

O'Neil Tops Ticket In Charlestown And Citywide

Boston City Councillor Albert L. "Dapper" O'Neil topped the ticket in Charlestown and throughout the City of Boston in his quest for re-election. "Dapper" took 75% of the votes cast in this community in the race for an At-Large seat on the Council.

Only 23% of the 8,757 registered voters in Charlestown cast their ballots in the City Election on Tuesday. In the District One City Council contest, incumbent Councillor Robert Travaglini captured 71% of the Charlestown vote. School Committee President John Nucci also received 71% of the vote in the District One School Committee race.

In the At-Large City Council contest in Charlestown, incumbent Joseph Tierney placed second; incumbent Michael McCormack came in third; and former City Councillor Frederick Langone, who narrowly missed election city-wide, was fourth.

Incumbent Kevin McCluskey, no stranger to Charlestown, having worked at the local Boys and Girls Club, placed first in this community in the At-Large race for Boston School Committee. Rita Walsh-Tomasini, also an incumbent came in second. A new face in the city-wide political scene, Stephen Murphy, captured third spot here in Charlestown — could be a name to watch in future elections.

The unofficial tally by precinct may be found on page six.

"Townie" Remembered

A RECENT RESOLUTION of the Boston City Council designates the public landing for the Swan Boats in the Boston Public Garden as the Lieutenant Michael Patrick Quinn, USMC Landing.

The Landing was named in memory of Lieutenant Quinn, a Charlestown native, who graduated from Boston Latin School and the College of the Holy Cross with distinction. Michael Quinn spent the summers of his youth operating the Swan Boats for the benefit and pleasure of all. Lieutenant Quinn is the only known Swan Boat operator who was killed in the Viet Nam War. This resolution had the support of the Paget Family, owners and operators of the Swan Boats, the Friends of the Public Garden, the Boston Parks Department and the Veterans Services Department of the City of Boston. It is a most fitting tribute to a modern hero and a truly remarkable young man who was killed in action in the service of his country on August 29, 1969.

Shown (l. to r.) Stephen Driscoll, Secretary/Treasurer of the Michael P. Quinn Memorial Committee; Ronan FitzPatrick, President of the Michael P. Quinn Memorial Committee; Mrs. Leo Quinn, mother of the late Michael P. Quinn; the Honorable Albert L. O'Neil, member of the Boston City Council, sponsor of the resolution; and Attorney Patrick J. Murphy, friend and fellow Marine officer in Viet Nam.

Guests of the Association will be Mr. and Mrs. Martin Gibbs of Sheldon Manor, Chippenham-Wiltshire, England who will be making a presentation to the Association of photographs of papers of Sir Thomas Hyde Page, relating to the Battle of Bunker Hill. Sir Thomas was the great-great-great grandfather of Martin Gibbs and he served as Aide de Camp to the British General on June 17, 1775. Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs will be putting the papers into historical perspective, noting the fact that on the day after the Battle, Sir Thomas wrote home to his mother, including a plan of the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Also, Barbara Thibault, Site Interpreter for Public Archaeology Lab, Inc., will show a slide presentation with appropriate remarks on the archaeological dig at City Square. The excavating team believe they have uncovered the foundation of the 17th Century building known as the Great House. This structure, which was

Local Students Receive National Honor

Four local students from Charlestown have been selected as members of the Society of Distinguished American High School Students for 1985. These students are attending Christopher Columbus High School in Boston.

Membership in this national honorary society is designed to be not only an honor but also an incentive for those exhibiting top performances while in high school. To be accepted, students must have excelled in academics, and in extracurricular, or civic activities.

Local students awarded this honor for 1985 include: John Settupane, a senior, from Pleasant Street; Paula Greateorex, a senior, from Bunker Hill Street; Maryellen Evers, a senior, from Pearl Street; and Carla Ryan, a junior, from Main Street.

As members, these students will have the opportunity to compete for college scholarships through the Society's National Awards Program. This scholarship program, now in its seventeenth year, is funded by 130 colleges and universities across the nation. To preserve the honor, these members' names and their accomplishments will be listed in the Society's 1985 Membership Registry.

At the conclusion of the program, coffee and pastries will be served. The public is invited to attend.

Proposed Sound Barriers Stirs Controversy Among Residents

by Marianne Martin

The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) may require the construction of acoustic walls along Route 1 and Rutherford Avenue as part of the North Area Central Artery reconstruction project. Not all residents, however, are sold on the idea that the benefits of acoustic walls outweigh the disadvantages of reduced sunlight and air circulation, and obstructed views.

At a community meeting on Tuesday, October 27th at the Knights of Columbus Hall, engineers and consultants for the project discussed not only the topic of the traffic noise and how the acoustic walls will minimize this sound, but also the aesthetic features of the Chestnut Street pedestrian walkway, and tunnel approachment wall treatment.

To begin with, sound is measured in decibels, or dBs. The Federal Highway Administration mandates acoustic walls measuring 12 feet in height be built when sound levels exceed 67 dB. According to the consultants, noise levels recorded at several locations along Route 1 and Rutherford Avenue measure between 71 dB and 79 dB. This range of sound can be compared with a vacuum cleaner ten feet away and a garbage disposal or person shouting three feet away.

from Berger-Lochner, explained the result of studies conducted to determine the noise levels for the year 2000, when the entire project will be completed. The average change in noise levels along Route 1 should measure less than one decibel (with the exception of tests conducted along the wall of the Navy Yard). On Rutherford Avenue, where the present sound measures 73.6 dB, Nicholas predicts that levels will increase to 77.4 dB, a change he called, "between barely noticeable and noticeable."

While the anticipated sound increase is slight, the acoustic walls would reduce the noise level by 10 dB. This decrease would appear to the human ear as a halving of the noise. The question becomes, should residents tolerate conditions which will not significantly change the noise level, or should they allow the sound barriers to be built in order to reduce the noise level? Either way, the acoustic walls present a give and take situation to residents.

City Councillor Michael McCormack emphasized that the proposed acoustic walls will effect residents differently depending on their distance from the wall and asked the consultants to first consider the needs of those who will directly abut these walls.

Peter Smith from CBT/

Childs Bertman Tseckares & Casendino Inc., agreed with the Councillor, adding while the FHWA mandates the construction, they will not enforce the regulation if there is strong opposition from the community. There will be separate meetings in the near future with abutters of Route 1 and Rutherford Avenue. Smith added that each area will be dealt with individually, since the walls will effect each neighborhood differently.

As the neighborhoods are different, so is the impact these walls will have on the residents. For the person who directly abuts the present roadway and experiences the adverse effects of traffic, such as vibrating floors or shaking lamps and fixtures everytime a truck passes, the acoustic walls may be long sought after relief. For others, the walls will do nothing more than obstruct views or give the neighborhood a "caged-in" feeling.

One woman questioned why there was even a discussion about the walls since they would only serve a small area. "Why don't we put the walls just where they are needed?"

Nicholas explained while the walls would serve the central portion of the roadway, where the sound levels are higher, the nature of sound "to wrap around" the walls, requires that the walls extend the length of the reconstruction. "It's a linear source, not a point source," stated the engineer.

Smith added, "The sound is constant along the roadway. The structure has to stop at our work efforts.

Where the wall stops, the sound is just as high as it is at the bridge now."

As for the Rutherford Avenue section of the reconstruction, resident Ken Stone asked if there was the possibility of using trees and shrubs instead of concrete to buffer the sound. Nancy Neuman, Acoustic Specialist for Louis Berger Associates, replied that in order to reduce the sound "even a little" would require a forest, and would only be effective in the summer.

Nicholas added to the list of obvious disadvantages of the acoustic walls; namely, obstructed views of Boston Harbor, skyline, and USS Constitution; the reduction of sunlight, sea breeze, and circulation; and the invitation to graffiti. In addition, there is the uncertainty as to the types of materials which would be used to build the walls. The variety of materials include concrete, masonry, steel or wood. While the consultants did have a pictorial display with examples of acoustic walls from other parts of the country, there were no examples of materials for the Charlestown walls.

The consultant team asked, during the discussion, for a consensus of opinion from the residents on whether they approved or were opposed to the installation of the walls. Many residents, however, did not know how to respond since the discussion was on a conceptual, "sight-unseen" basis. North Area Task Force Co-Chairperson Don Jackson summarized, "I don't think you (the consultants) can ask these people to make a decision without showing them actual configurations."

Another man agreed, "You've put us in bit of a 'Catch-22'. We can't tell if we're opposed when we don't even know what these things look like. I think we need to have a pretty good idea as to what they will be before we decide to be quiet or squawk to the Feds."

Many voiced the fear of concrete. One woman added she foresees the walls as being "nothing more than oversized Jersey barriers." Resident John Tobin agreed, "No matter what is done to them, it's going to look like East Berlin."

Tobin continued, "Yes, we want the noise reduction, but we want it to be aesthetically pleasing. We do not want concrete. Can't you be creative?"

One suggestion for a possible material was polycarbonate. However, there were both pros and cons. While polycarbonate is a transparent material, it tends to cloud after time and is often the victim of poor maintenance and graffiti.

Another resident asked why the Rutherford Avenue side required discussion, since the only view was that of the Boston Sand and Gravel Company, to which one woman rebuked, "At night, when Boston is all lit, we have a beautiful view of the City."

One suggestion was to place the noise barriers on the median strip of Rutherford Avenue, since the bulk of the traffic is on the in-

Media Is Responsible For Racial Violence In Boston

It is becoming all too clear that statements made by public officials and editorials by the print and electronic media are exacerbating racial violence in the City of Boston.

In a recent column in the South Boston Tribune, author John Ciccone of the South Boston Information Center eloquently and insightfully points out several situations whereby there can be no doubting the contention there is a double standard when it comes to reporting racial incidents in this city.

In the article, Ciccone quotes Police Commissioner Mickey Roache, "I will use every legal tool to enjoin any person or group who threaten or intimidate minorities." It should be recognized from this statement that the commissioner references minorities only, a clear indication that the white communities are guilty of perpetrating all incidents of a racial nature.

The above quote by Commissioner Roache was in response to the recent incident in Charlestown where a gang of thugs attacked a van which happened to have a black man aboard as a guest of his white friends.

Let there be no doubt, this act was intolerable and hardly condoned by the vast majority of the citizens of Boston.

The incident was justifiably and fairly reported by the press and electronic media, as it should have been.

The problem is when it is white on black, you can be 100% sure they will cover the story in depth. However, when it comes to reporting incidents of violence against white people, it is a rarity if the incident is ever reported in the press or on television. It is clear that there is a contrived conspiracy to table any racial incident perpetrated by a minority against a white person.

There will be those that read this column who will suggest that I am imagining these things or I am a racist. Nothing could be further from the truth. To prove the point, consider the following unreported incidents within the last few weeks — this information courtesy of the South Boston Information Center.

- buses stoned by blacks in Mattapan - police had to escort buses to MBTA station (No Media Coverage)
- police stoned in Roxbury - police advised to withdraw from area (No Media Coverage)
- racial problems at Don Bosco school - students dismissed - white students advised not to walk down Washington Street - large contingent of police on hand (No Media Coverage)
- whites attacked by blacks at Fields Corner station - police on hand (No Media Coverage)
- white person dragged into project in Roxbury by two black assailants (No Media Coverage)
- twenty black youths rampage through Kenmore Square assaulting people (No Media Coverage)

Nothing imaginary here.

This conspiracy of silence has been evident since the inception of forced racial balance busing in 1974. Until this tragedy was perpetrated upon the populace of Boston, there were only a few isolated incidents of racial violence.

Leading the conspiracy of silence in the print media is the Boston Globe, and on television, all three major channels are guilty, but none more so than Channel 5, who is constantly editorializing about racism in Boston, and consistently pointing the finger of blame at the white community.

Human nature being what it is, and as long as there is preferential treatment for one group over another, there is bound to be feelings of animosity.

So, in essence, it is because of these unfair tactics practiced by the elitists that pit people of the lower economic scale against each other, and knowing that when their scathing remarks are concluded for the day, they can return safely to their havens in suburbia, free from any potential violence they have helped to exacerbate during the day.

It is interesting to note, City Councillor James Kelly has filed an order calling for a complete investigation of all racial crimes committed in Boston for the last ten years. Councillor Kelly indicates that of the thousands of crimes during this period, the overwhelming majority reported have been incidents where the victims were black and the assailants were white. The purpose of the hearings will be to determine why certain incidents are reported by the media and officials, and others are downplayed.

If the media truly want to do something constructive to help bring about racial harmony in Boston, they will support Kelly and his effort to show that the double standard does exist, and harmony can only begin to become a reality when there is fair and impartial treatment for all citizens regardless of race or national origin.

The media created this tragedy of racial strife that exists in Boston, and until they recognize and admit their part in the conspiracy of silence, and act forthright to rectify it, we will never know peace among the races.

"Sail Free" Demonstration And Open House Celebration Sponsored By The Life Focus Center

for physically handicapped and mentally retarded individuals, recently celebrated their Annual Open House with the demonstration of two new programs — one recreational and the other occupational.

The recreational program, called "Sail Free", was developed through Courageous Challenge for the America's Cup. "Sail Free" is a unique therapy technique, utilizing radio controlled model sail boats to teach persons restricted to a wheel-chair, the basics of sailing. Participants learn how to control 18 inch model boats through fan-generated winds.

According to Jack Millerick, Executive Director of the Life Focus Center, this program teaches individuals the same skills as those needed to maneuver actual sailing vessels on the open waters. He explained that the participants learn how to "zig and zag", in order to take advantage of the wind.

There are eight individuals from the Life Focus Center currently involved in the "Sail Free" program, with plans for the number to be increased to twenty in the near future through the contributions from Courageous Challenge, Boston City Councillor Robert Travaglini, Trimount Bituminous Products of Everett, and the State Street Bank.

The second program announced at the Open House concerned the Center's voice operated computer system program, which will serve as a prototype throughout the state. This voice operated computer was demonstrated by two of the Life Focus Center clients and offers the severely handicapped individual the potential to develop computer skills with which to enter the job market.

Representative Richard A. Voke announced that monies had been secured from the state in support of this program. Also, Boston City Councillor Robert Travaglini announced a $20,000 NDEA grant to remove the former police cell block at the Center's City Square facility, in order to provide space for expanded handicapped programming.

Also on display at the Open House were ceramics, wood crafted items, knit and crocheted articles — all made by the clients of the Life Focus Center in workshops at the site.

CLIENTS of the Life Focus Center demonstrate the remote controlled sail boats at the Charlestown High School Pool.

REPRESENTATIVE Richard Voke (right), who has worked closely with the Life Focus Center, announced state monies have been secured for handicap support system computer program. Councillor Robert Travaglini is shown left.

CITY COUNCILLOR Robert Travaglini welcomed members of the "Sail Free" program on behalf of the City of Boston. Travaglini, who was one of the sponsors of the program, also applauded the Life Focus Center for their computer literacy program which utilizes voice controls and other handicap support programs. Travaglini announced a $20,000 NDEA grant to be utilized to remove the former police cell block at the Life Focus Center. The area will be utilized for handicapped program space.

Local Resident Helps United Way Spend Funds

It can be a struggle to make financial decisions that meet your personal needs, especially when you have limited resources.

But imagine how tough it is to decide how a fixed amount of United Way dollars should be divided among 187 local agencies that together help more than one million people in need.

That's exactly what Charlestown's Bruce Haddow does as a "Citizen-Review" volunteer for the United Way of Massachusetts Bay, which is now running its 50th anniversary campaign to raise a record $39 million.

He's among 150 people from diverse racial, cultural, and professional backgrounds whose job is to assess how well citizen needs are met by United Way agencies and to decide how best to spend contributions.

United Way's allocations system is unique nationwide. "This process allows volunteers to channel money to important services in more than 80 local communities as well as see to it that essential maximum service is delivered at the lowest possible cost," notes Haddow, vice president of Bank of Boston.

Of every dollar donated, 88 cents goes to United Way agencies, with the remaining 12 cents going to administrative and fund-raising expenses.

Other local Citizen-Review volunteers are Charlestown's Colleen M. Hovey, Robert Ciolek, and Toby Yarmolinsky.

Haddow is a member of the Community Organizations and Special Services Committee - one of six Citizen-Review groups, with up to 25 members, which serve as forums for volunteers to pool their expertise.

Throughout the year, he and fellow committee members review, then recommend allocations for several United Way agencies. "It's important to visit each agency and assess its objectives, programs, financial and managerial operations, and the target groups served," he says. He also must examine agencies applying for United Way support for the first time.

In assessing community's needs, Haddow follows an updated United Way criteria guide which ranks health and human services. Priorities for United Way funding now include emergency services (food and shelter), protective care for abused children and senior citizens, home health care, and day care.

Haddow adds that recommending how United Way monies should be spent is more difficult than ever before. As a result of cut-backs in public funding and dramatic increases in the need for human services, many agencies are forced to rely more on the United Way.

For Haddow, being a Citizen-Review volunteer is worth all the time and effort. "The process allows me to ensure that contributions are well spent," he says. "Also, it gives volunteers an opportunity to be creative rather than be a part of what people might assume is a static program."

Proposed Sound Barriers Stir Controversy Among Residents

bound lanes. This way, the walls would not impose on abutters' property. Nicholas and Neuman both stated they did not believe this placement would be effective, but would investigate the possibility.

Adams Street resident Mike Daley, offered a compromise. He suggested rather than building a 12 foot high wall, why not reduce the wall size to ground level, which would absorb the tire-generated sound. "This may not be a ten dB, but a five to six dB reduction. It will at least mitigate the noise," stated Daley adding. "I know I'm looking at a grey area. It's something short of a wall, but if it reduces the sound some, I think we've gained a lot."

Neuman added that the discussion of noise is not limited to tire-generated sound, but also to sound from the engines and cargo.

Another suggestion raised by resident Virginia Goscinak was to lower the grade of Rutherford Avenue to the level at its intersection of Austin Street. Another resident agreed, "If you lower the grade of the road, this whole discussion is a different story. The talk of a 12 foot wall is just like putting towers around (Charlestown) and you have Berlin or Walpole (state prison), but if you're talking about a reduction of grade, with maybe an eight foot wall instead, then yes, it's a different story."

While Nicholas agreed that the suggestion was a good one, he went on to say that it is not that simple, since the lowering of the grade is part of a "whole family of things" including increasing the length of the off ramps, and changing the utilities.

The final topic of the evening dealt specifically with aesthetics. Nick Reed, Landscape Architect for CBT, presented residents various conceptual designs for the approachment walls to the tunnels and the pedestrian walkway between Chestnut Street and Chelsea-Water Streets.

In his designs, Reed proposed the use of materials which would imitate the "rhythm and character" of the area. For the approachment wall, Reed suggested the use of brick with the possible granite caps. While he could not promise the walls would be brick, he did state with the consensus of the residents behind the idea, Reed would be able to fight for the funding for brick over the less favorable, but often used, concrete.

Residents voiced support for Reed's designs which included a possible straight wall or a step wall design with or without the granite caps. No one stated preference for concrete. Residents were equally impressed with a model design for the walkway.

While Reed stressed the walkway, which will be located between the two levels of the roadway overlooking the egress to the tunnel, was still in the conceptual stage. The model included a glass block "anti-missile" wall which would serve not only to protect motorists below from flying debris, but also the pedestrians from automotive fumes. The glass blocks would also add a safety factor for the pedestrians since the tunnel light will back up the walkway lighting.

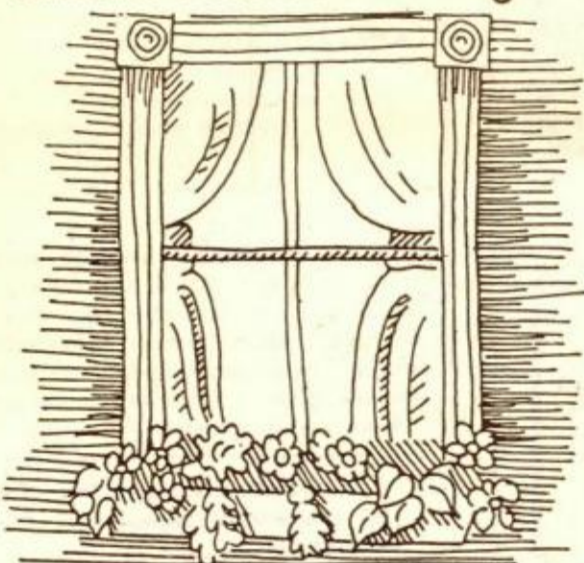

While the glass blocks would provide the lighting and are strong enough to resist the impact of a 20 caliber rifle from a 20 foot distance, they are expensive.

THE ABOVE VIEW is from Chestnut Street, looking through the proposed pedestrian passageway to the water. A solid glass block wall is proposed to protect pedestrians from fumes from the Route 1 south roadway, which pass under this passageway. The Route 1 north roadway would be above the passageway and could include a 12 foot acoustic wall as is pictured. The view below is of the proposed passageway and highways without a 12 foot acoustic wall.

Daley suggested Reed talk to the FHWA about the funding, since the administration was willing to pay for the acoustic walls.

Tobin was not convinced that the glass block design was the best alternative. "I am impressed with the walls, but I think the glass will be a jarring experience with the materials changing from brick and concrete to this open hole which will be brightly lit," commented Tobin. "This should be a comfortable experience. I don't think people have to worry about being mugged."

There were residents who disagreed with Tobin. One man stated he would have to take up jogging in order to use the passageway.

The meeting concluded with a promise by the consultants that the North Area

Central Artery reconstruction project would remain an open process. The consultants told the residents that they were meeting with the FHWA later that week and would express the community's interests at that time. In addition, those residents who about Route 1 and Rutherford Avenue will be notified as to the time and place of a meeting to discuss the acoustic wall proposal as it relates to their respective areas.

Reasons Behind "Who Shall Be Exalted" At The Charlestown Working Theater

Jennifer Justice created "Who Shall Be Exalted" from stories she read about women who resisted non-violently during the Holocaust. People often ask why she tells these stories, particularly as she is not Jewish. Jennifer feels that the question itself indicates the historical isolation of the Jew which allows people to think of the Holocaust as a Jewish experience only, rather than one with implications for all. Jennifer tells the audience in her introduction that for years she could not think about the Holocaust because it was just too dreadful, until someone gave her a book of stories that told a moral bravery that also flourished then.

JENNIFER JUSTICE

"In telling stories of the Holocaust, I hope to be a part of preserving knowledge and love from a time in our recent past which contained the worst certainly, but more importantly to me, the most inspirational figures in humanity. By this remembrance, I honor the women in these stories and those people whose stories are waiting to be told and by hearing the stories we may learn how to make sure that these events don't happen again."

"Who Shall Be Exalted"

will be presented at the Charlestown Working Theater, through November 24. Performances are Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. For reservations, call 242-3534.

Childrens' Films

The Film Program for Children will be held on Tuesday, November 12, 1985 at 10:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. at the Charlestown Branch Library, 179 Main Street.

The features will include: "Stardust", in which viewers may explore the wonder of outer space with an astronaut who lands on a cold planet; six year old Carol takes care of a family of ducks in her backyard in "Seven Little Ducks"; and discover the special sounds and images of night in "Night's Nice".

The suggested readings in conjunction with this programs include: Regards To The Man In The Moon by Ezra Jack Keats; "C'mon Ducks!" by Kay Cooper; and Goodnight, Goodnight by Eve Rice.

In addition, "Sophie Minds The Store" will be shown at 3:30 p.m. In this film, Sophie suspects her friend, Chuck, is responsible for the $20 that is missing from her father's store.

The suggested reading for this program is Who Stole The Wizard Of Oz by Avi.

News From The Boys and Girls Club Physical Education Department

Patty McGrath, Physical Education Director at the Charlestown Boys and Girls Club, would like to announce the addition of several staff people at the Club.

Leo Boucher, a resident of Charlestown, has been named Gym Director for the 1985/86 program year. Leo will be responsible for planning and supervising gym activities for all members. He is a graduate of St. Anselm's College, where he majored in Criminal Justice. Leo is a fine athlete and has established a good rapport with both the younger and alumni members of the Club. In addition to his duties in the gym, Leo supervises Steve McLaughlin, the weight room attendant.

The new Aquatics Director at the Club is Shelley Montgomery, a native of Newburgh, Indiana and a recent graduate of Purdue University. In addition to her position at the Boys and Girls Club, Shelley is a teacher at the Oliver Holden School. Montgomery brings extensive experience in competitive swimming and diving, both as a member of the Purdue University Swim Team and as a coach in the Indiana School System. She will be supervising free swim periods, teaching swim lessons and Advanced Lifesaving, and will act as head coach of the Boys and Girls Club Swim Team. Her assistant coach, Mark Butler, will be helping with swim team and Advanced Lifesaving.

Julie Quinn and Erin Venezia have also been named as Locker Room Attendants in the aquatics department.

McGrath is pleased with the work of her new staff people, and feels that the Physical Education program this year will be the best ever. Patty left the Club on November 2nd after 4½ years of employment. She has accepted a new position at the Brockton Post Office, and while she looks forward to new challenges in her new job, she is sad to leave the staff and children she has grown to enjoy during her career at the Boys and Girls Club.

Little League News

A Little League meeting will be held on Monday evening, November 18th at 8:00 p.m. at Memorial Hall, 14 Green Street.

It is important that all managers, coaches, and officers attend.

All managers should check their equipment and let us know what they need for the coming year.

It is also time for election of officers.

We had a good 1985, let's make 1986 even better.

Thank you,
John Curtin

N.E. Patriots Garner $25,600 For Boys and Girls Clubs

The New England Patriots are winning dollars for the Boys and Girls Clubs of Boston.

With the season at the mid-way mark, the Patriots have garnered $25,600 for the Boys and Girls Clubs of Boston. Everytime the Patriots score a point, $100 is donated to the non-profit organization which provides a number of services for more than 5,000 youngsters.

The Patriots have been averaging more than 20 points per game in their four pre-season and eight season clashes so far this year. Eight more regular games remain on the schedule.

Last year, the Patriots tallied 462 points in the 20 games which meant $46,200 from Frito-Lay, maker of Lay's and Ruffles brand potato chips and Fritos brand corn chips for the Boys and Girls Clubs of Boston.

This is the tenth year Frito-Lay has teamed with the N.E. Patriots in this worthy community project, according to Phil Thomas, Frito-Lay Division Sales Manager. Over the past nine seasons, Frito-Lay has donated a total of $380,000 to the Boys and Girls Club.

Pop Warner Corner

I am sorry to announce that due to lack of players on all teams, Charlestown Pop Warner was forced to forfeit their last two games.

There will be a banquet for the players and cheerleaders who stayed with us throughout the season. Watch the Patriot for further details.

Thank you,
Matt Stillman

Facts About Drugs — F.A.D.

We live with many false facts about drugs and we cling to our ideas no matter what. One of the reasons we cling to myths is that they somehow protect us from the reality of what is really happening to ourselves or to others. It is too painful to look at things we might not be able to control. Therefore, we live with untruths. It's easier that way — but not in the long run. Eventually our denial catches up with us, and especially when the denial concerns drug use and abuse.

UNTRUTH: "I only drink wine (beer) now, and I don't have a problem." A 4 1/2 ounce glass of wine has just as much alcohol as a shot of whiskey. Changing drinks does not eliminate a problem.

UNTRUTH: "Marijuana is not addicting." Marijuana is highly psychologically addicting. People may not have withdrawal symptoms, but the desire to smoke can be the hook to keep a person using, and using regularly causes problems in areas of their lives.

UNTRUTH: "Cocaine is not physically addicting." Cocaine is highly addicting and dangerous. There is an increase in the amount needed to have the same high. Users become preoccupied with obtaining the drug and changes in behavior are evident with use.

UNTRUTH: "Alcoholism is a moral weakness, not a disease." The denial of the disease of alcoholism leaves an alcoholic (and his/her family) believing he/she is a bad person who could stop if he/she wanted to.

UNTRUTH: "An alcoholic drinks all the time." There are all kinds of alcoholics and most of them do not drink all the time until the very end of their disease. There are alcoholics who only drink on weekends; some who drink once a year; and some who do not drink at all. It is a disease that is physical (the drinking), mental and emotional. All areas are affected.

UNTRUTH: "An alcoholic can learn to drink like a normal person." This myth has kept many alcoholics going back out there again and again. It is the biggest untruth of all.

Spartan Defense Thwarts Fenwick For Fifth Consecutive Shutout

by Dave Morency and Craig Dustin

The Dom Savio Spartans continued their winning streak by narrowly defeating Bishop Fenwick 6-0. This victory marked the fifth straight shutout by the Spartans. Joe Tognarelli of Charlestown, Joe Buccieri, Bill Costigan, Dan Lowney, Larry Leone, and Chris Misuraca contributed to this victory with superb defensive sacks.

The defense was equally matched during the first quarter. The only touchdown of the game came when Dick Santoro made a fine rush, breaking several tackles. Santoro, of East Boston, plowed his way into the end-zone for a touchdown. The two point conversion failed on a pass attempt from Alan Amoroso of East Boston, to Scott Littlefield of Saugus.

Towards the end of the first quarter, Paul Angelini of East Boston, Dan Lowney of Revere, and Bill Costigan of East Boston, came up with individual sacks to prevent Fenwick from getting anywhere.

In the closing moments of the first quarter, David Langone of Revere, recovered a Fenwick fumble on Savio's 46 yardline. However, Savio could not capitalize.

In the second quarter, the Spartan offense had many scoring opportunities but were unable to hold possession. At one point Savio was "knocking on Fenwick's back door" when an Amoroso pass was intercepted on the three yardline.

With seconds to go in the half, Chris Misuraca of Everett, and Paul Angelini sacked the Fenwick quarterback for a six yard loss.

At the end of the half, Savio lead 6-0.

The Spartan offense opened up the second half with possession of the ball. On third down, Amoroso rushed for 23 yards; however, a holding penalty and a delay of game penalty shattered Savio's hope for a touchdown.

Throughout the rest of the game, the Fenwick and Spartan defense stopped any potential scoring drives with great defensive plays. In the fourth quarter, the Spartan defense alone had six sacks.

The final score of the game: Savio 6, Fenwick 0.

The Dom Savio football team strongly encourages their many fans to attend the next football game against Archbishop Williams. This is the most important game of the season. It will be held in East Boston Stadium on Saturday, November 9, at 10:00 a.m.

THE LIGHTS ARE GOING ON

AGAIN.

The lights went on for the first time in 1928, when the Schrafft Candy factory was completed. Built on the site of the old Adams Paper Box Company at the foot of historic Bunker Hill, the Schrafft building was the largest of its kind in the country and probably one of the most beautiful, with every modern facility for the manufacture of high quality chocolates and selected candies. And for more than half a century, the lights stayed on, creating a Boston landmark.

But in 1984, Schrafft ceased operations. The lights went out - and many thought they were gone for good. Until The Flatley Company, one of New England's largest real estate development and management companies, stepped in to create a future for this historic building every bit as exciting as its past.

At Orion Research, Inc., we were glad to know that Boston would not lose one of its most historic landmarks - and we were delighted to be one of the first companies to move into the newly renovated facility - renamed the Schrafft Center.

As a leading manufacturer of advanced chemical measurement instrumentation for laboratory, biomedical and industrial process use, Orion has a history of its own. For almost a quarter century, we've been leading our industry, combining our leadership in ion selective electrode technology with state-of-the-art electronics and software to create sophisticated, "user-friendly" instrumentation for fast, accurate and cost-effective chemical measurement.

Ranging from small bench-top meters to large industrial monitors, our advanced instruments have some very down to earth uses, including medical diagnostic testing, quality control in food, and environmental protection. With these sensitive electrodes, monitors and analyzers, specific chemicals can be detected in our food, blood, water and more.

When we move into The Schrafft Center, we're bringing with us a bright spark of new energy for a Boston tradition. Our new facility will offer free, secured parking, free shuttle to the Orange Line station, campus-style grounds and more - including some of the best new opportunities in the area.

As we move in and the lights go on, we invite you to make your own future quite a bit brighter by exploring exciting new careers with Orion. Together, we can keep the lights burning in The Schrafft Center for decades to come.

Voke Announces Changes In Home Mortgage Program

In response to the unprecedented escalation in home purchase prices throughout Massachusetts during the past 12 months, Representative Richard Voke has announced that the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency has increased the acquisition cost limitations for existing homes.

According to Voke, statistics show the statewide, acquisition costs for single-family homes have risen between 18% and 55% during the past year. In the Greater Boston Area alone, the average single-family home now costs $131,000, up 37% from 1984. As a result, many who may otherwise qualify for a MHFA mortgage, may not have been able to locate homes for purchase within the previous acquisition cost limits.

For the Boston Area, existing one to four family units can now cost up to the following:

- one family, $124,000;
- two family, $140,000;
- three family, $170,000;
- four family, $198,000.

Increases have also been made for the remaining sections of the Commonwealth, although the ceilings are lower.

While the federal government has virtually eliminated all of its traditional housing assistance programs in recent years, the state is continuing its efforts to assist income eligible homebuyers purchase homes in Massachusetts. The new acquisition cost limits, along with the earlier revised income guidelines published in the fall brochure, according to Representative Voke, "demonstrate our commitment to ensure that mortgage funds continue to be made available to households most in need of assistance."

Copies of the Home Mortgage Loan Program brochure, along with the new cost acquisition limits, are currently available by writing to Representative Voke at the State House, Boston, MA, 02133.
