Have you or your friends ever had your motorbike stolen?

Are you fed up of high insurance premiums because you live in a high-risk area around North Bristol?

Would you like to know who we think is responsible and where to find them?

This bunch of little bitches is about to be unmasked...

There's been a massive rise in bike theft in Bristol in recent years, especially in the North Bristol area. The police can't do much about it even though they know who is responsible, probably because there's quite a bit of paperwork and not much return for their efforts. The thieves are often in Court but see it as a game, stealing bikes, ragging them around secluded fields, burning or selling them, evading the police, getting caught, getting a slap on the wrists and then bragging about the whole thing on Facebook or Instagram.

That all leaves a massive paper trail, but until now no-one has bothered to follow this trail and pull it together in one location. We've decided to show you this information so you can decide for yourself whether you think these are the thieves in question, so you can take the necessary steps to avoid them – or to have a word with them about it if you prefer. You know, ask them politely not to steal your bike.

We believe that some form of action other than the usual involvement of Police and Courts needs to take place in order to stop these scum from destroying people's lives. We are not advocating any form of illegal action, although you may feel differently.

The gang of dickheads that are doing this are primarily based around Lawrence Weston and Southmead. They have a number of locations where they go to fuck around on other people's machines before destroying them for a laugh. These are usually small bikes owned by people that can ill afford to lose them, and who suffer a severe impact on their lives as a result.

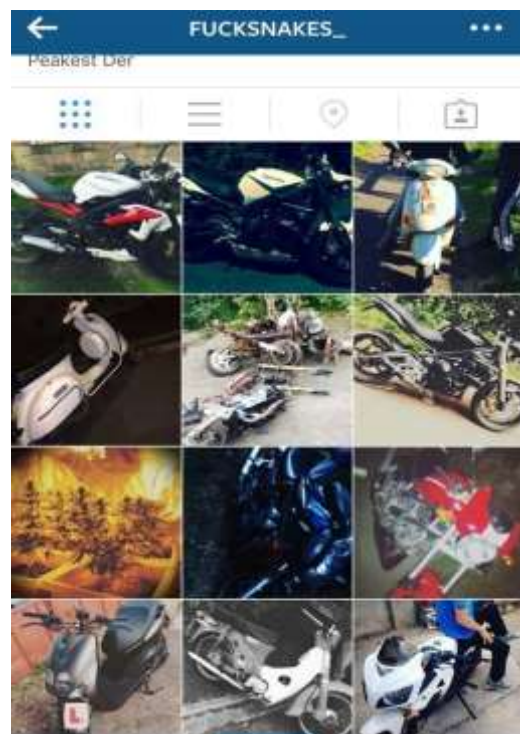

Disclaimer: This document may not provide definitive proof of the involvement of any specific individual, but contains details of the information that we have found in the public domain about people we believe to be involved. It is for the individual reader to decide if they think an individual person has committed any particular crime.

Group activities

The majority of thefts happen within a few miles of Lawrence Weston or Southmead; primary areas also include Brentry, Clifton, Henleaze and Gloucester Road. We believe that one or two people regularly ride around these and surrounding areas looking out for bikes, and that others then go out later to steal them. They primarily seem to go for smaller machines, and carry bolt-cutters to get past small security chains.

They are almost all members of the local buy/sell bikes & parts groups on Facebook. Bikes are either:

- Taken to say the fields behind Lawrence Weston (off Kingsweston Lane / Campbell Farm) or the industrial areas around Severn Beach
- Hidden away in back yards in Southmead then perhaps stripped and sold as parts. Look around garages near Littlemead School
- Dumped and burned in these or other locations such as the old Wayfarer off Pen Park Road or Purdown

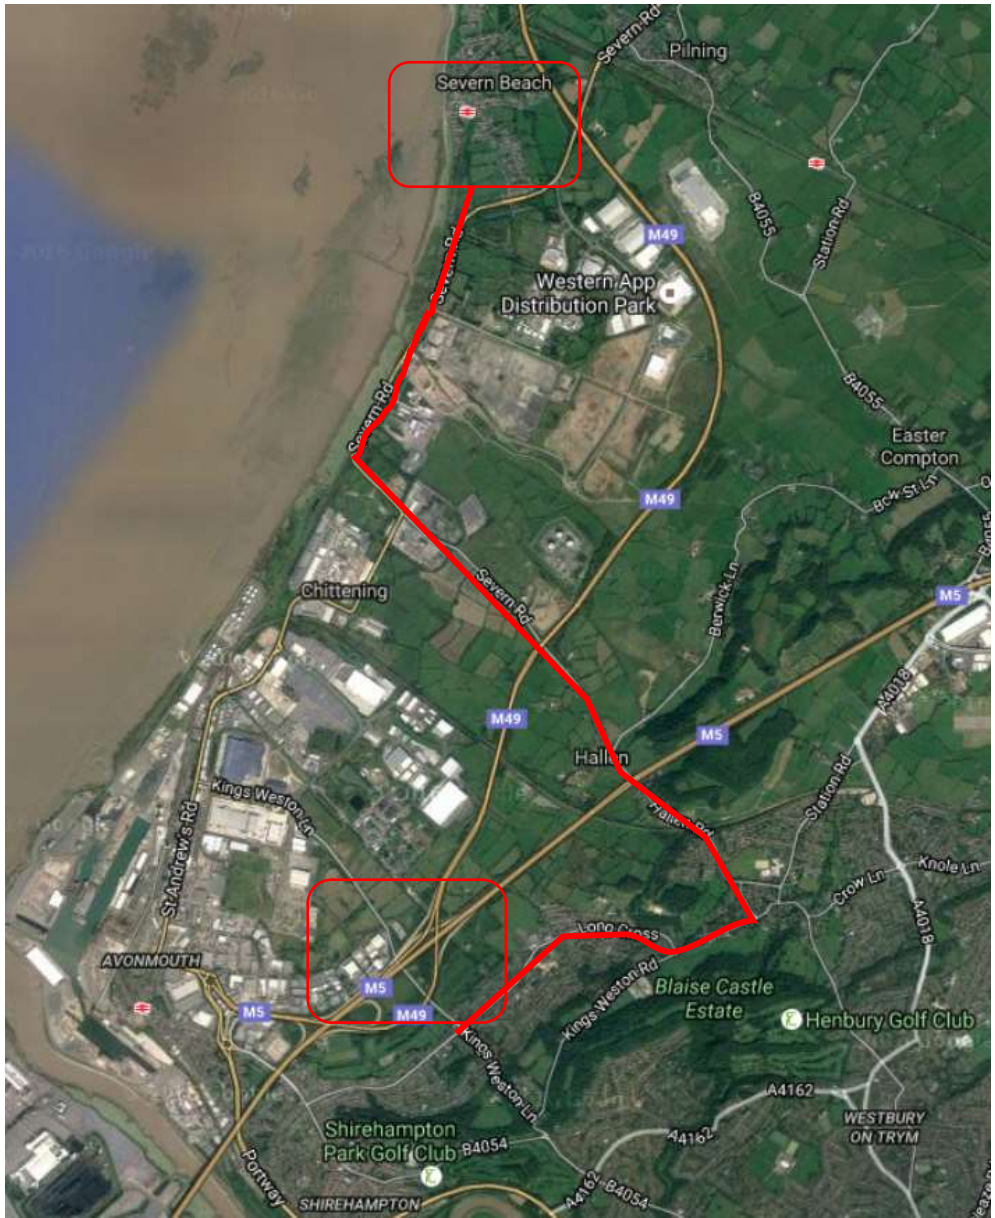

They repeatedly brag about their crimes and have also contacted their victims in order to taunt them. Some of these little shits are members of the mainstream local bike groups e.g. Weston Bike Night, so be careful what you write on groups like that. They've started to change their IDs on Facebook, presumably worried that someone will find them, I think they're just being paranoid ;)

There's been a number of instances of victims being contacted and either blackmailed or mocked. They also take pushbikes, not just motorbikes.

Known hangouts

The main areas known to be used in the Lawrence Weston area are fields around the M5 M49 interchange, and at Severn Beach. They are reported to move between the two via Hallen. The map below shows a road route but in fact they are believed to go across fields instead.

Main site – Lawrence Weston

Multiple reports of activities centred around the fields accessed via lane at point A. This is the main location where stolen bikes are known to be ridden / hidden / dumped / burned. Reports suggest bikes can be hidden in bushes here for several weeks and used multiple times before being destroyed.

A recent recce has identified a potential alternative location on the other side of the road, accessed by a gate around point B, which showed signs of use but none confirmed

There are reports that say that in Severn Beach bikes are regularly ridden around the Beach Road area (C), even though this is residential. This would suggest a possible gang member living in this area.

Bikes are also apparently ridden in the fields around area D, however the suspected entrance way at Green Lane was found to be securely locked on recent inspection. There may be an alternative entrance. It is suggested that bikes are not dumped here, so the suspicion is they are ridden here but then used as transport to return to Lawrence Weston.

Reports suggest the gang habitually hang around the playground at E, adjacent to the primary school.

They also use the roads around the Distribution Park, and bikes have recently been dumped at the Royal Mail site amongst others

Southmead

A number of these idiots live around Southmead, and many bikes seem to end up there too.

Descriptive locations:

“Garages near Little Mead School, Southmead”

“A house round by Cameron Smith’s where the garden backs onto Greystoke, the shed is covered with tarp bikes are kept there” (see below to find out about Cameron Smith)

“The old Wayfarer site on Pen Park Road” – bikes are ridden on open space around this area too

Purdown (Lockleaze), especially the footpaths at North end of Romney Avenue, near the playground

Other activity

A recent trend has been to steal bikes and then leave on street nearby. There is a suggestion this could be in order to test if there is a tracker on board, although a professional thief should be able to identify and remove a tracker with little problem. Perhaps a similar motive is to see who turns up to collect it?

Alternatively it could be simply left on street near but not connected to a thief's house.

Recent example was a bike located at Corston Walk, Shirehampton, again very close to the LW gang.

Theft locations

Thefts in the following locations have been directly attributed to the LW gang, note these are allegations only, and not necessarily proven:

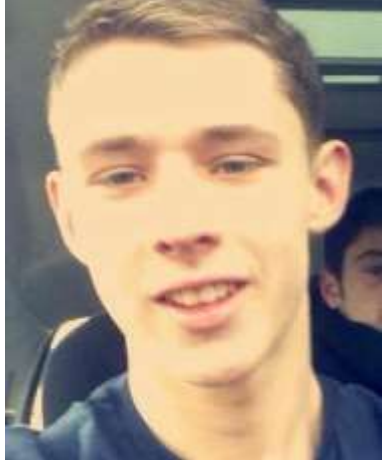

- Whiteladies Road – Cameron Smith
- Portishead – Nathan Stevens
- Lawrence Weston – Cameron Smith

There has been a recent spate of thefts around Bedminster; we are unable to link these to this group at this time but would welcome evidence either way. We've heard there may be a Hartcliffe connection to the Bedminster thefts but this may also have been disproven

Group members, as far as we can tell

Bristols biggest bike thief

A photograph of a man in a police uniform, wearing a dark cap. A very bright light source is positioned directly in front of his face, creating a large, vertical lens flare that obscures his eyes and part of his face. He is holding a dark object, possibly a tool or a piece of equipment, in his right hand.

 David Dare I don't understand how you can say he thinks it's funny he's not even smiling in the pic and he only commented 'yh' what's so funny about that 😂😂

17 July 2015 at 18:50 · 👍 1

 Kim Bennett yh listen don't go chatting shit to me he is my brother and ill tel him what i like its not funny at all its not like the photo was took by a mate was it it was by some one what got there van and tools took so its stupid to even put that as a cover photo understand now y i said it so shut ur mouth

17 July 2015 at 18:52

 Lacie Emily Winter She said that because this is the pic of him after that van thing and he set this as his cover

17 July 2015 at 18:52

Every bike that's round by mine going nuts comes back on us and door gets banged the boy takes his bike out and they automatically assume it's stolen. You lot are different kind of people to what he's like. I'm not saying no more on here...
