TAMS Presents Traffic Study On Navy Yard Master Plan

by Lynn Peters

James Parsons, assistant vice president and director of planning for TAMS Consultants, called his group's latest study of traffic generated by the Navy Yard in 1995 "the most thorough and detailed analysis of a specific area that has been done in years."

Information from the 60-page document, complete with graphs, figures and tables was presented to residents Tuesday night and included traffic flow and generation scenarios, parking supplies and demands, and improvements needed for a Navy Yard 1995 Phase I development with the least possible impact.

Parsons suggested improvements in and around the Yard. He called for intersection improvements in City Square, since 70 percent of all Navy Yard traffic and 85 percent of New England Aquarium traffic would travel through the square. Parsons said Gate 4 and 5 could be widened, and a new Gate 6 would help alleviate City Square impacts.

Although not included in the study, the proposed haul road, which would run parallel to Medford Street from Yard's End to Sullivan Square and carry an estimated 15 percent of the Navy Yard traffic, would bring significant benefits, he said. Parsons also stated that new water shuttles and better transit systems to the Navy Yard would im-

Lane On Tobin's Lower Deck Closed For Pothole Repairs

An emergency pothole repair project began Wednesday, Feb. 14 on the lower deck of the Tobin Bridge, and will continue for approximately one week. Drivers heading outbound on the lower level of the Tobin Bridge are faced with variable lane closures from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. so that Massport may repair a number of sizeable potholes on the roadway.

Repairs on the center lane, expected to take approximately three days, will be followed by approximately two days of repairs on the left travel lane. Since the right travel lane is already closed due to an ongoing redecking project, only one travel lane will be available to motorists until the pothole repairs are completed.

If the weather is inclement, the pothole repairs may take longer than the projected five days.

The MGH-Bunker Hill Health Center will be closed on Monday, Feb. 19 in honor of Presidents Day.

Partnership Was Key Word At Public Safety Meeting

by Kathy Giordano

The Feb. 13 monthly meeting of the Charlestown Neighborhood Council's Public Safety Committee and the Boston Police Community Relations Officer brought residents from the Bunker Hill Housing Development together to discuss crime in their section of the community.

Anne Considine, chairperson of the Bunker Hill Tenants Task Force co-chaired the meeting with Public Safety Committee Chairman Mel Stillman and Officer Joe McNulty. Deputy Superintendent Robert Faherty, commanding officer of Area A, and Boston Housing Authority Housing Police Chief Curtis Jones and Superintendent of Police Operations Joseph Burzynski were on hand to address the crime-related issues of the tenants. Council members Peter Looney and Stephen Collins were also in attendance.

McNulty reported that there has been an increase in automobile vandalism in Charlestown, while at the same time there has been more stolen autos and vehicles recovered. Two assaults were reported, and two handbags were stolen.

According to McNulty, a 31-year-old Charlestown man was arrested in City Square for allegedly breaking into 12 cars. Targets of the thefts were radar detectors and radios. The culprit gained entry by smashing the side vent windows of the cars.

McNulty also reported that an Eden Street house had been broken into last week, and jewelry and a VCR were stolen after the house was ransacked. Another house break occurred on Chestnut Street, but in that case, according to McNulty, a 21-year-old Charlestown resident was arrested after a chase by the home owner. A warrant is being sought for another suspect.

Faherty stated that auto thefts are up by 27 percent in Charlestown, compared to a decrease in all other reported crimes in the community. He stated that 300 arrests were made in Charlestown in 1989, and 2,000 citations were given out for moving violations. The frustration of continually arresting the same suspects and finding them back out on the streets was voiced by the deputy.

"We'll keep arresting them," he said. "I'd like judges to be at these meetings and answer your questions as to why these people are still in the community."

Response time to a call to 911, according to Faherty, is three minutes in Charlestown compared to an average of five minutes elsewhere in Boston. He said 911 received 15,000 calls from Charlestown in 1989.

"Charlestown is the safest section of Boston," he stated. "There were 111 house-breaks in Charlestown last year, compared to 190 a month in sections of Dorchester," he commented. He also stated that 98 percent of the arrests made for Charlestown crimes turned out to be Charlestown residents.

Housing development residents expressed their desire to see an increase in police patrols, especially at night. Stolen and abandoned cars left in the courtyards, response time to 911 calls and breaking and entering were the main issues raised by the small number of attendees.

Faherty told the gathering that the "greatest problem in Charlestown was silence," referring to what results in having no witnesses to a crime. One resident responded: "We might be

PRICING PITFALLS

You've just found the perfect new home for your growing family, but it's a little out of your price range — unless, that is, you can get an extra $20,000 for your current home. It may be worth $_____, but what the heck! Maybe you can find a Realtor to list it at a higher price, and you could get lucky. After all, it just takes one buyer, doesn't it? Not really. To sell your home at top dollar within a reasonable time frame, the prime consideration is not what you'd like to get out of it, but what it is worth in today's market. If you set your price within 5% of that amount, you greatly increase your chances of getting good offers that will result in a relatively fast sale. Remember that there may be other ways to increase your buying power that will get you into that new home, including adjustable rate mortgages or owner financing. When you're selling one home and buying another, you'll need more than luck and the hope of finding that just one person who may be willing to pay more than your home is worth. You'll need a highly professional Realtor who can give you solid advice on how to make the transaction work for you.

For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling a home, talk to the professionals at Silva Realty. Come by our office at 371 Somerville Ave. in Somerville or call us at 242-7470.

Three Residents Honored At Friends Of Irish Freedom Banquet

Nearly 500 people packed the Knights of Columbus Hall on Feb. 10 for the 20th annual banquet of the Friends of Irish Freedom, to honor three local residents for their support of Irish charities and for providing relief for the needs of Irish Republican political prisoners and their families.

Headtable guests included National FOIF President James Maunsell; Boston Unit FOIF President John Hurley; Michael Flannery, guest speaker; Boston City Councillors Robert Travaglini, Chris Iannella, Albert "Dapper" O'Neil and Jim Kelly; Sen. Paul White; and the three Charlestown residents who were honored by the group, Suzanne Murray, Philip X. Carr and James B. Fitzgerald. Sen. Fran Doris, who was to serve as master of ceremonies, was unable to attend due to illness.

Hurley explained that the organization's "only concern now, as it has always been, is to support the Republican struggle for freedom and to assist the political prisoners and their families." He thanked those in attendance as well as the unions, business persons and individuals for their charity and support of the advertisement book.

prove Navy Yard traffic impacts.

Bruce Campbell of Bruce Campbell & Associates, hired by the Boston Redevelopment Authority to study the haul road, presented the possibility of a City Square bypass.

"There are a variety of alternatives," Campbell said, "and we're looking at fitting a road beyond Medford Street next to the tracks."

Campbell said that because of the existing railroad tracks and property rights, details were sketchy but workable. He said that it would take at least two weeks to work with rail representatives about property issues. Paul Barrett, assistant director of Harborpark Planning and Development for the BRA, said there has been interest in developing the haul road by state agencies. Dorothy Connolly, Massport's Charlestown liaison, announced Massport interest in cooperating with the studies for the bypass.

"We do have concerns that it not be adjacent to or over the railroad," Connolly said, "but we're anxious to see the haul road studied."

Parsons' list of improvements also included a crucial Transportation Management Association in the Navy Yard to oversee parking, sign and circulation programs.

"This could be one of the most critical elements of the entire Master Plan," Parsons said.

Petie Helsing, a resident of the Navy Yard, said she was concerned about the traffic on First Avenue and how it would impact residents. A resident of Thirteenth Street was also concerned about pedestrian safety.

Parsons said TAMS had not worked out traffic circulation within the Navy Yard, and that the issue would probably mean imposing street or parking restrictions.

TAMS figures were disputed by some residents, particularly from the people involved in the Navy Yard master plan process since 1988.

Stephen McHugh of Mead Street presented his own version of traffic and parking figures. McHugh attempted a formal presentation to dispute TAMS projections, and the meeting took an emotional turn with a mix of anger and applause.

"I disagree with a great many assumptions, as I've disagreed before," he said. "I don't say I'm right, but I hope you all will think about this. I hope you will all not be satisfied with a single meeting arbitrarily cut short to take care of traffic for the Navy Yard for the ages."

McHugh's presentation, which compared earlier TAMS figures and his own projections, drew applause from fellow former master planners, and a clarification from Parsons, who said it was important to realize that the type of traffic has changed since earlier plans. More biomedical research space in the BRA 1990 Master Plan reduced new office space, for example, and means less employees.

"I think Steve makes a very good point, and that is, that the land use in the Yard is going to drive what the transportation characteristics are in the Yard," Parsons said. "The development scenario is different. It assumes a different kind of use, and that's very important. I think if there's a critical thing to understand here, it is, that depending on the type and nature of the uses in the Yard, that's going to drive the transportation impacts."

Emotions ran high as

Peter McClure of Monument Square complained about the number of meetings, yet called for more rigorous questioning of the transportation figures.

Barrett, however, said he had not heard anyone "shoot holes" in the TAMS study. "We're going to move forward," he said, "We're going to modify the plan, but it's a balance of interest that we have to have here."

The next BRA master plan presentation will focus on readdressing residents' questions about a city wide proposed zoning plan that would include the Navy Yard, and jobs and community benefits generated by development of the Yard. The presentation will be held Tuesday, Feb. 20 at 7 p.m. in the Hull Room, Building 5 in the National Parks Service portion of the Navy Yard.

The community public hearing for residents' comments and concerns about the BRA 1990 Master Plan for the Navy Yard is scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 27 at 7 p.m. at the Kent Community School, 50 Bunker Hill St. The Charlestown Neighborhood Council will hear residents before it's expected to vote on whether to generally approve the master plan at the monthly meeting on March 6.

Simmons College Pairs With Charlestown High School

Simmons College and Charlestown High School have collaborated this year to build on the high school's academic strengths. Simmons was originally paired with Jamaica Plain High School until it closed last summer. At that time, Stacy Johnson, CHS headmaster, invited Simmons to join Bunker Hill Community College as a college partner at CHS.

"The match between Simmons and Charlestown is a good one and it's working," says Dr. Bard Hamlen, coordinator of the Simmons/Charlestown Collaborative and associate professor of education at Simmons. "The key word is collaborative, a two-way street that has to benefit both sides to work."

College and university pairings with Boston Public Schools to provide direct services to students through various educational programs began in 1975.

With funding assistance from Chapter 636, a state appropriation to provide quality and integrated education, the Collaborative supports several academically enriching programs. One of these programs is a tutorial service provided by Simmons students. The Reading Is Fundamental Program, which accompanies the tutoring program, provides a donation of more than $6,000 worth of paperback books to the school. The federal government provides $3 for each $1 the Collaborative raises to buy books for the school.

Another component of the Collaborative involves SAT preparation. Simmons offers assistance to CHS teachers through an SAT consultant, who provides them with a special curriculum for test preparation and on-going support.

Simmons participates on the Humanities Magnet Theme Team, which is designing and writing a comprehensive humanities program for CHS, and also offers three of its own additional programs to CHS students.

Upward Bound, a summer residential six-week college-preparatory program in its fourth year at Simmons, is designed to provide academic courses in science, math and English, and career opportunities and college counseling for female high school students. After attending the summer sessions, the young women continue to attend tutoring and career counseling sessions, enrichment courses and college-preparatory activities throughout the academic year.

The Saturday Science and Math Enrichment Program selects high school students with serious interests in math and science and exposes them to related activities one Saturday per month. In its third year at (continued on page 13)

Dr. Lonnie Carton Talks To Parents About School

by Lynn Peters

Psychology and family expert Dr. Lonnie Carton led nearly a dozen parents through an informative Matchmakers Workshop last week at the Harvard-Kent School, in an effort to help them make decisions on which public school will be best for their child next fall.

"If you had given up on the schools in Boston, there is a new clarion call," Carton said of the Boston Public Schools controlled-choice plan. "There has to be a new cooperative spirit, and maybe you don't trust that things will change, but there's nothing more important than to get your child into the best school for him or her."

Carton is a consultant to Boston Partners in Education's Parent Education Resource Collaborative, which sponsored the workshops throughout the city, and suggested that parents visit schools before making a decision. She said that the physical environment, educational offerings and the climate of a school are all important in considering which school is best for an individual child.

Teaching that self-esteem, self-discipline and self-reliance are invaluable for children, Carton told parents that they should visit schools, let their children know why they go to school and take 10 or 15 minutes a day to read to their children.

"School is what's molding kids, but no matter what the schools can do, they're still our kids," she said. "This is important in determining how much we have to invest in our child's education."

Galvin Challenges Procedures At Ward 2 Democratic Caucus

Charlestown resident William J. Galvin Jr. has submitted a letter to the Democratic State Committee challenging the results of the Ward 2 Democratic Caucus held at the Knights of Columbus hall on Feb. 3 to elect delegates to the state's Democratic Convention in June.

Galvin, who was a candidate for delegate at the caucus, penned the letter to James Roosevelt, chairman of the Compliance Review Committee of the Democratic State Committee on Feb. 5, outlining his observations on the day of the caucus, and citing several alleged violations of the State Committee's rules for the election of delegates to the convention.

Galvin's letter made note that the wife of Kevin Roche, the Ward 2 Democratic Committee Chairman and Chairman of the Caucus, was a candidate for delegate, as was Sheila Brown. Both Kevin Roche and Brown were listed as contact persons for further information in notices on the caucus. He also pointed out that many of the persons registering voters for the caucus were candidates for delegates or alternates on a previously announced slate, and it was a candidate who handed him a ballot at the registration table.

In the State Democratic Committee's rules for selecting delegates to the 1990 Massachusetts Democratic Convention, Rule 6 states: "Ballots shall not be distributed until all such persons are registered and registration has been closed. Those voting must be present at the caucus. There will be no absentee or proxy voting at any local caucus for any reason."

Galvin was also critical of the fact that some of the ballots distributed toward the end of registration were all white instead of the color-coded ballots given out earlier in the registration period.

In his letter, Galvin stated that when he arrived at the polling place at 1:30 p.m., "It appeared that a number of people had been allowed to register before the time announced." He stated that "the doors did not close at 2:15 p.m. People arrived late and registered ... and throughout the proceedings, people were coming in the rear doors of the hall."

Galvin went on to say that "the chairperson took nominations for all positions at once (six male delegates, six female delegates, one additional delegate, two male alternates and two female alternates) and instructed everyone to vote at once, thereby not allowing losers in the first two categories to run in the other two categories as required by the rules."

In questioning this nomination procedure, Galvin was referring to the State Democratic Committee's Rule 14. This rule reads: "If the number of delegates to be elected by the caucus is odd (Charlestown was eligible for 13 delegates), there will be three elections, one for women and one for men and one open to both women and men for the one odd seat. In the three-election situation, the one open to both women and men shall be held last and those defeated in the first two elections may be renominated." Rule 17 deals with alternates, and states that "alternates shall be elected after delegates by the same method."

Galvin reported in his challenge that at the close of nominations, the voting for all positions took place by putting all five ballots into a common box.

Other questions raised by Galvin in his letter concerned the number of voters in the hall at the time of nominations. He said that a count of people in the hall was approximately 300, compared to the 401 votes reported as cast in the election. He also reported a claim "that a union official was seen with 'a fistful of ballots in his hand.'"

"It is clear," Galvin said in his challenge, "that the caucus was not run in accordance with State Committee rules, which cannot be changed or waived at the local level." This reference is to Rule 36 which reads: "These rules may not be suspended, amended or overruled by any local committee or caucus."

Roche was asked whether the Charlestown Caucus was in violation of Rule 14, providing for a separate election for the position of additional delegate. His reply was, "Probably, yes."

Roche explained that when no one was nomina-

Author Suzanne Gordon Shares Thoughts On Women Today With Working Women's Network And Friends Groups

NOTED AUTHOR Suzanne Gordon shared her thoughts on the work ethics of today's woman at a combined meeting of the Charlestown Working Women's Network and the Friends of the Charlestown Branch Library, held recently at the library. Gordon, in a recent article, stated: "All the talk about mommy tracks, flextime, and work, job sharing fails to deal with one fundamental work problem: more than at any time in the last 50 years, Americans have become prisoners of work." Gordon, who writes frequently for "The Boston Globe's" Focus section, is writing a book about the masculinization of American women, to be published later this year by Little, Brown and Company. Members of the two organizations and their guests enjoyed a potluck supper prior to Gordon's presentation, and had an opportunity to socialize with the guest speaker over coffee and dessert at the conclusion.

Charlestown Is In The Midst Of A Million Dollar Crime Wave

Although police officials have stated publicly that Charlestown is the safest section of the city, many residents have felt the anger and frustration of the crimes that continue on a daily basis in the town. The woman on Mt. Vernon Street who was assaulted and robbed in front of her home; the home owner on Eden Street who returned to find the house ransacked and personal property taken; the young man residing near the Monument who saved to purchase a car that was recently stolen and found some hours later totally demolished — these residents certainly don't feel safe.

The increase in automobile thefts and break-ins, house and car vandalism, along with the reported house-breaks and handbag snatches, have made an emotional and financial impact on the victims. Broken car windows, slashed tires, damaged mirrors and antennas may seem minor in nature in the overall crime of the city, but collectively these crimes add up to millions of dollars. This costly crime wave is tallied in monies spent on repairs, many of which are not covered by insurance, time lost from work and, ultimately, further increases in insurance premiums.

At Tuesday's sparsely attended Public Safety/Police Community Relations meeting, Boston Housing Authority Police Chief Curtis Jones called for a partnership between residents and the police to resolve some of the crime problems in the community. This must be a commitment from all police departments serving the Charlestown area, as well as from the residents.

The police cannot solve Charlestown's crime problems without the watchful eye of the residents. On the other hand, the residents need to be able to count on the rapid response and thorough investigations by the police departments.

Jones had the right idea — as residents we must do our part and ask — no, demand — the full cooperation of the police. By the police and the residents working together, the community's million dollar crime wave can be halted.

The Lt. Michael P. Quinn Scholarship Fund has awarded $23,250 to outstanding college-bound young people of Charlestown since its first dinner dance at Memorial Hall on April 4, 1970.

Join us on Saturday, April 7 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 75 West School St., for the 21st Annual Michael P. Quinn Scholarship Dinner Dance.

Daniel J. Marsden, last year's recipient and the first to receive the $1,500 award, will be presented a plaque from Mayor Raymond Flynn. Marsden is in his second semester at Wentworth Institute of Technology and majoring in building construction technology.

Thirteen young men and seven young women, representing 16 colleges and universities, have been most successful because of our supporters since the schol-arship's inception on Sept. 8, 1969.

Perpetuating the fine character of our departed great friend, Lt. Michael P. Quinn, USMC, and helping the youth of our community will make for an enjoyable evening.

We look forward to a superb evening of dining and dancing at the Knights of Columbus Hall. This will be the fifth Michael P. Quinn Scholarship Dinner Dance held under their fine stewardship.

Tickets are $25 per person, and may be purchased by call 242-5493 or 242-5445, or writing: P.O. Box 216, Charlestown, Mass. 02129.

 ted to run against Mel Stillman, candidate for the additional delegate spot, "I did not consider it important to point out to the audience that defeated candidates could run against Mr. Stillman. That omission is a violation of Rule 14."

As to the failure of the caucus chair to implement Rule 6 which specifies that ballots will not be distributed until all have registered, Roche stated that the committee felt that handing out the ballot to the person when he or she registered was the best security. He noted that getting 400 people registered in 45 minutes presented a problem with time.

Roche explained that 400 ballots had been printed on colored paper. As 2 p.m. approached and Roche saw the number of residents waiting to be registered, he sent Ward Committee member Mike Powers out to his law office to photocopy additional ballots. These were all done on white paper.

In responding to other points in Galvin's challenge, Roche said that he believes that the final registration was concluded at approximately 2:15 p.m. He noted that the Ward Committee can control the distribution of the ballots, but, "it could happen that a voter asked a friend to put the ballot into the box."

The utilization of candidates on the podium and in the registration of voters was addressed by Roche. He said that Brown, who was a candidate for delegate, is the co-chair of the Ward Committee and, as such, read the official letter from Congressman Chet Atkins and the Statement of Affirmative Action before the nominations got underway. Roche said that many of the volunteers he had contacted to work at the caucus were unable to attend due to illness and various other reasons. He said he solicited help from the audience early on, and when few responded he was forced to call on members of the Ward Committee and candidates to serve as registrars so the registration could proceed.

Roche states that among the things he learned from this year's caucus was that the rules restrict the length of the caucus, the way people have to sign in and the sequence of voting for the additional delegate, but they discourage "give and take" between the voters and candidates. He said: "I favor a longer caucus which allows voters to either stay the whole time or just come in and vote for their neighbor and leave. The key would be to begin in the morning, allowing 'rolling' registration and voting."

The fact remains that the Democratic State Committee establishes the rules for caucus elections, and at this time the challenge by Galvin on alleged infractions of these rules by the local caucus rests in the hands of that committee.

Maureen Garde, executive director of the Democratic State Committee, stated that Galvin's challenge is presently in the hands of Roosevelt as chairman of the Compliance Review Committee. She said that he will read the challenge and determine whether the outcome of the caucus was affected by any charges laid out in the challenge. She noted that if he felt more information was necessary to reach a determination, a hearing might be called at State Committee headquarters.

Garde said that the review of all the challenges from throughout the state is presently underway, and if a hearing were called, it would be held sometime in March. She said that when Roosevelt reaches a determination on a challenge, a response will be forwarded in writing to the person who issued the challenge and to the chairman of the local caucus.

It is too early, Garde said, to determine the outcome of the local challenge at this time.

 Simmons, the program helps sustain and increase enthusiasm for math and science, so that students will consider these fields in their college or career plans. CHS is one of seven Boston Public Schools that participates.

Simmons also offers the Early Scholars Program as an option for students who have completed all their high school electives. The program allows students to take a free college course at Simmons for high school credit.

"Given Massachusetts' cutbacks in public education, programs such as these are vital," says Hamlen. "We are in the position to help and we are doing just that. A quality education raises the expectations of what these youngsters can achieve. Together, we are helping to set the direction for the future and broaden the students' sense of what an education can mean."

Children's Theater Series Offered At CWT

The Charlestown Working Theater has revived its Children's Theater Series with a schedule of three Saturday programs offering performances and workshops to children 8 to 12 and their families on March 10 and 31, and June 2. Hour-long performances start at noon and workshops follow after a short break at 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Beginning with Ninots Puppet Theater the series introduces the performing arts to young people who may not normally have access to such events. It could be the first step in bringing back to the Charlestown community a training and performance series with a potential to be a developmental ground for young Boston theater artists.

The CWT Children's Theater Series is designed to give hands-on training performances by teaching artists. Each Saturday, children and their entire families attend a noon-time performance, which features professional theater artists demonstrating a skill they will teach in the afternoon workshop. The performers teach the children theatrical skills such as juggling, movement, mime, mask-making, puppetry, music and improvisation. Each Saturday highlights a different skill and a different set of performers.

On March 10, Ninots

Puppet Theater will perform "Sweet and Sour Stories: Tales from Around the World," in an hour-long collection of short shows, including "Bruno, the Dancing Bear," "Frogchild and Snakeson," "The Princess and the Dragon" and "Signorina Bella Zanco." The performances use a wide range of puppets, from over-sized, larger-than-life creations to small rod puppets, and masked dancers and musical instruments.

Ninots is a touring theater company, which combines traditional and contemporary puppetry, music and folklore with common materials, distinctive techniques and carefully chosen intercultural programming and performers. The performers have national and international experience and create original works of simple means for adults and children.

On March 31 Hole in the Sock Productions will create live radio drama on the CWT stage and involve members of the audience. Former schoolteachers Jeff Loeb and Eric Arnold write and produce "Hole in the Sock," a feature heard on National Public Radio's nightly news program "All Things Considered." As Hole in the Sock Productions, they have worked with children to create original comedy, drama and music in the live-radio performance format. During the workshop the artists teach children how to develop original radio dramas.

On June 2 Mark Mitton, clown/magician and championship balloon twister, will perform a unique mix of theater which has been a featured part of the Big Apple Circus since 1987. Mitton teaches specific magic tricks, acts of sleight-of-hand and clowning technique for the workshop.

Individual tickets to performances or workshops are available, as are $14 one-day packages for a performance and a workshop ticket, and $30 full-series packages. Full-package buyers receive priority treatment for sold-out workshops. Individual performance tickets are $7 for children and adults. If additional children's tickets are bought for the same performance by the same family, the price is $5; and one workshop admission is $10. CWT subscribers receive 10 percent off any purchase.

The CWT 1990 Children's Theater Series is supported in part by grants from The Polaroid Foundation and Constitution Marina. CWT, 442 Bunker Hill St. is in a Victorian, brick firehouse. For more information and reservations, call 242-3534, Tuesday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

'Love Letters' Delivered To The Wilbur Theatre

A.R. Curney's critically acclaimed Broadway hit "Love Letters" comes to Boston's Wilbur Theatre on Tuesday, Feb. 20 with John Rubinstein, Joanna Gleason, Julie Harris and Richard Kiley. "Love Letters" tells the story of a couple whose funny, poignant friendship and romance takes them from second grade to adolescence to young adulthood and into middle age. John Tillinger, who staged the original New Haven Long Wharf Theatre and New York productions, will direct the Wilbur Theatre production.

Rubinstein and Gleason, who originated the roles of Andrew Makepeace Ladd and Melissa Gardner, will reprise the roles in the first week of its Boston run, Feb. 20 to 25. Harris and Kiley will continue the starring roles in the second week, Feb. 27 to March 4.

Rubinstein not only originated the role of Andrew, he also debuted the play at the Promenade Theatre in New York in early 1989 and performed in it during its recent run on Broadway. He made his Broadway debut in 1972 in the title role in "Pippin," for which he received a Theatre World Award. In 1980, he won the Tony and Drama Desk Award for his portrayal of James Leeds in "Children of a Lesser God." Recently, he completed a successful Broadway run in "M.

Butterfly." On television, he received an Emmy nomination for his role in the drama "Family," and also co-starred in the detective series "Crazy Like a Fox" with Jack Warden.

Gleason won the 1988 Tony, Drama Desk and Outer Critics' Circle awards for her Broadway performance in the Stephen Sondheim musical, "Into the Woods." She has also won Drama Desk Awards for "It's Only a Play" and "Social Security" and a Derwent Award for "Joe Egg." Her film credits include "Heartburn," "Hannah and Her Sisters," and "Crimes and Misdemeanors." She originated the role of Melissa and performed the role in New York with Richard Thomas.

The Wilbur Theatre welcomes back two of its most luminous stars: Richard Kiley, who starred as Joe Keller in "All My Sons," and Julie Harris, who starred as Emily Dickinson in the highly acclaimed "The Belle of Amherst."

Kiley is best remembered for creating the title role in the legendary musical "Man of La Mancha." His performance won not only a Tony Award but also a Drama Critics Poll and the Drama League Award. He starred in the Broadway production of Miller's "All My Sons," which was presented prior to New York at the Wilbur Theatre. On Broadway he co-starred with Dihann Carroll in Richard Rodgers' musical "No Strings" and with Harris in "Voices," followed by appearances in "Absurd Person Singular" and "The Heiress."

Harris has dazzled Boston audiences most recently in the much-heralded "Driving Miss Daisy," which recently completed a 15-month national tour. The distinguished actress has won five Tony Awards, the most ever won by a Broadway performer. Television viewers will remember her as Lilimae Clements in the long-running series, "Knots Landing."

"Love Letters" is being produced in Boston by Jon B. Platt, Donald Tirabassi, Robert Foley and Peter Henderson.

Prices and performances for the two week engagement of "Love Letters" are: Tuesdays through Saturdays, 8 p.m., Saturday matinees, 2 p.m., Sunday matinees, 3 p.m., at $37.50, $32.50 and $27.50; Thursday matinees, 2 p.m., at $35, $30 and $25. Senior citizens and students may purchase tickets at half-price for all Thursday matinees. Tickets may also be charged by phone through Ticketron at 720-3480.

For information, call or write the Wilbur Theatre, 246 Tremont St., Boston, Mass. 02116, 423-4008.

stupid, but we're not suicidal."

Considine stated the need for a restitution program, whereby offenders are made to pay back the amount of damage they caused with their crime. Faherty informed her that such a program would have to come from the court system and stated, "A major problem today is that no one is held responsible for their actions."

Faherty informed the audience that three patrol cars, one wagon and a detective unit are patrolling the streets of Charlestown on a 24-hour period. When needed, he added, the Anti-crime Unit from downtown is dispatched to this area.

He stated that the first thing he told his officers when he took over command of Area A was to "treat the people with respect and you'll get respect back in return." He stated that he expects those under his command to act in this manner and welcomes residents' complaints.

Jones introduced Burzynski to the residents as the new superintendent of police operations for the BHA. Burzynski comes to the BHA from the U.S. Army where he served as Chief of Intelligence. "We are trying to bring better skills to the Authority to provide better service," he stated.

Jones said that the housing police received 28 calls for assistance from the Charlestown housing development since Oct. 1, 1989. Of those calls, he stated, two arrests were made.

"We are an investigative unit," Jones stated, and urged residents to dial 911 for emergency police service. He told them that due to financial constraints, routine police patrols by the BHA police have been cut back from Charlestown and placed in other housing developments in the city where their presence is needed because of higher crime rates.

Jones said that the BHA is petitioning for federal money to fight crime in the housing developments. This money would be used to set up programs to educate residents on crime prevention, antidrug strategies, drug treatment and elderly programs.

Judy Evers, community liaison from the Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Services, informed Jones that the goal of the residents that she receives calls from is to have their own patrol car in the development. "How do we get one?" she asked. "We are being penalized because we don't have a high crime rate, but we're getting one."

Jones replied: "I'm not denying you coverage because I don't care. I don't have the money. If there is an area of crime, we'll target that area." He told the audience, "I will communicate with the Team Police and the Boston Police and get back to you. Keep us accountable."

Jones concluded: "It's tough here but under control. We have a long road ahead. It's important we get on the band wagon now (to get the money needed for more police coverage). It has to be a partnership."

CHS Receives Close-Up Scholarships

DAVID W. DAVIS, executive director of Massport, presents a check for a full Close-Up Scholarship to Charlestown High School Senior Class President Carolyn White (left) and Senior Class Treasurer Susan Burke of Charlestown. CHS participates every year in the Close-Up program, which sends students from all over the United States to Washington, D.C., for a one-week intensive look at government.

YARN AND KNITTERS NEEDED

The Townie Santa Committee is already planning for Christmas 1990. As one of the gifts to Charlestown's elderly, needy shut-ins, the committee would like to include a handmade lap blanket. The committee is starting early in order to complete the project by late fall.

Yarn Is Needed

Do you have any yarn left over from a long-forgotten project? If you do, it can be used to make the lap blankets. So dig out that cedar chest or closet and drop the yarn off at the Patriot office at One Thompson Square. It will be put to good use.

Can You Knit Or Crochet?

Persons who can knit or crochet are invited to join in making the lap blankets. The blankets should measure approximately 3 feet by 4 feet, and can be of the color or pattern of your choice. Whether you can make one, six or a dozen — all help will be appreciated.

Homefinder's Seminar Planned

A seminar has been developed to help the growing number of people who live in temporary, doubled-up or unaffordable housing situations in Charlestown. Action for Boston Community Development, in conjunction with the Kennedy Center, is conducting a six-week Homefinder's Group Seminar to help people learn the complex system of finding affordable housing.

Beginning March 7, six sessions will be held every Wednesday through April 11 in the Meeting Room of the Charlestown Branch Library, 179 Main St., from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

The seminar will provide an overview of the various housing programs, including eligibility requirements and application processes of each program. Participants will learn about a variety of tenant responsibilities, such as housing resume preparation, how to locate prospective landlords and how to prevent eviction and understand housing discrimination.

Intended to be a self-help group for people looking for permanent housing or for those currently living in temporary housing, the seminar is designed to help participants conduct their own housing search and in no way is a guarantee of finding housing. For more information and to register, contact Denise Monks at the Kennedy Center at 241-8866.

MEDEX Rate Freeze Update

The legislation to freeze MEDEX rates at last year's levels was given a new bill number and is now listed as Senate Bill 1481. The Insurance Committee gave the MEDEX Rate Freeze bill a favorable report, and now it is in the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

The Charlestown Healthy Aging Program phone tree will be put into action again to contact Sen. Patricia McGovern, chairperson of the Senate Ways and Means Committee. If McGovern releases this bill quickly and favorably from her committee, Bill 1481 can move to the next step in the legislative process and be voted on by the full Senate soon.

CHAP urges all concerned Charlestown seniors to call McGovern's office and request that the bill be released favorably from her committee. For more information, phone numbers or to make calls for the CHAP phone tree, call 241-8866.

WILL YOU GET A SECOND CHANCE?

Many people ignore the Biblical call to repent of sin and trust Christ as Savior. They place their hope in some kind of second chance after death. This way they can go on in their sin and rebellion against God. They prefer to wait until after death to see if the Bible is true. Then, they will exercise the option they think God will offer to repent and trust in God's Way of Salvation. Dear Reader, we are now living in the time of God's second chance to live and fellowship with our Creator forever. When we, through Adam, fell into sin and became separated from our Holy Creator, we deserved no better than the destiny of Satan, a place called Hell (Matt. 25:41). But God, in loving Grace, sent His Son to die for our sins. God pleads with you to repent of your sin and trust in Jesus as your Savior. Jesus conquered sin and death by His resurrection. Will you accept your only chance for salvation today? (Heb. 9:27).

The Kids Force Says Thanks

Dear Gloria,

We the kids of the KIDS FORCE, a new program designed especially for us 8- to 14-year-old kids who live in the projects, just want to write this thank you note to some very special business people in our community.

Ned from the Red Store generously donated tonic to our first KIDS FORCE meeting.

Jopa from Jopa's gave pizzas and Butch Gorden at Jenny's Pizza donated pizza. We send an especially big thank you to Arthur Russell at Erin's on Medford Street for his

Thank You

Dear Gloria,

I would like to take this opportunity to personally thank you and The Charlestown Patriot for the help in making the recent Boys Club Alumni Reunion the huge success it proved to be, but the reunion is only one of the many Boys & Girls Club activities that you and your fine newspaper help to promote each year.

To many in the community, the Patriot and the Boys & Girls Club are synonymous. I know the Executive Board, the administration and the membership appreciate your efforts on their behalf. In fact, each Executive Board meeting is begun with the distribution of a compilation of the previous month's Boys & Girls Club news as reported in the Patriot.

Your efforts on behalf of the organization certainly do not go unnoticed.

The Alumni Reunion Committee would also like to express its gratitude to Jimmy Connors for his tireless efforts in promoting the affair and selling tickets, and to Sal Saccardo, a gentleman who provided scores of old photos for the viewing pleasure of those in attendance. Sal also went a few steps further by providing copies of prints for those who were interested. In an expression of unselfishness, Mr. Saccardo donated any and all revenue derived from his efforts to the Charlestown Boys & Girls Club.

Because of people like Gloria, Jimmy Connors, Sal Saccardo and this year's Alumni Reunion Honoree Phil Kelly, who recognize the need for the Boys & Girls Club and are willing to give of their time, the organization will continue to be a vital part of the Charlestown community.

Sincerely,
Charlie McGonagle

CNATF Supports Efforts To Save Charlestown Courthouse

considered the issues regarding the continuing operation of the Charlestown District Court in City Square. Because the CNATF has been involved with the Central Artery North Area (CANA) project in City Square, including the tunnels now under construction, and the future use of existing buildings and parcels in the area, the CNATF wishes to support efforts by our Representatives and Senators to save the Charlestown District Court if at all possible in the current state budget crisis.

When first laid out, City Square was a triangular cross-roads for the town. With its meetinghouse and courthouse, government operations gave it importance. The Middlesex County Court sat here until Charlestown's annexation to Boston in 1874.

The CANA project allows a unique opportunity to examine Charlestown's past. By understanding its history we can plan a new City Square that respects the past while meeting the needs of the present and the future.

Yours truly,
Richard A. Johnston and Kenneth Stone
Co-Chairman, CNATF

The CHARlestown Against Drugs Corner . . .

CHARlestown Against Drugs is a neighborhood response to a lack of information and awareness about drug use and alcohol abuse within our community. Because of the growing efforts of concerned neighbors, businesses and organizations, Charlestown is learning more about the many drug- and alcohol-related issues our children, parents and neighbors face every day.

Through this informational column, The Charlestown Patriot joins the CHAD spirit. We will share a variety of information that we've collected about specific drugs, alcoholism, how drug and alcohol abuse affects different members of the family, where to go and who to talk to about getting help for yourself or a loved one, and opportunities to learn more or to have fun in drug-free settings.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER . . .

• CHAD Poster and Logo Contest: Create a poster, if you're 6 to 12 years old, or design a logo, if you're 13 to 18, that CHAD can use to identify itself. Both should have an antidrug or drug-free message. The winning poster will be displayed around Charlestown, and the winning logo will become CHAD's identifying mark on buttons and T-shirts. Pick up an entry form that explains all the contest rules at the Boys & Girls Club on Green Street, or at the Patriot office at One Thompson Square. Enter before Wednesday, March 14 by 5 p.m.

• Basketball Clinic: The free monthly basketball clinic for 6- to 16-year-olds is Friday, Feb. 23 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Medford Street gym. The action is videotaped and replayed, so you get a chance to see yourself perform. Contact Tom Desmond of Harvard Street at 241-8932 if you want to copy a tape for yourself.

• Saturday Morning Film Series: "I Live in an Alcoholic Family" will be shown at the Senior Lounge on Bunker Hill Street on Feb. 24 at 10:30 a.m. Co-sponsored by the Kennedy Center and CHAD, different films are shown on the last Saturday morning of every month. The films are free for people of all ages.

• BAD "Ice" Awareness Campaign: Mayor Raymond Flynn is kicking off his citywide campaign against ice, a dangerous street drug that is gradually sweeping the country, in Charlestown on Wednesday, Feb. 28. The Mayor will be at the Kent Community School on 50 Bunker Hill St. at 7 p.m. to lead off a full program of events. A 15-minute video will explain what ice is all about. A panel of experts, including Charlestown leaders, and police officers from SPECDA and DARE will answer questions. There will be free Bruins videotapes and BAD/CHAD T-shirts, and kids can receive their own Drug-Free Pledge Card from Boston Against Drugs.

If you have comments, suggestions or would like information about CHAD, call Jerry Steimel at 242-1775, Gloria Conway or Lynn Peters at 241-9511, or Linda Smith at 241-7700.

CHAD: Drug-Free and Proud To Be

Be A Winner . . . Enter CHAD's Poster And Logo Contests

You don't have to be a super artist to be a winner in the CHARlestown Against Drugs Poster and Logo Contests . . . you just have to care.

The contests are divided by age groups with Charlestown children ages 6 to 12 asked to design a poster showing that they are proud to be drug- and alcohol-free. The poster must be standard size, 22" x 28", and must mention CHARlestown Against Drugs.

Charlestown teen-agers 13 to 18, will submit entries into the logo section of the contest. They are asked to create a CHAD logo that somehow conveys an anti-drug message and identifies CHAD. Keep your design simple, because the logo will have to be reduced to button size and enlarged for T-shirts.

The winner of each contest will receive a $250 U.S. Savings Bond, and his or her poster or logo will be reproduced to represent CHAD. All participants will receive ribbons and
