

7th International Scientific Conference organized by
Institute of Eastern Studies at Adam Mickiewicz University,
Institute of History of the University at Rzeszów

"Caucasus - between Europe and Asia"

Date: 5-6 June 2018
Place: Poznań

The aim of the conference is to present the latest research on the Caucasus region in a broad time perspective in an interdisciplinary perspective: historical, political, socio-economic, cultural (ethnic, religious), etc. We want to emphasize the confrontation of universal ideas about the Caucasus (stereotypes, assessments, opinions, etc.) with the realities prevailing in the region (economic, social, political situation, etc.).

The conference topics cover issues related to political entities of the North Caucasus and the Southern Caucasus in the following aspects:

- geopolitical (importance on the international arena, security policy)
- internal policy (state reforms, political scene, armed conflicts)
- socio-cultural (demography, national identity, ethnic divisions, diversity of beliefs, cultures and languages)
- economic (economic transformation, foreign trade and investment, cross-border cooperation).

During the conference, it will be important to look at the historical conditions of the region. The subject will be complemented by the definition of the role and importance of the European Union and the Russian Federation in the integration and disintegration processes of the region.

The conference is intended for both students, PhD students and researchers whose interests are related to the broader Caucasus (North and South Caucasus). We are convinced that participation in the conference will enable the integration of the scientific community and create conditions for cooperation between research centers from Poland and abroad.
