Do you feel alone? Depressed, worried, or anxious?
Do you feel like there's no one you can talk to?

Stress, anxiety, depression and feelings of loss can be some of the possible reactions and experiences people have as they adjust to and live with a cancer diagnosis . . . but why do it alone? Communication and support can be very helpful in your journey as a patient, and that is why The Eye Cancer Foundation sponsors the NYECC Support Group. Facilitated by Karen Campbell, LCSW, the support groups will provide an opportunity to meet with others who share similar experiences — have your voice be heard and obtain support.

Karen Campbell is a Licensed Clinical Social Worker (LCSW) and has been practicing in the field for 24 years. Until recently, she was the Director of Vision Rehabilitation Services at Lighthouse Guild and previously developed and facilitated Lighthouse International's Support Group Program. Having also worked at NYU Langone, she has a background in medical social work including oncology. She has a passion for groups and believes them to be a valuable way for people to help manage their medical challenges and address common issues such as family adjustment, anxiety, loss and depression.
