

How to Get Rid of Ants at Home

The ants in your home can be a considerable disturbance. Not only is it frustrating to keep ants moving around in your house, but an entire colony of ants can result in a lot of harm too. It is very unhygienic if there are ants in your home. Some ant variations can bite humans. On the other hand, the carpenter ants do damage to the building material. Here are some fantastic suggestions for home remedies for Ants Control.

1. Chalk

Using chalk to get rid of ants at your home is one of the famous remedies. Chalk has calcium carbonate, which works to resist the ants. Sprinkle some powdered chalk in the area near the ants or draw a chalk line as a gate at the entrance. Drawing chalk lines can help to keep the bugs off your house. While it is not confirmed what stops the ants from entering, but it is practically useful. Remember to keep the children of your home away from the reach of the chalk line.

2. Lemons

Squeeze a lemon in the area or put peels of lemons in spots from where the ants come inside. Also, you can wipe your floors with a little lemon juice with water. Ants do not like the lemon juice smell, which keeps them away. Anything sour and bitter may resist the ants away; however, any sugar is the favorite food for ants. So, confirm you do not put anything sweet that may help in attracting the ants anyway. Remember to maintain your kitchen counter tidy and put the lemon peels on the slabs.

3. Oranges

Same as lemons, oranges help to keep the ants away from your house. Mix one cup of warm water and some peels of orange to prepare a paste, which will assist in resisting ants. Spread the paste around the areas from where the ants enter entry and clean it later. You can also put the peels of orange on the kitchen counters as lemons or any other place where you feel the ants may reach. The orange peels work as a natural barrier for bugs and ants that may resist them and hold them out. So, make the orange waste to any benefits and confirm that no ants reach or enter your home anymore.
