NO PLAYOFF NERVES

Miami earned a bye and easily dispatched Jacksonville Armada FC 3-1 in the Conference Final.

In the South Region Semifinal, a valiant effort by Atlanta Silverbacks FC kept the match tied through the first 80 minutes, but Miami's quality shined through when it needed to most.

A late Kris Tyrpak goal sunk the Silverbacks and catapulted Miami into the South Region Final. Despite playing in a new league with a different playoff format, Miami hasn't budged from its winning ways.

RIISING TO THE OCCASION

Since losing half of its first six matches, Little Rock has completely turned its season around since the midway point of the season.

Over the last seven matches, the Rangers have won every single encounter, with an impressive 13-4 scoreline over its opponents during that span.

13 goals during their win streak isn't groundbreaking, but a modest four goals given up signals a stifling defense that's in form, with five shutouts during the span.

MATCH NOTES

HOT STREAK

The Orange and Blue is on a tear at the moment, having won its last seven matches, including the Sunshine Conference Final and South Region Semifinal.

Over that span, Miami has dominated its opponents to the tune of a 19-3 combined scoreline.

Going back even further, the Orange and Blue has outscored opponents 32-4 over the past 11 matches, dropping just one match in the process.

Having truly hit its stride on both offense and defense, Miami is primed for a deep playoff run into late July and early August.

BOUNCE BACK MENTALITY

As evidenced by Tyrpak's late winner on Tuesday night, Miami always seems to get a much-needed goal when the high stakes call for it.

The South Region Semifinal against Atlanta was the second match in a row in which Miami quickly gave up an equalizer after going ahead 1-0 early.

Against Atlanta, a well-worked free kick netted the decisive winner. In the Sunshine Conference Final against Jacksonville, Darío Suárez retook the lead just five minutes after the Armada buried a tying goal.

With the resolve to never hang its head after giving up a goal, Miami has the perfect identity for a team that is on a deep playoff run. goal differential.

MIAMI FC 2 PLAYERS TO WATCH

Though Sean McFarlane has played just about in every position for Miami this season, he has truly found a home at right back.

McFarlane has the ideal skill set for the position, as his pace and effortless motor allows him to venture forward and track back when needed.

When pushing forward with the ball, McFarlane can beat markers with his dribbling ability and send in dangerous crosses. When in defense, he never gets beaten in a foot race and is impenetrable when in front of attackers.

In Tuesday night's South Region Semifinal victory, McFarlane drilled a left-footed volley to open the scoring, which once again showcased his immense talent and versatility.

Jeff Michaud gave a tour de force in Miami's win over Atlanta, popping up everywhere on the pitch.

Whether he was playing in through balls or chasing down opponents on counter attacks, Michaud was always in the vicinity of the ball looking to make a play.

It may not always show in the stats, but Michaud has proven to be a crucial part of coach Paul Dalglish's scheme, which relies on midfielders excelling on both offense and defense.

PAUL DALGLISH HEAD COACH

The son of legendary Scotland international, Celtic and Liverpool forward Kenny Dalglish, Paul enjoyed a successful playing career through the ranks of the Premier League and the Scottish Premiership before heading to the MLS in 2006. He won the MLS Cup twice with the Houston Dynamo in both of his seasons with the club, in 2006 and 2007.

After working in the Houston Dynamo Academy in 2009, Dalglish began his coaching career as manager of the Tampa Bay Rowdies in 2010. From 2012 to 2013, he managed the Austin Aztex of the PDL. Under Dalglish's tutelage, the Aztex reached the Conference Finals in 2012 and won the league championship in 2013, a year in which Dalglish was named PDL Coach of the Year. Dalglish became an assistant coach with Real Salt Lake in 2014, before returning to lead the Aztex in early 2015. In November of that year, Dalglish was named Head Coach and General Manager of Ottawa Fury FC. After two seasons with Ottawa, Dalglish joins The Miami FC.
