For those of us with a bit of a sweet tooth this one is for you! If you don't have the extra room in your diet for the real deal, these are great options for a healthy substitute. ☐☐

I thought that I had my food fears controlled for a few years, and I did, now that I'm looking back on it. I had a regular breakfast, oats and peanut butter with some berries and then normally some veg and meat for dinner with lunch changing daily, and that seems to work for me. Then, I developed a severe nut allergy and ended up being rushed to the doctors/ hospital twice in the last year. I mean who even develops a nut allergy in their 20s?

WHY YOU CANT STICK TO A DIET

@activearron

YOU LACK PATIENCE

YOU CUT OUT ALL
THE FOODS YOU ENJOY

SHORT TERM MINDSET

CALORIES ARE TOO LOW

TOO MUCH FOCUS ON THE SCALE

NOT MANAGING STRESS

6 year comparison 150 lbs in each picture. The pic on the left was a little over a year after I started exercising and lifting and had lost 30 pounds. In the middle was a few months before Ray and I got married. when I was told NOT lose anymore weight because we had already had to exchange my dress for a size down and we wouldn't have time for another exchange. On the right is now. My goal is to remain consistent and not have the yoyo in weight that has occurred between each of these pictures.
