Each type of casino gambling has its own set of rules which govern gaming and conduct. Some of the most common types of gambling, which can be found in a variety of US Casinos include Bingo, Blackjack, Craps, Roulette, Poker, Slots, Skating and Baccarat. While many casinos offer guests an opportunity to play a variety of these games, others have created specific Bingo and Blackjack games that are only available to patrons of that casino. This practice is referred to as "specialty gaming".

There are two basic types of gambling that take place in casinos, "Pai Gow" which means place playing and "Pai Gow night" which is the term used to describe late night gaming. "Pai" means a place in Chinese while "gow" means gambling. Nighttime gaming is intended to create a more relaxing atmosphere, one in which players can enjoy the scenery outside of the actual casino. Both forms of gambling to take place on a variety of slots machines that have been strategically placed throughout the casino.

The majority of Las Vegas casinos are owned by one or more individual owners. Each owner usually has his/her own casino style, theme and even casino name. Because the individual owners often have a big stake in the success of their establishment, they usually work very closely with their patrons and often visit them in order to see if they have any special requests or wishes.

In casino games such as Poker, Blackjack and Craps players are able to adjust the odds of the game by using special techniques known as "house advantage". House advantage is the difference between the expected value of your hand and the amount you actually have to pay to get your hand. The longer you can spend time thinking and strategizing before the game, the more time you have to build up your hand size. For example, if you think you have a fairly good chance of getting the Ace of Diamonds, then you should make your raise slowly and gradually. By doing this you will be building your house advantage over time and will soon be able to play for long-term ahead without having to use your house advantage.
