Senior Citizens Celebrate St. Patrick's Day With Dinner At The Schrafft Center

It was the wearin' o' the green on March 17 — and green it was in more shades and styles imaginable as over 400 Charlestown senior citizens gathered at The Schrafft Center for the Annual Saint Patrick's Day Dinner hosted by The Flatley Company.

The room was decorated in green and white, with balloons, linens and flowers donated by Goldstar Nursery of Lexington, capturing the spirit of the day. Tom Flatley, president of The Flatley Company, was on hand, welcoming the guests and even entertaining with an Irish ballad or two.

Reverend Isaiah Sears began the event by offering an invocation.

While plates heaping with corned beef and cabbage and all the fixin's were whisked from the kitchens of Creative Gourmet Caterers, located in The Schrafft Center, Flatley introduced elected officials on hand to bring their St. Patrick's Day greetings to the gathering. Senator Francis D. Doris,

ST. PATRICK'S DAY was celebrated in Charlestown with good food, entertainment and, of course, Irish music, as over 400 senior citizens were treated to a party at The Schrafft Center, sponsored by The Flatley Company. brought his wishes, as did Boston City Councillor Robert Travaglini. Travaglini noted, "Boston is a world-class city and Thomas Flatley is a world-class individual." He added that he wished that every developer in the city could be as warmly embraced as Flatley has been here in Charlestown.

Flatley then introduced newly elected Charlestown Mayor Rennie Murphy Walsh, who thanked those present for their support of her candidacy and brought

Prospective Homeowners Take Part In Lottery For Affordable Main Street Townhouses

by Kathy Giordano

The Charlestown Economic Development Corporation (CEDC) held its long-awaited lottery for affordable homes on Sunday, March 19 at the Knights of Columbus hall. Over 100 hopeful first-time home buyers were on hand, accompanied by grandparents, children and friends, to watch the procedure and see who would get a shot at purchasing one of the newly constructed townhouses at an affordable price.

Meanwhile the townhouses sit on Main Street, construction nearing completion, and where the sale of the development's market rate units continue.

A total of 275 applications were submitted to the CEDC last September for the affordable units. Of these, 171 were determined to be qualified under the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency guidelines. The remaining 104 applications were eliminated due to financial reasons, mostly over income. All applicants were informed by mail one week before the lottery of their eligibility status. Qualified applicants did not have to be present at the lottery to have their names submitted.

CEDC Board President Tom Cunha and marketing agent Bill Galvin conducted the lottery with young Brian McCleary and Reverend Brian Murdoch pulling the names out of the barrel. CEDC Board members, Dan Kovacevic, Carol Bratley, Peter Looney, Eric Philippi and Kevin Roche and Executive Assistant Polla Bilodeau, were kept busy recording the order of the winners. On hand to oversee the program were Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Service's Charlestown liaison Judy Evers and Boston Redevelopment Authority Senior Planner for Charlestown, Larry Brophy. Members of the Charlestown Neighborhood Council were also in the audience watching the lottery.

Cunha opened the procedure with an explanation of why the lottery was tak-

A VOLUNTEER from the audience was requested to begin drawing the names of prospective homeowners in the affordable housing lottery held on Sunday at the Knights of Columbus Hall. Brian McCleary (left) volunteered and with a chair put in place for him to stand on, the lottery began. Charlestown Economic Development Corporation President Tom Cunha (right) read the names aloud as McCleary pulled them from the drum.

Harold Brown To Present Plans For Former Amstar Site

Harold Brown, owner of the Charlestown Marine Park on Medford Street, formerly the Amstar Sugar Refinery, has accepted the invitation of the Mitigation Committee of the Charlestown Neighborhood Council to present his plans for the site to the community. The committee, chaired by William Galvin, will meet on Tuesday, March 28 at 7 p.m. at Bishop Lawton Hall (lower church hall), St. Francis de Sales Church, 313 Bunker Hill St.

Along with Brown, leasing specialist Tray Agnew, Bud Shadray and Mike Jar- dus from the Charlestown Marine Park will also be present.

In addition, Kathy Hearn or her representative from the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and Dorothy Connolly, community liaison from Massport, are also slated to attend.

The public is welcome to attend.

New England Aquarium Focus Group

Jobs And Educational Programs — Yes
Cash Benefits — Probably Not

by Lynn Peters

Representatives of various organizations in Charlestown continued their wish list with New England Aquarium people on March 15 in the last of two focus groups centered on community benefits. In an earlier Feb. 27 focus group, Charlestown people contributed to a more than three-page list of hopes for what the aquarium's proposed move to the Navy Yard's Dry Dock 2 would do for the town.

Representatives of the Kennedy Center, Life Focus Center, the Bunker Hill Housing Development and JobStart helped add to the wish list, and reviewed current and possible aquarium jobs and educational programs. Money for Charlestown social service agencies, jobs for the mentally and physically handicapped, jobs building the $130 million new facility and specific training for more permanent employment were among the latest requests. Aquarium representatives were also asked to provide a geographic breakdown of where current employees come from to gauge involvement with the neighborhood.

"As a major institution taking up space here," Kennedy Center Director Kate McDonough asked the aquarium's Paul Boyle, "is there any intention of cash benefits for this community?"

Boyle said approximately 1,300 construction jobs will open, along with other employment opportunities to come when the aquarium is expected to open in five years. Explaining the benefits of the aquarium's expanding educational programs for children and seniors, Boyle said among the possibilities would be special consideration to Char-

Hayes Square And Decatur Street
Eliminated As Parking Sites

Hayes Square and Decatur Street are no longer being considered as possibilities for New England Aquarium parking facilities, according to aquarium spokesperson Marjorie Arnold. At a March 15 public meeting on community benefits, Arnold announced that the idea had been "shot down in flames."

lestown residents for jobs, student internships at the high school level and developing a relationship with Bunker Hill Community College.

Boyle was less promising on cash benefits for Charlestown organizations.

"The aquarium survives through its admission money," Boyle said. "It's a limited resource as an educational institution."

At its Central Wharf location, the aquarium generally costs adults $7 and $4.50 for their children over 3 to visit.

While community benefit focus groups move into the scheduled workshop stage for more specific possibilities, Don Gillis, director of the Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Services, assured representatives and residents that the list is "not some idle exercise." Ideas and discussions will develop further as the process continues.

Resident Peter McClure had the most pointed comment for aquarium officials. Saying that any educational benefits were already part of the existing aquarium, McClure told representatives, "I think you've blown it on the benefits, because there is no unique benefit for Charlestown."

McClure and other residents, who were active in helping develop the Charlestown Neighborhood Council's Master Plan for the Navy Yard last year, asked that aquarium official be sensitive to that plan, specifically when it comes to Charlestown's public open space.

"There is a specific negative benefit," McClure said. "The aquarium will effectively obliterate one of the only two inner city waterfront parks." Arguing that the historic dry dock is next to the Shipways public park and part of a pier that make for Charlestown's only access to the waterfront, McClure said, "A group that is supposed to foster the environment is negatively affecting the environment."

At the April 5 and 20 workshops, residents can expect more input and discussion on potential benefits for Charlestown.

THE FINANCING CONTINGENCY
In most jurisdictions, the standard Board of Realtors purchase agreement contains language that lets the purchasers out of the agreement, with their full earnest money deposit returned, if they are unable to get financing within a specific period of time. If you're buying a home, it's crucial that you read carefully and understand fully exactly what the financing clause says.
You're generally required to apply promptly for your loan and to comply with any requests the lender makes to complete its paperwork. Then the contract will set a time limit by which you must have loan approval. If the deadline is approaching, and if your lender needs additional time to complete loan processing, you may have to ask the sellers for a written extension of your time limit. If you don't get your financing arranged in time, and then the loan is not approved, you run the risk of losing your good faith deposit check.
For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling a home, talk to the professionals at Silva Realty Associates. Come by our offices at 142 Main Street, Charlestown or call us at 242-7470.

The Turtles Are Coming . . . To The New England Aquarium, That Is

by Tricia Booker

It's more than just a fish tank, and if and when the New England Aquarium moves to the Charlestown Navy Yard everything will come. The seals, the eels, the sharks, the penguins, the lizards, the turtles, and, of course, the fish.

Some of these creatures are already in Charlestown, or at least were made here. All of the aquarium display props and sea replicas are born in a studio at 50 Terminal St. Here, they are created from fiberglass and transformed to ocean bottom figures that not even the fish recognize as fraudulent.

In the studio, out of water and waiting for finishing touches, jagged sea coral and giant reptilian creatures loom menacingly, assuring trespassers that there are indeed living things at the bottom of the sea.

When the aquarium was built, 20 years ago this June, it was little more than a fish museum. All that visitors could do was look at the fish. Today the exhibits portray the underwater world in stark reality, offering the opportunity to learn and understand the lives of ocean dwellers through living examples.

Last November marked the opening of the Thinking Gallery, a $600,000 exhibit of fish in a simulation of their actual habitats and a multitude of displays offering hands-on experience at learning about sea creatures. On March 28, the "Stick Your Neck Out: A Duggan studied photography at the Massachusetts College of Art in Boston, and got his master's degree in sculpture from the California College of Arts and Crafts. He wanted to teach.

"But I got tired of teaching the same thing over and over again," he says, "now, I do something once, and a million people see it."

Duggan has lived in Charlestown for two years. He loves it. He thinks he'll love it even more with the aquarium nearby.

In his spare time, Duggan volunteers at the New England Historic Seaport, doing carpentry work and building boats. He says he is concerned about the many overlooked opportunities that residents have available to them — the seaport, for example. Volunteers there built the Spirit of Massachusetts, the boat docked in the Navy Yard. The boat is an educational institution, according to Duggan, and serves as a sailing school ship. It was the last boat to be built in the Charlestown Navy Yard.

The aquarium is not a museum to be visited once and ignored for the next five years. The many exhibits change periodically and offer a constant influx of learning possibilities.

The Thinking Gallery, for example, offers a smorgasbord of activities to please a variety of visitors.

In it, the Blue Hole houses groupers that are as big as most of their visitors, and their protruding featerior. Originally, they were continuously chased by a mock predator, a large fiberglass fish. But the keepers noticed that the little fish were so terrified of the mock predator that they overexerted themselves swimming to escape it. They eliminated the predator so there would not be so much stress on the fish. Next to the tank, a video shows people doing fish behavior, crowds of people walking in the same direction around a shopping mall and passing in droves down the same side of the street.

Hard-to-please kids can occupy themselves with the "bone phone," which demonstrates how fish can hear. The phone instructs the visitor to place his elbows on two speakers, then cover his ears with his hands. Sound is actually passed through the arm bones. Other informative games include the fish puzzle, taped sea sounds and trivia quizzes.

The colors-at-depth tank changes its lighting so viewers can see what the ocean looks like at different levels. And the railing on the deep dark cold tank is the same temperature as the deep dark cold sea. You can feel it, and you can imagine being down there surrounded by those fish that are right in front of you and feeling the wispy weeds winding around you.

And — the turtles are coming. Slowly but surely, they're creeping their way toward the New England Aquarium with determined momentum. There will be 12 to 20 species with one to four turtles representing each species.

Exhibit designers chose turtles because they thought these reptiles would have some appeal, according to Les Kaufman, curator of exhibits, research and development for the aquarium.

What reptiles would have as much appeal as furry animals, they ask themselves.

The answer was "turtles," said Kaufman, "because of their liquid eyes, disarming ways, and (the fact that) they're permanent underdogs." People are attracted to them, he insists.

Not only will there be all of these turtles to see, there will be empty turtle shells for guests to try on their backs.

"If you can engage the kids, and excite them, they learn a lot more while they're having fun," said Sandy Goldfarb, spokesperson for the aquarium.

And of course, there will be the 24-foot mosasaur to climb on.

"We find that it's good to have a place in the aquarium where kids can let off some steam," said Goldfarb.

The new exhibit will be announced by a 12-foot

It won't just tell people that a mosasaur is an extinct family of lizards, it will show them. How could a child get a more accurate idea of what a mosasaur looked like? How could you?

The groupers share their seaworld with a moray eel and some little fish, wandering in and out of fiberglass rocks and coral and some seaweed. They look quite at home, making loud glubbing noises — proof that they're healthy.

All of these features are in addition to the things the aquarium already offers. The giant ocean tank is there, as are the dolphin shows and many smaller exhibits. And the seals play dutifully outside the aquarium entrance, in their little pool of sea water, welcoming visitors and giving doubters a little taste of Former Commander of the USS Constitution Robert Gillen, USN (Ret.) enjoyed his sailing days over his 31-year career. His enthusiasm for the military has been transferred to his civilian position at West Roxbury High School. Commander Bob is directing the ROTC program for the students entertaining career paths in the military. At this time of year Bob and his crew are preparing for the numerous parades they will participate in. Having recently completed the St. Patrick's Day parade in South Boston, the West Roxbury contingent is looking forward to the Bunker Hill Day festivities on Sunday, June 18. Bob's penchant for crack drill team performances guarantees rave reviews by all parade goers. From the briny sea to Boston's streets, Bob Gillen maintains a balanced approach in educating the youths for professional placement.

Protective plot markers have been arranged on the borders of the various tulip beds. From the inside of Gate Four to the abutting parcels behind First Avenue, the scene is set for a bursting of "Townie" tulips. Cooperating weather will transform the dark slumbering ground into a verdant field of American-grown tulips, just in time for the Easter Parade along First Avenue.

Color of another light was proudly displayed from the Constitution Commissary over the past weeks, celebrating Evacuation or St. Patrick's Day, depending on your individual preference. For owner Joe Flaherty, the 1600th anniversary of St. Patrick's birth was his reason for celebrating. A green, orange and white assortment of Irish pendants were proudly placed in his storefront first-floor window amidst the decorations and, upon closer examination, Joe has two skiffs at the base. These skiffs are available for purchase. Until a final purchase and sales document is executed, they will complement the display nicely. When in the vicinity, and most definitely if you are in the market for a sea-going skiff, make an offer to Joe ... that he can't respond to with negative blarney.

Two J-22 white sailboats, numbers 701 and 703, departed from their slips on a winter afternoon last week, that really was more attuned to a spring day. As they sailed away from Shipyard Quarters Marina they were approaching the wake of the Gina S., a large container from Limassol. It made the early sailing for the J-22s a little difficult. From all indications the sailing crew was preoccupied with the pleasant climate and idled until the Gina S. passed. Returning before dusk, the sailboats navigated their path to their Pier Eight home. Office manager Patricia McCarthy will be witnessing many more early season escapades from her SQM facility with the increasing availability of daylight and anxious eastern mariners.

DelFarno Trucking hauled a double order of cement columns through Gate Four with Flagship Wharf as the final destination. A flag raising ceremony is not on the immediate plans for the Eighth Street megacondominium residential and commercial complex. In time the exercise will occur with the blessing of all veterans, the general public and The Raymond Group.

Picture taking was not on Anchorage resident Jack Leeman's schedule during the height of busy St. Patrick's Day last week. A retired employee of Polaroid, Jack was mastering another cultural endeavor. Of special interest to Jack is the Irish language, Gaelic, which he is studying with much attention to detail. All the required tools are at his disposal, but a high degree of vocalization and intense drilling are crucial for the mastery of this ancient language. As his vocabulary expands, his acceptable fluency level will provide Jack with a gift of the blarney. Our past Mayor of Charlestown, Claire Lynch, can offer Jack an abundance of phrases and stories in Gaelic, that will benefit him in his quest. To Claire and her family we extend our praise for a sterling performance in her tenure. Now that newly elected mayor, Renie Murphy Walsh, is discharging her newly acquired mayoral duties, Claire will have time to share the wealth of her Irish heritage. A great year to you Mayor Walsh, and to Claire, thanks for the memories and don't fret, Berlitz of Boston can't compete with you. At last sighting, Jack was attempting to locate Claire for some Irish assistance and blessing. Dea Guit to all.

Prospective Homeowners Draw Standings In Lottery For Affordable Main Street Townhouses

(continued from page one) ing place at this time, although due to the bank's regulations, no affordable homes could be sold until a number of the market rate units were purchased. "We're here today to set your rank on the lottery list," he stated.

Galvin explained the complicated lottery system being used "was designed to benefit families with the most children." He added, "These homes were built with a priority given to families." Galvin also said that out of the 171 qualified applicants, only nine stated that they had three or more children. The majority of families interested in participating in the lottery had two children.

Galvin explained how the lottery would work and the five categories: 1) two-bedroom units for Charlestown residents; 2) two-bedroom units for minority Charlestown residents; 3) two-bedroom units for non-residents of Charlestown; 4) three-bedroom units for Charlestown residents; and 5) three-bedroom units for non-residents of Charlestown. Galvin noted that no minority had qualified for a three-bedroom unit. He also stated that Charlestown minority applicants would be included in two lottery categories as was defined in MHFA guidelines. Their names would be placed in the Charlestown-minority resident category as well as in the non-Charlestown resident drawing.

Galvin stated that the MHFA, BRA and the First Mutual Bank of Boston would have the last say on the status of the lottery selections. "We have requested from the bank, whose permission we must have as a condition of the construction loan agreement, to release six affordable housing units which would go to four Charlestown residents and two non-Charlestown residents. That ratio is in compliance with the MHFA mandate. BRA Director Stephen Coyle has also forwarded a letter to the First Mutual Bank of Boston requesting the release of six units, as well," Galvin said. The CEDC is still waiting for a reply from the bank.

MICHAEL COPPINGER was on hand at Sunday's lottery for the affordable townhouses on Main Street to hear his name drawn as number one on the list for a two-bedroom home.

Charlestown Working Theater To Present 'A Stage Door Canteen'

Celebrating its 15th anniversary and the launching of its professional development, the Charlestown Working Theater will present "A Stage Door Canteen" with a sneak preview of "S.W.O.N. Songs" on April 7 at 8 p.m.

The event will be followed by a reception and dancing to the swing music of the '40s. Complimentary food and drink will be served in the spirit of the World War II-era USO canteens.

"S.W.O.N. Songs: A 1940s Homefront Cabaret" is drawn from the oral history of Boston women who built ships during World War II at the Charlestown Navy Yard. Known as "SWONs," some of these women still live in Boston today, and the original script by Artistic Director Ron Jenkins is based on their real-life stories. The cabaret-style play will be spiced with songs of the war years.

The benefit will be held in Building 125 in the National Parks Service section of the Charlestown Navy Yard. This building is the future home of an exhibit dedicated to the shipbuilding industry of the Navy Yard. Actual artifacts from the building's past will complement the play by creating a total relative environment.

Tickets are priced at $35 per person. For reservations or further information, contact Nancy at the CWT, 242-3534, Monday to Friday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

LMZ To Be Subject Of IPOD Meeting

Senior Citizens Celebrate St. Patrick's Day

St. Patrick's Day greetings. Mayor Raymond L. Flynn, accompanied by his son Ed, presented a basket of shamrocks to Flatley. Flynn said that the shamrocks were sent over by the President of Ireland and were from each of that country's counties. Flynn, commenting that Flatley was a good friend, introduced Commissioner of the Elderly for the city, Diane Watson, for a presentation.

Watson stated that this party was a great way to celebrate in a city so rich in Irish tradition, adding that everyone in Boston was Irish on St. Patrick's Day. She then read a proclamation from the Mayor honoring Flatley for his commitment and dedication to the community and its residents, noting specifically his charitable contributions to many organizations and his providing employment to the Charlestown neighborhood.

Flatley stated that he accepted the honor with "true humility" on behalf of all the people who worked with him. He added that Mayor Flynn has a "heart as big as himself."

Beverly Gibbons, elderly coordinator for the Charlestown Community Schools, was asked to come to the stage where Watson presented her with a certificate of appreciation from the city, noting the "dedication and commitment of a very loving person." Watson referred to Gibbons' work the previous two days to assist and relocate the elderly that were displaced by last Wednesday's fire on Main Street. She added that she was honored to present the certificate as a "small token in acknowledgement of what Bev does on a day-to-

Representative Richard A. Voke, chairman, House Ways and Means Committee, was also on hand to bring his greetings, as was Boston School Committee Members John Nucci and Robert Meany Cappucci.

Charlestown Rose Allyson O'Callahan made a presentation to Flatley of a piece of Waterford crystal, which she had brought back from her trip to Ireland when she competed in the Western Rose Festival.

Music by Joe Joyce and his band, "The People's Choice," brought entertainers to the microphone and dancers to the floor as the afternoon progressed. The gathering was also entertained by young Irish Step Dancers from the Mary Martin School of Dance.

Guests left with one of the hundreds of shamrocks that had been donated by Mayor Flynn and transported into the hall by Billy, Sean and Timmy Getchell, Michael McNelley and Robbie DiFrommolo.

The senior guests were treated royally from the time they were picked up by one of the many shuttles put into service for this event, until the vans came to return them to their homes. Donating their time and vehicles for the occasion were the Charlestown Boys and Girls Club, the Kennedy Center, Teamsters Local 25, the city's Senior Shuttle and The Schrafft Center.

The party met with raves from the Charlestown senior citizens, with thanks to Thomas Flatley for hosting the party that made St. Patrick's Day memorable.

Hurwitz Tournament Celebrates 66th Year At The Charlestown Boys And Girls Club

by Charlie McGonagle

The investment firm of Dean Witter has long been noted for its unique ability to recognize a product of value. The Charlestown Boys and Girls Club's Annual Nate Hurwitz Amateur Basketball Tournament is a product which has withstood the test of time, and is one which certainly meets the criteria of a Dean Witter investment. It is natural, therefore, that the company has decided to assume the role of major sponsor of this year's competition.

In 1923, under the directorship of Nate Hurwitz, then the physical education director of the Charlestown Boys' Club, this, the oldest amateur basketball tournament in the United States was conceived "for the purpose of providing playing facilities for outside teams, and was purposely put on after the close of the regular school season in order to avoid conflict with the other scheduled games of the players" (Quincy Patriot-Ledger, June 4, 1929).

In the 66 years of its existence, the Hurwitz has survived where many other fashioned after the original have come and gone. Dean Witter has come to recognize the contributions the tournament has made not only to the game of basketball in the Greater Boston area, but to the young men and women who are afforded the opportunity to vie each year in a competition which allows the formation of teams made up of players from colleges, high schools, church leagues, club leagues, town leagues, and so many other organizations that spend their winters promoting basketball.

The tournament's history is rich in tradition and boasts the past performances of several players whose abilities carried them beyond the local courts and into the professional ranks. Kevin Stacom of the Boston Celtics and Terry Driscoll of the Detroit Pistons and Boston College are two of the more notable future professionals to perform on the Charlestown hardwood.

Some of the more noteworthy college performers to compete in the Hurwitz include Boston College greats Chuck Chevalier, Bobby Smith, Billy Evans, Bobby Carrington, Jim Whouley, Martin Clark, and more recently, Dana Barros. Somerville High School stars have annually traveled the short distance to Charlestown to take part in the action where former University of Massachusetts standout Billy Endicott was once the Tournament Most Valuable Player.

One of the more illustrious of all former Hurwitz performers was a kid from South Boston who played at Providence College where he went on to become the MVP at the National Invitation Tournament at New York's Madison Square Garden when the N.I.T. was considered THE post-season college basketball tournament. That man was, of course, the Honorable Raymond Flynn, Mayor of Boston. Mayor Flynn's alle-where age is usually not a factor until the fourth period.

Dean Witter's interest in this year's tournament was apparently piqued by the formation of a Corporate Division. With the current emphasis on physical fitness, many large corporations have formed basketball leagues for its employees, and 16 of these local agencies have entered teams in this new division.

Because of the very nature of their businesses, first-round match-ups seem to be not only natural, but very attractive as well.

Tournament sponsor Dean Witter will try to better the Cowen and Company portfolio, Blue Cross-Blue Shield will file a claim against Baystate Health, Mayor Flynn's All-Stars will attempt to veto the State Republican's entry, Pepsi Cola will make every attempt to down Coca-Cola, Boston Edison will utilize its top players in an attempt to explode the legendary Algonquin Gas myth, Saucony/Brookfield would like nothing better than to lace Converse, and the Boston Globe will be looking to steal the headlines from the Boston Herald.

Tournament action has already commenced and will be held at the Charlestown Boys and Girls Club, High Street, Charlestown, six days each week, Tuesday through Sunday until the final rounds of competition are contested on Saturday and Sunday, April 15 and 16.

In addition to recognizing the seven divisional winners, a Tournament MVP will be selected; the Fred Sullivan Trophy, named after the late, former long-time tournament director, will be presented to the outstanding performer from the Charlestown community; and the Jim Briers Trophy will be awarded for sportsmanship to a deserving team.

It is estimated that the Charlestown Boys and Girls Club Nate Hurwitz Amateur Basketball Tournament has attracted upwards of 80,000 players in its 66 years of existence. With the popularity it has gained over time, and with the inclusion of women's and corporate divisions along with the involvement of Dean Witter as a major sponsor, it is expected that thousands more will have the opportunity to participate in the nation's oldest amateur basketball tournament in the years to come.

giance to the Hurwitz is evidenced by his entering the Mayor Flynn All-Stars in the newly formed Corporate Division of this year's competition.

As the tournament has grown over the years, so has its name gained recognition beyond the Greater Boston area. It is not unusual to find teams from Maine and New Hampshire listed among the 100 or more entrants.

The Hurwitz presently consists of seven separate divisions and caters to players both male and female. Age groups begin with a boys 13-and-under division, and end with a men's and a women's open division

McGonagle Wins First Varsity Letter In Ice Hockey

Kevin McGonagle, a freshman at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., and a resident of Charlestown, earned his first varsity letter in ice hockey at the college, head coach Dave Snyder announced recently.

Seeing action in 23 of the Cardinals' 24 contests during the 1988-89 season, McGonagle played at a left-wing spot. The second-leading scorer among the eight freshmen on the team, and ninth overall, McGonagle picked up 14 scoring points on seven goals and seven assists. One of his goals counted as a game-winner, that coming in Wesleyan's 12-6 decision over Westfield State College.

The 1988-89 Wesleyan hockey season proved to be an outstanding one as the Cardinals exceeded the expectations of both the critics and the coach. Skating to a

KEVIN MCGONAGLE

13-10 overall record in the regular season, including a 12-7 mark against Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) North-South Division opponents, Wesleyan locked up its sixth winning season in the team's 18-year varsity history.

Qualifying for the ECAC South Division playoffs, the Cardinals gave the four-time defending champion Trinity Bantams a tough match before bowing out, 3-1. In addition to the fine regular-season performance, the 1988-89 team will be remembered for its historic trip to Australia and New Zealand during the holiday recess, where the team won each of its five games against local teams, including two over the Australia national squad.

The son of John and Virginia McGonagle of Monument Street in Charlestown, McGonagle is a 1988 graduate of Boston Latin School where he was a league MVP in ice hockey, and all-scholastic pick and MVP of the Shriner's all-star game in football and a two-year all-star in baseball.

At Wesleyan, McGonagle, who is pledging the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, is attempting a rare feat by playing three varsity sports. He has lettered in football and ice hockey and is a member of the baseball team this spring.

Charlestown Youth Hockey Action

Well, the season has just been wrapped up and many thanks and congratulations are in order. Thanks to the board members and the In-House and Travel Team coaches, who gave of their time and effort. These people managed to keep things running smoothly while also teaching our youngsters sportsmanship and pride in themselves and their town. We give them a pat on the back for turning the program in the right direction, headed for the top.

More thanks to the parents, relatives and friends who shelled out hard earned money for equipping their kids and supporting the CYH by attending the fund-raising dances and buying candy.

Thanks to the staff at the Emmons-Horrigan-O'Neil Rink who kept the ice and other facilities in such great shape. Thank you all.

Now for some congratulations. Congratulations to the Bantam Team who played undermanned all year. They showed all the teams they came up against true heart and courage. This group never gave up. They did themselves proud.

Next up, congratulations to the Pee Wees who turned their season around midway through the year. A great stretch run bodes well the next year when all their hard work is sure to pay off.

On to the Squirts who played solid hockey all year long. They surmounted a move to a higher division, winding up the season with a semifinalist spot in the state tournament held in Springfield. The future could hold a trip to the Nationals for this talented bunch.

Finally, congratulations to the Mite Team, comprised of boys 6 to 9. Only two tough losses kept them from having a perfect record. Still, they repeated as champs in the Hallenborg Tourney at Billerica and proved their true mettle by capturing a pair of games on Saturday that gave them and CYH its first Greater Boston League title in many years. They don't get much better than this team.

To all the members of the In-House program who provided excitement, chills, spills and great hockey on Saturdays at the rink, congratulations and thanks. And, thanks to all the boys and girls for being hockey players and showing us adults what the game is really all about.

The end of the year awards party for the kids is set for Saturday, April 22 at the Knights of Columbus Hall. Hope everyone has a safe summer with lots of rest. CYH action picks up again in September.

Boys' 18-And-Under Ball Hockey

Game 1: Maulers 16, Brady Bunch 1

Danny Sullivan led the Maulers with five goals, followed by Donald Doris and Mike Moloney who had three each, Brian Stillman and Fred Collins had two each, and Peter Enos added one as the Maulers romped the Brady Bunch, 16-1. David Walsh had the lone goal for the Brady Bunch.

Game 2: JAFT 5, T.N.T. 4

Billy Pino opened the scoring for T.N.T., and Jamie McLaughlin tied it up for JAFT. Brian Feeney then put T.N.T. up 2-1, but before the half was over Danny Hooley and Billy Kempton scored to give JAFT a 3-2 lead.

In the second half, Jamie Connors tied it at 3-3 for T.N.T. But JAFT got the next two on goals by Albie Titcomb and Hooley's second for a 5-3 lead. Derek Gallagher scored for T.N.T. to cut it to 5-4, but that's how the game ended.

Game 3: Main Street 14, Eden Street Park 2

Seano Scales, Danny Tucker and Derek O'Brien led the Main Street attack with four goals each, and Jack Kacvinsky had two as Main Street rolled over Eden Street 14-2.

Eden Street goalie Bobby Durette was bombarded with shot after shot and had little defensive help. At the other end, Main Street goalie Ken Giordano was solid, allowing only two goals by Chris O'Brien.

Game 4: Newtowne Nationals 12, Regulators 2

Mike Flamini scored four goals, including one on a penalty shot, to lead Newtowne over the Regulators, 12-2. Tommy Carroll added two goals, while Ronny Poole, Sean Hickey, Mark Marino, Don Bassett, Brian Davis and John Johnson scored one each. Mike Bassett scored both goals for the Regulators before being ejected from the game in the last minute for charging Newtowne goalie Pat Gillespie, who played a fine game.

PASTORAL COUNSELORS • FEES ON A SLIDING SCALE

Not For Nothin' . . . But Have You Heard . . .

• Eleanor . . . Ruthie Clifford is down at the Red Store smoking!?

• A Special Thank You . . . to the Bunker Hill Florist for making our St. Patrick's Day a little greener by presenting each lady in the Patriot office with a green corsage. We loved them, Joe! . . . also, thanks to Bob and Kathie at the Warren Tavern for a sample of their delicious ice cream — green, of course — to put the final touches on a delicious corned beef dinner.

• CANA News . . . Starting next Monday, March 27 (weather permitting) the Boston Gas Company will begin a two week project to relocate an 8-inch gas line on short Chestnut Street behind the jersey barriers at Chelsea Street and Lowney Way. No parking will be allowed in that area between 7 a.m. and 4 p.m. CANA spokesman David Flanagan apologizes for any inconvenience and says to call him at 241-5560 if you have any questions.

• Oh, Jeannie, We're So Sorry . . . The "Dancin' Machine" of the Golden Age Center must have danced right by us unnoticed during all the excitement at last week's fire at the elderly housing on Main Street. Jean Reilly was there helping out and we didn't acknowledge her presence. (Maybe that will make up for seeing you other places that we don't dare mention in public, Jean! — Only kidding, Albie!!!)

• Seen in the Neighborhood . . . was Speaker of the House George Keeverian doing his shopping at Johnnie's!

• Happy Birthday Wishes . . . go out to transplanted "Townie" Dick Gauthier who'll be celebrating his birthday in New York on the 26th . . . also on March 26, Mary Chiappa will turn 38 and Steven Chiappa will turn 20 on the 27th . . . and Colleen Flynn, the Patriot newspaper girl from Parker Street will be celebrating her 13th this week. Have a great year!

• If You Missed the St. Paddy's Day Parade . . . you can still catch it on Channels 3A and 8A on Cablevision (BNN-TV) on Sunday, March 26 at 3 p.m. Due to technical difficulties, the parade couldn't be seen on the 19th in certain areas of Boston, so it is being rerun for all to enjoy!

• Welcome Back . . . word has it that the BRA has placed one of its top guns back into Charlestown to oversee all future development. Larry Brophy has been reassigned to handle the BRA's business here in the community. He'll be seen at all future meetings where development is discussed. Good to have you back, Larry!

• If Only I Could Whistle . . . because the search is on for MR. Massachusetts — Male America 1989! The third annual contest will take place right here in Boston! Men interested in entering the contest should call Pageant Headquarters at 734-6867 for all of the details.

• Draw A Poster . . . Help Prevent Arson . . . Local students in grades five through eight are asked to participate in a poster contest sponsored by the Arson Watch Reward Program entitled "Blow Out His Matches - Call 1-800-682-9229." Prizes from $50-$250 will be awarded. Contact Mass. Property Insurance Underwriting Association (Mass. FAIR Plan) at 723-3800 for more info!

• In The News . . . Larry Miller Productions got a nice write-up in Sunday's Globe for their "snappy slide show at Meredith & Grew real estate trends seminar . . . Blossom's Cafe and Catering was well written up in Thursday's "Calendar" section of the Globe under Cheap Eats . . . and the Bricklayers' townhouses received good billing in Tuesday's Globe for their architectural splendor in the Navy Yard. Question no one seems to be able to answer, though — when will the residents move in? According to John Noone of the BRA "the process is slow." No kidding, John! Now tell us something we don't know!?

• Another Question Being Asked . . . By a Bunker Hill Street resident who noted that two parking spaces have been eliminated on that street as it intersects Allston Street. Reports have it that the elimination of these two spaces would allow a clearer view of the oncoming traffic as autos exit from Allston Street. The resident questioned the parking impact if two spaces were eliminated from the corner of each street that intersects with Bunker Hill Street . . . Gives one a point to ponder!

• Welcome, Welcome, Welcome . . . To Spring! Although the weather hasn't been cooperating as yet, the days are getting longer and the temps are rising — little as it may be.

Happy Easter

Hope The Easter Bunny Is Good To Ya!

Three Cheers For These Young Men

Three cheers for two of our young Charlestown men, David Martell and Matt Mahoney, who were willing to risk their personal safety by stopping their cars and grabbing ladders to climb to the balcony which was ablaze during the fire on Wednesday, March 15, at the elderly apartments on Main Street.

Luckily, they did not have to go up because within seconds several fire engines arrived on the scene and took the situation in hand with a job well done. Good work firemen and good work David and Matt.

We thank you all.

Dorothy Shea

Thank You

I want to thank my children, my brother Mike, and the many people that sold and voted for me for Mayor of Charlestown.

I wish to extend special thanks to Lil Boutilier for the great work she did for me while I was in Texas.

Thanks again,

With Grateful Appreciation

To All My Supporters:

It is with grateful appreciation that I thank my supporters whose efforts on my behalf in the race for Mayor of Charlestown allowed me to win the election hands down in a 2 to 1 victory. "Thank You" is sometimes not expressed enough — but thank you again for your generous support. Without your help, the election would not have been such a huge success.

The official winning vote was 12,971 to a second place of 6,400 and third place of 5,000. With your generous support, a Charlestown Rose, along with an escort, and the Mayor with a companion, will attend the Western Rose Festival in Charlestown County, Mayo, Ireland in August. Also, the other two candidates will enjoy a trip to Ireland.

Thank you again for your generous support. "Lord Have Murphy On Us."

Your Mail — Plus A Song On Saint Patrick's Day

'Bare-Bones' Budget Taking Meat From Table

Dear Editor,

As a Charlestown resident I am ashamed to say that Richie Voke is my state representative. I cannot believe that his excuse for cutting aid to Boston and other cities was that, in his words, Boston is a wealthy city. Wealthy! How can he be in his right mind? It does not take a Harvard graduate to see that the city has more homeless than ever, more people having a hard time making ends meet, more elderly residents barely able to keep roofs over their heads with their skimpy social security checks.

Does he really believe what he is saying? How can he sleep at night when he knows that his "bare-bones" budget is taking the meat off the table from the very same people who voted for him? Is it that he has his sights on bigger and better things and that Charlestown's vote won't really matter then? That's the only answer I can come up with.

Yours,
Mel Stillman

Bulger Crucified — Freedom Of Press Abused

The Editor

Boston Globe
135 William T. Morrissey Blvd.
Boston, Mass. 02125

Dear Sir:

One can only hope that those who study the uses and abuses of a free press have been following the Globe's extended jihad against Senate President Billy Bulger. Seldom has there been a more blatant example of a newspaper, dominant in its market, manufacturing the news it reports.

Your campaign of vilification began last summer with a wholly gratuitous series publicizing Bulger's relationship to a brother who is reputed a mobster. With a negative background thus established you executed what now appears to be a clever feint intended to insulate the paper from charges of bias; that is, you endorsed Bulger (whose seat was scarcely contested) for re-election. Next, presumably because even a weak reed is better than none, you joined forces with the notorious Boston landlord, Harold Brown, trumpeting and tirelessly reiterating his unsubstantiated allegations concerning — not Bulger, but Bulger's law partner, Tom Finnerty. Though not on target, this was close enough to serve the purpose of sowing suspicion amongst uncritical readers! At some point, you did report, sotto voce, that a Justice Department inquiry into the events you were exploiting had found no grounds for suspicion of Bulger. Apparently recognizing that burying the story didn't really take care of it, you bullied a reluctant attorney general into launching a formal review of the initial finding of no fault.

A child would understand that fairness demands that the Globe lay off until the review is complete. But, not for a moment. During recent weeks the campaign has been artfully kept alive, partly by means of a seemingly orchestrated series of negative comments about Senator Bulger by columnists, such as Jack Thomas, who normally eschew politics. Attentive readers have noticed, also, a subtle shift in the argument implicit in your stories; originally, their tone clearly presaged a day when criminal charges would be brought against the Senate president; as lack of evidence has caused the hope to fade, the Globe's emphasis has shifted to a pious and wonderfully safe (mom-and-apple-pie) demand that public officials be judged by a higher standard of ethical conduct than now prevails.

Finally, you cap the climax of your self-sustaining campaign of calumny by reporting (page 1, March 13) the results of an opinion poll commissioned — surprise, surprise — by the Globe itself; much of the public, you solemnly report, is now critical of the Senator's leadership. This charade brings a new dimension to the meaning of chutzpah, and would be funny were it not so shameful and so costly to an honorable and eminent public servant.

The media's common defense against criticism is that critics are blaming the messenger, who has no responsibility for the bad tidings he brings. In this case, it is abundantly clear that the story is an in-house one, consisting almost wholly of the opinions and prejudices of the Globe's own reporters and editors. The Washington Post served the public well on Watergate when, by hard digging, it unearthed facts that prompted action by public officials. In giving front-page coverage over a period of months to a story that never moved outside your own newsroom, you have succeeded only in crucifying an admirable man and demonstrating how easily freedom of the press can be abused by a rich and powerful paper intent on manipulating public opinion for its own purposes.

Sincerely yours,
E.L. Pattullo, Retired Director

Board Of Appeal Acts On Monument Square Property

The City of Boston Board of Appeal heard the petition of Eleanor Sokol on Tuesday, March 21 requesting a change in the legal occupancy of 48 Monument Square from a three-family dwelling and a doctor's office to a four-family dwelling.

Sokol presented her proposal to the board, which was supported by Judy Evers, community liaison from the Mayor's Office of Neighborhood Services.

Neighbors had expressed concern that an outside fluorescent light was offensive and asked that Sokol lower the fixture and change it to a non-flourescent light. She agreed to rectify the situation.

The board granted approval of the appeal, subject to design review.

Suffolk-Bunker Hill Community College In Transfer Student Pact

Suffolk University and Bunker Hill Community College (BHCC) have entered into a unique articulation agreement easing the way for graduating Bunker Hill students to transfer credits to Suffolk University's School of Management.

The agreement, signed by Suffolk President Daniel H. Perlman, Bunker Hill President Piedad Robertson, School of Management Dean Richard L. McDowell and Kathleen E. Assar, vice president for academic and student affairs at BHCC, provides advice to BHCC faculty concerning Suffolk course requirements.

"And," Perlman pointed out, "it assures students that we will award full credit for the courses they take at BHCC when they transfer to Suffolk University."

Perlman said that other community colleges whose students have regularly transferred to Suffolk University have already expressed an interest in developing similar articulation agreements based on the model with BHCC.

Robertson hailed the articulation agreement, noting: "One of the most difficult transfer concerns revolves around the business administration program.

SIGNING AGREEMENT easing way for Bunker Hill Community College students to transfer to Suffolk University are Suffolk President Daniel H. Perlman and BHCC President Piedad Robertson, as Kathleen Assar, vice president of academic and student affairs at BHCC, and Dean Richard McDowell, dean of Suffolk's School of Management look on.

The example provided by this agreement demonstrated a willingness of two institutions to work together for the benefit of students."

The agreement is expected to eliminate such problems as students taking lower division courses in business subjects that do not readily transfer without a more advanced validating course after enrollment at Suffolk University.
