"Mayor" Claire Honored By House Of Representatives

CLAIRE P. LYNCH was recently presented with a citation from the Massachusetts House of Representatives, in honor of her election as "Mayor of Charlestown." The presentation was made by Representative Richard A. Voke, chairman, House Ways and Means Committee. Shown (l. to r.)

Many in Massachusetts will spend this, the 212th anniversary of our nation's independence, watching bursts of blue, red and white light the skies over Boston. Here in Charlestown, which is steeped in Revolutionary history and also home to many Harborfest events, festivities will take place throughout the long weekend.

On Thursday, June 30, the USS McCloy (1038) will dock on Pier One in the Charlestown Navy Yard. It will be open to the public for visiting from 1 to 4 p.m. on Friday, July 1. The 26-year-old frigate will leave for Bristol, Rhode Island, where it will spend the holiday, at 9 a.m. on Saturday, July 2.

At noon on July 1, 2 and 3, a two-boat regatta involving the Courageous and the Stars & Stripes '83 will set sail from Pier Four in the Charlestown Navy Yard.

Between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Saturday, July 2, visitors to the Charlestown Navy Yard will be able to learn how Colonists, Loyalist soldiers and camp followers lived at the historic recreation of the 18th century encampment of Colonel Bailey's 2nd Massachusetts Regiment and Brigadier General Delancy's Brigade. Between 2 and 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, persons will be able to enlist in Bailey's 2nd Massachusetts Regiment for the afternoon and receive a mock certificate of enlistment. The encampment will continue through Sunday, July 3.

An information table on water clean-up will be set up on Pier One in the Charlestown Navy Yard between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. on July 2, 3 and 4. This is sponsored by Save the Harbor/Save the Bay, a citizen's constituency for Boston

Regatta To Kick Off Second Season Of Courageous Sailing Program

America's Cup winners Ted Hood (1974) and Ted Turner (1977) and former Courageous skipper and owner Dave Viator will be back at the helm for noon harbor races from the Charlestown Navy Yard on July 1, 2 and 3. Hood and Viator's crew, including Ricky, Teddy and Bobby Hood, will captain Courageous, while Turner and his original 11 crew members along with sons Ted Jr. and Rhett challenge aboard Stars & Stripes '83, in a two-boat Regatta that will kick off the Courageous Sailing Program's second season.

The Sailing Program officially begins July 5, and 60 to 70 boys and girls from all over the city will come every day for sailing instructions. This year's program promises to be more organized with basic land skill lessons, complete with video tapes of the up and coming sailors' performances on water, added to the traditional training.

More than 700 youngsters have signed up for the two summer sessions in July and August, with a standing waiting list at 35. Charlestown "drop-ins" are encouraged to come by from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. during open hours or on Saturdays on an arranged basis. There is no charge for this program.

The City's Parks and Recreation Department has hired 20 staff members to handle the class load. Instructors and aides, ranging in age from 16 to 22, were tested and selected on their sailing prowess and merit.

"We're more organized and much stronger this year," says Lisa McNamara, assistant program director, of her season start-up efforts beginning in February. "We don't want this to feel like just boat rides around the harbor. I think we're going to produce a few sailors out of here."

Last summer students had less opportunity to interact with instructors directly because of large groups going out on the water. This year there will be one instructor for three students per boat to guarantee learning, more fun and more meaningful experiences.

"It's a better teaching environment," says Russ Smith, seasoned skipper and director of the program. "We're trying to reach more teens because they may not have the opportunity again, having less

Canney Receives Award From Northeastern University

Mary Beth Canney of Charlestown, a senior in Boston Bouve College of Human Development Professions at Northeastern University, received the Cooperative Education Award from Northeastern University at a recent awards luncheon.

A major in speech-language pathology and audiology, Canney plans to specialize in working with patients with head injuries. Her dedication and respect has earned her both the respect of her employers and the love of the children she has worked with. Her co-op employment included positions at Baker School in Brookline, Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston, Forestdale School in Malden and Northeastern University Office of Handicapped Services.

"I'm not ambitious in the sense of wanting to work in business and make a lot of money. I want to do something that's helpful to someone else, to feel good about what I do every day. I need to work with people; working for a company is just not me," said Canney.

Northeastern University is noted for excellence in science and engineering, the professional schools of business, law, and health, and programs in the humanities and the arts. Following a cooperative plan of education, Northeastern undergraduates alternate quarters of full-time study with quarters of paid career-related work at local and internationally-based businesses and corporations.

SHOPPING FOR A MORTGAGE LOAN

The most important thing to look for when you're shopping for the best mortgage is the interest rate, right? Not necessarily. There are many other factors to consider, including the lender's charges for making the loan, the terms under which the loan will be approved and the lender's reputation for completing its processing of loan applications in time for settlement deadlines set forth in customers' purchase agreements.

When Realtors are involved in sales transactions, we don't tell buyers which mortgage companies to use. We can, however, provide names and telephone numbers of established lenders that have provided good service to past customers. We can also explain the options that are available and the differences in the various mortgages being offered. Using a low interest rate as the main criteria for choosing a mortgage can cost you money, and maybe the home you want to buy, if the company can't deliver the promised great deal.

The People Of Vietnam Focus Of Photography Exhibit At BHCC

by Jessica Goodheart

Vietnam during the height of the American involvement is the subject of a photography exhibit currently on display at Bunker Hill Community College (BHCC). But the collection of photographs which United States Air Force veteran Doug Clifford took during his stay at the Phu Cat Air Base between 1968 and 1969 does not touch upon the violence or destruction often portrayed in war-time photos.

What is presented instead is a brightly colored close-up of food in a local market place, a helicopter silhouetted against an orange sky at dusk, or two young Vietnamese women dressed in camouflage uniforms — one plays the guitar while the other listens.

The exhibit, entitled "Images of Vietnam: 1968-1969" is indeed timely as 1988 marks the 20th anniversary of the Tet Offensive and the campus protests which followed the escalation of the war. Clifford said he chose this summer to display his work because of his own agenda which includes a visit to Vietnam and Kampuchea in Cambodia in August as a member of a delegation of educators sponsored by the United States Indo-China Reconciliation Project. He plans another exhibit of recent photographs when he returns.

Clifford, who is now director of student services in the Division of Continuing Education at BHCC, says the purpose of this show is to offer a more intimate look at the Vietnamese than was portrayed in the media during the late 60s.

"We got to see the chief of police in Saigon blow out the brains of a captured Vietcong whose hands were manacled behind his back, but we never got to see a mother putting the rice on to cook for his supper," Clifford wrote in an essay for the Time-Life series called "The Vietnam Experience," which is also on display with his photographs at the BHCC Art Gallery.

Clifford attributes his prowess with the camera primarily to the US Air Force which, when he enlisted in 1966, registered him in a rigorous six-month long training course for military photographers. When he arrived at the Phu Cat Air Base in the Binn Dinh

A VIETNAMESE BOY staring through coils of barbed wire is just one of the photographs in an exhibit entitled "Images of Vietnam 1968-1969" by Doug Clifford, on display through July 5 at the Bunker Hill Community College Art Gallery.

Province, he was assigned to a unit which processed and printed area reconnaissance film. He took the pictures in this exhibition on his own time.

With his elder brother already enlisted in the Marines in 1966, Clifford said he was attuned to developments in South East Asia. His mother kept scrapbooks of newspaper and magazine clippings about the war. On television, he and his family watched Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara explain strategy and President Lyndon Johnson review the troops.

Nevertheless, he said his views of the conflict were significantly altered once he arrived in the country. "My perceptions changed in the most fundamental way in realizing there were some real questions as to our presence there. I never got any sense that [the Vietnamese] wanted us there," stated Clifford. But Clifford, who has spent extensive time counselling Vietnam veterans, said he tries to play down his personal politics. "Because I worked with this population, I felt it was important not to have my personal program interfere," he said.

What interests him as an artist, he says, is the intermingling of Vietnamese and American culture which took place during the war. "That," he maintains, "was the essence of the Vietnam experience — this American presence in this third world agrarian country." To illustrate his point, Clifford fingers one of his photographs of a Vietnamese boy with his hands by his side who is staring wistfully through a coil of barbed wire. Holding up another photograph, he points to the subject, a somber-looking Vietnamese man smoking a "western" cigarette; the bright light of the sky shines through the man's pierced ear. These incongruities — the pierced ear, the barbed wire — make up the subjects of much of Clifford's work.

Clifford said that he met with a "full range of responses" from the Vietnamese whom he approached with the camera. One man, who he said had previously struck a patriarchal pose for the camera, promptly removed his jacket and was dressed in "something like a loin cloth," as he lifted his leg and wrapped it around his head.

After he was discharged, Clifford traveled around the United States, allowing him to "avoid the syndrome of coming home too abruptly to a community that might be indifferent to my arrival." He then sought a BA from the University of Massachusetts in Boston where he became active with veteran groups. In 1974, he was hired to counsel Vietnam vets at BHCC where he has been ever since. Although He is a full time administrator, Clifford still picks up the camera on occasion. He recently took photographs for a book on Boston Community Schools.

Clifford insists that his exhibit is "a minor event." But he added that an exhibit of Vietnam war photos by a veteran is very rare. "I almost can't think of anything like it that's been done," he said.

The show will continue through July 5.

Life Behind The Wall

by Ronan FitzPatrick

As an inducement, free membership in the newly organized Charlestown Navy Yard Sailing Club is being offered for those who sign a lease at Constitution Quarters. Its value will vary to one and all, but this is an appropriate marketing mechanism developed by the innovative Raymond Group. Coincidentally, Raymond Group President David "Leo" Francis, an alumnus of the United States Naval Academy, is aboard for this introductory offer. His expert skills in marine navigation might become available at the piers — be on the lookout for his presence. A sure indication of his identity is the honored 1966 class ring from the Academy worn on the third finger of his right hand. David wears the "Real McCoy," not to be confused with that of T.V. star Magnum, which is bound for the Smithsonian. Happy sailing to all.

A Charlestown resident and yachtsman is one of the original charter members of the Navy Yard Sailing Program. Stephen Spinetto, no stranger to the sea, is delighted with the recently opened program. Citing the benefits it will give to the neophyte and the old salt, Stephen believes it will expand and be a paragon for the future. Oh yes, the price is right — $100 for membership. Compared with surrounding sailing clubs, Stephen feels confident that the membership will grow at an astounding rate.

Fifteen glorious years of dinners by Charlestown Savings and then under its succeeding name, Newworld Bank, was celebrated at Building 149 on June 13th, as previously reported. I was remiss in recognizing the sponsorship of Newworld President David S. Carr and chief organizer and volunteer Jim Cushman. The record crowd could not have been hosted to a more spectacular evening. Attention to detail and guest satisfaction are two sterling characteristics of David and Jim. They again enhanced their reputation to the roar of the crowd.

With plywood installed on the exterior of Building 79 at the intersection of Chelsea and Thirteenth Streets, the work was proceeding on schedule within. Heavy equipment operators prepared to transform the building from its present dilapidated condition into a premier structure for commercial and possible residential use. Tentatively designated as the Boiler House, this development, under the direction of the Boston Harbor Investment Group, will complement the Captain's Quarters.

After a long recuperative period, the affable Henry Giannelli has returned to his position with Andre Bus services. On time and dispensing numerous comments to the daily commuters that board in the morning from Constitution Quarters, Henry was welcomed back with enthusiasm. His medical battle was a study in courage and we all wish Henry a happy return and robust health.

It was pleasant to witness the red, white and blue flags strategically positioned throughout the National Park Service compound, appropriate for the past and present holiday celebrations. Regarding the July 4th activities, Boston Harborfest has published a handy and detailed 15 page brochure. Available at numerous locations along the Freedom Trail, the maps augment this worthwhile guide. The Spirit of Boston, departing from Pier 7 on Northern Avenue, will have a continental breakfast celebrating the turnaround of the USS Constitution on Monday, July 4 from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Reservations are required. In the evening, the Spirit of Boston is featuring a fireworks dinner cruise with a buffet and a Broadway salute. Once again, reservations are required. Many more events are listed. This seventh annual guide is a must for resident or visitor.

Our common bond with Lexington from Revolutionary time and the world-known quotes, "Don't fire until you see the whites of their eyes" and "By the rude bridge that arched the flood," has continued at the waterfront. On a recent bright Saturday, a Lexington Furniture van entered the clearance onto Pier 8. Its contents were quickly delivered to a waiting yacht, to the joy of the owners. Due to the angle of the docked vessel, a name was not discernable. For sure it wasn't the Beaver, nor were the recently delivered chests containing tea. A definite was the addition to both communities' gross product. Before returning to the battleground region with revenue in hand, the driver and helper enjoyed lunch at Joe Flaher-

Step Back In Time — Join The Windmill Hill Quilters

Ever wish you could forget the pressures of international headlines, the office politics and Central Artery predictions by going back in time for a few hours?

Every Saturday, a new group meets to enjoy a hobby that helps them do just that. The Windmill Hill Quilters carry on an old tradition by designing and sewing patchwork to brighten their homes. The use of patchwork quilts in room decor has become, in the '80s, one indication of an up-to-date and attractive environment.

A national and international circle of quilting groups has sprung up due to the enthusiasm for this craft. Nearby Lowell, has established a museum showing only quilts and its doors open to crowds who travel to see the newly appreciated quilts of New England. Australian visitors to Charlestown last week asked advice on purchasing American patchwork to add to their collection.

A look in the window of Newworld Bank at Austin and Main Streets will show samples of some patchwork quilts, pillows and potholders made by the Windmill Hill Quilters.

Consider joining the group which meets from noon to 3 p.m. on Saturdays at Saint John's Parish Hall at 27 Devens Street. Next week, membership requirements will be provided in detail.

Meanwhile, think about the wonderful crib quilt you can make for a gift. It doesn't take as many hours as you might think.

For information, call 242-1799.

Newworld Bank Hosts Bunker Hill Day Dinner For Charlestown Senior Citizens In Building 149

Newworld Bank Charlestown held its 15th Annual Senior Citizens Dinner at Building 149 in the Charlestown Navy Yard. Over 600 residents from all parts of the community attended.

"We are pleased to be able to thank Charlestown's senior citizens for their support over the years," said David S. Carr, president, Newworld Bank Charlestown. "With the introduction of our Saturday banking hours, we look forward to providing even better service to this important segment of our community."

The annual event was held in conjunction with Bunker Hill Week and the use of Building 149 was donated by The Raymond Group. An evening of entertainment was provided by Dick McManus and The Irish Revolutions, Bill Kearns and the Bunker Hillbillies.

Three Units Planned For Common Street: Goes To The BOA On Tuesday

by Lynn Peters

Although all abutters who met in Saint Mary's Parish Hall on June 27 were not pleased, residents were in general agreement on developer Vahid Nickpour's plans for 23-24 Common Street. Nickpour's revised proposal to put three two-bedroom condominiums and three parking spaces on the 2,446-square-foot parcel met little opposition.

Some of the abutters originally disputed the overall mass and density of the building in public meetings dating back to mid-February. Ellwood Street neighbors opposed the provided parking spaces directly accessed from Ellwood, a street approximately 12 feet wide, and a disputable turning radius for cars pulling in and out of the property.

At an April 24 meeting before the Charlestown Neighborhood Council, Architect Robert Tullis had maintained that parking concerns were "well-founded," but "swings based on that of a hearse" proved three cars could negotiate the Ellwood Street entry rather easily. Architect Guy Grassi, who presented the plans last Monday night, said he did not remember the radius being tested in such a way, but said the turn was substantial. Tullis has since left the firm.

The new plans reduced the height of the building from 35½ feet to 33½ feet above the average grade of sidewalk, and reduced the number of units by one. Of the three approximately 1,300-square-foot condominiums, one would comprise the first floor while two two-story duplexes would make up the rest of the structure. Grassi suggested an alternative mansard roof and widow's walk design for the top story to a pitched roof scheme with dormer windows and a roof deck.

"The design fits in with the skyline of the block," Grassi said. "This is a relatively straight forward, simple building."

But while changes in the scope of the project appeared minimal in its density, the milder tone of the discussion replaced earlier more heated debates with abutters and the development team.

One resident confronted Nickpour with having a lack of interest in Charlestown's impact from redevelopment and showing only a self-serving economic concern. With a $300,000 purchase price on the land, Nickpour stated at the April meeting that it did not make financial sense for him to build less than four units. He said, although his selling price for the units seemed irrelevant, the condominiums would probably go on the market in the mid-$200,000 range. The angry neighbor eventually walked out of Monday night's meeting, leaving those more in favor of the project to support Nickpour.

Residents from Park and Adams Streets said they generally felt good about the design and that the reductions were substantial and agreeable. A group of Common and Ellwood Street abutters will continue opposing plans for the site. They will address their concerns with density, mass, Ellwood Street's limited passage and utility wire interference in writing before Nickpour's scheduled hearing before the City of Boston Board of Appeal (BOA) on July 5.

Nickpour, who said his 24 High Street property is similar to the Common Street development, will bring his eight zoning variance requests before the BOA then.

BOA Approves Plans For Development At 43-47 Belmont Street

The City of Boston Board of Appeal (BOA) in a 4-1 vote, approved the plans by developers Michael O'Donnell and Philip Tracy to construct two three-unit buildings on 43-47 Belmont Street. The existing house at 43 Belmont Street would be razed and two new three-story buildings constructed.

Approval for the project was granted on June 28, with the proviso that six parking spaces be provided on the property. Allen Jarasitis, attorney for the developers, made the presentation to the BOA.

According to Judy Evers, neighborhood coordinator for the Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Services, BOA member Chai-Ming Sze was the only opposing vote on the Board, stating that the developers weren't ready. A question was also raised concerning the fact that the developers have yet to acquire a splinter parcel at the rear of their land, owned by the Boston Redevelopment Authority (BRA), which would square off their parcel and allow space for the parking.

Speaking in opposition to the development at the hearing were abutters Mary Campbell and Kevin Seager.

Evers stated that she opposed the plan at the hearing, citing density and the design being out of character with the area. She also told the Board that the concerns of the neighbors had not been addressed and brought up the fact that the developers had promised on April 26 to repair a broken basement window in the house at 43 Belmont Street and that window has yet to be repaired.

The BRA had submitted a letter to the BOA in strong opposition to the development and recommended denial.

of their summers free from working."

Both McNamara and Smith, Parks and Recreation Department employees hired as consultants, cite the Boston Redevelopment Authority and the city for their support and enthusiasm in keeping the program going and progressing. Smith says he hopes to see the Courageous Sailing Program operating on a year-round basis in the next four years.

After students pass their written exams and master on-water techniques, Smith says he would like "to see them come down on their own and want to sail and maybe take two others with them. When you do that you get three people learning, and that's when it's really fun."

Tonight (June 30) a $150-a-plate fund raiser will mark the program's one-year birthday celebration. The board of directors' event will begin at 6 p.m. with cocktails, hors d'oeuvres and a silent auction in Building 149. A live auction will follow from 8 to 9 p.m. with bidding on Courageous memorabilia, hotel reservations, paintings and dinner tickets. Different musical groups from the '30s and '40s will provide the entertainment for the dessert and after-dinner cabaret. Children from the Charlestown Boys and Girls Club and other groups will perform a song honoring Courageous written by Lynne Jackson and Mike Palter.

Parcel R-87 And Tudor Wharf Focus Of Housing And Development Meeting

by Kathy Giordano

The Housing and Development Committee of the Charlestown Neighborhood Council met on June 28 to discuss the future development of Parcel R-87, located at the intersection of Tremont and Prospect Streets and Lowney Way, and Tudor Wharf, situated adjacent to the North Washington Street Bridge off Water Street.

Staff members from the Boston Redevelopment Authority (BRA) were on hand to discuss the R-87 Parcel while representatives from Massport and the development team from Myerson/Allen presented information pertaining to Tudor Wharf.

At previous meetings on Parcel R-87, the committee had requested that the BRA bring back to the community three separate draft Requests For Proposals (RFP) for the 49,000-square-foot lot, indicating the types and prices of housing that could be built there. BRA Senior Project Manager Bob Rush and Laura Burns, housing analyst with BRA Neighborhood Housing and Development, presented three scenarios of housing possibilities for the site.

The first plan included nine single-family house lots, 4,500 square feet in size. The buildings indicated were 2½-story structures each with 1,500 square feet of space — 600 square feet on each floor with an unfinished attic. The selling price of these houses was estimated to be $340,000. According to BRA statistics, a family would have to earn $125,503 each year to be able to afford the mortgage.

The second scenario divided the parcel into 13 single family house lots, 3,000 square feet in size. The houses would be 1,500 square feet, 2½-story structures with unfinished attics. The selling price was estimated at $280,000. A family would have to have yearly earnings of approximately $103,300 to be able to afford these units.

The third draft RFP depicted 18 townhouses on 1,400-square-foot lots. Each would contain 1,500 square feet of living space in a 2½-story structure with an unfinished attic. The selling price would be $126,000 and a family of four would have to earn $44,916 in order to be able to assume the mortgage.

According to Rush, the BRA targets affordable housing units within the following guidelines:

- Low income — A family of four would have to have an income between $17,900 and $22,150 to afford a mortgage of $65,000;

- Moderate income — A family of four would have to have an income between $26,000 and $32,400 to assume a mortgage of $95,000; and

- Upper moderate income — The income for a family of four would be between $41,000 and $43,000 in order for them to be able to afford a $115,000 home.

Rush emphasized the importance of setting up a series of workshops to discuss the development of this parcel in detail. These workshops would address not only the concerns of the residents, especially the immediate abutters, but would outline all possible alternative construction factors that could bring down the price of each unit to make them more affordable for Charlestown residents. A schedule for these workshops is being set up and the public will be informed as soon as times and locations have been established.

It was announced that the Tudor Wharf project has met with a set-back. A portion of the land adjacent to the proposed development is the property of Massport and the developer has petitioned the Authority to purchase or lease the land.

A Massport representative told the developer that it is their policy never to sell their land and any lease agreement would have to go through an open bidding process. This process would automatically open up the parcel to other bidders and Massport would then decide which proposal would be best situated on their property.

Ann Myers, deputy director of real estate development for Massport, stated that an RFP for the site would be ready to be published within a month. She added that a copy of the RFP would be sent to Council members for their approval before it is made public.

Council Chairman Dennis McLaughlin stated his concern on the future development of the City Square area. He expressed the need for the Neighborhood

Council to be better informed by both the Central Artery North Area project personnel and the North Area Task Force so that the Council could better understand the future plans for that area. McLaughlin suggested that both groups be invited to address the Council at a monthly meeting in the near future.

Thanks For A Great Day!

We wish to thank Jim Conway and the entire "17th Parade" Committee for letting us enter our white limousine in the parade.

We had a marvelous time greeting old friends and relatives along the way. It also made for a happy Father's Day.

Many thanks again,
Ruthie and "Suitcase" Fidler

Thank You, Newworld Bank

Dear Gloria,

On behalf of the J.F. Kennedy Senior Lounge "Seniors," I want to thank the Newworld Bank for hosting such a fantastic evening of dinner, dancing and entertainment on Monday, June 13.

Thank you for remembering our Seniors during "Townie" Pride Week.

My Thanks

Fifty-one children of Charlestown were awarded prizes at the Annual Doll Carriage Parade held at the Training Field on Saturday, June 18.

All the carriages and wagons were designed with outstanding decorations. The mothers, fathers and relatives who assisted the little ones are to be praised for their outstanding contributions.

I give my profound thanks to the members of the Bunker Hill Irish Heritage Society, the 520 Club, the Knights of Columbus, Council 62, the Bunker Hill Parade Committee and a very special Lady of Charlestown for their generous contributions that enabled me to purchase the gifts.

Thank you also to Saint Mary's for the use of the Parish Hall and to Grand Knight Eddie Lynch who had the lower hall of the K. of C. ready for us in case of rain.

To my committee, Maureen McCabe, Diana Galvin, Pat Farris, Susan Kelly, Maureen-Kane, Dottie Duffy, Ann Humphrey, Norita Lee, Jill Kelly, Kenny Hall and my nephew, Edward — without all of you it would have been next to impossible. Thank you all.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many people responsible for making the "Mayor's Appreciation Night" such a success. It was pleasure to have a special night for "herself" that was enjoyed by so many, including babes-in-arms to our elder (over 40) "Townies."

My thanks go to the Honorable Mayor Flynn and the City of Boston for sponsoring this event in conjunction with "Townie Pride Week," chaired by Dennis McLaughlin; John McLaughlin, president of the Bunker Hill Associates; Leo Boucher from the Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Services; Bob Scalli, who at a very inopportune time donated his time and energy to take care of the food served (a terrific job, Bob, and I am happy to hear Carol is on the road to recovery); and to all Bob's helpers, the only one I knew being Archie Preadable — thanks to you all.

Also, thanks to Peter Looney, who interceded for the Charlestown-To-Charlestown Committee whenever needed; Bud Whelan, who stepped in to help the Edison Company; to "Barbara on Mead Street" who let the group "plug in" when needed; to the hard working city workers who put

Thanks To The People Of Charlestown

To the People of Charlestown:

On behalf of everyone involved with The Battle of Bunker Hill Road Race, we would like to thank the residents of Charlestown for all the support they gave the runners on that Sunday. It was a hot day for a race and the runners who finished gave much of the credit to the support, both in the form of water and encouragement, that they received along the course. It is the warm and supportive spirit of Charlestown that makes this such an enjoyable event for both runners and race organizers alike.

We would also like to especially thank The Raymond Group in the Navy Yard who sponsored the race for us this year. With their support, the event was a great financial as well as a sporting success and this, of course, means more programs for the young people of Charlestown at the Boys and Girls Club.

With continued support from the great people of this town and concerned businesses such as The Raymond Group and other sponsors, we are sure that The Battle of Bunker Hill Road Race will continue to be one of the most exciting sporting events in our town.

Sincerely,
John Iacoi and Kim Wright
Road Race Directors

TO A RARE BREED FROM BUNKER HILL

Happy Birthday, Charlestown.

You are three hundred sixty this year

You've seen much revolution

In America you've shared

The struggle for independence

As our forefathers declared

A demand for the right of liberty

Which had fallen on deaf ears.

You've seen the settlement of Puritans

Watched the Red Man move away

Endured the cry for freedom

At Bunker Hill's bloody fray.

You felt the bondage of slavery

When your sons took sword and shield

To fight again for liberty

Prepared at the Training Field.

You welcomed Irish immigrants

To these unfamiliar shores

Viewed their battle against indifference

Which Yankee prejudice had bore.

These blue-bloods packed and moved away

As the Red Man years before.

You winced when the world

Went twice to war,

To insure our forefathers aim.

In Korea too, then Vietnam

You also shared the pain.

You're a cornerstone of America

Which helped fortify this nation.

A sense of pride and gratitude

Lay deep in your foundation

Your native sons and daughters

Have endowed your preservation.

It's here we call life home

No matter how far we've roamed

On God's great, granted Earth

I've known this place since birth

I'm proud to be a 'Townie.'

So as this year circumnavigates

It's position in our life

Remember those of yesteryear

And the dreams they left behind

Instill within our memory

The meaning of their pride

Let's carry on the best we can.

In what our history has bound

No matter where life finds us —

We've shared in Charlestown.

Bob E. Powers

Not For Nothin' . . . But Have You Heard . . .

• Congratulations . . . To Jean Peters Resnick, Charlestown's Children's Librarian, who is just back from her honeymoon in Italy. Our best wishes to you and husband Robert, a Navy Yard attorney, for many years of wedded bliss!

• Welcome Home . . . To Judie and Pat Dunphy who celebrated their second honeymoon cruising to Bermuda!

• Note to Bill McClellan . . . The ladies of the Patriot will be "put out" on Thursday if you don't come by for a birthday "kiss!"

• The Winner Is . . . Patrick J. Collins who was the first to answer last week's question on the whereabouts of Hayes Block! Mr. Collins tells us that he was born at 1 Hayes Block in 1907 and that it is located off Chappie Street, which at that time was known as Walnut Street. Did you know that? . . . This week's question — where was Maudlin Street?

• Local Artist . . . Susan Blim of Green Street will be featuring her handmade jewelry at the 12th Annual American Crafts Festival at the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts in New York on July 2-3.

• Photos Needed . . . St. Mary's Centennial Committee is searching for pictures of parish life dating back to the 19th century up to the present. If you have such photos laying around, why not share them with fellow (past and present) parishioners to be used as part of the 1988 celebrations? Put your name and address on the back and mail them to St. Mary's Rectory, One Monument Square, Charlestown, MA 02129. The committee will make sure that your treasured photo is returned to you!

• Big Weekend in the Yard . . . Goings on in the Charlestown Navy Yard this weekend you might not want to miss! On Thursday, June 30, the USS McCloy (1038) will be arriving at Pier 1 at 3 p.m. This fast frigate will be open for public boarding on Friday, July 1 between 1 and 4 p.m. . . . the 2nd Massachusetts Regiment will have an encampment on the lawn outside the Commandant's House from Saturday, July 2 at 7 a.m. until Sunday, July 3 at 5 p.m. . . . WHDH is scheduled to broadcast live from Pier 1 on Saturday, July 2 . . . Also, on Friday, July 1, a regatta is scheduled to take place from Pier 4 including the Courageous and the Stars and Stripes. Word has it that Ted Turner will skipper the Stars & Stripes. Festivities will start at noon and will be held on Saturday and Sunday at the same time and place . . . on Monday, July 4th, the USS Constitution will make her annual turnaround between 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. (by invitation only) . . . the U.S. Air Force Band of New England will hold concerts at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. . . . and coming up . . . on July 5, the tall ship Cuauhtemoc, out of Mexico, will dock at Pier 1. She will remain in port until July 9. For boarding information, call 242-5601.

• Week at Camp . . . Six lucky students from the First Baptist Church Sunday School are spending this week at Grotonwood Camp in Groton. They are Tiffany Boutilier, Scott Isbart and Billy, Cozart, Kylie and Walter Egleston.

• Reclaiming Lost Land . . . is Bernie Kelly, formerly of Church Court and now of Medfa. Bernie has already started a committee of former Charlestown residents, now living in his new neighborhood, to reclaim land lost from the original Charlestown landscape and return it "where it belongs!" Bernie and his lovely wife, Rita, are in the process of moving to Medford — they surely will be missed! . . . Bernie, the crew at the Coffee Shop are waiting for you to come by and buy a round of coffees! Don't disappoint them, Bern. Just let us know so that we can take a picture of the monumental event — or else no one would believe it!!!

• Problems in the Navy Yard . . . have been reported by local business persons and residents. The wading pool in Shipyard Park has been the object of vandals during the night hours. From broken beer bottles to torn up trees — this debris has been found in the wading pool each morning as the maintenance crew reports for duty. Not only that, but beer parties have been taking place to which the revelers bring along their own gas grill for a cook-out. It cost over $800 to repair damage done in one night this week. This area has been made available for all Charlestown residents to enjoy and the residents have been welcome to use it. But the actions of a few will surely make it off limits to all if this problem is allowed to continue! Violators beware! The mothers and fathers of all those Charlestown youngsters who have been enjoying the cooling breezes and splashing water in the park won't let you get away with taking this privilege away from them. The Boston Police have been notified and will beef-up coverage in the area!!!!

• Happy Birthday Wishes . . . go out to a special person who will be celebrating more than Independence Day this weekend . . . and to all

HAPPY FOURTH OF JULY!!!!

Cruise From The Charlestown Navy Yard

We tried it — we liked it . . . in fact, it's been so successful, a Sunset Cruise has been established! Every Thursday evening at 5:15 p.m., you can board the boat for a harbor cruise for only $4.00. A disc jockey will entertain you while you feast from the seafood bar, which includes raw oysters, shrimp and clams, all at reasonable prices, and quench your thirst at the cash bar. The evening cruise returns at 7:30 p.m. Both cruises depart and return from Pier 4 in the Charlestown Navy Yard. They are sponsored by the Boston Redevelopment Authority's Harbor Park '88, the Mass. Charlestown Kiwanis Club Sponsors Boys And Girls Club Awards Night

The Annual Awards Night Dinner, sponsored by the Charlestown Kiwanis Club, was held recently at the Charlestown Boys and Girls Club. This event recognizes those members of the Charlestown Clubhouse who have participated in Boys and Girls Club programs in an outstanding manner throughout the year.

Award recipients are chosen by each program department, using as criteria qualities of leadership, achievement and sportsmanship.

Jerry Steimel, director of the Charlestown Clubhouse, welcomed the award recipients and their parents to the event. Henry Sawyer, president of the Charlestown Kiwanis Club, added his welcome and introduced Kiwanian James Kiley, who acted as Master of Ceremonies.

Kelly Moloney led the gathering in the Pledge of Allegiance and Michael Swift said Grace.

A spaghetti and meatball dinner had been prepared by world famous chefs Andy Sferuzzi and Dave Carr, both members of the Kiwanis Club, and was served by staff of the Club.

The guest speaker was Jim Vesey, Merrimack College hockey stand-out and winner of the Hobie Baker Memorial Award. He also made the award presentations to the Clubhouse members.

The Paul Jackson Award was presented by Shelley Montgomery and Joe Jackson. This award is for a senior Clubhouse member who has shown extraordinary dedication to the Charlestown Boys and Girls Club during many years of membership. This year's recipients were Kerrie Fitzpatrick and Daniel Martell. This award is named after Paul Jackson who served at the Clubhouse for 18 years, from 1969 to 1987. Jackson's dedication to the Clubhouse and the boys and girls of Charlestown will always be remembered through this award.

I Was Just Wondering About The Names!

by Ed Loan

Walking up Winthrop Street recently, I happened to glance at the twin war memorials standing tall and silent at the entrance to Winthrop Square. Engraved upon their sides are the names of those killed on June 17, 1775, not very far from this spot.

Names such as Callaghan, Collins, Dillon, and McClary captured my attention — Irish names. Like most, I pictured the defenders as being of English descent. When one thinks of the Irish in Boston, images appear of the days of the great famines when the Irish came to America in large numbers.

I was curious enough to open a few books, but could find no information regarding the nationalities of the Bunker Hill defenders, not even the major 18th century authors mention men of Irish descent. Upon further investigation into the state histories of New Hampshire, Connecticut and Massachusetts, a storehouse of information unfolded before my eyes. Each state has recorded information on its participants at Bunker Hill. On that memorable Saturday in June, there were over 400 men of Irish birth or descent on the field.

Looking at the history of these men was the equivalent of reading a map of Ireland — Cork, Waterford, Sligo, Lame and Newry jump from the pages. Although the majority of the Irish participants were in the colonies for some time, there is listed in the three states histories, men who deserted from the British army and fought on the American side.

In Ireland during this time, the British Military organized what they called "press gangs" who would cross Ireland grabbing young men and forcing them aboard transports bound for America. Once on board the vessels, the "new recruits" were chained to the floor and put on a diet of bread and water until they signed papers of enlistment. After such treatment many, of course, deserted upon arriving in the colonies. Such men must have fought fiercely at Bunker Hill, for capture meant instant death.

Of the American officers that commanded the ranks, 11 were of Irish birth or descent. Among the most noted was Andrew McClary of New Hampshire. McClary's father was born in Tyrone. Major McClary was in command of a battalion of Stark's Regiment. He is described as being over six and a half feet tall of enormous strength and a favorite among his men. McClary was shot down while leaving Charlestown.

In many accounts of the battle, reference is made to Dr. Steven Powers of Massachusetts. The Powers family had immigrated from Waterford. Throughout the engagement, Powers moved about the field unharmed, tending the wounded. With Powers was the Reverend John Martin, an Irish clergyman aiding in the evacuation of the dead and wounded. At one point during the battle, Martin, who was dressed in a clerical robe, was fired upon by the British and he defended himself with a sword. Then there was Martin Rourke, a native of Leitrim, a schoolmaster by profession and a scholar of some note.

Their histories go on and on. Many of those Irish who fought at Bunker Hill had also been present at Lexington and Concord and would serve throughout the war. What a strange turn of events it was as many of the Irish who experienced British wrath in Ireland faced them on the battle field, especially at Bunker Hill where half the British troops engaged were killed or wounded.

From the west to the port of Boston, the Impromptu arrived on June 21st. To date, this San Diego, California yacht wins the prize for overall length and width. Its commanding presence was a hot tourist attraction during an equally hot week. A question posed by Main Street resident, Anne Noyes, was whether there was a berth available for its return voyage. Anne is anxious to visit her daughter in Coronado, California, a short distance from San Diego. Anne's question went unanswered as the Impromptu was true to its name and was gone by dawn. The price, Anne decided, would have been prohibitive so she will jet to the most ideal weather location in the country. Her travel savings will be consumed at the Crown Coronet Room in the Hotel Del Coronado. For you movie buffs, this hotel was used for several takes of "Some Like It Hot." Bon voyage, Anne, and don't spend all your money in LaJolla.

Conducting Tour Of Europe

Sister Jean Vianney of Charlestown, who teaches at Pope John XXIII Central High School in Everett, is presently conducting her 16th trip to Europe with a group of students for a two week tour. She will be leading the students as their teacher-counselor along with Patricia Hillmer, who is also a member of the Pope John faculty.

Together they will be sharing sightseeing tours, special excursions and just a wonderful time as they receive first hand appreciation of art, history, language and entertainment in the cultures of London, Paris, Lucern, Florence and Rome.

The lucky students include Jennifer McInnis of Charlestown.

Sister Jean is a dynamic woman who has a great rapport with her students and, according to students who have gone on her previous trips, will show the young travelers a time they will never forget.
