MARKET WEIGHTON

Market Weightton is a small, rural town and civil partnership in the heart of the East Riding of Yorkshire; the town is one of the main market towns within the Yorkshire Wolds and sits perfectly between two major cities, York and Hull. The town sits around 20 miles (32 km) from either vibrant city, making it a great place to be connected to the heart of Yorkshire and the Humber.

The market town has a wealth of local highstreet retail stores, accompanied by a large Tesco supermarket and petrol station, 24 hour convenience store, bakery, schools, public houses, sports facilities, large 24 hour veterinary hospital and a doctors surgery.

The town has great, direct transport connections to UK cities via the accessible M62 motorway network.

The town also features a lovely green, duck ponds and Georgian and Victorian streets. Its most famous resident was William Bradley, born in 1787 (who grew his way into the Guinness Book of Records as England's Tallest Man, measuring 7ft 9inches tall and weighing 27 stone)

One of the jewels of the Yorkshire Wolds, this peaceful town has held a market for over 750 years

The town is celebrated today for its quintessentially English farmer's market, duck pond and pretty red tile roofs, the town is an essential stop for anyone looking to invest and start their life within the Yorkshire Wolds.
