About The Festival:

For the first time, the National Geographic Explorers Festival was hosted in Mexico. As part of the festival, local Explorers and colleagues from National Geographic Partners and Fox Networks Group in Mexico City gathered for an Explorers Symposium featuring 28 National Geographic Explorers from across Latin America. During the program, the Explorers shared their work through a series of short presentations. Rosann Santos coached the scientists on how to communicate more effectively in their native language for their presentations.

Ms. Santos offers world-class professional development workshops; seminars for professional staff training; and motivational, interactive conversations for higher learning students and their families. When
