Standalone Mode
When played as a standalone scenario, follow the steps for Standalone Mode.

Happy's Funhouse can be played in one of two ways: as a standalone scenario, or as a side-story inserted into any campaign.

Side-story (Campaign Mode)

A side-story is a scenario that may be played between any two scenarios of an Arkham Horror: The Card Game campaign. Playing a side-story costs each investigator a certain amount of experience. Weaknesses, trauma, experience, and rewards granted by playing a side-story stay with the investigators for the remainder of the campaign. Each side-story may only be played once per campaign.

When played as a side-story during a campaign, play this scenario as if you are setting up the next scenario in the campaign, with the same chaos bag, weaknesses, trauma, and story assets previously earned.

Playing the Happy's Funhouse side-story costs each investigator 2 experience.

Most of the stories surrounding the circus in town are what Drury just calls "crowds on the regularly empty street just outside of town, in fact, compared to the religious atmosphere of the town, the liberal circus would appear a welcome respite from some of the more conservative city limits. But some of the crowds are slowly making those crowds dwindle. It is those few stories that have reached your ears that have brought you to the circus. Drury, a small, dilapidated building with a small hand-painted sign that reads "Happy's P. Ambrose." It appears empty and deserted, but if the stories are to be believed, it is anything but deserted. Despite the small drury building telling you to leave, the over-lager doors are inviting you to enter. You ignore your gut and the drury building and listen to your conscience and the over-lager doors. "After all, you tell yourself, 'it's a small building,' this should I take too terribly long."

Happy Times are Here Again

Setup

- ❖ Gather all the cards from the Happy's Funhouse encounter set, indicated by this icon:
- ❖ Place the Funhouse Entrance at the top of the playing area. Sort each of the remaining locations into 3 piles by trait Level 1, Level 2, and Level 3. Randomly remove one location from each of these piles and place the rest in play under the Funhouse Entrance in a 3x3 grid with Level 1 locations at the top, Level 2 locations under those, and Level 3 locations under those on the bottom (see page 6). Each investigator begins play at the Funhouse Entrance.
- ❖ Set the following cards aside, out of play: Happy, Happy's Mask
- ❖ Shuffle the remainder of the encounter cards to build the encounter deck.

HARD / EXPERT

Happy's Funhouse

AGENDA 1b

"Round and round we go..."

A loud, metallic clang rings throughout the funhouse causing everything to go silent. A lone, sad laugh echoes through your mind as the faint sound of gears moving starts to build and you feel the floor beneath you jerk to a sudden movement...

Shift all locations on Level 1 to the right, moving the far-right location to the now vacant position on the far-left.

Forced – If an investigator is on Level 1 when it shifts, they must move to the location directly below their location and make an ⚡ (2) test. Each investigator that fails must discard cards from the Encounter Deck until they find a card with the Disoriented trait on it and place it in their threat area.

AGENDA 1a

Slippery Slope

The small building's large doors open up into a wide hallway. Bright colors. Blinding lights. Cyclopean shapes. A stale smell. Popcorn crunching under your foot. A cacophony of sounds. The attack on your senses nearly blinds you. But through this attack you notice three ways forward. Three ways down, but three ways forward nonetheless.

Forced – After an investigator successfully investigates a location, they must immediately move to the location directly below them.

AGENDA 2b

"...where we stop..."

What once was a lone, sad laugh has become a chorus of laughter with something more than glee in it. The choros rings so loud you barely hear the loud, metallic clang this time, but feel the floor's uneasy shift as it starts to move below your feet.

Shift all locations on Level 2 to the left, moving the far-left location to the now vacant position on the far-right.

Forced – If an investigator is on Level 2 when it shifts, they must move to the location directly below their location and make an ⚡ (3) test. Each investigator that fails must discard cards from the Encounter Deck until they find a card with the Disoriented trait on it and place it in their threat area.

AGENDA 2a

"Going down sir?"

The lone, sad laugh begins to fade as the floor's movement comes to an abrupt halt and the lights go out. The silence that follows is unsettling and unending, even your heavy breathing seems to make no noise. Suddenly it's broken by a soft whisper in your ear.

"Going down sir?"

The lights and noise of the funhouse quickly come back on as you turn around to find the source of the whisper gone.

Forced – After an investigator completes any action except the move action, they must immediately move to the location directly below them.

AGENDA 3b

"...nobody knows!"

As if fate, or perhaps something much more sinister, heard your most private of thoughts, the now-familiar metallic clang reverberates through your entire body. It seems an eternity before you regain your senses to realize the floor is shifting under you again.

Shift all locations on Level 3 to the right, moving the far-right location to the now vacant position on the far-left.

Forced – If an investigator is on Level 3 when it shifts, they must make an ⚡ (4) test. Each investigator that fails must discard cards from the Encounter Deck until they find a card with the Disoriented trait on it and place it in their threat area.

Before you can regain your bearings, you hear a piercing laugh that seems to emanate from every wall, from the very air around you, when it suddenly stops and you hear that chilling whisper once again.

"Happy's home!"

Spawn the set aside Happy at the Funhouse Entrance. If Happy is already spawned, immediately move him to the Entrance location.

AGENDA 3a

The Deep Breath Before the Plunge

Compared to a few moments ago, the funhouse appears almost calm. You look for a way up to where you need to be, but still find the only way forward is down. But down to what, you still don't know.

AGENDA 4b

Happy's Happy Time!

"Sorry friends, but Happy's time here is over. I'm afraid you've become quite the bore for me and my own. But don't you worry, I've left a small little something for you. Toodle-oooo!"

(+R4)

AGENDA 4a

Happy Time!

Half the clowns cower into nearby corners. The other half laugh in manic delight. You feel compelled to follow suit, but unsure of which one to follow. Somehow you snap yourself out of the spell and realize that you have a job to do. This may be Happy's house and Happy may be home, but this will not be Happy's time!

ACT 1b

What Once Was Lost is Found

What information you have found seems incomplete, as if some has been taken knowing you were coming. Despite the tricks the funhouse has played on you, despite the fragmented information you've found so far, you resolve to push on.

Place 1 clue token on each Level 1 location.

Discard from the encounter deck until you discard an enemy with the Clown trait. Spawn that enemy as if the lead investigator drew it, then shuffle the discard pile back into the Encounter Deck.

6/50

ACT 1a

The Pathway Forward is Downward

The room seems too big for such a small building you observed while outside. As you contemplate which of the three doorways to take, you can't help but wonder just how far down the stairs lead. You can't help but fear if what's down there will really be worth it. You push your fear and wonder aside and move forward.

3

ACT 2b

"Have you seen my mommy?"

"Have you seen my mommy?"
What at first sounds like a child's worried voice soon morphs into a mocking, maniacal voice.
"Have you seen my mommy?"
The question is pierced with a shrill, almost scream. "Spencer, is that you? Where are you son? Spencer? Spencer!"
You realize you're not the only one lost in this "funhouse," and that you need to hurry before you and them are lost forever!

Replenish each Level 1 location's clue tokens to its starting value.

Search the Encounter Deck and discard pile for all Lost Patron enemy cards and spawn them as normal, then shuffle the discard pile back into the Encounter Deck.

7/50

ACT 2a

The Way is Up

With such resolve in your heart, this game of constant chutes and unpredictable ladders doesn't seem so futile. While information may be scarce, your investigations may have found a way up.

➔ Move up a level to a location directly above you as if it were adjacent to your current location. (Limit once per round).

6

7/50

ACT 3b

Happy Times are Here Again

You enter one room and it feels as if the entire funhouse is against you. You enter another and it seems as if the funhouse might be helping you. But that helping feeling is quickly replaced by a sinking feeling...
"My oh my, it seems as if someone's been eating my porridge and sleeping in my bed. Whoever could it beee-hee-hee-HEE-HEEEEEE!"

Place 1 clue token in each Level 3 location, 2 clue tokens if there is an enemy with the Clown trait in that location.

Spawn the set aside Happy at the Funhouse Entrance. If Happy is already spawned, immediately move him to the Funhouse Entrance location.

4

8/50

ACT 3a

Lengthen your Reach

You had a feeling that wouldn't last long. Whether from the shifting corridors and hallways or the unending procession of clowns, you knew your way up was time sensitive. But you may have found something better.
Perhaps it's something you see now that you missed previously. Or maybe the supernatural aura is rubbing off on you. Whatever the reason may be, you feel your mind lengthened, your sight lengthened, your reach lengthened.

After an investigator successfully investigates at their location, they may choose to collect a clue token from an adjacent location instead of their current location.

4

8/50

ACT 4b

The Fun Can't Last Forever

You finally found what you needed! And after a night of being disoriented, lost, hypnotized, and attacked, you finally see your way out!

- ♦ "The clown's dead, let's get out here! Quick, run!" If Happy is in your victory display, proceed to →R1.
- ♦ "He's wounded, we need to get out while we still can! Follow me!" If Happy has damage equal to or greater than half his health, proceed to →R2.
- ♦ "Forget the clown, we got what we came for! Get out, now!" If Happy has damage less than half his health, proceed to →R3.

9/50

ACT 4a

Happy Time!

Happy's come home and what you lack still eludes you. Do you face this masked menace in his mad house? Or do you press on in search of the information you need? Perhaps it is both? Either way, you feel your time is slipping away, and what already seemed like an impossible task, just became more difficult.

The Funhouse Entrance is considered adjacent to all Level 3 locations.

Objective – All investigators must be in the Funhouse Entrance location in order to advance this agenda. Enemies with the Clown trait in the victory display may be discarded as clue tokens in order to advance this agenda.

Resolution 1: You go back the next morning to find the circus still there with the crowds larger than ever. As you approach the small, dilapidated building you spent the previous night in, you notice the "Happy's Funhouse" sign broken in half on the ground nearby. As you enter the over-large doors you see a dark, empty room that befits the buildings size. No doorways leading out, no pathways leading down, just a small, dark room with a dirty, grotesque mask lying on the floor. As you pick it up and look at the face, the events of the night before flash across your mind before you feel a surge of energy fill your body. While you can't help but smile about last night's victory, the surge fills you with feeling that your work is not yet done.

- ◆ In your Campaign Log, record that Happy has been defeated.
- ◆ Any investigator may choose to add Happy's Mask to his or her deck. This card does not count toward that investigator's deck size.
- ◆ Each investigator earns experience equal to the Victory X value of each card in the victory display as well as 1 experience for each enemy with the Clown trait in the victory display, not including Happy.

Resolution 2: You foolstinks can't seem to carry you fast enough from that back at what's most likely following you. Only when you reach the empty row of food vendors do you dare look back to notice there is no pursuit and that the sun is rising. Your eyes are fixated on the jamhouse for movement, but it is as still as the rest of the circus in the early morning hours.

Nothing...
No one...
You're left alone realizing how lucky you were to get out of there with what you found. With that there you quickly leave, hoping your luck doesn't change and you find yourself back there where next time you might not be as fortunate.

In your Campaign Log, record that Happy has barely escaped.

Resolution 3: At first you think it's your footsteps echoing, but then you realize it's the footsteps of pursuit. Your heart races faster as you push your body faster. Hoping to reach safety before they catch you, you keep moving. As you cross out the circus entrance, you hear the footsteps get quieter, then stop. You stop and turn and look back to see a group of men in white hats at the entrance. "They can't leave," you whisper to yourself. Suddenly you see Happy slowly striding up behind them, blood dripping from the axe he's dragging on the ground behind him. You turn and run, not waiting to see if your whispered wish is right. When you return a couple hours later with the police, you find the circus grounds empty and cluttered. Piles of garbage are evidence the circus was even there. As you approach where Happy's Funkhouse was, all you find is a small pile of wood with a blood-stained axe sticking deep in the top piece. The police shoot you questioning stares as you look around. They don't know. They can't know. No one can know what you went through to get what you needed. But at what cost?

- ❖ In your Campaign Log, record that Happy has escaped to God knows where.
- ❖ Each investigator earns experience equal to the Victory X value of each card in the victory display. If there are at least 2 enemies with the Clown trait in the victory display, not including Happy, add 1 additional experience to your total.
- ❖ Each investigator receives 1 mental trauma.
