FICO® Score Summary

Your FICO® Score:

850
On November 13, 2014

Your FICO® Score is great

Your score is well above the average score of U.S. consumers and clearly demonstrates to lenders that you are an exceptional borrower.

- FICO® Scores range between 300 and 850
- Higher scores are better scores
- The higher your score, the more favorably lenders look upon you as a credit risk

Your FICO® Score considers both positive and negative information in your credit report. The chart below shows the "ingredients" that affected your FICO score. Use this tool to help you understand how your credit behaviors can have a positive or negative impact on your score.

FICO	® score ingredients	How you rate
12	Payment history Your history of paying bills on time.	Great
•	Amount of debt Your total amount of outstanding debt.	Great
	Length of credit history How long you've had credit.	Great
	Amount of new credit Amount of credit you've recently obtained or applied for.	Great

Understanding Your FICO® Score

What's hurting your FICO® score

Because your FICO® score is exceptionally high, there are no actionable negative factors present with your score. Continue to manage your credit as you currently are doing to maintain your very high FICO® score.

What's helping your FICO® score

The positive factors listed here reflect areas of your credit behavior that are helping your FICO® Score. You should continue these good practices. These factors are listed in order of their impact to your score; the first has the greatest positive impact and the last has the least.

1 You have no missed payments on your credit accounts.

You helped your FICO[®] Score by paying your bills on time. Staying current with your bills will continue to help your score.

Number of your accounts with a missed payment

0 accounts

About 96% of FICO High Achievers have no missed payments at all. But of those who do, the missed payment happened nearly 4 years ago, on average.

You've limited the use of your available credit.

Your FICO® Score evaluates your total revolving account balances in relation to your total credit limits on those accounts. Your FICO® Score was helped because you've kept this ratio of balances to credit limits low.

Ratio of your revolving balances to your credit limits

1%

For FICO High Achievers , the average ratio is less than 6%

You have an established credit history.

Your FICO® Score measures the age of your oldest account and the average age of your accounts. Your FICO® Score was helped because you have a relatively long credit history and you haven't recently opened many new accounts.

Your oldest account was opened
28 Years ago

PICO High Achievers opened their oldest account 25 years ago, on average.

Average age of your accounts

11 years

Most FICO High Achievers have an average age of accounts of 11 years or more.

You've been responsibly limiting the number of your credit accounts that carry balances.

You've helped your FICO® Score by limiting the number of credit accounts with balances. Your score evaluates how many of your accounts have balances. In your case, you've demonstrated good credit management by only using your available credit when needed.

Number of your accounts carrying a balance

2 accounts

Accounts

FICO High Achievers have an average of 3 credit accounts carrying a balance.

How Lenders See You

A FICO® Score of 850 is above average. Most lenders would consider scores in this range as excellent, and an indication that you are a very dependable borrower. Based on your score alone, you might expect the following:

- It is very unlikely your application for credit cards or for a mortgage or auto loan would be turned down, based on your score alone.
- · You should be able to obtain relatively high credit limits on your credit card.
- . Most lenders will consider offering you their most attractive and most competitive rates.
- Many lenders will also offer you special incentives and rewards targeted to their "best" customers.

The rates you'll receive

When you apply for a loan, lenders will look at one or more of your FICO® scores. Your score directly determines the interest rate you'll pay on your loan. Check the table below to see the current rates you would receive.

Using a 30 year fixed mortgage as an example, your FICO® score might qualify you for an interest rate of 3.644%. Someone with a FICO® score of 630 might receive a rate of 5.233%. On a $250,000 mortgage, you would save more than $235 a month compared to a person who has a relatively poor score. So it's vitally important that you keep your score high.

Your risk to the lender

The reason consumers with good FICO® scores get better interest rates is because they pose less risk of missing payments or defaulting on a loan. The chart at the right clearly shows that consumers with high FICO® scores are lower risk. The power of the FICO® score to predict which borrowers are risky is one reason why so many lenders use FICO® scores in making loan decisions.

Most lenders would consider consumers with a score of 850 to be extremely low risk because approximately 1% of consumers in this score interval get into serious credit trouble.

The risk rate shown here is the percentage of borrowers who reach 90 days past due or worse (bankruptcy, account charge-off) on any credit account over a two-year period.

Credit At-A-Glance

Now let's look at your credit report. Your credit report contains the information that a credit bureau keeps on file about you. This is the information used to determine your FICO® score. Three credit bureaus in the United States keep information on you – Equifax, Experian and TransUnion – so you have a total of three credit reports and three FICO® scores.

On the next several pages we'll look at your credit report from Experian.

Inquiries

An inquiry indicates when a business, usually a lender, has checked your credit. The inquiries listed here are the number of times in the 12 months since the date of this report that a lender has checked your credit at Experian. These inquiries appear because you applied for credit with the listed company. Inquiries associated with applying for new credit are the only kind of inquiry that may hurt your FICO® score.

You have no inquiries affecting your FICO® score.

Inquiries listed here are requests by lenders to view your credit report because you have applied for credit with them. Having many inquiries can hurt your FICO® score, because that might be a sign that you are in a financial situation where you need credit. A single inquiry, however, will have little impact on your score.

Three other kinds of inquiries do not affect your FICO® score and are not listed here. One occurs when lenders search for consumers that might qualify for pre-approved credit. Another occurs when you request to view your own credit report, such as when ordering products on myFICO. Other inquiries that do not affect your score are any inquiries used for purposes other than granting credit, such as an inquiry requested by a landlord. Note: In general, inquiries contribute to less than 10% of your FICO® score.

Collections
If you do not make your required payments on an account, a business may turn over the unpaid account to a collection agency. This is called a collection. The presence of collection	s can hurt your FICO® Score.

Public Records

Public records are legal records reported on you, usually by a court of law. Adverse public records include bankruptcies, foreclosures, garnishments, and tax liens and they can severely hurt your FICO® score. Other types of public records such as divorces are not considered by your FICO® score.

You have no public records.
