Oversight Committee Gets Off To Rough Start

by Kathy Giordano

The Charlestown Neighborhood Council Oversight Committee met for the first time on May 22 to discuss issues and concerns pertaining to the Navy Yard Master Plan. The intent of the meeting was to set down agenda items and future committee meeting dates, but the tone and attitude of one of the council members resulted in arguments on Robert's Rules procedures which govern all council meetings, and turned it into an evening of Boston Redevelopment Authority bashing. This discourse resulted in the departure of audience members who were forced to endure this "sand box" mentality.

Committee Chairperson Nancy Keyes was joined by council members Jim Conway, Ken Stone, Bill Gal-

Keyes patiently and continuously called the meeting back to its original intent with Conway and Looney calling for courtesy toward the chair and repeatedly requesting the committee to allow Keyes to perform her duties and get answers to the issues raised.

The confabulation began with a direct hit by Galvin toward the BRA as he accused them of "secret arrangements," violating its agreement with the Neighborhood Council and "condescending conduct toward the community."

His first jab was toward the BRA's proposed change in occupany of Navy Yard Parcel 7 as was outlined in the Master Plan. With this change, one-half of the proposed research space on that parcel would be transferred to office space use. He went on to claim that BRA Director Stephen Coyle had "promised that (continued on page 8)

One Hundred Names Drawn In 'Salute To Charlestown' Lottery

Several weeks ago, Cmdr. David Cashman, USN, commanding officer of USS Constitution, invited Charlestown residents who were registered voters to submit their names and the name of one guest to board USS Constitution for a special "Salute To Charlestown" turnaround cruise on June 16.

There was a tremendous response from residents as they checked in at the Bunker Hill Museum on three registration days, placing the entries into one of the ship's historic barrels.

On May 19, many of those who had registered, came along to the Constitution commander's conference room as Naval personnel extricated the entries from the barrel and the Commonwealth's Public Safety Commissioner William McCabe, who is the Chief Marshal of this year's Bunker Hill Day Parade began the process of drawing 100 names, assisted by Cashman.

MEMORIAL DAY 1990

The plain silver bracelet reads, L/CPL. Andres Garcia 5-15-75. It has been on my wrist since memorial Day in 1986 when I made a donation to the New Mexico chapter of the Disabled American Veterans. I don't think too much about it on an everyday basis. I automatically put it on each morning, same as my watch. On the rare occasions I have noticed it during the day, I've pondered the fate of Andres Garcia. The date he was lost, 5-15-75, leads me to believe he was one of the last casualties of the Vietnam War and probably was Missing in Action in Cambodia or in some remote region of the Vietnamese countryside. His rank, L/ CPL., indicates he was either a Recon Marine or served in helicopters, for very few infantry were killed and their bodies not recovered.

Other than the meager information on the bracelet. and the fact that he came from New Mexico, I know nothing else about Andres Garcia. I don't know how old he was, but I theorize he was young. I don't know if he had a wife or children. I don't know what hometown he came from or any of the circumstances that led to his status of Missing in Action. The only constant is that he is a U.S. Marine and he is unaccounted

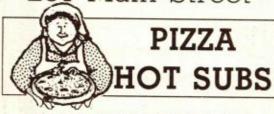

I do, however, often wonder about his family. It has been 15 years since they received the news of Andres Garcia's situation. At first they must have been filled with hope. As each day, each week, each month, each year passed, hope surely must have been replaced with resignation. Fifteen years, almost a generation has passed. There has been an emptiness for 15 Christmases. All family reunions and special occasions have been minus one celebrant. There have been no graduations, christenings or weddings with Andres Garcia as a proud participant. The torment of uncertainty has been constant. There is no closure or finality to a chapter of a life and the Garcia family's future will always be clouded with unanswered questions and incomplete memories. To his family, Andres must remain an anachronism - out of place in time and circumstances. To his country and to the Marine Corps he is an unaccounted for patriot whose name and legacy deserve to be remembered.

In 1975, the Vietnam War was declared over. For the more than 2,000 men, including Colonel Rich Higgins kidnapped and ostensibly murdered in Lebanon, their status as M.I.A.s means the war is not over. Ask their families. For their families, it is a protracted nightmare that should weigh heavily on the conscience of our nation.

Memorial Day is celebrated on May 28 this year. Lest they be forgotten.

FRESH AIR

One of the first things a new real estate agent learns is the old vanilla on the light bulb trick, or boiling apple cider with lots of cinnamon and cloves during an Open House. This is supposed to help make the house smell good, and because the sense of smell seems to have such an impact on how buyers react, it's always a good idea to make your home as fresh as possible when it is being

Occasionally, we list one of those homes that is beyond vanilla or cider. When this happens, we have to have one of those delicate talks with the owner. If your house is for sale and your Realtor ought to have this conversation with you and hasn't, let this be it! If you have a mild case of musties, a good airing may do the trick. If you have years of smoky all-night pokers games or an unaltered tomcat, you may want to call in a professional to clear the air for you. Whatever it takes, it's really

Residents And Officials Disagree Over Importance Of Liaison

by Kathy Giordano

The May 17 public meeting on the Central Artery North Area (CANA) and Central Artery Tunnel (CAT) roadway reconstructions projects was sparsely attended, in contrast to past gatherings. Updates on the CANA project in City Square and the progress of the Central Artery/Third Harbor Tunnel project were outlined by Mass. Department of Public Works officials, and a scale model of the Scheme Z ramp design was presented.

Horace DelGrasso, CA-NA administrator, and Ed Barr, CANA coordinator, fielded questions from the residents that centered, for the most part, on the replacement of a Charlestown community liaison for this multimillion-dollar project that heavily impacts the community as well as commuters. Although DelGrasso and Barr stated that a liaison was not needed at this time, residents in attendance did not agree.

The position of community liaison has remained vacant since March 23 when David Flanagan left the position for a job opportunity in the private sector.

Residents pursued the subject with the MDPW officials, pointing out that other neighborhoods less impacted by the project either have a liaison in place or one is in the process of being hired.

"You only know about construction," stated Steve McHugh, adding, "Charlestown has no one to answer its concerns and questions regarding unfinished work, such as the park, and future development of the parcels in City Square. The fact is, you're only involved in the construction of the project, and not familiar with design plans. We need someone to work with us."

Ken Stone, co-chairman of the North Area Task Force, stated, "Ed Barr's job is to see that the project gets built." DelGrasso, responding to the comment, said, "He's also there to answer questions and make the community happy. The community liaison only did

Flanagan, reached for comment after the meeting, stated: "The community liaison is not simply a leg man for the engineers. What he is, is a voice for the neighborhood on the inside of the project."

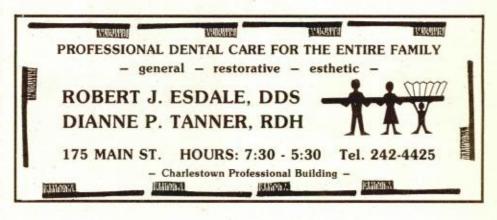

Flanagan outlined the duties that his previous position at the MDPW entailed. He said that the Charlestown liaison is an advocate for the neighborhood in a pro-active, rather than a reactive manner. He makes recommendations and suggestions to the engineers on behalf of the community before something in the project is implemented. Also he helps protect the community from the impacts of construction, provides updated reports to the community, informs residents on meetings and the topics under discussion and deals with the commuters and their problems. He is knowledgeable about design and construction issues, the historic aspects and potential land disposition parcels and can advise on how the plans would impact the community relative to other ongoing development projects in the area.

Flanagan disagreed with DelGrasso and Barr on the need for a community liaison. He stated: "It's a fulltime job. Engineers don't always like to see a community liaison on the job. Often they don't like recommendations from him on how the project should be carried out with the least impact on the community. A liaison should be involved in all decisions that affect the neighborhood. Such a person can help protect the neighborhood.'

Barr said that he is trying to coordinate a program to provide a walking tour through the CANA project for interested groups. He also announced that a column would be delivered to The Patriot weekly to provide a project update.

Martha Bailey, director of planning and environment for CAT, reported that the long-awaited Environmental Impact Statement was ready and available for review at the Charlestown Branch Library, 179 Main St.

She answered questions from neighbors who abut the new ramp system off Rutherford Avenue, and suggested that persons concerned with the Scheme Z ramp design visit the CA-NA field office on Front Street to view the design and have an engineer answer their questions.

When "The Charlestown Citizen" began publishing four years ago under the name "The Charlestown Ledger," we set out to give the neighborhood a unique and thought-provoking view of the events and happenings here.

In those four years, the staff of Citizen Group Publications strived to give Charlestown a quality weekly publication, and we're confident we did just that.

Effective immediately, however, "The Charlestown Citizen" will cease publishing.

We thank all of our friends and readers for their support over the years, and wish the citizens of Charlestown the best of luck when facing the challenges of the 1990s and beyond.

Commitment Is The Key Word For Sister Catherine Loughran

by Kathy Giordano

It is evident as you walk through the doors of St. Catherine's Grammar School that you've entered a special place. The well-maintained building echoes with the sounds of children's voices raised in animated response to the lessons being taught. Students and faculty passing through the corridors greet visitors with smiles and enthusiasm. School spirit such as this does not exist unless the seed is planted and nourished with much care and attention.

This nurturing starts at the administrative level and trickles down to the children through the efforts of the teachers and staff. At St. Catherine's, the "sower of the seed" is the school principal, Sister Catherine Loughran, C.S.J.

Sister Catherine took on the duties in the corner office last fall after teaching the school's eighth grade since 1975. Her office has no door, symbolic of the openness of the school's policy. "The open door signifies that we are open to all. This is a place where people can come. They are always welcome." She explained: "Parents, administrators, staff and faculty are all working together for the students. In return, the students owe us for this. We have great expectations of them."

Who is this woman, so slight in stature, but a giant in her determination to make "her children" ready for the future?

Born and brought up in the East Cambridge-Somerville area, "right next door," Sister Catherine admits that although she always felt she had the desire to enter religious life, she "put it on the back burner. In high school, with all its distractions and interests, all so new, I kept the thought in the background," she said, adding, "As I entered my senior year of high school what I would do with my life came more into perspective." Still she worked for a year before entering the Order of the Sisters of St. Joseph, where she took her final vows in 1961.

"I chose the Congregation of St. Joseph because in the '50s the order and community was devoted to teaching," she said. "Since that time," she admitted, "the needs of society that have come to the foreground have changed the role of the religious in order to meet those needs." Social needs, such as the ministry to AIDS patients, rehabilitation of drug and alcohol abusers, community activism and nursing has seen teaching nuns branch out into other areas of service. Sister Catherine states, though, that there is still a strong need in education.

What does she think now, some 30 years later, of the choice she made? "I'd make the same decision again. I would go down the same road. Anything worth having is worth striving for," she noted. "If you put it all in perspective, no matter which lifestyle one may choose, we all strive for the same end."

The word she stressed in her remarks was commitment. "Today it's very rare to begin some type of work and not change that course of direction. Even married life has lost that sense of commitment. Although some change can be good and as the needs change around us we should have an open mind and accept that change, we should maintain our original sense of commitment."

After teaching in elementary schools throughout the archdiocese for 14 years, Sister Catherine was delighted to come to St. Catherine's School after hearing so much about it from Sister Rodriquez, who started her teaching career here. "Sister Rodriquez, who passed away two years ago, inspired me to come to St. Catherine's. She always spoke of her experiences here with such warmth that I always knew I wanted to be here someday."

Sister Catherine's approach to education is simple — "back to the basics with high expectations while working to nurture a life of faith." To that end, teachers have been held accountable to the students and their parents.

Also, through the distribution of progress reports, a method of monitoring a student's achievement level between report cards, the student is made more accountable for his efforts as well. Report cards are always an important part of any student's life, but equally important at St. Catherine's is a newly instituted award given out along with report cards, yet separate from the traditional marking system. Christian Value Awards are given to the children who have shown the most advancement in their all-around Christian behavior toward their fellow classmates, teachers and family.

Other new programs at the school, but already cemented in the curriculum, include a homework clinic begun by third-grade teacher Barbara Goggin and staffed by volunteer teachers on a rotating basis. In the clinic students can remain after school to do their homework or receive extra help. Reading materials are constantly being updated by Sister Constance in the ever-growing school library and reading appreciation is stressed in the classrooms.

The students have also been taught CPR in an in-house program, and Junior Achievement taught banking and stockmarket tips in the upper grades. A good-natured, competitive rivalry between the students of St. Catherine's and St. Francis de Sales schools has seen classrooms competing in spelling bees and, most recently, a civil litigation case as part of the Charlestown District Court's Law Day.

What lies ahead for St. Catherine's and Sister Catherine? "Who's to say what the next 10 years will bring. We're doing the best we can by tightening our belts and making the best out of what we have," she said, adding, "donations are always welcome."

In the third-floor classroom space recently vacated by the Headstart program, Sister would like to see a computer center, art class, resource and audio visual centers. That costs money, a commodity not readily available to the school. But that does not dampen the spirit of the principal or the faculty at St. Catherine's.

The school — and its principal — march forward into the 21st century by preparing the students to be ready for what's ahead of them, both academically and spiritually. This is a success story.

Oversight Committee Gets Off To Rough Start

(continued from page one) Building 104 would be developed by the Charlestown Economic Development Corporation" but, he stated, "without a public bidding process, the site had been given to the Bricklayers and Laborers Non-Profit group to develop affordable housing units." Galvin stated that Assistant Director Paul Barrett said the designation was made "subject to private discussions." He added that "104 should have been open to public bidding."

Galvin further accused the BRA of "again violating their agreement with the Neighborhood Council" when they put Parcel 7 out for bids prior to bringing the process before the council for its input. "Just because we agreed on something in general (the Master Plan), the BRA feels they don't have to come back to us," he said.

The status of the Navy Yard Master Plan concerned both council members and residents who asked that an update on the process be given to the committee by the BRA. The request for proposal (RFP) processs was also under scrutiny with council members calling for the BRA to conduct public meetings to allow the council input into the process.

Kovacevic stated: "The problem I see with the BRA is that there's no performance. We have to hold their feet to the fire." He also noted: "We have to establish a meeting schedule and have the BRA staff come and report to us on the progress of each agenda item. They should come back and explain each step to us. We'd have to hold their hand and walk them through each step." He concluded: "They have to get the idea that they are accountable to us.'

Agenda items that will be included in discussion at upcoming meetings are:

- Building 104 and Parcel 7 development and the RFP process;
- the hiring of a neighborhood planner to work with the BRA and the Charlestown Neighborhood Council;
- the status of the Navy Yard Master Plan;
- the change in occupancy of the bio-tech research center to include half office space;
- a meaningful parking plan identifying the total parking package based on usage;
- access to and from the Navy Yard;
- development of the Navy Yard on a parcel-byparcel basis;
 - an explanation of

Chapter 106; and periodic updates on the New England Aquarium development.

Resident Ivy St. John stated at the meeting that a rumor was surfacing in the community that the possibility of using Hayes Square as a parking site for the Navy Yard traffic was being considered. Judy Evers, community liaison from the Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Services, informed St. John that no discussions had taken place on Hayes Square since the community came out in such strong opposition to the idea last year. BRA Deputy Director Bob Rush stated later, with a chuckle, "As far as I know there has been no discussion on Hayes Square parking since last year." He and Evers questioned why residents just don't pick up a phone and call for information when these rumors arise.

Dispute on rules of order centered around motions being presented for a vote by Galvin. With the intent of the meeting being an informal gathering to solicit ideas and issues to be discussed at future meetings, other council members stated that the inclusion of such motions were out of place. Galvin persisted and demanded his right to make a motion, and after much discussion on the issue, he presented four motions that were ultimately voted on by the committee. These motions and their vote were:

(1) The committee denied the motion to request that the BRA withdraw the RFP on Parcel 7 until after a public hearing before the Neighborhood Council and input from the community.

(2) A vote to ask the BRA to hold a public hearing on the Building 104 development resulted in a tie.

(3) The committee denied the recomendation that the Neighborhood Council go on record that the BRA has violated its agreement with the council on Navy Yard development.

(4) The committee approved a motion that the BRA and a developer must notify the community of any and all public hearings relative to Navy Yard development.

At this time Looney presented a motion that the chairperson be allowed to set up meetings with the BRA to discuss issues raised at this meeting so that the BRA would be prepared to come before the June 5 Neighborhood Council meeting with answers to questions that were raised and the committee voted approval.

The meeting ajourned.

- Countdown Continues . . . It has now been 62 days since Charlestown has not had a community liaison on the CANA project. No matter what the engineers have said about not enough work for such a person Bull-oney! Wouldn't this be, in fact, the best time to train someone to take over the duties left behind by David Flanagan when he left on March 23rd?

Central Artery/Tunnel Environmental Impact Statement Available For Review

According to officials from the Mass. Department of Public Works, community comment from Charlestown and other neighborhoods shaped most of the design changes and improvements described in an in-depth environmental study released by the Central Artery/Tunnel project last week.

"Hundreds of people who have taken the time to express their ideas deserve credit for much of the project's improved design," said MDPW Commissioner Jane Garvey. "Many of these people are Charlestown residents."

The nine-volume Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement (SEIS) cites enormous transportation, economic, air quality and other improvements made to the $4.4 billion project that will affect Charlestown.

The SEIS shows that air quality will improve significantly. Carbon monoxide, the main polluter, will be reduced by 22 percent along the entire CA/T project route. The existing "hot spot," an area which exceeds air quality standards, in City Square will be eliminated when the project is complete.

The new design for the Charles River Crossing, connecting Storrow Drive with I-93 north and south, Route 1A and the Sumner/ Callahan Tunnels, moves the highway bridges several hundred feet to the west away from City Square and toward Boston Sand & Gravel and the B & M railroad tracks. Shifting the alignment in this direction consolidates an industrial and transportation corridor away from Charlestown neighborhoods and parks. Already partially under construction in Charlestown, this interchange would replace the most congested and dangerous intersection in the state.

The design involves the best traffic solution for this complicated intersection while protecting the very important pedestrian environment over the MDC locks onto Causeway Street, and most importantly, it protects and enlarges Paul Revere Landing Park, which will be rebuilt to commemorate the place where Paul Revere looked back at the lanterns of the Old North Church.

Historically, the stretch of the Charles River east of the Esplanade has been an industrial and transportation corridor for 150 years. The river banks on both the Cambridge and Boston sides have not been accessible to the public. When the CA/T project is complete, about 70 percent of the riverbank on both sides will be riverfront park with walkways across the remaining transportation corridor connection the parks.

The Leverett Circle area has been considerably revised since 1985. At that time, construction was planned along the Charles River edge and into the water. The new design eliminates filling 96 percent of the river as included in the 1985 design. Considerable construction disruption along the major portion of the Esplanade has also been reduced and a two-year traffic detour of Leverett Circle has been avoided.

And, a new underpass for eastbound Storrow Drive traffic has been added, eliminating the now heavily congested traffic light at Leverett Circle.

"The project has truly been fine tuned since its original Environmental Impact Statement was approved in 1985," said Garvey. "The SEIS public hearing on June 21 will once again give people an opportunity to comment on the project and specifically review the changes documented in the

The public hearing on the SEIS will be held on Thursday, June 21 from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. at the Federal Reserve Bank Auditorium, 600 Atlantic Ave., Boston. Before the public hearing Central Artery/Tunnel officials will meet with many Charlestown community groups and representatives to discuss the SEIS. A Charlestown Open House will be held on Thursday, June 7 between 4 and 8 p.m. at the Analex Building, 150 Causeway St. and an SEIS is available for review at the Charlestown Branch Library, 179 Main

In addition, an SEIS exhibit and copy of the report are available for public viewing, and a series of open houses will be held on Wednesdays, May 30, June 6 and June 13 from 5 to 8 p.m. at the CA/T project headquarters at One South Station, Boston.

For more information on the open houses or for a copy of a summary of the SEIS, please call 951-6022.

Cook Street Cooks J.A.F.T. In Ball Hockey Finals

by Bob DeCristoforo

It was a standing room only crowd at the Kent Community School for the Championship Game of the 1990 Teen Connection Ball Hockey League.

Brian "Mick" McGonagle refused to sing the Nation Anthem because he didn't know the words. League czarina Carolyn Shannon was under a gag order imposed by everyone in the league, and they even gave referee-in-chief Danny Ryan a whistle that worked.

Game one of the best-ofthree series was decided by a J.A.F.T. overtime goal, while game two proved to be a very convincing Cook Street 9-4 win. The finale would be a combo of both.

Despite the fact that "Mrs." Al Titcomb and "Mrs." Ronnie Poole were in the stands to cheer their men on, the crowd was highly partisan to Cook Street. Someone earlier in the day had even posted a "Go Pooh Bear - Go" sign on the wall in honor of Cook Street casanova Jamie "I Won't Cheat" McLaugh-

The first half (someone should tell the czarina that hockey is played in three periods) was dominated by the superb goaltending of Todd Fisher and J.A.F.T. goal scorers Titcomb and Poole. Cook Street goaltender Billy McKillop was also doing a fine job at his end of the rink, but the score would be 2-0 at the end of the first 20 minutes.

The second half was all Cook Street. What was a close game became a romp. Derek O'Brien cut the J.A.F.T. lead in half early. Player of the Game Tommy Goggin tied the game at 2-2. Peter Enos put Cook Street ahead. Goggin gave Cook Street a two-goal lead in what might be called the game breaker. Tommy O'Leary, Brian Feeney, and

THE PATHWAY TO HELL

The pathway to Hell is paved with good intentions. The drunkard intends to give up "booze" someday, but he never does. The one who takes the Lord's name in vain intends to stop doing it, but he never does. Some intend to read the Bible "someday, but they never do. The gambler who loses his paycheck intends to stop so that his family can be fed and clothed, but he never does. The religious man who sits every Sunday in a cold, dead modernistic church intends to look for something better, but he never does. After all, his grandfather went to this church and he's buried in the back vard. All of the above are in bondage to sin and unable to help themselves. They all need to be delivered by the power of God so that they can be free from enslaving habits. The only one who can save them is the Lord Jesus Christ. He died for their sins and rose again to give eternal life to all who ask him for it. The Bible says, "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved," (Rom. 10:13), and, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek," (Rom. 1:16)

John Mc-Donnell and Frank Talbot of Charlestown received Certificates of Appreciation from Senior Home Care for their work on behalf of elder citizens. In addition, Talbot received a special award honoring his more than 1,000 hours of escort service in the past year.

According to Senior Home Care, last year a group of 30 senior citizen volunteers made a total of 1,500 personal visits and some 30,000 telephone calls to 500 elderly people in the city of Boston. The volunteers do everything from escorting a person to medical appointments to reminding them to take medication or eat a healthy meal to providing a friendly telephone conversation tosomeone who is lonely.

"Senior citizen volunteers are critical to our effort to help elders remain independent and in their homes for as long as possible. For many elderly people, these volunteers are a lifeline to the outside world because they provide regular, weekly companionship either by telephone or in person," said Terry Ann Lunt, executive director of Senior Home Care.

Senior Home Care is a non-profit organization which helps senior citizens remain in their homes instead of in a nursing home by helping them with their everyday needs, such as getting dressed, house cleaning, grocery shopping, cooking meals and transportation to medical appointments.

Medex Rollback Legislation Update

The Medex rollback, or freeze legislation finally made its way out of the Senate Ways and Means Committee. The bill, No. 1481. is now in the Steering and Policy Committee.

Since the bill began its legislative journey, it has seen some changes which include: Medex rates will be rolled back to 1989 levels plus a 10 percent increase to cover the cost of health care inflation; the rollback would be in effect for three months from the date of passage while a long-term solution to affordable Medigap insurance is developed; subscribers would be reimbursed for excess premium payments since January; an add-on to Medex rates to fund consumer intervention in the Medex rate hearings is also proposed. It is hoped that the bill will be released from the Steering and Policy Committee this week and go to the Senate floor for a vote.

Last week members of the Charlestown Healthy Aging Program attended a rally at the State House sponsored by the Mass. Senior Action Council. Letters have been sent to Sen. Fran Doris on this issue, and telephone calls have been made through the CHAP phone tree. The CHAP members learned at the rally that Sen. Doris is in favor of this legislation. CHAP urges Charlestown's elderly residents to give Sen. Doris a call to thank him for his support. At the same time ask the Senator to help bring this important piece of legislation to the Senate floor for a vote.

The drama, danger and exhilaration of man's drive to harness the power of the wind under sail comes to the big screen in "Race the Wind," a new film at the Museum of Science Mugar Omni Theater. The film runs through October 1990.

"Race the Wind" sweeps viewers right into the fury of a storm at sea during a trans-Atlantic sailboat crossing. The action continues in Australia with an unprecedented "sailor's-eye view" of the dramatic America's Cup Race. The audience is on board as huge trimarans, nicknamed the hot rods of the sea, race each other across the Atlantic at breakneck speed. Hawaiian windsurfers, dwarfed by giant breakers, cavort across the hugh Omni screen like colorful, acrobatic butterflies. Viewers are also whisked off to the Mojave Desert where the hot, dry winds propel land yacht racers at speeds in excess of 90 miles per hour. A state-of-the-art computergenerated animation sequence depicts the complex aerodynamic relationship between the wind, water and a sailing vessel.

Making "Race the Wind" was far from "a breeze." While filming the movie, co-directors Greg MacGillivray and Beverly Baroff and their production crew were often at the mercy of unpredictable and life-threatening gale-force winds and dangerously high seas. To capture the "you are there" sequences, production team members were strapped precariously to the mast or fantail of a ship or crammed into a tiny space below deck while operating the 80-pound IMAX^R camera

Hockey Trophies On Display

JOE CEAVER of Charlestown had an opportunity to examine some of hockey's greatest trophies at the LaFayette Hotel, the official hotel for National Hockey League personnel, while the Stanley Cup finals were played in Boston. Here he stands beside the King Clancy cup while the Stanley Cup itself is the tall trophy in the background.

Central Artery North Area Project

by Ed Barr CANA Coordinator, Mass. Dept. of Public Works

Excavation for the center and northerly sections of the tunnel continues. It appears that 90 percent of the excavation will be completed by the end of July.

The size of the parking lot in front of Roughan's Restaurant has been increased by about seven or eight spaces. This is in preparation for eliminating the temporary parking lot at the Ironside Grille.

Barricades and signs prohibiting pedestrian traffic from the northerly side of Gray Street are being installed. All pedestrians are asked to use the sidewalk on the southerly side of Gray Street.

Work will continue on the reconstruction of Rutherford Avenue. It appears now that traffic will be moved from the west side to the reconstructed east side in about four weeks. After this move, the westerly side of new Rutherford Avenue will be constructed.

A late September date is anticipated to move traffic over the first section of the tunnel on the new Rutherford Avenue.

The model of the CANA project, originally located at the Boston Redevelopment Authority office in the Navy Yard, has been moved to the CANA complex at 250 Front St. Anyone wishing to view this model can visit the complex between 7 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

For information or questions on the CANA project, contact Ed Barr on the CANA hotline at 241-5560.

'Race The Wind' Takes The Omni Theater By Storm

as the vessel sped along. According to MacGillivray, who has seven previous Omni films to his credit and is a sailor and surfer, "Race the Wind" was his most difficult Omni project to date. Baroff overcame a personal challenge to make the film, since she had no prior sailing experience or knowledge of the subject before working on the project.

Admission tickets to "Race the Wind" are $6 for adults and $4 for children ages 4 to 14 and senior citizens, and may be purchased at the Omni Theater Box Office at the Museum of

To Stoop So Low

To The Editor:

It is terrible when people have stooped so low as to steal from the disabled! That is exactly what happened the night of May 15 here in Charlestown.

A disabled woman, living on a small, fixed income had her cable box stolen from her apartment. The television is one of the only enjoyments this woman has in her life. The cable provided her with better reception and greater channel selection. She could afford this luxury due to a generous program offered by Cablevision of Boston through which she paid a reduced rate for the service. Now she must pay $100 to replace the box. She cannot afford this and will have to go without.

This may seem small compared to other crimes and the violence plaguing our city but it leaves me sad and angry to think this can happen in our town! Whoever is responsible for this should search their conscience and return the cable box.
