POETS & ARTISTS

An exhibition curated by John Seed and hosted by Arcadia Contemporary

DEC 2 - DEC 13, 2017

It wasn't all that long ago that when someone referred to the "Art World" everyone knew what that meant: it was a world of blue chip art and artists that you could read about in the New York Times and maybe three magazines. The internet has changed that forever. In the past five it has become clear that there are many, many art worlds.

Thanks to the internet and social media, artists who never would have met each other or seen each other's works are connected by their affinities. For representational artists, Poets/Artists Magazine, a digital and print-on-demand magazine has become a center. Founded and edited by Didi Menendez PoetsArtists is a vibrant and varied publication that has formed a community and also invented a stunning new form of publishing: the curated magazine.

I have had the honor of curating a few of these issues and each one put me in touch with new artists. Now, as a real world extension of that experience, I have been given the chance to curate a "real world" exhibition. I would like to sincerely thank Didi Menendez and also Steve Diamant of Arcadia Contemporary for this opportunity.

What I hope to have done here at Arcadia, the nation's leading gallery for contemporary representation, is to bring together a selection of some of the best and most forward-looking representational artists today—most from across the United States with a few Europeans tossed in—and celebrate their work. The show does not have a theme other than this one: "strong works from strong artists."

To the artists in the show I would like to say: "This is your show. It's a honor to present your work." Now, let's enjoy...
