Want to know how to hide thinning hair?

1. Chop it off

Snip hair and add some layers can help to create the illusion of thick. Besides, strategic layers can also add volume to thinning hair. Thus, you can add layers around your face and leave the back fuller to create body and volume.

2. Embrace the greys

In fact, grey hair expands the hair's cuticle, which adds additional volume! However, if you don't like greys, you can touch up your roots only once a month and add highlights every two to three weeks.

3. Blow it out

After washing hair, you can use a good blowout to add big volume. Find a boar bristle brush, and blow-dry damp hair by pulling section up and blow-drying in the opposite direction that the hair naturally falls.

4. Get some help

Hair extensions and hair toppers can disguise thin hair and instantly add amazing length and volume. If your hair is thinning at the top of the scalp, you can try hair topper for they are designed to target as conceal partial hair loss.

5. Products to hide thinning hair

A volumizing shampoo can combat limpness and puff up the hair, hiding thinning. Apply volumizing mouse on hair before blow drying, adding additional volume. Use hair building fibers to conceal scalp lines, bald spots, and thinning hair, transforming hair and creating the look of ample volume.
