

10 Steps That Can Help You Write a Good Article

Article writing, publishing, and distributing them on different websites and journals is a target that every writer wants to achieve to become a writing expert. It is something that nearly every writer wants to do in their career and no doubt, it is challenging.

Article writing is never easy and when it comes to its publishing, the demands of the publisher and the article reviewer are not easy to meet. Especially since the best essay writer would read and pinpoint every little mistake about the paper before it can be published. It doesn't matter if it is about writing facts or the writing style, they want everything to be perfect and authentic.

So, writing an article is challenging but who does not like to conquer this field?

Of course, everyone wants that.

Thus, here I have outlined 10 important steps for you that can help you out in writing a good article. So, get ready to write a good article.

The topic should be interesting

What would your choice be if you were about to read an article?

Of course, you will prefer to read an article about the topic which has some contemporary relevance, and it is up to date. So, your choice of the topic should be around these criteria. You can check different websites, newspaper magazines, social sites and visit forums to check what needs to be addressed. If you do not understand how to do it, then you can take help from your friend or from an online essay writing service.

You have to see what the buzz is all about and then you will choose a topic.

Let the Ideas Incubate Properly

You cannot write articles by forcing yourself to come up with ideas and information.

This is not how things work folk. You have to give yourself time and space to come up with brilliant ideas and then, you are able to incorporate them into the article. You have to sit for a while, note down ideas that are coming in your mind and wait for new things to gather, and then, you can move toward gathering facts about your ideas.

Gather all Important Facts

Once your ideas are confirmed, you can start doing your research on the topic and its details. You can do research by simply googling the facts or you can read authentic journal articles for it. It's up to you how you want to do it and which way you want to take your research work.

You can even go for the quantitative research methodology where you can get data from the interviews.

Make Bullet Points

Now, since you are done with the research and gathering information part, you have to make a draft of all the information, and it is better if you do it by making an outline using bullet points.

You can easily organize your information in bullet points and it will help you know which point needs to be put where in the article and what should be excluded.

Write an Interesting Subject line

What do you people read first in the article?

Of course, it is the subject line and title and if you want to stand out among the audience, then you should create an interesting title or subject lines too. It is better if you add your keywords in the subline or title but if you think some important fact can be transformed into a subject line then, you can do this as well.

It's up to you how you want to write the subject line but try to make it unique and impressive. To write my essay or article, I choose my keywords to be included in the title. The title of my essay or article is usually four to 5 words long. So, you can add a short title, and then you can write a catchy subject line below it. Both can work for your article.

Add all important information first

It depends on your word count and how much space you have for your article.

While writing a news article, you might not have a lot of space to include every detail possible so every important information comes first and then you move towards the less important information in the body paragraphs. Make sure that every highlighted fact about the event or topic you are covering is being said in the first paragraph and later you can add other points too.

So, do not delay the story because this makes your article look boring and the readers do not like that.

Use Important key points

You must have seen in the articles that writers use some important key points throughout the article to make it impressive.

Every article has some key points so, your article must have it too. They are related to the topic that you are writing on and you have to use them in the main body paragraph.

Keep one idea in one paragraph

Do not include all your ideas in the same paragraph because it will make a mess.

I know you have to include more information in the first paragraph because you do not have a lot of space but after that, in the body paragraphs, you need to keep ideas intact and organized. Go with one idea at one point and then, move towards another one.

Proofread your Work

Do not assume that you are done with the article after completing it because this is where the hard part starts. After finishing your article, you have to proofread the work and look out for the mistakes that can be corrected. If you find this stage difficult, you can contact an online essay writing service called CollegeEssay.org and ask them to proofread your article for you. They will provide your assistance at multiple stages.

Add References

In the end, add references of the sources you used to write the article.

With the help of these 10 tips, you can continue your article and write it professionally in a way that will leave an impact on the readers. So, follow these steps and rock the writing floor.
