

Enigma

A poem by Zujumeshi

<>

*You're like a coded lock
A digitally composed puzzle
A cryptogram, it's 12 o'clock
My mind feels so muzzled*

<>

*Let's try again tomorrow
Pour me some coffee
The solution is a hollow
You seem just like a trophy*

*No key can open you
You have a password
You won't let me through
You have a passport*

*But the date is "never due"
Let's go to a court
"Who made you?"
The answers are too few*

*I'm not your enemy or your nemesis
But to save you from yourself
I will take the blame, oh blimey
I will hide your deeds like a night elf*

<>

*You might not see me
But I'm there
You might not even care
But I'm forever in your debt*

*Someday maybe you'll open up
Someday maybe you'll come along
Someday maybe it is too much
Someday maybe it'll be enough*

*Only a machine
Can understand
Another machine
I'll tell you something grand*

*I will create something obscene
That is out of the routine
It will create a quarantine
And I will call it "Augustine"*

It is to solve "You"
