Information on General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR)

We may collect and use information from you if you are from the European Economic Area (EEA), and in this section of our Privacy Policy we will explain exactly how and why this data is collected, and how we keep it protected from replication or misuse.

What is GDPR?

GDPR is an EU-wide privacy and data protection law that regulates how companies protect EU residents' data and improves the control EU residents have over their personal data.

GDPR is relevant for any company operating globally and not just for EU-based companies and EU residents. Our customers' data is important no matter where it is located, so we have implemented GDPR controls as our gold standard for all our operations worldwide.

What is Personal Data?

Any data that relates to an identifiable or identifiable individual. The GDPR covers a broad spectrum of information that could be used on its own or in combination with other pieces of information to identify an individual. Personal data goes beyond a person's name or email address. Examples include financial information, political opinions, genetic data, biometric data, IP addresses, physical address, sexual orientation and ethnicity.

Data protection principles include requirements such as:

● Personal data collected should be processed in a fair, lawful and transparent manner and should only be used in ways that a person would reasonably expect.
● Personal data should only be collected to fulfill a specific purpose and should only be used for that purpose. purpose. Organizations should specify why they need personal data when they collect it.
● Personal data should not be kept longer than necessary to fulfill its purpose.
● Individuals covered by the GDPR have the right to access their own personal data. They can also request a copy of their data and have their data updated, deleted, restricted or moved to another organization.

Why is the GDPR important?

RGPD adds some new requirements regarding how companies must protect the personal data of the individuals they collect and process. It also raises the stakes for compliance by increasing enforcement and imposing greater fines for noncompliance. Beyond these facts, it is simply the right thing to do. At Nexus Funding we strongly believe that the privacy of your data is very important and we already have robust security and privacy practices in place that go above and beyond the requirements of this new regulation.

Individual rights of the data subject: access, portability and deletion of data

We are committed to helping our clients comply with the data subject rights requirements of GDPR. Nexus Funding processes or stores all personal data at DPA compliant providers that have been fully vetted. We store all conversations and personal data for up to 6 years, unless your account is deleted. In which case, we delete all data in accordance with our Terms of Service and Privacy Policy, but will not retain it for more than 60 days.

We realize that if you work with EU customers, you must be able to provide them with the ability to access, update, retrieve and delete personal data. We have been set up as self-service from the beginning and have always given you access to your data and your customers' data. Our customer support team is here to answer any questions you may have about working with the API.
