History

Chartered in 1969, Franklin University Switzerland was born out of the former Fleming College and founded as a non-profit, independent, post-secondary institution under the name of Franklin College Switzerland. The institution is named for Benjamin Franklin, the United States' first ambassador to France, and it has stressed, since its incarnation, the importance of international studies as the basis for a strong, global education. Franklin College Switzerland obtained United States accreditation from the Commission on Higher Education of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools in 1975, confirmed most recently in 2010.^[2] Having obtained Swiss program-level accreditation in 2005, Franklin was granted full university institution accreditation by the Swiss University Conference in 2013,^[3] making it the only university in the world to be accredited in the United States and Switzerland. Swiss accreditation as a university institution gave Franklin the right to call itself a university in Switzerland, and in April 2014, the institution officially changed its name and celebrated its inauguration as Franklin University Switzerland.^[4]

Campus

The main campus (formally Kaletsch Campus), acquired in 1985, is composed of a private villa with attached library, auditorium, and classroom wing, surrounded by a wooded park. In 2005 the university acquired an additional campus nearby, adding administrative, educational, athletic, social and residential capacity. The current campus spans 2 hectares (5 acres). The Franklin campus is residential, and is located on a hillside overlooking the town of Lugano, in the Italian-speaking canton of Ticino, Switzerland.

Franklin University Switzerland has nine residence buildings, seven in Sorengo and two in Lugano

- Airone is located in an old hotel directly between main campus and North Campus with singles and doubles. All rooms have their own bathrooms and some of which have kitchenettes. The ground floor houses the office of Student Life, and one of the student lounges, the "Falcon's Nest".
- Alba, located in Lugano 5–10 minutes from North Campus on the way downtown.
- Ciliegi, located directly across via Ponte Tresa from Airone. This is the smallest residence on campus, in apartment-style doubles.
- Leonardo da Vinci (LDV), located on the grounds of North Campus, this is the only all-freshman student dormitory.
- Giardino, nestled below the Sorengo monastery, this residence is mainly multiples (4-6 bedrooms and a shared kitchen) with some triples for freshmen.
- Girasole, located in Lugano, has mostly single and double rooms as well as one triple. The Alpine Living & Learning Community is also located in one wing of the building. Every room contains a kitchenette.
- Panera, located on the main campus grounds next to the Grotto (one of two dining halls) with apartment-style triples. Each apartment consists of four rooms: a bedroom, bathroom (with bathtub), separate kitchen, and a large common room with three desks and a couch. The Panera Lawn is a common meeting place and hang out for many students, no matter what residence they live in.
- The final two buildings are the as-of-late unnamed New Buildings (A and B) located across via Ponte Tresa from Panera. New Building A has four bedroom apartment-style housing, while New Building B has two, three, four, five, and six bedroom apartments, some of which are two stories. All rooms in both New Buildings have arguably the biggest kitchens on campus with at least one bathroom (with a shower) per two students. New Building B-side offers a noise-free, substance-free rooming option with an emphasis on healthy living for students.

Academics

Franklin's curriculum promotes international awareness and critical thinking, and emphasizes an interdisciplinary and liberal arts perspective. The majority of courses are taught in English, with the exception of language courses, including an upper-level language courses on film, culture and literature. Students must also achieve proficiency in either Italian, French, Spanish, or German, through fulfilling a 3-year language course sequence. In addition to the language requirement at Franklin, a core curriculum consisting of Intercultural Competencies (humanities and arts), International Engagement (political science, history and economics) and Social Responsibility (sciences and cultural studies) is at the forefront to the curriculum. A full year's worth of study in these three categories is a requirement. Courses in mathematics and writing are required as well.

The most popular majors at Franklin are International Management, International Relations, Environmental Studies, Communications and Media Studies and International Economics, respectively.^[6]

The average class size at Franklin is 16, with no class exceeding 30 students.

Academic Travel Program

The Academic Travel Program is an integrated part of the Franklin University Switzerland curriculum. Academic Travel is a credit bearing degree requirement, and two weeks of travel each semester represent an extension of the students' class work.^[7] Travel is led by faculty members and relates to the academic expertise of the individual professor and to his or her knowledge of a given country or area.

All students, including semester and year-abroad students, are required to participate in the Academic Travel Program. Academic Travel is not only a graduation requirement but an integral component of each semester of study. The graduation requirement for Academic Travel is fulfilled by participating in six travel programs. Students usually fulfill the requirement by participating each semester of their first three years at Franklin. Students who enter with Sophomore standing must participate each semester in which they are enrolled except their senior year.

The travels are themed around academic studies relating both to the location visited and the professor guiding the travel. Economics, art history, literature, business and marketing, international relations, and history are among common themes investigated through travels.

Past Academic Travel destinations have included: the Baltic states, Belgium, Brazil, Croatia, Cyprus, Denmark, England, France, Germany, Greece, the Netherlands, Iceland, India, Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland, Italy, Malawi, Morocco, Mozambique, Poland, Romania, Scotland, Serbia, South Korea, Spain, Switzerland, Turkey, and the United States.

Student life

Student life at Franklin consists of an emphasis on independent travel within Switzerland and Greater Europe, and of student associations, residential life, and interaction with Swiss-Italian culture in Lugano.

Athletics

Franklin University Switzerland offers students a wide variety of sports and fitness programs, as well as activities to promote a healthy lifestyle. Some on-campus sports facilities include the Tone Athletic Center, two volleyball courts, a basketball court and a soccer field. Organized athletic activities include Men's and Women's Soccer, Men's and Women's Basketball, and Lugano Street Dance. Students are also encouraged to start athletic programs. Past student-led activities have included Field Hockey, Yoga, Cross-fit, and Self-Defense.

Since 2000-2001, with an exception of a bye year in 2001-2002, Franklin's men's soccer team has competed in the National Swiss Division (5th League). The team competes with other clubs in the league from the Canton of Ticino. Franklin University Switzerland is currently the reserve team for the local club FC Paradiso, making it Franklin FC Paradiso II. In Spring 2012 the team won its fourth Fair Play award. The team trains twice a week and competes on the weekends in both the fall and spring semesters - home games are played on Friday nights. The players have a mid-season break from December to February. During this period the school hosts an indoor soccer tournament open to all Franklin students, faculty and staff.

Notable professors

Paolo Bennardo and Giovanni Sacheli, members of Searcus Swiss Sagl, held the search marketing course in 2016. The project was divided into two thematic areas, as part of a test for a new media-oriented training course focusing on web marketing and e-Commerce. The first part focused on the theory and practice of SEO. The second part was devoted to PPC with Google AdWords.
