I've been asked this question quite a few times over the lockdown and every time I kind of chuckle. I guess that's what happens when you share all the goods, the wins, the great, healthy meals on the internet. But every time I was asked this question this lockdown my response was somewhere along the lines of, "well I've been eating a lot of ice cream." Ha!

Combat sport athletes usually spend time during their fight camp to train at a higher altitude or use hypoxic chambers or 'altitude training' masks to aid with adapting to a specific environment similar to competition and increase red blood count for greater oxygen transport.
