Haul Road Proposal Takes Local Business Persons By Surprise

by Gloria J. Conway

A haul road that would provide an alternate route for trucks and commercial traffic between Sullivan Square and the Charlestown Navy Yard has been the topic of discussion at numerous community meetings over the past several years.

Since January, when the Charlestown Neighborhood Council approved the concept of a haul road in conjunction with discussions on the Navy Yard Master Plan, the haul road has moved from talk to the drawing board when the Boston Redevelopment Authority hired Bruce Campbell & Associates to devise schematic drawings, along with a traffic analysis and conceptual cost estimates.

A July 17 meeting of the council's Haul Road Committee followed a preliminary presentation to the entire council at its July monthly meeting. Letters to businesses located along Medford Street as well as the concern of area residents, brought a gathering of nearly 50 to St. Francis de Sales hall to hear the presentation and ask questions of representatives from the BRA, Bruce Campbell & Associates and Vanasse Hangen Brustlin Inc., who conducted traffic studies.

As the plans for the proposed haul road were unfolded, several area business people were distressed and even irate that they had not been brought into the planning process early on.

Members of the council on hand for the meeting were committee co-chairmen Bob Wallace and Moe Gillen, along with Dennis McLaughlin, Tom Cunha,

Mel Stillman, Peter Loo-ney, Jim Conway, Stephen Collins, Bill Galvin and Jim Mansfield.

Paul Barrett, assistant director for harbor planning and development for the BRA, stated that two problems they have been dealing with in the development of the Navy Yard has been parking and access. He said that a haul road would be used for construction as well as for trucks and buses going to and from the marine area, and would lighten the traffic load at City Square.

Barrett pointed out that the concept for such a bypass road came from the neighborhood, was accepted as a concept by the BRA and presented to state officials who, he said, approved of this idea. He said that the BRA has met with some area businesses and talked to others briefly about the road, adding that the BRA is committed to the haul road when it finds it is best for everyone, and there will be a series of meetings on this.

Don Klabin, senior project manager for the BRA, pointed out that the basic planning objective for the roadway is to handle regional transportation, keeping heavy traffic off residential streets. He noted that Medford Street is lined with homes and that fact, along with the location of Charlestown High School, makes it an area that needs relative safety, and yet the street is mixed with trucks and cars, vehicles and pedestrians.

Klabin listed five community benefits and planning objectives in devising a new haul road. These included: diverting of truck, bus and through traffic away from Medford Street and onto a new bypass road; reconfiguring Medford Street as a neighborhood street; creating the opportunity for a landscaped buffer zone between the industrial waterfront sites north of Medford Street and the residences south of that street; acting as a relief valve by providing a bypass route avoiding City Square; and relocating access for industrial sites now accessible from Medford Street to the new bypass road, giving area businesses an opportunity to improve their property.

Bruce Campbell explained that his firm had devised some 10 possible schemes for the roadway, and subsequently eliminated eight of them. He said that the preferred scheme would follow the north side of the railroad alignment from the Schrafft Center property at Sullivan Square, connecting with the existing Terminal Street. It would include a 40-foot road with one lane of traffic in each direction and a breakdown lane, and a 24-foot landscaped buffer zone between the roadway and Medford Street.

In order to deter through traffic, Medford Street would become one way from Short Street to the intersection with Bunker Hill and Main streets. Also, to prevent Navy Yard traffic from using Medford Street, it would be one way from Decatur to Chelsea Street.

Bill Swartz of VHB Inc. said the firm has looked at the circulation issues. He said that a signal at the junction of the bypass road and Main Street would cause traffic to queue into Sullivan Square. He did say that a police officer might be warranted during rush hour to facilitate a left turn from Sullivan Square onto the bypass road.

Swartz added that truck access to Medford Street businesses would be made from the haul road connector that would come out onto Medford Street opposite Baldwin Street. He added that cars could go up Bunker Hill Street and take Short or Baldwin streets to access Medford Street.

Klabin said that this haul road scheme would cost approximately $5,250,000 for construction, and approximately $3,550,000 for land acquisitions, totaling $8.8 million. He added that if the proposed roadway was increased to a 48- to 52-foot width, which would allow for a third lane, the total construction cost would be slightly increased to $9 million.

According to Klabin, the revenue for the road construction would be realized from the redevelopment of the Charlestown Navy Yard from 1990 to 2,000. State taxes from this redevelopment, including hotel, meals, retail sales, income and corporate excise, has been estimated at just over $13 million. He said that this regional and local transportation improvement is an affordable and justifiable expenditure.

When the meeting was opened to questions and comments from the public, most residential comment favored the construction of the haul road.

On the other hand, serious concerns were expressed by the representatives of area businesses.

Bud Shadrawy, attorney for Charlestown Marine Park, site of the former Amstar refinery, told the BRA that they would be taking land for the haul road that would be used for parking. He also asked why the railroad couldn't be used

WHEN SELLERS SHOULD BEWARE

In an effort to find a great agent to list your home, you contact four brokers, asking each to stop by for a listing presentation. Three of the four agents come in with a written analysis showing you can expect to get a little less than you had in mind. Then you talk to the town optimist, who thinks it can sell for much more than the competition. After all, she's a real marketing whiz. It just takes one person, and she'll find him. Or will she?

Some agents approach a listing appointment as if they're bidding for your home. Sellers often start out with an unrealistic opinion of the value of their homes, and there's a strong temptation to go with an agent who says what you want to hear. A good agent will back up an opinion of value with hard data, and should give you information about not only what else is currently on the market, but also the prices of recently sold property similar to yours. The most heroic marketing efforts won't work on a property that is overpriced. Even if you do find a buyer willing to pay more than your home is worth, the sale could fall apart when the appraisal comes in at a lower amount than the sales price.

For solid advice on buying or selling real estate, consult the professionals at Silva Realty. Please call us at 242-7470 or stop by our office at 371 Somerville Ave. in Somerville.

The placement of a community liaison at the site office is becoming more critical after the Boston Globe editorial announced that the project will expand at least another year. How much longer must the people of Charlestown continue to wait each day to read the Boston daily newspapers in order to find out what is happening in their own back yard? . . . Tick, Tick, Tick!

Dorothy Slamin Hill Monument Orator On 215th Anniversary Of The Battle Of Bunker Hill

Every seven years or so, the 17th of June — Bunker Hill Day — falls on a Sunday. When this occurs, it poses a special challenge for those persons in charge of the various events. This was such a year, and June 17 was full of activities, marking the 215th anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Although each event adds to the celebration, the Ecumenical Service and Patriotic Exercises give residents and visitors an opportunity to pause and reflect on the real meaning of the community celebration. Participants look back to that hot June day in 1775 when the colonials took arms against the most powerful military force in the world at that time, the British, and made a brave stand for independence on the hills of Charlestown. It was the first pitched battle of the Revolution, and it gave impetus to the colonies to go forward in the fight for freedom.

The commemoration began with an Ecumenical Service at St. Francis de Sales Church atop Bunker Hill. The service included readings by James W. Conway, chairman of the Bunker Hill Day Commemorative Committee, and R.W. Norman H. Shaw, past District Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons in Massachusetts. A gospel reading from St. Matthew was delivered by Father Daniel J. Mahoney, pastor of St. Francis de Sales, and prayers were offered by Father William McConnell, also of St. Francis.

The St. Francis de Sales choir sang How Great Thou Art and Here I Am Lord with the congregation joining in. Highlighting the service was the inspiring rendition of Ave Maria by Kathleen Adams, accompanied by the Colonial Band of Lawrence.

Warm summer breezes carried the flags aloft as participants formed outside the church for a procession to the Bunker Hill Monument grounds. Carrying the colors were members of the Bunker Family Association of America. Association members had gathered in Charlestown from throughout the country for the Bunker Hill Day celebration to pay tribute to their ancestors.

The commemorative program opened with the participants joining in singing the National Anthem, accompanied by the Colonial Band of Lawrence.

Each of the speakers, in his own way, asked the gathering to reflect on the past. Father Mahoney, in his invocation, requested prayers for peace and justice in the world and asked that the values and goals for which the colonials fought be foremost in the minds of all.

Conway, the commemorative exercises chairman for 26 years, opened, closed and made the introductions at the ceremony. He welcomed the Bunker family, praised the elected officials for their continuing support and thanked those who came to remember and celebrate at the battle site.

Boston City Councillor Robert Travaglini brought his greetings and noted that it was important for all to reflect on the sacrifices that occurred on the hill.

Last year, Rep. Richard A. Voke, chairman of the House Committee on Ways and Means, was the Monument Orator. In his address on Bunker Hill Day 1989, Voke spoke of the hope of freedom in the world with the Chinese students fighting their government for democracy. This year he said, "Who would have thought that we would be here today watching freedom break out all over the world — it is a different world than we knew just 12 months ago." Voke also noted that with change, there is a permanency that exists with such commemorative events, and it shows the roots and commitment that exists in this community.

As the ceremony continued, William McCabe, commissioner of public safety for the Commonwealth, expressed his pride in being honored as this year's Bunker Hill Day Parade Chief Marshal. John Burchill, superintendent, Boston National Historical Park, was on hand to bring his greetings; Shaw, representing the Masons, spoke of the sacrifice of Dr. Joseph Warren, who was Grand Master of Masons at the time of his death on the field of battle 215 years ago; and Gilbert Bunker, president of the Bunker Family Association, reflected on the battle and the drawing together of the descendants of the Bunker family.

A WREATH was placed at the foot of the statue of Colonel William Prescott following the Patriotic Exercises on June 17, honoring those who gave their lives at the Battle of Bunker Hill. Shown (l. to r.) Gilbert Bunker, president, Bunker Family Association of America; Major Arthur Gaetjens, USAF (Ret.), head of the Charlestown High School Air Force JROTC; Matthew Malone, second place finalist, American Legion High School Oratorical Contest; James W. Conway, chairman, Bunker Hill Day Commemorative Exercises; Florence Bunker Schneider of Spokane, Wash., treasurer, Bunker Family Association; and R.W. Norman H. Shaw, Past District Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons in Massachusetts.

Also during the program, 18-year-old Matthew Malone shared excerpts from his speech on the United States Constitution with which he captured second place and a $16,000 scholarship in the National American Legion High School Oratorical Contest.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies, a wreath was placed at the foot of the statue of Col. William Prescott, honoring those who fought and died during the battle.

MONUMENT ORATION BY DOROTHY SLAMIN HILL

A battle to secure freedom and democracy for all was what I believe the Battle of Bunker Hill was meant to do. It has not accomplished in total what we would all like to see — freedom and democracy for the entire world. Some of it has not been within our control — our political people have tried.

I will be 75 my next birthday. I didn't feel we would see peace and harmony in the world if we continued going through the political process. A thought came to me during one of my many sleepless nights — Will we ever have peace throughout the world? I grew up, as many of us did, in the years of the expressions I am ashamed to admit to — "Oh, those Russians, oh, those Commies." I felt guilty about it and I felt I should attempt to do something about it although I was just one individual.

I decided to call Washington, D.C. to find out what my obligation was if I decided to go over to Russia and bring a group — not mentioning May Day, Red Square or the Legion Band. I was told that I had no obligations, that I could go anytime. I asked that it be put in writing.

That was the beginning.

The next thing was to ask how I could be part of a function, and my interest was only in one — the May Day celebration. I had made up my mind that if they wouldn't let us participate in the May Day celebration, they were not ready for peace.

I spent 14 months trying to talk to somebody who had any authority to invite us to participate. I spent hour after hour, month after month between 1 and 9 a.m. lying across my bed with the telephone trying to reach someone during their working hours. I often couldn't get through or if I did get through, they would hang up. I pleaded with operators to listen to me, but they wouldn't.

Finally, one operator seemed sympathetic to my cause and she gave me probably 30 seconds more than the others. I figured out that I was reaching her every fourth night and penned in dates on my calendar. After several weeks of begging her to listen, I finally had the chance to ask her to find someone in Russia, particularly in Moscow that had the authority to invite someone to participate in their celebrations, again not mentioning May or the May Day Parade. She finally got back that there was a Peace Commission.

With more nights and more telephone calls, I got through. Each time I called, I would reach a different member of the commission and would have to start all over. Finally they listened and I asked to speak to the head of the commission. This took another few months but I eventually reached a Mr. Boravick, a most powerful man who was most cordial. He kept asking if I was government and when he determined I was not government he asked, "How do we know you're you?" — a good question. I took two weeks preparing material on me and my activities dating back to 1928 and sent a two-inch packet of background material through the Embassy in Washington.

In the first conversation with Mr. Boravick after his receipt of the packet, he said, "We know you're you."

I tried to convince Mr. Boravick that a peace move was necessary, that his people were living in a way no one on God's earth should live. They were living in fear. I asked him why we couldn't get together and bring our thoughts to their's.

The government is people, but they don't act like it at all times. We had to deal people to people, and this was one time I was 100 percent right.

From the beginning to the end, I never dealt with our or Russian political groups with the exception of Mr. Boravick. He seemed interested and concerned, but he couldn't understand how one female could promote a peace movement from our country to their country. He set up the press coverage from both countries and it ended with his inviting us to participate in their parade. He agreed to set up our hotels, plan our concerts, make arrangements in Leningrad and arrange our transportation from Germany to Moscow. There was nothing he did not agree to do and he signed each item. We had 100 percent cooperation.

We arrived in Moscow and, as those in the American Legion know, our band plays informally wherever we go. Our first thought was how we would be received and we decided to get them psyched up.

One hour after we arrived in Moscow, we played outside the hotel and crowds gathered. When I first looked at the people, I wondered if we had done the right thing. They were very stern — no smiles. In 20-minute's time, we had them singing with us, crying with us, clapping with us. They were people — we were people to people. I danced with a 99-year-old woman. She begged the Americans not to go home. One lady in her 60s lay on the ground in front of all the people and prayed for all the Americans. It was a most emotional session. They cried many times, and so did we.

The next day, there was a concert in a park. They must have passed the word, because another person couldn't have gotten in because of the crowd. Wherever we went, wherever we played, the crowd gathered and participated with the band, singing and dancing.

On the day of the parade, there were 22 bands behind us. The crowd left the sidewalks when we went by and followed us, leaving no spectators for the rest of the parade. We went into a park with thousands of people who stood for two hours, packed in so close I don't know how they were even breathing. They stayed with us, sang with us, kissed us and loved us.

The Russian people have a great habit of showing their friendship with flowers. I would receive at least 50 bouquets of flowers in any one day during our 10-day stay.

I met with Mr. Boravick several times. The only problem that he had with me is that he thought my education had been neglected, and he was right. He said my teacher never taught me what the word "No" meant. He came to Waltham in June for a testimonial the city had for us, and he told this story. The people fell in love with him — he is so sincere.

He told me that never in his life did he expect he would see his people laughing, dancing and following us.

On one day, we had a general with all kinds of medals on his chest who stood for two hours at a concert. He said he never thought he would see his people like this. He said we did what the government couldn't do.

A crowd turned out when we were leaving. They cheered and cried, asking us not to go home. They made me get up publicly and promise I would be back — and I will go back. I think of those people now.

I found out what peace and love is all about. They could not believe the freedoms we have. They have no food. You go into the stores and there are lines of people, and nothing on the shelves. They stand in line for hours, hoping they are in the line for food. They are fearful. They found out that you can be happy, you can be smiling.

When we left there, we felt we had accomplished something and we were the happiest people in the world as we headed home — people together with people can do it!

IS OUR CHURCH FOR YOU?

We want to invite you to visit an independent, Bible-believing Church. Our Church is composed of sinners who have been saved by God's grace through faith in the blood of Jesus Christ (Col. 1:14 KJV). If you are looking for sermons instead of sermonettes, this is your Church. If you want to hear the Bible explained each week instead of poetry, tear-jerking stories, political opinions, "psychology for living" or pleas for money, this is your Church. If you are yearning to hear good old Gospel singing instead of funeral dirges, we invite you to our Church. We preach about and against sin, which is the reason for all of man's troubles. We also preach about a blood-stained cross and empty tomb which is the Gospel (Good News) which saves man from sin and Hell. Our Church is not formalistic or ritualistic. Please come and hear God's Word. "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God," Romans 10:17.

Haul Road Proposal

ed since it was underutilized.

Klabin responded that the BRA wants to talk to businesses on anticipated parking needs. He also said that the railhead connection at the port has potential use and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has proposed to dredge the Mystic River to enhance the port. He stated the BRA doesn't want to foreclose on options by restricting the use of the railroad right-of-way.

Mark Donovan, Flatley Co. representative, questioned Swartz as to what the level of service is at the intersection of the Schrafft Center drive and Main Street. He also asked what level of service the bypass road has been designed for.

Swartz responded that the present level of service at the drive is "C," what he called an acceptable level, and it would be "C" when the bypass road was completed. He said the road has been designated to include Navy Yard traffic as of 1995 and not development that has not been identified.

Later in the meeting, Donovan stated that he "feels like the Lone Ranger." He said that the haul road concept was brought to the Flatley Co. at a 30-minute meeting last February and that no further contact has been made since that time.

Donovan told the BRA that they are shifting the burden down to one place — the Schrafft Center. He said they have a 700,000-square-foot building that provides employment for 2,800 including many Charlestown residents, and care for 75 to 100 children in its day-care facility, as well as a community waterfront park, boat-launching facility and sailing program for local youth.

Donovan went on to say that the impact on the Schrafft Center would be devastating. He suggested considering moving the bypass road exit and entrance further back on Medford Street, which would allow easier access to the Medford Street businesses. He added that the haul road would make six major intersections in a small area.

He asked the BRA and the council to balance the equities, noting that the Flatley Co. has a significant project. In fairness, Donovan said, take a look at what the bypass road will do to us, telling the council members that they represent the businesses as well as the residents.

In order to demonstrate the effect of haul road on its property, Donovan said that he would have an engineer mark off the proposed road on the site within a week.

Jerry Wise, owner of Textile Waste Systems on Medford Street, expressed several concerns. He noted that even though he has been following the haul road discussions in the Patriot, he hadn't realized the project was so involved.

Wise pointed out that the buildings in that area are on filled land, and there are drainage problems now with heavy rain. He questioned whether drainage work on the road would help or hinder. In looking at the plans, Wise questioned whether there was adequate footage for the road at the rear of his property, noting he would be out to measure it in the morning. He stated that it seemed impossible to get a 40-foot truck into his yard, noting that this is his "life's blood."

Wise went on to note that there has been a significant decrease in truck traffic over the past few years and asked that if this bypass road is underutilized, is it economically feasible.

Barrett responded that they expect construction in the Navy Yard for the next 10 years, and the bypass road will minimize burdens to the neighborhood while maximizing the benefits. He added that the National Park Service and the New England Aquarium will generate three-million visitors a year, including many school buses.

Lee Keller of Somerville Lumber asked for a clarification on whether there would be access with curb cuts from the new road, to which Barrett said yes. Keller went on to say that the plan makes the company's front lot practically unusable. He added that they have discontinued operations at that site, and the property is up for sale.

Barrett said there will be a negotiating process with each owner, and a sale or acquisition price would be negotiated.

Astrid Glynn, counsel for the Boston Shipping Association, stated that they were concerned with the Moran Terminal. She said they have long looked for a dedicated truck route, and hoped it would be a "haul" not a "hotel" road as it is going to be in an industrial zone.

Real estate broker Troy Agnew asked for a time frame so he could tell prospective owners and tenants in writing.

Barrett said that Secretary of Transportation Fred Salucci and Mass. Department of Works Commissioner Jane Garvey have agreed to have it approved and funded by the end of the year. He sees action by the BRA Board by early fall. Klabin added that he would anticipate the completion of environmental reviews in 1991, with construction starting in the spring of 1992 and completion in 5 to 6 months.

Rev. Daniel Mahoney, pastor of St. Francis de Sales, questioned the stationing of a police officer at the haul road and Main Street when officers can't always get to the school to cross the children. He also asked if the BRA had talked with the fire department on egress for the engines.

Klabin said that they have yet to have a detailed talk with fire officials.

Dorothy Connolly, Massport's community liaison, listed the authority's concerns. She said that originally the discussion was for a dedicated truck route, and now its trucks, buses and Navy Yard cars. She said the authority wants to maintain railroad access; there is a problem of safety and access at the terminal with a roadway height variance that blocks vision; and she also noted that the traffic count in Sullivan Square should be studied further.

When council members were asked for comments, Conway said that he was more than a little surprised when he found that Flatley and other businesses had not been contacted on the haul road, and so was glad he asked they be sent a letter inviting them to this meeting.

He said that what he sees is the taking of a problem from one end of Medford Street to the other, and dropping it in Flatley's front yard. He noted that from the beginning, Flatley has been a good neighbor, and he would like to see the plan revised so the impact won't be borne by one company.

Cunha agreed with Conway, adding they went after Flatley for jobs. He said if he could get more parking spaces, there could be more jobs — and he kept his word. Cunha pointed out the sailing program that is funded through the Schrafft Center tenants, and questioned whether if Flatley is impacted would the community be impacted.

Noting that he lived 312 feet from Sullivan Square, Cunha said that he doesn't like the additional roadway into Sullivan Square. On the other hand, he said, the people who live on Medford Street can't live with Navy Yard traffic. He expressed concern that Sullivan Square can be worked out.

Looney stated that he felt the haul road was necessary for the development of the Navy Yard. Galvin thanked the business people for attending, assuring them that although the council was made up by residents, it was concerned with businesses.

McLaughlin said that the concept of a truck route has been the dream of people for a long time. He said the council wants to know how it affects business, and said that he hoped business people will put together meetings with the BRA.

Wallace pointed out that access to the port is going to be strained with the Central Artery project. He said the haul road will mean jobs, better access to Moran Terminal and more cargo going through Boston. He added that Flatley has been the best neighbor Charlestown has had, and noted the council has to do all it can to retain his business and parking.

Gillen noted the council wants fairness for businesses, entrepreneurs and residents.

Barrett said that there are only two ways to access a haul road, one on a new road out to Main Street, and the second back out to Medford Street at Baldwin. He said that he hoped that the council will make a decision on a scheme within the next four weeks. He also stated that he would ask the BRA Director to cancel the Board hearing on Navy Yard Parcels 4 and 7 originally slated for July 26 so the haul road and the parcels can be done together.

A Community Liaison Is Critical

Ms. Jane Garvey, Commissioner
Mass. Department of Public Works
10 Park Plaza
Boston, MA 02116

Dear Commissioner Garvey:

For over three months the Charlestown community has been without the services of a liaison for the CANA project. Of all the mitigation measures provided the community through this massive project, the liaison has been seen as the most critical. I know that you are aware of the feelings of the community on this matter; I wish to add my voice to that of the community's.

Since the departure of David Flanagan, the people of Charlestown have suffered the daily disruptions of the project without the benefit of an on-site advocate to answer their questions and address their problems. The fact that David was a community person with access to the decision-makers of the project served to assure the community that its needs were taken seriously and would be addressed. That assurance does not exist today.

The cost of providing a liaison, in view of the total cost of the CANA project, is certainly minimal. I can assure you that this small investment will go a long way to ensure the

Neighborhood Council Stresses Need For Community Advocate

Ms. Jane Garvey, Commissioner
Mass. Department of Public Works
10 Park Plaza
Boston, Mass. 02116

Dear Commissioner Garvey:

I am writing to express the concern of the residents of Charlestown regarding the removal of the position of community liaison for the CANA project.

The Charlestown Neighborhood Council feels a replacement of a Charlestown liaison for this multimillion-dollar project that impacts heavily on residents quality of life is critical at this time. Charlestown has no one to answer its concerns and questions regarding unfinished work, such as the park, and the future development of the parcels in City Square. Additionally, since the departure of the community liaison, the City Square area has seen an increase in dirt, dust and noise.

The community needs an advocate to work with the MDPW before additional work is implemented. This advocate helps to protect the residents from the impacts of construction, provides updated reports and informs the residents on meetings and the topics under discussion. He is aware of other on-going development projects in the area and is sensitive to the needs of the Charlestown community.

I urge you to fill this position immediately in order to alleviate any negative impacts of this project, and to show the community that the MDPW is committed to maintaining the quality of life for Charlestown's population. Thank you for your anticipated cooperation.

Sincerely,

Dennis McLaughlin, Chairman
Charlestown Neighborhood Council

welfare and peace of mind of the people it most affects. I urge you to reconsider the decision to eliminate this position. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Robert E. Travaglini
Boston City Council

Our Sincere Thanks

Thanks For Your Help

Charlestown Babe Ruth has come to an end for the 1990 season. But before we close the final page, I feel that there are a few people that I have to publicly thank.

I wish to thank the umpires - Michael Nelson, Willy Fornash, Michael Doherty, Tom McGrath, Danny Ryan, Steven Considine and Brian Stillman; the coaches - Michael Walsh, Paul Wrenn, Marytheresa Lynch, Michael Hanscom, Paul Allen, John McNeil and Eddie Dyer; The Charlestown Patriot; The Smoke Shoppe; and all the parents for being patient with me when I kept their children out late. Without the help of these people, Babe Ruth would not have been a success.

tional opportunities for Boston's youth.

Now in its third season of production in Boston area playgrounds, the Boston Children's Theatre has performed before more than 4,000 area youths. This summer's program, "Dirty Work at the Crossroads" is an old-fashioned melodrama featuring villains, heroines, heroes and music from the 1890s.

Charlestown Working Theater Presents Two Original Plays

The Charlestown Working Theater's Summer Stock Season opens with two original one-act plays on Friday, July 20.

In "Tony, Dean, and Sammy, A One Man Show," comedian Tony V. takes his "stand up" and calls it theater. Tony's view of a tilted world is condensed into a new one-man show filled with surprises for everyone — including himself!

"It's Mary's Show . . . A Drammer!!," a spunky, pathological satire of test tubes, television and tap shoes, is the second one-act. Meet Helen and Clarence, a couple of desperate dreamers trying to make a buck only to lose themselves in the glitzy world of game shows and tropical punch cults. It is written and directed by Charlestown native Jennifer Johnson and John Peitso, with original music by Peitso.

"Tony, Dean, and Sammy" and "It's Mary's Show . . . A Drammer!!" open Friday, July 20 and run through Aug. 4, with performances Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. Tickets are $10.

For more information and/or reservations, please call 242-3534. Tickets will also be available at the door. The Charlestown Working Theater is located at 442 Bunker Hill St.
