Updates from the Tour:
The #BUSGATE mystery

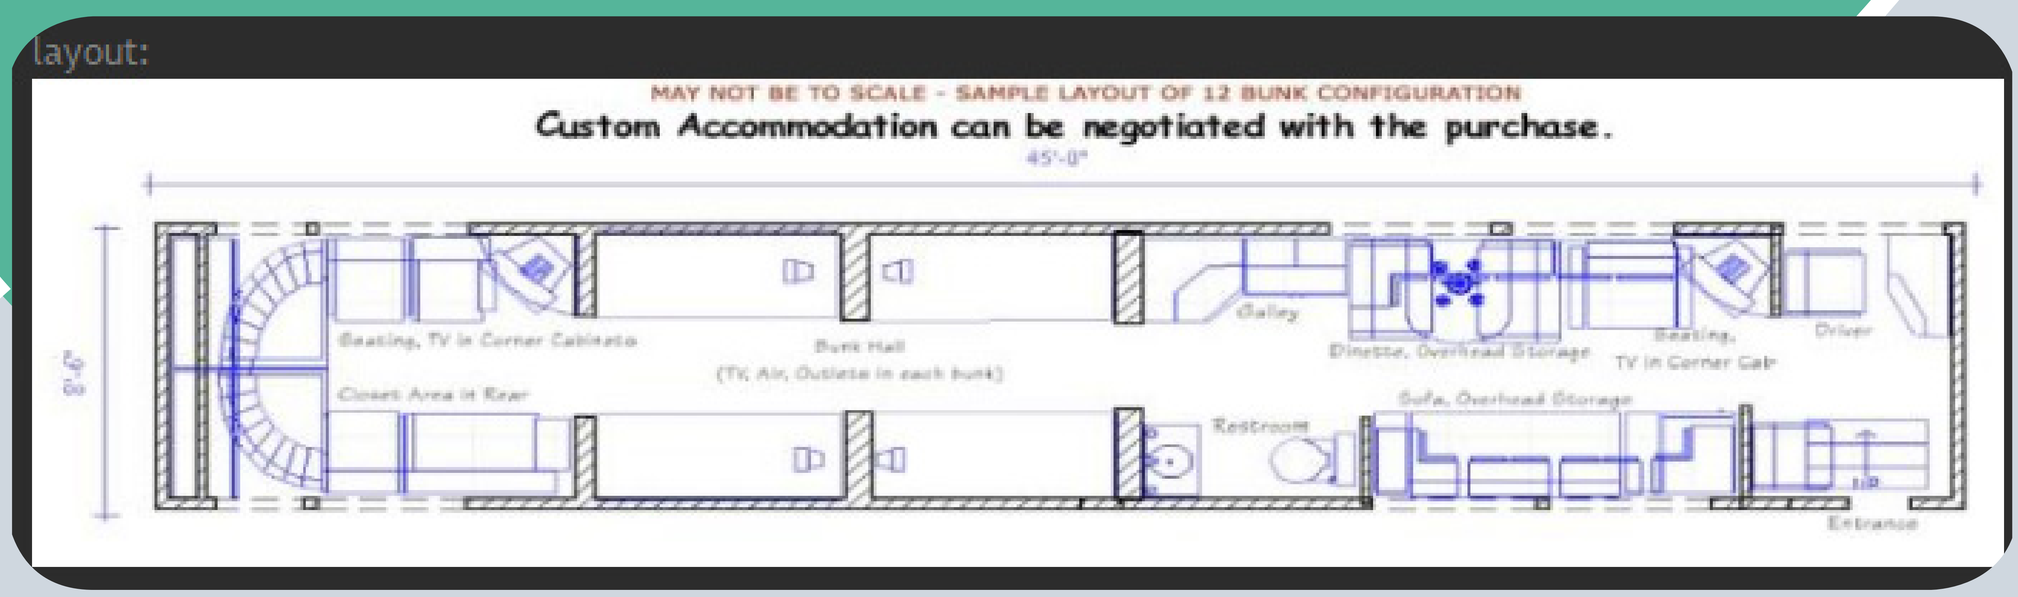

- Even being on the road, Dan and Phil still managed to create a shitstorm in the Phandom! The curiosity of the Sherlocks self proclaimed as “middle-aged-nose-perverts” was spiked and so the #busgate trend was started.

- Everything began as a mere display of curiosity when one of the staff members decided to pull a dan-isnotsubtle and post a photo of a bus with the caption “home sweet home” on his Instagram and then deleted it. While this might not have been so suspicious if any other staff member posted it, this particular one, also knows as the sound guy, had a lot of information about TATINOF, such as a map with the schedule of the shows.

- The Phandom, quick and efficient as always, had screenshoted the photo and started debating whether the bus was Deppy’s or not. While this was happening, in another part of the Phandom, the well known middle-aged-nose-perverts began searching for the model of the bus, the company that produced it and the lay-out of it, almost pulling a japhan #bedgate.

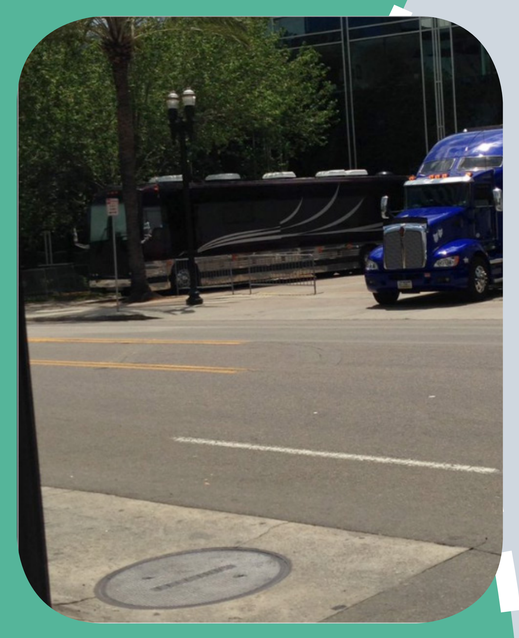

- On 24th of April the #busgate started being a mystery. Dan and Phil tweeted some controversial bants, implying that they did not see their own bus before receiving it, two days prior to the official start of TATINOF and that the bus had two bedrooms with queen sized beds.

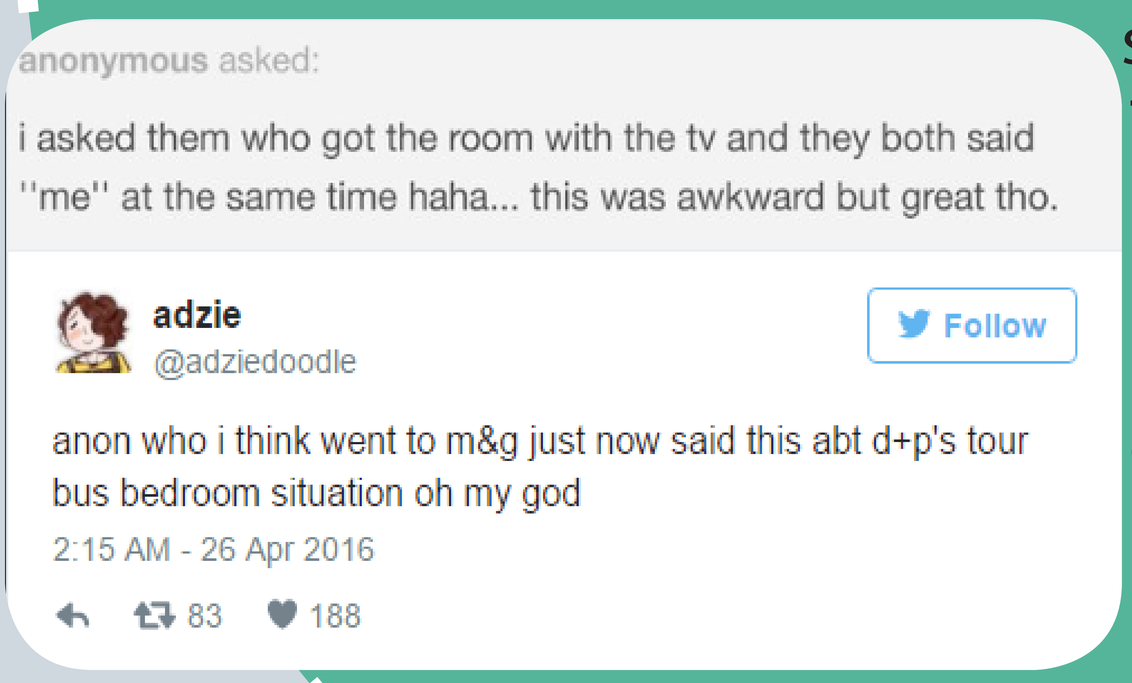

- Being the band trash that some fans were in their teens, they felt something was a little off. No one knew about the existence of a tour bus with two bedrooms and so they started digging again.
- It was a hard search because of the little information known at this point. But fear not!

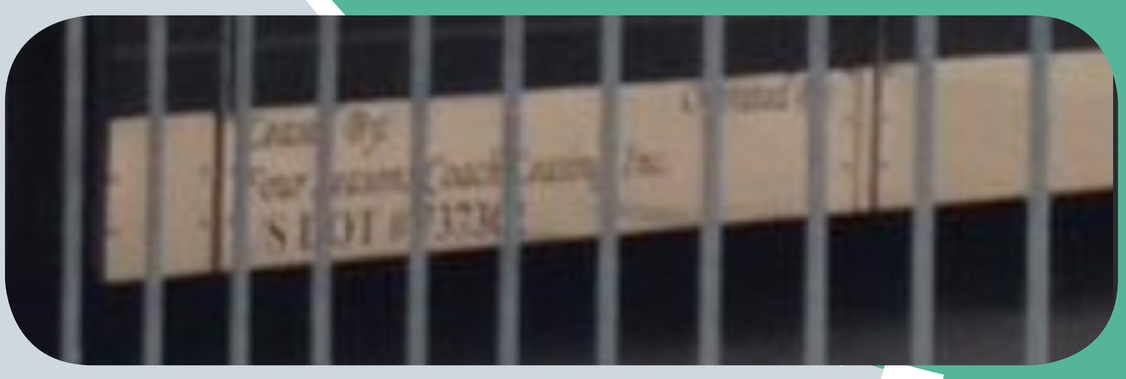

The buses were soon spotted in a lot of photo backgrounds. Yes, you read that right! We all got a big shock when, what we tought was one bus, magically became two and after that three. It was also found out that they had an ugly truck with them.

- One day later, on the 26th of April, an Anon stated that both Dan and Phil said 'me' when asked who got the room. This caused the #busgate to become even a bigger deal than it already was. On this same day, Phil took matters in his hands and tweeted that he won the room, but the Phandom was not convinced and responded with a lot of sarcasm.

- Later that day, new information, including the company that Deppy rented their buses from, was discovered, all thanks to a photo of the ID displayed on one of the buses.

- After finding, one Phandom member emailed the company asking if it was possible to rent a bus with two bedrooms. The answer was negative and the #busgate is ongoing