0.1 The Community of Landashir

The Community of Landashir is the full name of the entity which comprises the nationality and government of Landashir as a community of Landashir'ns, or Llons, and as as a successive entity to the former Crown Principality of Landashir, the Antarctic Community of Landashir, the Community of Landashir as a member of the St.Charlian Commonwealth, and as the Community of Landashir under the regulations of the June Statement and the August Declaration.

The Community of Landashir is the Community of Landashir'n people as a nationality and as a collective people.

The Community of Landashir is not in its essence a territorial state.

The Community of Landashir is not defined by territorial claims, only by those who are Landashir'n, as registered individuals who identify as Landashir'n as a nationality and those who belong to the legacy of Landashir as a territorial state.

The Community of Landashir is marked by its national symbols:

The Landashir'n flag is a yellow-green Landashir'n-style Nordic cross bordered by dark blue and light blue on a field of white.

The Landashir'n arms is a lion rampant, facing to the left, on a field of red, bordered with gold. The style of shield shall be a Swiss/Renaissance escutcheon, as given in the logo of the Landashir'n Government.

The national song of Landashir shall be De Klëng vun alle guete Minsje.

The official currency of Landashir shall be the Landashir'n Shilling, and shall be pegged one to one with the currency of the nation in which the Consular Office of the Landashir'n Government is located.

0.2 Landashir'n Nationality and Citizenship

A person of Landashir'n nationality is a Landashir'n or Llon.

Landashir'n nationality is bestowed upon:

those who have resided in Landashir'n territorial claims those who belong to the direct family of James von Puchow/vu Puchow those who have previously been awarded Landashir'n nationality through government, previous and present

those who have served and represented Landashir diplomatically, and/or continue to do so, and express a desire to identify as Landashir'n as their nationality those who belong to the Francillian and Francillish linguistic diasporas, regardless of linguistic level attained those formerly belonging to defunct states associated with Landashir those who identify as Landashir'n and desire to register for nationality through the government of the Community of Landashir

A person of Landashir'n nationality is a citizen of the Community of Landashir through registration.

A registered Landashir'n national is entitled to diplomatic assistance and representation through the government of the Community of Landashir, and the right to contribute to the decision-making bodies of Landashir, as a Community, through the Government.

Registered Landashir'n nationals, or citizens, are entitled to identity documents, such as a passport, once registration is complete and awarded.

All former identity documents awarded prior to this document being published are valid until their allotted dates of expiry.

0.3 Registration and identity documents

Individuals as listed in 2. must register their Landashir'n nationality to receive what is explained in 2.

Individuals who identify as Landashir'n, who desire to register, but do not fulfill the conditions laid out in the list in 2. must be able to give reasoning as to why they identify as Landashir'n.

They may wish to identify as Landashir'n for sociopolitical or linguistic reasons. Identification as Landashir'n on its own does not make an individual a registered Landashir'n national, nor a citizen of a Landashir'n Community.

Applications for registration of Landashir'n nationality must be made in writing and sent to the Consular Office of the Landashir'n Government.

Applications shall consist of a letter from the applicant in response to the conditions laid out in 2.

Applications will be received by the Landashir'n Government and will be responded to in writing.

If nationality cannot be registered immediately, the Landashir'n Government will take contact with the applicant to discuss the application.

An applicant shall not be dismissed based on their ethnicity, psychological gender identity, biological sex, economic status, physical ability or other nationalities or citizenship.

Successful applicants shall not have their registration, and therefore citizen status, revoked for any of the conditions referred to in this clause.

Registered Landashir'n nationals shall be assigned a number for administrative purposes, a national number, and this national number shall be used in all correspondence with the Landashir'n Government, and in official documents such as passports or identity papers.

Landashir'n nationality is only official through registration. Those born of or adopted by Landashir'n parents must register for Landashir'n nationality themselves.

Those with Landashir'n parents or carers who are unable to register, due to being in a state of infancy, will be offered the privileges of registered nationality as outlined in 2. but will need to register their nationality at the age of 13 for this to continue.

From the date of publication of this document, the Landashir'n Government shall no longer issue identity cards, and instead issue passports.

A registered Landashir'n may travel with their Landashir'n passport to any state which accepts the Landashir'n passport as a legitimate form of identity document.

A registered Landashir'n may instead wish to travel with the passport of another nation, and may do so without this conflicting with their Landashir'n nationality status.

They may therefore apply for an identity document passport sleeve which shall contain the passport or identity card of another nation state in addition to a Landashir'n identity card created specifically for use in the passport sleeve.

A Landashir'n passport shall be of size A6, and will include at least one photo page with personal information necessary for a contemporary passport.

Passports shall be large enough in space to accommodate several expired in addition to one valid and current photo page(s).
