Have you ever Heard? Game Servers Is Your Finest Bet To Grow

To group our game servers together, we can make the most of Kubernetes Pod PodAffinity configuration with the PreferredDuringSchedulingIgnoredDuringExecution choice. In a great world, we would want a dedicated game server Pod to be scheduled on the node with probably the most devoted game server Pods, so long as that node also has sufficient spare CPU sources. In actual fact, in some places within the Kubernetes documentation, this is just referred to as marking a node unschedulable. This means that if you're working on Google Kubernetes Engine (GKE), or similar, you can't use a managed autoscaling system. Very merely, Kubernetes gives us the power to tell the scheduler: "Hey scheduler, don't schedule anything new on this node here". Therefore, we can solely remove nodes from a cluster when a node is empty of dedicated game servers. This ensures that no new Pods get scheduled on that node.
