident trustee and "the business head of the Chapter."

When the call to arms came in the Spring of 1917, the sons of Alpha Alpha gave the response which would be expected. The Washington and Lee Ambulance Unit which sailed for France in 1917 and saw duty under fire, included several Brothers of the active Chapter, of whom William S. Hopkins was decorated with the Croix de Guerre. A number of the alumni likewise served in various branches of the service so that Alpha Alpha will be well represented upon the bronze tablets of the memorial gateway which will be erected at an entrance to the campus to these latter day "Liberty Hall Volunteers."

History of Alpha Beta Chapter

Alpha Beta, the only chapter organized beyond the territorial limits of the United States, was chartered at the University of Toronto, and instituted on May 19, 1895, by Brothers J. Hartley Merrick and James Starr. Zeta Psi, Kappa Alpha and Alpha Delta Phi were represented by chapters in the university at the time. Brother Henry Bueth Sims, of Alpha Chapter, was affiliated with the chapter and was its first Alpha. Seven men were initiated on the date given above and their number was soon increased to eleven. Unfortunately, however, the chapter neglected to look to the academic department for its initiates and consequently failed to obtain a firm foothold. After the academic year 1895-96, its members dwindled, and in the fall of 1897 it surrendered its charter, there then being only one or two men in college. The chapter was organized without any assurances of permanency and it was allowed to drift to early dissolution, both of which conditions should not have been tolerated.

History of Alpha Gamma Chapter

The organization and installation of Alpha Gamma Chapter of the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity was due, in great measure, to the efforts of Brother Daniel Jenifer Barton, of Eta, who was an instructor in mathematics in the West Virginia University during the years 1895 and 1896. In 1895 Brother Barton began the movement to secure a charter for a local chapter, and with the assistance of Brothers Earl W. Williams and G. H. F. Holy, a body of ten men was organized and application for a charter was made at Thirty-third Convention, which convention was held at State College, Pennsylvania. The application was acted upon favorably, and the chapter was installed at Morgantown, West Virginia, on the 15th day of January, 1896.

For two or three years no regular quarters were secured,—the chapter meeting at the rooms of the various members. The first permanent meeting place was secured in 1899, and consisted of but one room. This one room was used until 1901, and at this time two rooms were secured in the Postoffice Building. In 1903 quarters were secured in what is now known as the Brown Building, on High Street. The chapter had four rooms at this new abode, and six of the members slept there. Little satisfaction prevailed with these new apartments, for the rooms were on the fourth floor of the building, and there was no elevator. The desire that all of the members might live together so that the fullest benefits of fraternalism might accrue was not realized.

In the winter of 1904 six rooms were secured in the Dering Building (better known as the "White Elephant") on Spruce Street. These rooms, although on the third floor, proved fairly satisfactory. Ten of the fourteen men in the chapter lived under the same roof in the happy bonds. A year or so later the fraternity moved to the second floor of the same building on the opposite side.

From 1903 to 1906 Alpha Gamma Chapter was rising upon the ladder of progression by leaps and bounds. In 1906 the first house was secured. This house was located on North Spruce Street, and those of our brothers who visited us in the years of '06, '07, and '08 will remember this as the house that stood so far on the hill that they were winded when they reached it. On March 2, 1908, Alpha Gamma Chapter gave up her old quarters and moved into a new house at 230 Kirk Street, where she continued to live up to June, 1919. This house was in a very desirable location and had but one drawback, lack of sufficient room and facilities to enable the chapter to expand.

In the summer of 1919, the chapter decided that the time had come when she must find a home of her own, one that was sufficiently large and one that would do credit to the splendid growth of the fraternity.

A bold step was taken when we gave up our home where we had lived for over ten years, and with the cooperation of her loyal alumni purchased a very fine piece of property, located in "Sunnyside," about five minutes' walk from the University. This house is situated on a bluff overlooking the Monongahela River and is one of the best, if not the best, fraternity houses at West Virginia University. The chapter was very fortunate in securing this property, as the house itself is so arranged that if it had been built expressly for fraternity purposes it could not have been better suited to the chapter's needs. The condition of the chapter now is such that our position socially, and more important, scholastically, is a most enviable one. Alpha Gamma chapter is looking forward to the most prosperous years of her existence and is destined to be a pride to "the best fraternity in the world."

History of Alpha Delta Chapter

Alpha Delta Chapter was established at the University of Maine on May 27, 1898 when the Omicron Epsilon Eta Pi Society were initiated into Phi Kappa Sigma. The initiation ceremony took place at the City Hall, Bangor, and was performed by Brothers J. Hartley Merrick, Grand Alpha and Stephenson H. Walsh, Past Grand Alpha.

Twenty-two charter members assumed the responsibility of the new fraternal organization, of whom five were freshmen, six were sophomores, six were juniors and five seniors.

During the early life of the fraternity meetings were held in the Q. T. V. hall on the campus and at nearly every meeting for over four years it was the custom of the society to carry out an extensive literary program. With the pressure of college duties and the volume of business transacted, incident to the operation of a chapter house it was later found necessary to discontinue this practice.

On November 4, 1898, the first action in regard to a chapter home was taken when it was voted, "To have a committee appointed to see what prospect we have of getting a chapter house."

During the winter of 1900-01 the Q. T. V. Hall was burned and it was only due to the daring and persistent efforts of Brother F. M. Davis, '01, that the charter was not destroyed.

From this time on the efforts of the brothers were directed towards securing funds to build a chapter house. The chapter was fortunate in that the university authorities provided a site for a home on the university campus and were willing to endorse notes to the amount of about $10,000 for its erection. With this financial support money was borrowed from banks and individuals and in the college year of 1902-03 work commenced.

In November, 1903, the chapter moved into the new home, a house built to hold about thirty students, a matron and a chef. From this date on, as is universally the case, a new life began for Alpha Delta.

The chapter has always published a news letter to the alumni and in the fall of 1908 the chapter letter was changed to the Maine Phi Kap, a printed illustrated sheet of four pages. Alpha Delta has been prosperous in her fraternal life and her business transactions and holds the goodwill of the commercial firms with which her officers have come in contact. With the outbreak of the war Alpha Delta lost a large number of men and during the year of 1917-18 only about twelve men returned to their college work, all sophomores and juniors, and for a time the opening of the chapter house was in doubt. The financial load seemed greater than the men could shoulder, but the alumni came to the rescue with funds and the house was opened with a small but loyal delegation.

During the war thirty-nine members of the chapter were in active service and sixteen were in the S. A. T. C. Three of the brothers: Lieutenant Herbert Gray Cobb, Lieutenant Frank Benn Holden, and Lieutenant Donald William Norton, all of the Class of 1918, gave their lives in France for the cause.

History of Alpha Epsilon Chapter

Armour Institute (name afterwards changed to Armour Institute of Technology), of Chicago, Ill., opened its doors as an educational institution in September of 1893, the year of the Chicago World's Columbian Exposition. At the start students were enrolled in all four years of the preparatory department, known as the Scientific Academy, but no advanced students were sought or accepted for the Technical College, and only those who were qualified to enter the first year of a college course were registered. This first class continued to be the highest class throughout its course and the college was outnumbered by the academy during the first few years.

During the fall of 1896, there being then four full classes in the college, the fraternity spirit began to make itself felt, among a certain few, by a desire to get together a band of the congenial good fellows in the school and unite them in some organization. This desire was augmented perhaps by the fact that after an Armour man had talked with men from other colleges and had received an insight into their lives, he felt that a certain essential something was missing at Armour, and that was the Greek Letter Fraternity. The matter was talked over in a quiet, informal way with first one and then another, and in January, 1897, a self-appointed steering committee, consisting of the leaders of the movement under consideration, called a meeting for the purpose of organizing a society or club which would eventually become a part of some national college fraternity.

Ten or fifteen representative men, about equally divided among the four classes, responded to the invitations to this meeting. An organization was effected, which was afterwards incorporated under the laws of Illinois, and officers were elected. Considerable discussion was provoked in an effort to find and agree upon a name for this promising organization, but it was quieted when George A. Feindt, 1900, suggested that since its aim was to become a "chapter" in some fraternity, the society be called "The Paragraph Club," and this name was agreed upon.

In April of 1897, the first floor flat at the corner of Armour Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street was rented and furnished; the club gave several housewarming parties to its friends and the faculty, and began to feel some of the joys and responsibilities of fraternity life.

About this time the club made the acquaintance of a number of members of Phi Kappa Sigma. Something in the attractive manhood of these men and in their sterling loyalty to and enthusiasm for their national Fraternity impressed the members of the Paragraph Club so favorably that they made application for a charter. All the active men of the club who were in good standing, thirteen in number, signed the petition.

These men were initiated into Phi Kappa Sigma on the evening of June 8, 1898, by active and alumni members of Upsilon Chapter, and were granted a charter as Alpha Epsilon Chapter.

Members of Alpha Epsilon Chapter, and especially those connected with its early life, feel with a certain sense of pride, that the entrance of this chapter into Phi Kappa Sigma marked a new era in the history of the Fraternity, at least in the Central West.

In the twenty-two years of its experience Alpha Epsilon has enjoyed a constantly healthy life and has grown from its modest start of thirteen active members and a flat with accommodations for only five men to a membership of 238 alumni and 24 active men and a fine gray stone house on Michigan Avenue with quarters for 20 men.

Not yet ready to build or own her home, she has supported the Endowment Fund with a farsighted and exemplary purpose, and the prospective ascendancy of Armour Institute promises a bright future for the Chapter. Scholastically Alpha Epsilon can be truly said to have led the Fraternity during the last decade. Since the presentation to the Fraternity of the Merrick Scholarship Cup, she has won the premier position both years that it has been awarded, and has great hopes of winning it this year for the third consecutive time, thus gaining permanent possession of it. The Chicago Convention in 1916 offered to Alpha Epsilon the opportunity of proving to the Fraternity at large her worth as a member of the brotherhood and as a hostess second to none. Armour also won the Attendance Cup that year, it being the first time it was awarded. The World War found Alpha Epsilon, as it did all Phi Kappa Sigma, more than ready, and history's records bear the names of a very large number of Alpha Epsilon's sons, two of whom, Claude Hill, '16, and Jean P. Bechaud, '17, made the supreme sacrifice.

History of Alpha Zeta Chapter

The plan for a chapter in Baltimore originated with George Poindexter Bagby, Past Grand Alpha. Brother Bagby had left Richmond College and the University of Virginia — at both of which institutions he had been actively identified with the Fraternity, and was planning to complete his education for the bar at the University of Maryland. His early education had been obtained in Baltimore, and he naturally renewed many of his former associations on his return. So enthusiastic a fraternity man could not long remain at the university without casting about with a view of establishing a new chapter. The sessions opened in October, but as early as the preceding May he had pledged Brother Singley to Phi Kappa Sigma. During the summer Brother Bagby met Brother Albert C. Dieffenbach, now Grand Beta, who was at home for the summer from Franklin and Marshall College. He, too, was a Baltimorean who had attended the same secondary school as Bagby before leaving for college and he joined most heartily in the plan for a new chapter. Upon application, the charter was finally granted, and on the evening of November 24, 1899, Alpha Zeta Chapter was formally instituted at the University of Maryland with eleven members. Brothers Merrick, Bower, Walsh and Starr, of the Executive Board; Spahr and Biddle, of Epsilon; Pannebaker, of Zeta, and Blacklock, of Eta, were present at the ceremonies.

The chapter flourished notwithstanding its uninviting surroundings and numerous handicaps of every conceivable nature until the fall of 1900, when it moved to 1207 John Street. Here, while we had a house, we had little else. In 1901 the chapter moved to 1408 McCulloh Street, where it enjoyed unusual prosperity in every way. For eight years this house was the beloved haunt of all Phi Kapps not only of the city but even the state. The Grand chapter was asked to convene in Baltimore in 1904 as the guests of Alpha Zeta, and this event marked a distinctly new era in the fraternity life of the chapter. Since 1909 the chapter has occupied houses at 9 East Read Street, 919 Cathedral Street and 28 East Mount Vernon Place. During the stay on Mount Vernon Place the chapter enjoyed some of the pleasantest and most prosperous years of its existence, and greatly increased in numbers and the loyalty of its alumni.

When America entered the world war in April, 1917, the response of all Phi Kapps to the country's call to service was enthusiastic and immediate and in a week or two the ranks of the Active Chapter were reduced to one or two men and it then became necessary to move to less luxurious quarters at 1012 Cathedral Street. Here the chapter struggled along until the end of the war, when, unlike the period after the Civil War, when so many of the chapters in the South were forced to disband, practically all of the Active Chapter returned with new life and enthusiasm.

In order to meet the demand for larger quarters the plan of forming a corporation to buy a chapter house after much consideration was determined upon. In October, 1919, a corporation known as "Alpha Zeta, Incorporated," was formed and its membership was by its charter confined to all Phi Kapps who should subscribe to "Alpha Zeta, Incorporated." The House committee having in the meantime secured an option on a very desirable property at 17 West Mulberry Street, a large and enthusiastic banquet was held in the new house at which a sufficient number of men joined "Alpha Zeta, Incorporated," to ensure a fund to purchase the new house which was accordingly done. The new home of the fraternity is a large and commodious dwelling with all modern improvements and contains about twenty living and bed rooms and four baths. It is centrally located and within five minutes' walk of the business section of the city.

Alpha Zeta is unique among the chapters of the Fraternity in that its membership is drawn exclusively from the Law School of the University of Maryland. In the average chapter after the years of undergraduate life have been completed, the men seldom see each other except at reunions and conventions, but at Alpha Zeta most of the alumni settle in Baltimore to practice their profession and are thus linked together by their life work and common ambitions and ideals.

History of Alpha Eta Chapter

In 1900 Elmer D. Merrill, of Alpha Delta Chapter, being stationed at Charleston, S. C., on government work, became impressed with a group of students at the College of Charleston. This institution is one of the oldest colleges in the country, having been founded in 1785, and while always a small college, has drawn from the best families of South Carolina. In accordance with a suggestion from Brother Merrill, seven students petitioned for a charter. The Fraternity recognized that entering so small an institution was problematical, but believed that it was safe to entrust a charter to the petitioners, who were men of high standard. Accordingly, a charter was granted, and the chapter instituted under the title of Alpha Eta on May 4, 1901, by a committee consisting of Frank B. Bower, Alpha, then Grand Sigma; Elmer D. Merrill, Alpha Delta, and James McEvoy, Jr., Alpha Zeta.

The chapter secured a house at 69 George Street, Charleston, and for several years maintained a successful existence, although its numbers were always small. The men themselves, however, soon realized the impossibility of permanent success, and on October 1, 1905, they voluntarily surrendered the charter, stating that in their opinion the material from which they had to draw was decreasing both in quality and in numbers to such an extent as to jeopardize the continuance of the chapter upon a sound basis. This action, while regrettable, was a highly commendable exhibition of unselfish loyalty to the Fraternity and of a real desire to see the high standard maintained, even though such action caused the loss of an active chapter.

History of Alpha Theta Chapter

Alpha Theta Chapter owes its origin chiefly to the efforts of Arthur R. Crathorne, Alpha Delta, '98, who was a member of the faculty at the University of Wisconsin in 1900 and has since become a member of the faculty of the University of Illinois. Brother Crathorne came to Wisconsin in the fall of 1900, and at once noticed the relatively small number of fraternities and the splendid opening for a new chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma. That his judgment was sound has since been well demonstrated as the chapter may to-day be unpresumptively said to be one of the strongest Phi Kap chapters in the West, so far as active members and alumni are concerned.

After studying the situation for about six months Crathorne decided in the spring of 1901 that the time was ripe for the installation of a Phi Kap chapter at Wisconsin. He selected Charles R. Rounds as the best man to aid him in the work of getting a chapter started. To this Crathorne and a large number of the men who are conversant with the early history of the chapter attribute, in large part, the early success of Alpha Theta.

Crathorne and Rounds went over the situation carefully and examined a long list of eligible men and finally selected Messrs. Arthur D. S. Gillett, Harry W. Page, Burt E. Steenson, Clough Gates, William J. Crumpton and John G. D. Mack as the nucleus for the chapter, and work was begun along the lines of procuring a charter of Phi Kappa Sigma.

The early meetings of the embryonic Phi Kap chapter were held in the room of Crathorne at 1112 West Johnson Street and by the close of the school year in the spring of 1901 a strong organization had been formed with about ten men enlisted in the work. During the next summer a house was rented, after much trouble, at 610 Francis, at a rental of $40 per month.

By the next fall the men were all under one roof and were in shape to do some rushing, although they had not yet secured a charter. Their efforts met with considerable success and shortly after the opening of school an application for a charter was sent in. On November 13, 1901, a telegram was received, stating that the charter had been granted.

On December 10th the permit for the installation of the chapter was received and it named Crathorne, E. V. Starkweather, Alpha Epsilon, and Louis S. Rice, Upsilon, as the installing committee. December 20, 1901, marks the date of the birth of Alpha Theta, for on that date the chapter was formally installed by the above committee.

The house at 610 Francis Street soon became too small for the needs of the chapter and a house at 619 Langdon Street was secured and the owner rebuilt and remodeled it during the next summer so that it made a very acceptable fraternity home. The chapter occupied this house until 1916 when it purchased a house at 614 Langdon Street, almost directly across from the former chapter house. While this house is far from being all that could be desired it has proved to be a comfortable home and is a step in the right direction. Plans are now under way and it is hoped that in the near future Alpha Theta will build a new home, designed for her needs.

When war was declared in 1917 Alpha Theta, like all Phi Kap chapters, responded with a will. Practically the entire active chapter was in service before Armistice Day and scores of the alumni sprang to the colors. The chapter had her full share of men who were in action and several of them were awarded honors. While many Alpha Theta men were in the casualty lists, but two lost their lives, Brothers George G. MacNish and George A. Cary.

During the fall of 1918 the chapter house was turned into an S. A. T. C. barracks, as were practically all chapter houses at Wisconsin. With the disbanding of the S. A. T. C. things began to return to former conditions but it was over a year before they could be said to be normal. At present, even with the tremendously increased cost of living the chapter is in good financial condition, thanks partially to advice of alumni, and the personnel of the chapter was never higher.

History of Alpha Iota Chapter

The club which gave birth to Alpha Iota was originated by Alfred T. Levine. Associating with himself six fellow students in Vanderbilt University, he organized in 1900 the "F. G. D." Club. This club being secret in its nature, adopted a pin, initiation ceremony, grip, pass-word, and regulation sign. Soon thirteen strong men were gathered together, and, following out their original intention, they began work to establish a new Southern college fraternity. Their idea was to limit the number of chapters to thirteen, also the number of members of each. Conservatism was to be the keynote of the new fraternity.

About this time Phi Kappa Sigma came to the attention of the "F. G. D." Club, and on account of the similarity of ideals, communications were addressed to the Grand Chapter. These resulted in the filing of a formal application, which led to the arrival of John Riess, of Mu, to investigate. In due course, the application was voted on favorably and Riess and Sidney L. Menge, of Mu, came to Nashville to institute the new chapter. Harry Anderson, of Phi, a resident Phi Kap, assisted them in the ceremonies, which were held on April 18, 1902. The chapter members represented every department in the university, and included men prominent in all phases of college life.

One of the characteristics of this chapter has always been a conservative esprit de corps for scholarship. While scholastic attainments have not been requisite for membership, they have generally been expected.

This chapter has labored under a very serious handicap during most of its existence. It has lacked the support that comes from a strong body of alumni. As there were only two resident alumni to begin with, and no sister chapters located near Nashville, Alpha Iota had to fight on almost single handed, but every year added its strength, won by the strong personnel of her active men and the loyal aid of the few alumni. The active membership increased steadily from the original thirteen to an average of between twenty-five and thirty, and the number of alumni has grown to the total of one hundred and fifty-three.

In the beginning the chapter rooms were down town, but in the second year the experiment of running a regular house was attempted. This move was premature, as at this period very few fraternities in Vanderbilt had houses, and they were not then considered indispensable. However, from this first failure a wholesome lesson was learned, and modest, comfortable quarters were secured on the campus. These were retained until gradually sufficient strength was gained to secure a first class chapter house. Since that time Alpha Iota has rented and occupied no less than five different houses, each better than the one before, until in September, 1919, the loyalty and generosity of the alumni, favorably impressed as they were with the splendid personnel of the present active membership, made possible the purchase of the beautiful and commodious permanent home located at 2012 Broad Street, within a stone's throw of the main entrance to Vanderbilt campus.

The war record of Alpha Iota Chapter is one of which every brother has a right to be proud. Of the one hundred and fifty-three initiates, fifty-nine, or close to forty per cent, volunteered for service in the army or navy. The volunteers included all of the active members and there was left only those who were rejected because of physical disability. Thus in the fall of 1918 the active membership had been reduced to only three men. That they were worthy of Phi Kappa Sigma traditions is attested by the fact that they built the membership up to its usual number and the college year closed with the best chapter in Alpha Iota's history.

Two golden stars adorn the escutcheon of Alpha Iota Chapter — one for Brother James Elmo Overall, killed in an airplane accident December 5, 1918; and another for Lieutenant Horace R. Birdsong, who died in service on May 9, 1918.

Incomplete records show that at least two men were decorated for bravery: Lieutenant Elam F. Srygley and Lieutenant Richard Russell Phillips. A number were wounded, among them Captain Charles H. Brown, '12, who lay in a German dugout with a wounded ankle and leg three days before discovery and rescue, and whose leg was amputated below the knee.

The doubtful and dangerous pioneer days have become past history and are now viewed with the complacency that accompanies prosperous security and the vision of a still more promising future. With twenty-four high-minded, enthusiastic members returned for the fall session of 1919, comfortably and almost luxuriously housed in its own magnificent home, and with the largest freshman class in the history of the university for recruiting material, Alpha Iota Chapter, chastened and mellowed by the experience that comes with the years, sees not the semblance of a cloud on the distant horizon, and rejoices in the distinction of ranking among the leading fraternities at Vanderbilt University.

History of Alpha Kappa Chapter

The Alpha Kappa Chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma was chartered on the 31st day of December, 1902, by the convention held on that date at Pittsburgh, Pa. On the 24th day of January, 1903, M. Clay Le Jeune and John Riess, of Mu Chapter, as representatives of the Executive Board of the Fraternity, came to Tuscaloosa for the purpose of initiating the applicants into the mysteries of the Fraternity. On the evening of the 24th the installation ceremonies were held. It was in the front room of the second story of the First National Bank Building of Tuscaloosa that the chapter first became a reality.

For the balance of the session of 1902-03, nothing was done with the exception of planning for the fall rushing. However, only two of the charter members returned at the beginning of the year 1903-04. These were augmented by six initiates during the fall of that year, and the chapter commenced then its labors in earnest. Dark days have come and gone, but the chapter at the present time is an exceptionally strong one.

Perhaps the most noteworthy has been the prominent stand of the chapter in matters of scholarship, and this has hardly excelled the record in the athletics of the university. Full 50 per cent of the graduates of the chapter have been honor men, and few there are among the number of initiates who have been dropped from the rolls on account of delinquencies in scholarship. A large percentage has followed the legal and medical professions. The chapter has given its share to science — as civil engineers and chemists have a good representation on the roll. If the chapter can accomplish its great desire of a beautiful home at Tuscaloosa, it will hold its own with the ranking chapters of the Fraternity for all time. The chapter is now comfortably located on the University campus, though the house is leased from the University. It is the purpose of the fraternity to build a house of its own within the near future, and an active committee is at work raising the necessary funds. The chapter holds its own with the ranking fraternities in college, and as soon as its new home is erected, even greater things are confidently expected.

History of Alpha Lambda Chapter

The absence of the dormitory system in the University of California produced a situation which rendered unlimited scope for the fraternity and club. The men of the university were forced to live either in San Francisco, Oakland or in poor accommodations in Berkeley. With the expansion of the university in size and importance during the period beginning about 1896, and extending down to the present time, the growth of the fraternities and clubs was in equal proportion. Among the many clubs formed in this period and developed greatly was a group known as the Valhalla Club. This comparatively new club attracted a great deal of attention in college affairs, due to the interest taken by the men in college activities. Several of the men were taken into rival fraternities, and other men, who received like invitations, refused them. These facts developed the idea among the club members of forming a more permanent organization and a wider affiliation. A committee was then chosen by the club to look into the fraternity situation with the result that a report was submitted to the effect that the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity was apparently the most progressive and desirable order not yet represented at California by any chapter or known petitioners. Accordingly a letter of inquiry was sent to the Alpha Chapter and referred to the Executive Board, which sent back word giving instructions as to a formal petition. The petition was drawn up and forwarded, and was then referred to a committee composed of Hon. Charles Allard Low, Pi, '65, and Hon. William Emory F. Deal, Epsilon, '59, both of San Francisco, to look into the matter. A favorable report was sent to the convention, held in 1902, and then the matter was sent out to the various chapters for consideration. It was found that Dr. Edwin Anderson Alderman, Lambda, '82, was to deliver the charter day address, March 23, 1903, at California, so the Executive Board asked that if all were in favor the charter might be granted that day and the chapter installed. The vote was returned favorable for the installation of the California chapter. F. B. Bower, Alpha, '92, Grand Sigma; E. A. Alderman, Lambda, '82, and C. A. Low, Pi, '67, were appointed as an installing committee. Dr. Alderman was unable to be present that day, but later paid a visit to the new chapter. The Alpha Lambda Chapter was installed duly on March 23, 1903, by Brothers Bower and Low. Two days after the installation an important meeting was held to discuss plans of campaign. A new chapter house was decided upon, and a committee was appointed to draw up by-laws and rules which would be applicable to the local chapter. For several of the following meetings the new brethren made themselves acquainted with the customs and laws of the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity. A house on the corner of Ellsworth Street and Bancroft Way was leased for five years. All the officers thoroughly acquainted themselves with the duties for which they were responsible and all the paraphernalia necessary for these offices was obtained. On March 23, 1904, the first anniversary of Alpha Lambda, a banquet was held, to which only members were invited. This custom still prevails, and on each year in March Alpha Lambda gathers all her old members about to renew old times and acquaintances. At the time of the San Francisco earthquake, April 18, 1906, the doors of the Phi Kap house were thrown open and entertained several of the homeless from the stricken city, and in recognition of this fact, those who were entertained presented the house with a beautifully engraved loving cup.

The results of the first decade of our existence represents the fruits of an uphill battle, fought and won by men that held the honor and future prosperity of Alpha Lambda as their highest ideal. We were at that time the only chapter of the fraternity west of the Mississippi and were naturally handicapped by a lack of active relationship with the other chapters of the organization. The fact that it was possible for Alpha Lambda to flourish under these conditions was largely due to the influence of the national organization. Long before the founding of this chapter was authorized, the reputation of Phi Kappa Sigma, an organization that fostered the highest of ideals, had spread widely throughout the west. This, of course, was brought to the attention of many of the men entering the University and through it we were able to initiate men who not only proved themselves loyal Phi Kaps while in college but men who have since as alumni forwarded every interest of the organization. So great was the effect of the national organization over this chapter that within ten years of the time of our installation we found ourselves in a position commanding the respect of the organizations of the Greek World of this institution.

In 1908 the chapter house was moved to 2426 Virginia Street. Although well suited for their purpose, Alpha Lambda soon outgrew these accommodations and for several years felt keenly the need of a new home. This necessity gave rise to what is known as the Phi Kappa Sigma Building Association. The object of this organization was to raise funds for the construction of a new home that would meet, more satisfactorily, the demands of the chapter. In 1912 the efforts of this organization were realized by the erection of the present chapter house at 1726 Euclid Avenue. The indebtedness incurred by this project is gradually being reduced by funds that are obtained from pledges made to the Building Association by each neophyte at the time of his initiation. Two years later the house was named "Beatty Hall" in honor of Judge William Henry Beatty, Eta, '59.

Alpha Lambda has always maintained a position among the leading organizations of the campus. Not only has this been true with reference to college activities but has also been the case of our scholarship records. For the past ten years we have kept a scholarship record higher than the university average. We are the only men's organization that has maintained an average such as this for as great a period of time. For the past year our average was fifth among the fraternities.

Nineteen hundred and fifteen was perhaps the greatest year in the history of Alpha Lambda for it was during that year that we were made to appreciate the real greatness of the fraternity as never before. This was caused by the occurrence of three events. The first, the founding of Alpha Tau Chapter at Sanford, brought us in closer relationship with brothers other than members of our own chapter. The second, the holding of the National Convention at San Francisco, gave us an opportunity to become better acquainted with the ideals of the fraternity. The third, the fact that the World's Fair brought many visitors to this part of the country gave us an opportunity to meet and learn to know a great many of the brothers from the eastern chapters.

Our experiences during the war undoubtedly parallel those of many of the other chapters. Early in 1917 an ambulance unit was organized on the campus. Brother John H. Brown was placed in command of the unit and soon accompanied them to France. This was the first loss suffered by the house but it was not long until the greater part of upper class and a number of the lower class had entered the service. A year later saw the close of the house, the only active men were the younger ones enlisted in the Students' Army Training Corps and detailed to barracks on the campus. Exclusive of these some ninety of Alpha Lambda's active men and alumni entered the service. The signing of the armistice and the quick discharge of the men enabled us to open our house in January, 1919. From that date conditions have improved until we are now back to our pre-war basis. Alpha Lambda was greatly gratified to see the installation of the Alpha Upsilon Chapter, the third chapter founded on the Pacific Coast.

Alpha Lambda is very proud of the fact that Brother David P. Barrows, Alpha Lambda, '95, was recently appointed to succeed Benjamin Ide Wheeler as President of this University. Brother Barrows served this university for many years as Dean of the Faculties and a Professor of Political Science. At the outbreak of the war he received the commission of Major and was sent to the Philippines. He soon was promoted to a Lieutenant-colonelcy and detailed in command of the Intelligence Department in Siberia. At the close of the war Brother Barrows returned to his former position as a member of the faculty. He soon received the appointment of President of the University.

History of Alpha Mu Chapter

Alpha Mu Chapter was founded at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, on October 16, 1903. In 1889 a petition to the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity from certain students of the Institute was for some reason rejected. The question of a chapter at "Tech" did not again arise until 1902, when Alfred T. Levine, of Alpha Iota, conferred with the Executive Board in Philadelphia, and communicated to it the statement that a number of desirable students at "Tech" were considering a petition to the Fraternity. The result was an application which was approved in due time and the chapter created on the date first mentioned. The institution of the five charter members was conducted by Frank B. Bower and Boyd Lee Spahr, of the Executive Board, assisted by William H. Walker, Psi, '88, and Frederick T. Hyde, Tau; '91.

During the first year of the chapter's existence little attempt was made to strengthen the organization. Then, just before the close of the college year, the gravity of the situation suddenly became apparent to the members, and they initiated three Sophomores to replace the graduating Seniors.

Only four men returned to represent Phi Kappa Sigma in the fall of 1904, but they immediately began an active campaign for new material. These were hard times for the young chapter. It had little to attract the prospective candidate — no chapter house, no established reputation, nothing but the friendship of a few enthusiastic, hard-working men and the prestige of the national Fraternity; but these proved enough, and by the following spring the membership had increased to thirteen. Up to this time meetings had been held in the rooms of the various members, but in the spring a small house was rented on Aspinwall Avenue, Brookline, and some of the men lived there until June. The experiment was not a success however, mainly because of the distance from the Institute; and the house was given up at the end of the college year.

The fall of 1905 found Alpha Mu with nine members. Until Christmas the chapter rented a room on Huntington Avenue for a meeting place. This proving inadequate for its growing needs, several rooms were secured at 262 Newbury Street, in the heart of the fraternity district. Several men lived there during the spring. This was the first important step toward establishing the reputation of Phi Kappa Sigma at the Institute.

The fall of 1906 marked the beginning of Alpha Mu's present prosperity. A three-story house, 314 Newbury Street, was leased for one year, and for the first time in the history of the chapter regular meals were served in the house.

The next fall a larger three-story house, 422 Newbury Street, was taken. This remained the headquarters of Alpha Mu for two years. During this time the chapter continued to grow and prosper, strengthening its organization and preparing for its greater progress.

In the fall of 1909 a large four-story house, 225 Newbury Street, was chosen as the home of Alpha Mu, which found itself capable of competing successfully with the best fraternities at the Institute.

The chapter remained at 225 Newbury Street until 1914, when a larger and better house was rented at 203 Bay State Road, in the best residential district in Boston. During the period from 1910 to 1914 the chapter greatly strengthened its standing at the Institute, keeping its membership constant between twenty-five and thirty men.

The next period in Alpha Mu's history is that of the World War. Although the membership ranks became gradually thinner, this was a period of great prosperity. The few men who were in College realized the task they had before them in keeping up the standing of the chapter, with a result that they worked doubly hard; and the success of Alpha Mu Chapter of today, second to no other Fraternity at Technology, is largely due to the efforts of those men during the War, and to the timely aid and cooperation of our Alumni.

The War brought sadness to our doors. Alpha Mu lost two of her finest products, men who had the interests of the Fraternity close to their hearts. Brother William Eastman, Jr., who was serving in the capacity of Instructor in the U. S. School of Army Aviation at Technology, was seriously injured in the fall of 1917, being struck by an aeroplane propellor, dying a few days later from the injuries sustained. Brother James Phillip Uhlinger died a year later during the influenza epidemic while in the service at Camp Meade.

A year later we received the sad news of the death of Brother Henry F. King, Epsilon, 67, Pi, '68, "the grand old man of Alpha Mu." For years "Pa" was our Chapter Visitor, and was given the title of Chapter Visitor Emeritus. His conscientious efforts and work on behalf of the chapter, as well as for the Fraternity as a whole, had much to do with our present prosperity. With the sudden death of Brother "Pa" King from old age, the Fraternity lost a true Phi Kap and a loyal friend.

Alpha Mu is back to normal size again. We stand foremost among the Fraternities at Technology. We look forward into the future with the firm conviction that Alpha Mu will prove to be a most valuable asset to the Fraternity.

History of Alpha Nu Chapter

The spring of 1903 found technical education enjoying a public approval and patronage that had not been accorded it in years, and realizing that with the progress that was sure to follow it would be necessary to keep the fraternal conditions equally well advanced, several members of the student body at the Georgia School of Technology busied themselves to secure charters from some of the foremost of the national fraternities not then represented at "Tech." Their efforts resulted in the establishment of three new chapters — one of which was the Alpha Nu Chapter of the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity, which chapter was established and instituted on January 15, 1904, at the Aragon Hotel, Atlanta, Ga. The chapter had its birth through the efforts of Harvey Hatcher, Phi, '92, who, in the spring of 1903, interested Bryan M. Blackburn, who at that time was a student at Georgia School of Technology. Alfred T. Levine, Alpha Iota, added his enthusiastic support to the movement to secure the charter. During the summer of 1903 Bryan M. Blackburn and J. Ernest Sims succeeded in securing the support and co-operation of five other students. A petition was then prepared and circulated among the active chapters of the Fraternity and voted on at the Richmond Convention of January 1, 1904. The petition was granted and seven men were duly initiated on the evening of January 15, 1904, by a committee appointed by the Executive Committee and composed of John Reiss, Mu; Harvey Hatcher, Phi; Alfred T. Levine, Alpha Iota; Harry Anderson, Phi; Roy Bennett Pace, Phi; Frank B. Dancy, Lambda.

At first the regular weekly meetings were held in the law office of Harvey Hatcher.

At the opening of the scholastic year in the fall of 1904 only five men returned, but by united efforts a very strong and necessary foundation had been laid, for though weak numerically, the chapter had become so interwoven into the affairs of the college as to be quite a factor, which was shown by the success at the following "rushing season." By this time the chapter occupied nicely appointed rooms and felt well under way. It was in this year that Alpha Nu sent her first representative, Bryan M. Blackburn, to the Baltimore Convention.

At the fall term of 1905 J. Ernest Sims was the only one of the charter members who returned to college, four of the others having been graduated. But with him as a leader, a very strong foothold was gained by the chapter of 1905 and 1906.

In the year of 1906 and 1907 the last efforts of the upbuild period were completed and the work of the preceding years was crowned with success by bringing out the chapter of 1907 and 1908, the strongest of any in the life of Alpha Nu and which made her a leader at "Tech." Its influence was recognized politically, socially and in all departments of student activity and those of us who had nursed the chapter in its infancy with no little anxiety felt repaid by the position given to our Fraternity at "Tech."

History of Alpha Xi Chapter

The petition of the charter members of the chapter was sent to the Grand Chapter on November 25, 1904, and the charter was granted at the next convention.

Alpha Xi Chapter was installed at Purdue University on November 25, 1905, just one year after the petition was presented, by a committee composed of William J. Crumpton of Alpha Theta and Rodman M. Brown of Alpha Beta.

The home of the chapter at that time was known as "The Crow's Nest" on Waldren Street. Later, when more room was needed the chapter moved to what was known as the Col. Thompson house on Columbia Street and about a year later it moved to 805 South Street which was occupied until 1911.

About the fall of 1906 a building fund was started with a view to the chapter owning its own home in the near future and a series of notes was signed by each initiate the last of which were to be due ten years after leaving school.

The fund thus started grew gradually until about 1911, when there was organized what was known as The Purdue Chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma Incorporated.

This organization, composed of both alumni and active men, purchased a house at 234 Littleton Street to which a fine lounging room and dormitory were added as a start towards a complete rebuilding.

Thus the chapter carried on until the war came on with its call for men and Alpha Xi responded to the extent that there were just four active men in the house in the spring of 1918 and they were too young to go.

It was at this point that something had to be done to keep the house going, so the Trustees of the Endowment fund of the Fraternity were appealed to.

The result was a house building campaign, the drawing up of plans and the decision to build the new house during the summer of 1920, but under the existing financial condition of the country it looks as though there might be a year's delay.

History of Alpha Omicron Chapter

The charter for Alpha Omicron Chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma was granted by the Grand Chapter on December 6, 1905, and the chapter was installed on December 16th of the same year. On that date nine charter members were initiated.

In February, 1906, the chapter began its life in humble but hopeful fashion by renting a modest house which served to shelter the fraternity for several years. It was during these early years that broad, solid, deep, and enduring foundations were laid, policies evolved, helpful traditions established and wholesome ideals inculcated. It was indeed the formative period of the chapter during which Alpha Omicron, faithful to the ideals of Phi Kappa Sigma, acquired those permanent characteristics of strength, stability, energy, and idealism which have brought it to the forefront of fraternities at Michigan. Although inadequate in many respects, this house served the purposes of a fraternity home until the growth of the chapter made a change of dwelling imperative. More adequate quarters in a more fitting location were badly needed. The founders and early members of the chapter foreseeing such an eventuality had already made their preparations. Provisions were early made for a building fund: a series of notes was issued by the chapter in 1907. Practically every member, undergraduate and alumnus alike, subscribed his quota. Since then each new initiate signs his series: a pledge of his abiding interest in the chapter and its future.

As a first step toward the possession of a new house, the chapter purchased an excellent piece of property admirably located in the fraternity quarter. The private dwelling on the estate skilfully remodeled provided a comfortable home for the chapter. It was soon evident that the continued expansion of the chapter was taxing the capacity of the house to the utmost; it was clear that a much larger one was necessary, if the chapter was to continue unhampered its normal growth. Plans were then made for a new and commodious house which was to be a distinct addition to Ann Arbor from the architectural standpoint. There was much discussion, much consultation, much planning, limitless enthusiasm and unbounded hope. The prospect of a new house was fascinating and stimulating and everything seemed at one moment to conspire to create a touching belief in the almost immediate realization of the long-cherished but oft-deferred hope. As the chapter stood looking eagerly to the future confident of the fruition of its desire, it saw the approach of the inevitable war and the vision vanished as Alpha Omicron stood facing the old house and the future which none dare fathom.

The growth of the chapter has been steady and consistent, in harmony with the constant aim of Alpha Omicron to demand a high standard of manhood from its initiates, preferring strong internal development to over-rapid advancement. In the course of the period from June, 1906, to September, 1907, four of the younger members of the faculty of the University were initiated. This proved a wise procedure for by their academic assistance and loyalty they have greatly contributed to the ideals of the men and the local standing of the chapter. An indication of the healthy, steady growth of Alpha Omicron during the past decade may be seen in the fact that, whereas the chapter roll contained in 1910 the names of fifty-eight men, it contains today upwards of one hundred and seventy.

Long handicapped by lack of alumni, seriously hampered by lack of adequate quarters, constantly growing, Alpha Omicron has in spite of every material difficulty forged ahead with almost phenomenal success, largely because every energy was bent to attain first of all the prime essentials, manhood and brotherhood. A glance at the chapter roll will disclose how fully the men of Alpha Omicron realized those great ideals when the crisis came. Some brothers won distinction for valorous deeds in battle; some made the supreme sacrifice — they are our glory and our pride and constant inspiration; others lived in daily, hourly danger, cheerfully doing their bit on land and sea. Everyone did that which it came within his power to do in order that victory might be won and the Nation live. The old house on Washtenaw Avenue performed its share of service too: it was used as one of the barracks for the S. A. T. C.

Now a new era begins full of hope and promise. Once again the need of a new house impresses itself, this time with even more compelling force, for many are returning to complete their University course interrupted by the war and the general increase in student enrollment brings many more to the brotherhood. Enthusiasm is widespread again among the active men and the alumni. Careful guidance in the past has achieved most commendable results. The prospects for the future are indeed bright. It is reasonable to hope that in a comparatively short while the chapter, stronger and better than ever, may open a new and fitting house. But in the mind of Alpha Omicron it has always been of far greater importance to realize the noble ideals of Phi Kappa Sigma, the value of which was never more evident than today.

History of Alpha Pi Chapter

The founding of the University of Chicago in 1893 introduced a new phase of university education in the Middle West. Before this time the state universities had practically dominated higher education in this section of the country.

The publicity given to the university led many fraternities to establish chapters at Chicago almost immediately after it was founded. Phi Kappa Sigma in its usual conservative way did not establish a chapter until the new institution had demonstrated that it was to rank as one of the leading universities of the country. By 1903 it became apparent to western members of the fraternity that the central position of the university in the Middle West and its intimate relation to the high schools of Chicago made it imperative that Phi Kappa Sigma be represented here. Consequently steps were taken to found it under the auspices of the Armour Chapter. The consent of the Grand Chapter to initiate students of the University of Chicago as regular members of Alpha Epsilon was secured. Thirteen men were accordingly initiated, and petitioned the convention in December, 1905, for a charter as a separate chapter, which was granted on December 30 of that year.

In the fall of the year preceding the installation ceremonies the majority of the men had established themselves in a chapter house near the campus of the University of Chicago, initiating their men at the Armour House, and technically members all the while of Alpha Epsilon Chapter. Installation was deferred until after the chapter at the University of Michigan had been installed.

Handicapped severely at the beginning of its second year by the absence by graduation of the majority of its charter members, the chapter's remaining members launched into a hard fight to retain chapter strength. The situation was aggravated by the dearth of fraternity timber among the freshmen. This dearth was the result of the radical modification of rules governing the participation in athletics at the university. Every chapter at the university suffered visibly, and the hardest burden fell naturally upon the youngest chapters. It was during this early struggle that the virility and stamina of the chapter was demonstrated. With the counsel and support of a number of alumni of older chapters Alpha Pi soon developed an organization adapted to the local situation, and the success of the chapter was assured.

In 1908 the chapter moved to a house at 6054 Kimbark Avenue where it remained for three years. During these early years the fraternity was fortunate in numbering among its members several of the most famous athletes in the history of the university. These men insured the publicity so essential to a new chapter. At the same time the chapter carried forward a social program aimed to introduce it into campus activities. Probably the most notable social functions in the history of the chapter were the elaborate receptions held at the house on Washington's birthday in 1909 and '10. These affairs did much to gain recognition for the chapter in university social circles.

Throughout its early years Alpha Pi labored under the handicap of living too far from the campus and it was a realization of this difficulty which led the chapter to take a step which meant much in its future growth. In the spring of 1911 the chapter leased a large and expensive house on University of Chicago property at 5824 Woodlawn Avenue. As another fraternity had not been able to finance this house, it was thought that Phi Kap could not carry such a heavy budget as this project demanded. It was found, however, that the advantage of proximity to the campus more than offset the added expenses. The chapter remained at this location for six years and many of the traditions of this chapter originated there. This house with others near it shortly is to be torn down to provide room for the new chapel which is to be the architectural center of the University. One of the reasons for the success of the chapter during this period was the stimulating supervision of Brother D. H. Plank of Psi, who for a number of years was chapter visitor. It would be difficult to overestimate the value of his service to Alpha Pi.

From its earliest days the chapter had hoped and planned to own its own home, but definite steps toward this end were not made until the Autumn of 1916. In the year previous, Brother W. C. West of Alpha Mu had become chapter visitor and under his driving leadership plans were soon on foot for a house for Alpha Pi. The project was quietly launched at the Chicago Convention in 1916 and received the cordial support of the Grand Board. In February, 1917, the alumni of Alpha Pi were called together at a luncheon in the Engineers Club and a campaign for the chapter house started. The chief result of this first meeting was the selection of Brother Lee H. Madden as chairman of the committee to make the drive for subscriptions. Other members of the committee were Brothers F. D. Hatfield, Irwin N. Walker, John J. Schommer, Alwin W. Ehrhardt, Blaine Claypool, Nils Hokanson, A. H. Hruda, H. A. Babcock, Charles H. Soutter and Charles C. Colby. The campaign for funds could not have been made at a more inopportune time than in the Spring of 1917, on account of the tightening of the money market which followed the entry of the United States in the War. However, the campaign went forward successfully, the fund pledged by the alumni and active chapter was raised, and the Trustees of the National Endowment Fund purchased the house at 5733 University Avenue in August, 1917. The committee in charge and many others did noteworthy work in raising the necessary funds, but it is to the untiring energy, keen judgment, and unswerving loyalty of Brothers Madden and West that Alpha Pi owes its permanent home.

The chapter moved into its new quarters in September, 1917, and was officially installed on Founder's Day of that year. Alpha Pi may well be proud of its record during the War. Over half of the men on the entire roster of the chapter were in service and many others were engaged in important war work. From September, 1918, to January, 1919, during the S. A. T. C. experiments, the house was taken over by the government and was used as a hospital. Naturally during the latter period of the war the chapter was reduced in numbers but there never was a moment when its future was in question. Much of the credit for this showing was due to the loyalty and organizing ability of Edwin F. Sackett, now deceased, who was Alpha at that time.

In the last two years the chapter's development has been rapid. The steady progress and growing influence of Alpha Pi have justified the hope of its founders and the loyal support of all who have labored to make it a worthy representative of Phi Kappa Sigma at the University of Chicago.

History of Alpha Rho Chapter

The Alpha Rho Chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma was founded in 1911. The Cerberus Club from which the Alpha Rho chapter was originated was organized in 1904. In that year a few upper classmen of university prominence became associated together and organized an upperclass club. They engaged a house on Buffalo Street and continued as an upper class club until 1908. The Cerberus Fraternity was organized at that time and soon it broadened out into a local fraternity and took a new house on Osmun Place, at the same time taking into its ranks members of the lower as well as the upper classes.

Cerberus, in a short time, developed into the strongest and one of the best local fraternities at Cornell. Realizing that the future growth of the University was in the direction of Cornell Heights, the present location was purchased and thereon a $20,000 Chapter House was built in the year of 1910.

About this time it became known that the National Fraternity of Phi Kappa Sigma would look with favor upon an application for a charter from the Cerberus Fraternity. National fraternities were well represented at Cornell and the fact that Phi Kappa Sigma had held off so long to select a crowd which would measure up to their standards, counted in no little way to influence the decision of Cerberus to apply. This decision was made in the Fall term of 1910 and submitted to the Grand Chapter. Following a visit to the Cerberus Chapter House and due consideration of the application the charter was granted under the name Alpha Rho of Cornell. A healthy young branch had taken the place of a sturdy old tree. The solemn initiation ceremonies took place in the present chapter house on June 2, 1911. Twenty-two undergraduates as well as several visiting alumni were taken in at that time. Since then nearly all of the Cerberus alumni have been received into Phi Kappa Sigma.

Despite the comparative short time that Alpha Rho has been in existence it has taken its place among the leading fraternities at Cornell. Its men are active in the University life and its average standard of scholarship is high. With a steady and healthy growth Alpha Rho holds optimistic prospects of more pretentious quarters before many years: The present chapter house is beautifully situated on the shores of Beebee Lake and stands out as one of the main points of interest on the Cornell Campus.

Early in 1917, prior to the entrance of the United States into the World War, Alpha Rho conceived the plan of raising one thousand dollars in the general Fraternity to purchase and equip an ambulance for the American Hospital Service in France. The sum was quickly raised and turned over to the hospital authorities, who wrote that the ambulance was officially designated in the name of the Fraternity.

History of Alpha Sigma Chapter

In recording the history of this Chapter it is proper that a few words be said relative to the antecedent organization which petitioned for and was given a charter in Phi Kappa Sigma. This organization was originally a chapter of a national legal fraternity, but upon the union of the national organization with two other legal fraternities, it was decided to withdraw and petition a national academic fraternity for a charter. After a careful study of the situation, a committee forwarded a petition to the executive board of Phi Kappa Sigma which was favorably acted upon by the usual process. Up to the installation of Alpha Sigma chapter, the petitioning organization had remained local for twenty-one months.

On June 5, 1915, Alpha Sigma Chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma was installed at the University of Minnesota by Harold L. Barnes, Nuel D. Belnap and Lewis O. Kuhn who had been regularly authorized for this purpose.

Since this date, when fifty-two members of the petitioning organization were initiated, Alpha Sigma has had a steady, virile, uninterrupted life. The war was the hardest strain but the Chapter maintained itself although for a few months the house was closed, due to military activity on the campus.

Alpha Sigma is very proud to state that she had about ninety-five men in the active service of the country. Since the war the Chapter has been particularly progressive and today the Chapter feels that it is as active and substantial as can reasonably be desired.

In the war the Chapter lost one of its finest sons, Brother Howard E. Clark '15 who died while serving as an aviator in France. Our only other deceased member is Walter W. Denny '18 who died January 26, 1920.

The general policy of the Chapter has been in accord with the purposes of the national fraternity. The new members are selected carefully and discriminately with a view always of strengthening the fraternity. To date one hundred and twenty-three men have been initiated into the fraternity.

For the past ten years we have had a very comfortable home at 1214 4th Street, S.E., Minneapolis, the home-like appearance and atmosphere of which has meant so much to the men who have come and gone. On February, 1920 a fire threatened to destroy the house but it was saved after valiant fighting with only a moderate amount of damage being done.

The greatest concern of the future is to own a home. A careful, conservative survey of the situation reveals the prospect of building one of the best fraternity houses on the campus within the next decade.

Alpha Sigma's situation geographically enables it to be the "rendezvous" for many Phi Kaps and the Chapter register testifies to the numerous and repeated visits from Phi Kaps from all over the country.

It is the intention of the Chapter to strengthen the intercourse between the mid-western chapters in particular and all Phi Kaps in general and thus advance the high standard of the national fraternity.

History of Alpha Tau Chapter

In the spring of 1912 E. Harvey Mitchell transferred from the University of California to take up his studies at the Leland Stanford Jr. University. It is to this move that the real beginning of the Alpha Tau Chapter may be traced, for without Brother Mitchell's leadership and initiative, it is very doubtful that the new chapter would have been possible. During the spring of that year he had carefully studied the fraternity situation at Stanford, and by the fall semester he had more or less definite ideas formulated in relation to the foundation of a new organization which some day might become a chapter of this fraternity. He gathered around him L. L. Stewart, '13, Charles F. Bevan, '14, Ivan Hulsman, '15 and W. A. Harper, '16, and with these men as a nucleus informal meetings were held with the idea of locating a permanent living place upon the campus; very shortly new men were interested in the plan — these were, E. L. Bowes, '15, W. K. Bowes, '15, M. C. Gunn, '16, E. T. Johnston, '16 and J. V. Wood, '16.

In formulating plans for this new society, which afterwards came to be known as The Lodge, very valuable assistance was given by the men of other fraternities on the campus, and also by a few members of the faculty. It was ascertained that the home of the local chapter of Phi Gamma Delta would soon be vacated upon the completion of their new house, and negotiations were soon concluded whereby The Lodge was to take over their old home, and also a considerable part of their furniture and equipment. It so happened, that on the return of the members of this new local organization from their Christmas vacation that everything was in readiness to move in the new home at 18 Alvarado Row.

As was to be expected the first semester of the existence of The Lodge was one of many difficulties and problems — several of the men who had intended to join the new organization withdrew, and the first few weeks were ones of discouragement. However, the eleven men worked together as a single unit, each one lending his co-operation to the utmost and also supplying generously the very necessary financial aid. Additional members were taken in, and by the end of the first semester of 1913, The Lodge was a really going organization. It was during this time that the affiliation of Brother Mitchell with Alpha Lambda Chapter became known, and the matter of making application to the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity was informally discussed.

In the fall of that year, new members were initiated into the group. The University authorities had redecorated and improved the house, and new equipment and furniture was purchased. It was at this time that The Lodge started in earnest to take an important part in college activities, and the permanence of the organization was assured. Practically all of the older men had returned, and each without exception gave his unselfish support to the plans and maintenance of this new house. During these months due to Brother Mitchell, a spirit of friendliness and interest between Alpha Lambda Chapter and the local club became very apparent. Members of each organization exchanged visits, and by the first of 1914 The Lodge had fully determined to apply for a local chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma at Stanford; this petition was duly forwarded to the convention then being held in the East, which postponed action on this petition for a year.

During 1914 The Lodge had come to be recognized as an organization of great promise on the campus. New members were obtained in active competition with the other local chapters — their influence in college affairs and activities was greatly becoming more and more prominent, and this local society had never been in a more flourishing condition. Many of the older men from the Alpha Lambda Chapter by their frequent visits had given valuable advice, and the prosperity which The Lodge enjoyed was in no small part due to the assistance which they gave.

In the spring of 1915 word was received from the fraternity headquarters in the East that the petition of The Lodge had been unanimously approved by all of the other chapters, and in May of that year Alpha Tau Chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma was formally installed. The installation committee consisted of Thomas Buck, Alpha Delta, '01, Summerfield F. Norwood, Alpha Zeta, '07 and Maurice E. Harrison, Alpha Lambda, '08.

From this time until the spring of 1917 the Chapter continued to strengthen its organization and improve its personnel. While there were rumors of war with Germany, and speculations about its effects on fraternities, it was not until the formal declaration, that the Chapter's members started to leave in numbers. A few of the brothers had already gone across in ambulance units, but it was the first series of Officers' Training Camps which started a dash for the service.

In the fall the Chapter opened its doors with only thirteen men. Five more were initiated but of these eighteen all were in the service before the close of the scholastic year. On October 19, 1917, at the Founders' Day Banquet, the Alpha Lambda and Alpha Tau Chapters had their last formal get-together for two years.

It was not until January 5, 1919, that the Chapter once more became active. At this time eighteen of the members had already been discharged, and were back to continue their studies when the University opened. In a short time these men were able to build the Chapter up to its normal pre-war strength, and the future once more looked bright. Phi Kappa Sigma was one of the first to regain its activity with the result that instead of being the youngest chapter at Stanford it immediately became a leader.

In the spring an interfraternity conference was organized by Brother L. C. Rogers, '17, which formulated new rushing rules. In the fall the new system which prohibited the pledging of men prior to one semester's residence went into effect. This put all the fraternities on a fair competitive basis, and results again were indicative of Alpha Tau's high position. The strong financial position made it possible to put the chapter house in good condition, and allowed the Chapter to spend the necessary money for rushing. Seven men were pledged including the Freshmen football Captain and others who had made themselves prominent in activities.

With the winter came numerous statements from the President of the University that seemed to indicate his desire to remove fraternities and sororities from Stanford. Later in the year the President's policies apparently changed, for by the coming of the summer vacation he had given fraternity men to understand that fraternities would be fostered by the University's officers so long as they made an earnest effort to be an asset to the college community.

It is therefore quite certain that in the future Phi Kappa Sigma's representative at Stanford will continue to be a leader of fraternity chapters there as it has been in the past.

History of Alpha Upsilon Chapter

The idea of the local society was first conceived by three men, members of the Sphinx Club of the University of Washington who carefully selected a group of men and announced in May, 1914, the formation of a fraternity to be known as the Pi Tau Upsilon Fraternity. After careful consideration of the fraternities not represented at Washington, it was finally decided that the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity more nearly represented the ideals which the Pi Tau Upsilon Fraternity aspired to than any other national fraternity, and in December, 1916 a petition was sent to the Executive Board.

Despite the fact that the war greatly upset scholastic work in 1917-1919, the local chapter succeeded as one of the few fraternities at Washington in maintaining a chapter house. Over eighty per cent of the membership were in the service and the three members who gave their lives in the cause will always be honored.

At the Atlantic City Convention on June 27, 1919 a charter was granted to Alpha Upsilon Chapter making the Washington chapter the thirtieth of the fraternity and the first in the Pacific Northwest. The installation ceremony was held at the chapter house at 4504 16th Ave. N. E., Seattle, on August 23, 1919. Grand Pi William C. West conducted the installation, assisted by Brothers Frederick C. Larkin and Robert G. Reiniger, Alpha Epsilon, '02, Dr. Arthur H. Gray, Alpha Iota, '06, and George E. Burget, Alpha Pi, '14. Thirty-two members of the local fraternity were initiated.

At the present time the membership of the chapter numbers seventy-one. Two choice lots in the heart of the fraternity district were recently purchased and in a few years Alpha Upsilon Chapter will build there.

With the University of Washington returning to its pre-war basis and with its record attendance of five thousand, the youngest chapter of the fraternity, Alpha Upsilon, is working hard to maintain the high standards of good fellowship and good scholarship so characteristic of the fraternity. The active chapter is doing all that is possible to encourage active participation both in university and fraternity affairs. With the alumni actively interested in our welfare, the future success of Alpha Upsilon Chapter is assured.

History of Alpha Phi Chapter

In 1915 seventeen undergraduates at the State University of Iowa organized the Apollo Club, which met semi-weekly in the "Iowa Union" until the autumn term of 1916 when the club occupied a rented house. From its inception it was favorably received by the national fraternities at Iowa and was represented in all phases of university life.

A petition for a charter of Phi Kappa Sigma was formally presented to the Fraternity in March, 1917. Due to the world war the Fraternity declined to take an action at that time, but after thorough investigation and consideration the charter was granted in September, 1920, and on the twenty-fifth of that month the chapter was duly instituted. The ceremony was conducted by William C. West (Alpha Mu), Grand Pi, Arthur M. Jens (Alpha Epsilon), Grand Epsilon and Arthur M. Trowbridge (Alpha Pi), the last named being professor of geology at Iowa. Forty men were initiated, of whom twenty-nine are undergraduates and the balance alumni.

The chapter now occupies a house at 114 East Market Street, a desirable location, two blocks from the campus, and on which it has secured a seven-year lease.

In conclusion it may safely be said that the baby chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma has every prospect of a successful future in keeping with the history and standards of the Fraternity.
