A number of endocannabinoids and receptors hosting them are spread over the whole human organism.

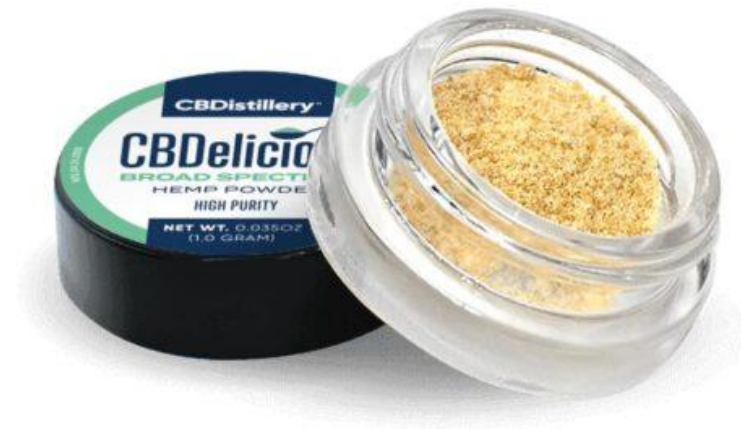

They can be found in the brain, gastrointestinal tract, inner organs, immune system and connective tissues.

Although each of them have specific functions, in general, their main purpose is to improve overall health.

Endocannabinoid system connects the body with the mind.

A well-functioning ECS ensures excellent health and decreases the risk of the majority of the main causes of disability and fatal outcome in the US to date.
