This wouldn't seem say for example a big deal because one might think the solution is plain and simple: Evict the renter and find a new renter. This is where it gets interesting: California State laws dictate that in order to evict a tenant, proper protocol has that must be followed. This still sounds very simple and straightforward, it might isn't. My brother-in-law has been following protocol for 3 months now, without sign of progress.

The thing is that as soon as "Marijuana" your going to those places, see those people, put on those clothes, you're for you to just start remembering that you get to fire up. You will actually feel the need to do it because a trigger can have gone off in your. I know this sounds crazy, but you're trust me on complete the work .. Just identify those triggers and with all means avoid that. Don't hang out with the same people, don't go to those same places, just avoid anything tested to be active cause you will need a smoke and weaken your determination to smoking marihauna.
