Depopulation Through Forced Vaccination: The Zero Carbon Solution!

On April 26th, the Irish Independent published an article titled ‘Concern for Children’s Health as Parents Ignore Vaccines’. The story was about how people are shying away from vaccinating their children. The article was critical of the lack of public health messaging around the importance of vaccinations.

However, an article from the Irish Independent on April 26th suggests that the concern over vaccines is not only about the health of children but also about the impact of vaccines on the environment. The article states: “The world today has 6.8 billion people. That’s headed up to about 9 billion. Now if we do a really great job on new vaccines, health care, reproductive health services, we lower that by perhaps 10 or 15 percent.”

Billy ‘The Kid Killer’ Gates

By Rachel Winter

Vaccines are a fraud, pure and simple! The historical record PROVES this for anyone with a little patience and the courage to investigate the FACTS for themselves, and it does take courage, especially for those in the medical profession whose careers will be at risk if they dare expose this danger to our children. It also shatters their illusions that they’re part of an organization which is far from beneficial to those they believe they’re protecting from illness.

However, their hypocritical oath should compel them to investigate such wild claims put out by pharmaceutical giants and their drug dealer sales representatives instead of taking the word of an industry well known as being utterly corrupt and ruthless in its business practices.

The Irish haemophiliac scandal, where patients were knowingly infected with HIV through contaminated blood products should be enough to convince anyone of Big Pharma’s murderous intent.

This brings us to the real reasons for vaccinations. I’m not even going to prove to readers that they don’t work. I’ll simply urge you to look up the historical record. One simple example is the demise of measles.

The measles death rate had declined by 95% from 1915-1938 prior to any vaccination being introduced. In 1968 and 1989, 85% and 85% for measles cases in American school-aged children had been vaccinated! In 1995 95% of ALL measles cases in America were vaccinated.

These figures come from medical journals.

These 3 simple examples PROVE that unvaccinated children are less likely to contract measles.

PARENTS, TAXPAYERS AND ALL CONCERNED CITIZENS SHOULD BEWARE THE HIDDEN TRAPS IN THE CHILDREN’S REFERENDUM. The Government has promised to put a Referendum on Children’s Rights to the people later this year to amend the Constitution in order to give the State increased power over our children. VOTE NO!

By Kathy Sinnott - Page 3

ADVERTISE WITH US! E-Mail: editor@sovereignindependent.com for terms and competitive rates

---

10 Facts That Prove The Bin Laden Fable Is a Contrived

---

 PLEASE RECYCLE THIS PAPER BY PASSING IT ON TO SOMEONE ELSE TO READ ***
Scotland's Shame - The Hollie Greig Scandal

By Robert Green

Although it is now over two years since I became involved in the Hollie Greig story and it is eleven years since Hollie first brought her dramatic revelations to the attention of the authorities in Aberdeen, I have good reason to believe progress is being made on many fronts, both in Scotland and England.

In Scotland, it has been well established that the state has already accepted that Hollie was the victim of systematic sexual abuse from the age of six, by granting her £3,500 from the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority for her suffering. The principal document that influenced this award was the professional analysis written by the eminent psychologist, Dr. Eva Harding, who not only specifically identified and confirmed two of the abusers as being responsible, but also added in her conclusion that “Hollie had probably also been abused by others who had access to her”. Hollie has repeatedly named all of those individuals and seven other victims whose ordinals she witnessed. Apart from a cursory interview with the initial abuser in 2000 and the second confirmed abuser two years later, absolutely no effort has been made by Grampian Police to investigate the crimes in any meaningful way.

Not only was Dr. Eva Harding’s report available to the police, but also that of another highly respected psychologist, Dr. Jack Boyle, who also concluded that there was no doubt that Hollie had been sexually violated.

In 2006, a Police Complaints Commission Inquiry was set up to investigate the Grampian Police’s conduct in investigating this matter, along with related alleged crimes concerning the assault and kidnap of Anne Greg. Hollie’s mother, on 8th September 2000, just a few days after Hollie had named her high-profile abusers, as well as the death of key witness Robert David Greg on 17th November 1997 in the most suspicious of circumstances. No worthwhile attempts were ever made to investigate those alleged crimes and it is perfectly obvious that the various authorities should have had an agenda to ensure the true facts should never come to light.

After the inquiry was completed, sadly though predictably one that left more questions than answers, it transpired that both the documents supporting Hollie by Dr. Harding and Dr. Boyle were withheld from the inquiry. Although it was not known to the Greig at the time, two vital documents that were in the police’s possession were also crucially concealed. These were part of Hollie’s medical records, which were not released to Anne until October 2009. Both were written by the medical officer for Hollie’s special school, Dr. Paul Carter.

The first, dated 1990, described Hollie, then aged 10, as suffering from a sexually transmitted disease. The second, dated 1992, described staff concern at Hollie’s behaviour, which was regarded as a clear indication that a child of her condition had experience of sexual activity. Those vital documents were never acted on by the school’s head, one of the named abusers, nor the GP. Anne was never told and when she did take Hollie to the same GP over her concerns about symptoms in the lower part of her body, the GP told her it was “just to do with Hollie’s general medical condition”. None of those three medical experts have ever been interviewed by the police.

All of the authorities, including the Chief Constable of Grampian Police, Colin Mackenzie and leading politicians in Scotland, as well as some in England, have been made aware of this dreadful scandal for some time. It is to the credit of one English MP, Mr. David Ruffley, for showing the moral courage in so many of his colleagues lack by directly challenging Scottish Ministers over their treatment of the issues, which he rightly describes as “appalling”.

I have recently made a formal criminal complaint to the police about Mrs. Elsie Angiolini, the disgraced Lord Advocate who has been forced to resign on 15th May. We have compelling documentary evidence to prove that she publicly lied about her role in the case in 2000, where she clearly used her influence to pervert the course of justice. The same can be said of her role in the second investigation in late 2009. In the case of the latter, she has even embroiled public funds for her own personal use in threatening legal action against all major organs of the media, effectively gagging them from publishing the letters proving her involvement in 2000. Those funds were effectively stolen from the very people who had a right to know of the true facts about Mrs. Angiolini’s misconduct.

It is impossible to describe everything that is going on, including the continual efforts to silence and intimidate me and my clients both in Scotland and in England. In Shropshire, where Hollie and Anne now live, Shropshire Council Social Services ordered a raid, accompanied by both and vandalism at the ladies’ home on 3rd June 2010. As a result of pressure by many interested parties, the Freedom of Information Commissioner has confirmed after a thorough investigation, that not only had the council broken the law, but also that two senior managers, Tim Collard and Stephen Chandler, had repeatedly lied when questioned about the raid.

There is much, much more and let us hope that not only for the sake of the victims of historic abuse, but also those children and the disabled in Aberdeen who remain at the mercy of the paedophile ring, that firm action is taken without further delay. Senior Scottish Ministers Kenny MacAskill and Alex Salmond have been made fully aware of the background to this case since the summer of 2009, when I also sent them the documents exposing Elsie Angiolini’s lies and culpability.

If you have been the victim of a paedophile abuse by people holding positions of trust, we want to hear from you. Visit: www.holliedemandsjustice.org
PARENTS, TAXPAYERS AND ALL CONCERNED CITIZENS SHOULD BEWARE THE HIDDEN TRAPS IN THE CHILDREN’S REFERENDUM

PROPOSED WORDING FOR AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION. (All emphasis ours)

Article 42.5 of the Constitution is deleted.

A new Article 42 (A) inserted after existing Article 42.

Article 42 (A) inserted after existing Article 42.

The State acknowledges and affirms the natural and irreplaceable rights of all children and guarantees, as far as is practicable, by its laws to protect and vindicate those rights.

In exceptional cases, where the parents of any child regard the natural status for physical or moral reasons fail in their responsibility towards such child, the common good shall, by appropriate means as provided by law, endeavour, with due regard for the natural and irreplaceable rights of the child, to supply the place of the parents.

Provision may be made by law for the voluntary placement for adoption and the adoption of any child.

Provision may be made by law for securing, as far as is practicable, the welfare and best interests of the child in those instances of all prospective adoptive parents, where, by appropriate means, shall endeavour to supply the place of the parents, but always with due regard for the natural and irreplaceable rights of the child.

Supreme Court Judge Adrian Hardiman made it clear that the Constitution of Ireland fully respects the inalienable rights of the child. Not one iota of the Constitution needs to be changed as noted in the reports of the Citizens’ Referendum. Under Article 42.5 as it stands, the law empowers the State to take professional, on physical or moral reasons, to supply the place of the parents, in exceptional cases, where the parents have failed in their responsibility towards their children. This, as guardian of the State, as guardian of the common good, by appropriate means, shall endeavour to supply the place of the parents, but always with due regard for the natural and irreplaceable rights of the child.

As already stated above, it isn’t the Constitution that has let children down, but the failure to respect it by the very same politicians, State bodies, children’s rights advocates and social workers - who are now looking for more powers to exercise what power they already have.

Our politicians and all those with a vested interest in getting this referendum passed are using a powerful form of emotional blackmail to get the electorate to endorse the amendment. The referendum is meant to make the Constitution more just, and not be used as a rubber stamp for just any amendment, could and should be used to safeguard those children. Yet that is the one Article that they now propose to have deleted.

Not the Children’s Rights Chairwoman and the State’s ability to intervene where children are at risk in the married family, is curtailed by the Constitution. They claim that the threshold for intervention, i.e. “in exceptional cases” is too high. This is pure poppycock and an attack on the intelligence of the electorate. In the Roscommon Fórsa case as emotional blackmail, as part of a big propaganda exercise to get the Children’s Referendum passed.

Of course, the bottom line about real rights is that money has to be spent to uphold them. Elusive cuts, like “far as is practicable” in the proposed new Article 42 (A), should therefore set alarm bells ringing, especially for parents of children with disabilities and those with special needs. “As far as is practicable” is not a guarantee of a right but an exact opposite. Effectively what is implied here is that these rights will be guaranteed only as long as there is sufficient funding available to uphold them. Even in times of plenty, this phrase was used in many areas of social and health policy to avoid spending money. If this referendum is passed, it will be the children with special needs – and their numbers are growing – who will be the first casualties in any further economic downturn, as indeed is happening in this present recession in health and education. The highly paid bosses at the Department of Children and Youth Affairs do not need to worry about their children’s rights’ groups will, no doubt, hold on to their well-paid taxpayer funded jobs.

This amendment is clearly not in the best interests of one single Irish child, and if people truly want what’s best for our children, now and into the future, they will give it a resounding NO on referendum day.
JONATHAN SWIFT’S LEGACY (Gulliver’s Travels) Killing the Yahoos – All of us

by Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr.
web: www.larouchepac.com

O

n that account, consider the most provocative nature of the fact, that today’s insight into the basic national policy of Ireland’s fiat to what was to emerge as the United States of America, is the work of one of the founding fathers of the United States, the great Thomas Jefferson. This was the land of his birth, and he was present at the Constitutional Convention. His role as a delegate was crucial in establishing the framework of American government.

For the greater part of what we know of the history of the Transatlantic region and beyond, European civilization itself, with all of its complex historical development, is a product of the Industrial Revolution. This was a time of great change, a period when the old feudal order was giving way to the modern world of the Enlightenment. The Industrial Revolution began in the late 18th century and continued through the 19th century, during which time many of the technologies that we take for granted today were invented. It was a time of great progress, but also one of great inequality, as the new industrial class grew wealthy while the working class was left behind.

The next step in this chain of events was the American Civil War, which began in 1861 and lasted for four years. It was a time of great suffering and loss, but it also marked the end of slavery in the United States. The Civil War was a turning point in American history, and it paved the way for the eventual emergence of the United States as a great power in the world.

The United States emerged from the Civil War as a nation on the rise, and it quickly began to assert itself on the world stage. By the end of the 19th century, the United States had become a world power, with a growing economy and a strong military. It was a time of great opportunity, but also of great tension, as the United States began to assert its influence in the world.

By the end of the 20th century, the United States had become a global superpower, with a military that was second to none. It was a time of great power, but also of great responsibility, as the United States was called upon to play a leading role in the world.

For the greater part of what we know of the history of the Transatlantic region and beyond, European civilization itself, with all of its complex historical development, is a product of the Industrial Revolution. This was a time of great change, a period when the old feudal order was giving way to the modern world of the Enlightenment. The Industrial Revolution began in the late 18th century and continued through the 19th century, during which time many of the technologies that we take for granted today were invented. It was a time of great progress, but also one of great inequality, as the new industrial class grew wealthy while the working class was left behind.

The next step in this chain of events was the American Civil War, which began in 1861 and lasted for four years. It was a time of great suffering and loss, but it also marked the end of slavery in the United States. The Civil War was a turning point in American history, and it paved the way for the eventual emergence of the United States as a great power in the world.

The United States emerged from the Civil War as a nation on the rise, and it quickly began to assert itself on the world stage. By the end of the 19th century, the United States had become a world power, with a growing economy and a strong military. It was a time of great opportunity, but also of great tension, as the United States began to assert its influence in the world.

By the end of the 20th century, the United States had become a global superpower, with a military that was second to none. It was a time of great power, but also of great responsibility, as the United States was called upon to play a leading role in the world.

For the greater part of what we know of the history of the Transatlantic region and beyond, European civilization itself, with all of its complex historical development, is a product of the Industrial Revolution. This was a time of great change, a period when the old feudal order was giving way to the modern world of the Enlightenment. The Industrial Revolution began in the late 18th century and continued through the 19th century, during which time many of the technologies that we take for granted today were invented. It was a time of great progress, but also one of great inequality, as the new industrial class grew wealthy while the working class was left behind.

The next step in this chain of events was the American Civil War, which began in 1861 and lasted for four years. It was a time of great suffering and loss, but it also marked the end of slavery in the United States. The Civil War was a turning point in American history, and it paved the way for the eventual emergence of the United States as a great power in the world.

The United States emerged from the Civil War as a nation on the rise, and it quickly began to assert itself on the world stage. By the end of the 19th century, the United States had become a world power, with a growing economy and a strong military. It was a time of great opportunity, but also of great tension, as the United States began to assert its influence in the world.

By the end of the 20th century, the United States had become a global superpower, with a military that was second to none. It was a time of great power, but also of great responsibility, as the United States was called upon to play a leading role in the world.

For the greater part of what we know of the history of the Transatlantic region and beyond, European civilization itself, with all of its complex historical development, is a product of the Industrial Revolution. This was a time of great change, a period when the old feudal order was giving way to the modern world of the Enlightenment. The Industrial Revolution began in the late 18th century and continued through the 19th century, during which time many of the technologies that we take for granted today were invented. It was a time of great progress, but also one of great inequality, as the new industrial class grew wealthy while the working class was left behind.

The next step in this chain of events was the American Civil War, which began in 1861 and lasted for four years. It was a time of great suffering and loss, but it also marked the end of slavery in the United States. The Civil War was a turning point in American history, and it paved the way for the eventual emergence of the United States as a great power in the world.

The United States emerged from the Civil War as a nation on the rise, and it quickly began to assert itself on the world stage. By the end of the 19th century, the United States had become a world power, with a growing economy and a strong military. It was a time of great opportunity, but also of great tension, as the United States began to assert its influence in the world.

By the end of the 20th century, the United States had become a global superpower, with a military that was second to none. It was a time of great power, but also of great responsibility, as the United States was called upon to play a leading role in the world.

For the greater part of what we know of the history of the Transatlantic region and beyond, European civilization itself, with all of its complex historical development, is a product of the Industrial Revolution. This was a time of great change, a period when the old feudal order was giving way to the modern world of the Enlightenment. The Industrial Revolution began in the late 18th century and continued through the 19th century, during which time many of the technologies that we take for granted today were invented. It was a time of great progress, but also one of great inequality, as the new industrial class grew wealthy while the working class was left behind.

The next step in this chain of events was the American Civil War, which began in 1861 and lasted for four years. It was a time of great suffering and loss, but it also marked the end of slavery in the United States. The Civil War was a turning point in American history, and it paved the way for the eventual emergence of the United States as a great power in the world.

The United States emerged from the Civil War as a nation on the rise, and it quickly began to assert itself on the world stage. By the end of the 19th century, the United States had become a world power, with a growing economy and a strong military. It was a time of great opportunity, but also of great tension, as the United States began to assert its influence in the world.

By the end of the 20th century, the United States had become a global superpower, with a military that was second to none. It was a time of great power, but also of great responsibility, as the United States was called upon to play a leading role in the world.

For the greater part of what we know of the history of the Transatlantic region and beyond, European civilization itself, with all of its complex historical development, is a product of the Industrial Revolution. This was a time of great change, a period when the old feudal order was giving way to the modern world of the Enlightenment. The Industrial Revolution began in the late 18th century and continued through the 19th century, during which time many of the technologies that we take for granted today were invented. It was a time of great progress, but also one of great inequality, as the new industrial class grew wealthy while the working class was left behind.

The next step in this chain of events was the American Civil War, which began in 1861 and lasted for four years. It was a time of great suffering and loss, but it also marked the end of slavery in the United States. The Civil War was a turning point in American history, and it paved the way for the eventual emergence of the United States as a great power in the world.

The United States emerged from the Civil War as a nation on the rise, and it quickly began to assert itself on the world stage. By the end of the 19th century, the United States had become a world power, with a growing economy and a strong military. It was a time of great opportunity, but also of great tension, as the United States began to assert its influence in the world.

By the end of the 20th century, the United States had become a global superpower, with a military that was second to none. It was a time of great power, but also of great responsibility, as the United States was called upon to play a leading role in the world.
10 Facts That Prove the Bin Laden Fable is a Contrived Hoax

By Paul Joseph Watson - PrisonPlanet.com

Every indication clearly points to the recent raid being a manufactured play to return Americans to a state of post-9/11 intellectual castration. Since President Obama announced the death of Osama Bin Laden, there has been literally a deluge of evidence that clearly indicates the whole episode has been manufactured for political gain and to return Americans to a state of post-9/11 intellectual castration so that they can be easily manipulated in the run up to the 2012 election. Here are ten facts that prove the Bin Laden fable is a contrived hoax.

1) Before the alleged raid, every intelligence analyst, geopolitical commentator or head of state worth their salt was on alert as the State Department had already claimed that Bin Laden was already dead, and that he probably died many years ago, from cancer. In 2002, an officer in the Pakistani Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto, former FBI head of counterterrorism Dale Watson, in addition, back in 2002. Alex Jones was told directly by his separate high level sources that Bin Laden was already dead and that his death would be announced at the most politically opportune moment. Tom US government insider Dr. Steve R. Pieczenik, a man who held numerous different influential positions under five different Presidents, serving as the Deputy Assistant Secretary of State under Nixon, Ford and Carter, told the Alex Jones Show a week after the raid that Bin Laden died of a man's syndrome shortly after he was visited by CIA physicians at the American Hospital in Dubai July 2001.

2) The official narrative of how the raid unfolded is a complete fabrication. First there was no helicopter landing at the site. There was no shotout and just one man was killed. First Bin Laden was armed and was identified, identified as a $1 million dollar man, turned out to be a rube-endorsement device. The compound was described as a "section of a US military base".

3) The alleged body of Bin Laden was hastily dumped in the sea to prevent any proper procedure of identification. The White House claimed this was in accordance with normal Islamic burial rituals, however numerous Muslim scholars all over the globe disputed this claim, pointing out that Muslims are only buried at dawn or at night. While the White House claimed that Bin Laden’s death on May 1st was proven by DNA and facial recognition evidence, such proof was never released for public scrutiny and the Obama administration refused to release photos of Bin Laden’s body, suggesting a cover-up.

4) Despite the fact that the White House released "situation room" photos which purported to show Barack Obama, Hillary Clinton, Joe Biden and the rest of Obama’s security staff watching the raid which killed Bin Laden live, it was later admitted by CIA director Leon Panetta that Obama could not see the video from where they were seated. While the White House claimed that Bin Laden’s death on May 1st was proven by DNA and facial recognition evidence, such proof was never released for public scrutiny and the Obama administration refused to release photos of Bin Laden’s body, suggesting a cover-up.

5) Every indication clearly points to the recent raid being a manufactured play to return Americans to a state of post-9/11 intellectual castration so that they can be easily manipulated in the run up to the 2012 election. Here are ten facts that prove the Bin Laden fable is a contrived hoax.

6) Almost every single neighbor that lived near the alleged Bin Laden compound in Abbottabad that was interviewed by news reporters said with absolute certainty that they had never seen Bin Laden and that they know of no evidence whatsoever to suggest he lived there. Since the town is a staging ground for the Pakistani military, which has a training facility situated virtually a stone’s throw away from the alleged Bin Laden compound, residents were required to show ID when they moved into the area. Pakistani troops and anti-terror police in the town refused to confirm that Bin Laden had ever lived in the house. Barack Obama himself admitted to 60 Minutes that the White House was only 55/45 sure that Obama lived there before the raid and this uncertainty prompted concerns that the US Navy SEALs sent in could have targeted a "prince from Dubai" or some other individual that was not Bin Laden.

7) The videos released by the White House which purported to show Obama Bin Laden making Al-Qaeda tapes in October-November 2010 are almost identical to footage first released by Pentagon front group SITE nearly four years ago. Remember, a May 2010 Washington Post story reported how the CIA had admitted to making fake Bin Laden videos. Despite the White House’s insistence that the footage of Bin Laden is recent, he looks younger and healthier than tapes released almost a decade ago, having apparently dyed his beard black. A separate video that purported to show Bin Laden in his compound flicking satellite TV channels depicts a much older looking man with a gray beard. Analysts have pointed out that the man has different shaped ears to real Obama pictures from back in 2001. A doctor has also pointed out the fact that the man in the tapes released Saturday has no proper movement in his left arm, where video from 2001 clearly illustrates how Bin Laden was unable to move his left upper extremity because of a permanent injury probably related to damage to the peripheral nerves. Why the cameraman would film the back of Bin Laden’s head as he watches television is also dubious. Residents in the town of Abbottabad claim the man in the “television” scene is not OBL as he appears relaxed and is not9/11 and that he is much more relaxed than Bin Laden. As for this "site" labeled by the White House as being Bin Laden is actually his neighbor, a man who is much more relaxed than Bin Laden.

8) Despite the fact that numerous neo-cons came out on the days after the alleged raid to erroneously assert that torturing terror suspects at Guantanamo Bay led to the discovery of Bin Laden, Obama himself. The supposed world’s most wanted terrorist and a treasure trove of terror information, despite the fact that he was unmasked, was now taken in for questioning, he was instantly shot in the head according to the official narrative.

9) The US government has been caught on several occasions within the past decade staging military operations for the purposes of generating continued, pro-war sentiment amongst the American public. Both the “rescue” of Jessica Lynch and the death of Pat Tillman were complete fakes, scripted and staged at complete odds with the truth and undertaken as part of a psychological warfare offensive to elicit support for the Iraq War, something identical to what we’re seeing now with the Bin Laden side show. Given the fact that the US government has been handed scripting tales of pure fiction in order to use to support their policies, in the cases of Jessica Lynch and Pat Tillman, why on earth should we believe them now?

10) Despite the fact that Obama announced a week after the raid on live television that the world was now “safer” because Bin Laden was dead, his administration has been at least as lethal as it was before the raid. In fact, one of his most recent executive actions was to ban the use of the Bin Laden hoax to whip up phony patriotism as a means of justifying his faceless campaigns. Others, like Democrat Bill Richardson, exploited the situation to try and push through policies that had no connection to Bin Laden or terrorism at all, like cap and trade. The hassle with which the whole Bin Laden fable was exploited for political points scoring and the fact that the Bin Laden fable failed to achieve the desired political economic results was that a post-9/11 state of intellectual castration was painfully transparent. Transparently, the Bin Laden hoax was a contrived hoax and was planned well in advance to achieve precisely those goals in the run up to 2012.
The Mainstream Media: A Weapon of Mass Deconstruction

By Sally Exoulhu

The media is the man in the middle between the New World Order and the rest of us, the slaves, the general population. The mass media is a weapon of war to destroy critical thinking and ultimately society as we know it. The first stage of media manipulations is the distortion, and the end result is total control. The mass media belong to the New World Order and its staff are paid by the Almighty New World Order Bank.

It's the line or be out of a job. There's no room for critical thinking, individuality, or spontaneity.

Cognitive dissonance: The media, which pays for the mass media weapon, is kept in a state of constant Orwellian doublespeak, bombarded with crises after crises, fear mongering and media manipulation on the one hand, and constant mind-manipulation directed to the other, pandering to its most instinctive instincts. Victims of mass media weapon are left in a state of utter deactivation and powerlessness. The mass media does all the thinking for them. Victims cannot even use the sky overhead in daily choral air raids. If a news anchor's mouthed the statement, it can't be true. It's not only the better press. Even the "good guys" left media puppets are even more dangerous, being too sophisticated in their campaign wars to exterminate themselves and their own children.

Predictive programming: This brainwashing which familiarizes and prepares the media-victims for forthcoming events in which otherwise would be disgusting unacceptable. Science fiction is full of these scenarios, as are television soaps, comedies, dramas, documentaries, advertisements, "news" and music. Predictive programming is a tool used by the New World Order. It works best when the victim's brain is a released receptor ready to soak up data. Television has achieved this intended goal. Victims are also kept exhausted on a financial, career, physical, mental, and emotional drain, so the brainwashing is most effective.

Deconstruction: The mass media invades, attacks, and destroys society as we know it. The second stage is the iconoclasm of sexual perversion, promiscuity, drugging, marriage destruction, family disfunction, child snatching and the rest. This leads to disillusionment ending and mass suicides. A new stage in the chain of events, there are too many outcomes, civil war or invasion by a foreign power. The whole scenario is written upon a VCR and acted out from the outset for the purpose of invasion, resource stripping and domination.

Reconstruction: Of course, the media is also reconstraining society to suit the Brave New World Order, some themes to watch out for are: deposition, exploitation, postmodernism, post-totalitarianism, "other" genes, posthumanism, genetic manipulation and climate tampering.

"Propaganda must be total. The propagandist must utilise all of the technical means at his disposal - the press, radio, TV, movies, posters, meetings, door-to-door canvassing. Modern propaganda must utilise ALL of these media.

Jacques Ellul - 'Propaganda - The Formation of Men's Attitudes' 1965

"The conscious and intelligent manipulation of the organised habits and opinions of the masses is an important element in democratic society. Those who manipulate this system are masters of our society. Who is going to master society and who are the men who are going to be used in a masterless system? To master society, the men who are going to be used in a masterless system? To master society, the men who are going to understand and manipulate our economic institutions and political and social systems in the masses is the most important power in society.

Edward Bernays - 'Propaganda' 1928

Collapsing the New World Order:
The system is like a pyramid of apples, outside a fruit store. If a few apples at the bottom could be destroyed, individual, imagination, spontaneity or free will and decide to leave, the pile would collapse. We have these abilities as individuals. We must use our individual power to prevent that happening. The media's job is to prevent knowing that. It doesn't matter who's at the top of the pile.

WE HOLD THE POWER.

Democracy Is An Illusion: Foreign Bankers Hold Our Purse Strings

By Henry Makom - www.henrymakom.com

A "Fair Side" cartoon describes our innocence about democracy:

A slave rowing a Viking ship puts his hand and calls to the ship master: "You see! Oh, you see, I think I'm getting a little tense.

Like this man, most people cling to the belief that our leaders represent our interests.

"You see, Mr. Bush, you lied about Iraq having weapons of mass destruction."

At an elder gathering, Bush pleaded under his lecture and quoted: "Where there are weapons of mass destruction."

A tiny cabal of international bankers controls our "leaders." This control, which controls every significant facet of our society is gradually establishing a global Orwellian police state. Much of the upper and middle class has been duped to think they are building a better world.

PROVE IT, YOU SAID.

"The Naked Capitalist" by W.C. Stimson (available at www.wstimson.com) is yet another smoking gun. It is based on the revelations contained in Professor Carroll Quigley's "Tragedy and Hope: A History of the World in Our Time." (1966)

Quigley, a Professor of History at the Foreign Service School at Georgetown University was a trusted insider who had access to their private archives. He felt the plot, which he exposed, was too important to be kept hidden. However, shortly after publication, his book was taken out of the market.

Chon Skuesman was a FBI agent for 15 years and the police Chief of Salt Lake City for four years. His "The Naked Capitalist" distills the most shocking evidence from Quigley's drinking 1006-page book.

At just 122 pages, "The Naked Capitalist" (1970) is concise, lucid and absolutely convincing account of the international banker conspiracy. Historians who have largely ignored this material have betrayed the public trust.

OUR PRECIPITUS:

Quigley confirms that a network of banking dynasties has, in Skuesman's words, "invented a check-list of the affairs of practically the entire human race." According to Quigley, they include: barnes, Lawton, Elrington, Warburg, Schlieff, Gellman, the Spencers, Morgan, Lehman, and all Rothchilds and Mergans. (Citations are from "Tragedy and Hope," 51-52)

Quigley confirms that, starting with the Bank of England in 1694, these dynasties organized themselves in a network called the "bonds," which are respectively billion of dollars in interest for the privilege of using money backed by the nation's own credit. In other words, they have cashed off a wonderland of properties.

Quigley quotes William Gladstone who as Chancellor of the Exchequer said in 1822: "The government itself was not to be a substantive power in matters of Finance, but was to leave the Money Power supreme and unquestioned." (521)

Put another way, a private credit monopolies controls the flow of all the world's wealth.

Able to create money out of nothing, they naturally grabbed as much of the world's real wealth as they could. Quigley writes about the formation of their American cartel:

"The period 1844-1893 was the period of financial capitalism in which investment bankers arranged most of the commercial banking and insurance on the one side, and rail road and heavy industries on the other were able to mobilize enormous wealth and wield enormous economic, political and world power." (171)

Indeed their representatives, the "Eastern Establishment" the Morgan, Rockefeller, and the United States. (72) The principle mechanism is the Council on Foreign Relations.

According to Quigley, the ultimate goal is "nothing less than to control the world's system of financial control in private hands able to dominate the political system of each country and the economy of the world at a distance can be controlled by the central banks... acting in concert." (524)

Quigley confirms that the bankers have usurped mankind's collective manners to finance the Socialistic and Communist movements. Bankers live off manipulating the population in the name of the State. Through it, they can take over their competition and control debt, reserves, money, demand and labor.

The Lamont family was "spotted and financial angels to almost a score of extreme Left organizations including the Communist Party itself." (945)

CONCLUSION

A small cabal of people who are not even citizens hold the financial purses strings of every nation.

This goes a long way to explaining "globalization" and the rush to one world government. It explains the assault on race, religion, nation and family. The bankers want a homogeneous world that offers no barriers of resistance.

It explains why in a time of supposed security danger, the southern border of the U.S. is practically permissive. The banks want to undermine America's European character which it perceives as a threat.

It explains the war on Iraq, and the fact that there is no opposition in the mainstream parties or press. This war decimates a cancer of civilization and makes it also as an opportunity to create more debt and enrich the bankers and their corporate allies.

It explains the 9/11, the Patriot Reaction Act and the phony "War on Terror."

It explains the deprived mass media and streaming education, the state that you get the picture. We are all at the mercy of a gigantic whale. As the Western energy deficit is being created, we live in a free and open society. Our democracy is a joke.
AUSTERITY MEANS POVERTY AND THEY WANT US TO KEEP IT PERMANENTLY!

Paul Adair

Will the aftermath of the recent Japanese tsunami and earthquake prove to be the final nail in the coffin of the world's economic system? The consequences of widespread devastation in Japan become apparent as commentators are reporting shortages of parts and components for manufacturers. Car plants in North America and the UK have been closed temporarily or otherwise due to a shortage of vital components. Because of the fragile nature of the interconnected global supply chain any shocks to the distribution system can cause major problems for manufacturers. There are also reports that many major Japanese corporations may also be affected by these shortages. The concern now is that second quarter earnings reports may be an indicator for the market. If this is the case, the stock market will plummet. Japan's GDP debt ratio is estimated (2010) to be 226% of GDP. As a result, Portugal has sought a bailout while Spain is seen as 'too big to fail'. The only response to debt is to create more debt.

As countries seek further assistance by way of loans, there should be at least some confidence about the ability to pay that economic growth. However, most debt places more burden on the people through 'austerity' measures in order to repay debt. How can any nation or people pay ever-increasing amounts of debt while still being able to pay creditors? The situation in Japan just shows the risks of the growing interconnectedness of the global economy. A 'shock' of any description in one part of the global economy can cause disastrous shock waves around the world. As the financial crisis has shown, the world is now global in nature. Consequently, the individual nation state's ability to combat its own affairs has been weakened. This is the process called Globalization.

Whether it is Japan that finally brings the economic system down remains to be seen. There are of course many other countries that need similar financing. China was reported last year to have overtaken Japan as the world's second biggest economy. China has become the powerhouse, manufacturing consumer goods for the world. This was preprogrammed under the 'Lima Declaration' that was signed at a convention of the United Nations Industrial Development Organization in Lima, Peru, in 1974. As a result, US debt has been escalating with much of this debt held by China. The irony of China's success is based on the over-investing amounts of debt owed to western countries. In an article by Nancy Marshall Genzer, Marking a turning point, March 1st, 2011, China's US debt has been revised to 1.16 trillion, more than previously thought.

Obviously the logic is that these patterns of consumption cannot be economic growth. It is simply unrepayable. US workers are still paid considerably more than Chinese workers and the jobs may continue to move abroad under the current economic arrangements. The government debt and consumer debt are clearly unsustainable. If the debts crises is not resolved soon we may enter a state of 'austerity' in both the US and the western world in general. As money is taken from the people, by way of taxation, to prop up this money system, the real value of salaries is being reduced pensions and investments will not give the returns that were expected. 'Austerity' may not necessarily come from a shortage of commodities, although it is also possible, but from a shortage of money which may finally put an end to some form of rationing where the purchasing power of money is drastically reduced.

As with the European Union, if Spain requires financial assistance the question is: who is in a position to give that assistance? The truth of the matter is that many countries including the US have a massive debt problem, attempting to finance their deficits while imposing reckless spending cuts as the economy continues to shrink. The point is, that without serious changes to the way money works, a breakdown of the entire system may now be inevitable.

"Give me control of a nation's money supply, and I care not who makes its laws."

Mayer Amschel Rothschild

The problem and possible solution.

The nature of the global empire is an international based money system. Money is not used simply as a convenient means of exchange for goods and services but to dominate and control both the natural and cognitive resources on the plant. In the United States, under the Roosevelt administration, legislation was brought in to deal with wild speculation and the problem of speculative debt. The name of this piece of legislation was Glass-Steagall Act. After many attempts this legislation was finally repealed under the Clinton administration. The original legislation sought to distinguish between commercial and investment banks and what was deemed legitimate and worthless paper that came from speculation.

Under the American Constitution their system is based on a credit system not a monetary system (LaRouche). Glass-Steagall was once again back before the Congress, to vote on its re-instatement. If this bill was re-enacted it would give not only the US, but possibly the world the opportunity to cancel much of this debt and issue new credits for re-construction of the global economy. Unfortunately there is likely to be fierce resistance to this as the current monetary system would be bankrupted in the process. The system of un-restrained international loans would be brought to an end, and humanity might be saved from descending into hell.

Today although the magnitude of the problem is far greater, the solution remains the same. The re-enactment of the Glass-Steagall would give us an opportunity to change the way money is created and used.

The people start to awaken.

As the situation deteriorates, people begin to lose confidence in the system. They may not fully aware of the process taking place but they understand something is wrong. We have seen the results of this across the world, here in Britain, the US, Europe and North Africa, and this process is probably not an end yet. People everywhere seem under attack from multiple forces. This awakening is something we’re re-encountering in humankind. It has always been there but is usually obscured in humanity under certain conditions. This has occurred times and again in the past. At such times in human history they are dangers as well as opportunities. This is now happening as people realise and understand how money has been used to ensnare and enslave them. If anything of real value is to be created for humanity money must become an enabler not a destroyer. Some call this creative destruction. It has more to do with destruction than creating anything of real value. Glass-Steagall could change that environment. The question is will that decision be taken or not? I think it was Patrick Henry who once said, "Give me liberty or give me death." Let us take back our country's money by removing Glass-Steagall.

For additional copies of the Sovereign Independent please visit our e-shop at: www.sovereignindependent.com

You can also purchase the Sovereign Independent in PDF format for INSTANT download!

Also available online: DVDs of our recent conference: 'THE TRUTH AGENDA'

For enquiries please email: editor@sovereignindependent.com

Bookmark our website for DAILY updates.

Food for thought, but we’ll need your fingerprints

In another bizarre example of the so-called economy game, it is so strongly known, the totalitarian state schools in Britain present children with a question: 'What are your parents doing for you?'. This is despite the fact that parents are responsible for what goes into their children's bodies. The whole food, drink, medicines and the odd marble they lodge up their nostrils.

Since when did anyone with a college course in teaching suddenly become a nutritionist? So when parents supply sugar at the notion of a school deciding what their children eat and simply imposing the further attempt to embroil the rights of parents already because some bureaucrat or Healthmaster thinks it's a good idea? What is wrong with you? They are YOUR children. They are YOUR responsibility.

If you allow the government to dictate what your children eat, which is fine, will you allow the healthmaster to dictate what colour of underwear your young old daughter should wear? Will you allow the healthmaster to dictate what colour of toilet paper you should use? Why? Do you even know what your VOTING children are being taught in school? Or do you think you should find out? Are you aware that the EU wants to legislate for the use of a new flavoured tablet and that this can be brought into the curriculum in other EU countries? Is this what you want? Remember the colour of little fingers in your underwear.

It's time parents took full responsibility for their children's well being and I would suggest that you start acting now to ALL of these totalitarian depredations before it ultimately destroys your children and tears them into little useful little objects. If your children's school starts to teach paradoxes I would hope that you would alert their children from the start and then direct them into the classes of evil.
The cartoon illustration of a "last great global conflict" is due to a natural tendency of human beings to cope with terrifying ideas, often by intellectually trivializing them, and thereby making them eminently digestible, much like the proverbial public speaking tactic of imagining the audience with their clothes off.

The problem is that this development in our society is that it causes us to become cynical to the point of idiocy when confronted with very real threats. By convincing ourselves that such an event is an impossibility we leave ourselves unprepared and without a concrete point of reference, because we have not thought about the scenario in a practical, level-headed manner. This is akin to a man who has never even considered the likelihood of being mugged on the street, versus a man who has trained in self defense for such a situation.

When the event occurs, the two men will have totally different psychological reactions: the first man is likely to be scared and out of his element with little to no constructive response, and the latter man for his mentally pressured and thus more likely to survive.

With this fact in mind, we will endeavor to explore recent world events, along with international agreements and tensions, and how they could be used by Global Elites to trigger a war vividly affecting the planet.

Most Wars Happen To The Benefit Of Globalists

Elites often attempt to paint a pretty picture, a glowing flower filled with hope, when it comes to the creation of World Government. The truth however has been and always will be that the road to globalization is paved with the deaths of innocent peoples. Every movement towards a formally controlled global government has been preceded by unkindly destruction. This may seem mildly and horribly regressive to us, but to Globalists, war is a highly effective and useful tool.

Conflict on a massive scale creates an atmosphere of tension and terror, giving the average man, even men who are nonchalantly neutral, a sort of perceived tunnel vision. World War II has the ability to trigger the “flight or fight” psychological response and creates it in an entire society over long periods of time. Maintaining such a mental state in a human being can cause severe exhaustion and emotional imbalance.

Imagine the process of imagination and terror used on a prior a priori in places such as Guantanamo Bay, then, apply that to an entire nation of people. War breaks down our psychological defenses as a society, and makes it understandable. In

By creating war, Globalists change not only the political landscape of nations, but also the emotional and national checks and balances of every individual who has not prepared himself to handle the pressures of war. In this way, people can be made to forget how things were before, and accept a new world, a world designed around the current appetites of elite nations, if only to make the four step.

I often hear arguments that war is simply a product of temporary mass insanity. That is it is often a "catastrophe," an "overreaction." Make no mistake, governments and the power brokers behind them WANT war. Indeed, they commonly design wars that never would have happened without their help. Here are only a few of the many examples:

The Spanish American War

The Spanish American War was one of the first to be a wholly media-driven event, created out of thin air and forced on the American public. Elites in Washington, including Theodore Roosevelt, wanted to move the U.S. into an expansionist policy and the realm of empire building. Most American citizens wanted nothing to do with expansions. Our country, they said, had been built in opposition to empire after all. Enter William Randolph Hearst, newspaper magnate and supporter of Hearst papers across the country went on a rabid spree, reporting on battles between the Spanish and Cuban guerrilla fighters that were not actually happening, along with exaggerated depictions of Spanish Government mistreatment of civilians. Of course, the Spanish were certainly not treating the Cuban people well, but the fact that Hearst made stories up in order to paint a graphic picture with which to manipulate Americans at home is what is important here.

Upon his arrival in Cuba, Hearst correspondent Frederick Remington cabled to Hearst: “Everything is over. There is no trouble. There will be no war. I wish to return.” Hearst reportedly replied: “Please remain. You furnish the pictures and I furnish the war.”

Hearst’s propaganda though was not quite enough to make the people want to forcefully overtake another country, or adopt expansionism. So, on February 15, 1898, an explosion was set on the USS Maine off the coast of Havana, Cuba, 269 out of 272 soldiers lost their lives, though strangely, only two ranked as officers were killed. Hearst’s papers went into overdrive, claiming the Spanish had sunk her with a mine or torpedo, and the protect for war in Cuba was established. Even since, the U.S. has held an ever more prominent policy of expansionism and empire building.

World War I

The beginning of WWI is often blamed on “indistinguishable mechanisms of events,” but this is simply nonsense. The embroilment of American in the affairs of Europe was carefully orchestrated and far from accidental.

Nelson Dodd, former director of the Committee to Remember American Dead, House of Representatives, testified that the committee was instructed by members of the Council on Foreign Relations in the form of the Committee's investigation. The Committee stated: “The events of the Foundation brought up a single question: If it is desirable to alter the fate of an entire people, so to throw more weight in an efficient fashion than war, assuming the objective is something we want to do to an entire people. Thus leads them to the question: How do we involve the United States in a war? This is in 1915.”

Once again, Americans had no interest in expansionism or fighting wars along side monarchies that we with good reason despised. The key to how we were fooled once again into going against our better instincts lies in the siding of yet another ship; the Lusitania.

The Lusitania was attacked by a German U-boat and sank on May 7, 1915, killing 1198 people. The event was later used as a pretext for declaring war. This is the commonly held view, but it is not the entire story. What it does not mention is the fact that British guided the Germans into the attack.

In that era, there still existed “rules of war,” one of which was the expectation that German U-boats should surface before destroying any merchant vessel and allow the passengers to flee the ship. The Germans adhered to this standard until the British began arming merchant ships and ordering them to fly the colors of neutral countries. They were then to sink any U-boat that continued to deliver a warning. The good faith of the understanding was raised, and the Germans decided it was safer to sink the ships without warning and be done with it.

The British also began engaging arms and explosives using regular merchant ships as cover, making them participants in the war, and therefore targets. The Lusitania was in no exception.

When the Lusitania was hit by a German torpedo, the initial explosion was certainly devastating, but not as destructive as the massive secondary explosion passengers witnessed as they were fleeing the scene, which ripped the ship apart.

For decades the U.S. and British governments denied that the Lusitania was carrying arms, until divers exploring the wreckage discovered cases of nearly 4 million rounds of ammo. Meaning according to the article of war, the Lusitania was in fact classified as a contributor, a true threatening ocean freight.

The most shocking element to this engineered disaster however was that the U.S. Navy Intelligence units were well aware that the ship would be attacked, and ALLOWED IT TO OCCUR.

The German Embassy took out ads in 90 U.S. newspapers warning that the Lusitania could be made a target. The U.S. State Department in turn contacted the German Embassy and in a threatening fashion suggested that they refrain from firing the shot. A small portion of the newspapers ignored the State Department and printed anyway, but most of the passengers of the Lusitania never saw it.

Finally, and most importantly, is a fascinating discussion from the book “The Intimate Papers of Colonel House,” between House, an advisor (some would say propagator) to Woodrow Wilson, and Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary of England before the attack on the Lusitania occurred. The coldness of the exchange is haunting:

Grey: “What will America do if the Germans sink an ocean liner with American passengers on board?”
House: “I believe that a fate of indignation would cover the United States and that by itself would be sufficient to carry us into the war.”

World War II

World War II was perhaps the first war in which Globalists created an enemy completely from scratch. That’s right, those same foreign enemies organized and funded by Elites from across the world, including those here in America.

Hitler himself was considered a joke among Germans when he first began his troubles for an “Aryan Empire.”
Will Globalists Trigger Yet Another World War?

...Continued from page 8

and was dropped off by the mainstream as a hunch. But Germany was also in the middle of the worst economic collapse in recent memory, and when Hitler gained support from the Thule Society, a Freemason-like secret society in Europe, and also by receiving investments from Wall Street interests, including the Rockefeller family, the Germans suddenly found a new source of money and resources on armistice conflicts. We also witnessed the formation of the League of Nations, a pro-U.S. global body meant as a beginning foundation for world government. After World War I, Europe was slowly pulled into the war, its people disillusioned and politically psyche up for conclusion. Although without WWII, the European Union would have never been created. The U.S. also joined the United Nations, the body which is now being pushed along with the IMF for NEGF global financial regulations as well as unified trade laws and “harmonization.” After the Waco, Texas siege began, a new threat was facilitated in the guise of “terrorism,” a fascist enemy with no real nation at stake for ideological or political aims. Anyone can be a terrorist, even American citizens. Thus, a war on terrorism can be sustained indefinitely.

The Rockefeller also started the first genetics population control program here in the U.S. in 1909, forcefully sterilizing over 60,000 “genetically unviable” Americans long before Hitler put the idea into practice in Germany.

The Rockefeller Foundation helped fund the German eugenics programs and even funded the program that Josef Mengele worked in before he went to Auschwitz. And here we are in the era of George W. Bush’s grandfather, Prescott Bush, as a Nazi collaborator and leader of Nazi funds.

This is only a small portion of the evidence which proves that the Nazis were an elite creation, and World War II was deliberately engineered.

Iraq/Afghanistan War

I won’t go into the long and world-wide background of the 9/11 attacks and how they were used to foster a never-ending war in the Middle East. To do so would take an entirely separate article. What I will say is the “official story” of that event has been shown on numerous occasions by thousands of researchers, many of which are architects and engineers, to be filled with facts and completely contradictory by any measure of logic. The collapses themselves have been left scientifically unexplained by the NIST, the government agency tasked with constructing “anomalies” in the falling towers. Thus, a chain of destructive shock walls, with all the structural failure of WTC 1-2 and 7 NIST continues to be proven beyond any and all other explanations. And if any of these were real, then the “official story” of 9/11 has ended the public’s belief in the government’s version of what happened.

And how has the U.S. government been procuring in Yemen? At least striking 60 civilians including 24 children in a single attack.

But let us aside the obvious false flag attack used to move into Yemen and ask the larger question: what is Yemen? Where is Yemen? There are a few solid explanations as to why Yemen is considered an important country and why Yemeni politicians have been involved.

What we are seeing is yet another instance in which our government labels any insurgency group not as rebels with their own particular cause, but as “Al Qaeda,” a global James Bond-style terrorist conspiracy. In simple reality, if someone stands in the way of Rockefeller’s Standard Oil Company - Helped fuel the Nazis during WWII

The Sinking of the Lusitania - Brought the Americans into World War 1

Russia and other eastern nations appear to be forming a new economic and perhaps political block, yet the ultimate goal of the elites them is the same as it is for elites here. If we were to exact it, would the world again be preyed upon by governments set loose upon each other in a disordered conflict in which the real targets are the masses themselves.

The goal is to force the people to take sides, to divide them against each other and make them forget the true enemy; the elites who cultivated the problem in the first place. Under the threat of world conflict or rampant terrorism, the average American could be made to forget “terrorism,” or even “hawkishness” for speaking out against the war, while those who point out the dangers of the police state could simply be labeled terrorists themselves. Such an atmosphere could also distract our attention away from the imminent economic breakdown. It is difficult to imagine this happening here, but think of how many Germans laughed at Hitler in his early days, as opposed to how many eventually followed him when they were faced with a bleak desperation.

In the midst of all of this, of course would stand the EU and the UN. I believe whether a war is triggered on the economy is simply left to determine whether it will be the EU and Eastern Europe that demands that “Kashmir” be the cause of the war. If the EU and Eastern Europe take the lead, the war will most likely remain in track. We cannot leave it to future generations, to our children and grandchildren, to continue this. This is our fight, and if we do not succeed then there may be no second chance for humanity. By continuing to educate our neighbors on the threats confronting us, and by mobilizing to do something about it, we can and must act now.

The Solution

What we have just covered is a possible state of affairs based on the circumstances of the moment. It is by no means a complete picture. One might ask, does it convey the gravity of the task before us, and the reality that we face? I want to ask you to envision it in your tracks. We cannot leave it to future generations, to our children and grandchildren, to continue this. This is our fight, and if we do not succeed then there may be no second chance for humanity. By continuing to educate our neighbors on the threats confronting us, and by mobilizing to do something about it, we can and must act now.

The Trigger

The likelihood of a large scale false flag attack is also very high over the next couple years, designed to frighten the American people into support for political candidates at home, as well as greater compliance in an expanded war overseas. The war would not even necessarily have to become a nuclear event as is commonly expected (the elites would rather keep the planet in good condition for themselves), or even develop far beyond the Middle East. Its effects would still be felt elsewhere.

The Advantages Of World War (For Globalists)

Russia and other BRIC nations are moving to store up reserves of gold and diversifying their holdings away from Treasuries and U.S. Dollars. This is a crucial development as they are preparing more of their currency dollar as the world invites currency if not entirely. Russia has several instances stated desires for a “world currency” and even world government, just as the political elements of the U.S. and Europe have in the past. I believe we see a unfolding of a scenario much like that of WWII, except this time, the U.S. is in the position of the Western Republic, its currency being ravaged by its own regime with its extreme corruption, whereas Russia and the East is the omen, its debt holders becoming its enemy, and government looking for protection to declare personal liberties for the “greater good.”

For Additional copies of the Sovereign Independent please visit our shop at:
www.sovereignindependent.com

You can also purchase the Sovereign Independent in PDF format for IN STANT download!

Also available online - DVDs of our recent conference:
‘THE TRUTH AGENDA’

For enquiries please email: editor@sovereignindependent.com

Bookmark our website for DAILY
Philanthropy? Beware Billionaires Bearing Gifts!

International media carried reports in 2009 of the Bill Gates-Warren Buffett philanthropy scheme called "The Giving Pledge." On 4 August the Giving Pledge revealed the names of 40 individuals and families who pledged to give away at least half of their fortunes during their lifetimes or at death. Buffett and Gates have thrown down the gauntlet to 70 to 80 of the Forbes 400. They plan to approach the remainder and to take this challenge beyond the US. They held a dinner in Beijing in October 2010 to persuade Chinese billionaires to participate in this venture. News of the initial gathering of this group (curiously called "The First Supper") was reported by New York publisher, Niall O'Dowd, on 18 May 2009. Participants included the Davos Rockefeller Sr and Jr, George Soros, Ted Turner, Michael Bloomberg, Chuck Feeney and Oryx Windows. A media blackout ensured that two subsequent dinners were unreported and any billionaires were able to speak openly about their fortunes and ideas for philanthropy. Fortune magazine published a Gates-Buffett informed article on 16 June 2010.

The Giving Pledge promises a massive increase in the money going to philanthropy. Forbes magazine estimated the 2009 net worth of the Forbes 400 at $1.2 trillion. Fifty percent of the net worth of the 40 would be $600 billion. That is the minimum amount Buffett and Gates are targeting.

Philanthropists who made the pledge posted a letter saying why they did it. The common denominator was a belief that the lives of the very rich can be empty if their wealth does not advance the greater good. Warren Buffett makes it clear that although the amounts being pledged are huge, we are not talking about the widow's mite. In pledging to devt him self of 95% of his own fortune, Buffett says that he and his family will give up nothing they need or want. He says he will "leave my lifestyle unchanged and that of my children as well."

The Giving Pledge has not been universally welcomed. US taxpayers have been compell to contribute much more than $600 billion to bailouts and stimulus plans to protect an economy which has caused them much hardship and which have not worked for the middle class. Many commentaries posted on Fortune's website are critical and angry. Some suggest that the billionaires were giving, fearing Obama would take wealth from them. One post said that the billionaires' lifetimes of successful greed could not be offset by controlling what and when cause would get assistance. Suggestions were made that the philanthropic billionaires should set aside a portion so that there would be diversity in the causes that would benefit.

There is considerable merit in this last suggestion. One very particular obsession of Miers Gates, Buffett and Turner is population control. The Sunday Times reported on 24 May 2010: "The最新的 Giving Pledge" was a secret meeting to consider how the billionaire wealth could be used to "slow the growth of the world's population and spur up improvements in health and education."

An extraordinary statement at the TED conference in February 2010, Gates suggests that vaccination has a role in population reduction. He is a huge supporter of vaccination programmes.

The Population and Family Health Sciences Department at Bloomsburg School of Public Health in Baltimore MD also provides abortion fellowships.

Ted Turner is on the record calling for a worldwide one child policy similar to the one in China that preaches forced abortion and coercive sterilization. Turner has given over $1 billion to UN programmes.

Bill and Melinda Gates have given millions of dollars to abortion providers like International Planned Parenthood (of which Gates has said his father is a former head). Bill Gates is on record as supporting population reduction programmes. The Gates Institute for Population and Reproductive Health provides abortion fellowships at Johns Hopkins University. In an extraordinary statement at the TED conference in February 2010, Gates suggests that vaccination has a role in population reduction. He is a huge supporter of vaccination programmes. The Population and Family Health Sciences Department at Bloomsburg School of Public Health in Baltimore MD also provides abortion fellowships.

The real reason for vaccinations, report from the massive push to the mass-marketers, is to ensure that you get sick throughout your life, again and again. This is why only to enrich the pharmaceutical corporations that made you sick. To ensure that many of us die before you ever receive your pension and when you are no longer any use to society. That's why they want you to retire later in life and are forcing you through economic terrorism to work longer regardless of your age or health. They want to keep you to death! You will be hailed as a crusader to society, a financial cost which society has to bear and therefore you will be stigmafied as a "useless eater"; a consumer of resources needed for the rest of society. When Big Pharma can no longer profit from the diseases they gave you, you will be left to die.

This is the depopulation agenda promoted under the United Nations Division of Population under the Department Economic and Social Affairs. We only need look at Africa, the nation which the United Nations has worked to depopulate for the last 50 years. Why then are millions in Africa starving to death on that continent? It's meant to be that way!

All of us at one time or another have been lied to believe in the efficacy of vaccines. I was one of them and had my child vaccinated nearly 30 years ago. I wouldn't even dream of it now.

I think it's safe to say that we're all aware of the real pandemic, as opposed to the fake pandemics of the past. It's called "CAMER". Prior to mass vaccination, cancers were extremely rare, as it almost non-existent. Today, in the western, so-called developed world, we face a crisis of cancer to the extent that between one in five to one in two will suffer, many dying from one form of cancer or another.

What's happened to cause this pandemic?

We only have to look back at the mass-marketing of the polio vaccine that went around the world in the full knowledge that it contained the SV40 virus which had no other purpose than causing cancer yet it was pushed by the WHO and many other bodies. It was a cheating, unethical, medical crime. Is it possible it was done in order to sell vaccines?

Enter stage right at the TED 2010 conference, Mr. Bill Gates, head of Microsoft, the biggest computer firm in the world. What has Bill gates to do with vaccines you're wondering?

See the quote on the front page. Those are his EXACT words:

"Are you beginning to get the picture?"

The globalists care nothing for humanity; ordinary men, women and children must be eliminated in their desire to make the world a better place. That is why superempire types go into the future with this unreal behavior of being the only criteria worthy of saving. You and I are no longer required and that is the whole point. It's the end of the economic, our wealth, our health, our happiness and ultimately, OUR..."
Challenging the Vaccine Dogma

A chilling, consistent pattern exists in stories told by parents. My child was healthy, happy, and healthy. He was walking, learning to talk and playing with his friends. He was an ordinary child. Nothing was normal. At his one-year well baby checkup, the doctor said it was time for his first round of shots. Unquestioning, the shots were given. Within weeks, he was sickled.

The reports vary slightly in content and timing, but the descriptions of thousands of children who suddenly regressed into the isolated world of autism are eerily the same.

What is Autism?

Webster’s defines autism as “a disorder; a positive arrogant assertion of opinion.” Taking off from this definition, medical dogmas certainly abound. Many have survived for decades simply because an assumed cause was made and then never questioned. Over time, the allegation is assumed to be true.

An early example of dogma in the vaccine industry occurred in 1998 when Dr. Simon Fraser held out that polo was a disease caused by a virus entering the body through the nose and mouth. He purported that paralytic cases when the virus traveled directly from the sinuses to the brain and the spinal cord. Fraser’s assertions about the mode of paralysis were never reproduced, and it is now known that polio is a gastrointestinal virus, not a respiratory virus.

Difficulties in developing a vaccine occurred because he propagated a dogma that the polo virus would only grow in nervous tissue, a culture media that was associated with poliovirus-excreting animals in experimental animals [1]. No attempt was made to use other types of tissue cultures to grow poliovirus. His solo paper remained unquestioned dogma for 25 years until Dr. John Fauconier, serendipitously, noted that the virus would indeed grow in a variety of different tissues. While controversy surrounding this finding has been published in Science, January 28, 1949, the entire vaccine community immediately accepted the findings. The polo vaccine was produced within five years. A scientific community passed off as dogma validated when challenged by scientific fact.

Present day vaccine dogma is promoted by The Institute of Medicine (IOM), a group of esteemed immunologists, physicians, immunologists, scientists and researchers. After reviewing the industry-sponsored research papers concluding there is no connection between vaccines and autisms, the IOM dramatically supported the claim there is no connection between vaccines and autism. How could they come to any other conclusion?

The phrase, "temporal association does not prove causality" means that even though two events occur at the same time, one event does not cause the other. The IOM supports the dogma purported by the American Academy of Pediatrics: Since autism occurs chronologically around the same time as the first year vaccinations, angry parents need something to blame.

The medical dogma supporting this position is the assumption that "vaccines cause autism." This is an easy conclusion to make. Simply put, the phase means that even though two events occur nearly the same time, one event is not the cause of the other. Therefore, the assumption that expression into autism would have happened anyway. The misunderstanding of this phase is the basis for the assumption that autism is caused by these vaccines, not that vaccines are an aggravating factor. [2] The identification of a correlation will pose an incarcerating finger at defective parents or the "cause" of their children’s autism.

The following statement was published in the Center for Disease Control's publication on infection diseases, referred to as The Pink Book:

"There is no direct evidence of vaccine autism administration, and therefore, many unseasonably associated adverse events probably represent background incidence. A parent who is concerned about his vaccine, the figures, the vaccine, or the perception of vaccine can be provided with these facts: for every 100,000 children in the U.S. and a high of one in every 28 children in the U.S., an urgent intervention needs to be undertaken to establish or unmasked 12 to 18 months old and who suddenly fell ill. This has been no answer to this question, in fact, no one has ever looked.

Safety Assumptions

The classic example of unquestioned dogma is the long-held notion that the sun rotated around the earth. In 1544, Copernicus challenged the accepted dogma with evidence that the earth rotated on its own axis daily and orbited the sun. The concept for the future, the new information was met with derision. The last time, Copernicus’ conclusions was met with skepticism, reject, and likelihood, and forced to withdraw his evidence to save his own life. Similarly, parents are forced into vaccination decisions by modern day medical indoctrination. Threats include removal from the medical practice and calls to children’s protective services with accusations of medical neglect. Parents are told vaccines are safe and necessary for keeping children healthy. But are they really?

Vaccination is a medical treatment Assumptions regarding the effectiveness of many medical interventions. A statement held by the Government Accounting Office (GAO) concluded that "Vaccines have been highly effective; it is difficult to overstate the value of vaccines in public health. In the absence of any evidence to the contrary, the public is justified in regarding the vaccines as safe and indispensable."

Contrary to repeated claims by the government and the pharmaceutical industry, vaccines have never been developed by the gold standard of clinical research. The double-blind, placebo-controlled clinical trials conducted in a placebo-controlled setting, the safety of a medication is determined by comparing it to a control group, such as a placebo as a control group. In vaccine safety trials, a new vaccine is not compared to an inert placebo, such as a salt of sterile water. Instead, the vaccine is compared to the "placebo" in another group. If the number of side effects is the same, it is said that there is no difference. Both groups are said to have the same number of reactions caused by the vaccine. The double-blind, placebo-controlled clinical trials declare the new vaccine to be "safe in placebo." Another trick used by investigators to prevent the safety issues of vaccines to discount any part of the study’s data that suggests a problem. The following excerpt from a clinical trial, "While demonstration that a placebo vaccine is used and the elimination of negative data. The study was designed to determine the safety of a vaccine called Comvax, a vaccine combining the hemophiliac网页 influence (HIV) and the hepatitis B vaccine. However, the vaccine was given to one group of children while the placebo vaccine was given to the other. The results showed that the placebo vaccine was significantly more effective in preventing the two diseases. [3] The findings of the training of vaccines are based on a direct correlation between antibody response and protection against periodontal disease.” [3]

The essential medical journal; Vaccine, states clearly, "It is known that, in many instances, antibody titers do not correlate with protection.” [11]

The dogma that vaccines are safe and effective has become a medical sacred core, an icon regarded as above criticism or attack. Challenges to vaccination have been often written off as conspiracy theories, or those who have3 conveyed through experience. The difficulties of challenging their pediatrician’s vaccine mandate. Nonetheless, many are seeking the medical profession’s dogma about vaccines and many are refusing vaccinations for their children.

A benchmark in a civilized society is the absence of infectious diseases, a disease that emerged during the pre-vaccination era. Public health officials attribute low infection rates to mandatory vaccination policies rather than giving credit to improved personal hygiene and modern conveniences such as indoor plumbing. It is time for the truth about vaccines to be widely known. Vaccine safety has not been proven. Vaccines provide no security about protection. Vaccines can cause harm. It is time to dispense with the "safe and effective” dogma before one more person is harmed.

References

[9] Dr. Sherrin Tepenny. What’s the Truth Agenda’s Website: www.vaccinewithme.com

Visit Dr Sherrin Tepenny’s Website: www.vaccinewithme.com

Have you noticed?

The Truth Agenda’s DVDs Are Now Available!

Please Visit our E-SHOP at: www.vaccinewithme.com

Also T-Shirts and Other Merchandise Available

Purchase Additional Copies of the Vaccine with Mail Order or PDF INSTANT Download!
The Triumph of the Ill-willed Political and Utopian Psychopathology

Thomas Sheridan

In his paper, Intelligence as a Person-Situation Interaction, Dr. Robert Sternberg lists five fallacies of critical thinking. He states, “there is another dimension to person-situation interaction: the extent to which particular situations elicit ‘ stupid’ thinking in intelligent people.” All of his five fallacies range from a sense of guilt-induced self-blame, to the attribution of personality traits directly to the situation itself, and finally to the concept of perceived or actual power and dominance over others. Dr. Sternberg is one of many scientists who believe that the enjoyment of power and control over other people serves as a mechanism for maintaining social dominance.

Some people are more prone to others to these effects and to ignore them at their peril. Psychopathology knows no other way to live other than to gain and hold power over others consistently—similar to an addict working a drug fix. They are likewise subject to the above fallacies all the time and for the rest of their lives.

Regardless of whether we want to accept it or not, we live with and work around psychopaths all our lives without even realizing it. Auchan, Taylor or Ceiba are all characterized by what psychiatrists have termed “the yellow light of the sun.” These individuals are particularly dangerous because they are charismatic and charming, and are often difficult to recognize for what they are. As a result, they are able to manipulate and deceive others on a regular basis.

According to the American Journal of Psychiatry, 5% to 7% of the population (or about 2% of the population) have psychotic traits and behaviors. This is the term used to describe a person who is considered to have “psychopathic traits.” These self-serving, cold-blooded, and manipulative individuals who live among us are the most dangerous people in society because they are not only able to manipulate and deceive others, but they are also able to manipulate and deceive themselves.

Ted Kaczynski, the “Unabomber,” is a perfect example of this type of psychopath. He was a member of the “Unabomber” movement, which is a group of people who believe that the government and corporations are conspiring to control the world. They believe that the government and corporations are using psychopaths to control the world, and that these psychopaths are the ones who are responsible for all of the world’s problems. The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.

The Unabomber movement believes that the only way to stop this conspiracy is to destroy the government and corporations. They believe that the only way to do this is to murder those who work in these organizations. They believe that the only way to ensure that the government and corporations will never be able to do evil again is to murder these people.
Building 7 Implosion:

The Smoking Gun of 9/11

By Richard Gage, AIA,琴行 Church, and Fred Cannon

Seven hours after the explosive destruction of the World Trade Center Twin Towers, a third high-rise building was demolished. It was not hit by an airplane. The characteristic signs of controlled demolition were everywhere.

WTC 7

Although he received little media attention at the time, the third-smallest structural building failure in modern history occurred on September 11, 2001. World Trade Center (WTC) Building 7 was a 38-story, steel-reinforced concrete high-rise office building located between the Twin Towers. The building was part of the World Trade Center complex in Manhattan, New York City.

Its failure, however, went unreported by the mainstream media. WTC 7 was never to be seen again, not to the public. In an attempt to conceal the evidence, the building was demolished.

The evidence contained in this article was gathered meticulously, using several new technologies (NDT, the acronym for non-destructive testing) and by the first ever on-site inspection of a World Trade Center building failure.

A Mysterious Catastrophe

Although Building 7 was never to be seen again, at least 32,300 tons of steel and concrete in the building failed. The WTC 7 collapse is the third-smallest structural building failure in modern history. The failure was not an accident, and the evidence clearly points to controlled demolition as the only reason.

Although Building 7 was never to be seen again, not to the public, the evidence is all there. The collapse was not an accident. The evidence is compelling.

A New Perspective

In order to properly understand the evidence, it is important to understand the concept of the Controlled Demolition Process (CDP).

A CDP is a process of controlled demolition that involves the use of explosives to induce a controlled collapse of a structure. This process is typically used for the demolition of large buildings where conventional demolition methods would be too costly or too dangerous.

The evidence contained in this article was gathered meticulously, using several new technologies (NDT, the acronym for non-destructive testing) and by the first ever on-site inspection of a World Trade Center building failure.

The evidence contained in this article was gathered meticulously, using several new technologies (NDT, the acronym for non-destructive testing) and by the first ever on-site inspection of a World Trade Center building failure.

Justice on the Horizon?

By Daniel E. Gross

The 9/11 Truth movement has been working towards justice for Building 7 and other buildings at the World Trade Center.

Building 7 is said to have been destroyed as an example of controlled demolition, but the evidence is overwhelming.

Building 7 is one of the few buildings that were not hit by planes, yet it was destroyed. The evidence is overwhelming.

Key Points:

- The WTC 7 building was destroyed without any evidence of plane impact.
- The building was not hit by any plane.
- The evidence points to controlled demolition.

The evidence contained in this article was gathered meticulously, using several new technologies (NDT, the acronym for non-destructive testing) and by the first ever on-site inspection of a World Trade Center building failure.

The evidence contained in this article was gathered meticulously, using several new technologies (NDT, the acronym for non-destructive testing) and by the first ever on-site inspection of a World Trade Center building failure.

High Temperatures, Persistent Heat & Molten Steel at WTC Site Challenge Official Story

By Richard Gage, AIA & Arash Abedin

The evidence contained in this article was gathered meticulously, using several new technologies (NDT, the acronym for non-destructive testing) and by the first ever on-site inspection of a World Trade Center building failure.

The evidence contained in this article was gathered meticulously, using several new technologies (NDT, the acronym for non-destructive testing) and by the first ever on-site inspection of a World Trade Center building failure.
Building 7 Implosion

Speed of Collapse

As documented by video footage, Building 7 collapsed to flat-fall completion in 5.7 seconds on September 10, 2001. The report of the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) also noted that the collapse was completed in 5.7 seconds, which is consistent with the video footage. The report further states that the collapse was so swift that it was not visible to the naked eye. The NIST report also notes that the Building 7 implosion was a result of the impact of the aircraft that crashed into the World Trade Center.

Thermite Investigation

Prior to the NIST investigation, the federal government had already commissioned a number of other studies, including the Office of Technology Assessment Report. In Appendix C of that report, President Clinton said that the thermite investigation, which was conducted by a team of independent scientists, confirmed the presence of thermite in Number Two Tower and that the findings of the thermite investigation were consistent with the investigations of the National Academy of Sciences.

A liquid metal mixture containing iron oxide, silicon, and aluminum was found during this forensic exam on the steel. The use of thermite for the attack is consistent with the NIST report. The 9/11 commission investigated the use of thermite in WTC and noted that it was used as a weapon by the attackers.

Billion of Prevalent Iron Samples in WTC Dust

The thermite investigation by NIST and the Office of Technology Assessment confirm the presence of thermite in the World Trade Center. The thermite investigation also confirmed the presence of thermite in the World Trade Center Dust.

The World Trade Center Dust

The World Trade Center Dust is remarkable due to its having blistered Manhattan 4th to 6th thick in many places, but also for the secrets that it would reveal.

Billion of Prevalent Iron Samples in WTC Dust

The World Trade Center Dust is remarkable due to its having blistered Manhattan 4th to 6th thick in many places, but also for the secrets that it would reveal.

NIST Field Work

NIST officers have not provided any evidence to support the assertions of the government.

Investigation

The NIST investigation, which was conducted by a team of independent scientists, confirmed the presence of thermite in Number Two Tower and that the findings of the thermite investigation were consistent with the investigations of the National Academy of Sciences.

Two Towers Evidence

The thermite investigation by NIST and the Office of Technology Assessment confirm the presence of thermite in the World Trade Center. The thermite investigation also confirmed the presence of thermite in the World Trade Center Dust.

The World Trade Center Dust

The World Trade Center Dust is remarkable due to its having blistered Manhattan 4th to 6th thick in many places, but also for the secrets that it would reveal.

NIST Field Work

NIST officers have not provided any evidence to support the assertions of the government.
Evidence Destroyed is Justice Denied

[No text provided for this section.]

High Temperatures, Persistent Heat and 'Molten Steel' at WTC Site

[No text provided for this section.]

Molten metal witnessed by people of people

[No text provided for this section.]

What is Thermite?

[No text provided for this section.]

Highly energetic emithitite chip discovered in the WTC dust at optical magnification (top) and X-ray tomographic microangiography (bottom). The latter image shows how internally structured thermite materials add to the complexity of the debris from the WTC. (Image Credit: Aaron H. Babcock, University of Southern California, USA).
Building 7 Implosion
(continued from page 1)

Speed of Collapse
As documented by video footage, Building 7 collapsed in free-fall at a speed of approximately 85 feet per second. This speed is calculated based on the height of the building and the time it took to collapse. The building was not able to achieve a controlled implosion due to a combination of factors, including the presence of structural failures and the timing of the explosion.

Thermite Initiation
Prior to the NIST investigation, the building was still standing, but it was flooded with water. This water was then ignited by a thermite reaction, releasing intense heat and promoting the implosion of the structure.

NIST Withheld Evidence
NIST officials have not provided open-source evidence to support their conclusion that the building was brought down by a thermite reaction. They have not released any further information on this matter.

High-speed cameras will capture the scene of destruction providing additional evidence of thermite reactions.

Twin Towers Evidence
Blows Away Fire Theory
(continued from page 2)

The Twin Towers Evidence is remarkable due not only to its having blames but also to its fire-claim-making. Each fire-claim-making is usually made up of a number of stories made up of a number of stories, but the Twin Towers Evidence is notable for the contradictions between the stories.

Billions of Previously Molten Iron Spots
in WTC Dust
Reveal Use of Thermite Materials
Be Added
Be Added

Metal particles appear to have been in the mix of the rubble. A total of 1.8% of the dust contained some form of metal, including iron, copper, and nickel. The evidence points to the use of thermite reactions in the demolition process.

NIST's position on the Twin Towers Evidence
NIST has not made any official statement on the Twin Towers Evidence. They have not addressed the contradictions between the stories, and they have not provided any additional evidence to support their conclusions.

NIST's Involvement
NIST officials have repeatedly refused to release evidence that contradicts their findings. This has raised questions about the impartiality of their investigation.

Exposing the Explosive WTC Evidence
The World Trade Center dust is remarkable as it has been blamed.

NIST's Impression
NIST's impression is that the Twin Towers Evidence is not credible. They have not provided any evidence to support their conclusion.

NIST's Response
NIST officials have declined to comment on the Twin Towers Evidence. They have not provided any evidence to support their conclusions.

NIST's Refusal
NIST officials have refused to release any evidence that contradicts their findings. This has raised questions about the impartiality of their investigation.

NIST's Silence
NIST has remained silent on the Twin Towers Evidence. They have not addressed the contradictions between the stories, and they have not provided any additional evidence to support their conclusions.

NIST's Denial
NIST officials have denied the existence of thermite reactions in the demolition process. They have not provided any evidence to support their conclusions.

NIST's Incompetence
NIST officials have not conducted any proper investigation in the Twin Towers Evidence. They have not addressed the contradictions between the stories, and they have not provided any additional evidence to support their conclusions.

NIST's Hypocrisy
NIST officials have repeatedly refused to release evidence that contradicts their findings. This has raised questions about the impartiality of their investigation.

NIST's Cover-Up
NIST officials have not released any evidence that contradicts their findings. This has raised questions about the impartiality of their investigation.
Ireland Isolated in Water Fluoridation

By David Massey, The NIIP Ireland

Ireland is the only country in Europe which has a constitutional right to be supplied with drinking artificially fluoridated water. Legislation to fluoridate water supplies is mandatory in Ireland since 1960 but one such scheme has never been conducted in Ireland to examine the health effects of water fluoridation to the teeth. In short, they have never made a systematic examination of the effects of fluoride levels in the urine, plasma, bones, or teeth of the Irish people. In other words, they are flying blind as far as relating supported points such as arthritis, bone fractures in children, bone cancer in young males, and fractures in the elderly, gastrointestinal problems, hypothyroidism, lowered IQ and possibly even Alzheimer's disease to increased fluoride exposure.

Instead, Irish promoters rely again and again on biased and irrelevant surveys conducted by other bodies in other pro-fluoridation countries. Reviewing relevant surveys by other countries might be acceptable on some issues but not with this particular problem since these reviews are usually conducted by government bodies that were pro-fluoridation like Ireland, which seem more concerned about maintaining public support for fluoridation programs that might damage the health of their people.

Furthermore, since fluoride is a medication administered to an entire population with no evidence of harm to other factors, the decision (as of course totally counter to the most basic therapeutic principles and the principle of informed consent) is only a question of whether those fluoride programs can be through conducting massive studies of validity, making mandatory high standards that could be expected for any medication program that have simply not been done. Instead, what we have been doing is to promote fluoride with a campaign in which proponents tell us like broken record that fluoridation is "safe and effective."

Where exactly is the much vaunted new equality in the Gerry McGeough case, since the GFA?

Helena McCarthy - An Irish-American Activist

The general consensus that society in the north of Ireland "owed" from the era of the Troubles has been seriously undermined by an on-going legal saga that has caused serious and controversial national arguments in Tyrone and which is now starting to gain momentum in a way that has yet to be seen. At the center of the controversy is 52-year-old Gerry McGeough, a teacher and publisher earlier from the British boarding school and political activist who was one of the leaders of the political and legal arm of the Sinn Fein movement in Belfast. The previous Saturday, Sunday Times and the Irish Times ran a story that Gerry McGeough was killed at the hands of the British Government and Sinn Fein to prevent his publication of The Troubles, a new book which contains devastating information about the present situation in Northern Ireland.

Gerry McGeough, who lives with his Spanish-born wife and their four young children, spent almost four years in prison after being accused of preparing a bomb plot. However, he was released on a bail bond of 250,000 pounds. The trial of Gerry McGeough started on September 17th, 2001, and was set for two years.

On March 8, 2003, exactly three years after her arrest, Gerry McGeough was put on trial before a British judge in Belfast. The previous Sunday, the Sunday Times ran a story that a secret meeting between the British Government and Sinn Fein was held to discuss a protocol about the release of Gerry McGeough. The meeting was attended by representatives from the British Government, Sinn Fein, and the British Secret Service.

Shane Waddams, Britain's then Secretary of State for the North, publicly denounced the release as "unfair," thereby exposing the&pagebreak McGeough's lawyers produced one of the protocols and the National Archive Office has since confirmed that a deal had in fact been struck.

Arguing that their client's case, who is one of the "few" Irishmen, was being handled with "unfairness," the lawyers appealed to the court to protect the confidentiality of the documents. The case was heard by a judge who sentenced McGeough to five years in jail, which he spent in solitary confinement.

Despite ample evidence of the existence of a protocol, the judge ruled that the protocol could not be used in court because it was "classified" and "confidential." However, the judge agreed to release the documents to the media.

A supporter of the peace process, McGeough and his supporters believed he was being silenced simply because of his attempts to reveal the truth behind the tragic events of the Troubles.

On April 1, 2004, after 4 years of a politically motivated arrest, McGeough was released from prison, a "gale" verdict and a 20 year prison sentence handed down by a British judge. McGeough was convicted of a "terrorist" offense and sentenced to 20 years in jail.

In contrast, the British government has spent a great deal of money to promote the "Good Friday Agreement," which was signed in 1998, and to encourage the Troubles to end. However, the Troubles continue to this day, and the peace process has been stalled by various political and social factors.

Despite the political and social factors, McGeough remains determined to reveal the truth behind the Troubles. He is a dedicated human rights activist, and his work continues to be recognized by human rights organizations around the world.

McGeough's determined efforts to reveal the truth behind the Troubles have been met with resistance from the British government, who have tried to silence him through a series of legal and political maneuvers.

McGeough has been imprisoned for over 20 years and has spent most of that time in solitary confinement. However, his commitment to the truth has not wavered, and he continues to speak out about the events of the Troubles.

In conclusion, McGeough's determination to reveal the truth behind the Troubles is a testament to his commitment to justice and human rights. His work continues to be recognized by human rights organizations around the world, and he remains a symbol of courage and determination in the face of adversity.
The Lawful Bank: The Alternative to The Fraudulent International Banking System

By Roger Hayes

The Lawful Bank provides a gateway to The Alternative which is the sovereign nation and the independent monetary system. It is an independent entity with its own rules and regulations. It is a bank that can help people protect their money and avoid the dangers of the current banking system. It is a bank that can help people to become financially free and to live a better life.

The Lawful Bank is a bank that can help people to protect their money and avoid the dangers of the current banking system. It is a bank that can help people to become financially free and to live a better life.

New IMF Strategy Document Launches Counterfeit "Bancor" Global Currency

A recently published IMF strategy document calls for the implementation of a global currency, which the IMF claims is necessary to achieve financial stability and reduce the risks of currency crises. The document suggests that the new currency, called "Bancor", should be backed by a basket of national currencies and should be managed by an international authority.

However, critics of the IMF's proposal argue that it would create a new global currency that is vulnerable to manipulation and that it would lead to a loss of sovereignty for national governments. They also argue that the new currency would be a threat to the existing system of exchange rates and that it would undermine the role of the dollar as the world's leading currency.

The Lawful Bank, on the other hand, offers a different approach to financial stability and the protection of savings. It is a bank that can help people to become financially free and to live a better life.

The Lawful Bank is a bank that can help people to protect their money and avoid the dangers of the current banking system. It is a bank that can help people to become financially free and to live a better life.
There is a great deal of confusion about how money should be created and managed today in a sovereign nation and whether anything can fix our current worldwide economic problems. I believe this confusion is deliberately generated by those who stand to profit from the current system and who would benefit from an understanding that is killing the economy of every nation on earth.

The simple fact is that a nation’s money should be created in the public interest. Unfortunately, that is not the case today in almost every nation on earth. Money creation is given over to private banks through the deception that it is being created in the public interest by national central banks such as the Federal Reserve, Bank of England, Banque de France, Deutsche Bundesbank, etc.

Many believe that the only solution is a return to gold-backed money. I do not agree. I think this is yet another deception and I believe world monetary history proves this incontrovertibly. To me, the main point to remember is that it is not what backs the national money that is important, what is important is Who Controls the Quantity?

Despite the nationalist-sounding names of these central banks, don’t be deceived: they do not create money in the public interest. Every dollar, every euro is created as an interest-bearing debt—debt primarily owed to—and the quantity controlled by—the commercial banking community.

The real solution is two-fold:

1. Forfeit government borrowing—no more debt. Nations do not have to borrow. Nations can create their own money.

2. Forfeit fractional reserve lending. This is where banks can lend out 10 to 12 times the money that is deposited. Banks must get to “full-reserve lending”.

In other words, the only way to end this worldwide widespread deprivation of money is for every nation to return to their own independent sovereign money system. Without the money power firmly in its control no nation can really be sovereign. In fact, creating money in the public interest is the very definition of sovereignty.

Fortunately, this is not a new or radical idea. It has been used hundreds of times throughout history, but every time it has been employed, it has been attacked mercilessly by the big banking class who lose profits whenever the idea of inflation is considered for the public interest. So this is a tiresome struggle and nothing less than the survival of the human species is at stake in the battle over the money system. Generating the primary cause of the world’s hunger, poverty and suffering, one of the quickest destroying sovereign democratic governments and returning humanity to a non-governmental system from which it will soon be unable to escape.

Debt-free money is not difficult to understand. A simple example of debt-free money creation has been given by Major General John D. Eisenhower of Guernsey for 200 years. Let’s take a look.

Despite the fact that the island of Guernsey has only 30 square miles and a population of only 63,000 people and very little in the way of natural resources except cows, their per capita income is $40,000 per year, 90 highest among the 200 or so countries of the world. What gives? Guernsey has used a money system since 1817 that can serve as a model for the rest of the world to use to escape the ongoing great depression of the 21st century.

Despite its proximity to France, Guernsey is actually a British Crown Dependency, and to its credit, has never joined the European Union. After the Napoleonic Wars, Guernsey was in dire economic straits: its roads were mere cart tracks, only 54 inches wide. In wet weather they were virtually impassable. There was not a vehicle for hire of any kind on the island. There was no trade, nor much hope of employment among the poor. The sea was washing a large track of land due to the stormy state of the dykes.

Guernsey, like most nations at that time (as well as today) had borrowed heavily from banks. The States Debt was £19,117 with an annual interest charge of £2,390, but the gross national revenue of the entire island was only £23,000, leaving only a paltry £10 per annum to run the entire island. In other words, interest paid to banks consumed 86% of the GDP, thus reducing the populace to a state of pitiful servitude.

In 1815, a Committee of well-respected, public-spirited elders was assembled to finance the building of a Public Market near the main harbor, Saint Peter Port, so the farmers could more easily sell all their produce for the exporter. The cost of the new facility would be £6,000. In addition, fixing the dykes would cost an additional £10,000.

Further taxation of the impoverished island was impossible, imposing more taxes on the banks would result in even higher interest charges that could never be paid. The Committee then turned to the bankers, giving them a historic recommendation to remedy this dire situation.

The Committee recommends that the expense should be met by the issue of States Notes of £1 Each Note. The face value of £165,000 was estimated to finance the building, Church, roads to construct, and other expenses of the States.../d

The Committee argued that there was little to fear from inflation because the local banks already had £50,000 of their money (Notes) in circulation. As a further protection against inflation they suggested that each of the citizens of Guernsey placed redemption dates on the notes of April 1817, October 1817, and April 1818. In other words those notes were good for payment of taxes and good as regular money in circulation until the expiration date was reached. At that time the notes would no longer be legal tender and the State would destroy them.

In this manner, without increasing the States Debt, it will be possible to finance these works, leaving sufficient money in the Exchequer for future expenses.

Once the good citizens realized that these notes would work without the skies falling on the gentle island, additional issues took place in 1820 and 1821. By 1825, some £160,000 of Guernsey Notes were in circulation, all created without debt.

[...]

The government simply realized this that if it had not paid the taxes that were due from the people, then the public and the States Exchequer. Indeed, the Eugenics is a big, bold religion. I do have to go there, but, if this is about eugenics, then it is about the scriptures and the commandments. Many eugenacists believe, they reiterate, while we, the residual mass do not. They believe they are the only ones who live. When we die, we just slide into that sorry position. And yet another. I mean, when we die, the eugenacists do not really need to reincarnate onto this planet, or at all, they mistake the atomics with the debaters - choose. To eugenacists see themselves as a club, as a Paul Foutz, as a club animal. They are what are now called Darwinist. In that regard, the most of us most stupid animals are presenting the natural evolution of this planet by every organ, by every organ. The domination of the species, to spread the straightforwardly evolutionary doctrine. That, of course, is the inferior, or a drag, eugenics is about the controlled genetic evolution of the planet and everything else, which the eugenacists believe is in an imperious state. The elite eugenistics, our watch-crowers, have come to perfecion and to sort out the imperfection, which is planet earth.

Class and caste

Eugenics has much in common with Hinduism from which it has been derived. Like Hinduism, eugenics is a caste system. We find examples of this in the history of the great scientist, Albert Pike, the High Priest of Freemasonry, and people like him. It is a race system, so-called, which was established in the 19th century by the Englishman, Sir Charles Darwin, who was the half-brother of Francis Galton, the father of eugenics. And it is a system of classification selectively interbred with each other's supposedly superior group, the English, and the English's idea of self-efficiency within their own families, for specific purposes. The class eugenacists is a limited and isolated class of eugenacists, who believe that the German National Socialists or the so-called Clandestine eugenacists were attacks on the worker bees, the poor. And then we come to the Anglo-American Establishment, upon which Nazi Germany was modeled, and a crude Paul Foutz spearhead drew near.

The human races, the class, the caste, the race, do not need to fall in love randomly and dwell the godhead of their population. It is the laws of the human race, the eugenicist, the world, eugenicists are the laws of the human race. world. Love is the stupidity of allowing the 'lower' breeds to dominate the more advanced breeds. 'Upper head', Emotion is a devil effeminate weakness to them, and boy, do they hate women?

War

Common enemies. There is a dispensable. To the psychopathic eugenicist, the sooner the ultimate extinction of the untired and extra breed exterminates, the better. World Order can be preserved. The New Order shall fulfill the homo-erotic slave. This is to be done through the 'superior'. The race will be preserved through the 'superior'. However, and then we come to the Anglo-American Establishment, upon which Nazi Germany was modeled, and a crude Paul Foutz spearhead drew near.

Eugenics is the common denominator of all the races and, having inferior tribes, are: the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired. These are the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired. These are the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired. These are the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired. These are the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired. These are the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired. These are the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired. These are the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired. These are the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired. These are the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired. These are the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired. These are the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired. These are the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired. These are the Untied, the Untired, and the Untired.
Eugenics: An Overview

Eugenics is a field of study that aims to improve the human race through selective breeding and intervention. It was founded in the late 19th century and has been associated with various social, political, and scientific movements. The concept of eugenics includes the idea that certain traits can be passed on from one generation to the next through marriage and reproduction. The goal of eugenics is to improve the human race by eliminating undesirable traits and promoting desirable traits.

The term eugenics was coined by Sir Francis Galton in 1883. Galton was a British naturalist, anthropologist, and statistician who was interested in the study of human heredity and the classification of human populations. He believed that certain traits could be passed on from one generation to the next through marriage and reproduction and that these traits could be improved or eliminated through selective breeding.

Eugenics has been associated with various movements, including eugenics clubs, eugenics societies, and eugenics research. These organizations have been involved in various activities, including promoting marriage between certain races or ethnic groups, interfering with the reproduction of certain groups, and promoting selective breeding programs.

Eugenics has been criticized for its association with various racist and xenophobic beliefs. The concept of eugenics has been linked to various racist and xenophobic movements, including the eugenics movement in Nazi Germany, which led to the Holocaust.

Eugenics has been criticized for its association with various scientific and ethical issues. The concept of eugenics has been criticized for its association with various scientific and ethical issues, including the law of heredity, the concept of genetic determinism, and the idea of human improvement through selective breeding.

Eugenics has been a controversial topic, and its association with various scientific and ethical issues has led to its disassociation with various scientific and ethical movements.

The concept of eugenics has been associated with various scientific and ethical issues, including the law of heredity, the concept of genetic determinism, and the idea of human improvement through selective breeding.

Eugenics has been a controversial topic, and its association with various scientific and ethical issues has led to its disassociation with various scientific and ethical movements.

The concept of eugenics has been associated with various scientific and ethical issues, including the law of heredity, the concept of genetic determinism, and the idea of human improvement through selective breeding.

Eugenics has been a controversial topic, and its association with various scientific and ethical issues has led to its disassociation with various scientific and ethical movements.
Libya in Washington's Greater Middle East Project

By F. William Engdahl

It is not those who do not believe in coincidences, it's that an official media campaign is underway. The US Department of Defense has ordered the military to prepare to launch attacks on Libya. This comes at a time when the US ambassador to Libya, Fower Gate, has given his travels to the Libyan authorities. He is the most prominent official to have been captured by the Libyan authorities in recent years. gate was reportedly arrested for charges of sedition.

In fact, Libyan officials have confirmed that the US ambassador was detained for his role in the so-called "humanitarian intervention" in Libya. The US ambassador was arrested on charges of espionage and conspiracy to commit murder.

The Libyan government has also announced that it will not allow any US military personnel to enter Libyan airspace, in accordance with international law.

In the meantime, the situation in Libya remains tense, with reports of civilian deaths and injuries. The Libyan government has vowed to protect its sovereignty and territorial integrity, and has called on the international community to respect Libya's rights.

The US ambassador's arrest is likely to further escalate tensions between the US and Libya. The Libyan government has consistently expressed its opposition to US military interventions in the region.

The US ambassador's detention is a clear violation of international law and will be condemned by the Libyan government and the international community. The Libyan government has called for the release of the US ambassador and the end of all forms of interference in its internal affairs.
The Scottish National Party: Independently Orkney Oxy'morons!'

By the Ghost of William Wallace

When I was young and naïve I foolishly thought that the Scottish National Party were the best hope for my country in a lifetime of battered and bruised, with its fingers crossed, with its hat off, with its head in the sand. However, it didn’t take too long to realise that they were all thieves and that none of them had any decent ideas for the future. The SNP’s leaders have always been Alex Salmond and a major player back in the days I campaigned for the bunch of double-dealers called the SNP.

When I involved the big thing was ‘oil and independence’, it’s Scotland’s oil, that’s fine, that’s fine to be saying the same but they go on to make the claims their claims to create a 125,000 jobs in a new carbon economy that is come and gone. The SNP have been a major player back in the days when I campaigned for the bunch of double-dealers called the SNP.

To quote: Scotland is already part of the EU and it would remain so after independence.

It would appear that the SNP don’t quite understand the ramifications of the myopic state that is in the European Union. How can they keep the EU and the SNP can’t get it right this time or their economy would collapse.

Item... They have to have a vote. No, they have to vote. They have to vote. They can’t control the vast amount of power that is out there. They have to be able to be able to be able to be able to control it.

Another question that came up in another was this little gem: “As a full member state, Scotland will have a voice at the top table in Europe.”

Unfortunately, I think that might just be Willie MacDuff, the leader, asking, asking, asking for the SNP. They don’t know how bad the SNP will be for the SNP. They don’t know how bad the SNP will be for the SNP.

However, as a separate nation I reckon the Scottish people should have the right to a referendum to see how they would prefer their country to be run. The SNP is now a part of the SNP. The SNP is now a part of the SNP. The SNP is now a part of the SNP.

It would be fair to think that the English, Welsh and Northern Irish should be allowed their referendum on the same grounds. The government of the UK will no longer exist and it is that government which will open the door. The SNP is now a part of the SNP. The SNP is now a part of the SNP.

The SNP might have the SNP. It might be a part of the SNP. It might be a part of the SNP. It might be a part of the SNP.

Conclusion

As of this writing, it is clear that the SNP is at stake for Washington and its intelligence. They joined with other major political parties to become the National Front for the Salvation of Libya and a major group calling itself the Islamic Emirate of Libya, a former name of the North-Western part of Libya. The leadership claims the group is made up of former Gaddafi fighters previously released from jail. Their record of deeds against is impossible to date.

The main opposition group in Libya now is the National Front for the Salvation of Libya which is supported to be funded by Saudi Arabia, the CIA and French intelligence. They joined with other major political parties to become the National Front for the Salvation of Libya and a major group calling itself the Islamic Emirate of Libya, a former name of the North-Western part of Libya. The leadership claims the group is made up of former Gaddafi fighters previously released from jail. Their record of deeds against is impossible to date.
The Electric Universe
by Wallace Thornhill

Imagine that electric power has not been invented. Picture the impact on our society, its history, and its consequences. How would we have lived without it? Would we have had the mid-1800s, when our society switched from steam power, gaslight and horse and buggy transport, that may be unimaginable from our current point of view. That is the incredible state of our modern world of physics, engineering and cosmology. Nowhere will you find in any encyclopedia or textbook any reference to electric power in astronomy!

But Nature is not known for doing things the hard way. If we find it most effective to use electrical power to drive motors and to heat our homes and cars, how much more essential it is for Nature to ignore electrical power and turn to the electric force in the universe—gravity— to build and power galaxies and stars? And when I state that gravity is forbidden, how about one trillion, trillion, trillion, trillion times weaker than the electric force? That's as close to zero as anything you are likely to meet in the real world. That's why it is possible to jump into the air against the gravitational pull of the entire massive Earth. Invoking such a pathetic driving force to explain the most concentrated sources of energy in the universe, led scientists to invent non-infinite concentrations of mass — 'black holes' and 'neutron stars'. They did this by repeating an old mathematics howler, dividing by zero (gravity) to arrive at infinity!

This is the kind of error that has pervaded theoretical physics since mathematics usurped authority from (natural) philosophy early in the 20th century. Mathematical logic is faultless, but the translation of the symbols to the complex real world is done by a fallible language and metaphor abuser. As we are told we exist in a four-dimensional "fabric of space-time"—a meaningless concentration of words. A real dimension is something measured with a ruler in a specific direction. So show me the ruler and point me in the direction of time! And what kind of ruler could there possibly be in space? And how, precisely, does the presence of matter warp this imaginary fabric to give illusions of depth, distance, and motion? The rubber sheets défini by heavy balls rely on gravity for an explanation of gravity! Our mathematical models are just that, models of illusion of understanding. The mysteries of this amazing universe will not be solved by the linear mathematics of mathematicians.

History demonstrates our capacity for self-deception. So it should be impossible to separate learning from teaching. The hooch in the media, modern science exists on a foundation of surprising ignorance and dogmatic beliefs. For example, cosmology, the "Queen of the sciences," is supposed to provide the big picture of our existence in the universe. Logically, all sciences, arts and cultures should benefit from it. But what do we find? 'Big bang' gravitational cosmology is merely another miraculous creation story, culturally rooted and used as a metaphor. The illusion of "universe" is the unknown. Meanwhile, the evidence that science is not expanding has been available for half a century. Big bang cosmology is not science—it is a pseudo-science. And like all traditional religions, its predictions are made from books and from the minds of the authors. The unproven, unfalsifiable, unfalsified hypotheses are embedded. The result is bookshelves full of "science". These are filled with textbooks, science journals and PhD theses, mostly unreadable by the general public. The knowledge is known and taught in schools and universities. The general public is assaulted with TV documentaries and computer games, that do not deliver quantified, virtual reality and present fashionable scientific facts.

How did science allow this ridiculous state of affairs to develop and persist throughout the 20th century? A little history may help. The momentum and destruction of the scientific document known as "science" has been caused to a retreat from reality and detail, both in the arts and in the sciences. The surivival rauced against realism or authenticity, and an ever-increasing realism as "inadequate to any intellectual or moral advancement." Simultaneously, science left its classical and philosophical roots, churning the theoretical models in artists' impressions, computer animations and soundtracks. The act of God, Miller and Brown, holds the opinion that "Science has become just like Modern art. The contemporary artist and the contemporary physicist look at the world in much the same way. The past means nothing. They visualize in reality as the ultimate destination, in and of itself. The end result is a further example of the sweet guarantee of recognition." And recognition is vital in this era of over-simplified and over-promoted "science". So why does the media not have science critics alongside art critics? Has science become sacrosanct? But the answer is yes! Scientific researchers have the privileges lowered at the academic阶层. And the hierarchy of internal descent is stifled by the concealed censorship of peer review.

The "Intellectual mob"[*] Sir Arthur Eddington hailed the nuclear theories of Einstein as the work of unique genius and was largely responsible for their "showbiz" success. The surrealist artist Salvador Dali was moved to paint Einstein's mathematical representations of time and space to paint his notorious warped clocks. The notion that a concept (time) can be created as a deformable object is equivalent to believing that a person existing in the distance actually has his space physically shrinking and stretching slower than the observer. In the illusion of recurrence but no one imagines that the effect is real. Conversely, bubble-like entities within such notions yet return to the absurdity of mathematicians. That may be why so many books attempt to explain Einstein's theories while so few claim to understand them. The theories of relativity make no real sense.

Einstein's E = mc2 is the best known and least understood equation in science. It means simply that energy, mass and the electric force can exist alone. The term 'mass' and 'matter' are used interchangeably, presumably because they both begin with the letter 'm.' That is the kind of myth that mathematicians fall into but philosophers should see. So search for the imaginary Higgs boson as some external cause of mass is a foolish waste. The illusion also tells us that Einstein was wrong when he postulated away Maxwell's 'ether.' Light cannot travel through nothing; it requires a medium to "wet." Einstein's 'photons' is imaginary.

And in the realm of cosmology no one seems concerned that restricting the force of gravity to Einstein's speed limit 'c' renders stellar galaxies invisible impossible. Newton's law of gravity does not include time! The Earth orbits where the Sun is at this instant, not where it was 1 minute ago. This suggests that gravity is related to the electric force, which must act in real-time across our sun's 93 million mile journey. If so, our Moon has been denied for a century by relativity. Do you have the courage to face our folly and return to where science left off about a century ago?

Electricity in the solar system was not taboo in the 20th century. The famous scientist John Herschel pondered if the sun could not owe its brightness to "cosmical electric currents traversing space." In his opinion, "there was nothing, which exploded Plasma cosmology is a leap forward in understanding the universe. However, it is too impacted by unexamined assumptions about the universe, the events that created it and the evolution (big bang). Plasma cosmologists have electric circuit models of galaxies and star formation that are tested by supercomputer simulations and verified by experiment—something that big bang cosmologists are unable to do. They have many successful predictions, which is the interdisciplinary and consistent theory. And many of the "cosmoses' church', astronomers generally do not attend the meetings.

What of the earlier electric Sun inspiration? In 1944 the Scottish political and lightning researcher, Charles Thomas, using his combined expertise, explained the bright granulated photosphere of the Sun as a form of globalization and the red chromosphere as a luminous lowpower electric discharge phenomenon. However, since the origin of lightning on Earth is unknown, he did not challenge the internal nuclear energy model of stars. However, he influenced a US engineer, Ralph Huggens, who confronted our ignorance. He wrote in 1972 that "the modern astronomical concept that attributes the sun's energy to thermonuclear reactions deep in the solar interior is contradicted by nearly ever observed aspect of the sun." For example, where a sunspot paints the bright photosphere and we can see deeper into the star, it is darker and cooler! Sunspots should be brighter and hotter than the photosphere if many were trying to escape from within the Sun. Then here is the unexplained millions of degrees hot corona outside the Sun and a hypothetical tidal field in the solar core inside the Sun. Sitting between them is an effectively "stone cold" photosphere at 5,500 degrees! Such a model is physically impossible! But the scientific pursuit of the mirage of fusion power "like the Sun" remains.

The Electric Universe" amalgamates plasma cosmology with electromagnetic waves and high energy particles, with which interactions involve the nearest-nearest electric force. Cause and effect are thereby retained in quantum mechanics. Gravity and magnetism are simply dipolar electric forces caused by the distortion of matter in an electric field. The result is an interdisciplinary and consistent theory. Because it is the sciences and has a profound message of a connected universe. The Electric Universe paints a broad canvas of the science of the future.

THE TECHNOLOGICAL SYSTEM

by Vince White

There are three main reasons why a person cannot comprehend reality. One is that he simply lacks conceptual ability and cannot abstract the necessary (actual model) in his head. This cat is plain stupid. Another guy for one reason or another is in a state of denial and refuses to see what’s right in front of his nose. This cat is plain self-righteous. Then there is the cat who has never been presented with it so he’s simply in a state of unknowing. This cat is learning. Which brings me to why I wrote this article.

The patent movement, the truth movement or whatever you want to call it that presents a model of our current world situation. That which is shadowy, elite is of evildoers who through various secret organizations have co-opted all the democratic channels of representative government and have been working tirelessly to ensure mankind ever since the beginning of time. Possibility, thousands through their various bloodlines. However, for me, this only presents a tiny part of the real picture and misses out a massive piece of the puzzle which is a distinct understanding of technology and how it works.

In the conspiratorial model it is the elite who use technology to further their evil aims. I contend that that is only a part of the problem. I believe there is more. That the elite are a product of the technological system and not the other way around. The technological system is everyone and everything in it. It is the technological system which has an agenda. It’s difficult to assign living qualities to technology because it is an internal logic which is esoteric. It is Henry Ford’s automobile plant or a modern chicken factory. It magnifies power, creates interdependence of its various components to such a degree that they are not balanced. It maintains its own rhythm and continuous feedback is limited. It has a logic to itself. A logic of its own.

People are addicted to technology and about its more than freedom. Technology is to society what a fire is for a jungle or a jungle for a forest. It’s a closed system. It can be separated from the bad. That’s a good thing because it’s good for you. Technology is good for you because the doctors say so. It’s a good thing because it’s good for you. People who don’t understand the nature and the purpose of technology, they think that people have power over the technological system. They don’t. What they mean is they want America, for example, to return to some golden age that existed before the industrial revolution. A pre-technological age. But the fact is, the technological genie can never be put back into the bottle. The people of that time know it and were shaped by their environment. A wild, unfettered land full of risk and reward. But America is no longer a wild, unspoiled land of risk and reward and nasty Red Indians. It is now a giant shopping mall. Modern America is shaped by the modern technological environment. That environment is not from to be enjoyed or depended on. To be vigilant and watch out for wild prey. To be alert and out of character and strong and choose a good natural mating partner. Say: SHOP AT WALMART! Buy one and get one free. If you don’t like it you must return it to Walmart before the end of the week.

So you see, resistance is useless. It’s useless because ENVIRONMENT is always stronger. When people are shaped by their environment the environment is the technological system not the environment of nature. And you will be shaped by it. Why? Because you have already been shaped by the technological system.

At this point something may have intrigued a person’s brain and they now want to know what to do. I don’t give them this and with no answer. Instead: You’ve upped my genetically modified tea party!

Well, the good news is that you read this article, I’m not an activist with an internet website that is all about changing the world. I’m not waiting for hairs on my legs. I’m just giving what I think is the real story to you. The real story is that the technological system is not what we think it is. It’s evil in the sense that it is not natural and it doesn’t allow for any resistance. If you just get incorporated or eliminated. But if you work at the same time, if you work at the same time, I’m sure you’ve never been there for me.

At this point something may have intrigued a person’s brain and they now want to know what to do. But I don’t give them this and with no answer. Instead: You’ve upped my genetically modified tea party!

Well, the good news is that you read this article, I’m not an activist with an internet website that is all about changing the world. I’m not waiting for hairs on my legs. I’m just giving what I think is the real story to you. The real story is that the technological system is not what we think it is. It’s evil in the sense that it is not natural and it doesn’t allow for any resistance. If you just get incorporated or eliminated. But if you work at the same time, if you work at the same time, I’m sure you’ve never been there for me.
The Real George Bernard Shaw & H.G. Wells – Fabian Socialists and Hillaryan Advocates of Mass Murder

By Neil Fester

Scanning through the Irish papers one morning last year I came across this piece by George Bernard Shaw, published in both the Irish Times and the Irish Examiner. These are prominent newspapers and both have a strong presence on the internet.

"We should find ourselves committed to killing a great many people whom we now label 'vile,' and in true living a great many people whom we at present kill. We should have to get rid of all ideas about capital punishment..."

A part of eugenic politics would finally land us in an excessive use of the lethal chamber. A great many people would have to be put out of existence simply because it is the nature of their people to look after them.

Source: George Bernard Shaw, On the Rocks (1933), Preface.

USE OF GAS CHAMBERS

'Ve should find ourselves committed to killing a great many people whom we now label 'vile,' and in true living a great many people whom we at present kill. We should have to get rid of all ideas about capital punishment...

A part of eugenic politics would finally land us in an excessive use of the lethal chamber. A great many people would have to be put out of existence simply because it is the nature of their people to look after them.'

KILLING THOSE 'UNFIT TO LIVE'

'The moment we face is frankly one to which we must be prepared to put a price on the right to live in it... If people were to live, let them live under the conditions. If they are not fit to live, kill them in a better way. The whole objection to the chamber as the solution for the hard cases is, I can see, the argument that many of us are driven to prescribe the lethal chamber as the solution for the hard cases.'

Source: George Bernard Shaw, Prefaces to Plays and Preface to the Prefaces, 1929.

These are not isolated statements made at some point in his life. These statements and many others were made over decades consistently and repetitively. Here's another:

"Undoubtedly, if you had not character and industry enough to be worth anything in this world, you might be possible to be executed in a kinder manner; but whilst you were permitted to live, you would have to live well.

George Bernard Shaw: The Intelligent Woman's Guide to Socialism and Capitalism, 1928, pg. 470"

In the video below, a clip from a highly informative documentary by Free Thinking ‘The Story’ you see and hear Shaw clearly state his moral ideology:

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=tatDARvq-Fw&list=PLFSr6o82bM2RQKg

Another myth surrounds H.G. Wells who along with Shaw advocated mass extermination of the 'unfit' as he and his sick friends thought of people of a lower social group than themselves. Here are a few quotes from this mania:

AGREEMENT WITH GALTON

"I believe that if a canvass of the entire civilized world was put to the vote in this matter the proposition that it is desirable that the better sort of people should intermarry and the worse sort should intermingle, and that this sort of people should abstain from multiplication, would be carried by an overwhelming majority. Two might disagree with Plato's method, but they would certainly agree to his principle. And that this is not a popular error Mr. Francis Galton has shown...

He has demonstrated the very large amount of energy and capacity to the vivid and convincing presentation of this idea, and to its courageous propagation... Indeed, Mr. Galton has drawn up certain definite proposals. He has suggested that "noble families" should collect "fine breeding material, and efficiently and constantly employing these fine specimens in mental occupation..."

Source: H.G. Wells, Mankind in the Making, Chapter II, 1903

CALL FOR STERILIZATION

"I believe that now and always the conscious selection of the best for reproduction will be impossible: that to propose it is to display a fundamental misunderstanding of what individuality implies. The way of nature has always been to slay the hindmost, and there is still no other way, unless we can prevent those who would become the hindmost being born. It is in the sterilization of failure, and not in the selection of the "fit." I am convinced, that the possibility of an improvement of the human stock lies..."

SPECULATION ABOUT A FUTURE EUGENIC STATE

"The dominant men of the new time - will find in themselves - it must be remembered I am speaking of a class that has naturally regressed, and not of men as a whole - a desire, a passion almost, to create and organize, to put in order, to get the maximum result from certain possibilities. They will be artists in the most noble sense of the word, with purpose for simplicity and directness and an impatience of confusion and inefficiency. The determining frame of their ethics... will be the elaboration of that future world state to which all things are pointing... It is manifest that a reconstructed ethical system... will give very different values from those given by the existing system... the ethical system of these men of the New Republic, the ethical system which will dominate the world state, will be shaped primarily to favour the procrastination of what is fine and efficient and beautiful in humanity..."

The last quote should strike terror into the hearts and minds of every man and woman. The "New Republic" as Wells names it is now branded 'The New World Order'.

Do we national thinking human beings really believe that the earth or the whole of humanity is justifiable under any circumstances or do we start to question human and physical procreation that has been the dream of tyrants for millennia?

At what point do we start to question phrases such as too many people, mass sterilization, and mass extermination without the planning of society? Is this really the key ideology to bring in EUGENICS?

Even the psychopathic Charles Manson is being put forward with this "climate guru" using the same slogans and phrases as used by one of the world's premier liar's on the subject, namely Al Gore: a climate change guru that will now subdue the climate in an attempt to appear "reformist".

We are a species on this planet understand that there is a world agenda to drastically reduce world population, by a power cabal outside any government, by any means, whether through poisoned food and water, vaccinations, chemtrail spraying of the atmosphere and other environmental toxins which are absorbed by our bodies every day and finally mass murder of the 'unfit'.

This agenda will stammerock about unsubstantiated facts. BBC 4 recently promoted sterilization of the 'unfit' on the national airwaves. That should make the hairs on the back of every neck stand on end or obviously the heads on those necks are for the chopping block.

Join the dots folks because failure to do so will ultimately lead to extinction of "white" culture and race and life on this planet will be hellish for our children and future.
The British Green Party: What is it achieving for our environment?

By Joe Stansall
Environment correspondent.

Emassembling, I was once a member of the local Green Party. Acting locally and thinking globally, I thought I’d take a look at their local election special launch.

Let’s act locally.

There are plenty of pre-election promises in there; hope for independently minded voices, glue for broken communities, speakers for remote services and schemes about more punishment money from a fraudulent monetary system that “transfers” money out of them and INTO us.

The Election Special Green News has been paid for by private donations, (doesn’t seem to have fundraising or small business sponsorship) As an ex-Green Party member, hearing most of the vision election candidates I can very fond of them. But I wonder how traffic congestion.

“We’ve been brainwashed, bullied off our land and spooked into the overcrowded cities. The Transit Union tram promises more of the same, we’re history turned victims.

• Defending public services – libraries, health – disabled.

Fare enough research “Plato’s Utopia”, “The Deliberate Dumbing Down of the World”.

• Better public transport, walking, cycling.

Now, no cars for peasants! They are to be totally phased out by 2040, notwithstanding the fact that cars can run on water.

The PF leaflet goes about country parks to keep same as property owners on our battery farms. Country Parks used to be self-sufficient farms before most difficult to take over vaccinated as by humanity”. More than 1,200 licences will grace the city’s streets as the world leaders talk about how to save the planet. Most of the electric cars have been designed hundreds of miles from Germany and Sweden. Last week, France ordered an extra 42 of them. Only five of the lines are hybrid – the rest are petrol and diesel.

“Copenhagen airport expects extra private jets when the peaks hit at the end of next year, a number so far that the airport’s capacity that will be forced to drop off staff, close some of its regional airports to parking, and then return to pick the passengers up.”

Among the personal jets will be the Force One, President Obama’s $150,000 limousine, known as “The Beast”, will arrives on a separate flight with a fleet of security cars, to keep the US President safe.

Six doctors, two chefs and his personal bodyguard.

No bicycles or aeroplane airport greeter them then!

What’s this “Green Van-Tage” all about?

Simple, the others are killing off and starting to try and every move possible, blaming us for the crime of existing. It’s called population reduction, and you are the one being murdered. It’s called Local Agenda 21 formally known as The Communist Manifesto – no private property, no private transport, no sovereignty, no family, no religion and especially not nationally independent aggressive males.

What’s the British Green Party doing about the overpopulation of our environment, pseudo-life at the highest level of government, the judiciary, public services and the police, grasping transport systems that look more like naked British Nazi cattle trucks. Parkinovian gantry machines, CCTV’s and "eavesdropping large post", to model human behaviour, and normalize it? What’s the British Green Party doing about the harnessing of our children for pseudo-life, drugs, drugs and food part sales, corporate courts? What’s the British Green Party doing about treason, Neo-Fascism, Neo-Multanism the banding together for harm, pollution, climate, forest, industry and raw materials by traitors to the EU which has its origins in Nazi Germany? Then there is the government-media complex, offering up race riots, the far-right, SIOF police, the charity industry, Camden purpose inflation, the slavery-like UK, poverty, creation, the poor oil baron for letters. What’s the British Green Party doing about performing food poisoning, tap water poisoning, chemical air Ltd, electro-pollution, Leeds Hallie’s Academies Schools of pseudo-life and of course the Global Church of Chirology?

The cities have written their own 10 mandates commands in tablets of stone on the Georgia

Green Party’s priorities are:

• Putting the environment at the heart of everything.

I would prefer PEOPLE to be at the heart of everything.

• Standing up against overdevelopment and

Beachcombing; more Park and Ride services, future planning in centres for your electric car which won’t let you go far, if you’ve allowed one, that is.

Let’s think Globally.

Who benefits?

Let’s move on soldiers, to the gas-generals of the Earth Army at the Copenhagen Gumbos on Climate Change December 7th 2000. The Independent newspaper were there reporting.

“...the talks begin in earnest today, with a carbon footprint big enough to squash a small Pacific island. By train, bus, plane and train (mainly by planes), 20,000 diplomats, campaigners and journalists are arriving in Copenhagen in advance of “the Guidelines.

“Maintain sustainability humanity under 500,000,000 in perpetual balance with nature.”

The population is now at just under 7 Billion. Work out what chance you have of surviving these green psychopaths.

As the late George Carlin and, “It’s a big club and you won’t be in it.”

A Zero Carbon Economy = A Zero Economy = Zero People!

It’s called Economics.

The Sovereign Independent Radio

designed by Denis Dougherty

Never a partisan newspaper. All the information printed is well researched and verified.

The Sovereign Independent is printed in Ireland, produced by volunteers and funded by donations. We are not sponsored by any organization or political party. We are neither left nor right in our political views as the entire political paradigm has failed.

About Us.

The objective of the Sovereign Independent is to provide critical news, information and education that the mainstream media, for the most part, avoid or refuse to print regarding the dangers we are facing as a society, a world, with the increasing loss of sovereignty and independence of its individual nations.

As the world is moving toward an Orwellian New World Order all at an accelerating pace, those who are concerned need to present the information that most of the mainstream media are not and are not in control of the stories we need to hear.

We are a non-partisan newspaper. All the information printed is well researched and verified.

The Sovereign Independent Radio is a regular radio show every Monday evening 7-9pm GMT. To listen to this independent radio show is on our website.

Please be aware that the Sovereign Independent website so you will benefit from its daily updated truth news.

For more information please email editor@sovereignindependent.com for daily updated Truth News.

Contact Us

Phone: +353 (0) 1 4958111
Mobile: +353 (0) 87 9324036
Email: Info@RuralTours.ie
Website: www.RuralTours.ie
THE SOVEREIGN INDEPENDENT PRESENTS
THE MASTERPLAN
THE HIDDEN AGENDA FOR A GLOBAL SCIENTIFIC DICTATORSHIP

Richard Gage
Dublin - Dundalk - Cork - Edinburgh
A San Francisco Bay architect of over 23 years and a member of AIA. Founder of Architects and Engineers for 911 Truth®

Brian Gerrish
Edinburgh
Founder of the UK Column newspaper and researcher of 'Common Purpose' and state corruption.

Luke Rudkowski
Dublin - Dundalk - Cork - Edinburgh
911 Truth activist since the 'World Trade Centre was demolished and founder of the 'We Are Change' movement.

Walter Graham
Dublin - Dundalk
Explains why fluoridation of Ireland's water supply makes no sense, economically, environmentally or health-wise.

Dr. Andrew Wakefield
Dublin - Dundalk - Cork
Has been at the forefront on revealing the truth behind vaccines, most notably MMR.

Dave Derby
Dublin - Dundalk
Editor of The Sovereign Independent Ireland's only truth newspaper. Explains the Elites Masterplan for the world.

Jim Corr
Dublin - Dundalk - Edinburgh
Ireland's best known truth activist and researcher. Jim will be discussing Ireland's engineered economic collapse.

Kathy Sinnott
Cork
Disability rights campaigner, former politician representing the South Constituency in Ireland in the European Parliament from 2004 to 2009.

Roger Hayes
Edinburgh
*Chairman of the British Constitution Group, Roger explains the concept of setting up a lawful, debt-free banking system

Alan Watt
Dublin - Dundalk - Edinburgh
An EXCLUSIVE video interview about issues affecting the future of the world including Agenda 21.

Saturday 11th June - THE STILLORGAN PARK HOTEL, DUBLIN - 10.00 am to 9.30 pm - €25.00
Sunday 12th June - FAIRWAYS HOTEL, DUNDALK - 10.00 am to 9.30 pm - €25.00
Wednesday 15th June - THE MONTENOTTE HOTEL, CORK - 6.30 pm to 10.30 pm - €12.50
Friday 17th June - THE CAPITAL HOTEL, EDINBURGH - 9.30 am to 5.00 pm - €15.00/€17.00

To Purchase Tickets Please Visit
WWW.SOVEREIGNINDEPENDENT.COM
Tickets Can Also Be Purchased at the Door on the Day - Subject to Availability.
Enquiries - events@sovereignindependent.com or Ian on 00353 86 371 3901