

Don't miss the following opportunity with the Ma'alot Grant program.

We are announcing the 2022-2023 JNF / NBN Ma'alot Grant Program. The committee developed new, and we believe, clearer guidelines. They can be found on the revised application form at www.jnf.org/maalot and also are listed below! I urge you to read what content is expected. Some of the key points are:

- Programs must be Israel Centric - not simply Jewish-themed.
- Budgets must be detailed with all expense and revenue items detailed.
- Speakers will only be funded if the person is identified by name, topic, how it relates to your planned programs, and the actual cost.
- Ma'alot grants are not to be used for food, paying staff salaries, purchasing capital equipment, marketing, advertising, or developing curriculum.
- Many sections ask that you LIST the key points. Quality of content rather than quantity are what we need.
- A review by the Executive Director is now required. If that person cannot understand the program, neither can the committee.
- The target audience by age groups and expected participation must be listed.

You are welcome to submit an application for a new program. The committee meets periodically, and applications are reviewed on a "first-in, first-reviewed" basis.

If you have questions or would wish to review your 2022-2023 JNF/NBN Maalot Grant draft application, Rabbi Paul Freedman will be happy to call you. Send him your phone number and time zone. His email: nina_f@netvision.net.il
