

The Qualities In A Bookkeeper That You Must Look Out For

What Is Bookkeeping?

When you record your company's financial transactions and keep them organized on a day to day basis then it means you are keeping the books of your company. So bookkeeping is essentially maintaining all the records of the daily affairs of your company that involve finances.

This is extremely essential for the company in that your company records are up to date and you can generate reports whenever necessary. It helps at the time of audits and tax season. And Accountant Company in Dubai are competent enough to do the same.

What Are The Methods Of Bookkeeping?

There are three methods of bookkeeping. They are:

1. Single-entry bookkeeping – This is the most simple of all methods. Here one entry is made for each transaction in your books. It is the cashbook that tracks all the incoming revenue and outgoing expenditures.
2. Double-entry bookkeeping – It is a strong system where every transaction has two accounts – recorded as debit and credit. In the end, the whole thing has to be balanced.
3. Cash-based bookkeeping – It is a system where each expense is recognized when it actually happens. Nothing else enters into the books.

Why Is Bookkeeping Important?

Bookkeeping is very important for the business because it helps the owner to get an accurate picture of the business and its daily operations.
